It is sold by all responsible druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six for five dollars. Sample bottles 50 cts. free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,

Detroit, Mich.

When you have tried all the Sarsaparillas and have been disappointed, try Johnston's.

SEXUAL Weakness & Lost Manhood quickly and positively cured. Send for book mailed FREE to all afflicted. Address, Hewlin Medical Co., Buffalo, N. Y., U.S.A.

JOB PRINTING

SUCH AS

Cards, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Posters

ETC., ETC.,

EXECUTED TO ORDER

AT THIS OFFICE.

In the Neatest and Promptest Manner

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

TO A MAID DEMURE.

Often when the night is come,
With its quiet group at home,
While they broider, knit or sew,
Read, or chat in voices low,
Suddenly you lift your eyes
With an earnest look, and wise;
But I can not read their lore—
Tell me less, or tell me more.

Like a picture in a book,
Pure and peaceful is your look,
Quietly you walk your ways,
Steadfast duty fills the days.
Neither tears nor fierce delights,
Feverish days nor tossing nights,
Any troublous dreams confess—
Tell me more, or tell me less.

Swift the weeks are on the wing;
Years are brief, and love a thing
Blooming, fading, like a flower;
Wake and seize the little hour.
Give me welcome, or farewell;
Quick! I wait! And who can tell
What to-morrow may befall—
Love me more, or not at all.

—Andrew Hedbrooke, in Atlantic Monthly.

LADIES' MUSTACHES.

Removing Them With a Gold Needle and Battery.

Electricity and Acids as Destroyers of Unwelcome Mustaches—Big Freckles Blanched, Wrinkles Eradicated, Warts and Birth-Marks Washed Away.

A pale young man, wearing a generally lean and hungry look and a specific brown mole on the epidermis just over his right cheek bone, passed down Fourth and up one of the cross streets at about nine o'clock last Sunday morning. When he rang the bell at the doorway of a trim brick building near Fifth street the mole on his cheek was decorated with a growth of hair which might have given his mustache odds and then beaten it by a hundred and fifty points. When he emerged, twenty minutes later, the mole was blanched to ...

... hairs at a single sitting. He did it, but the punishment gave the young lady a wounded upper lip, which will be rough and more or less scarred for the next six months.

"However, most ladies are afraid of the electrical treatment, preferring the depilatories, which, while not always permanent in their effects, will remove an entire mustache at one application without pain, and when continued will generally kill the papillæ in time. Let me show you how they do their perfect work on the back of your hand."

With a small camel's hair brush the doctor applied a watery liquid to a spot as large as a silver half-dollar on the hairy back of the visitor's hand. It grew warm, almost hot, for a moment, and the hair began to shrivel up and gradually disappear. In a few minutes the spot was dry, all the hair had disappeared and the place was as smooth as the center of one's palm.

"Science is a great thing, young man. That acid is composed of a number of caustics, and in sufficient quantity will eat a hole through one's hand; but when applied according to directions it merely dissolves the hair, as you have seen. In fact, in the present stage of the world's progress it is not necessary for the fair sex to suffer with any blemishes. Wrinkles disappear, freckles fade, pock-marks fill up, birth-marks are blanched, and even red noses made white by the action of acids skillfully applied."

"Has science turned its attention to the alcoholic nose?"

"Yes, sir, but you must not connect all red noses with the abuse of stimulants. The corset lace is quite as effective an agent in inducing abnormal rubicundity of the nasal organ"—the doctor paused here while the visitor made a note of the phrase on his shirt-cuff. "The corset lace, I say, is quite as effective an agent in producing red noses as the whisky bottle. In most cases a red nose is the work of years, and it is generally accompanied by a thickening of the skin, which sometimes rounds out in spots, producing the bulbous blossom. In all cases the blood vessels upon the surface are stimulated and enlarged, and it is to the reduction of these vessels, both in size and number, that our treatment is directed. ...

HOME AND FARM.

THE COCAINE HABIT.

LATE EXPERIMENTS.

WHAT GIRLS READ.

Dr. R. BUTLER, Master of Arts, Cambridge University, England, says: "St. Jacobs Oil acts like magic."

AFTER all it is a bad child that gets the palm.

"That Miss Jones is a nice looking girl, isn't she?"
"Yes, and she'd be the belle of the town if it wasn't for one thing."
"What's that?"
"She has catarrh so bad it is unpleasant to be near her. She has tried a dozen things and nothing helps her. I am sorry, for I like her, but that doesn't make it any less disagreeable for one to be around her."
Now if she had used Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, there would have been nothing of the kind said, for it will cure catarrh every time.

Reduced Rates to Florida and the South.

A TOWN STYLE. The fashion of wearing cuffs among impecunious dudes.—Merchant Traveler.

PISO'S Remedy for Catarrh is agreeable to use. It is not a liquid or a snuff. 50c.

THE old chaps who wore armor were the first mail carriers.—Boston Bulletin.

WHEN a man falls down his temper generally gets up before he does.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

SUFFERERS FROM COUGHS, SORE THROAT, etc., should try "Brown's Bronchial Troches," a simple but sure remedy.

A QUESTION ABOUT

Brown's Iron Bitters

ANSWERED.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

The Genuine has Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. TAKE NO OTHER.

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT

THE GREAT CURE FOR

ITCHING PILES AND SKIN HUMOR

PREPARED ONLY BY DR. SWAYNE & SON PHILADELPHIA

THE OLDEST MEDICINES IN U.S. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS

A LIMITED OFFER. GREAT CHANCE!

65 Cents pays for a Year's subscription to the Weekly American Rural Home, Rochester, N. Y.

Common Sense

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all Druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S

VEGETABLE COMPOUND

WILL HELP

ANY WOMAN

Suffering from Kidney Disease or from troubles peculiar to her sex.

COCKLE'S

ANTI-BILIOUS

PILLS,

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

ELY'S

CREAM BALM

Gives Relief at once and Cures

COLD in HEAD

CATARRH

HAY FEVER.

Not a Liquid, Snuff or Powder. Free from Injurious Drugs and Offensive odors.

HAY-FEVER

ANTHEMS OF PRAISE.

ANTHEMS OF PRAISE,

DOW'S

RESPONSES AND SENTENCES,

SEND FOR A CATALOGUE OF

Ditson & Co.'s Octavo Editions.

LYON & HEALY, CHICAGO.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

WONDERFUL

SUCCESS.

ECONOMY IS WEALTH.

PATTERNS FREE!

All that you wish to use during the year by subscribing for

Demorest's Monthly.

W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, PUBLISHER, 17 E. 14th St., New York.

Sold by all Newsdealers and Postmasters.

MASON & HAMLIN

UNRIVALED ORGANS

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

Boston, New York, Chicago.

BENSON'S

CAPCINE

POROUS PLASTER

HIGHEST AWARDS OF MEDALS

IN AMERICA AND EUROPE.

Davis' Literary Monthly,

Attractive, Entertaining and Instructive.

A. E. DAVIS & CO., CHICAGO.

DO YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY?

BILL NYE'S NEW BOOK.

RUPTURE

TO MAKE LITTLE FOLKS HAPPY

D. LOTHROP & CO., 32 Franklin St., Boston.

30,000 CARPENTERS

SAW FILERS

FREE! A SPECIMEN COPY OF THE

TOLEDO BLADE!

THE BLADE, TOLEDO, OHIO.

GRIND your own Bone,

WILSON BROS., Easton, Pa.

No Rope to Cut Off Horses' Manes.

PISO'S CURE FOR

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.

Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

CONSUMPTION.

GUNS

Our $15 Shot Gun now $10.

$15 Double Breechloader, $9.50.

POWELL & CLEMENT, 180 MAIN ST., CINCINNATI, O.

RAILROAD GAZETTE.

A Journal of Transportation, Engineering and Railroad News.

Published at 73 Broadway, New York.

MAGIC LANTERNS

And STEREOPTICONS, all prices. Views illustrating every subject for PUBLIC EXHIBITIONS, etc.

McALLISTER, Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

HARTSHORN'S

Shade Rollers

AGENTS WANTED

CO., TOLEDO, OHIO.

RUPTURE

WE WANT YOU!

STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

$600 to $3,000 A YEAR

WOODWORKERS

OPIUM HABIT

ARKANSAS!

$5 TO $8 A DAY.

HOME STUDY.

FREE

The Youth's Companion.

PRIZE STORIES:

$1,500 First Prize Story "Blind Brother" will begin Jan. 1st.

$5000 Prize Serial and Short Stories.

The other Prize Stories, eight in all, will be published during 1887.

Free to Jan. 1, 1887. To any one who subscribes now, and sends us $1.75, we will send the Companion free from the time the subscription is received to January 1st, 1887, and a full year from that date. This offer includes the Double Thanksgiving and Christmas Numbers. Remit Money Order, Check, or Registered Letter.

Sample Copies and Full Announcement Free.
Please mention this paper.

Address PERRY MASON & CO., Publishers, 43 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

A SERMON TO PARENTS.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage on the Rearing of Children.

Parental Anxiety—Indulgency and Imperfection—Unwise Discipline and Instruction—Youthful Sins and Temptations—Being vs. Teaching.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon at the Tabernacle this morning was: "What is to Become of Our Children?" The text chosen was from Genesis xliv. 30, as follows: "Seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's life." Mr. Talmage said:

These words were spoken by Judah as descriptive of the tenderness and affection which Jacob felt toward Benjamin, the youngest son of that patriarchal family; but they are words just as appropriate to many a parent in this house since "his life is bound up in the lad's life." I have known parents that seemed to have but little interest in their children. A father says: "My son must look out for himself. If he comes up well, all right; if he turns out badly I can not help it. I am not responsible for his behavior; he must take the same risk in life that I took." As well might the shepherd throw a lamb into a den of lions and then say: "Little lamb, look out for yourself!"

It is generally the case that even the beast looks after its young. It is generally the case that the old bird will pick your eyes out rather than let you come nigh its brood. The lion will rend you in twain if you approach too nearly the whelps. The fowl in the barnyard, clumsy footed and heavy winged, flies fiercely at you if you come too near the little group; and God intended every father and mother to be the protection and help of the child. Jesus comes into every dwelling and says to the father or mother: "You have been looking after this child's body and mind; the time has come when you ought to be looking after its immortal soul." I stand before hundreds of people with whom the question, morning, noon and night, is, "What is to become of the child? What will be its history? Will it choose paths of virtue or vice? Will it accept Christ or reject ...

... have been acting on your suggestion, that's all."

And so one parent errs on one side, and another parent errs on the other, and how to strike a happy medium between severity and too great leniency, and train our sons and daughters for usefulness on earth and bliss in Heaven, is a question which agitates every Christian household in my congregation. Where so many good men and women have failed, is it strange we should sometimes doubt the propriety of our theory and the accuracy of our kind of government?

Again, parental anxiety often arises from an early exhibition of sinfulness in the child. The morning-glories bloom for a little while under the sun, and then they shut up as the heat comes on; but there are flowers along the Amazon that blaze their beauty for weeks at a time; but the short-lived morning-glory fulfills its mission as well as the Victoria Regia. There are some people who take forty, fifty or sixty years to develop. Then there are little children who fling their beauty on the vision and vanish. They are morning glories that can not stand the glare of the hot noon sun of trial.

I have noticed that, for the most part, the children that live sometimes get cross, and pick up bad words in the street, and quarrel with brother and sister, and prove unmistakably that they are wicked—as the Bible says, going astray from the womb, speaking lies. See the little ones in the Sabbath class, so sunshiny and beautiful, you would think they were always so, but mother, seated a little way off, looks over at these children and thinks of the awful time she has had to get them ready.

After the boy or girl comes a little farther on in life the mark of sin upon him or her is still more evident. The son comes in from a pugilistic encounter in the streets, bearing the marks of a defeat. The daughter practices positive deception, and the parent says: "What shall I do? I can't always be correcting and scolding, and yet these things must be stopped." It is especially sad if the parent sees his own faults copied by the child. It is very hard work to pull up a nettle that we ourselves planted. We remember that the greatest frauds that ever shook the banking-houses of the country started from a boy's ...

... one young man goes in and the other retreats. Oh, you say, the last had better resolution. No, that was not it. The first young man had no early good influence; the last had been piously trained, and when he stood at the door of sin discussing the matter he looked around as if to see some one, and he felt an invisible hand on his shoulder, saying: "Don't go in! Don't go in!" Whose hand was it? A mother's hand, fifteen years ago gone to dust. A gentleman was telling me of the fact that some years ago there were two young men who stopped at the door of the Park Theater, in New York. The question was whether they should go in. That night there was to be a very immoral play enacted in the theater. One man went in; the other stayed out. The young man who went in went on from sin to sin and through a crowd of iniquities, and died in the hospital of delirium tremens. The other young man, who retreated, chose Christ, went into the Gospel, and is now one of the most eminent ministers of Christ in this country. And the man who retreated gave as his reason for turning back from the Park Theater that night that there was a voice within him saying: "Don't go in; don't go in." And for that reason, my friends, I believe so much in Bible-classes. But there is something better than the Bible class, and that is the Sunday-School class. I like it because it takes children at an earlier point; and the infant class I like still better, because it takes children before they begin to walk or to talk straight, and puts them on the road to Heaven. You can not begin too early.

But I want you to remember, O father! O mother! that it is what you do that is going to affect your children. You tell your children to become Christians while you are not, and they will not. Do you think Noah's family would have gone into the ark if he had not gone in? They would say: "No, there is something about that boat that is not right; father has not gone in." You can not push children into the Kingdom of God—you have got to pull them in. Do you know all the instruction you give to your children in a religious direction goes for nothing unless you illustrate it in your own life? It is what you are, not so much what you teach.

Have a family altar. Let it be a close ...

[illegible]

OFFICIAL FIGURES.

The Vote for Gubernatorial Candidates at the Recent Election.

Below will be found the official figures of the vote cast in the recent State election for Governor, the candidates being Luce (Republican), Yaple (Fusion), and Dickie (Prohibition):

Counties.
Alcona	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alger	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Allegan	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alpena	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Antrim	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Arenac	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Baraga	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Barry	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bay	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Benzie	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Berrien	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Branch	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Calhoun	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cass	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Charlevoix	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cheboygan	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chippewa	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clare	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Clinton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crawford	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Delta	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Eaton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Emmet	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Genesee	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Gladwin	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Grand Traverse	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Gratiot	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hillsdale	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Houghton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Huron	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ingham	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ionia	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Iosco	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Iron	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Isabella	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jackson	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Kalamazoo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Kalkaska	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Kent	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Keweenaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lake	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lapeer	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Leelanaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lenawee	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Livingston	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mackinac	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Macomb	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Manistee	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Manitou	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Marquette	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mason	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mecosta	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Menominee	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Midland	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Missaukee	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Monroe	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Montcalm	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

[illegible]

PRESS PARAGRAPHS.

[illegible]

HOW IT HAPPENED.

[illegible]

THE COMBINED

STEAM FURNITURE

—AND—

Agate Works,

CHARLEVOIX, . . . MICH.

REPAIRING OR BUILDING

Furniture of all Kinds

ON SHORT NOTICE.

MY LAPIDARY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

CORNELIUS BUDD.

Northern Michigan

Boiler Works.

Boilers, Heaters,

LARD TANKS, ETC.

OF ALL KINDS

SHEET IRON WORK

A SPECIALTY.

MARINE WORK

Given Special Attention

HENRY BARTH, Proprietor,

Charlevoix, Mich.

MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE & WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Only Line Running

TWO DAILY TRAINS

—BETWEEN—

Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago

THE AIR LINE TO OSHKOSH.

TIME TABLE.

[illegible]

FRANK E. WOOD'S

BATH AND BARBER ROOMS.

FARMING LAND!

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

Michigan Lands

FOR SALE BY THE

G. R. & I. R. R. COMPANY.

WATER AND RAIL.

Not a Wilderness, by any Means.

W. O. HUGHART, Land Commissioner,

Grand Rapids, Mich.

HUMPHREYS'

HOMEOPATHIC

SPECIFICS.

WM. J. STEVENSON,

VETERINARY HORSE-SHOER.

The Old Doctor

DR. WARD & CO. Louisiana, Mo.

THE IOWA ROUTE

BURLINGTON CEDAR RAPIDS AND NORTHERN RY

THE SHORT & POPULAR LINE

NORTH, SOUTH, EAST or WEST.

SOLID TRAINS

WITH

PULLMAN SLEEPERS

Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul

FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE.

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul

NOW IS THE TIME

TO USE

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA

FOR

LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA,

AND FOR

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,

Detroit, Mich.

SEXUAL

JOB PRINTING

Cards, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Posters,

EXECUTED TO ORDER

AT THIS OFFICE.

In the Neatest and Promptest Manner

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, : MICHIGAN.

TO A MAID DEMURE.

Often when the night is come,
With its quiet group at home,
While they broider, knit or sew,
Read, or chat in voices low,
Suddenly you lift your eyes
With an earnest look, and wise;
But I can not read their lore—
Tell me less, or tell me more.

Like a picture in a book,
Pure and peaceful is your look,
Quietly you walk your ways,
Steadfast duty fills the days.
Neither tears nor fierce delights,
Feverish days nor tossing nights,
Any troublous dreams confess—
Tell me more, or tell me less.

Swift the weeks are on the wing;
Years are brief, and love a thing
Blooming, fading, like a flower;
Wake and seize the little hour.
Give me welcome, or farewell;
Quick! I wait! And who can tell
What to-morrow may befall—
Love me more, or not at all.

—Andrew Hedbrooke, in Atlantic Monthly.

LADIES' MUSTACHES.

Removing Them With a Gold Needle and Battery.

[illegible]

... hairs at a single sitting. He did it, but the punishment gave the young lady a wounded upper lip, which will be rough and more or less scarred for the next six months.

"However, most ladies are afraid of the electrical treatment, preferring the depilatories, which, while not always permanent in their effects, will remove an entire mustache at one application without pain, and when continued will generally kill the papillæ in time. Let me show you how they do their perfect work on the back of your hand."

With a small camel's hair brush the doctor applied a watery liquid to a spot as large as a silver half-dollar on the hairy back of the visitor's hand. It grew warm, almost hot, for a moment, and the hair began to shrivel up and gradually disappear. In a few minutes the spot was dry, all the hair had disappeared and the place was as smooth as the center of one's palm.

"Science is a great thing, young man. That acid is composed of a number of caustics, and in sufficient quantity will eat a hole through one's hand; but when applied according to directions it merely dissolves the hair, as you have seen. In fact, in the present stage of the world's progress it is not necessary for the fair sex to suffer with any blemishes. Wrinkles disappear, freckles fade, pock-marks fill up, birth-marks are blanched, and even red noses made white by the action of acids skillfully ...

[illegible]

WHAT GIRLS READ.

[illegible]

LATE EXPERIMENTS.

[illegible]

HOME AND FARM.

—Lemon juice and sugar, mixed very thick, is useful to ... sore throats. ... well as sweet. ...

[illegible]

THE COCAINE HABIT.

[illegible]

Queer Pets Down in Cuba.

[Cor. N. O. Picayune.]

The maja snake is frequently kept by planters in their barns for the purpose of catching rats, which it faithfully performs. One planter has in his country residence as pets a whole family of majas—the father, mother and eighteen young ones. But this is a Cuban eccentricity, not a rule.

Bartholdi's Statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World" will be a reminder of personal liberty for ages to come. On just as sure a foundation has Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" been placed, and it will stand through the cycles of time as a monument to the physical emancipation of thousands, who by its use have been relieved from consumption, consumptive night-sweats, bronchitis, coughs, spitting of blood, weak lungs, and other throat and lung affections.

THE buzz saw has an off hand way with new acquaintances.—Commercial Bulletin.

• • • • Nervous debility, premature decline of power in either sex, speedily and permanently cured. Large book, 10 cents in stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ocean is like a good housewife—very tidy.—Boston Post.

A QUESTION ABOUT

Brown's Iron Bitters

ANSWERED.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT

CURE FOR ITCHING PILES

AND SKIN HUMOR

SYMPTOMS

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT

PREPARED BY ONLY DR. SWAYNE & SON, PHILADELPHIA

THE OLDEST MEDICINES IN U.S. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS

A LIMITED OFFER. GREAT CHANCE!

65 Cents Pays for a Year's subscription to the Weekly American Rural Home, Rochester, N. Y.

RURAL HOME CO., (Limited.)

Common Sense

Hood's Sarsaparilla

100 Doses One Dollar

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

ELY'S CREAM BALM

CATARRH

HAY-FEVER

ANTHEMS OF PRAISE.

DOW'S RESPONSES AND SENTENCES.

LYON & HEALY, CHICAGO.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

ECONOMY IS WEALTH.

PATTERNS FREE!

All that you wish to use during the year, by subscribing for

Demorest's Monthly.

W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher,

17 E. 14th St., New York.

Sold by all Newsdealers and Postmasters.

MASON & HAMLIN

NOW SELL THEIR

UNRIVALED ORGANS

On the EASY HIRE system, payments at the rate of $2.25 per month, up.

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

Boston, New York, Chicago.

BENSON'S

CAPCINE

POROUS PLASTER

HIGHEST AWARDS OF MEDALS

Davis' Literary Monthly,

DO YOU WANT MONEY?

BILL NYE'S NEW BOOK.

RUPTURE

TO MAKE LITTLE FOLKS HAPPY

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

30,000 CARPENTERS

FREE! A SPECIMEN COPY OF THE TOLEDO BLADE!

GRIND your own Bone,

GUNS

MAGIC LANTERNS

HARTSHORN'S SHADE ROLLERS

AGENTS WANTED

RUPTURE

WE WANT YOU!

STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

$600 to $3,000 A YEAR

WOODWORKERS

OPIUM HABIT

ARKANSAS! Mild Climate! Good Lands!

$5 TO $8 A DAY.

HOME STUDY.

FREE

The Youth's Companion.

PRIZE STORIES:

$1,500 First Prize Story "Blind Brother" will begin Jan. 1st.

$5000 Prize Serial and Short Stories.

The other Prize Stories, eight in all, will be published during 1887.

Free to Jan. 1, 1887.

Address PERRY MASON & CO., Publishers, 43 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, DEC. 15, 1886.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

The Labor Question.

While the labor question is not one which—like the tariff question—divides the political parties of this country, it is yet one of those economic questions which relate to the science of government, and therefore find their way into politics. And the problem of the just relations between capital and labor is a present, living question, which political parties must deal with or it will deal with them.

The party that attempts to ignore this question will find itself soon ignored by the great mass of the voters of the country. And it is a fact of which every member of the Republican party is justly proud that the party to which he belongs seeks neither to ignore nor evade this question but meet it and treats it fairly, justly and humanely, the policy of the party being to elevate and ennoble labor, and at the same time protect and conserve the great manufacturing interests of the country; it being one of the tenets of the party as it is of wise political economists everywhere, that there is no natural or necessary antagonism between capital and labor, but that the one is the twin and complement of the other.

It is impossible that a question of this magnitude and importance in this country should not be the subject of legislation. In no other way can the greed of a few selfish monopolists on the one hand, and the vagaries of a few visionary anarchists on the other, be held in check, and the workman assured of reasonable compensation for his work, protected against the unjust and unwholesome competition of convict, foreign and pauper labor, and by a just limitation of the hours of toil, given the opportunity which leisure affords for independence and culture. And this legislation, in order to be effective and far-reaching as it ought to be, must come from the Congress of the United States. As the question is a national one, the national legislature only can adequately deal with it. It therefore becomes highly important that in the selection of Senators and Representatives in congress this question be steadily kept in view, and that those and those only be selected by the Re-Republicans who are informed on this question, and whose sentiments are in harmony with those of the party and the people they represent.

These considerations make the selection of a United States Senator by the Legislature of this State, soon to assemble, a matter of unwonted gravity. It is fortunate, however, that the State has within her borders a man who, in addition to his other eminent qualifications for that position, is thoroughly conversant with the labor question and all its bearings, and whose feelings and opinions are in harmony with those of the great mass of his party, especially those who earn their daily bread by their daily toil. Hon. Francis B. Stockbridge, of Kalamazoo, is a man who has been an employe as well as an employer. Beginning his business career in comparative poverty, he has literally worked his way to the competence he now enjoys. He knows what it is to be a laborer as well as an employer of labor. It is not strange therefore, that his relations to those in his employ have been of the most friendly character. Giving his personal superintendence to his business, working with his men and not above them, he has been brought into intimate and friendly relation with the people in his employ, and in this way he has an actual, practical knowledge of and a hearty and generous sympathy with the ideas, feelings and needs of the workingmen. And this knowledge and sympathy have brought him fast and devoted friends in all the great number of men whom he has from time to time, had in his employ. It is one of the brightest spots in Col. Stockbridg's life that at one time when misfortune overtook him by the burning of one of his mills, the workmen in his employ came to him with an offer to help rebuild, from their earnings which they had accumulated while in his service. While the Colonel did not feel at liberty to accept the generous and timely offer, the fact that it was made is more eloquent than volumes of eulogy. And looking over the names of those mentioned in connection with the office of Senator from this State, the Telegraph firmly believes that no one could be chosen whose election would so tend to a just and satisfactory solution of the labor question as would the election of the candidate of western Michigan, Frank B. Stockbridge.—Daily Telegraph.

The President's message, while it mentioned civil service reform, had not a word about Benton and Stone and his civil service manipulations in their cases. But the people had already been posted through the newspapers as to his sort of reform.

Northern Michigan News.

Mancelona schools are again closed on account of diphtheria.

Talk of the tower system of electric lighting at Sault Ste. Marie.

Ice has begun to form between St Helens and Gros Cap in the straits.

The majority of A. T. Cass, in the Leelanaw and Benzie district is officially stated as 168.

Dr. Jesse B. Hull, of Bellaire, has a good medical library and four hundred dollars' worth of medical intruments.

Belle Boyd, the spy, has been spying around Northern Michigan, and beat the Kalkaska Leader out of $1.75 and the Mancelona Herald $2.00.

Judge Ramsdell held circuit court in Leelanaw county last week. A. John was admitted to the bar on his certificate of election as prosecuting attorney.

Elk Rapids furnace interests keep the town hustling. Over 20,000 cords of wood will be put in at the furnace this winter, and there are still 5,000 tons of pig iron to be shipped

Elk Rapids has started a railroad subscription paper. About $1,000 was subscribed in fifteen minutes. How the matter has progressed since then the Progress does not state.

Col. F. B. Stockbridge has been re-elected president of the Resort Association on Mackinaw Island. The association made arrangements for putting in water works next spring.

The farmers about Petoskey are complaining because some of the roads into that place are so impassable at certain seasons of the year, and threaten to go elsewhere to do their trading.

Mr. Smith Barnes of Traverse City, left on Saturday for a cruise of a couple of months among the West Indies, and will touch at a few points on the South American coast before returning.

Under its new management, the Antrim Furnace company have turned out 8,003 tons of pig iron during the six months of its existence just ended, more than the old company made in four years.

The business men of St. Ignace will give a free excursion (date to be named later) on the steamer Algomah to all those people of Mackinac Island who wish to visit St. Ignace and buy their holiday goods.

The large three-masted schooner Cleveland, owned in that city, and commanded by Capt. Cassidy, has been laid up at Harbor Springs, because she having taken shelter there, her crew refused to go further.

The Smith lumber company of Kalkaska has completed about four miles of its new railroad. It is standard guage, and in good shape to receive the new engine and cars recently arrived. The labor market is well supplied at present.

The steamer Lou A. Cummings, after a very prosperous season on the bay, has gone to Grand Haven to winter. It is quite probable she will be in different hands next season, as Captain Robertson expects to sail the steam barge now building for Gill & Son.

Says the Elk Rapids Progress: "A cat belonging to Wilson Rushmore swallowed a needle and thread one day last week. As it was a handsome pussy, Mr. Rushmore was anxious to save it, so enlisting the services of Dr. Conklin the needle was removed and the cat is now out of danger."

Mrs. Mary Carter, of Fife Lake was arrested and brought to Traverse City last week and arraigned before Justice Roberts, charged with the murder of her infant child about two months since. She waived an examination and will remain in jail to await her trial at the next term of the Circuit court.

Mr. S. W. Perkins is engaged in the manufacture of mince meat upon quite a large scale, at Williamsburg. He has so far this season made nearly nine tons. One day recently he sent out by rail to different points, a full ton. His products appear to be giving excellent satisfaction and his orders are constantly increasing.

The wrecking tug that came to release the schooner Metropolis, after working two days was forced to abandon her. The diver went down to examine her and found a plank displaced which allowed the water to flow in as fast as pumped out, and all efforts to stop it were unavailing. The Elk Rapids Iron Co. purchased the vessel on Monday to protect certain insurance interests it held on its cargo.

Mr. Howard, who for the past four years has been proprietor of the Bay View hotel, has concluded to erect a beautiful new hotel, on block 27 at Bay View. Mr. Howard contemplates erecting the building with a view to the comfort and convenience of his guests, making the rooms large and airy and furnishing the building with all modern conveniences for the accommodation of its patrons. The cost of the building will be about $4,000.

The Boys Band at Traverse City, has disbanded. Too bad as it was a fine organization a credit to the town and region.

The McKinnon House at Cadillac has been sold by Maj. C. L. Andress to Mrs. F. H. Muther for the consideration of $10,000.

F. R. Axtell is under arrest at Frankfort, charged with robbing the bodies of the sailors washed ashore from the wrecked schooners Menekaunee and Marinette. Axtell claims that he is a justice of the peace and intended to hold an inquest on the bodies.

Leelanaw Enterprise: Captain Lysaght of the life saving station at North Manitou Island and Peter Oleson, one of his crew, met with a narrow escape from a watery grave Tuesday evening. When opposite Gill's Pier they were swamped in the heavy sea, their boat capsized, one spar resting on the bottom and preventing the boat from drifting ashore. The men clung to the bottom of the boat, and were over an hour in the water before the boat finally drifted ashore. They were terribly chilled, but through the well directed efforts of W. F. Gill, they were brought around all right.

A. W. Marks, superintendent of the state fish hatchery at Petoskey, is preparing a case of specimens for the agricultural college. He has a black eel, caught in Little Traverse bay, that measures 3 feet 7 inches in length, and only 4 years old. He also has specimens of the spawn or eggs of the whitefish, trout, etc., in the various stages of incubation. These specimens will also be used by the fish commission to show the legislature how much progress has been made in "piscatorial culture.". It has never been definitely settled in what manner eels propagate their species, as their "spawn" has never been found.—Petoskey Record.

St. Ignace Watchman: Mackinac county owes about $40,000. Every man, woman and child in the county owes eight dollars, which must be paid sometime. There is a mortgage on every voter in the county for forty dollars, which sometime will be foreclosed. If there are some of these voters who will not pay their forty dollars, there are others who will pay more, so we will say every one of them owe forty dollars. That's quite an amount for the average voter to pay. They can do it if they have to—and no doubt they will—but why make them do it? If the affairs of this county were rightly managed, the owners of the 1,000,000,000 feet of pine which Mackinac county is supposed to contain would pay at least one-half of that $40,000.

Capt. Philo Crysler, says the Harbor Springs Independent, enjoys a good story, even if it is on himself, and although he didn't know we were going to print the following, we shall hope to escape punishment by saying that he told us the story while talking over old times a few days ago. Every old resident will remember the little steamer, Gen. Geo. W. Wool, which Capt Crysler first ran as a ferry between here and Petoskey. She was not much larger than a pound boat, her boiler leaked, her steam pipes were cracked, and she was fast approaching the time to go where good steamers all go, when the incident spoken of happened. It was late in the fall of '75, and water was freezing wherever it struck. Capt. Crysler was crossing the bay one stormy day with but one passenger aboard—a drummer from Grand Rapids who, like all of his kind, had a holy horror of cold water and an equal dislike of dangerous navigation. After leaving the dock at Petoskey the little steamer tumbled and tossed around considerably, and the traveler got several "sousings" from flying spray. He crawled back into the engine room, and there saw steam escaping from the cracks in the boiler, and from the various pipes connecting The pipes had been wound with rags to prevent as much as possible the escape of steam, and these at once attracted his attention. Thinking he would prefer drowning than to go sailing into eternity astride a busted boiler, he returned to the bow, and not wanting to own up that he was frightened, casually asked Capt. Crysler what he had the pipes all tied up in rags for. Philo answered with all the nonchalance of an old salt, "Jest to keep 'em from bustin'; we're goin' to tie a blanket round 'er biler soon as we get ashore." Just then a big roller struck her broadside, the safety valve "popped" with a tremendous roar of escaping steam, and crawling up from the cockpit where the shock had thrown him, the drummer said: "Say for God's sake let's hurry ashore then!" Capt. Crysler finally sold the Wool to a Cheboygan man, and one night her captain tied her behind a vessel anchored in the straits, and with his crew slept on the schooner. During the night a squall came up, and when the captain of the little steamer crawled out of his berth in the morning, all that could be seen of the General Geo. W. Wool was the timber head to which her line had been fastened. She had rolled over and sunk in the night.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

The subject of the relations of parents and teachers being one of vital importance, we give place to the following abstract of the remarks of Rev. A. T. Waterman, at the Teachers' meeting Monday evening, Nov. 29th, on "The Home View of the School."

Mr. Waterman said: The home view of the school is an exacting one. We expect our teachers possess the highest qualifications, are possessed of ability to meet any emergency, and are competent to deal with all the difficult questions that may arise in the management of the child and in the great work of educating him.

We suppose, too, that the school runs itself. We pay our taxes, furnish the school house and supplies, put the teachers in, and expect that from the beginning to the end of the term all will go smoothly, without a kind word of advice, sympathy or encouragement from us.

We suppose the teacher has none but our child to deal with, and to attend to. Why cannot his interests be always consulted? Why cannot he be advanced as fast as we desire, or as he thinks he deserves? If he is a little dull why cannot the teacher give him more attention and help him along faster?

We think our children are about right; children in school must be made to mind; we cannot make ours mind, but teachers must do it and without using any particular means to that end.

The "home view" excuses the Home from all responsibility after the taxes are paid and the teacher hired. We may or may not give any moral support to the teacher, or do anything to impress the child with respect for the school or a sense of his duties there, but the teacher, alone, must make it a success.

Our children must be comfortable in the school room, though we know nothing of the conditions there existing. The room may be heated by a stove and if our child sits near it and comes home complaining of too much heat, we would like to know why the teacher doesn't know enough to keep less fire; or if he sits away from the stove, and complains of the cold; "Can't we get a teacher who knows enough to keep the room warm?" even though children near the stove are suffocated with heat. We deem it our privilege to pass judgment upon the wisdom, or justice of the teacher's management without acquainting ourselves with them any farther than we may do so from the careless or garbled statement of our child.

After all, the home view is not always incorrect or unjust; many things about the school can be seen from the parent's stand-point, that cannot be seen from the teacher's platform.

Teachers should endeavor to learn the conditions of the pupils at home, the influences that affect their conduct and their work in school, and seek to harmonize the views of both teachers and parents. He believed that when the patrons would fill the hall at teachers' meetings, and observe what the teachers are endeavoring to do, and frankly enter into the discussion of questions pertaining to the work of education, a long step toward this desired end would be taken.

The school entertainment this evening promises to be a most successful one in every way. The selections have been made with great care, and with special reference to the benefit which the pupils would derive from the preparatory drills.

"Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works" is a whole entertainment in itself. You ought not to fail to see this, and a good programme besides.

The architect of this column knows the difference between the words adjunct and adjutant, but in last week's issue, by his careless writing and neglect of proof reading, permitted the compositor to make him use the latter word for the former, in the comments on memory-training.

Entertainment to-night at Opera Hall. Over one hundred children will participate. "Be there to see." Doors open at 7:15; curtain rises at 7:45. Hear the curtain lecture shortly after.

Ex-Gov. Croswell is seriously ill at his home in Adrian.

The telegraphic reporters say that the Michigan Democratic Congressmen, ignoring entirely the badness of their cause are blaming Don Dickinson for their party's defeat in this State.

Allen G. Thurman wants to know what is the matter with his party, and has called a meeting of democratic leaders for January 7th, to discuss the affairs of the party and devise some means, if possible, to save the presidency in 1888. It is too late to recover, Mr. Thurman

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton, can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free.

For Sale!

Prof. BICE'S [illegible] beautiful lots on [illegible] village of Charlevoix, are [illegible] School House and two [illegible] near the Park in the [illegible] for sale. Enquire of G. M. BICE, Alpena, Mich., or E. H. GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich. May 4, 1886.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

In effect September 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.		No 5	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City	Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey		8 [illegible]	10 51
Boyne Falls		9 16	11 30
Mancelona		10 18	12 30
Walton Junc.		11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac	Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
	Lv	12 45	2 55	6 30
Le Roy		1 24	6 46	7 17
Reed City	Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
	Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids		2 46	8 13	8 23
Stanwood		3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City		3 33	9 03	9 26
D G H & M Cross		4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids	Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
	Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell		8 56	6 41	1 12
Kalamazoo	Ar	9 05	7 10	1 45
	Lv	9 19	7 30	2 00
Sturgis		10 27	8 50	3 28
Ft Wayne	Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
	Lv	1 01	11 45
Richmond		4 30	3 3[illegible]
Cincinnati	Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.		No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave		7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond		10 20	10 10
Fort Wayne	Ar	1 50	1 15
	Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis		4 24	6 25
Kalamazoo	Ar	5 45	6 55
	Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell		6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids	Ar	7 40	9 20
	Lv	11 30	4 55
D., G., H., & M. cross		11 45	5 10
Howard City		12 52	6 18
Stanwood		1 22	6 48
Big Rapids		1 41	7 09
Reed City	Ar	2 15	7 40
	Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy		3 08	8 33
Cadillac	Ar	3 45	9 10
	Lv	3 55	9 30
Walton Junc		4 45	10 25
Mancelona		6 10	11 50
Boyne Falls		7 01	12 52
Petoskey		7 50	1 30
Mackinaw City		9 30	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with one's own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the [illegible] of a mortgage dated the 1[illegible] day of October, 1885, executed by Nicholas Morgan, (widower) [illegible] John Wilkinson company [illegible] organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, of Chicago, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, October 30th, 188[illegible], in [illegible] of Mortgages [illegible] [illegible] Lots three [illegible] and four (4) in Block "O" in Nicholas Morgan's addition to South Boyne in Charlevoix county, Michigan, according to the recorded plat thereof, at public vendue to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City, in Charlevoix County and State of Michigan, [illegible] the place of holding the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix] at 12 o'clock noon on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1887.

Dated the 1st day of November, A. D. 1886.

THE JOHN WILKINSON COMPANY, Mortgagee.
FRED W. MAYNE, Atty for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a mortgage made by Benjamin Walker, Benjamin Moore [illegible] (being one and the same person, and known and called by either name) and Marie Moore [illegible], his wife, of Charlevoix county, to David Carpenter, of Ellsworth, Michigan, bearing date July 16, 1880, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, July 22, 1880 in Liber 7 of mortgages on pages 616 and 617, to secure to said David Carpenter the payment of two hundred and fifty dollars in five years from the date thereof with ten per cent interest payable annually, on which there is now due (unpaid) the sum of $459.48, whereby the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and no proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt or any part thereof secured thereby. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that on Friday, the 4th day of March, 1887, at one o'clock p. m. of said day, at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City, in said county of Charlevoix, Michigan, said mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained and the statute in such case made and provided by a sale at public auction to the highest bidder of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, said premises being described therein as follows, viz: the East half of the North East quarter of section twenty-eight [28] township thirty-four [34] North of Range seven [7] west. Charlevoix county, state of Michigan.

Dated December 7th, 1886.

DAVID CARPENTER, Mortgagee.
DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Adelbert R. Upright and Amelia B. Upright, his wife, of Charlevoix, Michigan, to Martha J. Ayers of Plattsburg, New York, dated the twenty sixth day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan, on the twenty-seventh day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty four in Liber "B" of mortgages on page 440 at ten o'clock and thirty minutes in the forenoon, and the same is now owned by the said Martha J. Ayers, and the whole of the principal and interest is past due and unpaid and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Eleven hundred and Ninety two Dollars and twenty-five cents ($1,192.25) principal and interest; and no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the moneys secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; Now therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described. Notice is therefore hereby given that on Thursday the Twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1887, at one o'clock in the afternoon I shall sell at Public Auction, to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, now situated in the village of Boyne City, township of Evangeline, county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan, (that being the place and building in which the Circuit court for Charlevoix county is holden,) the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage with the interest at ten per cent and all legal costs including such attorney fee provided for in said mortgage as is allowed by the statute in such case made and provided, which premises are described in the said mortgage as follows, to wit: All those certain pieces or parcels of land situated in the village of Charlevoix in the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan. A strip of land five (5) feet wide off of the north side of lot eight (8) of block five (5), and a strip of land twenty-five [25] feet wide off of the south side of lot seven [7] of block five [5], of the village of Charlevoix, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

Dated November 17th, A. D. 1886.

MARTHA J. AYERS, Mortgagee.
EDWARD H. GREEN, Attorney for said Mortgagee, Charlevoix, Mich.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the [illegible] block. Inquire of D. [illegible] 1511.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

A. J. McLEOD,

having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at
Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.
Henry Bennett, Pres. ; John Nicholls, Vice Pres. ; F. A. Smith, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, F. A. Smith, O. D. Wood, A. Butters, A. Fox.
CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000
The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.
Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money loaned on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.
CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK - NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK - CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK - GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK - DETROIT.

For Finest
JOB WORK,
Patronize The
Sentinel.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers and Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co
We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS
AND SHOES,
which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces
Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Pacs, And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.
We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.
Womens grain shoes for $1.25 Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.
Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. D. Bradbeer,
PHOTOGRAPHER,
OFFICE OVER
UPRIGHT & EHRET'S STORE.
I will make Cabinet Photographs,
A SPECIALTY!
At Lowest Prices
Consistent with GOOD WORK.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, [illegible]

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GREEN, Attorneys at Law, Office in Dulaac Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

[illegible], Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. [illegible] CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. VARISTIN, M. D. Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday through month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC—Charlevoix Lodge No. 29, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets every Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 1[illegible], meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 1[illegible], R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 1[illegible], K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the houses of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.
President—Byron Sen.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith
Second Vice President—Robert Miller
Recording Secretary—[illegible]
Financial Secretary—B. Sullield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, J. M. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, D. V. Mills, S. M. Fox, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Boslan.
All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.
Drafts on New York, Chicago, Detroit and Grand Rapids. Bank Remittances or Postoffice Order to any person in Europe. Issues and Discounts on first mortgage on Real Estate. Railroad and Steamship Tickets to and from any place in Europe.
BROWN & CO.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and work done solicited at any time between Traverse City and Mackinaw. S. A. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. F. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Wood's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY
AND
FANCY GOODS!
Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER
Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their stock of
FANCY GOODS!
Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
AND
JOBBING SHOP,
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.
Give me call.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

AN UNFORESEEN RESULT.

The 10:30 train for —— was nearly full of passengers, and in about three minutes more would be steaming from the station, when two young ladies entered, seeking seats.

One was a very sweet-looking girl, not beautiful yet far from homely, the other, whom she resembled enough to proclaim them sisters, possessed a charming face, perfect features, liquid blue eyes, and waving golden hair.

Both were under twenty-three.

"There, Mabel," said the plainest-looking one, "I see just two seats, one in front of the other, so we can talk when we like."

"Yes; and just see who occupies each! One a horrid old countryman, and the other a negro.

"No, I won't sit by him, Elsie—he is too shabby," she continued, as her sister offered to sit by the negro, leaving the other seat vacant. "Nor shall you sit there, either. See here, man," she continued, addressing the colored person, "suppose you sit by this farmer, and allow two ladies to keep together."

"Of course," said the individual addressed. "If massa is willing, I is."

"Change seats, certainly, Caesar; I am glad there is room for you here," returned the so called countryman.

"I thank you very much, and am sorry to have disturbed you," said Elsie.

"Mabel, how could you speak so to strangers?" she added in a low tone to her sister as the train moved on. "I felt sorry for them both, for they heard all you said."

"I don't care if they did. Who were they, pray?"

"Do speak lower. He is not old, neither is he rough. He has the finest and most expressive eyes I ever saw, and, though not fashionably dressed, I know he is a true gentleman," replied Elsie softly.

"How do you know that, pray? Where you see a gentleman I cannot think."

"In the kind manner in which he spoke to the negro. He has a feeling heart, and a low sweet voice!"

"Since you admire him so much I will draw you his picture," returned Mabel. "First, a great, thick-skulled, boorish clown's head is to be drawn; long dangling black hair, moustache, and moppy thick beard."

"Oh, please stop, sister; he does hear, and sees also, I fear."

"I am glad of it! Perhaps I will give him the picture when I finish it. Collar turned down, dog-eared style; coat all rusty, and out of date years ago; hat—oh, Elsie, did you see that great, broad-brimmed straw head-protector reposing on his knee? See, I have it here exactly. I am only sorry that I cannot see his feet, but I presume they are as long as the moral law, and cased in cowhide boots, so I will put them in as a finish."

While thus this unladylike beauty chatted and amused herself at the expense of another, the train had been speeding onward at a very rapid rate.

But suddenly a strange jar thrilled every passenger; then thump, thump, [illegible]

[illegible]

...to continue their journey by the next train, and soon arrived safely in ——.

Our rustic friend had accompanied them, and on their arrival had procured a carriage for their use, and assisted them to it.

On bidding them adieu, before closing the door of the vehicle, he said to Elsie, whose name he had in some way learned during the day:

"Miss Elsie, I trust we may meet again on some less disastrous occasion."

"I hope so. Rest assured, though I shall never forget one who saved our lives at the risk of his own. Will you call on us at No. 172 —— street, that papa and mamma may thank you for all your kindness?"

"Why, Elsie," interrupted Mabel before he could answer, "what do you mean by inviting a stranger so indiscriminately to our home?"

"The address, Miss Mabel, is not necessary, as I crave neither thanks nor reward for doing as I would be done by. One smile of recognition from your sister, should I ever cross her path again, I would, however, gratefully prize. I hope it is not too presumptuous a boon to ask?"

"It certainly is not. I should be proud to recognize my preserver at all times and in all places," murmured Elsie in a grateful tone.

A few weeks after the accident, when the young ladies had nearly recovered, Mr. Vernon announced to his family that the son of a dear old friend, Ernest Englewood by name, had returned from abroad where he had spent in travel the last five years.

Around the world had he been, and now had just arrived from Cape Colony, Africa, and wished to be presented to his family.

"He will call about two, so, girls," he added to his daughters, "there is a chance to secure a good husband. He is very wealthy, as well as good-looking and agreeable, and is the very man I should like as a son-in-law. In fact, as you know, his father and I decided to wed his only son to one of my daughters, if agreeable to the parties, when you were both children, and his boy a lad of twelve. It does not matter to me which marries him, so that the son-in-law is mine," he added laughingly, as he walked away.

"Well, it does to me, very much," exclaimed Mabel; "as being the oldest, and I may as well add, the prettiest, I hasten to appropriate him."

"Of course," returned Elsie, "he would never think of a plain girl like myself. It's all right, dear; for when I marry it must be love, not gold, that makes the match."

"Are the ladies at home?" asked a spruce-looking footman, who had jumped from a gay carriage that stopped before Mr. Vernon's door.

[illegible]

THE VALUE OF GOLD DUST.

It Was Not Known to the Earliest Miners in California—Varied Devices for Adulteration.

[illegible]

"What are you paying for dust to-day?" was the question asked by the miner of the dust-buyers. Thus in those times no more difference was recognized in the quality of different gold dust than is to-day realized in the quality of different sorts of sawdust. Buyers mixed their dust together as they sent it to the mint, and paid an average price for it all. It was a very good thing for the miners who had poor dust and very unfair to those who had dust of the best quality. Afterward it was found that dust as it was taken from the earth varied greatly in value. Some of it, according to mint returns, was worth as low as $9 an ounce, and some was worth $20 and more. This is on account of the fact that a greater or less amount of baser metals, silver, copper, etc., is always found in alloy with it in its native state. Gold dust differs as much in appearance as it does in quality. Some of it is yellow and bright, some is dull in color, dark green or black. The bright yellow dust is not the best in quality, as might ordinarily be supposed. Some of the purest gold ever mined has been almost black in color. There is also no uniformity in the form of the particles of gold dust. Some is fine and flour-like, some coarse and smoothly worn, and some rough and scraggy. Dust taken from one locality in a mining district is always remarkably uniform in value, color, and form. This fact enables buyers, after some experience, to determine immediately from what locality dust is mined, and what is its value. The first question asked by a buyer is: "Where did you mine this dust?" Of course, if it came from a region that has a reputation for producing gold of a good quality the buyer can afford to pay a high price for it. There is little use in making misrepresentations in answering this question, for the buyer has almost as good means of knowing where the dust came from as the seller. This knowledge is of great value to the dust-buyer in the way of protecting himself against fraud in the way of counterfeit dust, etc.

Peculiarities in the form of gold taken [illegible]

[illegible]

Gold-dust buying in the mining towns was a very profitable business in the early days of California. What was called black sand, composed principally of iron, was always mingled to a greater or less degree with the [illegible] when it was brought to the buyer. This had to be blown out, and often the finest particles of gold were blown out with it. [illegible] offices where a large quantity of dust was bought much fine gold would be scattered around the room. The dustings of a buyer's counter and sweepings of his floor were often worth hundreds of dollars a month. Sometimes the buyers were suspected of cheating in a more illegitimate manner by slyly appropriating some of the gold while they were shaking it around and examining it in the blowpans.

Once a miner who believed a buyer had swindled him got even in a rather peculiar manner. He had a pair of brass stirrups weighing two pounds. Every time he sold dust to this buyer he filed a portion of the stirrups among it till he had palmed off the whole of them for gold dust.

The Chinese have always been the most successful manufacturers of counterfeit gold dust. Many a lot of brass or iron filings, plated with gold, has been sold by them to unsuspecting buyers. Of late years this has been less practiced, however, because of the fact that buyers almost invariably test the dust with acid, or burn it. By subjecting it to an immense heat the gold is not effaced, but any other metal that may be mingled with it is soon dissipated in vapor. A buyer was once purchasing some dust from a company of Chinese miners. His balance scales were on an open counter before them. Suddenly he noticed that one of the Chinamen had slyly touched the balance in which the dust was to be weighed. Quickly looking under the bottom of it, he found some object sticking to it, which proved to be a small piece of a sticky substance, like beeswax. It weighed half an ounce. The wily Chinamen had intended, of course, after the dust was weighed, to remove the wax as deftly as they had put it on. Marks on the bottom of the balance revealed the fact that this trick had often been successful. Thus this company, and perhaps others, had gained half an ounce on the buyer every time they sold him a lot of dust. This trick and others of a similar character afterward led almost all buyers to put their balance scales in glass cases, instead of having them open on the counter.

In the early days of California life specie was not plentiful enough for the needs of trade, and gold dust was used almost entirely as a medium of exchange. The miners carried it in long buck-skin purses. This compelled all [illegible]

[illegible]

...proaches the feeding quartz vein, the gold becomes coarser and more scraggy, till suddenly the pay gives out entirely. Then it is certain that a rich quartz ledge is in the vicinity, and in this manner has have been struck that have yielded many thousands of dollars in a few weeks.

[illegible] owned by Gen. and Mrs. Kennedy. He had almost as much imagination as Mrs. Stowe, for he made Legree out of Gen. Kennedy, himself one of the most amiable and admirable of men. St. Clair was Gen. Kennedy's son. The Shelbys were the Letchers, and so on.—Washington Capital.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACT OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!
[illegible]
Special Offer!
[illegible]
F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 5 Park Place, New York.

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

In Hardware, Cutlery, and Notions.
WE SELL THE
ATKINS SAWS
AND
Perfection Axes.
Job & Tin Work.
L. D. Bartholomew & Co.

Merry, Merry Christmas!
PREPARE FOR IT BY BUYING YOUR HOLIDAY GOODS OF PERRY WEED.
A Large and Beautiful New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Gooos and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.
My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.
If you want to select nice Xmas Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. H. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
— ON —
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGAR[illegible]
We call Special Attention to our Old Kentucky Sour M[illegible]
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager B[illegible]
Bridge St., 1st door south of [illegible]

Take The Senti[illegible]

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
—AT—
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairin[illegible] a specialty.
We have the [illegible] and we are [illegible] sell them.
NOTH[illegible]

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.
SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.
CHARLEVOIX. : : MICHIGAN

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

The red flag seems to have lost its charm for the Chicago Socialists since the conviction of [illegible] and his companions. Three thousand five hundred people heard Herr Liebknecht deliver his socialistic address recently, and not a single red flag was seen in the hall.

The United States has an area of between 300,000 and 400,000 square miles of coal fields. 100,000,000 tons of coal is being mined from these fields annually, or enough to run a ring around the earth at the equator five and one-half feet wide and five and one-half thick every year.

A stone coffin has been unearthed in England, near Broughty Ferry, in which two gold disks the size of pennies were found. Unfortunately they bear no mark or inscription, and the question is whether they represent a very early gold currency in use before coins were invented.

A London publication recently induced about a thousand school-girls to vote upon their favorite authors, and a remarkable feature was the small number who mentioned any of the writers of so-called "stories for girls." They gave to Dickens a strong plurality, while our own Longfellow led all the poets.

It is estimated that the matter ejected [illegible]

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

Interesting News Compilation.

FROM WASHINGTON.

It has been decided by Second Comptroller Maynard that a soldier who, after having served for two years or more in the army, deserted after the close of the war, but was subsequently received an honorable discharge, is entitled to a bounty of fifty dollars.

During the week ended on the 13th the issue of standard silver dollars from the mints was $853,144; same week last year, $828,117.

In his report on the 16th Adjutant General Drum said that at the close of the war there were 230,000 men charged with desertion. Since the passage of the law for their relief 147,[illegible] applications for relief had been made.

The President reinstated M. E. Benton as attorney for the Western district of Missouri. He was discharged for making campaign speeches.

THE EAST.

The distinguished Hungarian painter, Michael Munkacsy, arrived at New York on the 15th. His famous painting, "Christ Before Pilate," would be placed on exhibition in that city.

For the first time in many years there was no strike in progress in Pittsburgh or its vicinity on the 15th.

In Pennsylvania the official vote at the recent election gives Beaver (Rep.) for Governor a majority of 42,851. The Republican majority in the Legislature is larger than two years ago.

In a railway wreck on the 16th near Mountville, Pa., nine cars, loaded with first-class goods, were destroyed.

In New York an organization known as the Property Defense Publishing Association has been formed, the object being to put down anarchism in all its phases and to give support to the victims of strikes and boycotts.

Forest fires were raging on the 16th in the Blue Mountains, near Harrisburg, Pa. [illegible]

[illegible]

A PEACEFUL END.

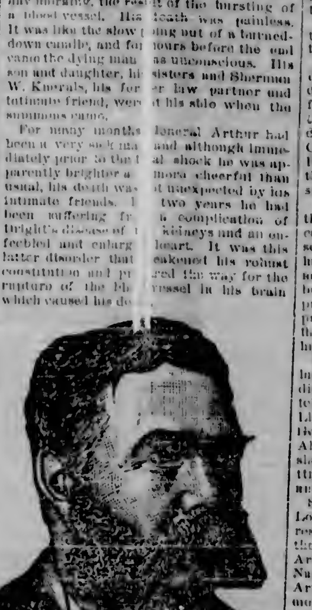
Death in New York of Ex-President Chester A. Arthur.

A Stroke of Cerebral Apoplexy the Immediate Cause—Funeral Arrangements—A Presidential Proclamation—Biographical.

DEATH OF EX-PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

New York, Nov. 19.—Chester Alan Arthur, ex-President of the United States, died suddenly at his residence, 123 Lexington avenue, at five a. m. yesterday. The immediate cause of his death was a stroke of cerebral apoplexy which came in his sleep between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, the result of the bursting of a blood vessel. His death was painless. It was like the slow going out of a burned-down candle, and for hours before the end came the dying man was unconscious. His son and daughter, his sisters and Sherman W. Knevals, his former law partner and intimate friend, were at his side when the summons came.

For many months General Arthur had been a very sick man, and although immediately prior to the fatal shock he was apparently brighter and more cheerful than usual, his death was not unexpected by his intimate friends. For two years he had been suffering from a complication of Bright's disease of the kidneys and an enfeebled and enlarged heart. It was this latter disorder that weakened his robust constitution and prepared the way for the rupture of the blood vessel in his brain which caused his death.



CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

The young daughter of the dead man was overwhelmed with grief. When she was led to the death couch of her father, she wept bitterly and was led away inconsolable. The son, who had been a companion to the father, burst into tears.

As soon as the death of Mr. Arthur was made public many flags on public and private buildings were placed at half mast. The news of his death came as a great surprise, notwithstanding the alarming ru[illegible]

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The following was issued yesterday afternoon:

"State of New York.—Proclamation by the Governor: By the death of a distinguished citizen the people of the State are again called to mourn. Chester A. Arthur entered into rest at his residence in New York City early this morning. He had always made his home within our State, and from his early manhood had occupied within it places of official distinction. As a citizen of New York State he was elected Vice-President by the whole people. Upon the death of President Garfield he became President by succession, and with dignity to himself and with honor to the country he filled that highest office in our Government. In all his life he bore without abuse the name of gentleman.

"Remembering the services and admiring the character of President Arthur, it is fitting that we should by such action as may be deemed appropriate express our sorrow in his death and show respect for the high official position which he held by the choice of his countrymen.

"Done at the capitol in the city of Albany on this 18th day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1886. DAVID B. HILL."

Secretary Endicott has issued orders directing appropriate observances at the different army posts on the day of the funeral, and Attorney-General Garland will to-day make official announcement of the death of the ex-President to the Supreme Court of the United States. Secretary Bayard has issued notice of the death of the ex-President to the diplomatic and consular representatives of this Government.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The first news of the death of ex-President Arthur was received here in bulletins. It caused a deep sensation. Orders were given at once to half-mast the flags on the White House and other public buildings and to drape the buildings suitably. There were many expressions of sorrow. In Baltimore the expression of sorrow was universal. The flags of many of the public buildings are at half-mast.

New York, Nov. 19.—The family of the late President Arthur has received many dispatches of condolence. Among them are telegrams from Judge Gresham, Robert T. Lincoln, Senator Logan, W. J. Florence, General Sheridan, Secretary Whitney, Alexander Greger, Secretary of the Russian Legation at Washington, Governor Hill, Governor Foraker, John Sherman and numerous others.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 19.—The Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows adopted yesterday resolutions eulogistic of the character and the public services of the late ex-President Arthur, expressing a regret for the loss the Nation has suffered and sympathy for Mr. Arthur's family, and setting aside a memorial page in the journal of the Grand Lodge to be inscribed to the memory of the dead man.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The United States Circuit Court adjourned yesterday as a mark of respect to the late ex-President Arthur. In the city bells were tolled and flags hung at half-mast.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—There is general regret in this city at the death of ex-President Arthur. Three of Mr. Arthur's Secretaries live in Chicago—Mr. Lincoln, Judge Walter Q. Gresham and Frank Hatton. These three gentlemen and ex-Collector Jesse Spalding left for New York last evening to attend the funeral. Other friends and admirers of the dead ex-President will go to-day.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 19.—The news of the death of ex-president Arthur was received in this city with expressions of profound sorrow on every side. The flags on [illegible]

[illegible]

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.
SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.
CHARLEVOIX. : MICHIGAN.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Pile up, pile up the lordly logs,
November winds are high,
And daylight dies with swift surprise
Across the sunset sky.

But kindling flames upon the hearth
Shall set to sweetest tune
The wandering wail that haunts the gale
With melancholy rune.

Pile up, then, maple, birch and pine,
And bring the ancient fare
They loved of old—the russets gold,
And cider clear and rare.

And heap a dish with hardier fruit,
And crack the walnuts well,
Then round the fire draw nigh and nigher,
And yield unto the spell—

The spell of old Thanksgiving days,
That from the ancient past
Prends with us here to hold good cheer
While life and love shall last.

And let us pledge those bold, brave hearts
Who, in their reverent way,
With simple state did consecrate
Their first Thanksgiving day.

Hard was their lot through dreary months,
And difficult their toil,
And at the best they did but wrest
From out the virgin soil

A scanty harvest at the end;
But thankful hearts were theirs,
And scanty fare if each man's share
Was sweetened by their prayers.

High souled and staunch of faith and zeal,
Simple, sincere, devout,
They held their way from day to day
Unfronted by a doubt.

No evil times could shake their trust,
Alike they thanked their Lord,
And praised His will, through good and ill,
With frank and sweet accord.

Full far and wide our harvests spread,
While theirs were scant and mean;
Full far and wide our prosperous tide
Of plenty can be seen.

Our land is glutted for our greed,
With waste is overspent,
But ever yet we moan and fret
With peevish discontent.

Oh, sweet, brave souls, wherever now
You walk beyond our sight,
Show us to-day your nobler way
And lift us to your light.

[illegible]

THE DORY-GARDEN

And How It Brought Back a Long-Lost Son.

[illegible]

grew, and the sweet-tempered squash ran over the bow of the dory, as if to find the anchor; and the amiable cucumber hung over the stern as if it meant to be a rudder. As for the lowly mignonette, it came up in profusion, and seemed anxious to fill the entire boat.

Then, one morning in June, a most wonderful thing happened. Lucy was out in the front yard, wondering what she should do with that runaway squash vine, when Local No. 40 slowly rolled over the draw, just above her head. The engine passed, and every spike of mignonette in the boat trembled as the great bridge shook under the load of the passing train. Then came the drawing-room car, and behind it four coaches, and with the windows all open and people all looking out, and pointing out to each other the wonderful garden in a dory. Last of all came the baggage-car, and at the open door stood the baggage-master, with a large basket in his hand.

"Catch it!" he cried. "Catch it! it's a present from the passengers of 'Local Six.'"

Bang, came the basket down on the wooden platform, and the train-man laughed and said:

"Guess it's not hurt. Good-bye."

She was never more surprised in her life. The basket was covered with white paper; but in the fall the paper burst open, and out upon the boards rolled a wonderful collection of plants, some in bloom, some with dozens of buds. There were verbenas, and zinias, and geraniums, and chrysanthemums, and asters, and even one beautiful rose. She sat for a moment looking at the wonderful display, and then looked after the train. It was gone; and the red flag on the rear platform was only a speck. The engineers always pulled out lively as soon as they passed the six-mile-an-hour target, just beyond the bridge.

A present from the folks on Local Six—and it went down this morning at 7:54. I wondered why the people all looked out the window as she passed. The poor things! They are dreadfully [illegible]

[illegible]

READING FOR THE YOUNG.

HAPPY AND THANKFUL HEARTS.

Joy is in the [illegible]
Fun is on the [illegible]
Bustle in the kitchen,
Odors in the air!
Laughter in each dimple,
Smile in every eye;
Happy little maiden,
Can you tell me why?

Uncles, aunts and cousins
Coming gayly in—
What a glad commotion!
What a joyful din!
See the hearty greetings
Given one and all,
Listen to the echoes
Ringing through the hall!

On the ample hearthstone
Leaps the glowing fire!
Hear the wondrous stories
That the flames inspire!
Grandpa is the hero
Of the festal day—
See the children crown him
In their merry play!

Oh, it's glad Thanksgiving!
Joy of all the year!
Nothing half so happy—
Nothing half so dear!
Song and sport and pleasure
Make the moments fly—
Happy hearts and thankful—
That's the reason why!

—Mrs. R. N. Turner, in Youth's Companion.

A WONDERFUL MACHINE.

Great-Grandfather Pritchet Surprises the Boys on Thanksgiving Morning and Teaches Them an Object Lesson.

Great-grandfather Pritchet rubbed his spectacles right and left and up and down, and blew upon them, and set them astride of his nose, and took out his nippers and pincers and drivers, and gathered together the machinery of the new, big, bright engine with all the insides and outsides of "a regular steamer" which the boys had taken apart. And every one nudged and looked at every one else, for Great-Grandfather Pritchet was a great man in his way, and nobody could have helped looking and nudging when smoke-stacks and boilers and shafts and pipes and pistons went into a hempen bag, and Grandfather [illegible] the boy who was next to me to hand me an arithmetic that contained the rule I wanted to see."

[illegible]

Now John was a great favorite both with master and pupils, and Dr. [illegible] regretted at once the hasty threat he had made, still, he told John he could not allow him to whisper, or even to escape the promised punishment.

"I wish I could avoid it, but I can not without breaking my word. Now I will leave it to any three boys you like to choose, to say whether or not I shall omit the punishment."

John agreed to this, and called up three boys, who after talking for some little time, said:

"The master's word must be kept. John must receive the threatened six blows, but they must be given to voluntary substitutes. We three will share the punishment by receiving two blows each."

John now stepped forward with outstretched hand.

"No, no, sir," he exclaimed, "they shall not be struck a blow. I will receive the punishment."

Under pretense of wiping his face, the doctor shielded his eyes, which filled with tears, and, telling the boys to return to their seats, he said he would remember that scene to his dying day. Needless to say, the punishment was never inflicted.—Little Folks.

Robert Fulton's Boyhood.

The boyhood of the famous Robert Fulton, of steamboat renown, was passed at Lancaster, Pa. Here are some anecdotes of him while he was at school there: On one occasion his teacher reproved him for neglecting his books, and the reproof was administered after the manner of "the old masters"—with a ferule on the knuckles.

Robert straightened himself, folded his arms, and then said to Mr. Johnson:

"Sir, I came here to have something [illegible]

[illegible]

GRAND SLAUGHTER SALE at G. W. MILLER'S

I will make CHRISTMAS MERRY and NEW YEARS HAPPY for EVERYBODY, with the Lowest Prices you ever saw on Clothing!

Until Jan. 1st, I will sell all Goods at bona fide Cost or below. You will see, by giving me a call, that I am not advertising anything but what is straight. I am going to give you a Chance to Buy A

$25 SUIT FOR $18.50	A $24 SUIT FOR $17.50	A $22 SUIT FOR $16.50.
$20 " " 16.	An $18 " " 14.50	A $16 " " 13.00.
$14 " " 12.	A $12 " " 10.00	A $10 " " 8.00.
	An $8 " " 6.50

Youths' Suits from $4 to $10. Childrens' Suits from $1 50 to $6.50 Childrens' OVERCOATS $2.50.

ALL OTHER GOODS AT PRICES THAT WILL SELL THEM. For CASH ONLY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, DEC. 15, 1886.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

For U. S. Senator.

Probably the most important duty of the Legislature, soon to convene, will be the election of a United States Senator.

While it is true that Michigan has many Republicans who would honor the position, there seems to be a recognized justice in the proposition to chose the man from that portion of the State west of the meridian line. Although Michigan's Senators have faithfully represented the whole State, Western Michigan has not been directly represented since Thomas W. Ferry laid aside the toga. It seems, therefore, that Western Michigan, with her enormous and growing interests; possessing, as she does, the most extensive coast-line, and by far the greatest inter-state commerce, should furnish the man to succeed Omar D. Conger, the retiring Eastern Michigan Senator. The recent withdrawal of James McMillan, of Detroit, from the contest, solely upon the above stated grounds, adds force to the proposition.

Among Michigan's ablest, truest, and most deserving Republicans, Col. Frank B. Stockbridge, of Kalamazoo, stands as a peer. His history is a part of the history of the Republican party in Michigan; his business life constitutes a conspicuous and untarnished page in the history of Michigan itself.

Especially should Northern Michigan Republicans favor Col. Stockbridge. His extensive northern Michigan interests make him, in a secondary sense, at least, a northern Michigan man. He is acquainted with every interest of this part of the State, knows their future possibilities, and can intelligently advocate their cause.

Many of the opposition papers of the State represent Col. Stockbridge as the personification of that element which is a standing menace to the interests of the laboring classes. Minds which do not distinguish between the evils resulting from great hereditary wealth and the example and incentive furnished by a life of toil and good management, are socialistic pure and simple, and their teachings are a far greater menace to American liberty and progress than monopoly or centralization.

Col. Stockbridge is wealthy, but he gained his wealth by means open to every industrious and brainy man within the broad limits of our State. He has risen from comparative poverty to wealth by his own energy, industry and integrity. In the progress of Michigan Republicanism he has always been active, and loyal, open-handed and patriotic, deeming the interests of his party of more importance than his own political success.

Frank B. Stockbridge represents in an eminent degree the wealth which comes of the exercise of bone and sinew, industry and economy, and illustrates the possibilities attending these agencies in American business success.

If he is a politician, it is of that school which places patriotism above partisanship, but, withal, partisanship above political effeminacy. He is as stalwart and positive in his politics as he is in his business, and is honest in both.

No Republican in Michigan would, in the Senate of the United States, reflect greater credit upon the State than Frank B. Stockbridge, and the Legislature will honor itself by electing him.

The next U. S. Senator from Michigan should be a representative western Michigan man. This requisite is embodied in the person of Col. F. B. Stockbridge of Kalamazoo.

AS A TRADE CENTER.

A Stroll Along Bridge Street — What We See For the Holidays—Hints of the Pristine Past.

Nearly seventeen years ago, when the SENTINEL was a new-born journalistic infant, Charlevoix boasted of one "store," in which the bare necessities of life were the only Christmas gifts to be found, and which was but one remove from the Indian fur traders establishment of the by gone.

In these expectant days, when we and our country cousins are beginning to be thoughtful of others more or less near to us, and fondly hoping for ourselves—these days which are bringing us nearer and nearer to the merry Christmas time and the happy advent of a New Year, we stroll down Bridge street, and great is the transformation.

On the corner where in the dim past stood the bachelor quarters and huckster shop of Wm. Laister, and where that excellent seven-up player shuffled himself into the unknown, a substantial bank block ornaments the premises. Adjoining it, where Major Green dispensed the first law that ever terrified the inhabitants of these parts, a plate-glass front greets us with a brilliant display of the beautiful—a display of metropolitan pretensions. We go inside, and find one of the finest dry goods establishments in the northern region, where the wants of the most scrupulously exacting can be supplied to a nicety. F. W. Craine & Co. greet you cordially, and treat you royally.

You meander down the hemlock pavement, and are attracted into a sound brick structure, standing where, within our memory, Nelson Ainslie's pie-plant used to bud in the spring time. Here also, through plate-glass, we are dazzled by the artistic arrangement of silk, and satin, and whitest linen. Inside we discover another establishment that would do honor to a town of 10,000 inhabitants. Clothing and unmentionable garments for the male species fill the shelves and counters, and Geo. W. Miller smiles upon you blandly, and, in all probability makes a holiday sale.

On the same historic garden-spot is G. W. Crouter's pioneer drug establishment, resplendent in show-cases, redolent with sweet-smelling perfumes, and full of beautiful Christmas gifts.

Along the street we stroll, and are reminded that in 1869 the old store by the dock gave way for the more pretentious establishment across the creek, then spanned by the old yawning bridge. In its day it was the land-mark of a new era in Charlevoix. Through various administrations of mercantile prosperity it passed, and still remains one of the most reliable establishments. J. L. Hurd & Co. illustrate in their SENTINEL advertisement the manner of business they conduct. Goods always fresh, in great variety, and at bed-rock prices.

But a step, and Lewis Miller, of the firm of Fox & Miller, meets us at the door of as complete and extensive exclusive boot and shoe establishment as can be found in Grand Traverse. Everything of the nature of footwear is found there, and after satisfying ourselves of the fact, we cross the street.

Bellinger calls us in, and we can select a gift fit for a bride. Jewelry, watches or silver-ware, of quality or design to suit the most fastidious, and at city prices.

On the corner near where old Uncle Philo Beers used to promulgate good Democratic doctrine and the "statoot," we find another clothing and dry goods establishment, activity plainly apparent, and enterprise visible all about. Everything appears new and in abundance. Rosenthal & Son are "onto the holiday racket," and will supply every want you have for goods in their line.

Across the street, where in '70 stood a shanty used only for the storage of an old pond-net and an occasional drunken Indian, is L. D. Bartholomew & Co's enterprising hardware store. Besides all the articles of hardware which are destitute of holiday romance, there are many articles to make a good housewife happy, or a boy turn a double somersault.

Perry Weed's drug store adjoining, is resplendent in the bright cheer of Christmas gifts—gifts for all sexes and conditions; confectionery the sight of which will make your mouth water, and more of it than you could draw away in a big wagon. In short, an establishment creditable to our town.

With our teeth aching from the sweets, we saunter down, passing the fine millinery establishments of Mesdames Cooper & Smith and Litney & Carr, where fifteen years ago we fell over stumps going home "across lots." They are both dangerous for any man to enter with his wife if he wants to come out with a full pocket-book, and both stocked with everything that a woman wants for her confounded head.

R. J. Cooper, the grocer, also conducts a neat and well stocked establishment, where goods are always fresh and seasonable, and placed in your basket with a smile and a blessing.

More candy, lots of it, in the neat store of D. W. Smith. Fruit and bivalves, agates and corals, all appropriate for holiday presents.

It is a pleasure to drop into the popular restaurant and grocery of Wm. Ferguson. If on Christmas day you are in town and want a repast befitting the occasion, you will find it there. Confectionery of superior quality is also kept, and fresh groceries are always obtainable.

We are beckoned across the street, further down, and Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co. invite us to inspect the "old reliable" house, where the farmers like to go, and from where they always go home satisfied, and return again. Nothing flashy about the place, but always the same, trustworthy and reliable.

Next door we are greeted with a cordial slap on the back by Frank G. Hines, who conducts a fine drug establishment, full of a most complete and varied holiday stock. A present may be selected from among a hundred different articles, all artistic or useful, or both. This is an establishment growing rapidly in popular favor.

Bert Mason, the grocer, a little up the street, has many articles more alluring than flour and salt-pork from which to select a holiday purchase, and a few doors up we find D. Sherwood, with a fine line of boots and shoes, who is especially prepared for the holiday trade.

We round up the circle by dropping into the old and always progressive hardware concern of Stockman & Iddings, occupying the site where, in 1870, Ben. Campbell and Sam See hewed the timbers and shaped the frames of the old schooner Willard A. Smith, and where Laister launched the Alice almost as far back as we can remember. Stockman & Iddings show us through basement and upper floor and rear appendix, all full. Stoves for every spot where warmth is desired or utility required; cutlery for your Christmas table, or tools for the farmer or mechanic; articles for the kitchen or dressing room; useful gifts to gratify any want, and courteous attention given to every purchaser.

Charlevoix greets the people of the region roundabout, and points with pride to the progress she has made in all these branches of business activity. Charlevoix business men are enterprising and progressive, and rejoice in the prosperity which has, during these years of toil, rewarded the mechanic and farmer.

The business men of Charlevoix salute their patrons, and wish all a Merry Christmas, and great happiness and prosperity for the New Year.

G. A. R.

At the meeting of Baxter Post held Monday evening, the following officers were elected: Commander, E. H. Green; Senior Vice, Wm. Kanagy; Junior Vice, L. Whitmoyer; Chaplain, Boucher; Officer of the Day, H. Berdan; Officer of the Guard, Thomas Boak; Quartermaster, S. M. See; Surgeon, D. C. Chamberlain, M. D.; Adjutant, C. B. Glass.

Home-made mince meat at Jeffer-ies' market only 10 cents a pound.

Diaries! Diaries!! Diaries!!! You can buy just what you want of F. G. Hines & Co.

The tickets for the fine music box at F. G. Hines & Co. are going fast. Be sure to get one.

For holiday goods everybody says that Hines & Co. are at the head of the procession.

Forty Acres

OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE County, close to North Adams village, to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address
GAMBLE & CAMPBELL,
Real Estate Agents, Hillsdale, Mich.
41

School Wood

The School Board of Dist. No. 1, Charlevoix, will receive bids at my office until Monday night, Dec. 20th, for furnishing said District 100 cords body maple wood, 4 ft. long. Will take some straight limbs over 3 inches in diameter. Said Board reserve the right to reject any and all bids.
OSCAR UPRIGHT, Director.
Charlevoix, Dec. 14, 1886.

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which woman kind is heir—$1 per box [illegible] Reliable lady Agents can make [illegible] and become [illegible] in the sale of this remedy. For particulars [illegible] Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. Co., Frankfort, Ind.

THIS SHIRT THE FINEST In THE WORLD

For 89 Cts. Worth $1.25. Of F. W. CRAINE & CO.

And Now For The HOLIDAYS.

We have been preparing for them not for "30 Days" or any other fossilized racket, but genuine Stupendous Bargains which we have succeeded in getting for this event.

Buy Something Useful

Save money and be happy be it a Cloak, Hood, Dress, Bolt of Cotton or any of the many useful and beautiful articles to be found at our store.

We have an immense stock of Silk Handkerchiefs, Gents' Mufflers, and Scarfs. Also Ladies' Linen and Silk Handkerchiefs.

COME and see the beautiful Japanese Wares that we are showing for Holiday Gifts.

LADIES' WRAPS. We have 25 styles no two alike, to select from also Newmarkets. Misses and Childrens Cloaks from $2 up. Come and see for we still live.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

OFFER A SPECIAL

Reduction Sale Of

DRY GOODS,

UNTIL JANUARY 1ST.

YOU WILL MISTAKE IF YOU BUY BEFORE LOOKING AT OUR STOCK AND PRICES. VALUE RECEIVED IS WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AND WE GUARANTEE PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST. LIGHT EXPENSES AND A CASH BUSINESS ENABLE US TO SELL AT VERY NARROW MARGINS. NO EXPENSIVE PARTNERSHIPS; NO SECOND-HAND GOODS.

Great Bargains in Winter Dress Goods, Flannels, Homespuns Tricots, Crepe Cloths, etc.
COTTON FLANNELS sacrificed to close.
MIXED SHIRTING FLANNELS, very cheap.
ACME WOOL FLANNELS at Factory Prices.

50 CENT BARGAINS:

The Best 50 Cent Wool Hose in town. Leggings in town. Jersey Glove in town.
The Best 50 Cent Toboggan Caps in town Loop Mitt in town. Corset in town.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS:

Look at our new designs in Lamps & Lamp Goods. Patent extension Lamps from $3.00 up. Duplex Burners 50c. Double Cone Burners for 75c. Lamp Shades, Burners and Chimneys. Tubular Lanterns with guards 75c.

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS always at the lowest prices.

WANTED! TIES, POSTS AND SHIPPING WOOD.
The Highest Market Prices Paid.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Special Sale!

We will invoice our stock about Jan. 1st, and before that date we wish to sell our Surplus Stock in

GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
DRY GOODS,
CLOAKS,
DRESS GOODS,
CARPETS,
CLOTHING, Etc.

To do this we must give special inducements to customers. We have advertised special sales in some lines, but now advertise a

Grand Special Sale!

From now until Jan. 1st, embracing all articles in the store, from Silks down to Prints.

A SACRIFICE SALE OF CLOAKS

From now until Jan. 1st.

We are bound to sell at some price and propose to undersell all competitors.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS!

By calling and examining our store you will find that most suitable presents can be purchased of us.

Hoping to receive a share of your patronage, we are Yours to sell goods.

Rosenthal & Son

on the corner.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—31 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1886. WHOLE NO. 891

F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.

HOLIDAY ANNOUNCEMENT!

1886 — 1887

We invite every Man, Woman and Child of Charlevoix and vicinity, to inspect our immense stock OF HOLIDAY GOODS.

Call and examine our complete assortment of Photograph and Autograph Albums, China Cups and Saucers, Fine Art Books, Dressing Cases, Vases Shaving Sets, Childrens' Books, Toilet Sets, Bisque Ware, Books of all kinds, Dolls by the million, Mirrors, Cabinet Frames, Christmas and New Year Cards, Scrap Albums, Music Folios and Rolls, Immense line of Toys, etc., etc.

FREE! A $20 MUSIC BOX. With every 50 cents worth of Holiday Goods purchased we will give a ticket, or chance, in the above box. Call and hear it play.

HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.

F. G. HINES & CO., CHARLEVOIX.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods

BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces EVERYTHING usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

We can Supply you with EVERYTHING in our Line.

THE FINEST STOCK OF FURNITURE ever offered in Charlevoix, IS NOW AWAITING YOUR INSPECTION AT

Henry C. Cooper's.

A Choice Line of FRESH GROCERIES, OF EVERY VARIETY, Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock For your Inspection in OPERA BLOCK by

R. J. COOPER.

CASH.

THE FLORAL ACORN,

THE MOST SUPERB WOOD STOVE MADE.

ON EXHIBITION AND FOR SALE BY

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS,

Leading Hardware Merchants,

CHARLEVOIX, - MICH.

Call and Examine It.

The finest stock of Hardware in Northern Michigan.

ALL FOR SALE AT REDUCED PRICES.

Respectfully,

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

A MAMMOTH NEW STOCK OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE,

Just Receivd for Winter Trade,

which we will sell at

LOWEST PRICES.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,

Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year - $1 50 | Six months - $ .75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—A Merry Christmas.

—Prof. Rice is still in Escanaba.

—Remember the firemen's dance Friday evening.

—Revival services are being held at Johnson's school house.

—Mr. John Bergstrom returned to his Minnesota home on Monday.

—Charlevoix is proud of her public school and she has good reason to be.

—U. S. Marshall McLeod, goes to Grand Rapids this week to attend U. S. court.

—Romie Emrey has a tie camp on his land in the south part of the township.

—J. S. Smithson writes us from Norfolk, Va., where he is spending the winter months.

—Oscar Upright has established his real estate and insurance headquarters in McLeod's Justice office.

—The Common Council settled with village treasurer, H. Cooper, last Thursday evening, and found everything proper.

—Lieut. Gov. Buttars left Thursday for Port Austin, being summoned to the bedside of his mother who is not expected to live.

—If there is a better paper in Michigan, outside of the large cities, than the Grand Traverse Herald, we wish some one would name it.

—Wm. Taylor, mate of the steamer Friant, is home. He visited friends in Detroit after leaving the boat in winter quarters at Grand Haven.

—Our neighbor intimates that Billy Scroggie will be deputy sheriff, and we venture the suggestion to Dan that the appointment would not be a bad one.

—C. R. Bellinger, the jeweler, wants it understood that he will keep at the front of the procession in the matter of Christmas presents. Call and see his handsome showing.

—While Elk Rapids and Bellaire are quarreling about the route of the proposed C. & W. M. railway, they all concede that Charlevoix will be the terminus. But permit us to observe, gentlemen, that the bay shore will be the route.

—The Grand Traverse District Lodge of Good Templars was held at Bellaire last week. The reports showed the order in a prosperous condition and steadily advancing. Much business was done, including the election of officers for the ensuing year.

—In a quiet sort of a way, John Burns entered town one day last week and departed to Canada, taking with him a bride in the person of Miss Lizzie Bell. Rev. J. T. Iddings uniting the couple. Extradition papers will be immediately applied for.

—The Charlevoix Sentinel pays a high tribute to R. L. Corbett, prosecuting attorney, and Will A. Norton, counsel, for their magnificent work for the people in the Thomas Smith murder case, and from conversation with Charlevoix county people we think the praise bestowed is endorsed by public sentiment generally.—Record.

—Some democratic inoffensive partisan postmaster has reported the printed wrappers that the SENTINEL has been using for the past year as a violation of a postal law, and the First Ass. Postmaster General says we must quit it. The wrappers contained six lines of nonpariel advertising the resources of this region, and three and a half lines SENTINEL advertisement.

—Additional local matter on our inside pages.

—Preaching next Sabbath at Ironton M. E. church.

—J. L. Hurd has been quite indisposed for several days.

—W. A. Brown has been seriously ill at his home for some time.

—B. W. Miller sold John E. Darrah, of Clarion, a $200 horse last week.

—Lew and Bert Campbell will spend their holiday vacation at Traverse City.

—Byron See and wife write us from Atlanta, Ga., where they are sojourning for a time.

—The Boy's Band are putting in some good practice, and are making some very good music.

—The Rifenburg Milling Company are buying wheat again. They want a quantity of four foot wood in exchange for flour, feed and hay.

—Capt. H. G. Edwards, who has been "afloat" all summer, returned to his home in this village last week.

—Miss Annie McLeod, who has been in Detroit and Pontiac visiting friends for some time, is expected home this week.

—Charlevoix county is entitled to one inmate in the new Michigan Soldiers' Home. Who shall it be? We can't spare corporal Tom.

—Miss May Waterbury, teacher in the first primary department of our public school, is spending her holiday vacation at her home in Ionia.

—Hugh R. Miller, of Bay Springs, will be one of Sheriff Jerrne's deputies. It looks very much as if that was a sort of back-handed slap at Boyne City.

—Dr. A. G. Oven recently removed a wasted eye for a Petoskey patient, and on Monday fitted in an artificial eye, so exactly a match that no stranger can distinguish between the two.—Petoskey Record.

—C. P. Avery, the seed pea man, after spending the holidays in the State of New York, will sojourn the balance of the winter in the south. Letters addressed to him at Traverse City, however, will reach him.

—Frank Craine has the two upper front rooms of the Green block fitted up for his private use, and some very nice young folks' evening gatherings are held there with the genial Frank and his cousin, Miss Edna, as entertainers.

—Circuit Judge Mills, of Kalamazoo, that prince of Charlevoix summer resorters, publishes a card stating that in consequence of business plans he will not be a candidate for re-election. This decision will deprive the Michigan judiciary of one of its brightest judges.

—Southern Michigan with her usual enterprise has beaten northern Michigan thus far in the matter of cold weather all holler. Her record shows at least 10 degrees colder weather, and yet the newspaper fellers up north are bragging about their superiority over the southern part of the state.—Telegraph.

—We think the "Northern Michigan" columns of the SENTINEL constitute an attractive news feature. They contain an epitome of important news items of the entire Northern Michigan region, which most of our neighboring exchanges mingle with their local matter. We shall continue to make these columns serve two purposes—the relief of our legitimate local columns, and the clustering of bright and interesting neighborhood news items.

—During the year, fifty-seven vessels, aggregating 17,070 registered tons, have passed out of existance, involving a financial loss of $956,000. The list of partial losses amounted to $585,000, and as many minor mishaps are not recorded it is safe to estimate that not less than $1,500,000 worth of property has been destroyed on the lakes. The loss of life foots up to 130 persons, including those who accidentally fell over board. Much of the vessel property was not insured.

—The scow A. R. Upright was laid up at South Haven this fall.

—Ex-Governor Charles M. Croswell, of Adrian, died at his home on the 13th.

—The boys' band will give some street music Friday evening and Saturday, if the weather is suitable.

—Campbell Brothers are putting in new ways at their ship yard upon which to haul out the steamer Van Raalte.

—A. E. Pickard, general dealer at East Jordan, has made an assignment to Arthur Meigs & Co., of Grand Rapids.

—R. A. Campbell went to Traverse City Saturday, to meet Mrs. Campbell on her way home from southern Michigan. They return to their Charlevoix home to-day.

—H. V. Rifenburg returned from Muskegon Friday. He went as defendant in a law suit, which the extensive lumber firm of Ames & Frost of Chicago, were complainants. Rif. knocked them out on the first round.

—It is reported upon pretty good authority that the steamer St. Joseph will next season run between Chicago and East Jordan. The Hoop Company have offered her good freights, and the passenger business is being looked after.

—Senator Palmer has been notified by the commissioner of agriculture that 6,500 papers of vegetable seeds, 500 flower seeds, 200 tobacco seeds, 25 quarts of grass seeds and 25 sugar beets are held subject to his order. Persons desiring supplies will address Senator Palmer, at Detroit, and the seeds will be forwarded at once.

—An "explosion of natural gas" is announced as having occurred last week at Kokomo, Ind., with loss of life and property. Such events are of common occurrence up here in Northern Michigan, and there is no excitement over them. At Harbor Springs they have one every week, and it does not come from the bowels of the earth either.

—The public school exhibition Wednesday evening was the most entertaining of any affair of the kind in the history of the Charlevoix schools. Although the evening was stormy the opera house was packed with friends of the school to witness the efforts of the 100 participants. The program consisted of readings, recitations, choruses, character pieces, solos, trios, quartettes, tableaux and an exhibition of Mrs. Jarley's "Wax Worx," and was presented without an evidence of failure. The entertainment spoke well for the discipline of the instructors and the ability of the children. Twenty six dollars was realized; nearly enough to balance the debt on the school organ.

—Washington dispatches state that the commerce committee of the House have agreed to frame a bill granting 25 per cent. of the Engineer's recommendations for harbor improvements, made in his last report, and work is in progress on the bill. As this is the short session of Congress, if the bill passes, which is likely, it will increase the available funds for the actual improvement of Charlevoix harbor next season to about $15,000. It now seems quite likely that the next season's improvement will be the extension of one or both of the piers, the completion of the revetment below the bridge, the deepening of the channel at the mouth, and the widening of the river at the bend—a point in river navigation which has done so much to reduce nautical swearing to a science. No harbor on the lakes, in the light of large and increasing commerce, is more deserving of improvement than that of Charlevoix. The appropriations agreed upon by the committee are as follows: CHARLEVOIX, $7,500; Black Lake, $1,500; Cheboygan, $5,000; Frankfort, $6,000; Grand Haven, $15,000; Grand Marais, $50,000; Ludington, $60,000; Manistee, $7,500; Monroe, $500; Muskegon, $7,500; Petwater, $4,000; Portage Lake, $15,000; Sand Beach, Lake Huron, $70,000; St. Joseph, $4,000; South Haven, $50,000; White River, $6,000.

Old newspapers sold at this office.

LEPROSY AND PRIDE.

Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

The Sick Warrior and How He Was Cured—Obedience and Life The One Road of Pardon, Peace, Life and Heaven.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Rev. Dr. Talmage took for his text this morning the first verse of the fifth chapter of Second Kings: "He Was a Leper." The preacher said:

Here we have a warrior sick, not with pleurisy or rheumatism or consumption, but with a disease worse than all these put together. A red mark has come out on his forehead, a precursor of complete disfigurement and dissolution. I have something awful to tell you: General Naaman, the Commander-in-Chief of all the Syrian forces, has the leprosy; it is on his hands, on his face, on his feet, on his entire person. The leprosy! Get out of the way of the pestilence! If his breath strikes you you are a dead man. The Commander-in-Chief of all the forces of Syria! And yet he would be glad to exchange conditions with the boy at his stirrup or the hostler that blankets his charger. The news goes like wildfire all through the realm, and the people are sympathetic, and they cry out: "Is it possible that our great hero who shot Ahab, and around whom we came with such vociferation when he returned from victorious battle—can it be possible that our grand and glorious Naaman has the leprosy?"

Yes. Everybody has something he wishes he had not—David, an Absalom to disgrace him; Paul, a thorn to sting him; Job, carbuncles to plague him; Samson, a Delilah to shear him; Ahab, a Naboth to deny him; Haman, a Mordecai to irritate him; George Washington, ... to ... him; John Wesley, a termagant wife to pester him; Leah, weak eyes; Pope, a crooked back; Byron, a club foot; John Milton, ...

... next time Naaman comes to that palace he may be a dead weight on the shoulders of those who carry him—an expired chieftain seeking sepulture amid the lamentations of an admiring nation. Good-bye, Naaman!

Let the charioteer drive gently over the hills of Hermon, lest he jolt the invalid. ... goes the bravest man of all his ... a captive of a horrible disease. As the ambulance winds through the streets of Damascus the tears and prayers of all the people go after the world-renowned invalid. Perhaps you have had an invalid go out from your house on a health excursion. You know how the neighbors stood around and said: "Ah, he will never come back again alive!" Oh, it was a solemn moment, I tell you, when the invalid had departed, and you went into the room to make the bed and to remove the medicine vials from the shelf, and to throw open the shutters so that the fresh air might rush into the long-closed room! Good-bye, Naaman! There is only one cheerful face looking at him, and that is the face of the little Hebrew captive, who is sure he will get cured, and who is so glad she helped him. As the chariot winds out and the escort of mounted courtiers, and the mules, laden with sacks of gold and silver and embroidered suits of apparel, went through the gates of Damascus and out on the long way, the hills of Naphtali and Ephraim look down on the procession, and the retinue goes right by the battle-fields where Naaman, in the days of his health, used to rally his troops for fearful onset; and then the procession stops and reclines awhile in the groves of olives and oleander, and General Naaman so sick—so very, very sick!

How the countrymen gaped as the procession passed! They had seen Naaman go past like a whirlwind in the days gone by, and had stood aghast at the clank of his war equipments; but now they commiserate him. They say: "Poor man, he will never get home alive! Poor man!" General Naaman wakes from a restless sleep in the chariot, and he says to the charioteer: "How long before we shall reach this Prophet Elisha's?" The charioteer says to the wayside: "How far is it to Elisha's house?" He says: "Two miles." ...

...

IMPORTANT MEASURES.

The House Passes a Bill to Extend the Free-Delivery Service, and Also the Amended Electoral-Count Bill—Provisions of the Latter—An Agreement Between Senate and House Conferees on the Inter-State Commerce Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The House yesterday passed the bill extending the free-delivery system, after it had been amended so as to provide that letter-carriers shall be employed in places having a population of 20,000, and may be employed in places having a population of not less than 10,000 or whose post-office produced a gross revenue for the preceding year of not less than $10,000.

The House amendments to the Senate Electoral Count bill were then agreed to and the bill passed without division.

The bill as passed by the House directs that electors of each State shall meet and give their votes on the second Monday in January following their appointment. Section 2 provides that if any State shall have provided by laws enacted prior to the day fixed for the appointment of electors for its final determination of any controversy concerning the appointment of all or any of the electors of such State, by judicial or other methods or procedures, and such determination shall have been made at least six days before the time fixed for the meeting of the electors, such determination shall be conclusive, and shall govern in the counting of the electoral votes, so far as the ascertainment of the electors appointed by such State is concerned.

The fourth section provides for the meeting of the Senate and House in the hall of the House on the second Wednesday in February succeeding the meeting of the electors, for the appointment of tellers and the reading by them of the certificates and papers purporting to be certificates of the electoral votes. The section further provides that the result of the vote taken in the manner herein prescribed shall be delivered to the President of the Senate, who shall thereupon announce the state of the vote which announcement shall be deemed a sufficient declaration of the persons, if any, elected President and Vice-President of the United States, and, together with a list of the votes, be entered on the journals of the two houses. Upon such reading of any such certificate or paper, the President of the Senate shall call for objections, if any. Every objection shall be made in writing, and shall state clearly and concisely, and without argument, the ground thereof, and shall be signed by at least one Senator and one member of the House of Representatives before ...

TO HELP THE INDIANS.

Report of the Commission to Negotiate with the Indians on the Reservations in the Northwest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The report of the commission appointed to negotiate with certain tribes of Indians in Minnesota, Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington Territory, says that by the terms of agreement with the White Earth, Lake, Winnebigoshish and other scattered bands of Chippewas, concluded August 11, 1886, the unoccupied lands of the White Earth reservation are thrown open for all of the tribes and bands of Chippewas in Minnesota, the Indians now occupying the reservation, which contains about 800,000 acres, being first permitted to make selections for themselves. Each head of a family will be entitled to 160 acres, each single person over eighteen years of age 80 acres, each orphan child under eighteen years of age 80 acres, and each person under eighteen years of age 40 acres. Every Indian will receive a patent which shall declare that the United States will hold the lands thus allotted for the period of 50 years, and such further time as the President may direct, in trust for the allottee or his heirs, according to the laws of Minnesota, after which time the land is to be conveyed to the allottee in fee. It is further provided that the Minnesota laws of marriage, descent and partition shall apply thereto after the first patents therefor shall have been executed and delivered. The Indians are to have the benefit and be subject to the criminal laws of the State in all offenses, the penalty for which is death or imprisonment in the State penitentiary.

The residue of lands is to be patented to the consolidated tribes in common and held in trust, as in case of individual allotments, and every child who may be born within the 50 years limit is to have a tract of 40 acres. Provision is made for the support of the Indians removing to White Earth, to be continued until they are able to take care of themselves, but in no event to exceed two years. Each head of a family and each male Indian over eighteen years of age, when he becomes a permanent resident upon his allotment, will be provided with a comfortable hewed log house, a cook stove, a yoke of oxen, a plow, a wagon and a cow, an axe and other implements of husbandry. Each Indian shall have five acres of land broken for him and be provided with seed for his first crop. Industrial and district ...

HENNEPIN'S FATE.

...

FREE DELIVERY.

...

A CZAR'S WHIM.

...

THE COMBINED

STEAM FURNITURE

—AND—

Agate Works,

CHARLEVOIX, . . . MICH.

The undersigned announces that he is prepared to take orders for

REPAIRING OR BUILDING

Furniture of all Kinds

ON SHORT NOTICE.

MY LAPIDARY

Is in first-class shape for working or polishing all choice stones.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

CORNELIUS BUDD.

All Goods not called for within ninety days will be sold for charges.
Charlevoix, Nov. 23, 1885.

Northern Michigan

Boiler Works.

Builder and Manufacturer of

Boilers, Heaters,

LARD TANKS, ETC.

OF ALL KINDS

SHEET IRON WORK

A SPECIALTY.

MARINE WORK

Given Special Attention

HENRY BARTH, Proprietor,
Charlevoix, Mich.

MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE & WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Only Line Running

TWO DAILY TRAINS

—BETWEEN—

Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago

The Only Line Running Sleeping Cars between Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago.

THE AIR LINE TO OSHKOSH.

TIME TABLE.

...

Full information regarding rates of fare, time of trains, etc., can be obtained on application to Station Agent, Wausau.
R. G. FLEITH, Agent, Wausau.
H. F. WHITCOMB, General Manager.
CHAS. V. McKINLAY, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FRANK E. WOOD'S

BATH AND BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day or evening. Oddfellow's building.

FARMING LAND!

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

Michigan Lands

FOR SALE BY THE

G. R. & I. R. R. COMPANY.

60,000 Acres in Charlevoix County.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple, elm and other wood, and are accessible to best markets by

WATER AND RAIL.

And are in a part of the State unequaled for health, well watered, and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of the east shore of Lake Michigan.
The Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant.
The part of Michigan in which these lands are found is

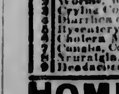
Not a Wilderness, by any Means.

It contains a population of two hundred and fifty thousand souls, and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every State in the Union.

...

W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

HUMPHREYS'



Manual of all Diseases,
By F. HUMPHREYS, M. D.
RICHLY BOUND IN CLOTH and GOLD
Mailed Free.

...

HOMEOPATHIC

SPECIFICS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO., 109 Fulton St. N.Y.

WM. J. STEVENSON,

VETERINARY HORSE-SHOER.

Interfering and crippled horses shod satisfactorily or no charge.

Repairing done promptly.

The Old Doctor

NERVOUS DEBILITY, MALE or FEMALE WEAKNESS AND DECAY.

A Life Experience. Remarkable and quick cures. Trial Packages. Send stamp for sealed particulars. Address
Dr. WARD & CO. Louisiana, Mo.

THE IOWA ROUTE
BURLINGTON
CEDAR RAPIDS
AND NORTHERN
RY.

THE SHORT & POPULAR LINE

for all points in IOWA, MINNESOTA, DAKOTA, and the New Northwest. The only line making close connections with all important lines leading

NORTH, SOUTH, EAST or WEST.

NORTH for Minneapolis, St. Paul, and all points in Minnesota, Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Wyoming and Oregon.
SOUTH for St. Louis and Points in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and all points south and southeast; New Orleans and all Florida points.
EAST for Chicago and all points in the Middle, Southeastern and Eastern States.
WEST for Council Bluffs, Kansas City, and all points in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada and California.

SOLID TRAINS

WITH

PULLMAN SLEEPERS

ARE RUN BETWEEN

Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul

VIA THE

FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE,

AND BETWEEN

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul

VIA THE OLD ESTABLISHED AND POPULAR

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul Short Line

Dining Cars on all Albert Lea Route Trains.

...

Land Seekers' Round Trip Tickets

on sale at all prominent points to its Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota Land Points.

C. J. IVES, Pres't & Gen'l Sup't.
J. E. HANNEGAN, Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Ag't.
CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.

NOW IS THE TIME

TO USE

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA

FOR

LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA,

AND FOR

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 20 years and has proved to be the best preparation in the Market for Sick Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Liver Complaint, Pimples on the Face, Dyspepsia, Piles, and all Diseases that arise from a disordered Liver or impure blood. Thousands of our best people take it and give it to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily. Those who use it once recommend it to others.

It is made from Yellow Dock, Honduras Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Stillingia, Dandelion, Sassafras, Wintergreen, and other well known valuable Roots and Herbs. It is strictly vegetable and cannot hurt the most delicate constitution. It is one of the best medicines in use for regulating the bowels.

It is sold by all responsible druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six for five dollars. Sample bottles 50 cts. free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
Detroit, Mich.

When you have tried all the Sarsaparillas, and have been disappointed, try Johnston's.

SEXUAL Weakness & Lost Manhood quickly and positively cured. Send for book mailed FREE to all afflicted. Address, Hewlin Medical Co., Buffalo, N.Y., U.S.A.

JOB PRINTING

SUCH AS

Cards, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Posters,

ETC., ETC.

EXECUTED TO ORDER

AT THIS OFFICE.

In the Neatest and Promptest Manner

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

The Congressional Vote.

The official vote for Congressmen in the various districts of the State at the recent election was as follows:

First District—Chipman, Fusion, 1,... Robinson, Rep., 13,801; Pritchard, Pro., ...; Chipman's majority, ...

Second—Allen, Rep., 16,1..; Salisbury, Fusion, ...; Crozier, Pro., 2,118. Allen's plurality, 1,062.

Third—O'Donnell, Rep., 20,215; Hackerd, Fusion, 15,199; Allen, Pro., 3,594. O'Donnell's majority, 1,420.

Fourth—Burrows, Rep., 16,257; Sherwood, Fusion, 15,..; Boyden, Pro., 1,...; Burrows's majority, 510.

Fifth—Ford, Fusion, 18,567; McBride, Rep., 18,1..; Briggs, Pro., 3,096. Ford's plurality, 417.

Sixth—Brewer, Rep., 19,081; Fedewa, Fusion, 17,148; Partridge, Pro., 3,4..; Brewer's plurality, 1,886.

Seventh—Whiting, Fusion, 13,777; Saeborn, Rep., 12,963; Clark, Pro., 1,580. Whiting's plurality, 814.

Eighth—Tarsney, Fusion, 18,3..; Hoyt, Rep., 17,615; Abbey, Pro., 1,3... Tarsney's plurality, 6..

Ninth—Cutcheon, Rep., 17,226; Mason, Fusion, 14,1..; Ellis, Pro., 2,3... Cutcheon's majority, 6...

Tenth—Fisher, Fusion, 15,017; Loud, Rep., 12,9..; Ross, Pro., 1,061; Fisher's majority, 7..

Eleventh—Moffatt, Rep., 14,465; Power, Fusion, 12,242; Carpenter, Pro., ... Moffatt's majority, 1,9..

Michigan Items.

The Detroit grain and produce quotations are: Wheat—No. 1 White, 78¾@78½c; No. 2 Red, 79¼@79½c. Flour—Michigan White Wheat, choice, $3.10@3.25; roller process, $4.00@4.25; patents, $4.75@5.00. Corn—No. 2, 38½@39¼c. Oats—No. 2, 28¾@29c. Butter—Creamery, ...; Cheese, 12½@13c. Eggs, 22@23c.

Reports to the State Board of Health by fifty-nine observers in different parts of the State, for the week ended November 27, indicated that diphtheria, pneumonia, tonsilitis, influenza, diarrhea and inflammation of the kidneys increased, and intermittent fever and remittent fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at thirty-four places, scarlet fever at twenty-one, typhoid fever at eleven, measles at four, and small-pox at Detroit.

Mrs. Bridget Murphy, of Muskegon, was found dead in bed the other morning.

...

A RE-INSTATED "P. M."

Mr. Nasby Has a Scare, as Did Mr. Benton, of Missouri, but It Terminated Happily.

[From the Toledo Blade.]

POSTOFFICE, CONFEDERIT X ROADS,
(Wich is in the State uv Kentucky),
Nov. ..., 18...

Ther wuz consternashun for an entire week at the Corners. Durin the late campane, ez a matter uv course, I took my yoosual part therein. I stumped the entire destrikt, ez I alluz hev done, and, hallelooyah! ez I alluz shel. In addishun to my yoosual stumpin I did the yoosual dooties inseidemt to a Dimekratic success. I distribbited the campane funds to the s'loons, after deductin my per cent., wich wuz three-fourths of the entire amount. I organized the sturdy ... element to do the proper knockin down uv opposition voters, and at the poles I soopermtendid the sluggin myself.

It wuz a very lively eleckshun. Ther wuz more than the yoosual number uv Republikins wich hed the temerity to come and offer ther votes, and ez sum uv the more misgided ones insisted upon wat they called ther rites, ther wuz more than the regler amount uv knockin down and draggin out. In all this I wuz conspikuous. I knocked one small Republikin down with a bottle (empty), and I did shoot at two or three niggers wich wuz impudent enuff to hang around the poles after they hed bin ordered to leave. This comin to the ears uv our beloved President he construed it into "offensive partisanship," and promptly suspended me from my high and holy posishen.

Then there wuz a howl at the Corners. I hed declared one small dividend onto my debts, and the citizens wuz jist beginnin to look for another, when this blow fell. There wuz more weepin and wailin and sich at the Corners than ther wood hev bin hed a raleroad axident killed one out uv each family. It wuz a matter that the entire Corners wuz interested into, ...

THE SOUTHERN VOTE.

...

FASHIONABLE FURS.

...

DRIFT OF THE PRESS.

...

THE MARKETS.

...

HOME AND FARM.

—One drop of castor oil placed on warts every day for from ten days to two weeks, will remove them and leave no mark.—Exchange.

—Gravy ladles of china or granite ware have gone out of use very largely. A good sized spoon takes the place of a ladle, and is lighter and prettier.—Chicago Journal.

—The theory that fowls and turkeys injure the grain by roaming through it is not true, while the slugs they kill and their droppings made soluble by the rain increase the crop.—Troy Times.

—White Cake: Two cups white sugar and a scant cup of butter mixed together. Add the well-beaten whites of five eggs, one cup sweet milk, three cups sifted flour, in which stir two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Flavor with any thing desired.—Boston Globe.

—Milk Gravy. Put in your spider about one tablespoonful of fried meat gravy or butter; when hot add nearly one pint milk; when milk comes to a boil, add pepper, salt, one heaping teaspoon flour stirred in a little cold milk so it will not be lumpy.—The Caterer.

—Creamed Eggs: Boil eight eggs until hard, plunge into cold water, remove the shells without breaking the whites, put into a vegetable dish and cover with drawn butter made of a pint of new milk, two spoonfuls of butter, a little salt, and thickened with half a spoonful of cornstarch. This is an excellent breakfast dish.—Housewife.

—A contemporary says it is easy to get rid of black ants. Open a hill with a hoe, scatter on a handful of salt, sprinkle on a quart of water, and the ants will leave immediately. A few days ago the house was overrun with insects. The correspondent found eleven anthills within two rods of his building. After the above application not an ant was to be seen about the premises.

—The most popular remedy in England for the gapes in poultry, and the most successful, is that which is known as the powder cure. Some prepared ...

DR. MOSES, physician at Marine Hospital, Baltimore, Md., found Red Star Cough Cure a harmless and most effective remedy in the cure of coughs. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

For rheumatism and neuralgia St. Jacobs Oil is a sure cure.

MINISTER LOCKEY, of France, authorizes the statement that he is no tumbler.—Rochester Post Express.

MOST women are clothes observers.—Washington Critic.

The Reason Why.

It is said "there's nothing new under the sun," and it may be a true saying. But when the light of reason is thrown on some of the every-day occurrences in life, it is astonishing how little we actually know as to the whys and wherefores of matters which attract our attention. In the hurly-burly of this world we are apt to take for granted facts as they appear, because we have not time to thoroughly investigate them. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company has endeavored to save the enquiring mind the trouble of much research, and has published in a little book entitled "Why and Wherefore," many reasons why various facts exist. The language is plain and simple, and the volume might be used with profit as a reliable class book in public and private schools. As a household reference it is invaluable, and children as well as grown people can read and understand it.

While this publication is in a measure an advertising medium for the Railway Company, that fact does not detract from its value, and a copy of "Why and Wherefore" will be sent free to any address by enclosing ten cents in postage to A. V. H. Carpenter, General Passenger Agent, Milwaukee, Wis.

LOVE matches are very easy to strike, but some of them go out dreadfully quick.—Boston Post.

THE six hundred French army cats, whose duty it is to catch mice in the clothing store-houses, are to have their rations reduced, since they have become too fat and lazy to capture the offending rodents.

Is It Not Singular

that consumptives should be the least apprehensive of their own condition, while all their friends are urging and beseeching them to be more careful about exposure and overdoing. It may well be considered one of the most alarming symptoms of the disease, where the patient is reckless and will not believe that he is in danger. Reader, if you are in this condition, do not neglect ...

DYSPEPSIA

Is a dangerous as well as distressing complaint. If neglected, it tends, by impairing nutrition, and depressing the tone of the system, to prepare the way for Rapid Decline.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

QUALITY NOT QUANTITY. P. PURITY.

THE BEST TONIC

PHYSICIANS AND DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND IT.

Quickly and completely Cures Dyspepsia in all its forms, Heartburn, Belching, Tasting the Food, etc. It enriches and purifies the blood, stimulates the appetite and aids the assimilation of food.

...

BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND
OFFERS THE SUREST REMEDY
FOR THE
PAINFUL ILLS AND DISORDERS SUFFERED BY WOMEN EVERYWHERE.

It relieves pain, promotes a regular and healthy recurrence of periods and is a great help to young girls and to women past maturity. It strengthens the back and the pelvic organs, bringing relief and comfort to tired women who stand all day in home, shop and factory.

Leucorrhoea, inflammation, Ulceration and Displacements of the Uterus have been cured by it, as women everywhere gratefully testify. Regular physicians often prescribe it.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1.00.

A LIMITED OFFER. GREAT CHANCE!

65 Cents Pays for a Year's subscription to the Weekly American Rural Home, Rochester, N. Y.

...

RURAL HOME CO., Limited,
Without Premium, 65c a year. Rochester, N.Y.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

HIGHEST AWARDS OF MEDALS
IN AMERICA AND EUROPE.

...

SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs

cures coughs, colds, pneumonia, asthma, whooping cough and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs leading to Consumption. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Illuminated books furnished free.

JOHN F. HENRY & CO., New York.

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS,

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

For Liver, Bile, Indigestion, etc. Free from Mercury; contains only Pure Vegetable Ingredients. Agents: MESSRS. FULLER & FULLER CO., Chicago, Ill.

MASON & HAMLIN

NOW SELL THEIR

UNRIVALED ORGANS

On the EASY HIRE system, payments at the rate of $3.25 per month, up. 100 styles, $22 to $900. Send for Catalogue with full particulars, mailed free.

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

Constructed on the new method of stringing, on similar terms. Send for descriptive Catalogue, mailed free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.
Boston, New York, Chicago.

ARTHUR'S HOME MAGAZINE.

Greatly enlarged for 1887.

The best magazine of its class.

CLEAN! WIDE-AWAKE! CHEAP!

Price, $2.00 a year. Large discounts to clubs. Sample copies of previous issues FREE. Sample copies of current numbers 10 cents each (half price). T. S. ARTHUR & SON, Philadelphia, Pa.

WEBSTER'S Unabridged Dictionary.

A Dictionary
118,000 Words, 3000 Engravings,
Gazetteer of the World of 25,000 Titles, and a Biographical Dictionary of nearly 10,000 Noted Persons,
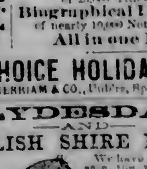
All in one Book.

Invaluable in every School and at every Fireside.

A CHOICE HOLIDAY GIFT.

G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

CLYDESDALE
—AND—
ENGLISH SHIRE HORSES.



GALBRAITH BROS., Janesville, Wis.

LANDS SEND FOR Publications, with Maps, describing MINNESOTA, NORTH DAKOTA, MONTANA, IDAHO, WASHINGTON and OREGON, the Free Government Lands and low Price Railroad Lands in the Northern Pacific Country. THE BEST AGRICULTURAL, GRAZING and TIMBER LANDS NOW OPEN TO SETTLERS.

RED STAR COUGH CURE

NO OPIATES, NO POISON.

SAFE, PROMPT, SURE.

ST. JACOBS OIL,
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY
For Pain.

For Thanksgiving, for the Merry Days of December, or for Any Festival Occasion.

THE ROYAL SINGER ...
ANTHEMS OF PRAISE ...
SONG GREETING ...
SONGS OF PROMISE ...
KING WINTER ...
CAUGHT NAPPING ...
BIRTHDAY OF OUR LORD ...

Buy these books in time for thorough practice!

...

LYON & HEALY, CHICAGO.

Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston.

OAKLAWN

The Great Nursery of

PERCHERON HORSES.

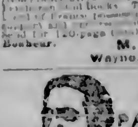
200 Imported Brood Mares
Of Choicest Families.

LARGE NUMBERS,
All Ages, both Sexes,
IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY

...

M. W. DUNHAM,
Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.



JONES
HE PAYS the FREIGHT
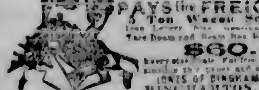
5 Ton Wagon Scales,
...
$60.
...
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.



THE WASHBURN GUITAR

is the finest toned and most durable in the world. Warranted to stand in any climate. Ask your principal dealer for them. Illustrated catalogues mailed free by the manufacturers, LYON & HEALY, 162 STATE ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

Land for the Landless!

...

RUPTURE

Have you heard of the astounding reduction for DR. J. A. SHERMAN'S FAMOUS HOME TREATMENT, the only known guarantee comfort and cure without operation or hindrance from labor? No steel or iron bands. Perfect retention night and day. No chafing, suited to all ages. Now $10 only. Send for circular of measurements, instructions and proofs. Get cured at home and be happy. OFFICE, 294 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Remarks by Bill Nye,

...

DO YOU HAVE THE ASTHMA?

POPHAM'S ASTHMA SPECIFIC

...

T. POPHAM & CO.,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

MAGIC LANTERNS! AND STEREOPTICONS

FOR PUBLIC, SUNDAY SCHOOL & HOME EXHIBITIONS

VIEWS ... 120 ... FREE

C. T. MILLIGAN 728 Chestnut St. PHILADELPHIA.

CATARRH

Can Be Cured!

...

PENSION CLAIMS

...

MILO B. STEVENS & CO.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.

WE WANT YOU! ...

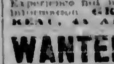
STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

DETECTIVES

Wanted in every County to act as our Agent. ...

WANTED Reliable SALESMEN to Travel and sell to the trade our Celebrated Cigars, Tobacco, Cigarettes, etc. Liberal arrangements. Salary or Commission. ...

AGENTS WANTED ...



AGENTS WANTED for Marvelous Wonders of the Whole World, ...

OPIUM HABIT ...

HOME STUDY. ...

TRUSSES & ARTIFICIAL LIMBS. ...

HAIR ...

TELEGRAPHY ...

FREE ...

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, DEC 2[illegible] 1886.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
L. D. F. PARMLEE, Associate Editor.

[illegible] Tribune: [illegible] the laborer by the arm and leads him forward to prosperity. Free trade takes him by the nose and holds it on the grindstone.

Omaha Herald (Dem.): The President's recommendation of a National penitentiary for Federal prisoners also suggests an inebriate asylum for Ministers to Mexico.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press: The real trouble is not in leadership, but in the fact that, when it comes to matters of public policy and practical action, there is no such thing as a Democratic party.

Somebody has been imposing on this innocent Democratic administration again, by securing the appointment of a person to be postmaster in Northern Dakota, who was arrested in Racine in 1881 for stealing $1,000, and confessed his guilt. By this time he has probably repented; but it was unwise in his friends to put him forward for public office of any kind. Why was no inspection made of his career by an Administration which considers nothing too small for it to do.

It was under painful circumstances [illegible]

Northern Michigan News.

Andrew Kitchen of Banks, has been granted a pension.

The contractors of the "Soo" branch of the D. S. S. & A. railroad have commenced operations.

The annual meeting of the Antrim County Agricultural Society occurs in Bellaire, Monday, Jan. 3.

The Elk Rapids Iron Co.'s wood barges are all down from up the lake, and three of the tugs have laid up.

The Rev. D. I. Breed of Reed City, will publish a four page paper devoted to the interests of the Congregational church there.

Manistique in 1880 was a village containing less than 100 families. It has now a population of over 3,000 souls and is growing rapidly.

Thirty-seven sailors from the "Soo" passed through St. Ignace on their way to Chicago and Cleveland one day last week. About fifty passed through Thursday.

Ward Davis, a life-long democrat, and the past 18 years a resident of that place, has received the appointment of postmaster at Elk Rapids to succeed O. J. Holbrook, republican.

The lighthouse board has determined to divide up the head-quarters of the new Lake Michigan district, and to locate the office of the superintendent at Chicago. The depot for supplies, however, is Harbor Springs.

At the annual meeting of the Grand Traverse Agricultural and Industrial [illegible]

Elk Rapids is to have a toboggan slide near Bass Lake. It will be over 600 feet long, and men are [illegible] building it.

A. C. VanTassel, of Mancelona, has 140 traps now out, and one day last week he brought in two large otter skins, worth seven dollars apiece.

J. H. P. Hughart, the assistant to the president of the G. R. & I. railroad, is in Indianapolis negotiating for 500 new box cars for his road.

Annual meeting of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Grand Traverse, Antrim and Leelanaw counties will be held in Traverse City on Tuesday, Jan. 4th.

Antrim county has a new village named Simons. It is located about four miles north of Alba, on the railroad. Walter Williams is proprietor, F. L. Church the surveyor.

Rev. Father Coyne is the new pastor of the Catholic church at St. Ignace. He comes from Pennsylvania, and is a new man in that diocese. The late pastor has gone to Marquette.

Stewart Church, for several years past the successful manager of the chemical works at Elk Rapids has accepted a like position in the south, and will be succeeded by F. O. Abbott.

At St. Ignace, one day last week, August Shorkey, a brakeman, fell between the cars and was instantly killed. His home is at Marquette. He leaves a widow and a little girl, who were on the train at the time of the accident.

[illegible]

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Report of Charlevoix Schools for the Term ending Dec. 17th, 1886.

NO. PUPILS ENROLLED.

1st Department,	56
2nd Department,	45
3d Department,	40
4th Department,	[illegible]
5th, Grammar Section,	29
5th, High School,	38
Total,	262

AVERAGE NO. BELONGING.

1st Department,	39
2d Department,	41½
3d Department,	34
4th Department,	48½
5th, Grammar Section,	23
5th, High School,	34
Total,	2[illegible]

NO. DAYS ATTENDANCE.

1st Department,	2,532½
2nd Department,	2,733½
3d Department,	2,285½
4th Department,	3,175½
5th, Grammar Section,	1,518
5th, High School,	2,175
Total,	14,418

DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.

1st Department,	219½
2d Department,	194½
3d Department,	107
4th Department,	162
5th, Grammar Section,	49
5th, High School,	65½
Total,	796½

AVERAGE DAILY ATTENDANCE.

1st Department,	36[illegible]
2nd Department,	34[illegible]

[illegible]

Names of pupils who have been neither absent nor tardy during [illegible]: Mattie Brink, [illegible] Forrest Barker, [illegible] Schrier, Cecil [illegible], Morris Ackert, [illegible] Mary Miller, Katie [illegible] Clara Eaton, [illegible] Claude Myers, Wal[illegible] Newman, Ernest [illegible] George New[illegible] Willie Eaton, Win[illegible] Swails. [illegible] High School: [illegible] Edith Mason [illegible] Whitmoyer, [illegible] Miller, Ralph [illegible] Chauncey Up[illegible] John Goss[illegible] Kirkpatrick, [illegible]

[illegible]

The winter term of school begins Monday, Jan. 3d.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. [illegible] New Discovery [illegible]

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. [illegible] Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

For Sale!

[illegible]

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

[illegible]

STATIONS.		No. 1		No. 7
Cincinnati, leave		7 35 a m		7 [illegible] p m
Richmond		10 2[illegible]		10 [illegible]
Fort Wayne	Ar	1 [illegible]		[illegible]
	Lv	2 1[illegible]		[illegible]
Sturgis		4 21		[illegible]
Kalamazoo	Ar	5 4[illegible]		[illegible]
	Lv	5 [illegible]		[illegible]
Plainwell		[illegible]		[illegible]
Grand Rapids	Ar	7 [illegible]		[illegible]
	Lv	[illegible]		[illegible]
D., G. H. & M. cross		11 [illegible]		[illegible]
Howard City		12 [illegible]		[illegible]
Stanwood		1 [illegible]		[illegible]
Big Rapids		1 [illegible]		[illegible]
Reed City		2 15		[illegible]
Le Roy		[illegible]		[illegible]
Cadillac		[illegible]		[illegible]
Walton June		[illegible]		[illegible]
Mancelona		[illegible]		[illegible]
Boyne Falls		[illegible]		[illegible]
Petoskey		[illegible]		[illegible]
Mackinaw City		[illegible]		[illegible]

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass Agent.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to speculate with ones own money is folly, that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing this, it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just literally will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive securities in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.

Correspondence solicited.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] ... of February, A. D. 1887.

[illegible] WILKINSON COMPANY, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] ... of March, 1887, at one o'clock [illegible]

[illegible] CARPENTER, Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] ... Thursday the Twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1887, at one o'clock in the afternoon [illegible]

Dated November 17th, A. D. 1886.

MARTHA J. AYERS, Mortgagee.

EDWARD H. GREEN, Attorney for said Mortgagee, Charlevoix, Mich.

Offices To Rent

A number of desirable offices to rent in the [illegible] block. Inquire at [illegible]

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

A. J. McLEOD,

having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres. John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Hulters,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL,	$25,000
SURPLUS,	2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State Banks as provided in Act 3074, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

NATIONAL PARK BANK	NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK	CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK	GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK	DETROIT.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The

Sentinel.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

[illegible]

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for residents, are a sure indication of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

which is the rarest and best in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything

usually kept in a country shoe store.

We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25. Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. D. Bradbeer,

PHOTOGRAPHER.

OFFICE OVER

UPRIGHT & EMREY'S STORE.

I will make Cabinet Photographs, A SPECIALTY!

At Lowest Prices

Consistent with

GOOD WORK.

McCABE'S MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

[illegible]

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & [illegible], Attorneys at Law. Office in [illegible], Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. C. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. [illegible] west of [illegible], Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLETON, M. D., Office at residence, [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

[illegible]

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix County.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER

Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of

FANCY GOODS!

Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,

FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,

FURNITURE AND JOBBING SHOP.

Antrim Street, CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Give me call.

Forty Acres

OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE County, close to North Adams village, to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address

GAMBLE & CAMPBELL,
Real Estate Agents, Hillsdale, Mich.

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Troubles with womankind is heir. $1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by selling the sale of this remedy. For testimonial and particulars, Address

PAN-ZAMA MED. CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

Additional Local News.

Bring in your wood on subscription, we want lots of it.

Dr. Christie has been confined to his house much of the time the past week by illness.

—Harrison Mohr [illegible] from Harbor Springs Tuesday and will settle down here for the winter.

The mill machinery for the Smithson Lumber camp arrived Tuesday and is being transferred to the camp.

—Burns & Scroggie will run a stage between Charlevoix and Boyne City this winter, making two trips per week.

P. S. Brown, who has been engineer on the steamer Morley the past season, returned to his home in this village, last week.

—The Petoskey Democrat appeared last week as a seven column quarto patent insides, instead of an eight column folio as formerly.

[illegible]

Changes in Shakspeare.

"A short time ago," said a Shakspearean student, "I purchased a copy of the folio Shakspeare, and upon reading it I have met with such astonishing passages that I begin to doubt if its importance is not greatly exaggerated."

Heminge and Condell, from their preface, were no doubt very well satisfied with the result of their labors, for they inform us that they "have so published them, as where (before) you were abused with divers stolen and surreptitious copies, maimed and deformed by the frauds and stealths of injurious impostors that exposed them, even those are now offered to your view cured and perfect of their limbs, and all the rest absolute in their numbers, as he conceived them. And what he thought he uttered with that easiness that we have scarce received from him a blot in his papers."

Notwithstanding this assurance, it is impossible for me to believe that they or anyone else could have revised the volume before it was issued from the press.

Hamlet, page 274 (of the folio):

To his good friends thus wide I'll ope my arms,
And like the kind life-rendering politician
Repast them with my blood.

All the modern editions which I have seen say pelican instead of politician.

Again, in Measure for Measure, [illegible]

ALUMINUM.

[illegible]

MISSING LINKS.

A double headed garter snake was killed near Madoc, Canada, recently.

Eighty thousand cases of salmon were put up this season in [illegible].

There are just fourteen [illegible] of America" among the [illegible] of this country.

There are people living in the neighborhood of Dahlonega, Ga., who have never seen a negro.

A New Yorker desires to have the law aid him because his wife declines to keep him company when he eats.

William M. Singerly, of the Philadelphia Record, has sixty-six dwelling-houses in course of erection in that city.

Mrs. Cleveland is said to write on an average about twenty letters a day, most of them in reply to communications from entire strangers.

Mr. Jay Gould was met at Mount Desert the other day by an old farmer, who exclaimed: "Why, you don't look as though you were worth $1,000!"

An Albany speculator is said to be making a good deal of money by purchasing Canadian silver in New York at 20 per cent discount and circulating it at home at par.

The editor of the Perry, Ga., Journal informs the public that he has had the pleasure recently of [illegible]

"Yes," said Miss Rickladie, "my daughter graduates next week." "I understand she is at the head of her class." "No," she said with some sadness, "she will not be the valedictorian, but she will take the salutatory, and that's nearly as large. The commencement exercises are to be very interesting. [illegible] the Rev. Dr. Grace will preach the baccalaurean sermon, the Rev. Mr. Mortimer will deliver the address, and there will be other attractions too numerous to mention." [illegible]

According to the New Orleans Times-Democrat Louisiana lost 200,000,000 pounds of sugar last year by imperfect sugar milling. The quantity of sugar actually made last year was [illegible] pounds. There is only one first-class sugar mill in the state; most of the others are clumsy affairs, which leave nearly one-half of the saccharine matter in the bagasse or refuse cane. The planters are aware of this enormous waste, but say that they cannot afford to throw away their old machinery and buy new.

Mr. Dana, of the New York Sun, declares that the most difficult subject for a newspaper reporter to handle well is a big fire. It has, he says, so many varied and varying aspects, its cause must often be ascertained from lips that are panic-stricken; its immediate and remote consequences must be noted, the [illegible]

[illegible]

It is said of John L. Sullivan, Jr., who is now 27 months old, that when but six months old he would seize hold of a kitchen chair with one hand and hold it at arm's length. One day, when he was about nine months old, he was put upon his feet near a coal hod two-thirds full, when he seized and lifted it from the floor. Now, when playing in the open air, he handles heavy stones that it would trouble lads of 10 or 12 years to manage.

[illegible] has passed away, and I have seen the enterprises of which they were head and center successfully conducted by other heads. This has led me to the conclusion that the details of a well established business can be intrusted in a considerable degree to intelligent and faithful employes. Nowadays, with more business on hand than at any previous period in my life, I find plenty of time for social life and an occasional opportunity to take a pleasure trip."

J. MILO EATON'S REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

Special Offer!

[illegible]

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

In Hardware, Cutlery, and Notions.

WE SELL THE

ATKINS SAWS AND Perfection Axes.

Job & Tin Work.

L. D. Bartholomew & Co.

Merry, Merry Christmas!

PREPARE FOR IT BY BUYING YOUR HOLIDAY GOODS OF PERRY WEED.

A Large and Beautiful New Line JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Gooos and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of

Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc is complete.

If you want to select your Xmas Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. H. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Charlevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 1[illegible] Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS

Dealers in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,

At current rates of interest, on

Approved Real Estate Security.

School Bonds bought and sold.

MILEY & CHAPIN, Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you [illegible] place to get a shave, hair dress [illegible] call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & PIRMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

LIEUTENANT [illegible] has been made an assistant to General Hazen, who is in ill-health.

SENATOR MORRILL, of Vermont, seventy-six years old, is the oldest man in the Senate. Payne, of Ohio, is seven months younger.

IN polite circles they no longer say a person has a wrinkled face. The correct thing is to declare that Mrs. Soandso has a corduroy countenance.

COUNT DE LESSEPS thinks that a man ought to live a hundred years. There are a good many other things that he ought to have and do, but somehow they fail to materialize.

THE wife of General Hazen will spend the winter abroad—probably in Italy. When he has to get up this winter and make the fires he will appreciate why he and his blizzards are unpopular.

FORT ABERDEEN (D. T.) bachelors ate Thanksgiving dinner together with the understanding that the first one married should pay the bill. Meanwhile the landlord whistles for his money.

MRS. GENERAL GRANT will visit Washington during the winter. She will be the guest of General Beale and [illegible]

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

Interesting News Compilation.

XLIXth CONGRESS.

Second Session.

MONDAY, Dec. 6.—The second session of the Forty-ninth Congress of the United States was begun at noon. In the Senate Mr. Sherman called the members to order, prayer was offered by the chaplain, and a resolution was adopted fixing the hour of daily meeting at noon. The House was informed by a committee that the Senate was ready to proceed to business, and at two o'clock the President's message was received and read. The death of Senator Pike, of New Hampshire, was announced, and as a mark of respect the Senate adjourned at 2:25 p. m. Speaker Carlisle called the House to order at noon. After prayer by the chaplain the roll was called, 241 members responding to their names. The Senate was then informed that the House was ready to proceed to business. Several new members qualified, after which the message of the President was read. The deaths of Congressmen Beach and Arnot, of New York, and Price, of Wisconsin, were announced, and as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased the House at 1:15 p. m. adjourned.

TUESDAY, Dec. 7.—In the Senate bills were introduced: To exempt from duty imported sugar and molasses and also imported boards, lumber and timber; to provide for the retirement of United States legal tender and National bank notes of small denominations and for the issue of coin certificates; to increase pensions and for a revision of the tariff. In the House bills were introduced: To provide for the deposit of coin or bullion as security for bank circulation, for the issue of greenbacks in place of retired bank notes, to reduce the amount of bonds required as security for circulation, to compel cattle companies to pay the Government for the use of public lands, and to increase the tax on oleomargarine to six cents per pound. A petition was presented, [illegible]

WEST AND SOUTH.

[illegible]

FROM WASHINGTON.

[illegible]

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

[illegible]

LATER.

[illegible]

THE EAST.

[illegible]

RIGHTS OF FISHERMEN.

[illegible]

UNCLE SAM'S JUSTICE SHOP.

[illegible]

THE BIG HAT MUST GO.

[illegible]

A DARING OUTRAGE.

[illegible]

KILLED BY A FRIEND.

[illegible]

FIVE HEROES DROWNED.

[illegible]

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

[illegible]

SMALL CHANGE.

[illegible]

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & PIRMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

TO A COMET.

"Night unto night showeth knowledge."

To what far realms of undiscovered light,
Thou radiant wanderer of the upper deep,
Didst thou begin, in long and ceaseless flight,
Through spaces wide thy shining course to keep?

When at Creation's morn each new-born star
To their great Maker woke the blissful song,
Was it then He did the golden gates unbar,
And send thee forth to swell the Heavenly throng?

So vast the spaces where thy flight hath been,
No mortal eye hath watched that flight before;
Thou slidest but a moment, and again
Upon thy way art gone forevermore.

Beyond the verge whence the remotest sun
Back to our earth sheds his celestial ray,
Thou soon wilt pass us though but just begun
The journey to thy home so far away.

Fain would we know the secrets of thy path,
Of suns unknown, with systems round them rolled,
And heavens all new, such as the prophet hath
In coming ages for our earth foretold.

Art thou, indeed, the harbinger of woe,
Of dire disaster, and of war's alarms—
Celestial signal of the coming foe,
With noise of battle and the clash of arms?

Not so we read, upon thy shining form,
The prophecy of woe, and human ill,
But rather of the voice that quells the storm,
And bids the raging seas in peace be still.

From scenes like these one lesson we would learn,
Which all God's glorious works unceasing prove
That works Divine, howe'er those works appear,
Are wrought by Him alone whose name is Love.

—J. A. Russell, in Christian at Work.

THE YELLOW CAB.

Why Its Inmate Mistook Its Driver for a Lunatic.

[illegible]

din of tongues and a clattering of plates, I heard the treasurer read those tiresome, endless items, such as—

"Twenty pounds from Lord Fopdoodle." [Cheers.]

"Ten pounds from the Marquis of Closhire." [Renewed cheers.]

Again, too, for the twentieth time I heard the treasurer thank the secretary, and the secretary thank the treasurer, and then, at last, not a little hurried, I rose myself to propose "The Ladies," who smiled upon us in the gallery—I all the time thinking only of pretty little Nelly Pledgett, my doctor's daughter, whom I saw beaming and radiant in a front seat. I got quite eloquent on the subject of female beauty, and sat down amid tremendous applause. I was replied to by the good doctor, who, thanking the meeting on behalf of the ladies, begged to propose the health of one of the best friends of the society—need he say he alluded to—"Osbert Wilkinson, Esq.?" [Cheers.]

But suddenly, through all these motley recollections, there flashed a painful thought—a suspicious apprehension of I scarcely knew what coming evil. It seemed, when I think of it now, almost like a presentiment of what shortly after happened. I remember that, as I sat down, somewhat heated by my speech, and was pouring myself out a glass of that excellent sherry to wind up with, my old friend the doctor—who, by the way, sat opposite me at dinner—leaned across the table and gave me a peculiarly keen and searching look from under those thick gray eyebrows of his.

"What does that detective's look of yours mean, doctor?" said I, pleasantly enough.

"It means that you must take care of yourself," said he in a grave voice, and no more passed between us, for at that moment I rose to leave, having some business that would call me up early in [illegible]

[illegible]

Of my crazy doings that night the less said the better. They ended, however, I may mention, in my upsetting the cab myself (for I had insisted on driving), in a dangerous place and then stabbing the cabman, whom I had mistaken for an escaped madman. Luckily the wound, though it bled severely, had not proved dangerous. As for myself, I had then fled from the cabman, who had tried to take me safely home, seeing I was delirious, and being found in a field near Chiswick, was driven to an hospital, from whence Dr. Pledgett, hearing of my detention, took me to his own house.

I soon recovered, thanks to my kind doctor, but, alas! having before lost my senses, I now lost my heart. I spent my long days of convalescence in wandering in the garden with Nelly, in practicing duets, and reading Tennyson. I soon found it impossible to be without her.

To-morrow week Nelly Pledgett, I am proud and happy to say, becomes Mrs. Osbert Wilkinson, thanks to my imaginary mad cabman and the yellow cab No. 1,676.—Chicago News.

PRETTY TOILETTES.

Some Very Neat and Fashionable Costumes for Home and for the Street.

No prettier dress can be seen for home wear than one of a grayish blue [illegible]

GREAT MEN'S APPETITES.

[illegible]

PITH AND POINT.

—A new book is entitled "Hold Up Your Heads, Girls." We trust that they won't as long as they wear the present style of hat.—Boston Post.

—Many a man who thinks he is going to set the world afire finds to his sorrow that somebody has turned the hose on him.—New Haven News.

—Patient: "What do you think of a warmer climate for me, doctor?" Doctor: "Great Scott! man, isn't that just what I am trying to save you from?"

—"Was she his wife?" asked a married woman of an acquaintance. "Yes. Why do you ask?" "Because they were so jolly together. You don't often see married people jolly together in public, you know."—Harper's Weekly.

—Women do not swear, but the profanest man in America would give five dollars if he could imitate the expression of a good woman when she hits her thumb with the hammer and says: "Mercy on me!"—Burdette.

—Teacher—The object of this lesson is to inculcate obedience. Do you know what to obey is? Apt Pupil—Yes, marm; I obey my pa. "Yes, that's right. Now tell me why you obey your father?" "Because he bigger'n me."—N. Y. Telegram.

—Old lawyer (to young partner)—Did you draw up old Moneybag's will? Young partner—Yes, sir; and so [illegible]

MONKEY INTELLIGENCE.

[illegible]

Heading Off a Borrower.

[illegible]

READING FOR THE YOUNG.

THE FOUR SEASONS.

Recitation for Little Girls.

I.

I am Spring, a little maiden,
With [illegible] laden.
[illegible]
All the birds and children love me—
Me the world is glad to greet.
I bring breezes fresh and sweet
I am Spring.

II.

I, too, am a welcome comer,
Every one is glad of Summer,
I bring many happy hours,
And I bring the lovely flowers.
From school I let the children out;
I echo every laugh and shout
I am Summer.

III.

I am Autumn, blithe and gay,
Only a little while I stay.
I give fruits with lavish hand
I bring colors rich and grand;
Beauty follows where I go,
Making hills and valleys glow
I am Autumn.

IV.

I am Winter, merry and bright.
I cover earth with a mantle of white,
I bring clear and bracing air,
Bring sports both rich and rare;
Though winds and storms I have about me,
Nobody would do without me.
I am Winter.

ALL (joining hands).

We are the four glad Seasons
That come to you every year,
Bringing a bounteous measure
Of health and comfort and cheer.
[illegible]

EVERY ONE FORGOT.

[illegible]

"Oh, ma, have I come back to you?" he cried, with a sigh.

"We hope so, Georgie," replied his mother. "You have had a bad fever, just like May's and been very sick, but you soon will get well now."

"Did May die because I forgot her medicine?"

"No. Father came home and got it for her, and she is well now, and has helped me take care of you, but you have not seemed to know her, and have called her Mite ever since you were taken sick."

"Mother," said Georgie, very earnestly, "I am going to try not to forget things any more!"

And Georgie did try. When he became well, he was sent upon errands; he always thought of Mite, and the [illegible], and the doctors, and the land of Short Memories, where he went in his fever-dreams, and he was cured of the very bad habit of forgetting his duty.—S. S. Colt, in Home Visitor.

A BABY OUT OF BED.

The Trouble Caused by a Young Tiger Who Tumbled Out of Its Cage.

All the bells of a village will ring when a child is lost. Tigers can ring no bells, but they have savage affection enough to make loud "music" when one of their children is missing. We [illegible]

Answered the Trumpet Call.

[illegible]

ENORMOUS EXPENSES.

[illegible]

GRAND SLAUGHTER SALE at G. W. MILLER'S

I will make CHRISTMAS MERRY and NEW YEARS HAPPY for EVERYBODY, with the Lowest Prices you ever saw on Clothing!

Until Jan. 1st, I will sell all Goods at bona fide Cost or below. You will see, by giving me a call, that I am not advertising anything but what is straight. I am going to give you a Chance to Buy A

$25 SUIT FOR $18.50
$20 " " 16.
$14 " " 12.

A $24 SUIT FOR $17.50
An $18 " " 14.50
A $12 " " 10.00
An $8 " " 6.50

A $22 SUIT FOR $16.50.
A $16 " " 13.00.
A $10 " " 8.00.

Youths' Suits from $4 to $10. Childrens' Suits from $1.50 to $6.50 Childrens' OVERCOATS $2.50.

ALL OTHER GOODS AT PRICES THAT WILL SELL THEM. For CASH ONLY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, DEC. 22, 1886.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

—We predict that the time is not far distant when it will be found necessary to locate the fire department apparatus at some central point on Bridge street.

—Banks people say Rev. B. H. Whitman, the M. E. pastor, is very popular there, and Geo. VanFleit says "he has entered upon a three years' course." Knowing B. H. Whitman as we do, the information is not at all surprising.

—Mr. Abner S. Lee, a prominent real estate dealer at Petoskey, died at Sweet's Hotel, Grand Rapids, of consumption. He came there last Thursday in company with his only son, intending to go on to California, hoping to recover his health. After arriving on Monday he became worse and gradually failed until death ended his sufferings. His remains were taken to Auburn, N. Y., for burial, in charge of his son, who is the only one of his family living.

—The Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad gives notice of the following excursion rates: For the holidays tickets will be at rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip between all stations. They will be on sale for Christmas Dec. 24th and 25th, and for New Years on Dec 31st and January 1st. These tickets will be good to return to January 3rd regardless of day of sale. They also announce a special excursion rate of $61 to Jacksonville, Florida, good to return until June 1st, 1887.

—The many friends of Mr. W. C. Byers, of Banks will deeply sympathize with him in the affliction which has recently come upon his household. Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Byers lost a young son. The loss deeply affected Mrs. Byers, and she soon after began to show signs of mental derangement, which developed so rapidly that on Monday last it was deemed necessary to remove her to the Traverse City asylum for treatment. Mrs. Byers was always an estimable lady and the matron of a model Christian family. It is earnestly hoped that she may fully recover from her malady, which is by no means unlikely.

—The C. & W. M. engineers are within 20 miles of Traverse City, and have the grade stakes set that far. The chief engineer is reported as having recently said, "Just as sure as there is balm in Gilead, our road will be built to Elk Rapids next season; and further within a short time." There is a business complexion to this scheme for railroad extension north via Elk Rapids and Torch Lake to Charlevoix, which, upon inspection, [illegible] up as one of the most feasible and promising among the many that are now occupying the attention of railroad circles. We refer to the enormous inland lake and river coast-line with which such extension will naturally connect north of Traverse City, and which will constitute a most valuable supplying agency to its traffic. At Elk Rapids it taps the foot of the Antrim county chain, which pierces the interior to within three miles of the head of the Charlevoix county system, the foot of which it reaches at Charlevoix, 32 miles north of Elk Rapids, touching Torch Lake at its head about midway between the two points. Consider for a moment the combination! These lakes contain upon their shores and bear upon their bosoms the elements of a commerce which make business for railroads. They facilitate transfer, and bring remote localities into practically easy distances from the railroad line. They are a cornucopia of wealth for the railroad corporation that reaches them first, and the C. & W. M. folks are well aware of the fact.

Norwood Notes.

Ten degrees above zero is the coldest it has been at this place so far.

The light house on the point is still lit, showing that navigation is not yet closed.

William Stigar, who went to Florida over a year ago, is back among us once more.

School will close on Friday two weeks for the the holidays.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give a supper at the town hall on Friday evening, Dec. 31st, proceeds to be applied on pastor's salary. Come all ye hungry, and get a square meal once more, and at the same time lend help to a worthy cause, by paying liberally for what you get.

Organization of the Charlevoix Business Men's Association.

A large representation of the business men of Charlevoix assembled at Odd Fellows' Hall on Thursday evening for the purpose of organizing a Business Men's Association. The meeting was called to order by G. W. Crouter, and Hon. John Nichols was called to the chair, and R. W. Kane elected Secretary.

The call for the meeting was read by G. W. Crouter, who also announced that Mr. Hamilton, of Traverse City, President of the State Business Men's Association was present. The chairman then called upon Mr. Hamilton, who set forth in detail the objects and plans of these organizations.

Mr. Stowe, of the [illegible], was present, and being called for, explained quite fully the collection department of the organizations and explained the usual steps in forming an organization.

On motion of G. W. Crouter, the meeting then proceeded to organize a Business Men's Association, and adopted the constitution of the [illegible] Association, with the necessary changes.

The following officers were then elected: President, Hon. John Nicholls; Vice President, H. Lee Iddings; Secretary, R. W. Kane; Treasurer, W. P. Brown; Members of the Executive Committee, L. D. Bartholomew and G. W. Miller. The election of the Business Committee was deferred until the next regular meeting.

The form of collection blank presented by Mr. Stowe, was adopted, and a sufficient number ordered to be printed.

It was voted that the expenses of Mr. Hamilton in attending this meeting, be paid by the association, and that the thanks of the Association be tendered Messrs. Hamilton and Stowe, for their assistance.

The Association adjourned to the first Tuesday of January.

Common Council.

The Village Council met Thursday evening with acting President McLeod in the chair.

The Marshal's report for the month of November was accepted and filed.

The Finance Committee examined the books and vouchers of the Village Treasurer, and reported the following showing: Cash received during the year, $1,328.46; paid out, $1,318.65; cash on hand, $9.81.

Report accepted and adopted.

The following bills were allowed: John Nicholls, lumber, $61.31; O. S. Washburn, care of fire engine, extra labor filling cisterns, etc., $13.80; H. C. Cooper, cots for jail, $2.25.

On motion of Trustee Eaton, the payment of Village taxes was extended one month.

On motion of Trustee Eaton the Treasurer was required to make a detailed statement the first of each month.

Council adjourned.

Masonic.

Members of Charlevoix Lodge, No. 282, F. & A. M., are requested to be at the lodge room at sharp 6:30 on the evening of Dec. 27th in order that business may be disposed of before the public installation later. By order of O. S. WASHBURN, W. M.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society meeting last Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith was well attended and interesting. Next meeting with Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Wood, Jan. 7. Paper by Miss Flora Nelson, on "Alexander and his Times."

Barnard's October comet in the past six weeks has traveled more than 100 degrees across the sky, passing through several constellations, and now is in the western border of Hercules. It has developed two separate and distinct tails: one of which is much longer than the other, and with the naked eye may be traced from the nucleus to more than 15 degrees on the sky. Just before day-break, say 5 o'clock, may be seen almost directly east, 20 degrees above the horizon, and lying nearly parallel with it, a row of five stars, the center one of which is larger and more hazy than the rest; this is the comet, and it is getting to be a grand object in a telescope provided with a comet-seeker. It is traveling eastward and will soon be out of line with the above mentioned stars. The longer tail of the comet may be seen running up from it, and away from the sun's place, until it disappears in the beautiful little constellation, corona borealis or northern crown. The comet will soon pass to the eastward of the sun, and then may be seen in the west at evening, and may then make quite a stir.

Fine weather, but not enough snow for good sleighing.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

The Tuesday evening Teacher's Meeting has become an established fact and one of the most important factors in our church work.

Thursday evening Prayer meetings are growing in interest and power. We earnestly desire everbody to come.

Friday evening of this week the S. S. will celebrate Christmas eve, with fitting exercises. A suspension bridge done in evergreens, will hold the presents. All desiring to have gifts exhibited will be sure to have them in the hands of the committee at the church before noon on Friday. All are cordially invited.

Sabbath services will be held at the usual hours.

Sermons appropriate to Christmas and leading our thought to the great central fact in human society will be presented.

Seats are free, please come and occupy them and confer a favor.

Yours truly,
W. H. McCARTNEY.

Ironton Congregational Church.

Preaching every Sabbath afternoon at half past two o'clock by the Rev. John G. Hodges.

Sabbath school every Sunday afternoon at half past one o'clock.

A Christmas tree of large dimensions will be trimmed and ready to present at four o'clock Christmas afternoon. Every child and member of the Sabbath school will have his or her name on the tree. A very good time anticipated.

An oyster supper will be served in the hotel on Christmas evening at seven o'clock. A cordial invitation to those who will enjoy such a supper. Proceeds for the benefit of the Sabbath school.

Ironton.

Business with teams commenced again on Monday morning.

Dr. Hill from Chicago, has located here and will dispense renewed life to our indisposed.

The Company have finished their store at Horton's Bay. Wm. Goodyear was the builder.

Workmen are now engaged building a new hearth in the stack and relining it.

Active preparations are forward for the Xmas tree. The Congregational people are sparing no effort to make it a success.

Mrs. May, wife of Frank May, of this place, died on Friday morning and was buried in the Charlevoix cemetery on Sunday. Deceased was about 40 years of age and leaves a husband to mourn her loss. Death was caused by an ulcer on the lungs.

A Present to All.

Remember we are giving to every purchaser of 50 cents worth of Holiday Goods a ticket in the drawing of a first-class ($20.) music box. Hear it play and you will want a ticket.

F. G. HINES & CO.

The greatest rush for Holiday Goods this season is at Hines & Co.'s store. The reason for it is: Largest stock, greatest variety, lowest price and a present to all.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

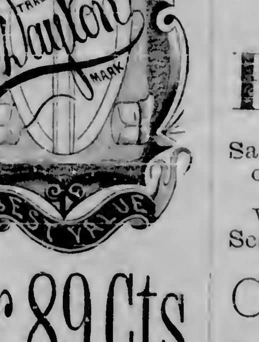
A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

I C U can buy more and better Foreign or Domestic fruit or confectionery for your Christmas Gifts to the children of O. W. Smith than any other place in Charlevoix. The finest assortment of Fruits, Nuts, Sugar toys and Confectionery ever shown in this market. A few of those delicious Catawba grapes left. They are as nice as when picked. Prunells, a fine Foreign fruit; a good thing for the sick. More goods for the money than any other place in town. Farren's Baltimore oysters, in bulk and cans, for 30, 35 and 40 cents per can. No better oysters put up.

O. W. SMITH,
2w Opposite Bridge St. House.

THIS SHIRT
THE FINEST
In THE WORLD



For 89 Cts.
Worth $1.25.
Of F. W. CRAINE & CO.

And Now For The HOLIDAYS.

We have been preparing for them not for "30 Days" or any other fossilized racket, but genuine Stupendous Bargains which we have succeeded in getting for this event.

Buy Something Useful

Save money and be happy, be it a Cloak, Hood, Dress, Bolt of Cotton, or any of the many useful and beautiful articles to be found at our store.

We have an immense stock of Silk Handkerchiefs, Gents' Mufflers, and Scarfs. Also Ladies' Linen and Silk Handkerchiefs.

COME and see the beautiful Japanese Wares that we are showing for Holiday Gifts.

LADIES' WRAPS. We have 25 styles no two alike, to select from also Newmarkets. Misses and Childrens Cloaks from $2 up. Come and see for we still live.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

OFFER A SPECIAL

Reduction Sale Of

DRY GOODS,

UNTIL JANUARY 1ST.

YOU WILL MISTAKE IF YOU BUY BEFORE LOOKING AT OUR STOCK AND PRICES. VALUE RECEIVED IS WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AND WE GUARANTEE PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST. LIGHT EXPENSES AND A CASH BUSINESS ENABLE US TO SELL AT VERY NARROW MARGINS. NO EXPENSIVE PARTNERSHIPS; NO SECOND-HAND GOODS.

Great Bargains in Winter Dress Goods, Flannels, Homespuns Tricots, Crepe Cloths, etc.
COTTON FLANNELS sacrificed to close.
MIXED SHIRTING FLANNELS, very cheap.
ACME WOOL FLANNELS at Factory Prices.

50 CENT BARGAINS:

The Best 50 Cent Wool Hose in town. Leggings in town. Jersey Glove in town.
The Best 50 Cent Toboggan Caps in town Loop Mitt in town. Corset in town.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS:

Look at our new designs in Lamps & Lamp Goods. Patent extension Lamps from $3.00 up. Duplex Burners 50c. Double Cone Burners for 75c. Lamp Shades, Burners and Chimneys. Tubular Lanterns with guards 75c.

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS always at the lowest prices.

WANTED! TIES, POSTS AND SHIPPING WOOD.

The Highest Market Prices Paid.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Special Sale!

We will invoice our stock about Jan. 1st, and before that date we wish to sell our Surplus Stock in

GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
DRY GOODS,
CLOAKS,
DRESS GOODS,
CARPETS,
CLOTHING, Etc.

To do this we must give special inducements to customers. We have advertised special sales in some lines, but now advertise a

Grand Special Sale!

From now until Jan. 1st, embracing all articles in the store, from Silks down to Prints.

A SACRIFICE SALE OF CLOAKS

From now until Jan. 1st.

We are bound to sell at some price and propose to undersell all competitors.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS!

By calling and examining our store you will find that most suitable presents can be purchased of us.

Hoping to receive a share of your patronage, we are Yours to sell goods,

Rosenthal & Son

on the corner.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—35 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1886. WHOLE NO. 892

F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.

HOLIDAY ANNOUNCEMENT!

F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.
F. G. HINES & CO.

1886

We invite every Man, Woman and Child of Charlevoix and vicinity, to inspect our immense stock

OF HOLIDAY GOODS.

Call and examine our complete assortment of Photograph and Autograph Albums, China Cups and Saucers, Fine Art Books, Dressing Cases, Vases Shaving Sets, Childrens' Books, Toilet Sets, Bisque Ware, Books of all kinds, Dolls by the million, Mirrors, Cabinet Frames, Christmas and New Year Cards, Scrap Albums, Music Folios and Rolls, Immense line of Toys, etc., etc.

FREE! A $20 MUSIC BOX. With every 50 cents worth of Holiday Goods purchased we will give a ticket, or chance, in the above box. Call and hear it play.

1887

HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.

F. G. HINES & CO., CHARLEVOIX.

HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAA GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.
HOLIDAY GOODS.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods

BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

We can Supply you with EVERYTHING in our Line.

THE FINEST STOCK OF

FURNITURE

ever offered in Charlevoix,

IS NOW AWAITING YOUR INSPECTION AT

Henry C. Cooper's.

A Choice Line of

FRESH GROCERIES,

OF EVERY VARIETY,

Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock

For your inspection in OPERA BLOCK by

R. J. COOPER.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

OUR FAMOUS

AXES, SAWS,
WEDGES,
Handles,
Steel Mauls,
Stoves, and
Stove Boards,

And all other Seasonable Hardware,

VERY CHEAP.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

A MAMMOTH NEW STOCK OF

GENERAL MERCHANDISE,

Just Receivd for Winter Trade,

which we will sell at

LOWEST PRICES.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,

Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One year - $1.50 | Six months - $.75

Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

St. Ignace is ice-boating and skating on the bay.

—Mrs. Lewis Gebo is very sick with typhoid fever.

—Prosecuting Attorney Corbett was in town Wednesday.

—Dr. Carlstein has recovered from his late illness so as to be out again.

—Mrs. C. Shepard of Boyne, is the holiday guest of her sister, Mrs. Oscar Upright.

—W. A. Brown, who has been ill for some time, is rapidly gaining, and will be out this week.

—W. H. Coon of Boyne, has sold his livery business to E. E. Newville who will continue at the old stand.

—Henry Barth returned home from Manistique Friday, having completed the contract he had there of building a large refuse burner.

—The Readmond Opera House, which was put into lottery scheme last fall, was on Saturday drawn by Mr Readman himself.

—Morgan Curtis of Petoskey, will soon present the presbyterian society of that town with a $1,300 lot on which to build a church.

—The drawing of the music box at Frank Hines' occurs next Monday. There is no "Readmond" about this, for every ticket represents a 50 cent sale, and the last one drawn takes the box.

—The last market day at Sutton's Bay, was a marked success. The next one will be held on Monday, Jan. 3d. Farmers who have stock to sell in this county would do well to adopt such a plan here.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholls leave next week for Lancaster, Ohio, where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Mamie Paddock. Montie Lewis leaves at the same time for a visit among Whitewater, Wis., relatives.

—Friday, the 31st, being the day that Capt. Harrison Berdan will retire from the office of Sheriff, his friends have arranged to tender him a testimonial ball on the evening of that day. Capt. Berdan is deserving of this compliment, and we hope the attendance will be large.

—The tug Clara Elliott of Saugatuck arrived in port Thursday morning, and will be hauled out at Campbell's yard for the winter. She has been doing fall fishing at Northport. Capt. Hugh Donnelly, her owner, brought his family and household effects and will spend the winter here.

—The Masonic installation and banquet on St. John's night was one of the most successful ever held. Hon. E. H. Green installed the officers, and the banquet was ample for the 100 who were present. Rev. Bro. W. H. McCartney gave a brief but interesting address. At the opening, the retiring Master, O. S. Washburn, took the chair wearing upon his breast an elegant Past-Master's jewel, a Christmas gift from his wife.

Our contemporary has got 'em again. The snakes it sees are wholly imaginary. The SENTINEL had not the least idea of charging its very worthy brother with reporting its printed wrappers to the Postmaster General. Before the SENTINEL wrappers were printed, the advice of the present postmaster was asked as to whether it was a violation of any postal law, and after looking the matter up, he reported that he could find nothing against it. Furthermore, he printed wrappers bearing advertising matter for his own paper.

—Wm. Nelson, of Boyne Falls, was in town to-day.

—Mr. Purvis was in Charlevoix on business, Monday.

—Harry Nicholls is expected home from his Wisconsin visit this week.

—Round Lake froze over Christmas, and Pine Lake will soon follow suit.

—Deputy U. S. Marshal McLeod, returned from Grand Rapids, Saturday.

—Prof. Enos left yesterday for Lansing to attend the State Teachers' Association.

—J. A. Cameron, says the [illegible], is getting out shingle timber east of Boyne Falls.

—Hon. F. J. Meech received an elegant gold watch as a Christmas souvenir from his family.

—Mike Litney has gone to Sutton's Bay bearing a gold watch and chain presented him by his wife.

—Russell Dyer, one of the oldest residents of this county, died at Advance on the 14th, aged 81.

—Notice the new announcement of Stockman & Iddings. Their shelves are full of seasonable goods.

—George H. Wrisley returned Saturday from the north peninsula, where he has been engaged the past summer at carpenter work.

—C. H. Maddeaugh, a former Cheboygan tailor has located in the building opposite Brown & Co.'s bank, and will do tailoring, repairing and cleaning.

—The Christmas tree at the Congregational church at Ironton was a splendid success. We have received a letter on the subject too late. We must have correspondence by Tuesday noon.

—Alic Rosenthal leaves Friday to accompany his brother to South Bend, Ind., where the latter will attend school. He will also wend his journey to Chicago, visiting friends present and prospective.

—The Agricultural college students of northern Michigan will hold a reunion at the Park Place hotel, Traverse City, on New Years' eve. A banquet will be served and an association of students and graduates will be formed.

Religious

M. E. Church.

We have a right to expect every member of the church at the prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 7 p. m. Come and wait on the Lord, that you may renew your strength.

Let these last days of the new year be spent in carefully reviewing the past, and planning for the future. God demands growth and progress in every branch of church enterprise.

The thanks of the pastor and family are by this medium addressed to Kriss Kringle and his coadjutors for the big stocking and contents.

Logan memorial service at the M. E. church; New Year services in the evening.

Yours in Christ,
THE PASTOR.

Rev. J. T. Iddings appreciates the kind remembrance on the Christmas tree at Black's school house. He was not able to be present.

Preaching at Black's school house next Sabbath at 2.30 o'clock. At night, preaching at Johnson's school house.

Congregational Church.

Thursday evening, "The Parable" Mark 13-34-37. Sunday morning subject, "Some reasons for believing that prayer is a power in the world." Evening, "A bank-check on heaven, good for every day of 1886." Tuesday, Jan. 4, 7:30 p. m., address to young people "A Celestial Telephone." Appointments for the week of prayer made known Sunday.

Western Michigan has no truer representative man than Col. F. B. Stockbridge, and it looks as if Omar D. Conger would be called upon to introduce him as his successor in the U. S. Senate.

SUMMONED HENCE.

Death of Senator John A. Logan in Washington on Sunday.

Friday and Saturday papers contained information that Senator John A. Logan was suffering from a severe attack of inflamatory rheumatism, but when the news was received yesterday of his death on Sunday last, painful surprise took the place of anxious solicitude.

His death occurred at his residence in Washington. He was surrounded by his family, Gen. Sheridan, and a number of political and military associates.

The announcement of Gen. Logan's death comes as a surprise and a shock to the entire country. Next to Gen. Grant, he was the most popular of the Union commanders, and was, at the time of his death the chief favorite of the volunteer soldiery. He was the one volunteer general of the war who reached the command of an army, and was the only one whose military genius reached the West Point standard. His courage was magnificent, and his skill of a high order.

As a statesman he was courageous and aggressive, faithful and untiring. He was not, in individuality, like any of his compeers in politics or war—He was John A. Logan. With him ambition was a virtue, for his chief ambition was to serve his country with fidelity and zeal.

He was robust in his honesty, and clean in his official record. The heart of many a soldier is sad at the thought that his hero is no more.

Correspondence.

FORT ORANGE, FLA., Dec. 19 1886.

To the Editors of Sentinel.

I will now fulfill my promise of writing to you. There is no use of describing my journey as it was like all other journeys by rail (especially south.) One misses connections every time they change cars. But we had one adventure which we do not usually have coming south; we were blockaded fourteen hours with snow at Rome, Georgia, and three engines could not move us, the snow being about two feet deep and moist enough to pack. We saw the last snow at Jessup, near the Florida line. This is my fifth winter down here, and I never before saw snow south of Chattanooga. We found the weather nice when we arrived at Jacksonville, and it has continued so ever since. To-day Mr. Cook and myself walked about two miles down the coast to visit a gentleman's place and grove, and we took a thorough sweat with our summer coats on.

The orange crop here on the coast is very fine; the fruit is large and smooth. I was passing a grove yesterday and counted on one branch eighteen inches long, twenty-five nice oranges. These are being shipped now about 3,000 boxes per week and they are bringing a fair price. The Charlevoix groves are in fine condition and are commencing to bear some. Since coming here we have built us a snug little cabin, and have moved in. We call it "The Retreat"—not because it is in any sense a loafers' retreat, but, on the contrary, because it is not one.

We found the fish waiting our arrival anxious to be caught. All we have to do is to pull our boat alongside the oyster reefs and the fish will take an oyster under each arm and climb over the side of the boat. Of course fishermen will believe this, and to others it will probably seem like a fish story. We have been out fishing two evenings and caught one hundred and ten nice fish. C. Y. Cook and Sibe Ackert like it here well, C. Y. is already talking about coming down here with Mrs. C. another winter.

The Florida travel does not seem to be large, but it will probably increase after the holidays. The railroad fare is a little less than last winter but not as low as it should be.

Respectfully,
E. CARPENTER.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, : : MICHIGAN

HOME AGAIN.

Home again! Mother, your boy will rest,
For a time at least, in the old home nest.
How good to see you in your cornered nook
With knitting or sewing, or paper or book;
The same sweet mother my boyhood knew—
The faithful, the patient, the tender and true.

You have little changed, ah well, maybe
A few gray hairs in the brown I see;
A mark or two under smiling eyes,
So lovingly bent in glad surprise.
'Tis I who have changed, ah mother mine,
From a teasing lad to manhood's prime.

No longer I climb on your knee at night
For a story told in the soft firelight;
No broken slate or book all torn
Do I bring to you with its edges worn,
But I'll come to you with my graver cares,
You'll help me bear them with tender prayers.

I'll come again as of old, and you
Will help the man to be brave and true;
For the man's the boy, only older grown,
And the world has many a stumbling stone.
Ah, mother mine, there is always rest
When I find you here in the old home nest.

—Abbie C. McKeever.

LIFE AT SEA.

The Day's Work of the Sailor Not Attractive.

Washing the Deck and Using the "Holy Stone"—Unsatisfying Weevils Rioting in the Sea Biscuit—The "Dog Watch" Etc.

The day's work may be said to begin at half past five in the morning with the operation of washing the decks. When the clock underneath the break of the poop indicates that time the ship's bell is struck thrice, it is "three bells." As the sound dies away the boatswain utters a stentorian "Turn to," and the hardy sailors prepare for toil. They first put down their pipes, for they have been enjoying a delightful smoke after the cup of dubious coffee served out to them in their pannikins at five o'clock. Then, if they are in warm latitudes, they divest themselves of their shoes and stockings, turn up their nether garments, and display to the eye of the observer a ludicrous variety of manly calves and bare feet. Two men, perhaps, proceed to the pump and begin to fill the wash-deck tub, three or four others arm themselves with brooms, and there remain one or two sailors to pass along buckets of water for the boatswain to dash about. There is a peculiar art, only to be acquired by considerable practice, in throwing a bucketful of water on to the deck so that it may spread about properly. Cast from the professional arms of the boatswain, the water falls with a familiar "smack" just behind the barefooted mariners with their brooms. It sweeps playfully over their feet, and immediately they begin to scratch away as if they were determined to destroy the deck. So bucket after bucket is dipped into the wash-deck tub and passed on to the boatswain. In some ships he uses a hose, and then more men are able to apply themselves to the brooms and scrubbers. If a ship is nearing port and the captain wishes the decks to appear particularly white, certain articles very familiar to seafarers are employed in the operation of cleaning. These are denominated, by some nautical freak of diction, "holy stones." From the name we might imagine them to be the treasured fragments of some classical shrine, but in reality, they are most humble pieces of sand stone, about the size of half a brick. Poetry abandons the nautical mind when the seaman uses the holy stone. Picture to yourself half a dozen bronzed and bare-footed mariners, on their hands and knees, lugubriously scrubbing the decks with these stones, so that people ashore may exclaim: "How beautiful a ship looks."

The men wash and scrub away until about 7:20. At this time a tinge of hope and pleasure asserts itself in their minds; the happy morning sleep of the watch below—their comrades off duty—is about to be destroyed. Somebody goes to the ship's bell and strikes it seven times, it is "seven bells." Immediately one of the scrubbing sailors runs with bare feet to the forecastle as if he had just heard some beautiful melody and was determined to follow it to its source. But what does he do? He does this: Directly he enters the forecastle he breaks into the most abominable noise. His sleeping comrades lie peacefully in their bunks around that unsympathetic place. They slumber, they dream, they are enjoying the end of their four hours' respite from their toils, yet this man enters like a vocal fiend of most violent discord to disturb them. He looks at them and he yells. "Hi, you sleepers—seven bells, here—show a leg, come!" He continues in this strain till he has uttered enough noise to awaken a dormouse in the depth of winter. Then the watch below wake up, as is only natural; they stir in their bunks, relinquish their black blankets, and crawl on to their sea chests, thence to the deck. They do not trouble themselves with any trivialities of the toilet. Life is short, fresh water is precious, and personal appearance is a frivolity at sea. One of their number proceeds to the galley—the nautical kitchen—and receives from the cook a can of so-called coffee; this, together with sea biscuits, forms the sailor's breakfast. The coffee is a black mystery stewed to distraction; the biscuit resembles an edible stone, tolerable as a curiosity, but monotonous as an article of daily diet. Yet weevils are a painstaking race of infinitesimal creatures; they love to live and die in the sea biscuit. As a hard-hearted comestible it has no rival. A sailor takes one of the things from the "bread barge" and smites it against his knee; he repeats the process, but the biscuit is imperturbable; the man becomes interested and crashes it against the corner of his sea chest; at last the "pantile" breaks, and the mariner is able to breakfast. True, some of the biscuits are soft, but the weevils generally find out this before the man. The nautical breakfast differs in various ships; in some the seamen are allowed a sort of porridge called "burgoo," or else a species of hash known as "lobscouse." These are doubtless excellent in themselves; but the careless manner in which they are cooked detracts from their good qualities. Happily, the sailor is no epicure, although he continually grumbles at his food. It is only when some meal turns out unusually bad that he becomes wrathful. In such a case he may take the articles of food back to the galley, fling them contemptuously on the floor, and utter imprecations against the cook; or, perhaps, he and his messmates will form a melancholy procession and carry the objectionable rations aft for the inspection of the captain. However, when the watch below have finished their brief breakfast they cut up some tobacco and enjoy a smoke. Then "eight bells" is struck—that is eight o'clock in the morning—and they proceed on deck to relieve their comrades. Unless the work of "holystoning" is being carried on, the operation of washing the decks is usually completed by "eight bells." Consequently the men who come on deck at that time betake themselves to various other duties about the ship.

The day's work at sea is full of infinite variety. In stormy and variable weather there is, of course, plenty of seamanship about the men's duties: yards have to be trimmed according to the wind, sails furled and running-gear attended to; but in calm weather the sailor develops into a curious jack of all trades. In an iron ship the rust has to be continually chipped off her sides, and this is an unenviable task on a tropical day; then there is always plenty of painting to be done. Every Saturday morning the masts have to be greased down to preserve them from the burning sun, and words fail to express how unsavory this performance is. Periodically the ropes of the vessel are tarred all over, and the tar adheres to the men's hands for months. Three or four of the best men are continually busy repairing the rigging and chafing gear, while others are continually employed about the decks, "seizing" blocks, putting new strands in ropes, etc. The boys and apprentices have generally to fetch and hold the tar and grease-pots and marline spikes for the men at work, not at all an unpleasant task in fine weather, up on a topgallant yard, out of the mate's way, although a knowledge of the art of holding on by one's eyelids is often desirable. It is curious what a quantity of work there is always to be done aboard ship.

The morning watch go below to their dinner at twelve o'clock, their comrades who came on deck to relieve them having previously been awakened from their slumbers at twenty minutes past eleven in order to partake of the mid-day meal. Here is a beautiful arrangement: These latter breakfasted at eight o'clock; after that they smoked, "yarned," mended, or washed their clothes, and turned into their bunks to sleep, but soon after eleven they are vociferously aroused to eat a dinner of hot pea soup and unpalatable salt pork. Imagine what appetite a sailor has for this unspeakable meal on a burning hot day in the tropics. Then at twelve o'clock they go on deck to relieve their mates, who come below in a state of profuse perspiration, to enjoy a similar repast. Something might be said in favor of the pea soup if it were only well prepared, but, as a rule, it is a most untempting fluid, served up in an unctuous tin. In order to lessen the monotony somewhat this compound is given to the men on alternate days, and there is a streak of philanthropy evident in this. Nor is the meat much better; one day it is salt pork, which may or may not be rancid, the next day it is a piece of baneful beef, familiarly known as "salt junk." After every meal the sailor indulges in his pipe; this is more to him than his breakfast, dinner or tea.

The average allowance in merchant ships to each man and boy is one and a half pounds of beef, or one and a quarter pounds of pork, besides about three-quarters of a pound of flour with the beef, and a full supply of pea soup with the latter. The quantity is sufficient; it is the quality that lacks. Three quarts of water are always allowed to each man per day. But ships vary a great deal, as much in the quality as the quantity of food they serve out. This depends upon the class of owners, the captain, steward, and even the cook. Some ships regularly provide pickles or butter; others serve out preserved vegetables and tinned meats twice a week, while a few do not even allow tinned meat on Sundays. But, taken in the aggregate, sailors' food is miserably bad. The flour is always more or less musty and sour, and even sometimes so full of weevils as to have quite a gray color.

The afternoon watch on deck is employed in tasks of the same kind as the duties which engaged the morning hours. At four o'clock p. m. the watch is again changed; thus it may be seen that, generally speaking, the men have four hours on duty and four off. But if this variation took place with undeviating regularity it is evident that one set of men would always be on deck the greater part of the night. They would turn out at 8 p. m., and remain on duty till midnight; then they would have four hours' rest until rise again at four in the morning; so with every night. Accordingly, in order that one watch should not always have the long night duty, there are what are nautically called the "dog watches." These are the hours between 4 p. m., and 8 p. m. The afternoon watch on deck, that go below to their tea at four o'clock, come on deck again at six o'clock; so they have their two hours' "dog watch." At eight they go below again; thus the night watches are varied. The term "dog watch," I believe, originates in the jocund idea that a dog might be able to take charge of the ship between six and eight in the evening. At six the seaman finishes his day's work as jack of all trades, and, unless there are nautical duties to be performed, owing to the variability of the weather, both watches have leisure to smoke, yarn or sing songs as the night descends upon the ocean. This is the time when the sailor appears in his most interesting and romantic aspect, especially on board the homeward-bound vessel; if the night is fine he forgets all about his many hardships, and is a light-hearted being, full of frolicsome humor.

It seems strange to consider that, as a rule, the sailor has less work to do when the weather is stormy than when it is fine. Of course, when a perilous gale of wind is blowing that carries away some of the sails and spars, or when the vessel is nearing land in a stiff breeze, there is unceasing labor for the tar. It is a thrilling sound, the cry of "All hands shorten sail," and no seaman can tell when he will be able to go below again. But on board a good ship in a strong gale, far out at sea, there is comparatively little actual work when the labor of furling the necessary sails has been accomplished. It is all watching and waiting, the hoping that something will not carry away, and cause some nasty work aloft. The seas sweep over the deck, and render all painting, chipping of iron rust, and polishing of brass-work impossible. The helmsman has the hard task then of keeping the ship from being continually flooded by the thundering waves.

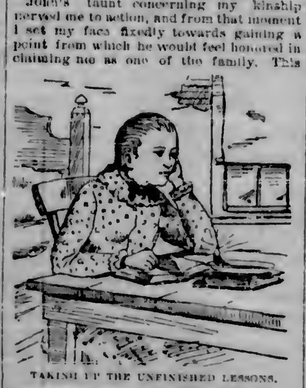
After all, it is not too much to affirm that the calling of the sailor is one of the hardest on the face of the globe. He lives on a floating house of business which is always carrying him into unexpected labors, and there is considerable truth in the old nautical saying that "work at sea is never done."—Brooklyn Eagle.

CHRISTMAS.

"TAKE THAT AND THAT!"

HOW IT HAPPENED

That I Was Proudly Owned as "One of the Family."



Belle C. Chisholm.

ONE OF ONE MIND.

FELL INTO THE PIT.

OUTRAGEOUS APPOINTMENT.

FASHION LETTER.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

THE WORLD OF FASHION.

[illegible]

THE COMBINED STEAM FURNITURE AND Agate Works, CHARLEVOIX, MICH. REPAIRING OR BUILDING Furniture of all Kinds ON SHORT NOTICE. MY LAPIDARY Satisfaction Guaranteed. CORNELIUS BUDD.

Northern Michigan Boiler Works. Boilers, Heaters, LARD TANKS, ETC. SHEET IRON WORK MARINE WORK HENRY BARTH, Proprietor, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE & WESTERN RAILWAY. TWO DAILY TRAINS Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago. THE AIR LINE TO OSHKOSH. TIME TABLE.

FRANK E. WOOD'S BATH AND BARBER ROOMS.

FARMING LAND! 500,000 ACRES Michigan Lands G. R. & I. R. R. COMPANY. Not a Wilderness, by any Means. W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner, Grand Rapids, Mich.

HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS.

WM. J. STEVENSON, VETERINARY HORSE-SHOER.

The Old Doctor. Dr. WARD & CO. Louisiana, Mo.

IOWA ROUTE BURLINGTON CEDAR RAPIDS & NORTHERN RY. THE SHORT & POPULAR LINE

SOLID TRAINS PULLMAN SLEEPERS Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul. FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE. St. Louis, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

NOW IS THE TIME TO USE JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA FOR LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, AND FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD. W. JOHNSTON & CO., Detroit, Mich.

SEXUAL

JOB PRINTING Cards, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Posters, AT THIS OFFICE. In the Neatest and Promptest Manner

Pains and Aches. Hood's Sarsaparilla. BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER. COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS. WANTED. A LIMITED OFFER, GREAT CHANCE! 65 Cents

TIRED OUT! BROWN'S IRON BITTERS THE BEST TONIC.

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT. ITCHING PILES SKIN HUMOR. Suffering Womanhood.

HARTER'S IRON TONIC. LADIES. ELY'S CREAM BALM. CATARRH. HAY-FEVER.

30,000 CARPENTERS

Holiday Music. HOLIDAY GIFTS. OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

THE SETH THOMAS WATCH. Best Watch in America for the Price.

MASON & HAMLIN UNRIVALED ORGANS UPRIGHT PIANOS.

DO YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY? Land for the Landless! RUPTURE. FREE! TOLEDO BLADE! CATARRH. MAGIC LANTERNS. RUPTURE. WE WANT YOU! AGENTS WANTED. OPIUM HABIT.

Striking Stories Of Adventure in The Youth's Companion, And Illustrated Sketches of Travel. PERRY MASON & CO., Publishers.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, DEC. 29, 1886.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

A piece of land was sold in [illegible], England, the other day, at the rate of ten million dollars per acre.

The report of the State Salt Inspector shows that the yield this year will be over 330,000 barrels more than for 1885. Protective tariff!

Tarsus, the birthplace of the Apostle Paul, has been connected by railway to Mersina, now the principal seaport on the southern coast of Asia Minor, a distance of seventeen miles.

Twenty-one years ago last July the steamer Brother Jonathan went down off the Oregon coast, with $2,000,000 in specie on board. Various unsuccessful efforts have been made to get the money, and now another effort on an elaborate scale is to be made.

The pistol with which Guiteau shot President Garfield is in the keeping of the civil authorities of the District of Columbia at Washington. All the personal property found on the assassin's body at the time of his arrest was confiscated and is still retained by the officials.

Sir John A. McDonald, of the Dominion, has been interviewed. He says that Canada was going to run under a policy of free trade, and that under the operation of a policy of protection "there is not to-day a country in the whole world happier than the Dominion of Canada."

The Detroit Free Press says editorially: "There are twenty-two Knights of Labor elected as Republicans who are members of the Connecticut Legislature." To that the Lansing Republican tartly responds: "Very true; but where are there twenty-two Knights of Labor in any state elected as Democrats? Workingmen will note this admission that Knights of Labor have been freely elected by the Republicans."

Undoubtedly the field of the greatest success, so far, in woman suffrage, is Washington Territory, having reference to the number who vote. It is stated that at the recent election there, of the 48,000 votes cast, 15,000—nearly one-third—were cast by women. Whether or not there is any special issue there pending, upon which the value of woman suffrage may be tested, is not stated. The real test must come when some measure divides the voters on the line of sex, and the women are victorious. It is not always that laws passed by the majority of men voters are well enforced. It remains to be seen whether those passed by women against the judgment and the votes of the men would be any better than dead letter statutes.

It is impossible to say how long the administration will quietly submit to the uncivil and evasive treatment of the fisheries matter by the Canadian government, because there is no reliable means of ascertaining just how much insolent prodding it will take to arouse Secretary Bayard and the President to a realizing sense of the real situation. But it is certain that a stop ought to be immediately put to the Canadian outrages upon citizens of the United States, which are following one another in altogether too rapid succession to be either comfortable or endurable. The thing to do, and the only effective thing, as it appears, that can be done, is to pursue a vigorous policy of retaliation. This would probably be a style of argument that the Canadian government could understand. It is evident that it regards mere diplomacy with a lofty and unmoved contempt.

A member of Congress whose name is not given is the authority for the statement in the Army and Navy Journal that our foreign relations are by no means as secure as they are supposed to be. The British government has been quietly bestowing a good deal of attention on the military status of Canada. The Canada Pacific Railway Company opens a military route over the continent in British territory. The fortified posts have been garrisoned by British regulars, and the United States frontier is about to be studied with reference to finding out its defensive requirements. There is no war in sight now, but some interests, like the fisheries, are in danger of giving cause for war. Hostilities with England would make a sad break in our grain trade, and give our great competitors sole possession of the foreign market, a blow from which our agricultural interests would not recover in a long time. The description given by this member of Congress is not the view of an alarmist, but he is right in believing that our people should not go to sleep in fancied security that we do not possess.

Northern Michigan News.

[illegible] has a new paper called the Monitor, published by a seventeen year old boy.

The matter appears to be about settled that Traverse City is to have [illegible].

Pierre [illegible], a [illegible] citizen of Cheboygan, was killed Dec. 9 by a falling tree. He leaves a wife and five children.

John Arnold, of [illegible], died on the [illegible] of heart disease, aged 70 years. He formerly lived on a farm near Cheboygan.

East Jordan yells its loudest for a new mail route to Boyne City via Dwight's and Advance. Present mail facilities are no facilities at all.

[illegible] P. Avery, of Traverse City, has contracted already for the sowing of 900 bushels of seed peas the coming season, in the Grand Traverse region.

D. McClellan, one of the most prominent business men and largest property owners in Reed City, died in Florida last week of consumption where he had gone for his health.

W. L. French advertises for 100 men to chop wood near East Jordan. He pays $1.00 per cord. The Enterprise thinks that the man who is out of employment this winter ought to go ragged and hungry, as wages are good and work plenty.

A week ago last Sunday, Coroner G. M. Clow was summoned to appear at McGill's place in Banks, to hold an inquest over the dead body of Sarah Walker, who died from an over-dose of Morphine, administered by herself in the presence of two or three witnesses.

The city hall and opera house at Cheboygan caught fire on the night of the 22d. The fire department prevented the fire from spreading, but those buildings were destroyed. Two prisoners in jail in the rear of the city hall, burned to death. Loss, $10,000; no insurance.

The Cadillac Express and News, both Republican papers, will be consolidated January 1, Senator J. White Geddings, of the latter sheet, having purchased the Express outfit and good will. P. A. Badour takes the Express plant, and will also engage in Wexford county journalism.

At the East Jordan incorporation meeting held last Friday evening, O. Blair, J. H. Stone, and J. A. Stevens were appointed as a committee on fixing boundary lines for the village. The people of South Arm and those on Bowen's addition wishing to be left out, then wishes will be complied with.

The Escanaba Silver Trombone Band does things very nicely. On the occasion of the birthday of Prof. G. M. Rice, Nov. 26, the band presented him with a beautiful E flat Courtois cornet, an elegant silver instrument, gold-mounted. The Professor is proud of his gift, which is one of the best instruments made. Its cost was $125.

William Smith, living three miles from Petoskey, fell head first into his well, 35 feet deep and five feet in diameter at the top, gradually narrowing to about four inches at the bottom. A piece of plank had been left in the stone work near the surface of the water, and this, with the "wedging" of the closing walls, broke the force of the fall. His arm was fractured and he was badly bruised. It took the hard work of two men to get him out, and at last accounts was helpless, though it is believed he will recover. That was the time that a Smith failed to "get there with both feet."

The following, from the Detroit Tribune, concerning the fishing interest, is of especial interest in Northern Michigan: "All our hatcheries are full of eggs," said Mr. W. D. Marks, superintendent of the state fisheries, yesterday. "Here in Detroit and at Petoskey, we have 81,000,000 white-fish eggs. At Paris we have 1,305,000 eggs of the brook trout." "Isn't that figuring pretty fine?" "Not a bit of it. That is the number, and it is an increase of one-half over last year. The white-fish eggs will hatch about March 16th, and will at once be distributed in the lakes. The brook trout will be hatched about the same time, but will not be distributed for thirty five or forty days. Then they will be scattered throughout Michigan streams." The State Board of Fish Commissioners held their regular quarterly meeting recently and spent considerable time bewailing the large expenditure of the past quarter for the purpose of obtaining eggs. This is due to the scarcity of fish, caused by the use of pound and gill nets. Under the state law every professional fisherman in Michigan is required to report to the Superintendent in Detroit once a year, giving the number of pounds in his season's catch and the average price per pound at which they were disposed. The last reports received were a unit in saying that this has been the worst season the fishermen have ever known. Bad weather is given as one reason for this, but the commissioners think the true reason is the scarcity of fish.

PROCEEDINGS

Of the Business Men of Charlevoix—Organization of an Association.

PREAMBLE.

WHEREAS, Comparison of ideas and methods and concert of action are necessary to the well being of any community, and

WHEREAS, We believe that a Business Men's Association will accomplish these objects; therefore

Resolved, that we, business men of Charlevoix and vicinity, duly assembled on December 16, 1886, do hereby organize ourselves into such an Association and adopt the constitution and by-laws following:

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I—NAME.

The name of this organization shall be the Charlevoix Business Men's Association.

ARTICLE II—OBJECTS.

The objects of this Association shall be to unite merchants and other reputable business men for reform, development of industries and work for the general good, and to promote, by all legitimate means, the social, moral and business interests of its members. Among the special objects sought to be obtained are the following:

1. Promoting kinder feelings toward honorable competitors and removing the inclination to berate and criminate neighbors in trade.

2. Greater care to secure good helpers and make and keep them worthy by a livlier interest in their efforts, habits and comforts.

3. Inspiring confidence between buyer and seller by doing business on legitimate principles.

4. Shorter hours for doing business in, and an honest endeavor to educate the buyer to make his purchases between 7 a. m. and 6 p. m., six days a week.

5. The proper observance of all national holidays and more frequent interval for rest and recreation.

6. Abolishing the tendency to indiscriminate credit and stimulating the selling of merchandise for ready pay.

7. Protection against inferior and adulterated goods, short weights, counts and measures, fictitious brands and labels, and misrepresentation in public and private.

8. Maintaining a collection department, for the collection of doubtful accounts; for receiving and imparting prompt information as to the standing of persons asking credit; and the black-listing of dead-beats who prey upon the trade.

9. Protection against unjust laws affecting business and a careful scrutiny of all legislation relating to the same.

10. Concerted action in fostering manufacturing and other enterprises; and in securing reductions in freight, express, and insurance rates, when exhorbitant.

11. To stimulate a determination to render the title "Business Man" a synonym for honor, firmness, probity, justice and high morals.

ARTICLE III—MEMBERSHIP.

Any firm or individual, doing an honorable business, may become a member of this Association on the two-thirds vote of the members present at any regular meeting, by paying to the secretary the sum of $1 membership fee, agreeing to pay 25 cents quarterly dues in advance, and any assessments which may be voted by the Association to meet expenses.

ARTICLE IV—OBLIGATION.

Every person or firm becoming a member of this Association shall be honorably bound to conform to the rules, regulations and by-laws.

ARTICLE V—NON-PAYMENT OF DUES.

Any member of this Association who shall neglect or refuse to pay his dues, or any assessment ordered by the Association, for three months after such sum becomes due, shall thereby forfeit his membership.

ARTICLE VI—OFFICERS.

The officers of this Association shall consist of a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, an Executive Committee of five members of which the President, Secretary and Treasurer shall be three, and a Business Committee of three members. These officers shall be elected annually by ballot and shall hold office until their successors are elected.

ARTICLE VII—DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Section 1—The President shall preside at all meetings, if present; in his absence, the vice-President.

Section 2—The Secretary shall receive all money due the Association from any source and pay the same to the Treasurer, taking his receipt therefor; keep a record of all meetings; conduct all correspondence; keep a list of all members in a book provided for the purpose and notify all committees of their appointment.

Section 3—The Treasurer shall receive all monies from the Secretary, giving his receipt therefor; pay all bills when approved by the executive committee and report the condition of the treasury at each regular meeting.

Section 4—The Executive Committee shall have charge of the collection department and the publication of the delinquent lists; shall provide rooms for the Association; audit all bills and examine the books and accounts of the secretary and treasurer previous to each annual meeting.

Section 5—It shall be the duty of the business committee to look after all matters pertaining to the growth and well being of Charlevoix, to use all possible inducements to secure the location of mills, factories and other improvements; and to endeavor to secure any needed concessions in freight, express and insurance rates.

ARTICLE VIII—COMPENSATION.

No compensation for service shall be paid any officer, except the secretary.

ARTICLE IX—MEETINGS.

Section 1—The annual meeting of the Association shall be held the * * * Section 2—The regular meetings of the Association shall be held on the * * * of each month. Special meetings shall be called by the president on the written request of five members.

ARTICLE X—ORDER OF BUSINESS.

1. Reading minutes of the last meeting.
2. Admission of members.
3. Reports of Committees.
4. Reading of correspondence.
5. Communications from State Association.
6. Communications from local Associations.
7. Unfinished business.
8. New business.
9. Election of officers and appointment of committees.
10. Report of treasurer.
11. Adjournment.

ARTICLE XII—BY-LAWS.

By-laws not in conflict with this constitution may be established for the government of the Association on the two-thirds vote of the members present at any session.

BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE I—QUORUM.

Five members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

ARTICLE I—EXPULSION.

Any member of this Association who shall be placed on the delinquent list shall stand expelled from the Association; and any member doing any act which tends to bring the Association into disrepute shall be expelled on the two-thirds vote of the members present at any regular meeting.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

Rule 1—The special aim of this Association is to facilitate the collection of doubtful accounts and other debts by fair and honorable methods, and to guard against the extending of credit to debtors found on investigation to be unworthy of it.

Rule 2—The Association emphatically asserts that it hopes to collect all debts due the members without publicity, and that it neither desires nor intends, in any instance, to permit its members to intentionally annoy or to persecute any person indebted to members of the Association.

Rule 3—That no injustice may be done to, or advantage taken of, any debtor, by any individual member of the Association, it shall be the duty of every member to send by mail a sealed circular letter, issued by the Association, to the debtor, setting forth these facts, to-wit: That the person named in said letter is indebted to the member of the firm therein named in the sum of $—, that the debtor is granted twenty days from date entered on said letter in which to pay the debt, or to satisfactorily arrange for its payment; that, if after the expiration of the twenty days thus granted, the debtor shall have failed to pay or failed to have arranged for payment, the member shall report him for the secretary, who shall also mail to the person so reported another circular letter, setting forth the fact that he is indebted to the member named and that unless he pays or arranges to pay, the amount within fifteen days he will be reported to the executive committee as a delinquent. The committee will then take his case under consideration, and, if they deem best, place his name on the dead-beat list.

Rule 4.—The second circular letter sent to the debtor shall be enclosed in the authorized envelope of the Association, on which shall printed, "If not called for in fifteen days return to Charlevoix Business Men's Association," and the non-return of any circular letter thus mailed, shall be deemed sufficient evidence that the said letter was received by the debtor addressed.

Rule 5.—Disputed accounts shall be investigated by the executive committee, whose report on the same shall be acted upon by the Association.

Rule 6—Any member trusting a man whose name appears on the delinquent list shall be fined $10.

Frederick Douglass says in a recent letter: "I see that Mr. Blaine is likely to be the Republican candidate in 1888. All I have to say is that whether he or another shall be chosen as our standard bearer, I see nothing better for us than to follow the Republican flag. We have not gained all that we had a right to expect under it, but under it we gained all that we have."

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

For Sale!

Prof. BICE'S [illegible] house and two beautiful lots [illegible] Park in the village of Charlevoix [illegible]
[illegible] GREEN, Charlevoix, May 4, 1886.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

[illegible]

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to speculate with money, [illegible] with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both borrowers and Depositors, and, believing that it furnishes it, [illegible] guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to invest their money by its keeping. Just liberally will trust its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow investment [illegible] pay as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.

Correspondence solicited.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible]

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible]

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible]

EDWARD H. GREEN, MARTHA [illegible], Mortgagee.

Offices To Rent

A number of desirable [illegible] to rent in the [illegible] block. Inquire of [illegible]

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by [illegible] Crouter.

A. J. McLEOD,

having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres. John Nicholls, Vice Pres. F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Batters,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of stockholders in all state banks as provided in Art. [illegible] of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, [illegible] stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of banking business extended [illegible] consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world [illegible]. Certificates of deposit [illegible] bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

NATIONAL PARK BANK, New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK, Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK, Grand Rapids.
[illegible] NAT. BANK, Detroit.

For Finest JOB WORK, Patronize The Sentinel.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of [illegible]

3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short time.

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS!

[illegible]

I will guarantee the best modeled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

[illegible]

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Pacs, And Everything

Usually kept in a country shoe store.

We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25. Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. D. Bradbeer,

PHOTOGRAPHER,

OFFICE OVER UPRIGHT & EMREY'S STORE.

I will make Cabinet Photographs, A SPECIALTY!

At Lowest Prices

Consistent with GOOD WORK.

McCABE'S MARKET

Is supplied with All Kinds Of MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's MILLINERY ROOMS,

[illegible]

[illegible]

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

[illegible]

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

[illegible]

SOCIETIES.

[illegible]

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

[illegible]

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,

R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

[illegible]

NEWMAN HOUSE,

W. C. Newman, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

[illegible]

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.

[illegible]

BROWN & CO.

PILE DRIVER.

[illegible]

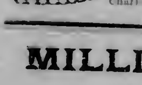
BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors [illegible]

DENTIST.



N. J. PERRY, Dentist. [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER

Have opened a store in the Inglesode Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their line stock of

FANCY GOODS!

Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,

FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,

FURNITURE AND JOBBING SHOP.

Antrim Street, CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

All classes of furniture [illegible]

Give me call.

Forty Acres

OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE County [illegible] to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address GAMBLE & CAMPBELL, Real Estate Agents [illegible]

Pan Zama Balm

[illegible]

PAN ZAMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

EDUCATIONAL.

[illegible]

County Supervision of Schools.

There is a growing belief among those most intimately acquainted with our Michigan schools, that in order to secure the best possible results under the present system, some form of county supervision of schools must be adopted. It is a matter of history, that the era of most rapid progress in our educational affairs, so far as concerns the common schools, was that of the County Superintendency. After a brief trial that law was repealed chiefly on the plea that it was expensive, though the personal influence of petty politicians had much to do with it. It was a long step backward that restored the Township system of supervision or rather, the township system of no[illegible].

Michigan still ranks high in the efficiency of her public schools; the most glaring defects, consist in the low grade of a large number of the country schools, a lack of the application of rational methods in teaching, and a want of uniformity in courses of study, growing out an utter ignorance on the part of the teachers of the relation of their work to that of the educational plan of the State.

These evils do not spring solely from a low grade of qualifications on the part of the common school teachers. Few states can boast as high order talent as is engaged in the primary schools of Michigan, and in proportion to their numbers few have so many who are trained in professional schools.

The defects mentioned are traceable almost wholly to the school district as the unit of control, and to the utter failure of intelligent supervision under the present system of township inspectors. Here, again, the failure is due in a large majority of cases to the fact the best men cannot make a township system of supervision effective, for many reasons: No man can accomplish good results in a few days taken from his business employments and devoted to a line of work which for the most part is new to him, and for which he can make but little special preparation. The influence of the most able inspector can scarcely be felt outside his own township and his best work is likely to be largely neutralized by the inefficiency or inactivity of his neighbors in other towns. The experience of our cities and larger towns proves that when men can be employed to supervise our country schools who can make that a business, who can afford, in fact, are compelled to keep abreast of the best ideas on educational matters, and by their close relation to the educational system of the State, can shape the educational affairs of a county, and put into them the life and vigor of an intelligent head, the talent now employed in our schools will become far more effective than it now is. The question of expense, if, indeed, the county system is more expensive, ought not to be raised. If ten per cent. greater expenditure in the matter of supervision, will increase the value of the work twenty-five per cent. upon all the vast investment made in common schools by our people, do not sound business principles demand that increase? It is better to pay a high price for a service well done, than to have the same service half done for nothing.

Report of Ironton schools for month ending Dec. 24: Whole number enrolled, 76; Grammar Department, 31; Primary Department, 45; Average number belonging, 71.5; Grammar Dep't, 31; Primary Dep't, 40.5; Average daily attendance, 59; Grammar Dep't, 27; Primary Dep't, 32.

The following is the result of the regular monthly examination: A Grade: Arthur Miller, 95; Grant Hammond, 96, Eddie Bird, 92. B Grade: Katie Maroney, 98; Mary Scholfen, 90; Nellie Hammond, 91; Carrie Box, 93, Charlie Box, 83; Frank Williams, 83; Walter Bird, 75; Lewis Hammond, 91; Martin Scholfen, 89; Orwin Parish, 98. C Grade: Bertie Waldron, 71; Peter Knudson, 81; Matthew Saunders, 75; Walter Williams, 87; Amos Box, 91; Bertie King, 87; Wilbur King, 82; Eddie Williams, 85; Frankie Box, 81; Martha Saunders, 78; Mary Boyer, 80; Hannah Maroney, 82; Mary Maroney, 82.

The term closed with a good interest. The programme prepared by the A grade did them credit. Several members of the school were detained at home by sickness and other unavoidable reasons during the latter part of the week, but were present to see the close. Christmas candy for the little folks was an interesting feature to them. One of the selections on the programme was a recitation by Daisy Allen, when she presented the Principal with a handsome photograph album and shaving cup in behalf of the pupils of the Grammar Department.

IN MORMONDOM.

Domestic Barbarities of the Polygamous System.

In about three weeks the wife returned and found the hired girl, who had been left in charge of the house, installed as wife Number Two. Naturally, there was quite a scene, and, as the husband disliked scenes, he divided the family, taking the new wife to a ranch that he owned, several miles from the city. He had not previously developed any fondness for country life, but he now spent all his time at the ranch, merely stopping at his former home for dinner when he came into town on business.

On one of these trips he found his wife hanging distractedly over the cradle of her baby, who was in the worst stages of malignant disorder. As the house was not in holiday trim, and no one had much time to devote to him, he thought he would make his visit brief, but as he turned to go out his wife said.

"You will surely stay with us to-night. The doctor says the baby cannot live till morning."

"Oh, it's not so bad as that, I hope; doctors don't know everything, and to me the little fellow seems to be getting better. Anyhow, I must go back. Jane would be frightened to death if I should leave her alone on the ranch. Besides, I have promised to take her to a dance to-night."

He went, and the wife and mother were left alone with the little sufferer. Jane was duly escorted to the dance, but while the husband was paying her this attention his youngest born was struggling in the agonies of death, and when morning came the mother sat alone beside a little waxen figure, whose tossings and moanings were ended forever. And yet the man who furnished this exhibition of utter heartlessness was no worse naturally than his fellows. Perhaps if he had been told, ten years before, that he would spend the night at a dance while his child lay dying, he would have said: "Is thy servant a dog, that he should do this thing?"

A friend of ours who had been a devoted wife for many years, and who had borne all manner of ill treatment from her husband and his second wife, was driven at length by the tortures she endured to attempt suicide. It happened that she took an overdose of the poison that she hoped would end her misery, and the attempt was unsuccessful. While she was at death's door her husband cursed and reviled her, and when she was so far recovered as to be able to totter about the house he told her with an oath that he wanted her to make sure work of it next time, and that he wished she was dead and out of the way.

"And yet," said the unhappy wife, "no woman ever had a kinder husband than he was during the first twelve years of our married life, and even after we came to Utah he was never unkind to me until he became infatuated with that girl. Then, as Mormonism not only gave him the privilege of marrying her, but made it his duty to do so, he began to regard me in the light of an obstacle to his happiness, though Heaven knows I proved how far I set his happiness above my own when I consented to the marriage."

"I believe my husband was one of the best men living when I married him." So said the first wife of a Mormon Apostle. "I know that he loved me above everything on earth, and nothing but the baleful influences of Mormonism could have made him what he is now. He was one of the few sincere fanatics who upheld Brigham Young's claims after the death of Joseph, and Young's word was the same to him as the voice of the Almighty. So when he was told to take another wife, he felt that he had received a command from Heaven that he dared not disobey. I know his sufferings were almost equal to mine on the dreadful night that preceded his marriage with the girls chosen for him (there were two of them), but having once surrendered his manhood and his conscience to the keeping of Brigham Young the downward course was easy. When he took additional wives (and he continued to do so long after his hair was gray), it cost him no struggles of mind, and no thought of my broken heart and blighted life marred his happiness; yet once he would have borne anything to save me an hour's pain."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

CASSIUS M. CLAY.

The Noted Kentuckian and His Only Ambition.

Cassius M. Clay, ex-minister to Russia, who announces his intention of re-entering public life without saying how he is going to do it, is now one of the handsomest old men in the United States. He is over six feet tall, has a large head, crowned with white hair, and a face still unwrinkled by time. Underneath his great eyebrows his eyes sparkle as brightly as they did before the war. Cassius M. Clay has been a prominent figure in Kentucky ever since he began to preach the abolition of slavery over forty years ago. He was a great athlete then, and rather delighted in the fact that in his stumping tours he carried his life in his hands. For a time he carried no weapons but those nature had given him. Later he carried a bowie knife, with which he disemboweled Silas Turner, one of the famous Turner brothers, who, after threatening his life for some time, attacked him as he was addressing a public meeting. After that he always laid two pistols on the table before him when he rose to speak, but he was never again attacked in the same way. He was a democrat then, and when the war broke out he naturally became a war democrat. After the war he became a republican. In the last ten years he became a democrat again, and in 1884 he became a Blaine republican. I think he is now a democrat, but whether he is or not he stands very little chance of ever holding a public office again. He is very fond of public speaking, however, and probably means to stump Kentucky when he talks about going back to public life.

Since his retirement from public life Clay has been living at his hospitable homestead near Richmond, in the blue-grass country, where he has a hundred acres of the best land in the world. His only companion is his natural son, born in Russia, now about 16 years old, and a very bright and accomplished boy, who has had the best possible education. Clay is a sort of a King Lear. Mrs. Clay has not lived with her husband since his return from Russia, nor have any of her children. She lives with her daughter Anna in Lexington, and her other children live on various pieces of Clay's estate given to them by him. They have had no connection with him since his wife left him. They tell a touching story out in Kentucky about his being in Richmond one day when his daughter Anna, who had quite grown out of his recollection, passed him and some young men with whom he was talking on the street. Clay was attracted by her beauty and her grace, and remarked upon them to the young men, adding: "There is something very familiar to me about her face. [illegible] I feel a[illegible]" [illegible] question, one of them said, "Why, Mr. Clay, that was your own daughter, Anna."—[illegible] Capital.

A drunken man in Norwich, Conn., recently fell down on the street and went to sleep. He was accompanied by a faithful dog that would not let any one touch his master. Two policemen were called, and although as brave as men average and as ingenious, they could devise no way to get their man. The "cops" struck at the dog with their clubs, but he was too good a dodger to be knocked out, and the exercise seemed to be fun to him but exhausting to the men. Finally some one suggested that the animal could be caught in a blanket. A horse blanket was procured and several men took hold of each end of it, and holding it over the dog dropped it on him. Twice he baffled them in the operation but the third time the faithful animal was captured and dragged off, and his master was taken to the police station.

Hard Times for Toilers in Canada.

Last year the cost of necessaries to an average family of the working classes in Ontario's towns and cities was: For food $216.42, rent, $74.48; fuel, $40.53, clothing, $86.39; total, $417.75.

The earnings of all members of an average working family amounted to $447.60 for the year, "so that $29.85 only was left for the almost endless petty requirements of every human household." From this small margin doctors' bills, medicines, church subscriptions, books, newspapers, the amusements that are almost as necessary as food to healthy human life, and the provision for old age that all prudent people try to make, had to be provided. Of course many working families earned more and many less than the average. "Of 1,095 wage earners with dependents, from whom returns were obtained last year, only 259 had a surplus, the average being $93.07, 410 came out even, and 254 closed the year with an average deficit of $56.74." That is to say, about nine out of every sixteen families compelled to live very frugally, saved a little, four out of sixteen saved nothing, and more than two out of sixteen came out of the struggle for existence with a load of debt.

Now, by the latest census returns it appears that the product of manufacturing industries is so divided that, after 6 per cent interest on capital and cost of plant has been allowed, and after the cost of material has been paid, less than half of the remainder goes to pay wages. In Canada about $23 of the net product goes to labor for $27 to capital, in the United States about $34 to labor for $37 to capital. Thus owners of capital, after receiving 6 per cent on their investment, get more than 50 cents of every dollar from sales. This seems a large share, considering the amount and quality of exertion done by employers and employed, respectfully.—Toronto Globe.

Theatrical note. Judge Duffy—"It is useless for you to say that you are innocent. You were caught in the act of pulling a silk handkerchief out of the pocket of a gentleman in front of you." Prisoner—"But, your honor, the piece that was being played on the stage was so sad that I was obliged to take the handkerchief to stanch my tears. I had no intention of stealing the handkerchief. I intended to return it as soon as the play was over." Judge—"Was the piece a comedy?" Prisoner—"It was, your honor." Judge—"An American comedy?" Prisoner—"It was, your honor." Judge—"No wonder you needed a handkerchief. You are discharged."—Texas Siftings.

MARVELOUS PRICES! BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

[illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, [illegible]
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. [illegible]
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, [illegible]
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, [illegible]
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, [illegible]
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, [illegible]
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. [illegible]
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. [illegible]
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, [illegible]
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. [illegible]
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. [illegible]
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, [illegible]
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, [illegible]
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, [illegible]
16. Sixteen Complete Stories [illegible]
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, [illegible]
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, [illegible]
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. [illegible]
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, [illegible]
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, [illegible]
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, [illegible]
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, [illegible]
24. 57 Popular Ballads. [illegible]
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway, [illegible]
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, [illegible]
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," [illegible]
28. Dark Days. A Novel. [illegible]
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, [illegible]
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, [illegible]
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, [illegible]
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, [illegible]
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, [illegible]
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. [illegible]
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, [illegible]
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, [illegible]
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, [illegible]
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, [illegible]
39. Robinson Crusoe. [illegible]
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. [illegible]
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, [illegible]
42. Gems of the Poets, [illegible]
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. [illegible]
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, [illegible]
45. Æsop's Fables. [illegible]

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

The Kalamazoo "DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

J. MILO EATON'S REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

[illegible]

Special Offer!

[illegible]

F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 8 Park Place, New York.

HOLIDAY PRESENTS!

In Hardware, Cutlery, and Notions.

WE SELL THE ATKINS SAWS AND Perfection Axes.

Job & Tin Work.

L. D. Bartholomew & Co.

Merry, Merry Christmas!

PREPARE FOR IT BY BUYING YOUR HOLIDAY GOODS OF PERRY WEED.

A Large and Beautiful New Line JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Gooos and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of

Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.

If you want to select nice Xmas Presents, just call and see what I can give you [illegible]

All classes of Repairing done quickly

C. H. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 19 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wishing to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS

Dealers in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller

Offer a Mammoth Stock OF BOOTS, SHOES and other FOOT WEAR,

—AT—

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,

At current rates of interest, on Approved Real Estate Security. School Bonds bought and sold.

MILEY & CHAPIN, Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

[illegible]

JAY L. PRICE.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX. MICHIGAN.

MME. PATTI is to be paid $150,000 for her six months' singing in this country.

THE last session of Congress was nine months long. The present one will be only three months.

CHIEF-JUSTICE WAITE, of the United States Supreme Court, is the first Chief Justice to reach the position of eligibility to retirement.

THE nineteenth century is marching on apace, yet no man has been able to discover how a woman can put thirty yards of cloth into a winter suit.

BROOKLYN is to have the biggest toboggan slide on the continent. It is to have a descent of two hundred feet with a level run of four hundred feet.

LAW officers of the crown at Dublin have rendered an opinion that indictments can rest against all persons conspiring to defraud landlords of rent due.

THE new two-dollar silver certificates are all ready for distribution. They are just twice as attractive as the one-dollar certificates, in the opinion of thrifty critics.

DURING the present year there have been seven embezzlements in Boston, which aggregated $1,293,000. That of William Gray, Jr., reached the sum of $400,000.

IN Washoe County, Nev., ranchers are still harvesting. They make hay there as well when the snow flies as while the sun shines. Alfalfa on the meadows is two feet high.

WOMEN are now employed as ticket agents at stations on the Staten Island (N. Y.) railroad. This century will go out seeing no post or occupation denied woman that she can adequately fill.

THE man who can eat one quail a day for a month for a sufficient consideration has started out on his annual round again. There are some nuisances that defy any plan for abating them.

PEOPLE who know something of John Mackay's operations in the mining market of San Francisco say that he squeezed $2,000,000 the other day out of speculators, who, in defiance of his advice, went "short" of his favorites.

THE design for the new two-cent postage stamp, to be put in circulation about January next, is said to be one of the handsomest specimens ever issued by the department. It represents an embossed head of George Washington in profile upon a blue-tinted background.

IN Campbell County, D. T., at the recent election, some of the voters did not like either of the candidates for district attorney, and as a prominent citizen possessed a very intelligent pointer dog, they voted for the dog. That popular animal only lacked three votes of being elected.

THE tract of land commonly called the "Oklahoma country" lies very nearly in the center of the Indian Territory, the principal portion being west of the ninety-sixth meridian and between the Red Fork of the Arkansas on the north, and the Canadian river on the south. It contains about 5,500,000 acres.

UNDER the new constitution of Florida the Senate consists of thirty-two and the House of Representatives of sixty-eight members, making one hundred in all. The Senators hold their offices for four years, but one-half are elected every two years. The members of the House hold their offices for two years.

REV. HOWARD CROSBY presided at a meeting in New York the other night which had for its object the establishment of coffee-houses, modeled after the London plan, as a counter attraction to the saloon. Figures were presented showing the financial success of similar projects, and the enterprise will soon be inaugurated.

THE year 1886 seems destined to go into history as the great strike year. The Commissioner of Labor Statistics for New York reports that up to the present time he has received information of 1,600 strikes in that State. His last annual report made mention of but 222, although there were some not reported. The record of other States would probably show a similar remarkable increase in the number of strikes.

ALPHONSO KING, of New York, walked one hundred yards on Niagara river the other day in a huge pair of tin shoes of his own invention, on a wager of $2,000. "King's shoes" are of tin, thirty-two inches long, eight inches wide, sloping at the top and nine inches deep. Each weigh thirty pounds. They are air-tight, and have in the middle an opening large enough to admit the feet of the wearer. At the bottom are a series of paddles which operate automatically as fins.

THE almanac for 1887 gives a few items of general interest: New Year's Day comes on Saturday, Washington's Birthday on Tuesday, St. Valentine's Day on Monday, Memorial Day on Monday, Fourth of July on Monday, Christmas on Sunday, Easter Sunday on April 10, Lent begins March 2. There will be four eclipses, two of the sun and two of the moon. One, February 8, visible as a partial eclipse in the United States. The others are not visible in the United States—annular eclipse of the sun, Feb. 23, and Aug. 19.

GRAND SLAUGHTER SALE at G. W. MILLER'S

I will make CHRISTMAS MERRY and NEW YEARS HAPPY for EVERYBODY, with the Lowest Prices you ever saw on Clothing!

Until Jan. 1st, I will sell all Goods at bona fide Cost or below. You will see, by giving me a call, that I am not advertising anything but what is straight. I am going to give you a Chance to Buy A

$25 SUIT FOR $18.50
$20 „ „ 16.
$14 „ „ 12.

A $24 SUIT FOR $17.50
An $18 „ „ 14.50
A $12 „ „ 10.00
An $8 „ „ 6.50

A $22 SUIT FOR $16.50.
A $16 „ „ 13.00.
A $10 „ „ 8.00.

Youths' Suits from $4 to $10. Childrens' Suits from $1.50 to $6.50 Childrens' OVERCOATS $2.50.

ALL OTHER GOODS AT PRICES THAT WILL SELL THEM. For CASH ONLY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.
CHARLEVOIX, DEC. 29, 1886.

MARINE GOSSIP

[illegible]

THIS SHIRT
THE FINEST In THE WORLD

For 89 Cts.
Worth $1.25.
Of F. W. CRAINE & CO.

And Now For The HOLIDAYS.

We have been preparing for them not for "30 Days" or any other fossilized racket, but genuine Stupendous Bargains which we have succeeded in getting for this event.

Buy Something Useful

Save money and be happy, be it a Cloak, Hood, Dress, Bolt of Cotton, or any of the many useful and beautiful articles to be found at our store.

We have an immense stock of Silk Handkerchiefs, Gents' Mufflers, and Scarfs. Also Ladies Linen and Silk Handkerchiefs for Holiday Gifts.

COME and see the beautiful Japanese Wares that we are showing

LADIES' WRAPS. We have 25 styles no two alike, to select from also Newmarkets. Misses and Children's Cloaks from $2 up. Come and see for we still live.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.
OFFER A SPECIAL

Reduction Sale Of
Dry Goods,
UNTIL JANUARY 1ST.

YOU WILL MISTAKE IF YOU BUY BEFORE LOOKING AT OUR STOCK AND PRICES. VALUE RECEIVED IS WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AND WE GUARANTEE PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST. LIGHT EXPENSES AND A CASH BUSINESS ENABLE US TO SELL AT VERY NARROW MARGINS. NO EXPENSIVE PARTNERSHIPS. NO SECOND-HAND GOODS.

Great Bargains in Winter Dress Goods, Flannels, Homespuns Tricots, Crepe Cloths, etc.
COTTON FLANNELS sacrificed to close.
MIXED SHIRTING FLANNELS, very cheap.
ACME WOOL FLANNELS at Factory Prices.

50 Cent Bargains:

The Best 50 Cent Wool Hose in town. Leggings in town. Jersey Glove in town.
The Best 50 Cent Toboggan Caps in town. Loop Mitt in town. Corset in town.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS:

Look at our new designs in Lamps & Lamp Goods. Patent extension Lamps from $2.00 up. Duplex Burners &c. Double Cone Burners for 75c. Lamp Shades, Burners and Chimneys. Tubular Lanterns with guards 75c.

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS always at the lowest prices.

WANTED! TIES, POSTS AND SHIPPING WOOD.
The Highest Market Prices Paid.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Special Sale!

We will invoice our stock about Jan. 1st, and before that date we wish to sell our Surplus Stock in GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
DRY GOODS,
CLOAKS,
DRESS GOODS,
CARPETS,
CLOTHING, Etc.

To do this we must give special inducements to customers. We have advertised special sales in some lines, but now advertise a

Grand special Sale!

From now until Jan. 1st, embracing all articles in the store, from Silks down to Prints.

A SACRIFICE SALE OF CLOAKS
From now until Jan. 1st.

We are bound to sell at some price and propose to undersell all competitors.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS!

By calling and examining our store you will find that most suitable presents can be purchased of us.

Hoping to receive a share of your patronage, we are Yours to sell goods,

Rosenthal & Son
on the corner.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO. 36 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1887. WHOLE NO. 893

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!
----HEADQUARTERS----
For Everything needed in the School Room, at
HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of
BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN
Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best, Our Prices the Lowest, Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.
Send it to your friends abroad.

A Choice Line of
FRESH GROCERIES,
OF EVERY VARIETY,
Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock
For your inspection in OPERA BLOCK by
R. J. COOPER.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

OUR FAMOUS
AXES, SAWS,
WEDGES,
Handles,
Steel Mauls,
Stoves, and
Stove Boards,
And all other Seasonable Hardware,
VERY CHEAP.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

Pine Lake Iron Co.
IRONTON, MICH.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
BRANCH STORE AT
HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

Local News.

[illegible]

CUTTING IN THE NEW YEAR.

CHRISTMAS HAS COME.

A RESIDUARY LEGATEE.

A Cup of Cold Water and a New Year's Present.

A CUP OF COLD WATER.

CHART AND COMPASS LOST.

A Case of Weak Knees.

The Trouble Not Ended.

POLITICAL POINTS.

REPENTED TOO LATE.

THE COMBINED

STEAM FURNITURE

—AND—

Agate Works,

CHARLEVOIX, - - - MICH.

The undersigned announces that he is prepared to take orders for

REPAIRING OR BUILDING

Furniture of all Kinds

ON SHORT NOTICE.

MY LAPIDARY

Is in first class shape for working or polishing all choice stones.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

CORNELIUS BUDD.

All Goods not called for within ninety days will be sold for charges. Charlevoix, Nov. 23, 1885.

Northern Michigan

Boiler Works.

Builder and Manufacturer of

Boilers, Heaters,

LARD TANKS, ETC.

OF ALL KINDS

SHEET IRON WORK

A SPECIALTY.

MARINE WORK

Given Special Attention

HENRY BARTH, Proprietor,

Charlevoix, Mich.

MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE & WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Only Line Running

TWO DAILY TRAINS

—BETWEEN—

Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago

The Only Line Running Sleeping Cars between Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago.

THE AIR LINE TO OSHKOSH.

TIME TABLE.

Full information regarding sales of fare, time of trains, etc., can be obtained on application to Station Agent, Wausau.

H. G. FLEITH, Agent, Wausau.
CHAS. V. McKINLAY, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FRANK E. WOOD'S

BATH AND BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day or evening. Oddfellow's Building.

FARMING LAND!

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

Michigan Lands

FOR SALE BY THE

G. R. & I. R. R. COMPANY.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix County.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple, elm and other wood, and are accessible to best markets by

WATER AND RAIL.

Not a Wilderness, by any Means.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have already been sold.

HUMPHREYS'

Manual of all Diseases, Mailed Free.

HOMEOPATHIC

SPECIFICS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO., 109 Fulton St. N.Y.

WM. J. STEVENSON,

VETERINARY HORSE-SHOER.

Interfering and crippled horses shod satisfactorily or no charge.

Repairing done promptly.

The Old Doctor

A Life Experience. Remarkable and quick cures. Trial Packages. Send stamp for sealed particulars. Address Dr. WARD & CO. Louisiana, Mo.

THE IOWA ROUTE

BURLINGTON CEDAR RAPIDS AND NORTHERN RY.

THE SHORT & POPULAR LINE

for all points in IOWA, MINNESOTA, DAKOTA, and the New Northwest. The only line making close connections with all important lines leading

NORTH, SOUTH, EAST or WEST.

SOLID TRAINS

WITH

PULLMAN SLEEPERS

ARE RUN BETWEEN

Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul

VIA THE

FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE,

AND BETWEEN

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul

VIA THE OLD ESTABLISHED AND POPULAR

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul Short Line

Dining Cars on all Albert Lea Route Trains.

Land Seekers' Round Trip Tickets

on sale at all prominent points to its Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota Land Points.

C. J. IVES. J. E. HANNEGAN,

NOW IS THE TIME

TO USE

JOHNSTON'S

SARSAPARILLA

FOR

LIVER COMPLAINT,

DYSPEPSIA,

AND FOR

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 20 years and has proved to be the best preparation in the Market for Sick Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Liver Complaint, Pimples on the Face, Dyspepsia, Piles, and all Diseases that arise from a disordered Liver or impure blood. Thousands of our best people take it and give it to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily. Those who use it once recommend it to others.

It is made from Yellow Dock, Honduras Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Stillingia, Dandelion, Sassafras, Wintergreen, and other well known valuable Roots and Herbs. It is strictly vegetable and cannot hurt the most delicate constitution. It is one of the best medicines in use for regulating the Bowels.

It is sold by all responsible druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six for five dollars. Sample bottles 50 cts. free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,

Detroit, Mich.

When you have tried all the Sarsaparillas and have been disappointed, try Johnston's.

SEXUAL Weakness & Lost Manhood quickly and positively cured. Send for book mailed FREE to all afflicted. Address, Hewlin Medical Co. Buffalo, N.Y.

JOB PRINTING

SUCH AS

Cards, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Posters,

AT THIS OFFICE

in the Neatest and Promptest Manner

THE GIANT OF MEDICINES.

The Most Effective and Popular Remedy Ever Discovered.

WHY IS IT SO EFFECTIVE IN SO MANY DIFFERENT DISEASES?

WHY one remedy can affect so many cases is this: The diseases have a common cause, and a remedy that can affect the cause, permanently cures all the diseases. Unlike any other organ in the body, the Kidney when diseased, may itself be free from pain, and the very fact that it is not painful leads many people to deny that it is diseased. But Medical Authorities agree that it can be far gone with disease and yet give forth no pain, because it has few if any nerves of sensation, and these are the only means of conveying the sense of pain; thus unconsciously diseased it affects the entire system. We do not open a watch to see if it is going or is in good order: We look at the hands, or note the accuracy of its time. So we need not open the kidney to see if it is diseased. We study the condition of the system. Now then, KIDNEY DISEASE produces Any of the following Common and Unsuspected

SYMPTOMS: Back ache; Unusual desire to urinate at night; Fluttering and pain in the heart; Tired Feelings; Unusual amount of Greasy froth in water; Irritated, hot and dry skin; Fickle Appetite; Scalding sensations; Acid Bitter taste, with furred tongue in the Morning; Headache and Neuralgia; Abundance of pale, or scanty flow of dark-colored water; Sour Stomach; Heartburn with Dyspepsia; Intense pain, upon sudden excitement, in the Small of the Back; Deposit of mucous some time after urination; Loss of Memory; Rheumatism, chills and fever and Pneumonia; Dropsical Swellings; Red or White brick dust, albumen and tube casts in the water; Constipation, alternating with Looseness; Short breath, Pleurisy and Bronchial affections; Yellowish pale skin, etc.

These are only the chief disorders or symptoms caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys. Now then, isn't it clear to you that the kidneys, being the cause of all these derangements, if they are restored to health by the great specific "Warner's SAFE Cure," the majority of the above ailments will disappear? There is NO MYSTERY ABOUT IT. It does cure many bad states of the system precisely as we have indicated. Now when the kidneys are diseased the albumen, the life property of the blood, escapes through their walls and passes away in the water, while the urea, the kidney poison, remains, and it is this kidney poison in the blood, that, circulating throughout the entire body, affects every organ, and produces all the above symptoms.

Therefore, we say confidently that "Warner's SAFE Cure" is THE MOST EFFECTIVE MEDICINE EVER DISCOVERED for the human race. It is the common remedy which, overcoming the common cause, removes the greatest possible number of evil effects from the system. Let us take a few of these diseases and how they are affected by kidney poison, and cured by

"WARNER'S SAFE CURE."

CONSUMPTION: In a great many cases Consumption is only the effect of a diseased condition of the system and not an original disease; if the kidneys are inactive and there is any natural weakness in the lungs, the kidney poison attacks their substance and eventually they waste away and are destroyed. Dip your finger in acid and it is burned. Wash the finger every day in acid and it soon becomes a festering sore and is eventually destroyed. The kidney poison acid in the blood has the same destructive effect upon the lungs: For this reason a person whose kidneys are ailing will have grave attacks of Pneumonia in the Spring of the year, Lung fevers, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, etc., at all seasons of the year. Rectify the action of the kidneys by "Warner's SAFE Cure."

IMPAIRED EYE-SIGHT:

OPIUM HABITS:

RHEUMATISM:

BLADDER DISORDERS:

"WARNER'S SAFE CURE."

CONGESTION:

FEMALE COMPLAINTS:

BLOOD DISORDERS:

STOMACH DISORDERS:

CONSTIPATION, PILES:

HEADACHES:

THESE ARE SCIENTIFIC FACTS:

ASK YOUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS WHAT THEY THINK OF

"WARNER'S SAFE CURE."

HOME AND FARM.

FOR FARM HANDS.

BREEDING CATTLE.

For twenty years Mrs. John Gemmell, Milroy Mifflin County, Pa., was paralyzed and unable to walk. She used St. Jacobs Oil and was cured.

"Have you ever seen a ghost, Pinkins?" "No, Snipple," was the spirited reply, "and I never expect to."

She wouldn't but he wooed, and finally they were both one.—Merchant Traveler.

"I HAVE BEEN AFFLICTED with an Affection of the Throat from childhood, caused by diphtheria, and have used various remedies, but have never found anything equal to BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES."—Rev. G. M. F. Hampton, Piketon, Ky. Price 25 cts.

A BOOK agent was shot in Texas the other day. Let us hear no more about the uncivilized West.—Boston Post.

Judging from the recent defalcations, this might be called "the age of steal."

A Lady's Unfortunate Experience.

Was that of one of our acquaintance who suffered from scrofula, a yellow complexion and distress of the stomach, for years before using Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which finally cured her.

AFTER all it is the bad child that gets the palm.

LIKE Oil Upon Troubled Waters is Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar upon a cold. Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

"Excuse the liberty I take," remarked the escaping convict.

Best, easiest to use and cheapest. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. By druggists. 50c.

THE home stretch trying to make both ends meet.—New Haven News.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Dec. 21.

ZERO DRIVING MUFF

PATENTED IN UNITED STATES AND CANADA

No More Suffering from Cold Fingers when Driving in Winter.

AWARDED MEDAL AMERICAN INSTITUTE. 1886.

The MUFF is made of fur, and is lined with LAMB'S WOOL, with a convenient handle and loop inside by which the reins are held firmly and securely, and when on the hands resembles an ordinary mitten. The handle is covered with felt which makes it soft and warm, and being stirrup shape does not cramp the hand, and gives the driver a stronger hold on the reins than any style of holder now in use.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

ZERO DRIVING MUFF CO., 104 West 11th Street, New York.

Holiday Music

—FOR—

HOLIDAY GIFTS.

CLASSICAL WORKS.

POPULAR COLLECTIONS.

GOOD READING IN ELEGANT BOOKS.

XMAS CANTATAS.

SEND FOR LISTS.

LYON & HEALY, CHICAGO.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

MASON & HAMLIN

UNRIVALED ORGANS

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

Boston, New York, Chicago.

THE NEW DEPARTURE DRUMS

LYON & HEALY, Chicago, Ill.

JONES HE PAYS the FREIGHT

$60.

JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

LANDS SEND FOR Publications, with Maps, describing MINNESOTA, NORTH DAKOTA, MONTANA, IDAHO, WASHINGTON and OREGON, the Free Government Lands and low Price Railroad Lands in the Northern Pacific Country. THE BEST AGRICULTURAL, GRAZING and TIMBER LANDS NOW OPEN TO SETTLERS. MAILED FREE. Address, CHAS. B. LAMBORN, Land Com. N. P. R. R., ST. PAUL, MINN.

Land for the Landless!

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

HIGHEST AWARDS OF MEDALS IN AMERICA AND EUROPE.

SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND,

Is a Positive Cure

For ALL of those Painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common among our Wives, Mothers, and Daughters.

The Woman's Sure Friend

Sold by Druggists. Price $1. per bottle. Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills cure constipation. 25c.

DO YOU HAVE THE ASTHMA?

T. POPHAM & CO. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.

GRIND your own Bone,

WILSON BROS., Easton, Pa.

ST. JACOBS OIL

LUMBAGO-LAME BACK.

AMAZING RESULTS.

Suffered 15 Years and Cured.

MRS. D. H. WADE.

Could not Rise and Cured.

WALTER HAYNES.

Severe Lumbago Cured.

C. C. SHAYNE

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

RED STAR COUGH CURE

FREE FROM OPIATES AND POISONS.

SAFE. SURE. PROMPT. 25 Cts.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

LADIES

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY, St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs

cures coughs, colds, pneumonia, whooping cough and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs leading to Consumption. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Illuminated books furnished free.

JOHN F. HENRY & Co., New York.

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS,

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

A LIMITED OFFER, GREAT CHANCE!

65 Cents

THE SETH THOMAS WATCH

Best Watch in America for the Price.

NINE IMPORTATIONS IN 1886.

CLYDESDALE and ENGLISH SHIRES.

GALBRAITH BROS., Breeders and Importers, JANESVILLE, WIS.

BOOK of SILOS, ENSILAGE,

CHEAP HOMES, &c.

TEMPLE SOLOMON'S

CATARRH Can Be Cured!

PENSION CLAIMS

MILO B. STEVENS & CO.

WE WANT YOU!

WANTED Reliable SALESMEN

DETECTIVES

AGENTS WANTED

RUPTURE

OPIUM HABIT

AGENTS WANTED

HOME STUDY.

FARMS

HAIR

A Limb Lost!

TELEGRAPHY

$5

A. N. K.—A 1114

Look Out

for the

Youth's Companion

$1500 Prize Serial

"BLIND BROTHER."

Two Millions of People Will Read It.

Address PERRY MASON & CO., 41 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1868.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 5, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Chicago Journal: Just now the Knights seem to be having more trouble with Labor than with Capital.

Cleveland Leader: The strength and stability of our institutions are shown by the wonderful manner in which they withstand the strain of the administration.

Nine papers out of ten the country over, irrespective of politics, have commended Mr. Blaine for refusing to shake hands with Senator Edmunds. "The hand of Douglass is his own," on this side of the sea.

Boston Herald: A lecturer is going around the country asking in places, "Where is the Ideal Wife?" We don't want to know, we don't want to know. What a man wants is a real wife, and doesn't always get her.

Nearly 400,000 immigrants have come to the United States this year. There still seems to be a popular impression abroad that this is a good country to live in, notwithstanding the constant efforts of the Free Traders to represent it as the worst tax and tyranny ridden country in the world.

New York Sun: A something, apparently intermediate between man and monkey, now ornaments a Bowery museum. This Something is believed to be a primeval M—gw—mp. The modern M—gw—mp, it will be remembered, has long ears, and he is arboreal in his habits. That is, he's always up a tree.

Minneapolis Tribune: Minneapolis still rules the world in wheat and flour. In 1885 the amount of wheat received here exceed 32,000,000 bushels. This year the receipts will reach 34,000,000. The flour ground reaches within an ace of 6,000,000 barrels, while more than 6,000,000 bushels of wheat have been shipped east.

The discovery of gold in Indian Territory will almost certainly expose that region to another raid by the land-pirates and claim-jumpers. The rascals will never give the occupants any rest until this country gets a Secretary of War who has a policy, and can distinguish between a public emergency and a barrel of mess pork.

The Buffalo Express says: "High and limited licenses are the most reasonable, because the most practicable, methods of dealing with the liquor question as it now presents itself." Even so. There is more temperance reform in a single high license or tax law like what we have in Michigan than in all the votes ever cast by the separate party of Prohibitionists.

A farmer in Cherokee county, Georgia, whose hogs were dying off with what was supposed to be cholera, adopted the plan of starving it out of them. He did not feed or water his hogs for seventeen days, at the end of which time the last symptom of the disease had disappeared. The fact that the treatment saves corn will make some farmers wish their hogs were attacked.

The daughter of Jackson, the man who murdered Col. Ellsworth at Alexandria, having been provided for, the administration is called upon to look after other favorites of the winning side in the last campaign. One Dr. Dabney, who is said to have been a very efficient dead-line guard at Andersonville, has been appointed to the office of pension examiner in Kansas. There is a kick, however, and the doctor may have to give in, for a few years more, to union soldiers.

Lansing Republican, aiming straight at the target: Quite a number of Michigan papers are exhibiting symptoms of being stirred up because a Prohibitionist minister of Hudson has challenged any one to debate with him the proposition: "That no intelligent Christian can consistently support either the Democratic or Republican parties." To be sure this proposition on the part of the Hudson minister sounds rather bigoted and uncharitable, but it is absolutely mildness compared with the recent rasping assertion of a noted Massachusetts Prohibition preacher, who is reported as saying in a public sermon that: "If Christ should revisit the earth in these days and countenance the drinking of wine as he did in those days, he couldn't become a member of my church with my consent." Such violent expressions in either politics or religion carry with them in part their own antidote. They shock sensible and kindly disposed people, and repel those who do not take pleasure in believing that all their neighbors are totally depraved. The walls of either the moral or political Zion are not built up of blocks of blue vitriol.

EDUCATIONAL

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. R. M. Fuss, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Comparison of City and District Schools.

[Communicated.]

Why are our district schools doing so much more inferior work than our village and city schools?

To any observer of school work the above question must have often presented itself. Generally speaking, the teachers found in our district schools are not inferior in educational nor professional training to those in our village or city schools in grades as high as Grammar Departments. The expense per capita in our country schools for 8 months school in the year is greater than the expense in village or city schools for 10 months in the year.

It is a painful fact that pupils who have attended any of our district schools from the time they were 5 years old until they were 16, and suppose themselves to have mastered all or most of the common branches, and have reason to deem themselves capable of entering a High school and taking a finishing or preparatory course there, very often meet with sore disappointments and discouragements. That which they supposed they knew, they only half knew and instead of having a well-balanced educational training in the common branches they are advanced in only a part, usually Arithmetic and Geography, and consequently have to submit to a grading so far below where they would be, that they often give up and abandon what might have been a fair prospect with proper early training.

Nor is this all; nothing but imperfect development of mind can arise from this irregular advancement in the branches, and consequently the common school pupil spends 10 years of school life in accomplishing what is done in 6 years or less in our graded schools; and this system, or want of system, sends hundreds of imperfectly trained intellects into the world every year, after they have fully paid the price of a good common school education. Hence it is evident that there is an "existing something" in our city schools not found in our district schools.

The next question which presents itself then, is, what is this something, and why is it found in one and not in the other? To the first part of the question we answer, system; system in the pursuit of knowledge and mind development, a specific training of the mind in each grade with the necessary branches to insure the drawing out and strengthening of the increased mental powers of the child. Grade means step, and as soon as one step is safely and surely taken another is commenced in the school system of our villages and cities. In district schools it is not so. Pupils are hurried promiscuously through lesson after lesson, and though the lessons may be well taught, the want of a system in the pursuit of the end brings about, among others, the above mentioned apparent and baleful results.

Now, why are these conditions found in the one and not in the other? The work of our village and city school boards is one of much importance and responsibility and therefore receives due consideration and plans, systems and methods are investigated and discussed with a view to getting the most possible good from the outlay of money, that is, getting as much good as possible for every dollar expended. With district school boards it is different. Their resposibilities are lighter and therefore they often become careless in the performance of actual duties. It has now become a well settled principle with many of our district boards to consider their duties done when they have provided for warming and cleaning the school building and hired a teacher. Each teacher pursues a course of his own and often a new teacher spends a term in trying to undo the work done by a predecessor, hence, chaos ensues and who can wonder that every district is paying for more education every year than it gets.

The next question to present itself is: How is this condition of things to be improved. It has been successfully done in other states by the adoption of the Township system mentioned in this column Dec. 22. The advantage of such a system would be all that are claimed for it in that issue and besides, with a Township board as a unit, the responsibility would be greater and the very fact of so much being required would necessitate the use of a system, and any system, however poor, could not but be better than none at all. By such means, each district would have the advantage of a graded system and every Township could have a High school grade and it is our opinion that the cost of educating in districts would be no greater than in villages and cities.

The next regular monthly meeting of the Charlevoix Teachers will be held at the High school room on Monday evening, next. The subject of General Exercises will be discussed; most of the teachers will take part. The meeting is public. Patrons invited.

Northern Michigan News.

Daniel Flanagin, the new Atwood postmaster, has removed the post-office to his store.

W. R. Round, of East Jordan, has been at work for the Elk Rapids Iron Co. for some time in the casting house.

One of the Petoskey Indian hunters, Frank Tabasash, recently returned from the north with a sleigh load of dead deer.

The Elk Rapids furnace has gone out of blast for repairs, which will be quite extensive and will require two or three months to complete.

St. Ignace and the Sault are fighting over the respective merits of the ferry transfer at the straits and the new bridge over St. Mary's river in the line of a direct route east.

At the rate the Indian children of Cross Village are leaving for the Catholic school at Harbor Springs, that town will be depopulated, as far as the children are concerned, in a month.

The Progress states that it is reported that a syndicate has purchased the Dr. Pierce patents on the Chemical Works for $50,000, giving the Bangor Chemical Company the right to manufacture in Antrim county.

Mrs. M. W. Hubert, mother of the wife of the Rev. H. E. Davis, presbyterian pastor at Petoskey, while making a bed recently, and in the apparent enjoyment of her usual health, was stricken with apoplexy and died in a few hours.

Richard Cardy, of Bear Creek township (Petoskey), was taken to the asylum for insane at Traverse City, by Sheriff Pratt on Monday. Mr. Pratt reports that young Tornblom who was sent to the asylum from here some weeks ago, is rapidly recovering.—Democrat.

At a meeting of the officials of the G. R. & I. and M. C. R. R. and the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company, it was decided to erect a 200 room hotel at Mackinac Island, costing $100,000, to be ready next season. Each company bears an equal share of the expense. The details are now being perfected for the scheme.

Petoskey Democrat: A rumor is afloat to the effect, that certain enterprising business men of Mancelona are about to make a strong effort to induce the Michigan Central to build a branch from Crawford to Mancelona. If this was accomplished the road would undoubtedly be extended on to Charlevoix, making almost a bee line from Charlevoix to Bay City. We cannot vouch for the truthfulness of this report, but of one thing we are satisfied, if the donation of land for a depot and a rich bonus besides will have any inducement whatever, Mancelona will cheerfully give both. The extension of the road to Charlevoix would not injure Mancelona a particle, but would on the other hand be a great benefit by giving them a direct outlet to the lake and will unite Mancelona and Charlevoix in a strong effort to procure the road. Will our people take warning?

Sarah Walker, an attractive and intelligent young lady of Banks, died at Wm. Medill's, in that township, recently, from the effects of an over dose of morphine. In connection with her death the following facts were given to the Bellaire Breeze: Sarah had an elder married sister, who went to work out and left a baby with her mother. Gossipers circulated the story that the baby belonged to Sarah, who was unmarried. Sarah was greatly grieved on account of the story, and had many crying spells. Saturday evening she took some morphine while others were present. A young man to whom she was engaged also called and had a talk with her. He does not state what their conversation was about. Late at night it was discovered that she was very sick, and after some delay physicians were summoned, but could do nothing for her, and she passed away. Our informant thinks the cruel stories circulated about her were instrumental in causing her death.

James McMillan, of Detroit, reports that after five years of hard work, arrangements have been completed by which a number of roads will center at St. Ignace, and the Straits of Mackinaw be crossed by solid trains from or bound to the northwest. This means a direct air-line route between the east and the northwest, and the side tracking of Chicago, with all its railroad facilities and gigantic business monopolies, and a consequent large increase of Detroit business and wealth. The Michigan Central road is prominent in the combination: an immense transfer steamer is to be built, and certain railroad extensions provided for—the whole at a cost of ten million dollars. The development of these gigantic plans, which now seem assured, will be watched with intense eagerness by all lovers of Michigan and admirers of the wonderfully great movements of the age, and we of "Michigan, my Michigan," can boast as we have not boasted before.—Chippewa Co. News.

"St. Ignace wants a business men's organization, a large hotel, a bridge across the straits, or a flying machine, and the earth. "Soo" Democrat.

The balance of the Hannah, Lay & Co. pine standing in Grand Traverse county tributary to the Boardman river, is valued, with the mill and other mill property at $[illegible]. Mr. Torrent, the recent purchaser, has expected to log and manufacture this himself and has already three camps in operation, being prepared to put in from 15 to 20 millions this present season. But there is a prospect that this entire tract may be sold, as negotiations are now under way, with some three firms trying to get possession of the property.

Petoskey Record: The State Hatchery at Petoskey, under the careful superintendence of Mr. A. W. Marks, is now in full operation, and more than 22 million of white fish eggs are kept tumbling over each other in the long ranks of tall hatching jars. Mr. Marks reports that all of the four hatching houses owned by the state are running to their full capacity this winter and the output of fry in the spring for planting will be larger than ever before. During the summer months Mr. Marks was engaged in making surveys, and careful examination of the lakes of southern Michigan in the interest of the state fish commission.

The contract has been let for building the mammoth transfer steamer which is to do duty between St. Ignace and Mackinac City. Her length will be 280 feet, 27 feet in the hold. Her stern wheel will be 11 ft., and the forward one 12 feet; carrying capacity, 24 cars. She is to cost $100,000 and will be ready for service next June. Her speed in clear water will be 18 miles an hour. Her hull will be of steel. This latter feature, the Watchman thinks, is a mistake. It says: We remember the fate of the steamer Michigan, three years ago, on Lake Michigan. The Algomah was caught in the ice in the fall of 1885, rolled square over on her side. It was on the 9th day before she could move. Had she been of iron or steel she would have suffered the fate of the Michigan. Oak is more durable for breaking ice than iron or steel. This mammoth new boat will also have a broad and deep sale, which, if the ice ever gets a grip on it will have to be of immense strength to stand the pressure. The architect who modeled the queen of ice-breakers (the Algomah) shaped her so that a cake of ice commenced to glance downward as soon as it struck her bottom.

A. J. McLEOD,

having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid
FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL $25,000
SURPLUS 2,000

The liability of stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 8174 Sec. 49 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS.
National Park Bank - - - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - - - Chicago.
Nat. City Bank - - - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - - - Detroit.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The

Sentinel.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

In effect Sunday, [illegible] 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central standard time.)

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.		No.	No. 8	No. 6
Mackinaw City	Lv	7 15 a m	9 [illegible] p m
Petoskey		8 [illegible]	10 [illegible]
Boyne Falls		9 10	[illegible]
Mancelona		10 18	[illegible]
Walton Junc		11 [illegible]	1 [illegible]	5 [illegible] p m
Cadillac	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	2 [illegible]	6 [illegible]
La Roy		[illegible]	[illegible]	7 07
Reed City	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	7 20	[illegible]
Big Rapids		[illegible]	8 11	[illegible]
Stanwood		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Howard City		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
D. G. H. & M. Cross		4 40	10 15	10 [illegible]
Grand Rapids	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	10 [illegible]	10 50
Plainwell		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Kalamazoo	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	7 10	[illegible]
Sturgis		[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft Wayne	Ar / Lv	12 [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Richmond		4 30	[illegible]
Cincinnati	Ar	7 30	[illegible]

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.				No. 7
Cincinnati, leave		7 [illegible] a m	7 [illegible] p m
Richmond		10 [illegible]	10 [illegible]
Ft Wayne	Ar / Lv	2 10	[illegible]
Sturgis		[illegible]	[illegible]
Kalamazoo	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plainwell		6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids	Ar / Lv	7 30	[illegible]
D. G. H. & M. Cross		[illegible]	[illegible]
Howard City		[illegible]	[illegible]
Stanwood		[illegible]	[illegible]
Big Rapids		[illegible]	[illegible]
Reed City	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	7 40
La Roy		[illegible]	[illegible]
Cadillac	Ar / Lv	[illegible]	[illegible]
Walton Junc		4 48	10 25
Mancelona		6 16	11 [illegible]
Boyne Falls		7 11	12 52
Petoskey		7 [illegible]	1 [illegible]
Mackinaw City		[illegible]	[illegible]

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass Agent.

Bank of
Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and [illegible].

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly, that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors, and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore, [illegible].

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment notes when desired, paying a large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Profitable employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank.

Investment Notes,

Now earning five per cent yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters
& Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames
made to order.

All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS &
SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty
also contracting
and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix.

The Curtis & Co Manufacturing Company, plaintiff, Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, defendants. In Attachment.

Notice is hereby given that on the [illegible] day of November, A. D. 1886, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of the Curtis & Co. Manufacturing Company, [illegible] ... [illegible] ... December, A. D. 1886.

Dated this [illegible] day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix.

John Blankinton and Patrick Cudahy vs. Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey. In Attachment.

Notice is hereby given that on the [illegible] day of November, A. D. 1886, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of John Plankinton and Patrick Cudahy, comprising the firm of John Plankinton & Co., of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the above named plaintiffs against the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys and effects of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, comprising the firm of Upright & Emrey of Charlevoix, Michigan, the defendants above named for the sum of Two Hundred Thirty three and [illegible] Dollars ($[illegible]), which said writ was returnable on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix.

Moses D. Wells, H. J. Macfarland and H. K. Wells, plaintiffs vs. Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, defendants. In Attachment.

Notice is hereby given that on the 26th day of November A. D. 1886 a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of Moses D. Wells, H. J. Macfarland and H. K. Wells, comprising the firm of M. D. Wells & Co. of Chicago, Illinois, the above named plaintiffs against the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys and effects of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, comprising the firm of Upright & Emrey of Charlevoix, Michigan, the defendants above named, for the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred Fifty two and Thirty three one hundredths dollars ($1,652.33) which said writ was returnable on the 7th day of December A. D. 1886.

Dated this [illegible] day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Chancery Sale.

[illegible], Complainant, vs August [illegible], Defendant.

State of Michigan, [illegible] the Thirteenth Judicial circuit, in Chancery. In the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery. [illegible] ... to be published within twenty days from this date in the CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL, a newspaper printed in said County of Charlevoix ... [illegible]

Dated this [illegible] day of December, A. D. 1886.

FRANK L. FOOTE,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.

A true copy attest.
SAMUEL R. THATCHER, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage dated the [illegible] day of October, 188[illegible], executed by Nicholas M. [illegible] to the John Wilkinson Company, a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, of Chicago, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, Michigan, October 30th, 188[illegible], in Liber [illegible] of Mortgages on page [illegible] ... [illegible] ... on the first day of February, A. D. 1887.

Dated this 1st day of November, A. D. 1886.

THE JOHN WILKINSON COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
FRED W. MAYNE,
Atty for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a mortgage made by Benjamin Walker, Benjamin [illegible] ... [illegible] ... on Friday, the [illegible] day of March, 1887, at [illegible] o'clock [illegible] ... [illegible]

Dated December 7th, 1886.

DAVID CARPENTER, Mortgagee.
DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Adelbert R. Upright and Amelia R. Upright, his wife, of Charlevoix, [illegible] ... [illegible] ... notice is hereby given that on Thursday the Twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1887, at one o'clock in the afternoon I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, now situated in the Village of Boyne City, Township of Evangeline, county of Charlevoix, and state of Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for Charlevoix county is holden), the premises described in said mortgage ... [illegible] ... in the village of Charlevoix in the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan ... [illegible]

Dated November 17th, A. D. 1886.

MARTHA J. AYERS,
Mortgagee.
EDWARD H. GREEN,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the See Block. Inquire of H. See. 11tf.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

For Sale!

Prof. RICE'S nicely located House and two beautiful lots on Clinton street near the Park in the village of Charlevoix, are now for sale.

Enquire of H. M. RICE, Alpena, Mich., or E. H. GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich.
May 4, 1886. 11

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers and Wholesale and Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for customers are sufficient evidence of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best model, easiest rowing and best sailing craft in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS
—AND—
SHOES,

which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.

We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25. Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. D. Bradbeer,

PHOTOGRAPHER,

OFFICE OVER
UPRIGHT & EMREY'S STORE.

I will make Cabinet Photographs,

A SPECIALTY!

At Lowest Prices

Consistent with

GOOD WORK.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $2.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of
Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

F[illegible], Attorney at law, [illegible] Mich.

J. M[illegible], Attorney at law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GEIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Butters' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH H. CLARK, Attorney at law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PALTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R. [illegible] Post [illegible], meets [illegible] Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. [illegible] Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over P. O. office.

I. O. O. F.—[illegible] Lodge No. 263, meets second and Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—[illegible] Tent No. [illegible] meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' Hall.

L. O. T. M.—[illegible] Hive No. [illegible], meets Saturday [illegible] before full moon, in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. [illegible], R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 16, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first [illegible] of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the [illegible] the months of [illegible] during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Library Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Dyton See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—[illegible] Strang.
Financial Secretary—H. [illegible].
Treasurer—[illegible] Mason.
Executive Committee—[illegible] Mills, Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and L. E. [illegible].
Correspondence Committee—H. Lee [illegible], W. A. Brown and [illegible].
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, H. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Gordon.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most [illegible] town in the whole Pine Lake Region will [illegible] address the corresponding committee. [illegible] opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids Stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections [illegible].

NEWMAN HOUSE,
W. C. Newman, Prop'r
Charlevoix, - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central location.

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.

Drafts on New York, Chicago, Detroit and Grand Rapids. Bank Remittances of Post [illegible] to any person in Europe. Loans and Discounts on first mortgages on Real Estate. Notes and Steamship Tickets to and from any place in Europe.

BROWN & CO.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and work done at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. S. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, [illegible] Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. [illegible], Surveyor and Engineer, Charlevoix, Mich. Deputy County Surveyor Charlevoix county.

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weir's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY
—AND—
FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH &
Miss ANNIE COOPER

Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of

FANCY GOODS!

Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP.
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Give me call.

Forty Acres

OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE County, close to North Adams village, to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address

GAMBLE & CAMPBELL,
41 Real Estate Agents, Hillsdale, Mich.

Pan Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Troubles. [illegible] is sent per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For particulars and testimonials, address,

PAN ZAMA MED. CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

WHITE WOMEN IN AFRICA.

European Ladies who are Pushing Into the Depths of the Dark Continent.

Quite a number of white men who are now in Central Africa have followed the advice of the celebrated explorer, Dr. Barth, who [illegible] years ago explored the [illegible] that the traveler in Africa should take his wife with him. He said the natives did not understand how a man could live without a partner, and that they would hold him in greater respect if he was accompanied by his wife. Dr. Barth added that the people he met south of the Sahara had nothing against him except that he was a bachelor.

Dr. Livingstone's wife shared the privations and dangers of some of his travels, and it was while they were making a long journey together that she died and was buried on the banks of the Zambesi. It is only recently, however, that white women have begun to accompany their husbands into the depths of Central Africa.

If the young wife of Dr. Holub, the Austrian traveler, survives their great undertaking she will have made a longer journey into Africa than most explorers. Nearly two years ago this brave young couple started from South Africa, intending to explore the Upper Zambesi and Congo Valleys and to go home, if possible, by way of the great lakes and the Nile. After Dr. Holub returned to Austria, a few years ago, having earned a place in the first rank of African travelers by his seven years of work in the Zambesi region, he married the attractive and gifted young lady who is now wandering with him among savage tribes. The entreaties of her friends could not turn her from her purpose to accompany her husband in his new explorations. About $30,000 was raised to buy their equipment, and when last heard from, two months ago, they and their band of porters were plunging into almost wholly unknown regions of the Upper Zambesi. Mrs. Holub was in excellent health, but her husband had suffered to some extent from fever.

Last spring Lieut. Valcke returned to Europe for a vacation, after serving for three years on the Upper Congo. Soon after his return he married a fair Belgian, and two months ago he and his bride started for the Congo, where he has re-enlisted in the service of the Free State. At last accounts they were at Stanley Pool in good health, and were about to start for Stanley Falls, 1,200 miles from the sea, where they will reside.

One of the most extensive travelers on the Congo is the wife of the missionary Grenfell, who, with her child, accompanied Mr. Grenfell on some of his long journeys, during which he pushed his little steamer over 3,000 miles of the navigable waters of the Congo and its affluents.

On an island in Lake Tanganyika, not far from Ujiji where Stanley found Livingstone sick and almost destitute, live Mr. and Mrs. Hore, who are among the pioneer missionaries of the lake region. The unhealthiness of the mainland has driven them to this island, where they have a pretty mission station, and where Lieut. Gleerup, on his trip across the continent this year, enjoyed the hospitalities of a white lady in Central Africa.

A carpenter named Burgslag, who is stationed at Luluaburg, far up the Kassai affluent of the Congo, where he has very successfully opened a plantation on which he has raised big crops of rice, corn, sugar-cane, manioc, and European vegetables, has expressed the wish, at the end of his term of service, to bring his wife and children, now in Germany, to Luluaburg, and devote himself to his plantation and cattle-raising. Two other employes of the Congo State, Van der Felsen, the captain of one of the steamers, and Schneider, a gunmaker, whose term of service has expired, have petitioned the government for permission to settle on the Sankuru River to open plantations and raise cattle.—New York Sun.

Growth of Chicago.

What a city Chicago is growing to be! Here are some of the items culled from Mayor Harrison's last annual message:

The bonded debt is $12,695,500. The police department cost $1,079,875 for the year, the fire department $717,636, and the schools $2,062,808. With the improvements in progress at the Water-Works a capacity of 154,900,000 gallons per day will be reached. The buildings annually erected average fifteen miles in frontage. The death-rate of 18.76 per 1,000 is the lowest of any large city. There are eighteen patrol wagons, twenty police stations, five police courts, and 1,032 members of the force.

A city that builds houses of more than fifteen miles frontage annually and pays over $2,000,000 to educate its children is a good deal of a place. It is less than forty years since that city was only a hamlet, and once since then its business portion has all been destroyed by fire. It is a miracle which could not have been performed in 200 years before the invention of the steam-engine. But the locomotive and steamboat have not done it all. The men of Chicago, like the engines, are high pressure, and their safety-valves are set at 160 pounds. They are all working together, too, and on no theme are they so unanimous as that people who do not live in Chicago deserve the pity and commiseration of the world. They could not help but make a great city.—Salt Lake Tribune.

The autograph bore, says the Boston Journal, is a prominent person at large meetings and conventions. Usually the collector is a woman of most sociable disposition, whose designs would not be suspected from her innocent manner, but after a lively and agreeable conversation she surprises her victim by the demand for an autograph and will not be refused. A prominent clergyman of this city was recently conversing with a young woman of apparent culture and refinement when suddenly she pulled from her pocket a small book and asked if he would oblige her with six autographs! It appeared that she had undertaken the duty of collecting for her five dearest friends.

Polar Idiocy.

It makes one sad to see how very little wiser the new world is than the old. Here are the Australians arranging an expedition in search of the South Pole. Now suppose that they discover the South Pole and hoist the Union Jack on it, or otherwise take it under their protection, they know as well as I do that not a soul on the globe will be any the better for the achievement. From what I can hear the scenery of that part is highly uninteresting, and the commercial value of the country nil. But the Australians have seen ourselves and the Americans fooling away lives and money at one end of the globe, so they must needs start a record of their own at the other.—London Truth.

THE USE OF TOBACCO.

A Good Deal May Be Said Upon Both Sides of the Question.

The use of tobacco is not such a horrible thing if it is kept within bounds. It might almost be said to be beneficial. There is no good reason why its use should not be moderate.

Let us see what the medical books say about the effects of tobacco. The first thing that strikes one is that tobacco has little or no effect upon the brain. Smokers generally suppose that it soothes the brain, and fanatics say it stupefies. However, it does neither. On the nervous system its action is upon the part which is under the control of the spinal cord. It is soothing and stupefying, but not to the brain. Everything that in moderation is soothing is stupefying in excess; it is only a matter of quantity.

The first effect of tobacco when smoked is that it depresses the heart's action, and this may produce an irritated condition of this organ, known as "tobacco heart." Another is that it retards development and should, therefore, never be used by youths.

Those who chew the weed get the worst of the bargain for this reason. There is always going on in the body a system of waste and repair. The waste is carried away by the natural channels and perspiration. Those who chew stimulate the salivary glands to such activity that some of the work of the kidneys is actually performed by these glands, a thought which, to say the least, is not pleasant.

On the other hand, tobacco is an aid to digestion. It causes the coats of the intestines to contract and improves their tone. Smokers daily experience this when, after a meal, if they should feel uncomfortable, a cigar soon brings about a feeling of comfort and satisfaction.

But here again comes in the matter of excess. Nicotine is a nearly colorless fluid which is reduced to crystals with difficulty. It has a strong odor of tobacco, a burning taste, and is extremely poisonous. A half ounce of tobacco is said to contain enough nicotine to prove fatal. To be sure, smokers only get a small portion of this into their systems, but it is this poison which affects those who smoke to excess or those who are growing, are nervous, or have a tendency to heart-disease. Such should never smoke at all.

There are so many instances of men and women who have been habitual tobacco users who have lived to unusual ages that the precise amount of damage done by the fragrant weed is difficult to determine.

As a medicine tobacco was used in former years to a considerable extent, but more recently it has fallen into disuse because of the large number of deaths resulting from its internal administration. It is a useful remedy for local application, as it relaxes spasms and alleviates pain, but there are many remedies which do better and are not so dangerous. It is sometimes used as a remedy in poisoning by strychnine, as its action is directly opposed to that of strychnine, and it is also used in lockjaw. For poisoning by tobacco alcohol is a good remedy, which is the reason men can smoke so much while drinking alcoholic beverages. As a poison nicotine is so virulent that death ensues almost instantly. A case is reported of a man who committed suicide by taking an unknown amount. He fell immediately to the floor, sighed deeply, and inside of three minutes was dead.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

City editor, to new reporter: "Well, sir, have you found out anything as to the improved business outlook? We shall want that article to-morrow." Reporter—"Yes, sir; I have learned something very encouraging about two very important industries." Editor—"Very good; what is it?" Reporter—"They tell me that the horse-car drivers are working full time and that the electric-lighting station is running nights."—Lowell Citizen.

The Cyclone Cellar.

A number of persons in this town are building cyclone cellars—underground retreats upholstered with large limestone rocks—into which they can crawl away when a cyclone may happen to be going through the country. Some people feel above the cyclone cellar, and profess to be unable to see the advantages to be derived from using it as a sitting-room or sleeping apartment. We, however, think differently. We would much rather retire to some quiet, well-conducted cyclone cellar, whenever there appears to be a well-founded suspicion that a cyclone is in the neighborhood, than to be obliged to spend the next day in chasing around the country collecting our limbs. It may not look as heroic to go into a cyclone cellar every night and set the time lock on the door for 9 o'clock the next morning as it does to stay above ground and fasten a notice to each limb, saying that, "This belongs to So-and-So, the finder will please return," but it will certainly produce greater peace of mind. No man can be at his best with a leg in Iowa, an arm in Minnesota, another leg blowing across the British possessions, and detectives hunting for the other arm. A man may have three or four sets of wooden legs and artificial arms; but he would hardly do for this country. The difference might not be noticed in the East, but he would be put at a great disadvantage in the West. We are going to build a cyclone cellar. It will be 25 feet deep, with a long, dark, narrow passage leading to it. We intend to stay in it all the time, to avoid creditors, and if a cyclone happens in the neighborhood it will have just as hard work to find us as they will.—Estelline Bell.

Hearts and Forest Leaves.

With love I watch the countless forest leaves,
On summer hills and in the wooded dell,
And O! the lesson of that rustling page,
Which more doth teach than learned saint or sage.
The truth which sorrow's soul alone perceives,
Have I not learned it well.

All human hearts, like forest leaves, I see;
They bud, they spread, they wither, and turn sere,
Then drink the sunshine—flutter in the gale,
Or, scathed by melancholy blight, turn pale,
And in midsummer fall—while others be
Left through the winter drear.

Some in uplifted glory flash and flaunt,
Some in cool, shadow-sheltered vales abide;
Some hedge the highway, dulled with dust and grime;
But, be they oak or aspen leaves, the time
Soon comes for all, when frosty fingers gaunt
Will lay them side by side.

Sweet is the rain, soft is the summer air,
Fair is the hilltop, lovely is the vale,
Bright is the sunshine, good too is the shade,
Content the dew sleeps on the rustling blade;
You swift-winged eagle that last goal will share
With this scarce-moving snail.

The stream turns from the fountain at its birth,
And balls not on its journey to the sea;
The forest leaves forsake the lofty stem
To seek the breast which soon enfoldeth them;
So do all hearts sink in the silent earth,
And wist not what they be.

AN ALASKA FOREST.

Enormous Trees Surrounded by Vast Fields of Ice.

Wandering [illegible] near camp I was [illegible] at the great size of the trees of the forest into which we had come. Within twenty feet of our camp fire were two trees, one of which measured twelve feet seven inches and the other seventeen feet in circumference at the height of a person's arm from the ground. The latter had its thick, shaggy bark stripped off nearly to the ground, being a dead tree, and thus losing much in the measurement. About thirty yards from camp was a tree that gave twenty-one feet in circumference at about six feet from the ground. The most astonishing part was that such a forest should be found actually surrounded by ice ten to twenty miles across in every direction. Of course it is reasonable to suppose that trees were here before the ice, and that this forest probably once connected with the forests of the great flat lands. Here was undoubted evidence that this small forest was being obliterated rapidly by the advancing front of the Guyot glacier, the foot-ice grinding the huge trees into pulp and splinters as surely as a quartz-crusher grinds the rock into powder. Trees five and six feet through were bent over and splintered as if they were brush, while some of the fallen trunks were split longitudinally into perfect kindling-wood. It was the mills of the gods grinding slowly, etc. Nor were they grinding so very slowly either, as one could see by comparing them with other glacial action near by. But a little way off, probably a half-mile to a mile away, was a small clump of woods, into which the glacier in the past had protruded, as shown by the fallen shattered trunks that lay near the edge of a small moraine, from which the glacier had now retreated a great number of rods. Out from the bristling line of shattered tree trunks piled over each other for nearly or fully a hundred yards all the spruce trees were dead, but still standing, their whitened trunks and long, gaunt limbs contrasting strangely and conspicuously with the trees still covered with foliage that formed their background. These dead evergreens had been actually killed by the proximity to the ice without its touching them, and either by its chilling influence, kept up throughout the year for probably centuries, or the constant application of the ice-water about their roots preventing their growth, for along this foot-ice there was always a marshy stream of ice-water draining off to the nearest muddy creek or rill. This was true of the glacier foot not over fifty yards from our camp in the forest, for here we got our water for cooking purposes, but here, also, the ice of the glacier had evidently come forward so fast that the trees were rather killed by direct crushing of their trunks and limbs than by the slower one of the influence of great masses of ice near by, and it was possible to sit down on this foot-ice of the Guyot glacier, probably ten to twenty feet thick at that point, and at the same time be under the shade of a huge evergreen tree, if a person desires two such cooling influences at the same time. Thus I came to the conclusion that the front of this great glacier was like the fingers of some huge radiating animal prolonging themselves outward and retracting again at long intervals, that would require many human lives one after the other to measure a single stride and its backward flow.—Frederick Schwatka, in New York Times.

A Pittsburgh, Pa., octogenerian who has been figuring on the cost of raising a man of his age, finds that it amounts to nearly $8,000. In an interview he says: "In the past seventy-five years I have partaken of 82,125 meals, consumed 61,595 pounds of solid food, drank 51,100 cups of tea, and 18,250 cups of coffee. I have not lived extravagantly and my meals have cost me on an average 8 cents each. Therefore, 82,125 meals have cost me $6,580." The cost of his clothing makes up for the remainder of the $8,000.

The Bumble Bee's Secret.

"It's so strange, Kate, you never heard before
When a bumble-bee flies into your door,
That somebody's coming this way?
My grandmother always said that there'd be
Company surely for dinner or tea,
I've noticed it too in my day."

"Child, get the broom and drive him right out,
And then the somebody may turn about,
And leave us alone this time;
I've churning and baking and lots to do—
As busy a day as ever I knew;
This minute the clock's striking nine!"

Aunt Martha went off to her pan of dough,
While sweet Kate saw the bumble-bee go
Right into the very best room.
Tom's coming, I know, if the bumble-bee goes,
Perhaps he'll turn back, nobody knows,
So she went and put up the broom.

Down the road Tom came, where it was shady and green,
Tom on his quiet bays at noon-time was seen.
He stopped just to water "old White."
Pretty Kate peeped out, saw Uncle John,
While the tall horse "Trask" [illegible] upon
Tom's staying and taking a bite.

While the men were "nooning" under the trees
And good Aunt Martha was turning her cheese,
Kate and Tom were having a chat,
On the wild-rose, by the window that grew,
Hearing some secrets that nobody knew,
The bumble-bee quietly sat.

He'll never tell, and neither will I,
There'll be a wedding—you'll hear, by and by,
And right in that very best room.
And Katie's so glad the bumble-bee flew
Into my the door, and I am, ain't you?
How lucky she put up the broom!
—Susan Teall Perry, in Good Housekeeping.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.

[illegible]

Special Offer!

[illegible]

His Narrow Escape.

Young Mr. Lightweight, the millionaire's son, was entertaining his college mate from the east. He took him through the Spanish quarter. They had a Spanish dinner, and were concluding the evening as the guests at a Spanish fandango on Vallejo street.

"I am in love with those dark eyed Spanish girls, quite gone on them," said the Boston stranger, with enthusiasm. "Do get me an introduction to that glorious senorita in the pink muslin. Bless me, what a dreamy, calm, sensuous creature she looks."

The introduction was easily managed, and the Bostonian led the timid Castilian out for a waltz. She was bashful to a degree, replying "Yes, senor," and "No, senor," to the conversational nothings of the polished stranger. His friend, who was delighted to see his guest enjoying himself, was chatting with a wallflower in the corner, when suddenly the Bostonian stood before him, looking very pale and decidedly nervous and uncomfortable.

"For heaven's sake, let us get out of this," he whispered.

"Certainly, certainly, but what has occurred? Why do you look so rattled? Why have you left that pretty girl so abruptly?"

"Just as I was describing some of the interesting features of the Boston common she dropped a two-foot dagger out of her stocking. Great heavens, what an escape I have had! Let us go at once."—San Francisco Post.

A temperance paper says that "a bird's-eye view from Trinity spire, New York, would disclose 16,000 saloons in sight: 12,000 in New York and 4,000 in Jersey City, Newark, and Paterson." But does it suppose for a moment that anybody would be fool enough to climb to the top of that steeple to look for a saloon?—Shoe and Leather Review.

[illegible] coming before [illegible] was [illegible] on the slate of an [illegible] in a Boston school the other day.

W. D. Howells' daughter is engaged upon a [illegible] she thinks will [illegible].

MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. [illegible] ... $1.00 each. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, [illegible].
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils," etc.
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 87 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread and Cheese and Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. [illegible]
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Philadelphia. Illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of

"SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

BARGAINS!

ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND
COOK STOVES

HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.

JOB and TIN WORK. L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of Watches, Clocks, Chains,
Pins, Gold & Silver
headed Canes etc.
is complete.

If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. H. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Charlevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a

FIRST-CLASS

SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,
At current rates of interest, on
Approved Real Estate Security.
School Bonds bought and sold.
MILEY & CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Salt Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

FARMERS on the Pacific coast [illegible]

[illegible]

MICHAEL DAVITT is credited with the [illegible]

In place of the electric bell we now have the electric button. You are invited to press it, and the point of a needle runs into the finger.

IT is not necessary to go to Canada any more for a slide. The toboggan craze threatens to rage as the roller-skating craze did not long ago.

THE New Hampshire Legislature, elected in November, contains an even dozen of Dartmouth graduates, including the veteran Gilman Marston, of the class of 1837.

AN attempt is being made in Brooklyn, N. Y., to furnish hot and substantial meals to the poor at a uniform price of one cent during the winter. Ladies are engineering the project.

THE Treasury Department has decided that Canadian postal-cards imported into the United States are dutiable at the rate of twenty-five per cent. ad valorem as printed matter not specially provided for.

IT is feared that the inauspicious opening of winter will shorten next year's crop of weather predictions. An exchange thinks it would be sad to have this new and most promising industry nipped in the bud, as it were.

THE heirs of the late Mrs. A. T. Stewart have decided to sell the entire contents of her Fifth avenue mansion in New York, and the great collection of paintings, statuary, silverware and bric-a-brac will be disposed of at auction.

SIX States are now under statutory prohibitory laws, viz.: Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Kansas and Iowa. Georgia is a local-option State, more than half of the counties, however, having prohibition laws.

JOHN D. MILLS has bought for a syndicate, for $500,000, a tract of land in Mexico one hundred and sixty miles long and six miles wide, extending from Paso del Norte down the Rio Grande. A monster cattle ranch will be established on the tract.

THE New York State Dairymen's Association passed resolutions at a recent meeting thanking State and National officers who had aided in securing and enforcing the anti-oleomargarine law, and requesting Congress to increase the tax to ten cents a pound.

FEW people know that by Congressional action in 1862 and 1863 medals were authorized awarded for military gallantry. Adjutant-General Drum has just compiled a list of the honor men. Probably, for service in the civil war and in Indian service, about one thousand men have received these medals. The most common ground of award was the capture of the enemy's flag.

WILLIAM HICKS and wife and two sons, of Boston; Ellsworth Brown, of Miamisburg, O.; Daniel Williams, of Irondale, Cal.; Dr. D. Reed, of Manson, Ia.; Henry Weight, of Silver City, N. M., and William G. White, of Lacota, Mich., the Methodist missionaries bound for the Congo, sailed from New York the other day on the steamship Adriatic.

THE area of public lands disposed of during the last fiscal year and the receipts from the same, as compiled from the report of the Commissioner of the General Land-Office, are as follows: Cash sales, 4,789,040 acres; miscellaneous, 18,192,866; Indian lands, 1,132,-[illegible]; grand total, 24,614,4[illegible], deduct as previously reported, 1,288,319; total, 23,326,099. Entries were made which cover an area of 8,452,000 acres. The cash receipts were $9,031,084.

THE Supreme Court of the United States has affirmed the ruling of the Illinois Supreme Court in the Ker embezzlement case. The final decision is an important one, as it decides that a law-breaker who flees from the United States can not set up the cry of a violation of a treaty as a bar to his conviction. If a criminal can be brought into the United States an extradition treaty can not make his prosecution illegal.

THE Madison Square Garden, in New York, has been sold to a syndicate of prominent citizens for the purpose of building what is to be known as a palais d'industrie. The price paid was $1,000,000. The structure will be an elegant one, modeled on the institution of the same name in Paris. It will be a permanent exhibition of pictures, statuary and artistic furniture. All articles for general use and ornamentation will be exhibited and sold. There will also be a concert hall and theater, and a roof garden will probably add to the attractions.

THE losses by fire in the United States during November are estimated to have been about $10,000,000, or nearly $2,500,000 in excess of the average for that month. The yearly average is about $100,000,000, but the losses for the eleven months of 1886 already aggregate $105,000,000, so that we may expect the whole year to foot up a fire loss of about $115,000,000. Instead of diminishing, the fire waste of the country seems to be increasing, as the figures above show an enormous loss of property. There were also several lives sacrificed at various places.

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

Interesting News Compilation.

XLIXth CONGRESS.

Second Session.

[illegible]

ute $[illegible] for the erection of a monument to negro soldiers and sailors who lost their lives in the rebellion, to forbid the sale of liquors within the limits of any Soldiers' Home; to punish the passing of Confederate money; and to repeal all duties on sugar and molasses imported in American vessels. A resolution was introduced instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill repealing the internal revenue laws.

TUESDAY, Dec. 21.—Bills were passed in the Senate making an appropriation to supply deficiencies for the public printing and to fix the charge for passports at one dollar. A petition was presented from sixty ministers of the Nebraska Conference in favor of the Chinese Indemnity bill. Mr. Wilson (Ia.) spoke at length in favor of the Inter-State Commerce bill, after which action was postponed until after the holiday recess. A resolution for a holiday recess from December 22 to January 4 was agreed to. In the House the Senate amendments to the Urgent-Deficiency bill were concurred in. The Army Appropriation bill was passed and the Pension Appropriation bill ($76,254,500) was reported. A resolution providing for a holiday recess from December 22 to January 4 was adopted. The Senate bill for the relief of the Jeannette survivors was concurred in.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 22.—In the Senate Mr. Blair reported a bill to amend the laws relating to pensions. A resolution by Mr. Dawes to inquire into and report what specific reductions can be made in the customs duties and internal taxes that will reduce taxes to the necessary and economical expenses of the Government without impairing the prosperity of home industries or the compensation of home labor was adopted. Adjourned to January 4. In the House Mr. Warner reported a bill requiring all land-grant railroad companies to construct, maintain and operate telegraph lines. After discussion of the Oklahoma bill the House adjourned until January 4.

FROM WASHINGTON.

DURING the week ended on the 18th, the business failures occurring throughout the country numbered for the United States 260, and for Canada 28, a total of 288, against 274 the previous week.

THE exchanges at twenty-six leading clearing-houses in the United States during the week ended on the 18th aggregated $1,357,674,770, against $1,226,478,518 the previous week. As compared with the corresponding week of 1885, the increase amounts to 21.2 per cent.

THE internal revenue collections during the first five months of the present fiscal year amount to $48,005,893, being $792,509 less than the collections during the corresponding period of the last fiscal year.

THE President on the 20th nominated W. A. Walker to be United States Attorney for the Eastern district of Wisconsin, in place of Delaney, who resigned to run for Congressman, and was defeated.

THE President on the 21st pardoned three Pima Indians who were undergoing a sentence of five years' imprisonment in the Arizona Penitentiary for a murderous assault on two white men in 1881.

THE House Foreign Affairs Committee has restored to the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill the provision raising the Chinese Mission to the first-class, at a salary of $17,500.

THE average number of inmates on the 21st in the National Soldiers' Homes was 8,940. The expenditure for the fiscal year was $1,689,709.

THE EAST.

A DENIAL is made of the story about the challenge given the St. Louis Browns by the New York base-ball club to play seven games for $10,000.

WHEN exposed in their criminal relations on the 18th at Penn Yan, N. Y., Horr M. Hamlin fatally shot himself and Miss Mabel Alderman.

THE famous trotting-horse breeder and trainer, Alden Goldsmith, died on the 20th, at Walnut Grove Farm, Blooming Grove, N. Y., aged sixty-six years.

REV. SILAS WIGGINS, aged seventy-five years, of Sutton, Vt., committed suicide by hanging on the 20th. No cause was known.

THE failure is announced of Walter B. Duffy, president of the Rochester (N. Y.) Distilling Company, his liabilities aggregating $250,000.

TREASURER O'REILLY, of the Irish National League in America, on the 20th sent $25,000 by cable to Treasurer Kenny, of the Irish National League.

ON the 20th A. J. McQuade, one of the boodle aldermen of New York, was fined $5,000 and sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

ON the 20th the widow of the late General George B. McClellan received a check for $20,000 from the publishers of the reminiscences of her husband.

AT Philadelphia the buildings occupied by John M. Maris & Co. and Knecsler, Patterson & Co., were destroyed by fire on the 21st, entailing a loss of $180,000.

THE other day five men were fatally injured in a coal mine near Scranton, Pa., by a falling rock.

AT Buffalo, N. Y., "pinkeye" was prevailing on the 22d, and eighty-seven street-car horses were sick.

WEST AND SOUTH.

J. T. PERRY, mayor of Greenville, Ala., was fined fifty dollars and costs on the 20th, for assaulting R. E. Sheeves, a temperance lecturer.

MONROE BROTHERS & Co., of Cleveland, O., extensive lumber dealers, made an assignment on the 20th, with liabilities of $274,000.

PEACOCK BROTHERS, of Colorado City, Col., extensive cattle dealers, failed on the 20th for $300,000.

SNEAK THIEVES purloined from the First National Bank of Milwaukee $2,000 in five-dollar bills on the 21st. There was no clue to the thieves.

AN attempt to float counterfeit twenty-dollar silver certificates by the Miles Ogle gang, with headquarters at Cincinnati, was reported on the 21st by secret-service officers.

A FIRE destroyed twenty-eight residences and two business houses at Galveston, Tex., on the 21st. Loss, $120,000; insurance, $75,000.

JUDGE SLOAN on the 21st sentenced Paul Grottkau, the Milwaukee Anarchist, to thirty days in jail for the publication of a poem reflecting upon the court.

ON the 21st United States Commissioner Van Buren sentenced Samuel E. Perkins, of Indianapolis, to ninety days' imprisonment for contempt in refusing to testify in the election fraud cases.

THE failure is announced of D. M. Tomlin and Hark Colvin, bankers at Akron, Col., and also proprietors of banks at Benkelman, Col., and at Cambridge, Neb., with heavy liabilities.

IN Victoria, Ark., every business house was set on fire by incendiaries on the 21st and destroyed. Total loss, $150,000.

ON the evening of the 21st William Mussels, who murdered Daniel Christman and attempted to burn his wife alive, was taken from jail at Eaton, O., and hanged to the electric-light tower.

V. H. HIRSH & Co.'s, banking-house of Minneapolis, Minn., closed its doors on the 21st because of indorsements for $80,000 or more for the owners of the Puritan iron mines.

ON the 21st the funeral of Rev. Dr. J. J. Hight, assistant editor of the Western Christian Advocate, took place at Cincinnati.

CAPTAIN S. P. SHANNON expired on the 21st at Bloomington, aged seventy-eight years. He was the oldest Odd-Fellow in Illinois.

P. A. STALENA, an embarrassed shoe-dealer at Creston, Ia., took arsenic on the 21st and fell dead in a snow-bank.

ON the evening of the 22d, while the street was crowded with people, robbers broke the plate glass window of J. C. Elliot's jewelry store at Minneapolis and carried off $6,000 worth of goods.

OBEY E. OWENS, who while a bank teller in St. Louis embezzled $230,000, was on the 22d pardoned from the Chester (Ill.) penitentiary by President Cleveland, after serving half of a five-year term.

THE recent order of Mr. Powderly prohibiting Knights of Labor Assemblies to contribute funds in aid of the condemned Chicago anarchists was the topic of discussion in socialistic and labor circles on the 22d.

ON the Louisville & Nashville road over seven hundred freight brakemen struck on the 22d because of the discharge of two men, and all freight trains had ceased running.

THE statement was made on the 22d that a building to cost not less than half a million would be erected at Sioux City, Ia., in memory of Rev. George C. Haddock, by the Woman's Christian Union.

DURING a fire at Cheboygan, Mich., on the 22d, which consumed the opera-house and city hall, two prisoners in the lock-up were burned to death.

ON the 22d John T. Morris, a Baltimore reporter, was sent to jail for three weeks for contempt of court in refusing to give the grand jury the source of certain information regarding an indictment.

A BURGLAR named Bruce, who several weeks ago broke into the Church of the Sacred Heart at South Bend, Ind., and stole the famous golden crowns, was on the 22d given seven years in the penitentiary.

A FIRE destroyed the opera-house, post-office and three stores at Oskaloosa, Ia., on the 22d, the loss being $60,000.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

ADVICES of the 16th from Vienna state that an avalanche killed a band of seventeen smugglers who were in hiding near Vlorennes.

THE anti-rent campaign at Dublin was formally proclaimed on the 18th. The funds of the league had been transferred to France, and rent moneys deposited with trustees would be secreted.

THE French Geographical Society was assured by D. Lesseps on the 18th that the Panama canal would be open for traffic in 1889, without the locks.

THE steamer Llanelly, sailing from Liverpool, foundered on the 20th at Holyhead, and twelve persons were drowned.

A RAILWAY collision at Thurkow, Russia, on the 20th killed thirteen persons and thirty others were injured.

THE German Reichstag has passed a bill exempting clergymen from military service.

IN County Tipperary, Ireland, a family of eight persons were asphyxiated on the 20th. Five children were dead when found, and the parents and other child could not survive.

IN Central Germany heavy snow-storms had on the 21st blockaded the railroads.

THERE was an uneasy feeling in Paris on the 21st over the increased activity at the French Government's manufactories of war material. Italy was also arming, and Germany was increasing her troops in Alsace-Lorraine.

JOHN DILLON said at the regular fortnightly meeting in Dublin on the 21st of the Executive Committee of the Irish National League that he would continue to carry out the plan of campaign in defiance of the Government.

IN the recent wreck of the steamer Scotland off the Irish coast ten fine Belgian stallions belonging to the Wabash (Ind.) Importing Company were lost. Loss, $15,-200.

ON the 22d Jacques, the English faster, weakened after an abstinence of twenty-one days.

MR. PARNELL was convinced on the 22d that the position of the Irish tenants was worse now than when he introduced his Anti-Eviction bill. He would lead a strong attack upon the whole policy and action of the Government towards Ireland at the opening of the coming session of Parliament.

DE LESSEPS said at a banquet in Paris on the 22d that 137,000,000 francs were still needed to complete the Panama canal.

THERE were twenty-three deaths from cholera in Buenos Ayres on the 22d, and nineteen at Cordova.

LATER.

A MECHANIC who arrived in Oswego, N. Y., on the 23d from Panama, where he was at work for the canal company, said that employes were being buried daily by hundreds, and that at the burying ground a long trench was dug, and the bodies were dumped in and covered over with two or three feet of earth.

CALEB RUSSELL's farm-house near Saybrook, Ohio, was destroyed by fire on the 23d. The old couple escaped from the flames, but died in a short time, while their demented son was burned to death.

REAR-ADMIRAL WORDEN, of the navy, the hero of the fight between the Merrimac and Monitor, was on the 23d placed on the retired list.

ELEVEN lines of street-cars in Brooklyn, N. Y., were tied up on the 23d by a strike, several acts of violence being reported, but the matter was adjusted in the evening.

TWELVE persons were injured on the 23d in a railway accident near Fletchers, N. C., caused by the spreading of the rails. A woman was fatally hurt.

NEAR Newtown, Conn., in a fit of jealousy on the 23d William Warner shot and killed a young married woman named Mary Lynch and then killed himself.

CAPTAIN W. W. MOORE, a veteran journalist and prominent Odd-Fellow, expired at Washington on the 23d, aged eighty-four years.

JAMES JESSON, a well known farmer living near Newton, Ind., committed suicide on the 23d by cutting his throat.

A LARGE number of bogus silver dollars were in circulation in Detroit, Mich., on the 23d.

BY an explosion of gas on the 23d in the coal-bunkers in the British ship Suez, lying at the levee at New Orleans, the second engineer and four Chinamen were fatally burned.

SAMUEL PATRICK, Democratic Representative-elect from the Twentieth Illinois Legislative district, died at his residence in Washburn on the 23d.

A DESPERATE attempt was made on the 23d by five burglars at Medina, O., to rob the county treasurer's safe, containing $30,000, but they were frightened off.

THE Pray Manufacturing Company of Minneapolis made an assignment on the 23d, throwing two hundred men out of employment. The liabilities were $250,000 and the assets $150,000.

THE resignation of Lord Randolph Churchill from the British Cabinet caused great excitement in London political circles on the 23d.

IT was announced on the 23d that the British bark Craignair, bound from Liverpool to Philadelphia, had been lost with all persons on board, fourteen in number.

THE South Carolina Legislature adjourned sine die on the 23d.

THE organization of a Patriot's League in Chicago was announced on the 23d. It comprises many business men, and is opposed to anarchy, socialism, communism, Mormonism and despotism of all kinds, and aims to encourage and assist the development and improvement of all classes.

A SWEEPING MEASURE.

Senator Blair Introduces a Bill Making Radical Changes in the Pension Laws—A Synopsis of Its Provisions.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—At the request of the Union Veteran Army of the Republic Senator Blair (N. H.) yesterday introduced a bill making comprehensive changes in the pension laws. The bill practically removes the limitation of the Arrears-of-Pension act, and makes the fact of enlistment into the service of the United States evidence of physical soundness at the time of enlistment.

SENATOR BLAIR.

It enlarges the classes of persons to be entitled to the benefits of the Pension law so as to include all who may have been disabled while actually engaged in the service of the United States, whether they were mustered in or not. It also grants a pension to all female nurses in the late war who shall have arrived at the age of fifty years, and are without the means of comfortable support. It provides that there shall be two classes of pensionable disabilities—viz., specific and non-specific. Non-specific disability is defined as one the nature and degree of which can not be determined without the aid of evidence or of medical examination. The pensionable disabilities are graded from one to twenty, according to the degree of injury incurred. The rate of pension for minor children is increased from $2 to $5 per month. The Pension Office is required to give every claimant ten days' notice of the time and place of any special examination into the merits of his claim, or of any inquiry by letter to the postmaster or neighbors of the claimant concerning his disability or credibility, or the credibility of his witnesses. The Pension Office is debarred from receiving information under agreement to conceal the source or subject-matter from the applicant. It is made unlawful to reject a claim upon evidence secured by a secret investigation or because the records of the War or Navy Department fail to show the existence of disease, wound or injury. It is also made unlawful to reduce a pension or strike the name of a pensioner from the rolls without giving thirty days' notice to the person affected. When a claimant who is entitled to arrears of pension dies before the claim is adjudicated the widow, minor children and dependent relatives shall be entitled to the pensions. The bill also corrects what are held to be imperfections in minor matters of the present pension laws. "Such further sum as may be necessary to pay the pensions granted under the provisions of this act" is appropriated in addition to the $75,000,000 appropriated by the last Pension bill.

DARING ROBBERY.

Exploit of Three Men at Minneapolis—A Street Full of People Cowed While They Rob a Jewelry Store and Make Their Escape.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 23.—About nine o'clock last evening three men drove up in front of the large jewelry store of J. B. Elliott, corner of Nicollett avenue and Third street. Two of the men jumped from their sleigh, while the third held the horses. One of the men carried a heavy stick of wood, with which he smashed the large plate-glass show-window, in which were trays of diamonds, watches and jewelry, hurriedly seized all the availables and threw them into the sleigh, while his accomplices kept the crowds of people that swarmed the streets at bay with cocked revolvers. Before any thing could be done to apprehend them both men had jumped into the sleigh and drove rapidly up the street, the driver wildly lashing the horses and the robbers standing with revolvers pointed at the crowd. They secured between $6,000 and $7,000 worth of diamonds and watches. For boldness and daring this excels the James brothers' exploits. The streets were unusually crowded, and scores of people were looking at the display in Elliott's window at the time of the robbery. Several policemen were within half a block of the scene, but could not get there in time to apprehend the thieves. A posse of men has started after them with fast horses, and the telephone and telegraph have been utilized to notify all outlets of the city to be on the lookout for them.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The jewelry store of William Jones, on Monticello avenue, was robbed of $400 worth of rings, etc., last night by two men, one of whom held a revolver on Jones and his wife while the other snatched two trays from the case, and the two men ran out and escaped.

SNOW-BOUND.

Cities in Germany Cut Off from Outside Communication by Blockaded Railways.

BERLIN, Dec. 23.—The heavy snow-storm which is still raging over a large part of Germany has caused a complete suspension of railway traffic with Saxony, Bavaria and Thuringia, and a partial suspension of communication with Silesia, Posen, Frankfort, Mainz, Worms and Strasburg (Alsace). The leading railway lines are being cleared by troops. The incessant downfall of snow makes the work very difficult. Dresden has received no mail from Leipsic or Chemnitz for two days. A postal service by means of sledges has been arranged between Dresden and Leipsic. A dispatch from Cassel says that the storm is raging without abatement over Central Germany, and that no communication has been had with Berlin since Monday.

An Imprisoned St. Louis Embezzler Pardoned by President Cleveland.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 23.—Obey E. Owens, the receiving Teller of the Third National Bank of this city, who in 1882 embezzled about $230,000 of the funds of that bank, and who has been serving a sentence in the Chester, Ill., penitentiary for that crime, was pardoned Tuesday by the President. Owens has served about one-half of the term of five years to which he was sentenced. The ground of pardon is the reputability of his family and the fact that he has been pretty well punished already, and that his conduct in the penitentiary has been most exemplary. Two sisters of Mr. Owens have been in Washington making most persistent and heartrending appeals to the Attorney-General in their brother's behalf, and he finally advised the issue of the pardon.

—Customer—"How much will you charge to give me a reading of my head?" Phrenologist—"Well, sir, you can have a verbal examination for fifty cents; a written one for one dollar." C.—"Go ahead; just a verbal one." P.—"Well, in the first place, you have the organ of combativeness very largely developed." C.—"How! What's that you say?" P.—"You have the bump of combativeness very large." C.—"Darned lie! If you say it again I will knock you down."—Prairie Farmer.

—"Where are you taking that window frame to, Hanserl?" "To the town, your reverence!" "What are you going to do with it when you get there?" "Why, you see, I read in the paper that people pay as much as fifty marks for a window when there's a procession, and so I'm going to sell it!"

A Minnesota man says that Indians don't get drunk because they like liquor, but because they think it an honor.

—Rhode Island gained about two and a half feet of territory from Connecticut in the recent settlement of the boundary-line dispute.

TO PREVENT PLEURO.

The Cattle-Growers' Bill to Check the Spread of Contagious Diseases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Senator Spooner (Wis.), by request of Senator Miller (N. Y.), introduced in the Senate yesterday the bill prepared by the committee of the Consolidated Cattle-Growers' Association. Following is a synopsis:

Section 1 authorizes the President to appoint three commissioners at an annual salary of $5,000 each, who shall be known as the United States Cattle Commission. The President may suspend and restore the functions and pay of the commissioners at any time.

Section 2 makes it the duty of the commissioners to cause investigation to be made as to the existence of contagious pleuro-pneumonia, foot-and-mouth disease and rinderpest, and for this purpose they are authorized to enter, either in person or by agents, any premises in which they have reason to believe such disease exists. Upon discovering the existence of disease the commissioners are authorized to give public notice of the fact, specifying the location, and also to notify in writing the agents of any transportation company doing business in or through the infected locality. The commissioners are required to establish and maintain such quarantine of animals, premises or localities as they may deem necessary to prevent the spread of disease, and also to cause the appraisal and destruction of the infected or exposed animals. Owners of animals destroyed are to be paid three-fourths the value of the animals as determined upon the basis of health before infection in the case of animals diseased, and the full appraised value in the case of animals exposed but not infected with disease. It is provided, however, that not more than $100 shall be paid for any animal destroyed which has a recorded pedigree, nor more than $50 for an animal without a pedigree. Provided further, that in no case shall compensation be allowed for any animal destroyed which may have contracted or been exposed to the disease in a foreign country or on the high seas, nor shall compensation be allowed any one who knowingly or willfully conceals the existence of any such disease or the fact of exposure thereto.

Section 3 authorizes the commissioners to make rules and regulations for carrying the provisions of the bill into effect, the rules to have the effect of law when approved by the President.

Sections 4, 5 and 7 provide penalties for obstructing the commissioners in the performance of their duty, for concealing the disease, and for transporting or delivering for transportation from one State to another diseased animals, knowing them to be such.

Section 6 makes it the duty of the commissioners, wherever any owner of animals refuses to accept the sum authorized to be paid under appraisement, to declare and maintain a rigid quarantine of the animals and premises where the cattle may be found.

Other sections make it the duty of the district attorneys to prosecute violations of the provisions of the bill, authorize the employment of a secretary to the commission, and of skilled veterinarians, and direct that when the functions of the commissioners are suspended their offices and records shall be turned over to the Commissioner of Agriculture.

The bill appropriates $1,000,000 to carry its provisions into effect.

POWDERLY ON POLITICS.

He Refuses to Take Active Part, but Urges Working-Men to Action.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—General Master Workman Powderly has written to the managers of the Labor party in this city refusing to address the convention of that party. He explains that he took part in the George campaign in New York City because his name was used by the opponents of George to discountenance the movement and he wanted to show that he favored it. Continuing, he says:

"I made a departure from a rule that I have observed for some time and which I do not intend to break again—viz., not to speak at a political meeting again while I hold the position of chief officer of the Knights of Labor. At New York I spoke as an individual voicing the sentiment of organized labor, and not as General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor.

"I would not advise you not to take any action as a party. It seems to me that it becomes the duty of all interested to endeavor to educate the masses to free the ballot box from the degrading influence of the bribe giver and taker, as well as from the tool of monopoly—whisky. Put forth your every effort to discover what is wanted in the management of the municipal affairs of your city; don't, as is too often the case, allow the interest to die out on the eve of election day, but continue until you have located the cause of the trouble. You will find that in order to remove the cause of the trouble you will have to begin at the bottom and work up instead of beginning at the top and falling down. If your movement means what its name indicates keep it up and elicit the services of all honest men, for all such are interested in honest government regardless of their calling in life."

SEVEN WEARY YEARS.

"Boodleman" McQuade Sentenced to a Term in Sing Sing, and to Pay a Fine of $5,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Ex-Alderman McQuade was yesterday morning sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, and to pay a fine of $5,000. McQuade was escorted into the crowded court room by Under Sheriff Sexton and Order of Arrest Clerk Martin. General Tracey, on behalf of the prisoner, entered a motion for a new trial. It was denied by Recorder Smythe, General Tracey taking exception. The recorder said:

"Arthur J. McQuade, you have been fairly and justly convicted of bribery. You were elected to perform a public duty and public trust. Instead of doing so you violated that trust. Your character as a business man, citizen, father, husband, is good. I have sympathy for your wife and family. You should have considered them before you did wrong. You did not add to the crime of which you have been convicted of, as Jaehne did by taking the stand and committing perjury. I have reason to believe that you received [illegible] as Duffy did, [illegible]. That money is not yours; it is not the property of your family. If it is left with them, it will work the inevitable result of ill-gotten gain. I would advise you to give up and pay back to the city the money which you received, and I have no doubt it would work to your benefit. The sentence of the court is that you be confined in State's prison at hard labor for a term of seven years, and that you pay a fine of $5,000."

A Lumber Firm in Trouble.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 21.—Monroe Brothers & Co., extensive dealers in lumber, made an assignment last night. They had five branches—at Painesville, Alliance, Salem and Clinton, O., and at Ann Arbor, Mich. Charles Winchester, of Ashburnham, Mass., whose financial embarrassment was noted a few days ago, was a general partner in the firm of Monroe Brothers & Co. Previous to Winchester's difficulties the assets of Monroe Brothers & Co. were estimated at $274,000 and the liabilities at $47,000.

Mercy Asked for a Merciless Woman Who Brutally Murdered Her Husband.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Governor Hill has been beset by petitions from women and clergymen in all parts of the country asking for the reprieve or the commutation of the sentence of Mrs. Roxana Druse, condemned to be hanged in the Herkimer jail a week from Wednesday for the brutal murder of her husband. A strong plea for a reprieve was made by the Woman's League of Chicago and a powerful appeal was made in her behalf by Rev. R. Heber Newton in this city Sunday. The Governor has begun an examination of the matter, and it is asserted positively that Mrs. Druse will not be hanged on the day stated.

Heavy Failure of Cattlemen.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 21.—Much surprise was occasioned in cattle-dealing circles here yesterday by the announcement that Peacock Brothers, of Colorado City, had made an assignment of all their cattle and ranch interests, and were financially embarrassed to the extent of at least $350,000, and perhaps much more. The assignment was made late Saturday evening, and an effort was made to keep the matter secret, but the collapse leaked out in Dallas yesterday afternoon. The assignment was made to John Walker, a brother-in-law to one of the Peacocks. The suspended firm was regarded until recently as one of the most solid in the cattle business.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Soldiers' Home Programme.

The following is the programme of exercises at the dedication of the Michigan Soldiers' Home, at Grand Rapids, December 30, Governor Russell A. Alger presiding: 1. Music. 2. Prayer, Rev. Washington Gardner. 3. Presentation of the building to the State by the contractor, Charles Tietke. 4. Turning over the building to Hon. John Northwood, Department Commander, for dedication, Governor R. A. Alger. 5. Ritualistic dedication by Hon. John Northwood, Department Commander G. A. R., Department of Michigan. 6. Dedicatory address, Governor R. A. Alger. 7. Music. 8. Addresses by Hon. John A. Logan, Governor-elect Cyrus G. Luce, Hon. Lucius Fairchild, Commander-in-Chief Grand Army of the Republic, and other invited guests. 9. Music. 10. Benediction. 11. Tattoo.

Michigan Items.

The Detroit grain and produce quotations are: Wheat—No. 1 White, 80¼@80½c; No. 2 Red, 80¼@80½c. Flour—Michigan White Wheat, choice, $5.00@5.25; roller process, $4.00@4.25; patents, $4.75@5.00. Corn—No. 2, 39¼@39½c. Oats—No. 2, 29¼@30¼c. Butter—Creamery, 25¼@28c. Cheese, 12½@13c. Eggs, 20@21c.

Reports to the State Board of Health by fifty-four observers in different parts of the State, for the week ended on the 11th, indicated that inflammation of the bowels and erysipelas increased, and tonsilitis, typho-malarial fever, membranous croup and scarlet fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at thirty places, scarlet fever at fourteen, typhoid fever at eleven, measles at six and small-pox at Detroit.

One of the largest iron ore mines in the Negaunee district has arranged to ship three hundred tons of ore daily to Cleveland by rail during the winter.

J. Murphy, of Murphy & Co., an alleged Chicago commission house at Coldwater, has, it was recently stated, carried away about $25,000 which local speculators had deposited in his bucket-shop. It was thought he was in Canada.

Gustav Bruber's saloon at Battle Creek, and a place kept by Mrs. O'Brien, whose husband is under sentence to Jackson for thirteen years, were burned early the other morning. Loss, $2,500; insurance, $1,250.

Ezekial Saunders, who was confined in the Newaygo County jail, charged with stealing a yoke of oxen, and escaped November 15 in his mother's clothes, was arrested the other day by Sheriff Kimball, of Newaygo County, in Noble County, Ind. Saunders claimed that he traveled to New Orleans in the petticoats, but he was working as a railroad section hand when arrested.

Six fishermen with sixty lines caught five fish at Lakeville, Oakland County, recently, by working hard all day.

A woman was brought to Traverse City from Fife Lake recently and put in jail on a charge of killing her child, which was about nine days old. She was supposed to have buried the child alive.

William Klyne, a prisoner en route a few days ago to Jackson, in charge of Sheriff Follensbee, of Port Huron, to serve a term of four years for burglary, jumped from the cars and was killed.

Tracy Walters, aged twenty years, the only son of M. E. Walters, of Kalamazoo, was drowned a few days ago at Savannah, Ill., while skating, by breaking through the ice.

John N. Stringer's clothing store at Bay City was robbed of two hundred dollars worth of goods a few nights ago.

Isaac Stevens, of Kalamazoo, while out hunting recently came upon a flock of ducks. As the fowls arose he snapped both barrels of his gun at them, but neither barrel was discharged. Then, firing the gun into the empty air, he reloaded, started up the ducks again, with the same result on the part of the shot-gun. Becoming disgusted he went home, where he stood the apparently worthless shot-gun in the corner of the room muzzle down. In the evening one of the barrels was discharged of its own accord and a hole was torn in the floor.

E. J. Moss, of Coldwater, has raised 4,300 pounds of trimmed horseradish roots on one acre of ground this year. He has been eighteen years in the business.

The famous trotting stallion Magna Charta died the other night at Coldwater. He was thirty-four years old, and as a colt had a record of 2:30¼.

Rev. Lauwe, a pastor in Port Huron, has built a church, schools and pastoral residence, and is now busy superintending the erection of a convent for the sixteen nuns who manage his parish and high schools. He has preached in that city for over twenty-five years.

The total output of the Colby iron mine this season was 325,000 tons. This is 25,000 tons greater than the output of any iron mine in the world in any single year. The Colby was discovered three and a half years ago, and was opened two years ago. It is the "young giant" of the iron world.

The river at Lansing will be used as a race-track this winter.

The will of the late Herman Rosstein, of Essexville, Bay County, is being contested by his six children, to whom he left the sum of five dollars each. The will was made on September 2, 1886. It was alleged that the deceased was of unsound mind.

Mrs. McKee Rankin has retired from the stage and established herself in Detroit. She is superintending the education of her two pretty daughters.

Schoolcraft County [illegible] have formed an anti dead-beat society.

Ira Camber, of Detroit, made a pretense a few days ago of drowning himself at Detroit, but it appears that he crossed into Canada and commenced a movement to secure for his wife the insurance on his life in the order of United Workmen.

There are upward of sixty-five copper-mining companies in the upper peninsula of Michigan.

The annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Michigan, has been fixed for March 16, 17, 18, 1887.

A close estimate of the logs that will be floated to Muskegon lake next season is between 555,000,000 and 560,000,000 feet.

August Shorkey, a brakeman, was instantly killed at St. Ignace a few days ago. He fell between the cars just as the train was pulling out of the depot. He leaves a widow and a little girl, who were on the train at the time of the accident.

A French lady is engineering a scheme for the establishment at Jackson of a home for ex-convicts, a place where they can go and be cared for after their term of imprisonment is over—a home of industry, where they can work and pay their way until they can obtain positions in other places, this home to be theirs as long as they are willing to work and abide by the rules established.

Several well-known ladies of Muskegon are firm believers in cures by the medium of "Christian science," and have been practicing gratuitously for the benefit of the poor. As the demand for their services increased they rent a house and devoted all their time to the work of philanthropy, and now they announce that they will open a hospital in the spring.

Friends of the late Sojourner Truth, the aged negress, are making an effort to place a stone over her grave at Battle Creek.

The three-year-old colt, Ara, with a record of 2:29¾, was sold recently by Ray Warner, of Coldwater, to John Splan, for $5,000.

At the recent term of the circuit court in Marquette a number of verdicts for damages were secured against mining companies by widows or administrators of men who were killed by mining accidents. Maron Hoeslig, of Ishpeming, got a verdict against the Cleveland Mining Company for $5,000.

The Ishpeming base-ball nines, in order to keep in practice, play ball when their grounds are covered with snow.

PITH AND POINT.

—A new book is entitled "The Keyhole Country." It is undoubtedly full of conversations accidentally overheard.

—She—I think any man ought to be able to support a woman. He—Well, I don't know about that; some women are insupportable, you know.—Washington Globe.

—"One Hundred Years" is the title of a new Thanksgiving poem. It is a terribly long sentence, but after reading the poem we are convinced that the poet deserved it.—Burdette.

—Some fireman, somewhere, evidently smitten with somebody, gave the following toast: "Cupid and his torch, the only incendiary that can kindle a flame which the engines can not quench."

—Gus—Have you put the important question to old Moneybags' daughter, Jack? Jack—No. I hear there is a prior attachment there. Gus—You don't say so? Jack—Yes, the sheriff has attached every thing the old man owns.—N. Y. Sun.

—Professor (to students)—Pray, go on smoking. It doesn't annoy me in the least; on the contrary, I like to see others enjoy it. It is the same with tobacco as with hay; I don't eat any myself, but I am delighted to watch others enjoying it.—N. Y. Telegram.

—Servant (to woman at the door)—The mistress was taken very ill last night and can't see anyone. Them's my orders. Woman—Yes. Will you please say that Miss S., the dressmaker, is at the door? Servant (after a brief absence)—You are to walk up stairs, mum.—N. Y. Herald.

—If he had a mind—

The dude he would go a-courting.
Then said his mamma kind:
"You must not go," and he answered,
"I'll go if I have a mind."
The mother smiled serenely,
"Then," said, it seems now,
"If that is the case, my darling,
You certainly will not go."

—Mr. Minks—I met an old schoolmate to-day for the first time in forty years and we had a grand talk about old times. Mrs. Minks—It was a man, I suppose. "O! yes, and as long as I've lived I never saw such a perfect example of contentment and earthly happiness as he is." "Did he marry any one I know?" "No, he never married."—Omaha World.

—Bagley (who has just been introduced)—Colonel Trump, of the Hogtown Howler? Happy to meet you. My wife sent several poems to the Howler in earlier years. They never appeared, I believe. Colonel Trump—Possibly not. You see, I am compelled to send back or destroy interesting matter every day, I receive so much. Bagley—Indeed! Why don't you put some of it in the Howler occasionally?—Philadelphia Call.

—Sweetly explained.—"I wish I was a star," he said, smiling at his own poetic fancy. "I would rather you were a comet," she said, dreamily. His heart beat tumultuously. "And why?" he asked tenderly, at the same time taking her unresisting little hands in his own. "And why?" he repeated imperiously. "Oh," she said, with a brooding earnestness that fell upon his soul like bare feet on a cold oil-cloth, "because then you would come round only once every fifteen hundred years."—N. Y. Ledger.

RUSSIAN USURERS.

How They Oppress the Poor, Struggling and Despondent Peasantry.

Russia is fast verging toward landlordism in its most pronounced form, and the people are being divorced wholesale from the soil which their fathers tilled and by which alone themselves can live. In another generation, at the present rate of progress (or degradation), there will be on one side an agricultural proletariat of sixty or seventy millions, on the other a class of koulaks and "mir-eaters," holding all the land and virtually owning those by whom it is cultivated. The present system is based on the bondage of the peasants. Koulaks (usurers) and landlords lend their money, taking as security the hypothecation of the borrower's future labor, and once in debt the Russian peasant is never free. He becomes the bond-slave of his creditor, who exacts his pound of flesh with Shylock ferocity.

But the debtor, when his creditor is a landlord, has a simple yet effective way of avenging himself. He works as little and ineffectually as he knows how. The free laborer does twice as much and does it a great deal better, and for this evil there is no remedy except one that is worse than the disease it is meant to cure—a well-paid overseer for every bondageman. For the peasant who is working off a debt does not fear dismissal—wants it in fact, and the government allows no one to use the rod but itself. The [illegible], or local usurer, is in a better position than the big landlord. A peasant himself, he works in the fields with his bondsmen, and can see that they work. Being, moreover, a man of importance in the village, he is naturally more feared and better served than the absentee owner. It is obvious that under these conditions agricultural progress and scientific farming are quite out of the question. Bondage labor is cheaper than any other, cheaper even than machinery. Besides, who would invest money in labor-saving machines when he can lend it out at two or three hundred per cent. per annum. So it comes to pass that land owners and usurers grow rich, cereals are exported and the peasants die. Hardly a year passes that parts of Russia are not devastated by local famines. Instances of anthropophagy often occur, the wretched peasants being reduced to such straits that in their desperation they eat human flesh—literally prey on each other.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

WORTH KNOWING.

How to Prevent the Discoloration of the Skin After a Blow.

Take a little starch or arrow-root, and merely moisten it with cold water, and lay it on the injured part. This must be done immediately, so as to prevent the action of the air upon the skin. However, it may be applied some hours afterwards with good effects.

I learned this when a resident of France. It may already be known here, but I have met with none among my acquaintances who seem to have heard of it. The old remedy, raw meat, is not always at hand, and some children have an insurmountable repugnance to let it be applied. I always make use of the above remedy when my children meet with an accident; there is nothing unpleasant in its use, and it keeps down swelling, and cleanses and facilitates the healing of scratches when the little ones fall on the gravel in the garden.—Journal of Chemistry.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

SMITH & PARMELEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN.

THE OLD AND NEW YEAR.

1886.

The grand old chimes are pealing,
Wave upon wave they pour
Their floods upon the sands of time,
Their music on the shore;
And hearts are wildly heaving,
In their tumultuous flow,
And wanderings winds a drifting
To New Years long ago.

The lamps gleam from the city,
The lights from cot and hall,
O'er gayly festooned windows,
The dancers' shadows fall;
And in the homes of childhood,
Sweet, youthful faces glow
Where joy and mirth as brightly
Shone forth long years ago.

Without are gloomy shadows
Athwart the mantling snow,
And voices upward stealing
In whispers from below;
While chimes are pealing gayly,
And hearts are beating high,
The Old Year's sands are gathered
To centuries gone by.

The bells are pealing slowly,
And solemn is the tone,
A moment—and the heavens
Ring with the New Year's chime.
To the New Year give welcome,
The fair, untrodden land,
Where time has left no stain,
Nor touched with withering hand.

The past may have sad mem'ries
Laid in the grave of years,
O'er which the flowers are springing,
Fed by repentant tears,
But the future had no sorrow,
No parting, and no sin;
The stainless page unwritten
Thou hope alone within.

Peal on, ye bells, so gayly,
While hearts are beating high,
And some, as mine, impulsive,
Unconsciously reply;
I hear those chimes no longer,
Each sound has died away;
Who of the throng that listened,
Will hear next New Year's Day?

1887.

O'er the midnight darkness,
With a measured pace,
Steals the New Year noiseless,
Through the empty space.

Hark! I hear the greeting
Of a thousand bells,
Filling earth with music,
And with mystic spells.

Young hearts beat expectant,
Aged dimly peer
Through the shadowy distance
Of the unknown year.

Prayer and praise commingling,
Unto Heaven ascend;
Incense holy upward
Silently doth wend.

Shall the Old Year's sorrows
Cloud the New Year's sun,
And a wailing minor
Through its gladness run?

May some angel singer,
In love's sweet employ,
Turn each note of sadness
Into strains of joy!

May the dead past teach us
Lessons, pure and grand,
And God's richest blessing
Rest on every land!

—Mrs. Anne Gaskell, in Congregationalist.

A LITTLE HEROINE.

Why "My Lady Enid" Came Before the Public.

My Lady's name is Enid. She was ten years old, when, on the day after Thanksgiving, she decided she would receive callers on New Year's Day. Her Aunt Jane came to dinner at Thanksgiving, and it was then Enid heard her mother and Aunt Jane describe the whole thing. Enid is one of those charming young ladies who are at the table "seen but not heard," and this was doubly charming because she was a very comely maiden for one so young. She could talk with the most delightful freedom when the time and place allowed. At dinner she merely partook of the good things, and said "Yes, Marm," and "thank you," and "if you please," and looked as sweet as she could, particularly when the candy came in with the black coffee. Not that she ever partook of the coffee, as she had not yet reached years of indiscretion, when people drink black coffee. Well, as before remarked, she was seen, but not heard, which gave her a fine chance to hear every thing that was said, and make up her own opinion about it.

Aunt Jane said she should receive on New Year's Day, and her mother said that, if it was convenient for Aunt Jane, she would like to receive at the same time at Aunt Jane's house. The two ladies agreed that this was a good arrangement, as Cicily, the parlor girl, and Brigetta Maria, the cook, and Thomas Augustus, the butler, for some singular reason, had decided that they all wanted that particular day for a holiday. Enid's remarked to herself that they, too, probably wanted to receive, and, if they did, it would only leave Mercy Patience Jones, the chamber girl, at home.

"She won't mind," said Enid to herself. "Mercy Patience never receives, she's much too old. She must be seventy-three and two months by this time; for she was mother's own nurse when mother was a baby."

So it was all arranged. Enid's mother was to spend New Year's Day and evening at Aunt Jane's, and all the servants, except Mercy Patience, were to have a holiday.

Enid wondered how it could be a Happy New Year if the first day was to be spent at home all alone with Mercy Patience Jones. She thought it all over, and had a most brilliant idea. She would receive herself. She knew just how to do it. You put on your best clothes and sit in the parlor, and folks come in and say: "How'd do?" and "It's very warm for this time of year," and "I wish you a Happy New Year;" and then you say, "Thank you; it is pretty warm," and "Won't you have some cake?" and "I thank you very kindly. Many happy returns. Hope you had a pleasant time. Come again. Good-bye."

She mentioned her little plan to her mother and her mother said:

"Yes, dear; so you shall. You can invite some of your girl friends to call on you that day, and Mercy Patience can make some lemonade and perhaps some cake for your guests."

"Thank you very kindly," said Enid; "but I don't want to ask the girls. Ladies stay at home and receive the gentlemen."

"Oh! I see. Your ladyship wants the boys to come too. Very well; ask Gracie and Ellen and Mary to bring their brothers with them."

Enid was not wholly satisfied with the arrangement; but she accepted it without serious objection.

"The girls can receive with me, and that will be just the same. I'll tell them to come first, and then the boys can call, and we will receive them just as Mother and Aunt Jane receive their callers."

This is the way she arranged the affair, and in due time invitations, written on postal cards, were duly sent out to five girls and seven boys, who lived in the same block. Then Christmas came, and in the excitement of this important occasion New Year's Day was forgotten for awhile. It is wonderful how soon New Year's Day comes after Christmas; and almost before she knew it Enid found she must prepare for the eventful day when she would receive for the first time. She had seen each of the five girls and seven boys, and all had said they would be pleased to come.

The day broke at last, though Enid had been awake for an hour wondering if it ever would be daylight. No wonder it was so dark. It was raining hard. Breakfast was very late, for Brigetta Maria and Thomas Augustus and Cicely were in no particular hurry. It did not make any difference; for it was a holiday, and Enid's father was going to spend the day in making calls, and her mother in receiving calls. As it rained, Enid's mother said Enid must receive in the dining-room. Her guests could come in at the area gate; besides it would save the parlor carpets. Enid did not object to this. The dining-room was in the basement, and from the windows she could see the guests arrive. At ten o'clock her father went out, and soon after all the servants except Mercy Patience Jones went off, and the carriage came for her mother.

"Have a pleasant time, dear. Treat your callers like a little lady. There are some games in the secretary, and Mercy will bring in the cake and the lemonade whenever you wish it. Good bye! Stay in the dining-room all the time and go to bed at nine o'clock. I shall come home soon after ten."

It was half-past ten when Enid sat down in her best frock and the big arm chair to receive. Of course, she could hardly expect any one at once. They would not come before eleven, as they had all the afternoon and evening in which to appear and pay respects. Eleven o'clock came and no one had arrived. She changed her seat, and sat down by the window where she could look out. There was nothing to be seen save the wet stones of the walk and the muddy streets. At one of the opposite houses there was a little basket tied with a blue ribbon to the bell.

"It will be great fun to see the gentlemen march up the steps and put their cards in the basket."

Suddenly, to her great surprise, the clock on the mantel struck twelve. Two men and a boy and one cab had passed the door. Not a soul had gone up the opposite steps to put a card in the basket. Not a soul had rung the bell at their own door. She hoped none of the boys or girls would go up the steps to the front door. She would sit where she could see the steps and watch for them. She tried to read "Davy and the Goblin," but the Cockolorum got all mixed up with Jabbywocky, and she laid the book down with a little sigh of disappointment. Why don't they come? Why don't they come? It's lucky the lemonade doesn't need warming.

Suddenly came a tremendous surprise. The clock struck one. It was already afternoon. Her guests would surely come very soon. Then she remembered it was time for lunch. She arose from her seat by the window, and went out to the kitchen. There she found Mercy Patience reading a book. On the table stood the big pitcher of lemonade, and the plate of cake, covered with a napkin.

"I think I'll have lunch, Mercy, if you please."

"Yes, Miss. The lemonade is all ready."

"No. I mean plain lunch. Nobody has called yet. They will come this afternoon."

Mercy soon brought some cold meat and bread and butter and a pitcher of milk, and Enid tried to eat it, but could not. Her mind was on that silent bell, and wondering why it did not ring. Then she began to fear the bell was out of order, or that her guests couldn't ring it and she hastily drank some milk and went back to the window to watch. The clock ticked and ticked, and the rain fell, drip, drip, in monotonous murmur, on the wet stones outside the window. Enid got out a game and tried to play solitaire game, but soon gave it up. At three o'clock Mercy brought in the cake and lemonade, and placed it on the table.

"Your company are very late, Miss."

"Yes, Mercy; they are very late. I do hope they will come soon."

"I am going up to my room for a little rest."

"All right, Mercy. I will wait here. They must come soon."

The room seemed to grow dark and chilly, and a tear ran down Enid's cheek.

"It's very mean and cruel in them—when they know—I'm—I'm waiting. How cold it is. I'll light the fire."

The fire roared in a dull, angry sort of way, and when Enid took down the blower she sat and gazed sadly into the glowing coals. A dreadful sense of regret and loneliness began to creep over her. What if they should not come? She could never, never, bear it. Then she somehow seemed to see in the coals a certain man who gave a feast and invited many friends to attend and be merry with him. The guests did not come, and the man telephoned to all their houses, but the people telephoned back they had so many things to do they were not able to come. So the man called a district messenger and sent out and invited the lame and blind and the halt in the by-ways to come to the feast.

"I don't suppose there are any by-ways in the city. Besides, I shouldn't know what to pay to the messenger boy. I couldn't write cards, and, if I did, the blind couldn't read them."

Four o'clock. They must come soon, or it would be dark. Sad and weary with waiting and disappointment, she went to the window to look out on the dreary street. Just as she came to the window, with her handkerchief in her hand, to hide the tears of mortification that would come to her eyes, she saw a large dog pass slowly along the walk. He seemed to see her; for he paused and stood by the gate, looking wistfully at her.

"Poor thing! He is wet and cold. And how handsome he is. Oh! Oh! He is coming in. He wants to call on me."

Her tears were not dry on her face, and were all mixed up with a smile as she opened the big iron gate under the front steps.

"Come in, Sir, if you please. I'm delighted to see you. Happy—I hope he won't see I've been crying—Happy New Year, Sir!"

The dog seemed to smile in an amiable way, and coming nearer, gravely put up his paw as if to shake hands.

"What a gentlemanly dog. Come right in. I receive to-day; though, of course, you didn't know it."

She took his wet paw and looked into his brown eyes. There was a wistful, appealing look in them, and, with a little choke between a sob and a laugh, she held the gate wide open, and her first caller solemnly pattered over the oil cloth carpet and into the dining-room. Enid closed the gate and the hall door, and followed her visitor into the dining-room. He had already discovered the fire, and sat down before it with entire satisfaction.

"I am very glad you have you come. Will you have some lemonade? No, thanks. I won't shake hands again. Your paw is quite wet, Sir. You don't care for lemonade? Will you have a macaroon?"

To her surprise, he took the macaroon at one bite and then held up his paw again and whined softly, like a baby crying.

"Oh! Is it hurt? Let me see it. I thought you walked lame. Why, you have hurt your foot. Let me bathe it in cold water for you. Gracious me! I didn't think the lame would appear quite so quick."

Enid flew to the kitchen for a basin of water, and soon returned with a bowl of warm water, a clean towel and the remains of the meal she had for lunch. Her caller devoured the meat with evident pleasure, while Enid bathed the lame foot and bound it up with her handkerchief. Then the caller politely licked her hands, and they both felt better. He was certainly a gentleman; for he made no silly remarks about the weather, and when she had wiped his long fur, he seemed to be a very handsome fellow. He lay down on the floor before the fire, and beat the carpet with his tail, as much as to say:

"I am much obliged, marm, for your kind attention."

"If they only would come now; what fun we would have with our first caller. It's half-past four now, and quite dark. They'll never come now. Oh! well; it doesn't matter. I can say that I received one caller, though he isn't very talkative."

Just then a most singular thing happened. She thought she heard a child crying. She ran to the window, and there, sure enough, was a mite of a child, all alone in the rain in the empty street.

"I do believe the poor thing is lost. I'll go out and see."

She started toward the door, and her caller sat up.

"Keep your seat, sir, if you please. I'll be right back."

The caller understood, and lay down again. The strange child out in the rain seemed to be bewildered and lost.

"What's your name, little boy?"

"Mike."

"Where do you live?"

"Don't know. Me and Jimmy followed the organ, and Jimmy's lost."

"Then, why don't you go home?"

"It's lost too."

Enid looked up and down the street in hopes some friendly policeman might be in sight. There was not a man to be seen, and it was already quite dark.

"Come into the house and get warm. You look as cold as water ice."

"Yes, marm. I'm all wet wid the rain."

"You can sit by the fire, and perhaps a policeman will come along to take you home. Come right in. I receive to-day, and I am quite alone."

The first caller stood up and growled as soon as the second caller appeared.

"Be quiet, Sir! This is only a lost boy, and he's wet and cold. Sit right down by the fire, little boy. What's your name?"

"Mike, if you please, marm."

He was dreadfully ragged; and then his hands were red with cold.

"It's a mercy you didn't catch your death! Do you see how your shoes are steaming in the heat? That's right. Sit down on the rug by the dog. Oh! there's some lemonade and some macaroons. Will you have some? You know I receive to-day."

Both of the visitors partook of macaroons; and the last visitor partook of two whole cups of lemonade.

"Guess you're pretty hungry, both of you. Eat it all, if you want to. I don't suppose I shall receive any one else to-day."

Suddenly the strangest thing happened. The visitor put his little hands to his head and rolled over on the floor.

"Mercy! The child has fainted. He must be sick. What shall I do? What shall I do? Mercy Patience will be as cross as a bear if she sees them, and drive them both out of the house. Oh! I know. I'll telephone."

Enid pulled a chair up to the telephone, rang the bell just as she had many times before, and when the bell rang again put the instrument to her ear.

"Hello! Central."

A thin, squeaky voice said "Hello," in return.

"Send me the doctor, real quick. Somebody's sick here."

"Who is your doctor?"

"Oh! I don't know. I forget his name. Send any doctor, real quick."

"All right."

"Thank you. Good-bye."

The child lay still and white on the rug, and the big dog was licking its hand.

"Why! if the child is lost I'd better call a district messenger and let him find an officer, and he can take the child to the station and telegraph to its folks. Wonder I didn't think of that before."

She moved the chair to the signal box, intending to turn the handle part way to call a messenger. In her haste she turned it too far.

"There! I do believe I've called a messenger and policeman and all the engines."

The child seemed very white and still, and the first visitor put his bandaged paw in her hand and howled in a dismal way, that frightened her. The water and towel were still there, and she knelt down, with a little shiver of alarm, and began to bathe the child's face. The first visitor lay down and put his head on the floor and watched her, with big, wistful eyes.

"Deary me! I didn't think the lame and the lost would be quite so troublesome. Gracious! There's the bell. I hope it is not the company. I shall tell them I'm not receiving just now."

The bell rang again furiously, and there seemed to be a terrible clatter in the street. She looked out of the window, and there were four callers—a district messenger boy, and a fireman, and a policeman, and a young man, who looked like a doctor. She ran to the door, and the visitors all spoke at once.

"Messenger, Miss?" "Where's the fire?" "Did you telephone for doctor?" "What's the trouble, Miss?"

Before she could reply the fireman boldly pushed into the hall, and after him came all the others, followed by two more policemen and another fireman and two little men with pencils and note books.

"I receive to-day, and there's a lame child and a lost dog. No! There's no fire. I made a mistake. The signal just flew round of itself."

By this time her numerous visitors had reached the dining-room.

"Bill," said one policeman, "watch the door. Let no one in but the men. Seems this kid is alone."

Suddenly the first visitor jumped up with a bark, and leaped so high his fore paws rested on the shoulders of the big fireman.

"Why! It's Mose! It's Mose! It's the Hook and Ladder Company's lost dog. What hurt your foot, Mose?"

"Jimmy!" remarked the policeman. "Here's the lost child we have been telephoning the city for. Bill, call back to the station for Mrs. Flarity."

"The child is sick," said the man who seemed to be a doctor. "It's a mercy it was taken in before it dropped in the street. Better call an ambulance, sergeant."

All this and ever so much more was said, and Enid explained to the sergeant all about her visitors. Then the firemen marched out, followed by the jovial Mose, and she saw the man put him on top of the truck and drive away in triumph. It was wonderful how quickly the ambulance arrived; but somebody else came quicker still, and there was crying and laughing all mingled together, as a big woman, in a red shawl and a blue hat, came in and picked up the forlorn little mite of a child in her arms, and kissed Enid, and said:

"May the Lord kape ye, little lady for takin' in me precious Mikey; and to think it's New Year's Day, and thank you kindly, and O, Doctor, it's never the ambylance it wants, but its mother's arms. God bless ye all!"

And with that the reporter stopped writing in his little books, and the ambulance drove quickly away, with a loud ring of its bell, and the doctor and policeman shook Enid by the hand, and the people in the street drifted out of sight in the darkness and only the messenger boy remained.

"If you please, Miss, sign my time card."

"Gracious! Have you been waiting all this time. There's no message, thank you. Shall I sign my full name? There it is, and good-night. I'm real sleepy. Shut the door hard. I'm so sleepy."

"Enid! Enid! Wake up, deary! Why, you're fast asleep in the rug, and it's past ten o'clock."

It was her mother. She had come home, and New Year's Day was over.

"Merey! Enid! What confusion the room is in. You must have had a great deal of company."

"Yes, I did; a good deal." And My Lady fell asleep again, and Mercy Patience carried her off to bed in her arms, and she slept soundly till morning.

And then—and then! It all came out. Every word of it was in the morning papers, and the postman brought a big letter for Miss Enid, with the compliments of Hook and Ladder Company No. 6, and the handkerchief she had used to bind up her first visitor's paw, and a photograph of the noble fellow himself, signed by the grateful members of Company No. 6. In the afternoon a man called to say that Master Mike Flarity was doing well, and sent the compliments of the season to "the lady and the hoofer dog."

Of course, if the whole affair was in the newspapers, it must be true that "My Lady receives."—Charles Barnard, in N. Y. Independent.

RACING ROGUERIES.

Criminal Dodges by Which Some Great Horses Have Been Ruined.

About half a century ago, at Newmarket, several horses who stood high in the betting at different times suddenly went off sick just before the race for which they were entered; some died, others recovered, but all were disabled for the time being, and favorites that a few hours previously outstripped every rival would come straggling yards behind the field. Every one knew they had been "nobbled," but for a long time the perpetrator remained undiscovered; at last, however, a notorious scoundrel, one Dan Dawson, was caught red-handed poisoning the troughs. During the trial it came out that he had made a regular trade of these nefarious practices, and it was more than suspected that not a few of the biggest men on the turf were his employers; but, although he was condemned to death, whether from the hope that some among his influential patrons would intercede for a reprieve, or from that hatred which certain men of his class have against "peaching," he never betrayed them, and remained silent to the end. The most minute precautions are taken to guard the race-horse from such dangers, yet the cunning or daring of his enemies frequently proves more than a match for the care of his owners.

In 1824 Lanercost was regarded as the certain victor for the Ascot cup. While he was being conveyed to the course in a van the grooms in charge stopped at an inn between Leatherhead and Sunninghill to refresh, leaving one to keep watch. Just after they had gone into the house two sailors came out of it. "Hello," cried one, "here's Lanercost; let's have a peep at him;" and he sprang up on the side of the van, while his companion at the same time diverted the attention of the man on guard. A moment afterward the first jumped down again, and then the two disappeared into a copse. It was all done so quickly that the groom had no time to interpose; and before he could summon his mates the men were out of sight. When the race came on, instead of achieving the anticipated victory, poor Lanercost came in last. In the course of the ensuing month he entirely changed color, and was never fit to run again. There is no doubt that the pretended sailor had contrived to administer some powerful drug to the animal during the few seconds he hung over his box.

Somewhere about the same time a horse named Marcus was the favorite for the St. Leger. The day before the race, while he and some other horses were standing at the Doncaster Arms, an ill-looking fellow entered the kitchen of that tavern and seated himself beside a boiler from which the stable lads were every now and then drawing water for their charges. There was no one in the kitchen save a maid-servant, whom the stranger sent out to bring him a pot of beer. When she returned the girl was going to fill her tea-kettle from the boiler, but the fellow stopped her by saying: "I would not take my tea water from there if I was you, it looks so yellow and greasy."

"All right; I'll get it outside," she answered. When she came back the second time the man was gone.

The next morning two horses were found dead in their stalls, while Marcus, who was just able to run, came in last, and also died during the day. Upon the bodies being opened arsenic was found in their stomachs. The girl then remembered the incident of the loafer, who had no doubt poisoned the water in the copper; and had she been as stubborn as most of her kind several human victims would have been added to the equine list. By the defeat of Marcus the owner of a horse named Chorister won £7,000.—Chambers' Journal.

ON TRIAL.

Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

The Great and Awful Day of Account—The Indictment and the Witnesses—The All-Powerful Advocate, and for Whom He Pleads.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 19.—"On Trial" was the subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse to-day. He took for his text the first epistle of John, second chapter, and part of the first verse: "We have an advocate with the Father Jesus Christ the righteous." The speaker said:

Standing in a court-room you say to yourself: "At this bar crime has often been arraigned; at this witness stand the oath has often been taken; at this jurors' bench the verdict has often been rendered; at this judge's desk sentence has been pronounced." But I have to tell you to-day of a trial higher than any oyer and terminer, or circuit, or supreme, or chancery—it is the trial of every Christian man for the life of his soul. This trial is different from any other in the fact that it is both civil and criminal. The issues at stake are tremendous, and I shall in my sermon show you, first, what are the grounds of complaint; then who are the witnesses in the cause, and, lastly, who are the advocates.

When a trial is called on, the first thing is to have the indictment read. Stand up, then, O Christian man, and hear the indictment of the court of High Heaven against thy soul! It is an indictment of ten counts, for thou hast directly or indirectly broken all the ten commandments. You know how it thundered on Sinai, and when God came down how the mountain rocked, and the smoke ascended as from a smoldering furnace, and the darkness gathered thick, and the loud, deep trumpet uttered the words: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die!"

Are you guilty or not guilty? Do not put in a negative plea too quick, for I have to announce that "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. There is none that doeth good; no, not one. Whosoever shall keep the whole law, yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." Do not, therefore, be too hasty in pronouncing yourself not guilty.

This lawsuit before us also charges you with the breaking of a solemn contract. Many a time did your promise to be the Lord's. You got down on your knees and said: "O Lord, I am Thine now and forever." Did you keep the promise? Have you stood up to the contract? I go back to your first communion. You remember it as well as if it was yesterday. You know how the vision of the cross rose before you. You remember how from the head, and the hands, and the side, and the feet, there came bleeding forth these two words: "Remember me!" You recall how the cup of communion trembled in your hand when you first took it; and as in a sea shell you may hear, or think you hear the roaring of the surf even after the shell has been taken from the beach, so you lifted the cup of communion, and you heard in it the surging of the great ocean of a Saviour's agony; and you came forth from that communion service with face shining as though you had been on the Mount of Transfiguration; and the very air seemed tremulous with the love of Jesus, and the weeds, and the leaves, and the grass, and the birds were brighter and sweeter voiced than ever before, and you said down in the very depths of your soul: "Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee." Have you kept the bargain, O Christian man! Have you not sometimes faltered when you ought to have been true! Have you not been proud when you ought to have been humble! Have you not played the coward when you ought to have been the hero! I charge it upon you and I charge it upon myself—we have broken the contract.

Still further, this lawsuit claims damages at your hands. The greatest slander on the Christian religion is an inconsistent professor. The Bible says religion is one thing; we by our inconsistency say religion is some other thing, and what is more deplorable about it is that people can see faults in others while they can not see any in themselves. If you shall at any time find some miserable old gossip, with imperfections from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot, a perfect blotch of sin herself, she will go tattling, tattling, tattling all the years of her life, about the inconsistencies of others, having no idea she is inconsistent herself. God save the world from the gossip—female and male! I think the mules are the worst. Now the chariot of Christ's salvation goes on through the world, but it is our inconsistencies, my brethren, that lock up the wheels, while all along the line there ought to have been cast nothing but palm branches and the shout should have been lifted: "Hosanna to the Son of David!"

Now you have heard the indictment read. Are you ready to plead guilty or not guilty? Perhaps you are not ready yet to plead. Then the trial will go on. The witnesses will be called, and we shall have the matter decided. In the name of God I now make proclamation: "Oyez! oyez! oyez! Whosoever hath any thing to offer in this trial, in which God is the plaintiff and the Christian soul the defendant, let him now step forth and give testimony in this solemn trial."

The first witness that I call upon the stand in behalf of the prosecution is the World—all critical and observant of Christian character. You know that there are people around you who perpetually banquet on the frailties of God's children. You may know, if you have lived in the country, that a crow cares for nothing so much as a carrion. There are those who imagine that out of the faults of Christians they can make a bridge of boats across the stream of death, and they are going to try it; but, alas, for the mistake: When they get amid stream, away will go the bridge and down will go their soul to perdition.

O, World of the greedy eye and hard heart, come on the stand now and testify in behalf of the prosecution against this Christian soul on trial. What do you know about this Christian man? "Oh," says the World, "I know a great deal about him. He talks about putting his treasures in Heaven, but he is the sharpest man in a trade I ever knew; he seems to want us to believe that he is a child of God, but he is just full of imperfections; I do not know but I am a great deal better than he is now. Oftentimes he is very earthly, and he talks so little about Christ and so much about himself. I am very glad to testify that this is a bad man."

Stop, O World with the greedy eye and hard heart. I fear you are too much interested in this trial to give impartial evidence. Let all who hear the testimony of this witness know that there is an old family quarrel between these two parties. There always has been a variance between the world and the church, and while the world on the witness stand to-day has told a great deal of truth about this Christian man, you must take it all with some allowance, remembering that they will still keep the old grudge good. O, World of the greedy eye and the hard heart, that will do. You may sit down.

The second witness I call in this case is Conscience. Who art thou, Oh Conscience? what is your business? where were you born? what are you doing here? "Oh," says Conscience, "I was born in Heaven. I came down to befriend this man. I have lived with him; I have instructed him; I have warned him. I showed him the right and the wrong, advising him to take the one and eschew the other. I have kindled a great light in his soul. With a whip of scorpions I have scourged his wickedness, and I have tried to cheer him when doing right; and yet I am compelled to testify on the stand to-day that he has sometimes rejected my mission. Oh, how many cups of life I have pressed to his lips that he dashed down, and how often has he stood with his hard heel on the bleeding heart of the Son of God! It pains me very much that I have to testify against this Christian man, and yet I must, in behalf of Him who will in no wise clear the guilty say that this Christian man has done wrong, he has been worldly; he has been neglectful; he has done a thousand things he ought not to have done, and left undone a thousand things he ought to have done." That will do, Conscience. You can sit down.

The third witness I call in the case is an angel of God. Bright and shining one, what doest thou here! what hast thou to say against this man on trial!" "Oh!" says the angel, "I have been a messenger to him; I have guarded him; I have watched him; with this wing I have defended him, and oftentimes when he knew it not I led him into the green pastures and beside the still waters. I snatched from him the poisoned chalices. When bad spirits came upon him to destroy him I fought them back with infinite fierceness; and yet I have to testify to-day that he has rejected my mission. He has not done as he ought to have done. Though I came from the sky he drove me back, though with this wing I defended him, and though with this voice I wooed him, I have to announce his multiplied imperfections. I dare not keep back the testimony, for then I should not dare to appear again amongst the sinless ones before the White Throne."

There is only one more witness to be called on behalf of the prosecution, and that is the great, the holy, the august, the omnipotent Spirit of God. We bow down before Him. Holy Spirit, knowest Thou this man? "Oh, yes," says the Holy One, "I know him; I have striven with him ten thousand times and though sometimes he did seem to repent, he fell back again as often from his first estate. Ten thousand times ten thousand has he grieved Me, although the Bible warned him, saying: 'Grieve not the Holy Ghost. Quench not the spirit.' Yes, he has driven Me back. Though I am the third person of the Trinity he has trampled on My mission, and the blood of the atonement that I brought with which to cleanse his soul, he sometimes despised. I came from the throne of God to convert, and comfort, and sanctify, and yet look at that man, and see what he is compared with what, unresisted, I would have made him."

The evidence on the part of the prosecution has closed. Now let the defense bring on the rebuttal testimony. What have you, O Christian soul, to bring in reply to this evidence of the World of the Conscience, of the Angel and the Holy Ghost? No evidence! Are all these things true? "Yes, unclean, unclean," says every Christian soul. What! Do you not begin to tremble at the thought of condemnation?

We have come now to the most interesting part of this great trial. The evidence all in, the advocates speak. The profession of an advocate is full of responsibility. In England and the United States there have arisen men who in this calling have been honored by their race and thrown contempt upon those who in the profession have been guilty of a great many meannesses. That profession will be honored as long as it has attached to it such names as Mansfield, and Marshall, and Story, and Kent, and Southard, and William Wirt. The court room has sometimes been the scene of very marvelous and thrilling things. Some of you remember the famous Girard will case, where one of our advocates pleaded the cause of the Bible and Christianity in masterly Anglo-Saxon, every paragraph a thunderbolt.

Some of you have read of the famous trial in Westminster Hall of Warren Hastings, the despoiler of India. That great man had conquered India by splendid talents, by courage, by bribes, by rogues, by dishonesty. The whole world had wrung with applause or condemnation. Gathered in Westminster Hall was one of the most famous audiences ever gathered. Foreign Ministers and Princes sat there. Peers marched in, clad in ermine and gold. Mighty men and women from all lands looked down upon the scene. Amid all that pomp and splendor, and amid an excitement such as has seldom been seen in any court-room, Edmund Burke advanced, and in a speech which will last as long as the English language, concluded with this burning charge, which made Warren Hastings cringe and cower: "I impeach him in the name of the Commons House of Parliament, whose trust he has betrayed; I impeach him in the name of the English Nation, whose ancient honor he has sullied; I impeach him in the name of the people of India, whose rights he has trampled on and whose country he has turned into a desert; and, lastly, in the name of human nature, in the name of both sexes, in the name of every age and rank, I impeach him as the common enemy and oppressor of all."

But I turn from the recital of these memorable occasions to a grander trial, and I have to tell you that in this trial of the Christian for the life of his soul the advocates are mightier, wiser and more eloquent. The evidence all being in, Justice rises on behalf of the prosecution to make his plea. With the Bible open in his hand he reads the law, stern and inflexible, and the penalty: "The soul that sinneth it shall die!" Then he says: "O Thou Judge and Lawgiver, this is Thine own statute, and all the evidence in earth and Heaven agrees in stating that this man has sinned against all these enactments. Now, let the sword leap from its scabbard. Shall a man go through the very flames of Sinai unsinged? Let the law be executed. Let judgment be pronounced. Let him die. I demand that he die."

O Christian, does it not look very dark for thee? Who will plead on thy side in so forlorn a cause? Sometimes a man will be brought into a court of law, and he will have no friends and no money, and the judge will look over the bar and say: "Is there any one who will volunteer to take this man's case and defend him?" and some young man rises up and says: "I will be his counsel," perhaps starting on from that point to a great and brilliant career. Now, in this matter of the soul, as you have nothing to pay for counsel, do you think that any one will volunteer? Yes, yes; I see one rising. He is a young man; only thirty-three years of age. I see his countenance suffused with tears and covered with blood, and all the galleries of Heaven are thrilled with the spectacle. Thanks be unto God! "We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."

O, Christian soul, your case begins to look better. I think, perhaps, after all you may not have to die. The best advocate in all the universe has taken your side. No one was ever so qualified to defend a man as this Advocate is qualified to defend you. He knows all the law, all its demands, all its penalties. He is always ready. No new turn of the case can surprise Him, and He will plead for you for nothing as earnestly as though you brought a world of treasures to His feet. Besides He has undertaken the cure of thousands who were as forlorn as you, and He has never lost a case. Courage, O Christian soul! I think that after all there may be some chance for you, for the great Advocate rises to make His plea. He says: "I admit all that has been proved against My client. I admit all these sins, aye, more; but look at that wounded hand of Mine, and look at that other wounded hand, and at My right foot and at My left foot. But all these wounds I plead for his clearance. Count all the drops of My tears; count all the drops of My blood. By the humiliation of Bethlehem, by the sweat of Gethsemane, by the sufferings of the cross, I demand that he go free. On this arm he hath leaned; to this heart he hath flown; in My tears he hath washed; on My righteousness he hath depended. Let him go free; I am the ransom. Let him escape the lash; I took the scourgings. Let the cup pass from him; I drank it to the dregs. Put on him the crown of life, for I have worn the crown of thorns. Over against My cross of shame set his throne of triumph."

Well, the counsel on both sides have spoken, and there is only one more thing now remaining, and that is the awarding of the judgment. If you have ever been in a court-room you know the silence, and the solemnity, when the verdict is about to be rendered or the judgment about to be given. About this soul on trial; shall it be saved or shall it be lost? Attention! above, around, beneath. All the universe cries, "Hear! Hear!"

The Judge rises and gives this decision, never to be changed, never to be reversed: "There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus."

"The soul that on Jesus hath leaned for repose,
I will not, I will not, desert to his foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake."

But, my friends, there is coming a day of trial in which not only the saint, but the sinner must appear. That day of trial will come very suddenly. The farmer will be at the plow; the merchant will be in the counting-room; the woodman will be ringing his axe on the hickories; the weaver will have his foot on the treadle; the manufacturer will be walking amid the buzz of looms and the clack of flying machinery; the counsel may be standing at the bar pleading the law, the minister may be in the pulpit pleading the Gospel; the drunkard may be reeling amid his cups, and the blasphemer with the oath caught between his teeth.

Lo! The sun hides. Night comes down at mid-noon. A wave of darkness rolls over the earth. The stars appear at noonday. The earth shudders and throbs. There an earthquake opens and a city sinks as an crocodile would crunch a child. Mountains roll in their sockets and send down their granite cliffs in an avalanche of rock. Rivers pause in their chase for the sea, and ocean, uprearing, cries to flying Alps and Himalayas. Beasts bellow and moan, and snuff up the darkness. Clouds fly like flocks of swift eagles. Great thunders beat and boom and burst. Stars shoot and fall. The Almighty, rising on His throne, declares that time shall be no longer, and the archangel's trumpet repeats it till all the living hear, and the continents of dead spring to their feet, crying: "Time shall be no longer!" Oh, on that day, will you be ready!

I have shown you how well the Christian will get off on his trial. Will you get off as well in your trial? Will Christ plead on your side, or will He plead against you? Oh, what will you do in the last great assize, if your conscience is against you, and the world is against you, and the angels of Heaven are against you, and the Holy Spirit is against you, and the Lord God Almighty is against you? Better this day secure an advocate.

HOSTESS AND GUEST.

Delicate Hints to Visitors Who Are Indeed a Burden to Their Friends.

"Blessed be drudgery." I often wonder if it would not be a happy thing if one's guests should remember this. There are some girls and boys who come as visitors to one's house who seem to have no idea that there are reciprocal duties to perform. They not only expect to be entertained, but to be taken care of.

In most families there is not a valet to black the boots, yet I have known young men to leave their boots outside their chamber-door, and I have heard the hostess creep softly along the entry and get them, giving them a "boss shine."

I have known young ladies who not only never made up their own beds, but who never thought of hanging up their dresses, leaving even any semblance of order for the "girl" to establish, when in a large family there were only two servants.

I have seen belles swing themselves in the hammock right after breakfast, when there were flowers to arrange, parlors to be dusted and dishes to be washed by the hostess.

I have heard of young ladies, who made delicious chocolate creams and soft caramels in the afternoon, after the cook had cleared up the kitchen, but who left all their pans for her to clean, and who never thought of offering to make a desert for the household.

Of course, there is the other kind of visiting young men, who play tennis with the little girls whom every one else considers to be too young for partners; and who bring the chairs down stairs for the musicale.

So there is also the other kind of visiting-girls, who trim the hats and make photograph cases for the family, and who play whist with the old gentleman instead of looking at the moonlight on the waters with the son of the old man; and who are glad to do a little "drudgery" for the sake of the welcome they receive.—Kate Gannett Wells, in Wide-Awake.

AS TO MANNERS.

Every Man the Result of His Own Boyhood and Youth.

Young people rarely realize, when criticising their elders, that the traits or habits that seem to them obnoxious were formed in early life. If their manners are rude, if they lack tact, if they are not well informed, it is because they have not made use of their opportunities. Manners are the truest indications of character. A discourteous person is both careless and selfish, for the best manners are but the expression of the golden rule; they are the card of introduction to strangers. A friend can introduce you to good society, but he can not keep you there; that depends on yourself.

A boy of kindly nature is [illegible] rude. A boy of selfish nature is polite only when his own desires are not interfered with.

Every man is the result of his own boyhood and youth. If he has read good books, kept himself informed on passing events, he becomes what the world terms a well-informed, intelligent man. If he has wasted his time in trifling conversation, read only sensational books and papers, neglected to develop the talent which he surely possesses, he becomes a superficial, a tiresome, if not a wicked, man.

If as a boy he has not cultivated the graces and amenities of life, he can not expect to become that most delightful of men, a polished gentleman. If as a boy he has not studied to avoid collisions with those about him, has not recognized the rights of others, has not cultivated a desire to lead men to higher motives, to give to others the benefit of his own opportunities, he becomes that most unfortunate person, a tactless man; a nuisance wherever people are brought together. One of the lessons every boy can learn is to watch those men who arouse adverse criticism, and carefully avoid their habits, both of mind and body. Remember the old adage: "By others faults, correct your own."—Christian Union.

HINTS ABOUT FINERY.

How Cheap Laces May Be Made to Look as Good as New.

"The cheap laces, such as Oriental, Fedora and Egyptian, are often cast aside as useless when once soiled, but they may be washed and done up as good as new if a little care is taken," said a dresser to a reporter recently. "First the laces should be carefully removed from the garment and put into a basin of hot soap suds. Use an ordinary soap. After soaking for an hour or so the lace should be carefully rubbed between the hands, and after washing in several waters it may be boiled if very much soiled. The lace should not be wrung out in the regular way, but the water pressed out with the palms of the hands. If narrow lace for ruching purposes, starch with a little clear starch, allowing one teaspoonful to a pint of water, otherwise take out of clear water. While still damp, pull the lace gently with the fingers into proper shape. Dry in the sunshine, then dampen and iron over several thicknesses of flannel. The iron should be moderately hot. All the points should be nicely pulled into shape with the fingers and then ironed. Embroidered laces should be ironed on the wrong side so that the pattern is not flattened."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

THE more we see into nature and try to represent it, the more ignorant and helpless we find ourselves, until sometimes I wonder whether God might not have made the world so rich and full just to teach His children humility.—George MacDonald.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 5, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Railroad Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Charlevoix Improvement Association held at Opera Hall on Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, (Jan. 6th.,) for the purpose of considering the railroad question. Let every member of the Association be present.

W. A. SMITH, Acting President.

The Railroad Question.

It is evident that the vapory character of the railroad talk of the past few years, as affecting the Pine Lake region, and the utter fruitlessness of all agitation looking in that direction, has had the effect of producing among many of our older residents an apparent spirit of indifference to the subject.

It is true that the "talk" which has now and then awakened a ripple of interest in the subject, has not amounted to any tangible encouragement, and the lack of enthusiasm over the more recent disclosures, although having the appearance of reliability, is not surprising.

We confess to having been infected with this complaint, in common with others, as a result of past experience, but we believe light is dawning, if the signs of the times do not deceive us. From all about us come certain sounds of awakening activity in railroad extension.

The great consolidated east and west systems of the north are already beginning enormous extensions; as the needle is true to the pole, so are the great southern trunk lines naturally creeping toward those of the north for commercial union, and Charlevoix, geographically and by virtue of her superior location, lies directly in their track. The developing industries of these northern counties, the vast forests of pine and hardwood covering the upper portion of this peninsula, all demand a railroad outlet. Therefore, it needs no prophet to foretell the inevitable.

The C. & W. M. has already moved northward after years of waiting, making no secret of the fact that the Straits of Mackinaw, or some lake point near there will be their ultimate terminus.

The Toledo & Ann Arbor have abandoned their Frankfort project, and are looking north for a terminus. Two years ago one of our spasmodic spurts of enthusiasm was an effort to induce that company to extend to Charlevoix instead of Frankfort, in which the correspondence plainly disclosed their purpose to select one of the two points. They then decided in favor of Frankfort, and we dropped the matter. Now, should not this matter be revived, in view of this later decision to abandon the Frankfort project?

Then let us not lose sight of the bright chances that exist for branch connection with one of the two north and south lines that pass to the straits east of us. Both have signified a willingness to receive overtures looking toward the construction of lines. The increasing commerce and travel centering in the villages on the shores of the two bays are becoming subjects of interest to those corporations.

We are firm in the opinion that the time has arrived when our people should begin to look the ground over and move unitedly in this matter. We believe that organization and earnest work would result in good. We believe that this region has reached an importance in population and wealth which, in view of the competitive interests of these various lines, when earnest work on our part will insure, at least the beginning of success.

We regard the outlook as sufficiently encouraging to inspire us with hope and awaken us to active effort. Let us wake up on this subject.

Col. Stockbridge is most esteemed and most respected in the communities in which he has lived, and where he is best known.

The Center, the Prohibition organ of Michigan, opposes the submission by the Legislature elect, of the proposed constitutional amendment to the people, presumably on the ground that such submission would work good to the Republican party. The Center, like most of the people who make up the prohibition party in this State, is much more interested in the defeat of the Republican party than it is in the establishment of a reign of temperance and sobriety among the people.

On Friday last the body of John A. Logan received the last honors that could be paid them at the hands of those whom he had so faithfully served. The body laid in state in the rotunda of the capitol, where he was viewed by multitudes. Afterward the funeral services were held in the senate chamber and were attended by the great men of the nation. His body was temporarily deposited in a vault near Washington until such time as a permanent resting place shall be decided upon—which will doubtless be Chicago.

Old papers sold at this office.

Northern Michigan News.

Business is lively at Bellaire.

A military company is to be organized at Cheboygan.

The demand for cedar land in Antrim county is increasing.

Elk Rapids grangers have opened a meat market in that village.

Stroud & Dilworth, of Horton's Bay, start up their new saw mill this week.

Logs are coming into the mill at Atwood, and the mill is running full blast.

The Elk Rapids Chautauqua circle has received a fine collection of stones and fossils.

There are upwards of 65 copper mining companies in the upper peninsulas of Michigan.

Mrs. Ann Russell, of Eastport, who has been unable to lie down for about three months, and whose only posture has been to sit in her chair, died on Saturday, Dec. 25.

The Petoskey band will give "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." They have secured the services of A. E. Peck as stage manager and will be able to make a strong cast.

R. Connable & Son of Petoskey, have been awarded the contract for supplying the National Soldiers Home at Dayton, Ohio, with fresh fish during the winter and spring.

Mr. W. M. Carpenter, who for a long time has been the popular agent of the G. R. & I. at Mackinaw City, was transferred to Traverse City, and took possession of the latter office last week.

The railroad news column of the Detroit Tribune says the T. A. A. & N. R. R. has abandoned the idea of making Frankfort a terminus, and will push on to Mackinac. That means that it will reach Charlevoix ultimately.

Cheboygan advices state that heavy fields of pack ice are drifting about in the straits. The recent high winds have shoved it together, making it many feet thick. Ice will soon form across the channel if the cold weather continues.

Active operations on the new Soo railroad have commenced, we are informed. A large force of men are at work, but more are needed. S. Hamond of the Soo, has the contract for one section of the road. Certainly a boom is in prospect for the "canal city."

Mrs. Louisa White, mother of Wm. H. Healey, of East Jordan, committed suicide by drowning herself in a 30 foot well one day last week. She had been subject to periods of mental aberration since the death of her husband in a mill accident some years ago.

The new officers of East Jordan Lodge, F. & A. M., are as follows: W. M., J. B. Palmiter; S. W., H. P. Barbour; J. W., F. E. Fogg; Secretary, H. W. Willard; S. D., R. W. Rounds; J. D., A. Westgate; Tyler, E. A. Gibson; Stewards, W. L. Marshall and S. G. Isaman.

Elk Rapids Progress: A chapter of the Agassiz Association has been organized with Harry Noble, president; George Russell, secretary; and Clare Rushmore, corresponding secretary. The object of the chapter is the study and classification of natural objects about Elk Rapids.

We understand the C. & W. M. R. R. extension will cross the Manistee river four miles east of Sherman, and that they will push a branch to Cadillac and also to Frankfort. The instructions from headquarters are to get a line to some point by spring where a paying business can be had.

A letter to the Cheboygan Democrat from F. W. Wheeler owner of the new propeller Ossifrage, informs us that he has made arrangements with Mr Owen, owner of the propeller Minnie M., whereby the two boats will during the coming summer, form a daily line to the Soo, running on alternate days.

Mrs. E. S. Pratt, of Traverse City, found a watermelon on the wall in her cellar, which had been put there last fall and forgotten. It had not decayed a particle and was cut and eaten and proved to be perfectly fresh and good. Experience has proved that apples raised in this country beat the world in keeping qualities, and now it seems we can make the same claim for watermelons.

Grand Traverse Herald: It seems that every thing in the line of hardwoods is becoming of value. The Northwestern Lumberman says a good trade has sprung up lately along the upper lines of railroads for black birch knots and burls. These, of course are used for veneers, and are worth 7½ cents a pound. The farmer will bring in a knot on a hand sled that will be worth from $7 to $8. It is the best paying business they have struck yet.

Notwithstanding the long and distinguished public services of John A. Logan, he died a poor man. But, if it is true that Republics are ungrateful, it is also true that there is patriotism enough among the American people to forbid that the widow of the illustrious warrior should want. A movement is well under way to raise a fund of $100,000 for her and about half of it is already raised. This is proper.

The location chosen for the new Mackinaw hotel is known as the Stockbridge site on the southerly end of the island. This will give a commanding view of the charming scenery in that romantic and historic region. At present the hotel accommodations are inadequate for the patronage of this favorite resort, and are third-class in their appointments. The new hostelry will be first class in every particular, with modern improvements, electric bells, hot and cold baths in each room, etc. It will be a frame building, of artistic architectural design, something like the Oakland at St. Clair, and will accommodate from 500 to 600 guests. The rates will not be higher than those now fixed for the inferior quarters at the island.

Additional Local News.

—The city snow plow was out this morning for the first time.

Six inches of snow fell last night, and it is still snowing vigorously.

—The boys' band are having semi-weekly rehearsals, and are receiving special instruction in the theory of music.

The lucky number, in the drawing of the music box at Hines & Co's, was 701, the owner of which has not turned up yet. Mr. Hines desires the owner of No. 707 to call at the store with his ticket.

—There are two things Charlevoix needs badly. The first is a railroad, and the second is a hearse. There will be music in the etherial regions if our remains are ever carried to the cemetery in a lumber wagon.

—The Eveline gentleman who recently lent the influence of his irreproachable name and high moral and Christian standing to the head of the county prohibition ticket, is back home again from a visit among friends in other parts.

—Boyne Falls Gazette: There is every prospect of a new church soon being built by the members of the M. E. church belonging to this town. Mrs. Powers has generously volunteered to donate a building site, Mr. Mears has promised a substantial cash donation and to saw all logs free of charge, Mr. Marsh has promised a good round sum of money, and many others will follow suit. It is expected that most if not all of the labor and logs will be donated, and the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars will be granted by the Church Extension Society.

Gov. Alger goes out of office in a blaze of charitable deeds that will make his memory fragrant forever in the hearts of the poor he aids.

Gov. Oglesby has withdrawn from the Senatorial race in Illinois, and it is conceded that C. B. Farwell leads in the contest for Logan's seat.

Extract from Logan's funeral sermon: "Bluff, steady, honest, Logan was a Christian in faith and practice. Here is his bible, which he read with daily care. Sincere and humble, he accepted Christ as his personal savior. When I gave him the sacrament of the Lord's supper, too humble in spirit to kneel on the cushion around the altar, he knelt on the carpet, and with his precious wife by his side received the tokens of a savior's love. His manly brow shone like polished marble, for he felt that he was in the presence of the searcher of all hearts. It was his last sacrament."

Some Thoughts on Educational Topics.

"Educational Column."

"To cause gross natures to pass from the life of the senses to the intellectual life; to make study agreeable, to the end that the higher pleasures of the spirit may struggle successfully against the appetites for material pleasures; to substitute the library for the saloons; in a word, to re-place sensation by idea—such is the fundamental problem of popular education." Compayre.

"I am very far from denying that there are differences between a child's mind and a man's mind, but I insist that these are differences in degree or power and not in constitution. It is freely admitted that these differences in power should be observed and heeded. * * What I protest against is, the present tendency to exaggerate them, and to assume that the child's education must be considered as quite apart, as though he were a being sui generis."—H. W. Payne.

Ironton.

Teams can now cross the arm here with safety.

Circuit Court Commissioner Fogg is taking evidence in the Holland-Wolcott chancery case at Schoffen's hall this week.

A new street lamp has been put up in front of the Congregational church.

Mrs. Godfrey McDonald started on Friday for a flying trip to Canada.

Duncan McDonald has been confined to his room at Alonzo Sheldon's for a few days with rheumatism.

Mrs. Copeland and her son Charlie were tendered a surprise and donation on New Years' eve., by their friends old and young. The house was filled with people and their table was heavily laden with necessaries of life by the donaters. The young people watched for '87 at the home of Miss Nellie Noyes.

Rev. W. G. Clark of Charlevoix, preached in the Congregational church on Sunday. Elder Hodges the pastor, being sick.

John Lansen got his hand badly smashed last week while loading wood.

Ten pounds and a half of boy for an Xmas present to Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Parish.

One of John Peterson's horses was badly kicked by another horse last week.

While Bert Sheldon was drawing a load of wood with his team last week, one of them, a valuable horse, fell dead in the harness.

It was with profound regret that the citizens of Ironton and neighborhood learned of the death of Mrs. Morehouse at East Jordan. She was a resident of Ironton four years and had many friends here who heartily sympathize with the bereaved family.

The H. H. society meet with Mr and Mrs. Purvis the first Wednesday evening in January.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Notice of Dissolution.

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Heath, Francis & Co., was on the 1st day of September dissolved by mutual consent. The business heretofore conducted by that firm will be conducted by Jerome Heath, who assumes all liabilities and settles all outstanding accounts.
Dated January 4th, 1887.

JEROME HEATH.
WILLIAM FRANCIS.
ALEXANDER CAMERON.

41

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first class job of horseshoeing.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed.
Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

THIS SHIRT
THE FINEST In THE WORLD

For 89 Cts.
Worth $1.25.
Of F. W. CRAINE & CO.

Low Prices still Continue
AT
George W. Miller's.

1887!
Not a Redmond Grand Opera House to give away, nor a Christmas Turkey or New Years Pig!!!!!
BUT REMNANTS!
GENUINE USEFUL NECESSARY ARTICLES, AND ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO FORK OVER
About One Half they Cost
TO GET THEM.
Our Remnant Table Groans! We are tickled to wait on you for we are sure you will appreciate our Bargains. Be sure and come early and avoid the rush.
F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.
OFFER A SPECIAL
Reduction Sale Of
DRY GOODS,
UNTIL JANUARY 15.

YOU WILL MISTAKE IF YOU BUY BEFORE LOOKING AT OUR STOCK AND PRICES. VALUE RECEIVED IS WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AND WE GUARANTEE PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST. LIGHT EXPENSES AND A CASH BUSINESS ENABLE US TO SELL AT VERY NARROW MARGINS. NO EXPENSIVE PARTNERSHIPS; NO SECOND-HAND GOODS.

Great Bargains in Winter Dress Goods, Flannels, Homespuns Tricots, Crepe Cloths, etc.
COTTON FLANNELS sacrificed to close.
MIXED SHIRTING FLANNELS, very cheap.
ACME WOOL FLANNELS at Factory Prices.

50 CENT BARGAINS:
The Best 50 Cent Wool Hose in town.
The Best 50 Cent Leggings in town.
Jersey Glove in town.
Toboggan Caps in town
Loop Mitt in town.
Corset in town.

Look at our new designs in Lamps & Lamp Goods. Patent extension Lamps from $3.00 up. Duplex Burners 50c. Double Cone Burners for 75c. Lamp Shades, Burners and Chimneys. Tubular Lanterns with guards 75c.

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS always at the lowest prices.

WANTED! TIES, POSTS AND SHIPPING WOOD.
The Highest Market Prices Paid.
J. L. HURD & CO.

WE MUST CLOSE THEM
Out At Some Price.

Grand Slaughter Sale of Cloaks,
At Rosenthal & Sons.

Rosenthal & Son
on the corner.

Jno C. Miller May 4 7

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—37 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 894

School Books!
SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!
---HEADQUARTERS---
For Everything needed in the School Room, at
HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.
You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.
Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.
New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.
We call especial attention to our complete stock of
BOOTS and SHOES.
TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.
ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.
A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.
BIG DRIVES IN
Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.
Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.
Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.
Resp'y Yours.
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.
Send it to your friends abroad.

A Choice Line of
FRESH GROCERIES,
OF EVERY VARIETY,
Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock
For your inspection in OPERA BLOCK by
R. J. COOPER.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS
OUR FAMOUS
AXES, SAWS,
WEDGES,
Handles,
Steel Mauls,
Stoves, and
Stove Boards,
And all other Seasonable Hardware,
VERY CHEAP.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

Pine Lake Iron Co.
IRONTON, MICH.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
BRANCH STORE AT
HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1.50 | Six months $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Hon. A. Bettars returns from Lansing this week.

—Ten below zero both Saturday and Sunday mornings.

—Read the interesting Florida letter from Egbert Carpenter, in this issue.

—F. W. Craine & Co., call your attention in their new illustrated ad, to their stock of remnants.

—It is reported that the Burgess shingle and saw mill is to be removed to a lot adjoining the Charlevoix factory.

—At the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Manufacturing Co., held Monday evening, the old board of directors was re-elected.

—The Kalamazoo Telegraph has just finished its 42d year, and is one of the best papers in Michigan, notwithstanding its advanced age.

—Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co., notwithstanding the fact that "old pap" is fishing in Florida, are laying more shipping material this winter than ever before.

—Charlie See, on his return from Elk Rapids Friday, found that he was the lucky person to hold No. 701, the ticket which drew the $20 music box at Hines & Co's drug store.

—By what right do the Harbor Springs Independent and the Petoskey Democrat assume to speak for old soldiers of Emmet County?—Petoskey Record. We give it up.

—Our friends to the north and eastward of us are liable to wake up some sunshiny morning with the fact dawning upon their intellects that Charlevoix is not an "old fogy town."

—Railroad companies do not as a general thing hunt ducks with a brass band, but the movements of some of them in Michigan indicate that they see game and are drawing a bead on it.

—The Wilson Hoop Company, the Pine Lake Iron Company, and the Charlevoix Improvement Association, all say that they must have that Michigan Central branch. That sort of talk carried into action will surely bring it.

—J. S. Smithson arrived from Norfolk, Va., Monday and returned the same evening. Sunday evening he delivered an address in the Presbyterian church at Petoskey. Two weeks ago he addressed an audience of 2,500 negroes at Norfolk.

—The Petoskey Cornet Band will present the old but always interesting drama, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," at Opera Hall, in this village, on Thursday evening of this week. Petoskey has always treated us well in the way of receiving our home dramatic and musical talent, and we hope the hall will be full.

—Lyman Price is looking up the matter of a toboggan slide here, and has secured a lease of the lot owned by E. F. Parmelee, on the north side of Round lake. He will begin work immediately, and will have it in operation in about a week. He will send for a half dozen toboggans at once.

—Just think of it! The Harbor Springs Independent and Petoskey Democrat are posing as friends of the soldier! As administration organs, we are of the opinion that they are guilty of political heresy. We like to see a paper, especially of the superior ability of these journals, true to the the traditions and policy of its party.

—The approaching expenditure of $15,000 on Charlevoix harbor would fifteen years ago have kept us awake nights. The probability of it now hardly awakens our interest as we greet the approach of more momentous events; but among the things that will make Charlevoix livelier than ever the coming season, will be the outlay of two appropriations.

—Indications that next season will be lively in improvements, and active in business ventures are very promising. Several schemes of building and business investments are occupying the attention of some of our moneyed men, the nature of which we are not at liberty to divulge. But we have the means of knowing that negotiations are in progress, which if successful, will result in great improvement to Charlevoix and add largely to our importance as a trading center.

—The postal law makes it larceny to take a newspaper and refuse to pay for it. A newspaper in Illinois recently brought suit against forty-three men who would not pay their subscriptions, and obtained judgment in each for the full amount of the claim. Of these, twenty-eight men made affidavit that they owned no more property than the law allowed them, thus preventing attachments. Then they, under the decision of the Supreme court, were arrested for petty larceny, and bound over in the sum of $300 each. All but six gave bonds, while six went to jail.

—J. Reed Emrey has gone to Detroit on business.

—Watch your address label and see that your subscription is kept paid up.

—Bear in mind the railroad meeting at Opera Hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

—M. J. Stockman and wife, Albert E. Mason, and Mrs. E. Carpenter, left for Florida last Sunday.

—Wm. Scroggie, of this place, has been appointed Deputy Sheriff, and has entered upon the discharge of his duties.

—The country is in the flood tide of a railroad boom, the sound of which already reaches us in its northward progress.

—J. L. Hurd returned from Ionia, Thursday. Mrs Hurd, who is visiting her parents in that city, has fully recovered her health.

—In railroad circles there is just now more talk of "Northern Michigan extensions" than of any other lower peninsula schemes.

—The Detroit Evening Journal keeps up its reputation of being the best evening paper in Michigan. Its carriers' address was the handsomest thing of the kind ever issued in the state.

—Elsewhere will be found a statement of the financial condition of the Charlevoix Savings Bank. The exhibit shows a solid and prosperous condition of affairs in the bank, and reflects credit on its managers.

—Kalamazoo Telegraph: Petoskey eyes lay out on Petoskey's capacious cheeks in green-orbed envy over the talked of branch of the Michigan Central from Crawford county to Charlevoix via Mancelona. It does look threatening and full of danger.

—Every seat in the Congregational church was occupied Monday evening by interested listeners to the instructive lecture of Mrs. Waterman on Persia. Persian life and manners, the tribal characteristics of that ancient people, and the progress among them of Christian civilization, was her theme, and, understanding it thoroughly, she made the occasion one of interest and intellectual profit to every hearer. We hope to hear the subject continued upon some future occasion.

It is hinted in responsible business circles that the Pine Lake Lumber Company have a jealous eye upon the west side of the Arm, and that, in the event of the M. C. R. R. branch being built, they will remove their mills there. Whether they do or not, they are a factor in the matter, as the transfer of one mile, by ice or water, would be far more profitable than present methods. The fact that the company have secured land on the west side gives a truthful aspect to the report. The Pine Lake Lumber Company is the most extensive hardwood lumber concern in Charlevoix county, if not in Northern Michigan.

—We "own the corn." We were in error in stating that the tug Minnie Warren was pulled into Pine river with a stump machine. It was the tug Starke, the following season. While we are dealing in reminiscences, we are reminded that it was the season after Henry Morgan deepened the channel to five feet by means of a scraper rigged on a scow with a team of horses on either shore, and a breakwater of slabs placed under the shore end of the old dock, was the only protection to the channel. The writer has many times caught trout with a fly below the bridge and just above the bridge has seen an otter swimming the river. Spring suckers, taken with a spear from the river below the bridge, were a luxury at the old Charlevoix House—now Chalounka's saloon. Those days nobody ever got drunk except when a propeller wooded, and then they made up for lost time. Beefsteak was as much of a rarity to us then as fresh salmon is now, and could only be secured by getting on the right side of a propeller steward. A Chicago or Milwaukee paper two or three days old was then lightning news, and the man who stood in with the captain or engineer was the lucky recipient thereof. The paper was generally read by the entire community before it was duplicated in the mail. The all-absorbing topic of conversation then was "harbor," and a survey and appropriation was the chiefest of our hopes, which was only realized after protracted agitation and repeated disappointments. In 1870 the prospects for a harbor were not as bright as they now are for a railroad, and when the first sail vessel floated in Round Lake our joy was only exceeded by that which possessed our souls when the propeller Fountain City came through the bridge for the first time and awakened the whole region by the victorious blasts of her hoarse whistle. From such a condition of things have we passed to the summit of our then fondest hopes, and now we are upon the threshold of another era of progress, the opening of which seems nearer to us than did, in 1869, the one which has, within two decades, brought fruition to our hopes. It is good to look back over the past and number the milestones of our material advancement; but it is better to look forward in hopeful anticipation of what is to come, working together for the common good, relegating croakers and grumblers to the rear, and by our energy and enterprise show that we are worthy of the blessings of the past, and deserving of the best that we can hope for in the future.

Short, Friendly Epistles.

To Mancelona: Shake!

To Traverse City and Elk Rapids: We love you, but we can't wait for you.

To J. B. Mulliken, Supt. C. & W. M. Railway: There is room for you when you get ready to come, but we have just woke up, and need exercise badly.

To East Jordan: Let's both ante and make a jack-pot of it.

To Honteeon, editor, Petoskey: Loosen your grip in Charlie Hampton's hair long enough to grasp the idea that all longitude will not forever be reckoned from the Emmet county Greenwich; likewise, that Petoskey will not always be the Rome to which all roads lead. There is a hen on, Honty.

To E. Carpenter, C. Y. Cook, et. al., Florida: Please cancel our order for the purchase of an orange grove. We have decided to buy a toboggan.

To Dougherty, Lansing: Please introduce a bill for the prevention of cruelty to editors. The suggestion is prompted by reading the Record's Hampton editorials. See Perkins about it.

To Jerrne, Sheriff, East Jordan: Yours received. Yes, the photograph gallery is—but we prefer to impart the information in a private interview.

To Hampton, editor, Harbor Spgs: When you think you've got the bulge on Honteeon, drop us a postal card and we will give you a few pointers on Mounseer Gagnaux.

To D——e B——r: Come back, and all will be forgiven.

To Dr. Sweetland, Rush Medical College, Chicago: Yours of recent date received, and contents noted. We have forgotten the address of the Spanish Doctress. Convey our sincere regards to Mrs. S. How is the old woman, anyway?

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Why you should always attend church:

1. It is Christ's training school for life eternal. You can not afford to miss a lesson. See Isa. 2-33.

2. Fidelity in religious life promotes temporal prosperity. Matt. 6-33.

3. Punctuality is as essential to Christ's service as in the business of the world. 2 Peter 1-10.

4. The worship of God rests the body and strengthens the heart after the toils of the week. Read 84 Psalm.

5. Your Pastor may have a message from God which you especially need. His duty to preach implies your duty to hear. Heb. 13-17.

6. The church is a standing protest against the worldliness which grinds human life into the dust. John 17-15 and 16.

7. Because of your example. Matt. 5-16.

8. Your time is very brief. Each Sabbath may be your last. How and where would you like to spend it? Heb. 10-25 and Eccl. 9-10.

Fair play demands that you read, ponder, and act on the above principles. Yours in Christ,

W. H. McC., Pastor.

Episcopal Church.

Bishop Gillespie will visit Christ Church Mission in Charlevoix on Sunday next. Divine service with Holy communion and sermon in Odd Fellows' hall at 10:30 a. m. and evening service and sermon at 4 p. m. The Bishop would be glad to meet everybody at these services and expects to see all who are interested in the Mission.

Elsewhere.

Revival services at Johnson's school house during the evenings of this week.

Preaching at Black's school house next Sabbath at 2:30 o'clock p. m. by Bro. Thurston, and at Johnson's in the evening.

Congregational Church.

Thursday evening, Jan. 13, Luke 14: 7-11. The parable of the men bidden to a feast.

Sunday morning subject: "Is the church a begging institution?" Evening subject, "Where art thou?"

Tuesday evening, Jan. 18, 7:30, address to young people: "What is it made of?"

Baptist Church.

Usual services next Sunday morning at 10:30. Missionary praise service in the evening.

Preaching at Hilton's school house at 3 p. m., Sunday school immediately following. The school was organized last Sunday with the following officers: Superintendent, James O'Brien; Assistant, E. Cook; Secretary, Rebecca Bolton; Treas., Wm. Bolton.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The first monthly temperance meeting will be held at the Congregational church on Monday evening next at 7:30. The programme planned is one that will be of interest to all. Rev. Mr. Clark of the Baptist church, giving the main address; Dr. Carlstein, Al Washburn and Miss Cody furnishing short addresses, readings or recitations. The music will be under the charge of Mr. W. A. Smith. Come everybody and enjoy the programme prepared.

COMMITTEE.

—Fifteen cords of block-wood was the outcome of the Azza Campbell bee yesterday.

What's the matter with the idea of setting aside the park property for depot grounds and other railroad purposes?

CHRONOLOGICAL.

Some of the More Important Happenings of 1886.

The Great Labor Strikes—Deaths of Noted Men—Storms and Earthquakes—Political and Social Events, Both Foreign and Domestic.

AGRICULTURE.

[illegible]

State's evidence May 31 and Jake Sharp was arrested Oct. 19 for the wholesale bribing of aldermen. James W. Foshay, ex-president of the Broadway road, was also arrested.

Mar. 10—The Illinois Supreme Court refused a rehearing in the case of Joseph C. Mackin, the Chicago politician.

Mar. 25—Sam Archer, the last of the notorious "Archer Gang," found guilty of murder, and executed at Shoals, Ind., July 9.

[illegible]

Apr. 28—Johann Most, the New York Anarchist leader, indicted, and arrested in a house of ill repute, May 11. On June 2 sentenced to a one year's term in Sing Sing and to pay a fine of $500.

Apr. 30—Arrest in New York of George Edwards, the noted forger.

May 3—An old man of seventy-three years named Shedd murdered his wife, and then killed himself near Pokonsin, Mich.

May 4—Throwing of the dynamite-bomb into the ranks of three hundred Chicago policemen, who had formed to suppress a socialistic gathering at the West Side Haymarket. One policeman instantly killed, and forty-six wounded, seven fatally. Three Socialists killed and a large number wounded, by the return fire. The following day August and Christ Spies, Michael Schwab and Samuel Fielden were held for the murder of Policeman Degan.

May 16—Norman Lounsbury, aged seventy-eight, in a fit of insanity, killed his sixteen-year-old wife and one of his nephews and then shot himself dead, on a farm near Oswego, N. Y. ...

[illegible]

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

[illegible]

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & P. R. W. LEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, : MICHIGAN.

UNCAGED.

The bird set free from the golden cage
Heeds not the splendor of the wire;
To the clear blue his wings aspire,
Nor the rough winds his zeal assuage.

The dainty seed each morn supplied,
The water pure in crystal vase—
He finds not in the airy space,
Unfurnished, chill, and only wide.

Ah, sweeter far the thistle seed
That floats across his venturous way,
And dew drop sipped from wild-rose sprays!
Who calls him back, in vain shall plead.

The golden wires were prison bars—
They stopped his flight and scarred his wings;
'Tis a rude perch where now he sings,
But then its bounds are sky and stars!

The sky will lower, the sun will set,
The night will fall, the storm will rage;
Hang on the tree the open cage—
But lo! the bird loves freedom yet!

—William C. Richards, in Southern Bivouac.

IN THE WILD WEST.

Adventures of an Old Hunter Who Was Scalped.

How He Supposed Himself Twice Dead—Three Angry Bears Fighting to a Finish—the Fate of the Victor.

It has often been said that a man can not live after being scalped. One of the Crow Indian scouts with Custer before that brave officer met his fate, was caught by a party of Sioux alone on the prairie and scalped alive. His enemies cut a pear-shaped piece out of the crown of his head and left him writhing in agony, supposing he would, of course, die. Notwithstanding all of which, the redskin recovered, and at last accounts was living with his people on the Crow reservation and doing well. There is an old hunter in Western Montana whose cabin is located on the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains, who had his hair raised some years ago by a band of savages, and yet he lives and thrives in most astonishing good health. The old fellow's name is Ganzio, and by reason of his advanced years would, in the natural course of events, have white hair now, only that he has no hair at all to speak of. Still, what little he has got, is whitened or gray, the rest of his head, "where the hair ought to grow," being as bald as a billiard-ball. To be exact, Ganzio did not lose his entire scalp, but only a portion of it. The probabilities are that he could not have survived with the loss of the whole top of his head. Some few years ago, when Sitting Bull was master of this country, Ganzio was the guide of an emigrant party en route to Fort Laramie, Wy. T.

The story of that dangerous expedition is an exceedingly interesting one, and as related by himself runs as follows: "One day we were coming into the valley of Hat creek, on our way to Fort Laramie, when we thought we saw Indians coming down the creek to the right. Instead of camping there, we thought it safer to water our stock and go on to the hills and make a dry camp in the bushes. I had been sent on ahead up to the hill to reconnoiter, and took with me a boy named Kountze, from Omaha, merely for company. We sat down to wait for the wagons, which were slowly coming up out of the valley. When the wagons reached us I started on alone through the rocks and pine bushes to seek a good camp. A few hundred yards further on I looked down a ravine to the right and saw five mounted Indians ride across the valley. I started to go back to the train, when at least a dozen Indians ran at me out of the brush, and you bet I ran and called for help. In a minute more two or three of them shot at me. I felt a sharp, stinging pain in my right leg, and another in my left shoulder, and I fell. Then they were upon me in a minute, and one of them put his knee on my back while another hit me a clip with a club. Another struck me with the butt of a gun, and then I became partly unconscious. Still I had reason and feeling enough left to know that I was being scalped; for the hair held so tightly, and the pain was so awful, that I could not die then even if I wanted to. I felt a hot, stinging pain all around the top of my head—the hair being torn out by the roots, so to speak—and it was too much. I died, or at least I thought I did; but as it happened my scalp, or a part of it, was saved just as it was being torn off. The boys at the wagon had seen me running; saw the Indians, and came at a run—thirteen of them, arriving just in time to prevent the red devils finishing their work. The Indians, as well as my friends, thought I was dead, but I came to again, and what was left of my scalp was laid back in place. It was only half torn off you see, and the place is pretty well healed now."

"What did you do with yourself afterward?" I inquired.

"Why, I hurried into Fort Laramie, got the attention of a physician and went back to the States for a while; but the Western fever came strong upon me again and I had to return to the mountains, where I have been ever since."

Observing four bear-skins on the floor (two of them immense in size—one a grizzly, one a silver tip and two cinnamon hides), I made bold to ask Mr. Ganzio if he was the slayer himself or whether they had been obtained from somebody else.

"No," he replied, "I did not kill them all, but I bagged two out of four—the grizzly and the silver tip; and the other two cinnamon brutes were killed by the very silver tip I killed myself."

"That was a remarkable occurrence," I ventured to say, "and if you have the time to spare, Ganzio, I should like to hear the stories connected with all four."

"Well, you see," began the old timer, "the grizzly hide over there on the boards was killed more than twenty years ago down in Colorado. To own the truth it happened so far back that I have forgotten the particulars; but the silver tip next to it," lighting a fresh pipe and pointing out the one designated, "while not so big as any of the others, was the toughest customer of them all, and weighed, when dressed, nigh on a thousand pounds. There are three distinct kind of bears in this country, and also a fourth kind, a mongrel species. There are the grizzly, the cinnamon, and the black bear, then comes the fourth already mentioned, called the silver tip, a cross between the grizzly and the cinnamon, and the most dangerous of them all, for he possesses the ferociousness of the former, while he has all the activity of the latter. The silver tip seldom comes down out of the mountains but lives habitually in high latitudes, and subsists for the most part on the flesh of the animals he kills. The grizzly also eats flesh, but he is fond of berries too. The cinnamon eats only roots and herbs, while the black bear makes regular descents among the foot-hills and in the valleys searching for honey and berries. A black bear was discovered last fall on the prairie about four miles from Fort Missoula. Some of the soldiers discovered him and gave chase, and they actually rounded that fellow up, preventing him from getting back into the mountains, until he was driven smack into the fort, where he was killed on the parade ground.

"But, speaking of them skins over there, I'll tell you the whole story just as it happened to myself. It was somewhere about ten years ago, when I was prospecting over in the neighborhood of Deadwood, that I belonged to a party of four who had agreed to work that year in partnership. We struck out one morning from camp for a day's work among the mountains, each fellow going in a different direction, and agreeing to meet that night in Deadwood to compare notes and share the finds among all alike. I started up the gulch, following an old Indian trail four miles or better, then branched off up the mountain side to see if I couldn't find the mother of a rich piece of rock which I had picked up in the gulch the day previous, and which was just sparkling with pyrites of gold, iron and lead. It was about two o'clock in the afternoon, when I was making my way out of the mountains and back to join the boys, that I came to a thicket of quaking asps. Now, I have seen asps quake often, and I have seen them quake so hard, too, that an Eastern bummer's jim-jams is nothing to the way those trees shake; but the little thicket in front of me was just a-bending and a-howling as if a forty-mile wind was blowing through it. Says I to myself: 'Old boy, you've got an elk; you've got an elk, and no mistake; so look sharp to your gun and the meat is yours.' Slipping six cartridges into the magazine, I cocked my gun, and holding it ready, crept softly through the bushes to see what kind of a circus was going on.

"You can believe me or not, stranger, but as sure as Moses was swapped in the bulrushes, clear me out for a tenderfoot, but I saw three bears in a little clearing going at it hammer and tongs, fighting to the death. Two of them were cinnamon mates and the other was a silver tip. Lord, how the fur did fly! The plucky silver tip would slap first one and then the other. The cinnamon cusses didn't seem to have sense enough to tackle the big mongrel together, but they came up one at a time, only to get a dose which the other fellow always had ready for them. The silver tip knocked them out every time and won every round just as he pleased. Pretty soon the pair began to weaken, and then old Ephraim put in his licks thick and fast. He knocked the male flat and proceeded to hug the other. He simply squeezed the life out of her, for I could hear bones snap and crack from where I was hid. The male by this time had recovered a few of his senses and sat upon his haunches like a dog to see how the day was going; but the wise old silver tip, dropping the female for a minute, walked over to where the dazed brute was squatted and brought him such a whack beside the head with his big paw that the poor fellow never did get over it. He simply rolled over on the ground and died without another protest.

"I was much interested in the outcome, and remained an anxious spectator of events to see what the victor would do now that both enemies were slain. Smelling of each and rolling them over to see if thoroughly dead, he went to work in a business-like manner to cache the bodies. Becoming satisfied that life was extinct, he seized the female by the back of the neck and dragged her off to a point about forty yards distant, when he halted, dropped his burden and began to paw industriously at the ground. He worked away until a large hole had been scooped out, when he rolled the body into it and covered the same with brush, twigs, leaves and dirt. By this time I began to understand what the wily old fellow was about. He was simply laying in a store of winter food. Returning to the other carcass he gave it an affectionate squeeze or two and dragged it off in the opposite direction twenty-five or thirty yards. He proceeded to do exactly in this case as in the former, serving the male just as the female had been treated. Having covered the second body to his satisfaction, he looked around, raised his snout in the air, sniffed the breeze three or four times and then gave vent to the most mournful howl, grunt or growl I ever heard in all my life. Concluding that it was time for me to interfere, I raised my gun, took a careful aim at the foreshoulder, and fired. The old monster gave one spring and then stood still, looking about him and growling terribly.

"Again I fired at the shoulder with the same result. But this time the bear saw my smoke and immediately came toward me, with head hanging down and his great, red, bloody tongue hanging out. I was a little frightened then and fired the third shot a trifle wild, for he came steadily forward as if he never felt it. A fourth shot failed to halt him, and the fifth tore away his whole lower jaw. I tell you, stranger, that bear was an awful sight to see after I had given him the fifth ball. Still he came on and did not falter. I threw the last cartridge up into the chamber and waited for him to come close. It was this chance or nothing, and I could not afford to waste that ounce of lead. I had all my hair at that time, stranger, and I tell you it got mighty stiff and seemed to raise the hat off my head. Closer and closer came the enraged animal, until I almost felt his hot breath on my face. Poking the muzzle almost into his mouth, I pulled for the last time, and down we both went. For a minute I really did not know whether I or the bear was killed, but in a few seconds I crawled out from under the huge mass, and then I saw the bear was dead and not I. He had made a lunge just as I fired, fell over on me in the agonies of death, and we rolled among the bushes all in a heap. I rose to my feet, gave a big sigh of relief, and stuck the old fellow under the ribs as a parting send-off. I skinned all three of the bears and returned to camp late that night, telling the story to my pards just as I have told it to you, and, stranger, that is how them three bear hides comes to be lying on the floor."—Fort Keogh Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

FAITHFUL EMPLOYES.

A True Incident Which Shows That Their Fidelity is Frequently Rewarded.

The young man who does just as little as possible for an employer sometimes wonders why he is not given a position in the business house in which he is employed, when a less brilliant companion, who works for another establishment, is advanced very rapidly. The reason probably is that the less brilliant companion is more faithful, and works conscientiously, always seeking to do more than enough merely to secure his salary. Somebody sees and appreciates his work, and when the opportunity comes a better place is given him, which he fills with equal faithfulness. An illustration of this may be found in the following true incident:

A boy about sixteen years of age had been seeking employment in one of our large cities. He had looked vainly for two weeks and was well nigh hopeless of getting any work to do, when, one afternoon, he entered a store kept by a gentleman whom we will call Mr. Stone.

The lad asked the usual question: "Can you give me any thing to do?"

Mr. Stone, to whom he appealed, answered: "No; full now." Then, happening to notice an expression of despondency on the youth's face, said: "If you want to work half an hour or so, go down stairs and pile up that kindling wood. Do it well and I'll give you twenty-five cents."

"All right, and thank you, sir," answered the young man and went below. As the store was about closing for the afternoon he came up-stairs and went to Mr. Stone.

"Ah, yes," said that gentleman, somewhat hastily. "Piled the wood? Well, here's your money."

"No, sir; I'm not through, and I should like to come and finish in the morning," said the young fellow, refusing the silver piece.

"All right," said Mr. Stone, and thought no more of the affair till the next morning, when he chanced to be in the basement, and recollecting the wood-pile, glanced into the coal and wood room. The wood was arranged in orderly tiers, the room was cleanly swept, and the young man was at the moment engaged in repairing the coal-bin.

"Hallo!" said Mr. Stone, "I didn't engage you to do anything but pile up that wood."

"Yes, sir; I know it," answered the lad; "but I saw this needed to be done, and I had rather work than not; but I don't expect any pay but my quarter."

"Humph!" muttered Mr. Stone, and went up to his office without further comment. Half an hour later the young man presented himself, clean and well brushed, for his pay.

Mr. Stone passed him his quarter.

"Thank you," said the youth, and turned away.

"Stop a minute," said Mr. Stone. "Have you a place in view where you can find work?"

"No, sir."

"Well, I want you to work for me. Here,"—writing something on a slip of paper—"take this to that gentleman standing by the counter there; he will tell you what to do. I'll give you six dollars a week to begin with. Do your work as well as you did that down-stairs and—that's all," and Mr. Stone turned away before the young fellow recovered from his surprise sufficiently to speak.

This happened fifteen years ago. Mr. Stone's store is more than twice as large as it was then, and its superintendent to-day is the young man who began by piling up kindling-wood for twenty-five cents. Faithfulness has been his motto. By it he has been advanced, step by step, and has not yet by any means reached the topmost round of success. He is sure to become a partner some day, either with his employer or in some other business house.—Youth's Companion.

COSTLY RAILROADING.

Effect of the Hot Mexican Climate Upon Railroad Ties and Cars.

The expenses of railroading in the hot climate of Mexico are great. Wooden ties have but a short life, cracking in the dry season and rotting during the rainy months; bridge timbers and piles also wear out rapidly. Freight cars must be painted frequently to prevent drying and cracking, and even the substantial Pullman cars shrivel under this exposure. Fuel constitutes a large item of outlay. Mesquite roots are burned on the Central road; pine cut along its route is used by the Inter-Oceanic, and the Vera Cruz Company feeds its engines coal blocks brought from Wales as ballast. The decay of ties will in time necessitate a serious outlay on the Central road, for wooden sleepers cost here one dollar each. It is evident that iron ties are a necessity in Mexico, and they are just coming into use. The climate tends to preserve the iron rails and bridges, provided the latter escape the torrents of the rainy season. Engineers command better wages here than they do in the United States, for only that inducement brings them here. The general staff of the roads are also well paid, but the section hands, who are peons, work for small wages. The natural and proper tendency on all the roads is to employ Mexicans when the right men can be obtained. This policy helps to protect the property of outside corporations doing business here.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

HOME AND FARM.

—It rests you, in sewing, to change your position frequently.—Christian at Work.

—It is said hoarseness may be relieved by using the white of an egg, thoroughly beaten, mixed with lemon-juice and sugar. Take a teaspoonful occasionally.—N. Y. Independent.

—To restore glossy silk when the gloss is caused by constant wear, moisten the silk with a sponge, lay a damp cloth over it and pass a hot iron quickly over the cloth several times till it is quite dry.—Boston Bulletin.

—Mint sauce. Take the youngest leaves of spearmint, carefully cut away all stems, chop very fine, put a teaspoonful of sugar to two or three of the mint, use sufficient vinegar to be thoroughly flavored by the mint. Prepare it at least an hour before it is to be used.—Boston Budget.

—Stock need more heat-producing food in winter than in summer, even to live. The fat-forming and heat-producing elements should be made to bear a certain relationship to each other, according to the season of the year.—Farmer and Stockman.

—Wall-pockets, for holding a supply of pocket-handkerchiefs, to be reached without the trouble of pulling open a drawer, are a sensible invention. They are made of plush or leather, and have a flap that keeps the contents of this pocket free from dust.—Chicago Journal.

—Should the eye or any other part be blackened by a fall or blow, apply a cloth wrung out of very warm water, and renew it until the pain ceases. The moisture and heat liquefy the blood and send it back to its proper channel. Never use cold water to a bruise.—N. Y. Telegram.

—Rice Bread: Rice bread makes a variety for the breakfast-table. Take one pint of well-boiled rice, half a pint of flour, the yolks of four eggs, two spoonfuls of melted butter, one pint of milk, a little salt and a large spoonful of sugar. Beat all these ingredients till very smooth, and then add the beaten whites of the four eggs. Bake in shallow pans, and serve hot.—Chicago News.

—Crumb Griddle Cakes: The night before using, put some bread crumbs to soak in one quart of sour milk; in the morning rub through a sieve, and add four well-beaten eggs, two teaspoons soda dissolved in a little water, one tablespoon melted butter, and enough cornmeal to make them the consistency of ordinary griddle cakes. It is better to beat yolks and whites separately, stirring the white lightly in just before baking.—Exchange.

—Flaky Soda Biscuits: Mix together a quart of very dry flour, a teaspoonful of baking soda, two of cream of tartar, and a saltspoonful of salt; pass through a sieve, then chop in two ounces of butter or lard, and mix quickly with milk to make a very soft dough. Flour the board well, roll out, sprinkle with flour, double it over and roll out again; cut into biscuits half an inch thick. Bake in a very hot oven about fifteen minutes.—Good Housekeeping.

—Old horses often get in the habit of swallowing their food too fast. This is from a painful realization of the danger of not getting a square meal if they delay. None the less the habit is a bad one, and should be corrected. A few clean cobble-stones mixed with the oats in their box and left there will cause them to pick the feed over slowly and masticate it more thoroughly. Cut feed is less likely to be eaten rapidly than whole grain, and dry meal than that which has been wet.—N. Y. Examiner.

SIMPLE ROUTINE.

A Magazine Writer Tells How President Cleveland Lives.

President Cleveland rises at half-past seven o'clock, dresses and shaves himself, and is ready for breakfast at eight. He breakfasts en famille, and finishes his morning repast in less than thirty minutes. His breakfast usually consists of oatmeal, beefsteak, coffee, hot cakes and eggs. He is very fond of fruit, and eats freely of it. He leaves the breakfast table and goes directly to his office and begins work without any exercise whatever, writing letters and looking over papers until ten o'clock, when the callers begin to arrive. He then has a siege of a couple of hours with the statesmen and office-seekers, which lasts until 1:30 o'clock, when he is ready for his luncheon. He eats this in less than fifteen minutes, and, like his every day breakfasts and dinners, it is eaten in the private dining-room, and the whole family sit down together. President Cleveland's lunch consists of bread and butter, cold meats, a little fruit and a cup of tea.

After he has eaten it he goes directly back to his office and works steadily until four. At this time he goes out to drive in company with his private secretary, Colonel Lamont. He returns in time for dinner, which is ready at seven o'clock. He does not dress for dinner in the conventional style, except when he has guests, who will appear in evening dress. His private dinners are plain. Wine is served only when there are guests present who are accustomed to drinking wine with their meats. He is not so fond of beer as has been reported by the newspapers, the total White House consumption of this article during the past year being not more than two dozen bottles. The President's daily dinner consists of five or six courses. First there is soup, then fish, then a roast, followed by game, dessert, fruit, and, after dinner, coffee. He does not sit long at table and immediately on leaving it he goes up into the corridor of the second story of the White House and smokes a cigar, after which he goes back to his work. President Cleveland never smokes in his office, and the only smoking he does is this solitary post-prandial cigar. He goes to bed about midnight, and falls asleep as soon as his head touches the pillow. His system is such that six or seven hours sleep is sufficient for him.—Lippincott's Magazine.

—Three men in Flagstaff, A. T., toiled all one night to get a barrel supposed to contain whisky out of a cellar and away to their camp. When they tapped it they found it contained kerosene oil.

A German's Curious Will.

[Chicago Times.]

The following curious will, written in a[illegible] formed hand upon a sheet of store paper, was filed recently in the register's office at Pittsburgh, Pa., for probate:

Essex, Nov. 16th, [illegible] This my last Willing. Mister Carl Hoff owes my 80 Dollar—eighty Dollar. I make him a present of 20 Dollar—twenty Dollar, and the rest of 60 Doll. Sixty Dollar, I want him to gev it to Mistr Frank Oelshlager, vor he is the men he has to sent it to mi Perens to germany, and then I belong to S. S. Risingbummer Arbeiter Bauverein and so I wohl like to See that the Bauverein wold take Mr. Frank Oelshlager on mi pleas, vor he is the men to witch I giv mi sisers to. A. HESS.

The Old Man's Monstrous Luck.

[N. Y. Graphic.]

It is said that in Clearfield County, Pa., there are living a man and his two sons who are married to three sisters, and the strangest part of it is that the old man captured the youngest sister, while his youngest son got the oldest one.

No lawyer is a member of the Montana Territorial Council.

Gen. Rufus Ingalls, Quartermaster-General, says St. Jacobs Oil is the best pain-cure.

Governors and other officials recommend Red Star Cough Cure, as safe, prompt, sure. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

There are thirty thousand brass bands in this country. That accounts for our terrible wind storms.—Boston Transcript.

Chicago to the Winter Resorts of the South.

The first line to meet the requirements of a direct means of communication between Chicago and the South was the Evansville Route (Chicago & Eastern Illinois and Evansville & Terre Haute Railroads) and it is rapidly and deservedly becoming the most popular. It is essentially a pleasure route, offering special inducements to the traveler or tourist and at the same time is the fastest and by many miles the most direct, passengers being conveyed from Chicago to Nashville in fifteen hours, without change, while New Orleans and Jacksonville, Fla., are brought within forty hours' continuous journey, with but one change. This is unprecedented traveling to the South.

Arrangements are made with all lines south of the Ohio river to insure close connections, and a trip to Memphis, Little Rock, Hot Springs, Birmingham, Montgomery, Mobile, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Charleston, Pensacola and all points in Florida, becomes a matter of little moment, so direct is the communication between them and Chicago by the Evansville Route. In addition to speed both safety and comfort have received careful consideration. Palace Buffet Sleeping Cars run without change between Chicago and Nashville, while ample provision is made for the comfort of the traveler beyond Nashville. Sleeping Car accommodations can be secured ten days in advance. For further particulars write to or call on your nearest railroad agent, or to William Hill, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, Chicago.

The wind is always blowing about something; but there is nothing in it.—N. O. Picayune.

Female dancers were first introduced in the ballet in 1681. Some of them are with us yet.—Cambridge Chronicle.

A Wonderful Freak of Nature is sometimes exhibited in our public exhibitions. When we gaze upon some of the peculiar freaks dame nature occasionally indulges in, our minds revert back to the creation of man, "who is so fearfully and wonderfully made." The mysteries of his nature have been unraveled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, and through his knowledge of those mysteries he has been able to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a specific for all blood taints, poisons and humors, such as scrofula, pimples, blotches, eruptions, swellings, tumors, ulcers and kindred affections. By druggists.

Lead astray—the shot of a green sportsman.—Yonkers Gazette.

$500 Not Called For.

It seems strange that it is necessary to persuade men that you can cure their diseases by offering a premium to the man who fails to receive benefit. And yet Dr. Sage undoubtedly cured thousands of cases of obstinate catarrh with his "Catarrh Remedy," who would never have applied to him, if it had not been for his offer of the above sum for an incurable case. Who is the next bidder for cure or cash!

The latest thing for breakfast—the young man of the family.

A Deceived Woman

is the lady who uses cosmetics, face lotions, white lead, bismuth powders, arsenic, etc., in the belief of enriching and beautifying the complexion. It is but temporary, and ultimately destroys the skin beyond the power of nature to restore. Stop it! Stop it now, and use only Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which imparts the vigor and loveliness of youth.

Who make the best prophets in winter? Plumbers and coal dealers.

A Bonanza Mine

of health is to be found in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," to the merits of which, as a remedy for female weakness and kindred affections, thousands testify.

Every miser should have a chest protector.—Boston Post.

A slight cold, if neglected, often attacks the lungs. Brown's Bronchial Troches give sure and immediate relief.

Railroad brakemen should emigrate to Switcher-land.—St. Paul Herald.

The Public Awards the Palm to Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar for coughs.

Pike's Toothache Drops Cure in one minute.

Reckless men are going to Rouen.—St. Paul Herald.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

"What might be considered the shortest way to spell dog!—K 9."—New Age.

No Opium in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

After Diphtheria

The patient recovers strength slowly, as the system is weak and debilitated, and the blood poisoned by the ravages of the disease. What is needed is a good reliable tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has just the elements of strength for the body, and vitality and richness for the blood which soon bring back robust health. After scarlet fever or pneumonia it is also of great benefit.

"After recovering from a prolonged sickness with diphtheria, and needing something to build me up, I took two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I felt good results from the first dose. It seemed to go from the top of my head to the ends of my toes. I know Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good thing." G. E. STRATTON, Druggist, Westfield, Mass.

"Upon our little girl, who had been sick with scarlet fever, the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla was most marvelous, entirely removing the poison from her blood and restoring her to good health. Hood's Sarsaparilla deserves our highest praise." E. G. STRATTON, Swampscott, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

A LIMITED OFFER, GREAT CHANCE!

65 Cents Pays for a Year's subscription to the Weekly American Rural Home, Rochester, N. Y. [illegible]

[illegible]

RURAL HOME CO. (Limited).

OH! MY BACK

Every strain or cold attacks that weak back and nearly prostrates you.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

THE BEST TONIC

Strengthens the Muscles, Steadies the Nerves, Enriches the Blood, Gives New Vigor.

[illegible]

BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

WIZARD OIL CONCERTS

Have been enjoyed by the citizens of every city in the U. S. Many thousands of people have witnessed by thousands.

THE WONDERFUL CURES performed by

Hamlin's Wizard Oil.

Sore Throat, Catarrh, Croup, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Sprains,

Rheumatism,

Lame Back, Bruises, Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Frost Bites, Sore Nipples, Sore Eyes,

All Aches and Pains.

[illegible]

Address WIZARD OIL COMPANY, CHICAGO.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

It is wonderful how quick Ely's Cream Balm helped and cured me. I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head. For a week at a time I could not see.—Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

CATARRH

HAY-FEVER

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable to use. Price 50 cts. [illegible] ELY BROTHERS, [illegible]

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

[illegible]

AN INVALUABLE [illegible]

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

HIGHEST AWARDS OF MEDALS IN AMERICA AND EUROPE.

[illegible]

SEABURY & JOHNSON, [illegible]

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

For Liver, Bile, Indigestion, etc. [illegible] MESSRS. FULLER & [illegible]

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

[illegible]

LADIES [illegible]

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY, [illegible]

MASON & HAMLIN

UNRIVALED ORGANS

UPRIGHT PIANOS.

[illegible]

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

Boston, New York, Chicago.

Our Little Ones and the Nursery.

[illegible]

One year, $1.50

Russell Publishing Co., [illegible]

AGENTS WANTED [illegible]

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT

THE GREAT CURE FOR ITCHING PILES AND SKIN HUMOR

[illegible]

Holiday Music

FOR HOLIDAY GIFTS.

[illegible]

LYON & HEALY, CHICAGO.

[illegible]

OAKLAWN PERCHERON HORSES.

[illegible]

M. W. DUNHAM, [illegible]

CATARRH

[illegible]

30,000 CARPENTERS [illegible]

RUPTURE [illegible]

WE WANT YOU! [illegible]

WANTED [illegible]

OPIUM HABIT [illegible]

A. N. K.—A.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 12, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Death conquers a millionaire as easily as it conquers a pauper and knows no difference between them.

The senatorial contest at Lansing is being conducted on all sides with such good humor that a wise choice may be set down as a certain result, whoever may be the individual named by the republican caucus.

If Uncle Peter Cooper were on earth he would take the Greenback party by the back of the neck and crack its heels for riding on the steps of the Democratic platform. Uncle Peter was a protectionist, like Mr. Powderly, "from the sole of his feet to the top of his head.

When the new south comes to the front and demands that Congressman Smalls of South Carolina shall have his seat in congress and demands and enforces the demand that hereafter elections in all southern states shall be fairly conducted, then the north will take stock in the new south.

Detroit Tribune: Yes, the world owes us all a living, but it never agreed to hire a delivery and bring it around to us. It grows plenty of corn, but somebody must shell it. The man who snores all day and gambles all night owes the world a blamed sight more than the world owes him.

The reported alliance between Germany and Russia can hardly be overestimated as to the importance of its bearing upon affairs in Europe, and it cannot be said that the agreement alledged to have been made is an agency of peace. It is more likely a harbinger of war, and possibly of more wars than one.

The Grand Army boys throughout the state will be pleased to know that the Board of Managers of the Soldiers' Home, have selected Gen. B. R. Pierce as Commandant of the Home. This is an appointment every way fitting and satisfactory. Gen. Pierce is to-day the ranking volunteer officer in Michigan. No man in the state has taken greater interest in the welfare of his old comrades in arms than he.

The Railway Age publishes a table of the extent of railway construction in the several states and territories during the year just closed. The total mileage of new main-line track built was over 8,000. This has been exceeded in only two years in the railway history of this country, viz: in 1881, when 9,796 miles of track were constructed, and in 1882, when 11,568 miles were constructed.

The New York Sun is determined not to let up. It opens the new year with this crack at the President over the back of the Attorney General: "When the sun set for the last time in 1886 it saw a Pan Electric Attorney General in the Department of Justice. Will he be permitted to stay there during 1887? It would be unfortunate for Mr. Cleveland if he should be found there in 1888?"

Congressman Cutcheon is reported as saying that his decision not to run as a candidate for Senator was partly because he feared that such candidacy might tend to create dissensions among the Republicans of his Congressional district, and he would rather sacrifice any hope which he might have of success, than to be the cause near or remote of any marring of the party's harmony in a district which for the past three elections had given him and the Republican cause such splendid support.

It is remembered that Senator Logan once selected the epitaph for his own tomb. It is so appropriate that it is here reproduced as near as memory can recall it. When the Senator was in Kansas last summer he spoke at Ottawa; and after referring to the fact that he had been criticised for giving what had been termed excessive attention to the soldiers, he said: "When I am dead and gone I want no better epitaph than this: 'Logan made it his business to look after the interests of the soldiers.' "

The editor of the Atlanta Constitution, Mr. H. W. Grady, whose speech at the New England dinner has made him so famous, is one of the strongest protection democrats of the south. In his opinion free trade would be fatal to the prosperity of the "New South," and his voice and pen will continue to do valiant service for protection and the growing industries of the country. He is an able representative of the "New Southerner," and to the rear must go the old fossils who live entirely on the past. As the Chicago Inter Ocean pertinently remarks, "Mr Grady and his clan can not long find pasturage amid the dry stubble of free trade democracy."

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Notes From the State Teachers' Association.

Prof. Daniel Putnam, of the chair of Pedagogics of the State Normal School, in his paper on "Some Pedagogic Principles and their Applications," showed that some of the current maxims of the day, relating to education, while they are glibly passed from lip to lip, are yet so vaguely understood by a large majority of teachers, as to be sadly misapplied, and often absolutely perverted, thus doing more harm than good. Every teacher should read this paper; it will doubtless be published in the Moderator.

***

The order of mental action is to apprehend things as wholes, and then to proceed at once to analysis. This led teachers to teach reading by the word method, but many stop with an attempt to apply only the first part of the principle, wholly disregarding the second part, which would demand that we proceed, as soon as the word is known as a whole, to analyze it and learn the elements of which it is made up.

***

No sentiment uttered in the convention, was more heartily and unanimously applauded than that of Supt. J. G. Plowman of White Pigeon concerning the question, 'how to spell.' He said he had worked long enough in his present field to see the effects of teaching words without the elements, and after ignoring it for many years, he had come back to the firm belief that the true way to spell orally was by the old method of s-y-l, syl, l-a-b, lab, syl-lab, l, syl-lab-l, f-i, fi, syl-lab-i-fi, c-a, ca, syl-lab-i-fi-ca, t-i-o-n, tion, syl-lab-i-fi-ca-tion.

***

Prof L. R. Fiske of Albion College, gave a masterly presentation of the relation of education to the labor problem of the present day.

Education will not make capitalists of all present wage earners; it will make laborers more intelligent, more independent, more provident and more happy and content for those reasons.

The prosperity of a country is not measured by its industrial production, but by consumption of those products, if that production be rational.

Education must fit boys and girls to be men and women, and not simply bank cashiers, clerks, drawing room belles or society ornaments. The object must be, not to educate them out of the sphere in which we find them, but to make them happy in any sphere in which circumstances place them.

***

A paper on Teachers' Institutes by Hamilton King of Olivet College, advocated reducing the number of conductors, and employing each a greater length of time. Some ideas brought out in the discussion showed a great variety of opinion as to the utility of the Institute: E. g. —"County Examiners should uniformly credit teachers for attendance and thus encourage more to take advantage of them."——"No per cent. of credit ought to be given for attendance, since many teachers attended only to get their standing raised enough to obtain a certificate."——"Institutes should not be held during sessions of school; lazy teachers will go simply because they can get pay for the time." (Applause by the Association including the editor.)——"Institutes should give academic instruction in branches to be taught." —"They should give instruction in Theory and Art of Teaching;" and so on, for a half hour.

***

The attendance of teachers at the Association was the largest ever known; a hopeful sign.

QUESTION BOX—SERIES OF 1887.

(1) Who was the "Bachelor" President?

(2) Who made the first United States flag?

(3) What ex-Vice President was tried for treason?

(4) Who invited the lightning rod?

(5) What President-elect went to the capital in disguise?

The monthly teachers' meeting was postponed to this evening on account of Mrs. Waterman's lecture on Persia.

School opens for the winter term with a good attendance. The Grammar and High school departments are especially full.

When Colonel Ingersoll and his class of orators do away with Christmas and its associations they will begin to make headway. Men just as eloquent and far more energetic have for centuries done their best, while "the star in the east" has continued to shine with renewed luster.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Northern Michigan News.

[illegible] D. Ward, of Boyne City, is an inmate of the Michigan soldiers' home.

D. H. Stebbins, of Banks, arrived home from his western trip last week Thursday.

Edward Stevenson, for years register of the land office at Reed City, died at [illegible] Jan. [illegible].

James [illegible], of Petoskey, cut his knee in a shocking manner recently, while working in Darrah's camp at Clarion.

The G. A. R. hall at Howard City was destroyed by fire on the 5th. W. F. Thompson, of Ithica, owned the hall. Loss, $1,600; insurance light.

Chas. Grammell of Elk Rapids, for [illegible] years a resident of this region, and proprietor of Grammell's brewery, died at his home on Friday last at the age of 42 years.

Chas. Rosenthal, of Petoskey, who has been running the Charlevoix store during the past week, in the absence of Aleck. Rosenthal, is to start a clothing store at Newberry.

Mr. Ralph Connable, of Petoskey, having more interests than can properly receive his attention, has decided to dispose of his retail book and stationery stock in the postoffice building.

We understand that an appropriation of $50,000 has been asked for, to defray the expense of erecting suitable docks and storehouses for buoys and lighthouse supplies at Harbor Springs.

The Escanaba Delta says: "The eleven cedar camps on the river are expected to put on the river banks this winter 700,000 pieces, and with 25,000,000 feet of logs will make a big drive next spring.

At Elk Rapids recently, John Nelson, employed at the furnace, fell down an elevator about 35 feet, breaking two ribs and being injured internally. He came near being crushed to death by the cage settling on him.

Blast No. 11, of the Elk Rapids Iron Co. commenced June 16, 1885, and ended Dec. 23, 1886. Actual time in blast, 515¼ days. Total amount of pig iron made, 29,985 tons and 285 pounds—an average of 51.97 tons per day.

At Bellaire, on the 5th, the steam chest in the factory of Richardi & Becktold burst. Charles Richardi was struck in the pit of the stomach by a missile therefrom, and was terribly scalded. His injuries are undoubtedly fatal.

Capt. Roe is fixing up a skating rink on the ice opposite his place at Harbor Springs, and will surround it with a board fence sixteen feet high so that the heels of learners will not shew above the top board when they slip up.

A man named Adsley, working for T. R. Bentley, at Traverse City, met with a serious accident last week. In some unaccountable manner he was thrown on a saw and his left arm below the elbow was cut off. Dr. Thompson set the limb, sowed it on and is going to see if it won't grow on again.

At the recent East Jordan fire, a drug store belonging to L. C. Madison was destroyed. He is secretary of the K. of L. assembly there, and one day recently the brethren, to show their good will for their suffering brother, commenced for him the erection of a store building 22x40 at 7 o'clock in the morning, and had it enclosed by 5 o'clock the same day.

Kalkaska Leader: J. C. Gray, after the plan of the Arctic explorers, made a cache in a snow bank, and deposited therein his winter supply of fresh hog meat. Some dog whose moral training was sadly neglected, jumped his claim, however, and unless a relief expedition is organized soon, Si. may share the fate of the Greeley expedition.

The Antrim County Agricultural Society meeting last week was not very largely attended. R. R. Wilkinson was re-elected President, C. S. Gulle, Secretary; John A. Harrman, Treas.; J. H. Kocher and Alex Campbell, Directors. The books of the Society were balanced and a notice ordered published that outstanding orders against the society would be paid on presentation. Their grounds are to be seeded.

Petoskey Record: Rosenthal has a number of wooden "dummies" setting around his store, upon which to display clothing to advantage. One day not long ago one of our brightest young ladies entered the store and was surprised to see boots sticking out under the long overcoat which draped the form of one dummy. Taking hold of the tail of the overcoat she yanked it up, surveyed the breeches and boots a moment and remarked, "well, that's the first time I ever saw a dummy in a clothing store with boots on." Just then the dummy turned round on said number ten stogas—and the lady dropping the tail of the overcoat, found herself gazing into the face of a big, ugly, but very much alive man.

The G. R. & I. depot at Big Rapids was destroyed by fire last week.

G. S. Thomas, of Dwight's Landing, removes to Washington Territory this week.

Elk Rapids Progress: We are going to have the C. & W. M., and so's Charlevoix.

The Elk Rapids Iron Company have raised the price of wood to $1.40 a cord, on the beach.

Near Traverse City last week, Ole Westland was instantly killed by a tree falling on him crushing his abdomen.

In a list of a hundred Michigan soldiers granted pensions in December appears the name of Capt. Israel Canby, of Harbor Springs.

W. L. Stigar, of Banks, expects to engage quite extensively in fishing on the bay the coming season. He will build a refrigerator this winter at Antrim.

Constable & Sons, of Petoskey, buy fish from the straits of Mackinaw to Leland, covering 120 miles of shore line, besides the Fox and Beaver islands.

A few weeks since, two of A. L. Carter's boys were at work getting out ties on their father's farm near Mullett Lake. Their dog commenced barking, and the boys went to see what he was after, and found a bear in a hole. The boys had no gun, and started home after one and when on their way, met Samuel Flinn and Quintal Ball. Flinn asked them what they were running for, when the boys told him about the bear. They all went back to the hole and commenced poking the bear with a stick. This caused him to stick his head out of the hole, when Flinn rapped him over the head and killed him.

The Wexford county Board of Supervisors, recently in session at Cadillac, appointed a committee to investigate the charges made against Col. T. J. Thorp by the Cadillac Democrat during the recent campaign, and the examination of the matter was in progress on the 5th. The colonel is charged with various illegal acts while clerk and register of that county, and his political prominence and supposed designs for further personal preferment, probably led to the attack in which, thus far, he has been the loser. His immediate departure from the state after election, and continued absence since, are also against him, and possibly, with the demand of the Democrat, resulted in the investigation above noted. The outcome is awaited with considerable interest.

A. J. McLEOD,

having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid
FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, F. A. Smith, O. D. Wood, A. Dullars, A. Fox,

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of stockholders in all State banks as provided in Act 3171, Sec. 6 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:

NATIONAL PARK BANK, New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK, Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK, Grand Rapids.
DETROIT NAT. BANK, Detroit.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The

Sentinel.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking Skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs." Call at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Burr's Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles $1.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

[illegible timetable]

Bank of

Charlevoix,

W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

[illegible]

Its Officers

[illegible]

Security in Banking

[illegible]

This Bank Invites

[illegible]

This Bank Will

[illegible]

Parties Seeking

[illegible]

Investment Notes,

[illegible]

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.

Correspondence solicited.

Notice of Attachment.

[illegible] FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Attachment.

[illegible] FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Notice of Attachment.

[illegible] FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Chancery Sale.

[illegible] FRANK E. [illegible], Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan. A true copy, attest: SAMUEL B. THATCHER, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1887. [illegible] THE JOHN WILKINSON COMPANY, Mortgagee. FRED W. MAYNE, Atty for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] Friday, the 4th day of March, 1887, [illegible] DAVID CARPENTER, Mortgagee. DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] on Thursday the Twenty Fourth day of February, A. D. 1887, [illegible] Dated November 17th, A. D. 1886. MARTHA J. AYERS, Mortgagee. EDWARD H. GREEN, Attorney for said Mortgagee, Charlevoix, Mich.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the [illegible] block. Inquire of [illegible] Ross.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

For Sale!

Prof. RICE'S nicely located House and two beautiful lots on Clinton street near the Park in the village of Charlevoix, are now for sale. Enquire of G. M. RICE, [illegible], or E. H. GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich. May 4, 1886.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the

BEST BOATS!

[illegible]

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

[illegible]

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS

—AND—

SHOES,

which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything

Usually kept in a country shoe store.

We also have some big bargains in Woman's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25 Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. D. Bradbeer,

PHOTOGRAPHER,

OFFICE OVER

UPRIGHT & EMREY'S STORE.

I will make Cabinet Photographs,

A SPECIALTY!

At Lowest Prices

Consistent with

GOOD WORK.

McCABE'S

MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $[illegible] will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS

FRED W. MAYNE, [illegible]

J. M. HARRIS [illegible]

CHRISTOPHER & GRUB [illegible] Office in Butters Block Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH E. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAINTHORPE & GROVE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLISLE, M. D., Office at residence [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119 [illegible] Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC [illegible]

I. O. O. F.—[illegible]

K. O. T. M.—[illegible] Tent No. 148, meets [illegible] Thursday [illegible] at Odd Fellows Hall.

I. O. G. T.—[illegible]

EMMET CHAPTER No. [illegible] R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. [illegible] K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY [illegible] fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

[illegible]

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, Mich.
[illegible]

NEWMAN HOUSE,
W. D. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
[illegible]

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.
[illegible] BROWN & CO.

PILE DRIVER.

[illegible]

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. [illegible] and J. [illegible] NIXON, Surveyors [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy county surveyors [illegible] county.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Wood's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY

AND

FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER

Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of

FANCY GOODS!

Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,

FURNITURE

AND

JOBBING SHOP,

Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

[illegible] of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Give me call.

Forty Acres

OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE county, close to North Adams village, to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address GAMBLE & CAMPBELL, Real Estate Agents, Hillsdale, Mich.

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and completest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir. $1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and [illegible] by engaging in the sale of this remedy. [illegible] PAN-ZAMA [illegible], Frankfort, Ind.

THE GROCER'S CLERK:

—Or,—

The Story of His Aunt Louisa's Legacy.

I am a clerk in a country store, and sometimes I wish I'd been a martyr in those days when they stretched people on beds of spikes or roasted them on a gridiron. Then I think I could have taken a little comfort in life.

This is the way of it. I am behind the counter on the side where we keep prints, and there [illegible] up to the opposite side, where we keep flannels, a customer neither young nor beautiful. I hurry around and cross, and she asks for calicoes. Then I turn her about and make my way back, and I pull down half a dozen pieces, but she just gazes at the shelves and says she'd like to look at the under piece on the top shelf. I climb up, at the risk of breaking my neck, and get out the under piece, and she concludes 'tisn't what she thought it was. Then she says she'd like to look "at that stripe." I blunder on to every other stripe before I get her particular stripe. Then she says she wants a little figure, and I get all the little figures out for her. She wants to know how much it is a yard. I tell her six cents, and she says she can get better in Springfield for five, and she looks at me suspiciously, as if I was a cheating youth. She wants to know if it'll wash, and I say, "I presume so; most calico does wash," and she looks at me indignantly, as if I was a saucy youth. Then she asks me if we take eggs, and I say we do, and we pay 25 cents, and she says they're paying 30 at the other store; and off she goes, and I put up the prints, and am down at the farther end of the room turning fragments out of a cracker barrel, when back she comes and wants samples.

We keep the post-office, and by the time I get back to my cracker barrel in comes a man who wants to know if he hasn't a letter. He never had a letter in his life, and he knows it, and I know it, but it is one of those facts that both parties ignore, and I go and look, and give him the consoling assurance that he hasn't any, and he departs in peace of mind.

Then there is a lady who wants to match a confounded piece of silk braid, drab bordering on the lilac. It takes me five minutes to find one box of silk braids, and five more to find we haven't drab bordering on the lilac. Then she wants sewing silk of the same shade, and I hunt through all the sewing silks, and there's drab bordering on everything else under the sun excepting lilac; but I know by the way her flounces swept out that a mercantile house not keeping drab bordering on the lilac stands very low.

That's the way it goes day after day, week after week, and I hate tea, detest saleratus, abhor codfish, and wish calico, cotton cloth, drilling, hooks and eyes, and all the rest of the wretched necessities of an artificial civilization were at the bottom of the Indian Ocean. I long to be a savage more than I do to be an angel, and I shall be, one of these days, though I do wear cloth suits and have a shaving-mug at the barber's marked in gilt letters, "S. D. Hyde." I wonder that all self-respect and sentiment of humanity haven't long ago perished from out my bosom.

Such were my reflections one fine morning just after noon time while I was weighing out half a pound of black tea, when my fellow-sufferer in the dry-goods and grocery infliction called out: "Here's a lady inquiring for you, Sam."

In distinct outline before the door stood a little woman, her skirts spread out by a triangular hoop like the skirts of the female figures we used to draw on our slates at school. I came up to make my bow and saw she had deposited a brown willow basket on the show-case and dropped a black, glazed bag at her side. She wore a stringy kind of a shawl with fearfully long fringe, and seemed to be afflicted with the numb palsy.

"Are you my nephew, Sam-well?" asked she.

"My name is Samuel Hyde, ma'am," I replied.

"I'm your father's aunt, Louezer Hyde."

"I'm glad to see you, Aunt Louisa."

She looked at me sharply, as if I was making fun of her. I suppose it is because the corners of my mouth turn up that people are always suspecting me of making fun of them. I wish these corners would sink, and wonder they don't.

"I'm your only living female relative on the father's side," said she.

My business experience with females had been so entertaining that I was glad to learn she was the only one on the father's side.

"As you've no mother, I feel it my duty to help make a home for you."

Instantly I remembered that Aunt Louisa was worth $75,000. I think I learned that fact in early years at the parental knee, along with who made me, and what State I lived in. I know it always stood to my infantile consciousness in the relation of a primary truth. My father, all his life, courted poverty through the medium of dry goods and groceries, and went through bankruptcy as often as the law would allow. During the periodic seasons, before calling the creditors and making an assignment, he used to clasp his hands to his head and ejaculate, "Louisa might help me if she only would!"

But Louisa wouldn't, or at least didn't, and whatever may be thought of her affection for her nephew, mature observations on the oscillating nature of the molasses and ginger market have convinced me that her judgment was eminently sound.

"I'm delighted to see you, Aunt Louisa. I'll go right down to my boarding-place with you."

With a brown willow basket in one hand and a shiny leather bag in the other and my greataunt tottering behind—why under heaven's name she didn't walk by my side I couldn't see!—we meandered down the street.

We met Evelina Plympton. I was engaged to Evelina. I had enjoyed that honor ever since one July evening when there came up a sudden thunder-shower, and she clasped my arm and ejaculated she was "so timid." An engagement was an annual episode with Evelina. When I solemnly asked Pa Plympton's consent he didn't remove his pipe from his mouth, but just nodded and pursued his previous train of thought. Evelina smiled patronizingly upon me. Deference to the aged, I knew, she considered beautiful.

My aunt didn't like my boarding-place, and after a great deal of search we succeeded in finding a house to her liking, with the "buttery" on the north-east corner, opening into the dining-room and kitchen. The next momentous step was to get my aunt's "things" moved.

I need not say that our residence, when furnished was neat but not gaudy. I sighed for my former cozy quarters, but I remembered my aunt's valuation, and reasoned that if she was my only living female relative on the father's side I must of necessity be her only living male relative on the mother's side.

We kept one servant, whose wages my aunt thought it right I should pay, because, as she said, if there was no one but herself, she shouldn't keep a girl. Our [illegible] was managed with the strictest regard to economy. We lived largely upon soup, my aunt highly esteeming [illegible].

For two or three years I had been in the habit of smoking a single cigar at the close of the day's labors. One evening I was sitting on the piazza indulging in this luxury, when out came my aunt.

"Sam-well," she cried, "are you smoking?"

"Yes'm," very meekly.

"Well," said she, calmly but firmly, "none of my money shall ever go up in cigar smoke." Then again, "How much do you pay for cigars?"

"Ten cents."

"Now, Sam-well, I want you to take your pencil and calculate how much 10 cents a day will amount to in a year, then how much in fifty years; then I want you to put this sum at compound interest and see how much it will amount to by the time you are 75 years of age."

I conscientiously made the calculation. "Aunt," cried I, "I'm perfectly appalled. Never did I dream of this. Of what mad extravagance have I been guilty!" and wildly I hurled my cigar into the camomile bed.

It became generally known throughout our village that my aunt was wealthy and I was heir-expectant, and I soon perceived that whether or not I ever obtained the gold I was to have the glory. At a town-meeting, legally called and with the Moderator in the chair, I was elected one of the nine Prudential Committeemen; duty—"to see about getting the wood." Our Sabbath-school appointed me a delegate to a conference at Cummingford; privileges—to lose my time, pay my own fare, change cars twice, stage it five miles over a country road and through a November landscape; prospects—address by Deacon Thomas Jones; music—that rare and intricate composition, "Shall we gather at the river?"

Solemn scenes have no place in this narrative, and I pass on to the time when we were assembled for the reading of my aunt's will—the lawyer, the doctor, the minister, and myself. That instrument ran as follows:

"After paying my just debts and my funeral expenses and providing a suitable monument, I give and bequeath to my beloved nephew, Samuel D. Hyde, his heirs and assigns, for their use and behoof forever, all my wearing apparel and personal ornaments, with the exception of my gold beads, which I bequeath to my name-sake, Louisa Hyde of St. Joseph, Mo.; all my beds and bedding, household utensils, and furniture, with the exception of my great arm-chair, which, as it came in on the Jones side, I wish to go to some deserving member of that family. I also give my nephew Samuel $5 with which to buy a reference Bible in my remembrance, and also the sealed paper of instructions accompanying this instrument, which I wish him to read a year hence in the presence of the witnesses now assembled for the reading of this my will.

"The remainder of my property, both real and personal, with the exception of the legacies hereafter named, I bequeath to the American Missionary Society, neither legacies nor bequests to be paid until a year and a day hence."

The nature of the will was soon made public. Elderly friends in church and Sabbath-school felt that I had cause for rejoicing in having been spared the snares and temptations which accompany wealth. My employer privately expressed the opinion that I had been getting above my business, and he was glad to see me taken down a peg. Not many days afterwards Evelina told me she had begun to realize what a solemn [illegible] matrimony was. She and I were both young and had our way to make, and she thought perhaps for the present it would be better for us to consider ourselves only friends.

I said, "Very well," and felt that I was a lonely bark tossed on a wild and watery waste.

For a year I went calmly but hopelessly forward in the dry-goods and grocery way, and we then assembled for the opening of my sealed orders—the lawyer, the doctor, the minister, and myself. The first words that met my eyes as I unfolded the paper were, "And all former wills by me made I do hereby revoke," etc. With palpitating heart I passed the document to the lawyer. After provisions and legacies similar to those in the first instrument, this latter document proceeded as follows:

"To the American Missionary Society I give and bequeath the sum of $25,000."

"To my beloved nephew, Samuel O. Hyde, who I hope may have learned, during the year that has passed, lessons of wisdom more valuable than money, I bequeath the sum of $25,000, which I direct my executor to pay over to said Hyde as soon as may be convenient. I further direct my executor to annually pay to said Hyde the income from the remainder of my property, both real and personal, and to pay from the principal to said Hyde on his 30th birthday, if he be living, or to his heirs if deceased, the sum of $25,000, and to pay to said Hyde on his 35th birthday the remainder of my property, be it more or less."

I went down to the store the next morning just as usual, for I wished to show people that I had too good sense to have my head turned. When I filled our best customer's jug with kerosene I knew I had demonstrated my coolness. The Chairman of the Board of Selectmen wanted to know what I should advise in regard to rebuilding the Piper stone bridge; the doctor asked my opinion concerning the comparative merits of muriate of ammonia and iodide of potassium in a case of pleuritis where egophony denotes slight effusion, but with strong indications of adhesion of the mediastinum; and the minister said there was an article on "Semo-Pelagianism in the Fourteenth Century" in the Bibliotheca Sacra he thought I would enjoy perusing. As I stood on the hall doorsteps after singing-school that evening, Evelina came out back of me and said, with a little shiver, "O, how da-ark it is!" Presently she remarked, "Aren't you very lonely since your aunt died?"—tender emphasis on the "lonely." My aunt had been dead a year, and Evelina engaged at least once in the meantime. I left Evelina at her cottage gate, and I felt that,

Of all the glad words of tongue or pen,
The gladdest are these—"I wasn't to have been."

The next afternoon my employer invited me to be seated behind the railing that fenced in our office, and, said he, laying his hand on my shoulder in a confidential, a parental, a sacrificial air: "Samuel, I have been reflecting upon my duty to you. You are a young man just starting in life, and starting in some respects under favorable circumstances, but everything depends upon your starting right. You have always been faithful to [illegible], and I have determined to [illegible] my appreciation of your [illegible]. I have decided to [illegible]."

A gl[illegible] showed me that the [illegible]

"[illegible]," I [illegible], [illegible] able [illegible] on, [illegible] the brown-paper bag and the white cotton string tongue in all my dreams! I hate tea, detest saleratus, abhor codfish, and loathe that post-office and two-cent stamps!"

I was done, and I knew by the hush that fell upon that store that, whatever else I might be, I was an orator.—E. F. W. in Chicago Tribune.

AN UNFORTUNATE LAWYER.

He Tackles a Deaf Witness and Gets Worsted.

Several years ago, when Antrim county, Mich., was in a primitive state of civilization, a breach of promise suit came before the circuit court at Elk Rapids. The plaintiff, one Eliza J. Spooner, alleged that William Smith had trifled with her young affections seriously much. He had, by promise to marry, induced her to give up one Samuel Jones, who was also an admirer of hers, and who under the smart of her refusal, had since joined himself in the bonds of holy matrimony to Lacy Salinger, and, in consequence, was now out of market, which the suing party claimed had blighted her fondest hopes, and cast about $125 worth of gloom over her future.

The plaintiff's principal witness was "Uncle" Dave Bagley. He was over 70 and very deaf. One of his peculiarities was to always answer a question, and it made no difference whether he understood it or not; his reply was ready.

The lawyer for the defense was a little, asthmatic, choleric man named Somers, and this was his cross-examination of Uncle Bagley.

"Mr. Bagley, you have taken a solemn oath to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. You say that upon a certain night you saw said Eliza J. Spooner and William Smith—the man before you—together. You also said that they were seated upon Mr. John Spooner's back porch. Now you will please state to the jury the exact date of this occurrence."

"Lizy Jane Spooner was a settin' on Bill Smith's lap, an' he——"

"No, no. Hold on!" interrupted Somers, sharply. "Answer my question directly and unequivocally."

"Bill had his arm around her a huggin' her," pursued the old man complacently.

The defense glared angrily at the witness, and then glanced around the court-room. Every one wore a look of extreme felicity that was little calculated to sooth his ruffled temper. Turning to the witness again he said emphatically:

"You do not seem to catch my meaning. I simply asked the date of this occurrence."

"Yaas, that's w'at I said. Kissed her forty-seven times in less'n twenty minutes, an' then——"

Somers pawed the atmosphere excitedly and howled:

"When did this occur?"

"Oh! W'y didn't 'e say so afore, young man?" Then, reflectively: "Waal, bein' 's 't I'm under oath I sh'd jedge 't might a be'n a leetle arter 11 o'clock 't night."

The lawyer nearly choked, but seeing that he was fast losing ground with the jury, he partially rallied and said quite slowly:

"I mean the date. What was the date of this?"

"Oh! I sh'd jedge she sot on his lap half an hour, 'n then they changed off 'n he sot on——"

This was too much. The jurymen were all convulsed with laughter. The judge's solemn face widened into a grin. Somers jumped up and began speaking excitedly.

Uncle Dave watched him for two or three minutes, and then, thinking that he was talking about Miss Spooner, he squeaked out:

"Now you look a here, young feller, don't 'e never say nothin' agin 'Lizy Jane. 'Lizy Jane's as fine er gal 's ever trod shoe leather. 'Taint nothin' agin her if Bill Smith cedded her up to think he'd splice up with her."

But the old man was removed from the box, and as he walked down the room he growled out:

"E young fly trap! 'E may fool a young gal out'en her feller, but 'e can't fool a hold man like Uncle Dave Bagley. No sir-ee!"—Detroit Free Press.

John F. Bush of Farmington, Ill., claims priority in the discovery and announcement of the germ theory of diseases, having proclaimed it in 1863, ten years before any similar utterance was made by others or elsewhere.

On the door of Prince Bismarck's study at Friedrichsruhe are notches indicating the height of all the members of the family. They are as follows: Prince Bismarck, 6 feet 2 inches; Count Herbert, 6 feet 1½ inches; Count William, 6 feet 4 [illegible]; Count Rantzau (Bismarck's son-in-law), 5 feet 10½ inches; Princess Bismarck, 5 feet 8½ inches, and Countess Mary von Rantzau, the prince's daughter, 5 feet 8 inches. This gives an average height of 5 feet 11 inches for the whole family. Opposite the name of Princess Bismarck is a note scrawled with a pencil saying that when she was measured she stood on her tiptoes.

Parisian Dancing Halls.

Paris is noted all over the world as a wicked city, and the words "It's naughty but it's nice" have often been applied to it. The Parisian grisette has an international reputation, and the cancan is known from Cape Town to Africa, to Alaska. There may be all the [illegible], but vice is by no means so open here as is supposed. The beautiful grisette is a thing of the imagination, and the day of the cancan is past. The Jardin Mabille is done away with, and I find the Bullier dances of the Latin quarter, which have taken its place, rather tame affairs in comparison. At these dances the students take part with their "lady friends," and the character of all those of the other sex who go is supposed to be of a very questionable nature. There are 42,000 students in Paris and the crowd at the dance I attended a few nights ago numbered about 4,000 young women and men. The Bullier gardens consists of a great promenade or dancing hall, with rooms and galleries looking into it, containing seats and tables for drinking and eating. There is an orchestra in one gallery, and the dances succeed one another at intervals of ten or fifteen minutes. Only about one-tenth of the crowd dance at all, and the most of these in an ordinary manner, saving that the style was a little more violent than that of a Washington city society ball. A few of the others threw their legs about with more freedom, but the genuine cancan was confined to half a dozen couples. These were probably paid dancers by the proprietors, and when they danced crowds gathered around to watch them. The girls kicked off a few hats, and held one of their feet now and then higher than their heads. It was not as good as the ordinary ballet, and the dancing was such as would have been hissed off the stage.

During the intervals of the dancing there was some drinking going on in the cafe, where one paid 1 franc for a glass of soda water. Many of the men were drinking with the girls, who, by the way, were as a rule dressed in street costumes. They were not pretty, and some of them seemed to me to have seen forty and more summers. Not a few had enough paint upon their faces to have covered a gate post, and some were so heavily powdered that they looked almost ghastly.

MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. They treat of a great variety of subjects, and we think no one can examine the list without finding therein many that he or she would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, [illegible]
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, [illegible]
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, [illegible]
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, [illegible]
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, [illegible]
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, [illegible]
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. [illegible]
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, [illegible]
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes [illegible]
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, [illegible]
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, [illegible]
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors [illegible]
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, [illegible]
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, [illegible]
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. [illegible]
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, [illegible]
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, [illegible]
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, [illegible]
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, [illegible]
24. 87 Popular Ballads. [illegible]
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, [illegible]
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," [illegible]
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, [illegible]
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, [illegible]
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, [illegible]
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, [illegible]
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, [illegible]
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," [illegible]
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, [illegible]
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, [illegible]
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, [illegible]
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, [illegible]
39. Robinson Crusoe. [illegible]
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. [illegible]
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, [illegible]
42. Gems of the Poets, [illegible]
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. [illegible]
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the present day.
45. Æsop's Fables. [illegible]

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, [illegible] for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH!

[illegible]

Special Offer!

[illegible] F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 5 Park Place, New York.

BARGAINS!

ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND COOK STOVES

HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.

JOB and TIN WORK. L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING

YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of

Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.

If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.

All classes of Repairing done quickly

C. H. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Charlevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of [illegible] different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work entrusted to my care will have prompt attention.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS

Dealers in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a

FIRST-CLASS

SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,

At current rates of interest, on

Approved Real Estate Security.

School Bonds bought and sold.

MILEY & CHAPIN.

Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a good place to get shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & P'RWILEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, · MICHIGAN.

THE man who can walk on the water has appeared, and the man who can fly in the air may be expected along soon.

EXACTLY one hundred and fifty lives have been lost so far in the construction of the new Croton aqueduct, near New York City.

ONE of the sweetest Christmas presents recorded is that of a Connecticut youth who sent his best girl forty pounds of candy.

"BUFFALO BILL" gave his Indians a Christmas feast of stewed dog at Madison Square Garden, New York. This is the daintiest dish that can be set before an Indian.

THE Supreme Court of Alabama has decided that all sales of lands made by the Alabama & Chattanooga road before its completion are void. Millions of dollars' worth of territory in the richest mineral districts are involved.

NOW THAT a health crank has discovered that eating potatoes fills the body with starch and produces catarrh, the Chicago Journal says it will be in order for some other crank to discover that eating good beefsteak ruins the digestive organs, debilitates the system

EPITOME OF THE WEEK.

Interesting News Compilation.

FROM WASHINGTON.

CHRISTMAS DAY was more generally observed than usual throughout the country. The poor were remembered with uncommon generosity, and Christmas dinners were enjoyed everywhere in the prisons and charitable institutions. The weather was bright and pleasant in most places.

AT twenty-six leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 25th aggregated $894,828,009.

ON Christmas Day O. G. Staples, a hotel proprietor in Washington, gave to the poor people of that city two tons of poultry.

THROUGHOUT the country the business failures during the seven days ended on the 24th numbered for the United States 231 and for Canada 32, a total of 263, as compared with a total of 251 the previous seven days.

FOR the year ended November 30 the total value of exports from the United States was $706,320,237, and the imports amount to $677,828,140.

ADVICES were received by the Secretary of the Treasury on the 27th that two firms in Hong Kong were largely engaged in selling certificates to land Chinese in the United States.

THE annual count of $40,000,000 worth of the 28th re-elected James C. Miller president. The treasurer reported a cash balance of $10,089.

...

THE reports on the 28th from all the iron and steel plants of the South disclosed a most remarkable development in the iron industry in the South since the census of 1880.

ANDREW E. HOUTHIT, aged eighty years, was married on the 28th at Shelbyville, Ill., to Mrs. Mary A. Kimmel, Rev. J. L. Douthit, a son of the bridegroom, officiating. Mrs. Kimmel was the third bride whom the aged bridegroom had led to the altar.

THE death of William Kimmel, ex-member of Congress and a prominent Marylander, occurred at Baltimore on the 28th, at the age of seventy-four years.

REV. CLAYTON KEISO, Presbyterian, aged forty-five years and in good circumstances, hanged himself on the 28th from a fence with a halter at Macon, Mo. No cause was known for the deed.

LEWIS H. HAYES, aged thirty-seven years, for six years one of the editorial writers of the Indianapolis Journal, died in that city on the 28th.

WHILE handling a pistol on the 25th Mrs. Henderson, of Middletown, Ill., accidentally shot and killed her five-year-old daughter.

WITTROCK, the leader of the gang who robbed the express car near St. Louis of over $50,000 last October, and who was arrested recently in Chicago, made a confession on the 28th, and a large share of the

...

A SHINING MARK.

Death's Latest Claim Upon America's Galaxy of Great Men.

DEMISE OF SENATOR JOHN A. LOGAN.

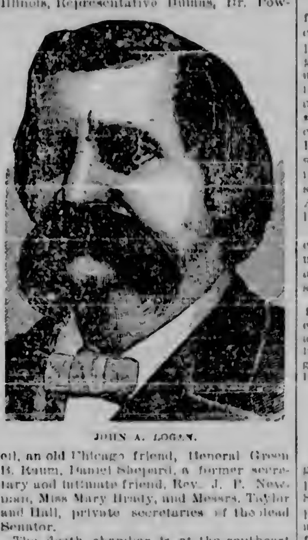
The End Somewhat Sudden—The Devoted Wife Prostrated—Messages of Condolence—Talk of His Successor—Sketch of His Career.

GENERAL LOGAN PASSES AWAY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—General Logan died yesterday afternoon at three minutes before three o'clock. Death came gently, and he slowly faded away. There was no pain, no struggle, no death bed scene. The vital flame burned itself out. The General's illness was of a fortnight's duration. It began with rheumatism in the right wrist, painful but not dangerous, and the less likely to excite solicitude because it was not unusual. Dr. Baxter, of the army, attended him, and he grew better. He went out, took cold, and had a relapse. His nervous system became completely prostrated. The rheumatism became rheumatic fever, and this brought on cerebral congestion, which was the immediate cause of death.

The approach of dissolution was plainly foreseen at noon. There were present in the room when death came Mrs. Logan,

...



JOHN A. LOGAN.

...

Among those who had known General Logan the surprise was most marked, for they had supposed him to be in almost perfect health, and the regret with these was deepest, for it had for its foundation an absolute knowledge of the man. As the news spread among the people there was the same feeling of astonishment and sorrow.

General W. T. Sherman, who was found at his rooms in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, lingered fondly over his recollections of the early days of the war called up by the news of General Logan's death, which had been telegraphed to him at once. He said: "No braver man ever lived. He had great personal courage, and was magnificent in action. In battle he manifested intense devotion to his cause and country. His death is a great loss to the military profession."

Mayor-elect Abram S. Hewitt said: "I do not look upon Logan as one of the great men of the country, but he was honest, earnest and patriotic. He was a partisan, but, I believe, a patriot, and the death of such a man of Logan's experience is always a loss to the country."

Senator Evarts said: "General Logan's death is a great loss to the Senate, the country and the Republican party. He had great claims to the attention and the affection of the people as a soldier, and in the Senate he was a strong and brave man."

EARLY TALK OF A SUCCESSOR.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 27.—Before the news of General Logan's death was re-

...

MEASURING TIME.

New Year Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

The Foolishness of Estimating One's Life on Earth by Mere Worldly Gratification—The Christian Way of Counting Time—A Contrast.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 2.—Mr. Talmage chose for his text to-day a part of the eighth verse of the forty-seventh chapter of Genesis, "How old art thou?" The sermon was as follows:

The Egyptian capital was the focus of the world's wealth. In ships and barges there had been brought to it from India frankincense, and cinnamon, and ivory, and diamonds; from the north, marble and iron; from Syria, purple and silk; from Greece, some of the finest horses of the world, and some of the most brilliant chariots, and from all the earth that which could best please the eye, and charm the ear, and gratify the taste. There were temples aflame with red sandstone, entered by gateways that were guarded by pillars much that he has a tunnel dug so that he may go unobserved from garden to grotto and from grotto to garden. [illegible], the famous Spanish artist, is disgusted with the crucifix that the priest holds before him, because it is such a poor specimen of culture. And so, sometimes through taste and sometimes through learned menace, and sometimes through physical distress, aye, in ten thousand ways, trouble comes to harass and annoy.

...

And yet it is unfair to measure a man's life by his misfortunes, because where there is one stalk of night-shade there are fifty marigolds and harebells; where there is one cloud thunder charged there are hundreds that stray across the heavens, the glory of land and sky asleep in their bosom. Because death came and took your child away, did you immediately forget all the five years, or the ten years, or the fifteen years, in which she came every night with a kiss, all the tones of your heart pealing forth at the sound of her voice or the soft touch of her hand? Because in some financial Euroclydon your fortune went into the breakers, did you forget all those years in which the luxuries and extravagances of life showered on your pathway? Alas! that is an unwise man, an unphilosophic man, and, praying for his soul, bothered himself about the proprieties of the sick room and said: "Give Dayboes a chair." Godfrey Kneller spent his last hours on earth in drawing a diagram of his own monument.

...

Compare the silly and horrible departure of such men with the seraphic glow on the face of Edward Payson, as he said in his last moments: "The breezes of Heaven fan me. I float in a sea of glory." Or, with Paul, the Apostle, who said in his last hour: "I am now ready to be offered up, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought the good fight. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, my righteous Judge, will give me." Or compare it with the Christian death-bed that you witnessed in your own household. Oh, my friends, this world is a false god! It will consume you with the blaze in which it accepts your sacrifice, while the righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance; and when the thrones have fallen, and the monuments have crumbled, and the world has perished, they shall banquet with the conquerors of earth and the hierarch of Heaven.

This is a good day in which to begin a new style of measurement. "How old art

...

THE MUGWUMP'S MOAN.

When I once with [illegible] stage [illegible] thought and pressure,
Read the President's last message, and admired its general tone,
When my candle flared and spattered through the doorway strangely fluttered
Something queer that sadly muttered just these little words alone—
Just the two words: "Benton, Stone."

Strange the event that floated o'er me as the Being stood before me,
"'Tis a Mugwump come to bore me," thus I muttered, bolder grown.
Though my heart with fear was beating; but the Mugwump, mild, entreating,
Meekly all my glances meeting, whispered in his monotone
Just the two words: "Benton, Stone!"

"This," I said, "is past believing. Why should such as you be grieving?
Think you Cleveland is deceiving, giving you a well picked bone?
Here's the very thing you care for, with its every why and wherefore,
Fluently expressed, and therefore why should any Mugwump moan?"
Quoth the Muggie: "Benton, Stone!"

"Mugwump, by the spoilsman hated, here are you appreciated.

...

posite. The President knew better than any other man the exact details in each case and it was his "intention" to do just what he did. It was his "purpose" to bounce Stone because Stone was a Republican and it was his purpose to re-instate Benton because Benton was a Democrat. And in this action is illustrated his intention and purpose all the way through as regards the practical working of Civil-Service reform. He talks and writes to please the Mugwumps; he generally directs and acts to please the Bourbons. And because he thus tries to do the impossible—curry favor with them all—he has lost the confidence of nearly all the Mugwumps and a good share of the Bourbons. One conspicuous exception is George William Curtis, who, while appearing indignant at the President's conduct, at the same time stoops and licks his hand and renews his faith in the President's "good intentions."

...

THE COMBINED

STEAM FURNITURE

—AND—

Agate Works,

CHARLEVOIX, - - - MICH

The undersigned announces that he is prepared to take orders for

REPAIRING OR BUILDING

Furniture of all Kinds

ON SHORT NOTICE.

MY LAPIDARY

Is in first-class shape for working or polishing all choice stones.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

CORNELIUS BUDD.

All Goods not called for within ninety days will be sold for charges.
Charlevoix, Nov. 20, 1885.

Northern Michigan

Boiler Works.

Builder and Manufacturer of

Boilers, Heaters,

LARD TANKS, ETC.

OF ALL KINDS

SHEET IRON WORK

A SPECIALTY.

MARINE WORK

Given Special Attention

HENRY BARTH, Proprietor,

Charlevoix, Mich.

MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE

& WESTERN RAILWAY.

The Only Line Running

TWO DAILY TRAINS

—BETWEEN—

Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago

The Only Line Running Sleeping Cars between Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago.

THE AIR LINE TO OSHKOSH.

TIME TABLE.

GOING SOUTH.

Wausau,	Lve	6.35 a m	5.30 p m
Clintonville,	Arr	9.30 a m	7.51 p m
Deonto,	"	1.30 p m	10.15 p m
New London,	"	10.18 a m	8.41 p m
Appleton,	"	11.04 a m	9.47 p m
Oshkosh,	"	11.25 a m	10.40 p m
Fond du Lac,	"		11.35 p m
Milwaukee	"	3.51 p m	2.30 a m
Chicago,	"	7.30 p m	6.30 a m

GOING NORTH.

Wausau,	Lve	6.35 a m	5.30 p m
Rhinelander,	"	12.50 p m	11.05 p m
Bessemer,	Arr	4.15 p m
Hurley,	"	4.34 p m
Ashland,	"	6.05 p m
Superior City,	"	9.51 p m
Duluth,	"	10.15 p m

Full information regarding rates of fare, time of trains, etc., can be obtained on application to Station Agent, Wausau.

H. G. FLEITH, Agent, Wausau.
H. F. WHITCOMB, General Manager.
CHAS. V. McKINLAY, Gen. Pass. Agent.

FRANK E. WOOD'S

BATH AND BARBER ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths at any hour of the day or evening. Oddfellow's building.

FARMING LAND!

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

Michigan Lands

FOR SALE BY THE

G. R. & I. R. R. COMPANY.

60,000 Acres in Charlevoix County.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple, elm and other wood, and are accessible to best markets by

WATER AND RAIL.

And are in a part of the State unequaled for health, well watered, and contiguous to the great fruit raising section on the east shore of Lake Michigan.

The Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant.

The part of Michigan in which these lands are found is

Not a Wilderness, by any Means.

It contains a population of two hundred and fifty thousand souls, and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every State in the Union.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have already been sold.

Send for English or German pamphlet.

Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,

Grand Rapids, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

HUMPHREYS'

Manual of all Diseases,
By F. HUMPHREYS, M. D.
[illegible]
CLOTH and GOLD
Mailed Free.

LIST OF PRINCIPAL NOS.	CURES.	PRICE.
1	Fevers, Congestion, Inflammations...	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic...	.25
3	Crying Colic, or Teething of Infants.	.25
4	Diarrhea of Children or Adults...	.25
5	Dysentery, Griping, Bilious Colic...	.25
6	Cholera Morbus, Vomiting...	.25
7	Coughs, Cold, Bronchitis...	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache...	.25
9	Headaches, Sick Headache, Vertigo.	.25

HOMEOPATHIC

10	Dyspepsia, Bilious Stomach...	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods...	.25
12	Whites, too Profuse Periods...	.25
13	Croup, Cough, Difficult Breathing...	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions...	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains...	.25
16	Fever and Ague, Chills, Malaria...	.50
17	Piles, Blind or Bleeding...	.50
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head.	.50
20	Whooping Cough, Violent Coughs...	.50
24	General Debility, Physical Weakness	.50
27	Kidney Disease...	.50
28	Nervous Debility...	1.00
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed...	.50
32	Diseases of the Heart, Palpitation...	1.00

SPECIFICS.

Sold by Druggists, or sent postpaid on receipt of price.—HUMPHREYS' MEDICINE CO., 109 Fulton St. N.Y.

WM. J. STEVENSON,

VETERINARY HORSE-SHOER.

Interfering and crippled horses shod satisfactorily or no charge.

Repairing done promptly.

The Old Doctor

NERVOUS DEBILITY, MALE or FEMALE, WEAKNESS AND DECAY.

A Life Experience. Remarkable and quick cures. Trial Packages. Send stamp for sealed particulars. Address
Dr. WARD & CO. Louisiana, Mo.

THE IOWA ROUTE

BURLINGTON CEDAR RAPIDS AND NORTHERN RY.

THE SHORT & POPULAR LINE

for all points in IOWA, MINNESOTA, DAKOTA, and the New Northwest. The only line making close connections with all important lines leading

NORTH, SOUTH, EAST or WEST.

NORTH for Minneapolis, St. Paul, and all points in Minnesota, Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Wyoming and Oregon.
SOUTH for St. Louis and Points in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and all points south and southeast; New Orleans and all Florida points.
EAST for Chicago and all points in the Middle, Southeastern and Eastern States.
WEST for Council Bluffs, Kansas City, and all points in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada and California.

SOLID TRAINS

WITH

PULLMAN SLEEPERS

ARE RUN BETWEEN

Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul

VIA THE

FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE,

AND BETWEEN

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul

VIA THE OLD ESTABLISHED AND POPULAR

St. Louis, Minneapolis & St. Paul Short Line

Dining Cars on all Albert Lea Route Trains.

The through trains leave Chicago via the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway; St. Louis via the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northwestern Railway, and Minneapolis and St. Paul via the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway.

This line operates nearly [illegible] miles of road, consisting of the Main Line, Burlington, Iowa, to Albert Lea, Minnesota; Muscatine Division, Muscatine, Iowa, to What Cheer and Montezuma, Iowa; Clinton Division, Clinton to Elmira, Iowa; Iowa City Division, Elmira to Riverside, Iowa; Belmond Division, Dows to Belmond, Iowa; Decorah Division, Cedar Rapids to Postville and Decorah, Iowa; Iowa Falls Division, Cedar Rapids to Worthington, Minnesota, and Watertown, Dakota.

Land Seekers' Round Trip Tickets

on sale at all prominent points to its Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota Land Points.

[illegible]

C. J. IVES, J. E. HANNEGAN,
Pres't & Gen'l Supt. Gen'l Tkt. & Pass. Ag't.
CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.

NOW IS THE TIME

TO USE

JOHNSTON'S

SARSAPARILLA

FOR

LIVER COMPLAINT,

DYSPEPSIA,

AND FOR

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 20 years and has proved to be the best preparation in the Market for Sick Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Liver Complaint, Pimples on the Face, Dyspepsia, Piles, and all Diseases that arise from a disordered Liver or impure blood. Thousands of our best people take it and give it to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily. Those who use it once recommend it to others.

It is made from Yellow Dock, Honduras Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Stillingia, Dandelion, Sassafras, Wintergreen, and other well known valuable Roots and Herbs. It is strictly vegetable and cannot hurt the most delicate constitution. It is one of the best medicines in use for regulating the Bowels.

It is sold by all responsible druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six for five dollars. Sample bottles 50 cts. free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,

Detroit, Mich.

When you have tried all the Sarsaparillas and have been disappointed, try Johnston's.

SEXUAL Weakness & Lost Manhood quickly and positively cured. Send for book mailed FREE to all afflicted. Address, Hewlin Medical Co., Buffalo, N. Y., U. S. A.

JOB PRINTING

SUCH AS

Cards, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Posters,

ETC., ETC.,

EXECUTED TO ORDER

AT THIS OFFICE.

In the Neatest and Promptest Manner

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.
CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 12, 1887.
W[illegible]D A. [illegible] Editor.
ED [illegible] PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

THE RAILROAD.

An Enthusiastic Meeting Held, and a Movement Started.

The meeting last Thursday afternoon, although called under the auspices of the Charlevoix Improvement Association, was intended to be open to the citizens of Ironton and East Jordan. Charlevoix was well represented, and Ironton was represented by R. M. Cherrie, but East Jordan did not receive notice in time to send a delegation.

W. A. Smith, 1st Vice President, called the meeting to order, and Secretary Strang being detained, Mr C. J. Grier was elected secretary pro tempore.

A. D. Cruickshank sounded the key note in an earnest speech in favor of the organization of a railroad corporation, under the provisions of the statute, which he read to the meeting. He emphatically advocated the policy of moving at once by soliciting subscriptions to stock for a road connecting with the M. C. R. R., and to this end moved the appointment of a committee of seven—three at Charlevoix, three at East Jordan, and one at Ironton.

After a general discussion, the motion was carried, and the following gentlemen were appointed: For Charlevoix, Messrs. A. D. Cruickshank, J. M. Eaton, and Capt. A. G. Aldrich; for Ironton, R. M. Cherrie. The chair deferred the appointment of the East Jordan members until after a consultation with the people there. Saturday they named Messrs. Empey, Keat and Bush.

Mr. Cruickshank moved that the meeting proceed to organize a corporation, which motion was laid on the table until the next meeting.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. Kane, Grier and Nettleton, was appointed to solicit funds to defray the expense of surveys.

The meeting then adjourned to Wednesday at 2 o'clock p. m., (to-day.)

The route proposed is via Mancelona, or some crossing on the G. R. & I. near there.

Saturday the committee raised $110 in two hours, and Sunday afternoon Capt. A. G. Aldrich and Deputy Co. Surveyor Dixon, provided with snow-shoes, started for East Jordan to look over the route. Other surveys will follow.

Let us keep the ball rolling.

Stockbridge the Senator.

The result of the Republican joint caucus at Lansing last week, was the nomination of Francis B. Stockbridge for United States Senator. Of course this is equivalent to an election. The Legislature, immediately following the caucus, adjourned to Thursday of this week.

Northern Michigan News.

The Mancelona broom factory turned out 16,000 dozen brooms last year.

Nelson Empey, of Banks, has rented his farm to his brother Charles, and has moved to East Jordan to engage in teaming.

Traverse City will soon cry quits on the railroad question. The F. & P. M. are now seriously considering an extension to that place.

The Cadillac News and the Express will not be consolidated after all, and the Democrat and two others will still occupy the newspaper field there.

Strond & Dilworth, of Horton's Bay, have sold their old saw mill to A. R. Struthers of Hayes Township. Mr. S. will move the mill on to his farm near Susan Lake.

Mrs. Eliza Hubbell, wife of W. S. Hubbell, of Benzonia, died recently, aged 78. Mrs. Hubbell was one of the early pioneer women of the Grand Traverse region.

Recently, in Banks, Mr. James Archer's house, near Toad Lake, was destroyed by fire, with its entire contents, the inmates barely escaping with their lives.

A telephone line is to be established between Horton's Bay and Boyne City. Horton's Bay has subscribed $400, and it remains now for Boyne City to subscribe a similar amount.

The Pine Lake Lumber Co. are getting in a good stock of logs at Boyne City, and the people of that burg are happy in the prospect that the Sheboygan mill will run next season.

The Eveline gentleman who recently lent the influence of his irreproachable name and high moral and Christian standing to the head of the county prohibition ticket, is back home again from a visit among friends in other parts.—Sentinel. And will be tried before Justice Garbut next Tuesday.—Citizen.

Reference is made in our inside Northern Michigan columns to the charges recently made against Col. T. J. Thorp, Clerk and Register of Wexford county. Later advices state that the committee of Supervisors appointed to investigate, found evidences of considerable crookedness in the office during the colonel's administration, and also of possible defalcations, but so many of the documents and records are "lost" that they do not feel warranted in making a decision in the matter. The Board adjourned without taking any action on the report.

Correspondence.

PORT HALIFAX, FLA., Jan. 2, 1887.

To the Editors of Sentinel:

Everything is lovely at the "Retreat." We are now having a Northern [illegible]; the thermometer indicated 27 this morning at daylight and 41 during the day. Day before yesterday the mercury ran up to 84 in the shade and it has been quite warm all the time since we came, until to-day. This cool weather does not injure the fruit.

Sibe and myself are putting in our time mostly in the Charlevoix groves. The people of Charlevoix [illegible] take a sort of [illegible] pride in these groves, as I do not believe there is a finer 25 acres of orange and lemon trees in the state of their age, and, as we have named them the Charlevoix groves, they are a sort of a credit to the town. There is a grove a few rods from ours of five acres in which the trees have been bearing twenty six years and there is probably 1,500 boxes of fruit on the trees, and the ground is literally yellow with oranges, rotting. Whenever I go into the grove (and that is pretty often) I always wish our Charlevoix youngsters could be turned into it some warm day. All they could eat and carry away would not be missed. C. Y. still thinks Florida is the place for a winter residence. He attends to the culinary duties of our establishment. We have been for some time trying to persuade him to make some pies, so the other day he made two. Well, we have got those pies on hand yet. One is still brand new, has not been used a particle, the other one is second hand, but nearly as good as new, has been used but very little. He said he had not made a pie before in fifteen years. I thought if he had said fifteen hundred years he would have come nearer the truth. I asked him if he made the crusts from the hide of Florida steer, but he declares he made them out of flour, water and salt, but I knew better than that for if he had they would be tender and nice. He says he knows the pies are splendid inside, but life is too short to spend any portion of it trying to work through raw-hide pie crusts to find out what is inside. Still he does very well on an average. He can boil squirrel in good shape and roast sweet potatoes so they slip down as nice as a pin.

The "Retreat" is situated very pleasantly in a little grove of small pines and palmettos on the shore of the Halifax, where we have a fine view of the river. The good orange crop of the coast makes it quite lively on the river. We can see from our window at any time porpoise threshing the water, the fish jumping and the pelicans tumbling down into the river, while just beyond we can hear the wash of the surf constantly, all of which are interesting to one not accustomed to them.

The shell gathering has been pretty slim as there have been no blows since we came. The holidays were enjoyed here in true Florida style, by both whites and blacks. Christmas is spent about the same as 4th of July in the north, shooting guns and firecrackers, boat racing, etc., and with the warm weather, it is hard to realize that it is mid-winter.

Respectfully,
E. CARPENTER.

Ironton.

School opened for the winter term on Monday.

Mr. Ardin Sheldon is very ill at his home. It is an old complaint, and his recovery is doubtful.

The report of John Peterson's remarkable quality of wheat, which appeared in these columns in October last, was read by a farmer in the southern part of the state, and he has written John, asking terms.

Everything in a business way is booming; men and teams are in demand, and no idle men in town, except the indisposed to work.

Dick Garland and Will Gable are here from Canada to work this winter. Dick is a brother of our irresistable John, an old and well-known resident.

The H. H. Society meet with Miss Seymour on Wednesday evening, Jan. 19. A special programme is being prepared, and a good time is expected.

If any of our citizens pick up any items of news, and will leave them at the postoffice, they will be inserted in this column.

Mr. Lat Allen lost one of his horses on Sunday. It was a valuable animal and breaks up a matched team.

Mrs. McDonald returned from Canada on Thursday. She brought Malcolm, her son, who has been with his aunt there for $2\frac{1}{2}$ years, and who is a victim of inflamatory rheumatism, resulting in dislocation of the hip. Dr. Bennett performed an operation on him three years ago without beneficial results. He is now under the treatment of Dr. Patrick, of London, Ont., and is improving.

John Frenz left for his home in Kenosha on Sunday, called there by the illness of his wife. John is clearing the wood and logs from his land. John Myers is the contractor.

The new year starts in with an appalling railroad disaster on the Baltimore & Ohio road at Republic, Ohio, a small station east of Tiffin. The fast train bound west, while running at the rate of near a mile a minute, ran into a freight train that was stalled on an up grade at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. The coaches telescoped and up to 10 a. m. Tuesday, 19 dead bodies had been recovered. To add to the horror the cars caught fire and the screams of the wounded who were being burned alive was heart-rending. Charles P. Toll, son of postmaster Toll of Petoskey, and bride were returning to Detroit from their wedding trip east, but escaped injury as did all who were in the sleeping car. The mail and express matter was all burned.

The new buildings replacing those recently destroyed by fire in East Jordan are much more substantial than the old, says the Enterprise.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Additional Local News.

[illegible] E. Wood has gone to Ludington [illegible] in a drug store.

The [illegible] Milling Co. will pay [illegible] they can get.

Misses [illegible] and Anna Lake left last week for Canada to visit their mother.

Robert M. Chamberlain, of Detroit, is here visiting his mother, Mrs. Dr. Chamberlain.

—Will Horton will be laid up some time by severe injuries received yesterday. Several ties fell on him.

—Miss Lizzie Beauvais, formerly of Charlevoix, but now of Grand Haven, was married to a member of the Grand Haven Life Saving crew, last Thursday.

Crain & Whitford's saw mill, which was destroyed by fire last September, is in operation again with an [illegible] new outfit. They have a contract for cutting 500,000 of hardwood lumber for C. J. Lloyd.

A. F. Myers was quite seriously injured yesterday. While working at Stevens's saw-mill, an edging flew from the saw and struck him in his face, inflicting a painful wound near one of his eyes, which may prove dangerous to the sight of it.

—Cadillac Express: E. Shay of Boyne City, was in this city on Thursday of this week. He was returning from Pittsburg, where he has been superintending the construction of some fifty five ton, geared locomotives of his invention, that are to be run upon a standard guage coal railroad in Pennsylvania.

The Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors closed their session on Thursday. Very little business aside from approving the county Treasurer's bond and auditing bills was done. The proposition to organize a township of Alger from Evangeline territory was defeated.

According to the Detroit papers Judge Chipman, Democratic Congressman elect from the first district, made a painful exhibit of his weakness at a session of his court last Tuesday. The Judge was very "tired." The Free Press, however, had not a word to say on the subject.

The outlook for a busy year was never more promising. The defeat of the Morrison tariff bill gives stability to the outlook and capital is looking around for investment, assured that there will be no disturbing of values by a tinkering with the tariff. Railroad building promises to be very active during the year and it is said that the orders for rails already exceeds the capacity of the rolling mills and orders are being refused even at advanced rates. The year 1886 opened nearly as promising, but the folly of the laboring classes by their numerous strikes, early in the year unsettled matters and suspended many important enterprises. It is to be hoped that the same folly will not be again repeated in 1887. It is only as the demand for labor is increased that an increase of wages can be expected and to secure increased demand it is necessary that new enterprises be inaugurated and old ones extended.

Somebody asks the Chicago Tribune who is Vice President and would succeed to the Presidency in case of a vacancy now in the latter office, and that paper replies that John Sherman was elected President of the Senate after the death of Mr. Hendricks. But that is no answer to the question. The Vice President is President of the Senate, but a President pro tempore of the Senate (which Mr. Sherman is) is not President. The Constitution does not prescribe what officer shall act as President in case of the death or disability of both the President and Vice President, but leaves that to Congress, to be provided for by law. The law formerly provided that in such case the President of the Senate, or if there was none then the Speaker of the House, should act as President "until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected." Nearly a year ago that law was changed, and the duty made to devolve upon the members of the Cabinet in succession, beginning with the Secretary of State. Substantially, this law gives the President the appointment of his own successor, when there is no Vice President. But it is only a temporary arrangement for it becomes the duty of the Secretary of State to issue a proclamation for an election of President and Vice President, except when such an election is already in progress or impending. In case of such an extraordinary election there would come a change in the years of beginning and ending of the Presidential term.

The cash store at Bay Springs is reported as doing a rushing business. They buy wood and ties, and sell good goods cheap.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. [illegible]

Report

Of the condition of the Charlevoix Savings Bank at Charlevoix, Michigan, on Monday, January 3d, A. D. 1887, made in accordance with sections 18, 19 and 67 of the General Banking Laws, as amended in 1871.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts	$29,063.61
Demand Loans	[illegible]
Overdrafts	61.44
Furniture and Fixtures	447.00
Expenses and Interest paid	2,029.23
Due from Banks and Bankers	6,729.19
Legal Tender and Bank Notes	3,749.26
	$47,670.55

LIABILITIES.

Capital paid in	$15,000.00
Surplus Fund	2,000.00
Undivided Profits	6,791.37
Due Depositors	23,879.18
	$47,670.55

I do solemnly swear that the above statement is true, to the best of my knowledge and belief.
FRED A. SMITH, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 6th day of January, 1887.
F. R. GREEN, Notary Public.

Notice of Dissolution.

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Heath, Francis & Co., was on the 1st day of September dissolved by mutual consent. The business heretofore conducted by that firm will be from this date conducted by Jerome Heath who assumes all liabilities and settles all outstanding accounts.

Dated January 4th, 1887.

JEROME HEATH,
WILLIAM FRANCIS,
ALEXANDER CAMERON.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first class job of horseshoeing.

A house and lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. L. Adair, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done prompt [illegible] rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

A REMINDER FOR JANUARY

Our Remnants!

COME AND SEE THEM.

YOU ARE SURE TO BUY.

Everything Down.Down! At

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

Low Prices still Continue

AT

George W. Miller's.

1887!

Not a Redmond Grand Opera House to give away, nor a Christmas Turkey or New Years Pig!!!!!

BUT REMNANTS!

GENUINE USEFUL, NECESSARY ARTICLES, AND ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO FORK OVER

About One Half they Cost

TO GET THEM.

Our Remnant Table Groans! We are tickled to wait on you for we are sure you will appreciate our Bargains. Be sure and come early and avoid the rush

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

OFFER A SPECIAL

Reduction Sale Of

DRY GOODS,

UNTIL JANUARY 15.

YOU WILL MISTAKE IF YOU BUY BEFORE LOOKING AT OUR STOCK AND PRICES. VALUE RECEIVED IS WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AND WE GUARANTEE PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST. LIGHT EXPENSES AND A CASH BUSINESS ENABLE US TO SELL AT VERY NARROW MARGINS. NO EXPENSIVE PARTNERSHIPS. NO SECOND-HAND GOODS.

Great Bargains in Winter Dress Goods, Flannels, Homespuns, Tricots, Crepe Cloths, etc.
COTTON FLANNELS sacrificed to close.
MIXED SHIRTING FLANNELS, very cheap.
ACME WOOL FLANNELS at Factory Prices.

50 CENT BARGAINS:

The Best 50 Cent Wool Hose in town. Leggings in town.
The Best 50 Cent Jersey Glove in town. Toboggan Caps in town. Loop Mitt in town. Corset in town.

Look at our new designs in Lamps & Lamp Goods. Patent extension Lamps from $3.00 up. Duplex Burners 50c. Double Cone Burners for 15c. Lamp Shades, Burners and Chimneys. Tubular Lanterns with guards 75c.

GROCERIES and PROVISIONS always at the lowest prices.

WANTED! TIES, POSTS AND SHIPPING WOOD.

The Highest Market Prices Paid.

J. L. HURD & CO.

WE MUST CLOSE THEM

Out At Some Price.

Grand Slaughter Sale of Cloaks,

At Rosenthal & Sons.

Rosenthal & Son

on the corner.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—38 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 895

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!

—HEADQUARTERS—

For Everything needed in the School Room, at

HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods

BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember:

Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

A Choice Line of

FRESH GROCERIES,

OF EVERY VARIETY,

Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock

For your inspection in OPERA BLOCK by

R. J. COOPER.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

OUR FAMOUS

AXES, SAWS,
WEDGES,
Handles,
Steel Mauls,
Stoves, and
Stove Boards,

And all other Seasonable Hardware, VERY CHEAP.

The Best Groceries

At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BRANCH STORE AT HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1 50 | Six months $ 75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—The D. C. & E. R. R.! How does it look in print?

—George Weaver, of Reed City, is here visiting his mother.

—Dr. Preston returned home from Kansas on Saturday last.

—The toboggan slide is completed, and will be in operation this week.

—Capt. Dan Way left yesterday for Spencer Creek where he will embark in photography.

—Will Francis began the erection of a residence for Jas. Hemmings, on Antrim street, last week.

—J. L. Hurd announce a special clearance sale of dry goods. Look over their new advertisement.

—Rosenthal & Son began, to-day, a 30 days sale of Clothing. Notice the low prices in their advertising space.

—A bill was introduced in the House of Representatives on the 11th for the incorporation of East Jordan.

—Roswell Leavitt and A. S. Abbott, of Bellaire, were in town last week. Mr. Leavitt remained over until yesterday to attend the railroad meeting.

—Representative Dougherty is chairman of the House committee on harbors, and a member of the committee on the Northern Asylum for the Insane.

—W. H. McCartney will give a lecture on Wednesday evening, Jan. 26th, for the benefit of the Sunday School fund. Subject: "The Pictures I have seen." Admission, 10 cents.

—Senator Barton of this district is chairman of the committees on public School and State Capital and Public Buildings, and is also a member of the committees on Public Lands and Reform School for girls.

—Grand Traverse Herald: Charlevoix wants a railroad and a hearse—the last whether or no. The editor of the Sentinel protests emphatically that he will die before he will allow his remains to be borne to the cemetery in a lumber wagon, or words to that effect.

—East Jordan Enterprise: Capt. George Roberts, of the steamer Lou A. Cummings, writes us that next season that staunch steamer will run between East Jordan and Harbor Springs, leaving this place for Harbor Springs every morning and returning here in the evening. By this arrangement the facilities for reaching the outside world will be more convenient than ever before.

—The library board authorize the statement that they are preparing to give a masquerade ball at Bartholomew's opera house on Tuesday evening, Feb. 22nd, for the benefit of the reading room. No one will be permitted to dance until after 12 o'clock unless costumed and masked. Music will be furnished by Wheat and Carr's orchestra. Two prizes will be given for the best represented character male and female. The prize will consist of a handsome souvenir appropriate for the occasion. The price of the tickets will be placed at $1.00 each, and every possible effort made to have the whole affair strictly first-class.

—The Muskegon Chronicle, in speaking of the coming there of an evangelist, echoes our sentiments when it says: "If of the right make-up and qualities he can do much good, and the field is white for the harvest. We do not know to what denomination he belongs nor does it matter in the least. The work of an evangelist is undenominational and his converts go where they will. So all those who desire to see the world improve can wish him well and hope for his complete success. Mere creeds and denominational lines are not what they once were, and broad expansive christians easily step over them when opportunities to do good present themselves. There are yet some cramped, narrow, pinched up souls in the world who would, if possible, pen up every soul within reach in their own little religious peck measure, but these are growing beautifully scarce and their number shrinks every year. They are relics, like a well preserved mummy or a piece of cracked pottery from Pompeii. The tendency to-day is toward united work in lifting up the fallen, and in turning men and women toward better thoughts and nobler things. God help the poor starving christian who desires never to reach beyond the tilling up of his own church or Congregation, and whose conduct conveys the idea that God himself is, or should be, a member of his particular church. Such religious starvelings never accomplish much and are prone to rail at evangelists because they accomplish more. Talking to D. L. Moody upon this point once, he remarked: 'I would not go across the street to make a Congregationalist a Presbyterian or a Methodist, but I would go half way around the world to make a christian.' There is more of the spirit of Christ in that remark than in all the narrow, fenced-in thoughts ever expressed."

—F. W. Craine and Co. get to the front this week with a quarter off sale which is already demonstrating itself a great success. Read about it in their new ad.

—Harbor Springs is somewhat excited over a fatal case of black diphtheria, the victim being a pupil in the high school. Two other pupils are ill and the authorities have closed the schools in consequence, while everybody is buying disinfectants.

—Baxter Post, No. 119, G. A. R. of this place, will hold a "hard tack and coffee social" or camp-fire, at Opera Hall on the second Monday of February. A programme, which will include addresses and music, is being prepared and a good time is expected.

—Sheriff Jerme has made the following appointment of Deputies: Under sheriff Willis Hurd, of Boyne Falls; Deputies: William Scroggie, Charlevoix; William Pearl, Norwood; John Schoffen, Ironton; Hugh Miller, Boyne City; Ash Herron, Wilson; Daniel Harrington, Clarion; A. E. Peck, Springvale; Pierce Kinsella, Boyne Falls. Turn-Key at county jail, Hugh R. Miller, of Boyne City.

—Prof. Edward Olney, of the State University, and a well-known member of the Charlevoix Summer Resort, was found dead in his bed at Ann Arbor Sunday morning. Degeneration of the blood vessels was the cause of death. Prof. Olney was the author of the complete series of mathematical text books generally used in Michigan schools, and ranked as one of the foremost educators in the country. He was a prominent member of the Baptist church, and mortgaged his residence in Ann Arbor to clear the Baptist church of debt.

—Speaking of the early days of Pine Lake and South Arm navigation, the importance to our inland commerce of the little tug Com. Nutt, is still fresh in the minds of our old settlers. Nearly every afternoon during the season of navigation, she would come down through the tortuous channel that now serves as a cove for the Chicago Resort pleasure boats, with a tow of three or four scow-loads of propeller wood. Capt. Lance Aldrich, with one hand on the wheel and the other on the bell-rope, one eye ahead, and the other on Perry Beckwith, who was on the rear scow with a pike pole, would swing his tow around the river with amazing skill, and bring it alongside the old tram-way, which then ran from the outer end of the old dock to a point near where the flouring-mill now stands. In 1870 the project was agitated of cutting a channel through connecting the "bayou" with Pine Lake. It looked like a stupendous undertaking, but a "bee" was called, and a force of men gathered there one day, the writer among them, and the trees were cut and stumps excavated. Teams were put in with scrapers, and after an excavation was made deep enough, the old river was banked up, and the water turned into the new channel. In a few days the little Commodore had backed through and left five feet of water. What an enterprise that was for those days! Later, the people of the county (illegally) voted an appropriation of $1,000 to deepen it, and Carkin, Stickney & Crane, who had a government contract for dredging the lower channel, did the work, and took the bonds from the hands of the writer, who was then county treasurer. This was in the fall of 1873. In connection with the history of the Pine Lake outlet there is broad scope for speculation as to what "might have been." Some years ago, in a conversation with Hon. D. C. Leach, he related to us the following incident in the history of Charlevoix early in the sixties: Mr. Leach was joint owner of the Pine River property with Hon. J. S. Dixon. He one day made a proposition to Mr. Dixon to dam the lower river, and convert it into a water power. The latter, after consulting his wife, declined to entertain the proposition. The scheme would have been a feasible one then, as the population of Pine Lake was then sparse, and the overflow would have worked little injury. Had this been done, as it was before that at Elk Rapids, the Pine Lake region would not be what it is to-day, whatever the effect might have been on Charlevoix. Those days, and for many years after, this was only known as Pine River, and when the second harbor survey was ordered, (the first resulted in an adverse report,) the War Department, by a mistake as to locality, surveyed a Pine River on Lake Huron, and did not discover their mistake until it was too late. But it was surveyed the following year, (1871), and a favorable report secured. Thomas W. Ferry was then Congressman, and to his persistent labors are we indebted for our first government appropriation. But the first aid given Charlevoix harbor was a grant by the Michigan Legislature, in 1871, of 16 sections of state swamp land, under the delusive project of "the reclamation and drainage of swamp lands" on Pine Lake. The avowed purposes of the grant, and the arguments used to secure it, were a fraud, but it served our purpose, and worked good to the people. "Old man Stickney" got a slice of the swamp land scrip for dredging and Henry Morgan got the rest for building the old north pier. David C. Nettleton was the first Local Commissioner in charge of the work. These were the days that the survey was made for the G. R. & I. railroad to Bear Creek, (now Petoskey.) Little Traverse (now Harbor Springs) was a small Indian settlement, and Amos Fox used to send a stock of goods down there to the annual "Indian payment."

I. O. G. T.

All temperance people and all interested in the temperance cause, are requested to meet at the Bridge Street House on Saturday evening, Jan. 22nd, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of talking and consulting together in regard to organizing a Good Templars lodge. Come boys, come girls, and the older ones of course will come, being interested in the welfare of the young of the town. Come to advise and lend a helping hand. Any one having any of the old books, Rituals or ode cards, will please bring them.

E. A. CAMPBELL,
D. D. G. W. C. T.

To the Public.

The Comrades of Baxter Post No. 119, G. A. R., will give an entertainment or camp-fire, at the Opera House, on Monday evening, Feb. 17, 1887. The programme will consist of camp scenes and songs, the manual of arms, and sabre and bayonet exercises. There will be no new-fangled exercises, but only such as were used in the days that tried men's souls. There will be an address by Rev. W. H. McCartney, select music, both vocal and instrumental. The sutler will be there with his wares. Hard-tack and coffee will be furnished to all. Fifteen cents will be charged at the door. Come and have a good time, and help the boys raise a little of the needful wherewith to plat and grade their cemetery.

COMMITTEE.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

We gladly welcome to our Tuesday evening Teachers' meeting any one desirous of studying in advance the lesson of the next Sabbath.

Thursday evening prayer meetings grow sweeter and richer in blessing; some are being made happy in God.

Sabbath services are open to all. Drop in and hear what the "Spirit saith to the Churches." W. H. MCC.

Baptist Church.

Services as usual next Sunday morning. Subject of discourse, "Nay, but O man who art thou that repliest against God." Rom. 9: 20.

Sunday school immediately after morning service.

Evening service at 7 o'clock at which time "One of Christ's habits" will be considered.

Preaching at Hilton's school house at 3 p. m. to be followed by Sunday school.

The Ladies society of the Baptist church are arranging for a course of home lectures upon popular subjects to be given by several of our prominent citizens. Particulars next week.

Episcopal Church.

Bishop Gillespie visited Christ Church Mission on Sunday last with services morning and evening in Odd Fellows' Hall. The responses were full and hearty and nearly all uniting with and at the request of the Bishop in the prayers and praises of the services prepared. Appreciative and interested congregations were present to hear and profit by two very excellent, deep, spiritual and practical sermons from the Bishop in his usual earnest and happy manner. After evening service a meeting was called when the organization of Christ Church Mission was perfected by ballot. W. P. Brown, was elected Warden; Mrs. G. Gayles, Secretary; George Bates, Treasurer.

The Bishop wished (seconded by all present) that the Mission should have Divine service at least once each Lord's day, that all should come with their children and any and all others they could influence thus following such service instruction of children in Catechism; for the others, a sermon read or Bible studies and instructions. To that end he licensed W. A. Brown Lay Reader, and the Warden superintendent of Instruction. The first service will be held at the residence of W. P. Brown, Warden, on Sunday, 23d inst at 3.30 o'clock. Subject for study, "The Christian Name." Text: St. John 10: 3,

"He calleth His own Sheep by name."

To these services all are most cordially invited.

There are some Catechism books of instruction and S. S. Library books belonging to this Mission. Please look them up and bring them all in on Sunday next.

Elsewhere.

Rev. Mr Thurston will preach at Johnson's next Sabbath at 2:30 p. m. and in the evening at Black's.

Preaching at Ironton M. E. church next Sabbath, morning and evening, by the pastor.

There are now before Congress three bills of much importance to farmers and working men. These are the Department of Agriculture bill, to make this a cabinet office with full powers. The National Industry bill, looking to the better control and encouragement of industries; and the Agricultural Experiment Station bill. The latter can be easily dispensed with, but the others should pass. Even Monarchies have Secretaries of Agriculture, with full powers, while our Agricultural department is simply a bureau or commission attached to something else, though it represents the largest body of workers, voters and tax payers in the land. By making it a department of Agriculture and Labor it would cover an enormous field and become most important of all. While the little War and Navy departments have voices in the President's Privy Councils, these great bodies of working men and women, representing great industries, should have a special representation in cabinet councils.

Old papers sold at this office.

THE GREAT DISTRIBUTION.

Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

A [illegible] Announcement—The Earth to Be [illegible] by Christ—Heaven to Be [illegible] by the Redeemed and the Faithful Final Rewards.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 9.—"Distribution of Rewards" was the subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon this morning. He chose for his text a part of the twelfth verse of the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah: "He shall divide the spoil with the strong." Following is the sermon:

My family, who saw it with their eyes year before last, tell me that in the Colosseum at Rome, where persecutors used to let out hungry lions to eat up Christians, there is now planted the figure of a cross. And I rejoice to know that the [illegible] piece of wood nailed in a transverse piece has become the symbol, not more of [illegible] than of victory. It is of Christ the conqueror that my text speaks. As a [illegible] warrior, having unlocked an empire, might divide the palaces, and mansions, and [illegible], and valleys, and mountains, among his soldiers, so Christ is going to divide up all the earth and all the heavens among His people, and you and I will have to take our share if we are strong in faith and strong in our Christian [illegible], for my text declares it: "He shall divide the spoil with the strong."

The capture of this round planet for Christ is not so much of a job as you might imagine, when the church takes off its coat and rolls up the sleeves for the work, as it will. There are 1,200,000,000 people now in the world, and there are 450,000,000 Christians. Subtract the 450,000,000 who are Christians from the 1,200,000,000 and there are 750,000,000 left to be Christianized. Now divide the 750,000,000 by the 450,000,000 already Christianized, and it makes only twenty...

...

THE BLUE GREAT-COAT.

A BRAVE, GOOD MAN.

THE MUGWUMP RAREY.

WORTH KNOWING.

THE COMBINED STEAM FURNITURE —AND— Agate Works, CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

REPAIRING OR BUILDING Furniture of all Kinds ON SHORT NOTICE.

MY LAPIDARY

CORNELIUS BUDD.

Northern Michigan Boiler Works.

Boilers, Heaters, LARD TANKS, ETC.

SHEET IRON WORK

MARINE WORK

HENRY BARTH, Proprietor, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILWAUKEE, LAKE SHORE & WESTERN RAILWAY.

TWO DAILY TRAINS BETWEEN Wausau and Milwaukee and Chicago

THE AIR LINE TO OSHKOSH.

FRANK E. WOOD'S BATH AND BARBER ROOMS.

FARMING LAND! 500,000 ACRES Michigan Lands

HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS.

WM. J. STEVENSON, VETERINARY HORSE-SHOER.

The Old Doctor

IOWA ROUTE BURLINGTON CEDAR RAPIDS & NORTHERN RY.

THE SHORT & POPULAR LINE

SOLID TRAINS

NOW IS THE TIME TO USE JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA FOR LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, AND FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

JOB PRINTING AT THIS OFFICE.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & PARMELEE, EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

CHARLEVOIX, : : MICHIGAN

RESIGNATION.

I do not care
If I may never climb the heights of fame,
If I may never win a glorious name,
Nor hear, with well pleased ears, the world's acclaim,
I do not care.

I should not care
Though all obscure and lowly be my lot,
Though men pass idly by and know me not,
Though I should die and straightway be forgot,
I should not care.

I would not care
Though all the world should shun the path I trod,
Though words of shame and scorn of me were said—
Why, when the grasses waved above my head,
I would not care.

I would not care a cent
Were I a pious hermit, most austere,
Living in lowly hermitage severe,
On thirty thousand dollars, say, a year,
I would not care.

—Burdette, in Brooklyn Eagle.

SWISS HOME LIFE.

Beautiful Children Who Are Linguists and Merchants.

Their Rude Valley Schools—Industrious and Cheerful Lace Makers—The Long, "Gay" Winters—Farming on the Sides of Mountains.

Every Swiss child, no matter what his or her position or condition in life, knows how to read and write—if he is...

...

field. The elder seemed, mother-like, most anxious that the little one should make a sale of her lace, though little Anna said: "You see hers is nicer than mine, for she is older, you see, and can make much nicer lace than I can; of course, my lady, it is better that you buy hers than mine."

I thought of Wordsworth's idyl, "We are Seven." The beauty of their kindliness and love for each other in their poverty, if not of face or feature, "made me glad." Both were exquisitely clean face and hands and hair. This was also neatly combed. There were no bangs falling over their foreheads, but every hair was drawn back and fastened, as though not a stray hair should blind their eyes or hinder them in their work. We drove back through this valley, and the sun had long been out of sight behind the high western mountains when we passed their little stall. But both were there still at work, their little fingers flying no less nimbly than in the morning when I first saw them. They recognized me and bowed and smiled gratefully for the poor, small purchase I had made of them. I dare say it was the only sale they had made during the day. Dear little Swiss lace makers, in the valley of Lauterbrunnen! you gave me far more than I did you in the few francs I paid for your lace. Your lives shall henceforth be a part of mine, and the red threads in your lace will signify to me the life-blood of two of my little sisters. I am sure I shall find you again somewhere, sometime! It was not chance that led me to your little stall to-day. Your paths in life crossed mine, to teach me a broader, tenderer humanity...

...

washed down the sides of the mountains by the heavy rains. In time a soil is formed upon the top of these narrow, sloping beds thus made, on which potatoes and some coarse grains are grown. But it must be a trade, dreadful as that of gathering samphire, to make these little farms, and then to till them and gather the crops. One can not but ask what will not a man give for his life? or what not do to forestall starvation?—L. H. S., in Detroit Tribune.

SOLAR ENGINE.

An Invention Whose Importance Can Not Yet Be Estimated.

The telegraph recently mentioned the completion of Captain Ericsson's improvement on his solar engine. For a dozen years or more this incomparable inventor has devoted his genius mainly to the perfection of this engine, although in the meantime he has invented a torpedo boat that promises to revolutionize once more the methods of naval warfare and coast defense. Indeed, a dozen years ago he had a solar engine in practical operation, but it was not his design that it should be able to compete with engines using ordinary fuel in temperate regions. His purpose has been to invent for the future when the supply of fuel shall have become depleted in the great manufacturing regions of Europe. "Due consideration," he has said, "can not fail to convince us that the rapid exhaustion of the European coal-fields will soon cause great changes with reference to international relations, in favor of those countries which are in possession of continuous sun-power. Upper Egypt, for example, will, in the course of a few centuries, derive signal...

...

CARRIER PIGEONS.

SNOW IN CITIES.

HOME AND FARM.

THE MARKETS.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

100 Doses One Dollar

THIS NEW YEAR Choice Music Books,

FOR THE BLOOD BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

WIZARD OIL CONCERTS

Hamlin's Wizard Oil.

Rheumatism, All Aches and Pains.

CLYDESDALE and ENGLISH SHIRES.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

LANDS

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS.

JONES PAYS THE FREIGHT

ST. JACOBS OIL FOR PAINS AND ACHES. MAGICAL CURES.

HARTER'S IRON TONIC

PENSION CLAIMS

WE WANT YOU!

DETECTIVES

RED STAR COUGH CURE SAFE. SURE. PROMPT. 25 Cts.

THE HAMMOND! PRICE $100.00. The Hammond Type Writer Co.

OPIUM HABIT

FARMS

TELEGRAPHY

TRUSSES

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 19, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, EDITOR.
ED F. PARMELEE, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Nothing even in Louisiana politics was more disgraceful than the Democratic conspiracy in Indiana.

The time is not distant when railroads must be required to double track all their main lines. Such terrible disasters as occur from trains going in opposite directions trying to run through each other must be guarded against.

The New York World recommends that the Republicans and Democrats of the New York assembly and senate unite and elect Roscoe Conkling United States senator. The recommendation, however, is not likely to be heeded.

The old soldiers of Michigan, together with their many friends and sympathizers, will be glad enough to learn that the democratic editors of Michigan have not as yet succeeded in tearing down the recently dedicated soldiers' home at Grand Rapids. It is now confidently believed that the structure will be permitted to stand in its entirety. Again, let us rejoice and be glad.

The new folding letter sheets, for which so much was predicted when they were first put on sale, are fast losing favor. As long as they were something of a novelty there was considerable demand for them. The very ones—business people—who were expected to hail and accept them as a great convenience are rapidly discarding them. The first month's sale in Chicago were 12,000, and for December sales fell off to 11,000, and the demand is daily decreasing.

The Michigan Masonic Home association held its first annual meeting at Grand Rapids Monday, and it was reported that the association has 800 members and is in a prosperous condition. The association purchased the Burchard farm near the city, including 112 acres of land, and it is expected that the citizens will contribute by subscription $12,000 to pay for a site. It is proposed to commence the erection of a $100,000 home on the farm next spring.

The New York Tribune says that there are nearly 8,000 indigent soldiers and sailors, who do not receive pensions, who are supported in almshouses and other public charitable institutions in the United States. Under these circumstances complaint is made with justice that the policy of allowing ex-soldiers who are receiving pensions, some as high as $50 per month, to remain in the Soldiers' Home to the exclusion of those who receive no pension is unfair. In the Homes the ex soldiers are maintained at the public expense and have their pensions in addition. Certainly those who receive no pensions should be given the preference in such cases.

Dabney, the sharp shooter, who is reported to have practiced on union prisoners during the war, has written a card in which he denies that he was a guard at Andersonville, but the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette has proven by a score of witnesses that he boasted of having been a prison guard. A pension case came up in which the claimant alleged that he had incurred the disability at Andersonville prison. Dabney denied that any such disability could have been incurred at Andersonville, and to prove his statement declared that he had served as a guard at that prison, and knew what he was talking about. If Dabney's denial is true, he lied at first, and if he told the truth at first he lied at last. So, in any event, one thing is certain, which is that Dabney is a well advertised liar.

This is a sad, wicked world, just in proportion as its people are rich. Brother Dana of the New York Sun, has just been demonstrating so much editorially, and scripturally. A man in Mississippi wrote to him to inquire, "who is the wealthiest Christian-hearted man in the United States?" And the editor of the Sun says solemnly that his questioner "seems to forget that according to the Gospel the possession and acquirement of wealth are incompatible with a heart charged with Christian sentiment." And he says further of Jesus: "Again, and again, He makes the possession of wealth a bar to entrance into the Christian life and into Heaven, no part of His whole teaching being more emphatic." The Sun quotes in full the story of Lazarus and the rich man. But it refrains from drawing any invidious comparisons by reference to the good millionaire Childs of the Philadelphia Ledger, the good brother Dana of the Sun, or to the Goulds, Huntingtons and Vanderbilts of the business world; though at the gate of every one of them there are undoubtedly more than one Lazarus.

EDUCATIONAL

All communications in educational topics should be addressed to [illegible] Superintendent of Charlevoix schools.

Almost every day we hear young people expressing regret that they have not made better use of their opportunities to procure an education. A very common remark is, that having, for some cause been detained from school until they had fallen behind their classes in scholarship, they felt a reluctance to enter a lower class and "show their ignorance" and had yielded to this feeling until their deficiencies became so marked that they entirely abandoned the idea of attending school. They never fail to suffer the keenest regret for yielding to this, which in later years, they are not slow to pronounce false pride. They see finally, but generally when it is too late to remedy the evil, that there is no disgrace in being ignorant, or backward, but only in submitting to remain so when an opportunity offers to advance. The diligent student is an honored member by any class no matter how great the disparity between his age and that of his mates. Parents too often yield to this feeling in the child, after enforced absence from school, forgetting that the first aim should be to educate the child, not simply to keep him in a certain grade, and that it is by no means necessary to abandon the former, because the latter has become impossible.

* * *

At the teachers' meeting last Wednesday evening, the hour was devoted to the subject of General Exercises in school. Suggestions on physical exercises such as marching, class movements, etc., were made by Miss Nelson. In Language, by Miss Gage; in Memory, by Miss Waterbury and in Arithmetic by Miss O'Neill. Many profitable hints were contributed to the common stock.

* * *

The Teachers' meetings are held on the second Monday evening of each school month beginning at 7:30 school time (7:15 standard time). The subject for the next meeting will be "the influence of teachers outside the school room, as affecting the character and conduct of the children." Various phases of the subject will be presented by different teachers. It is a matter that interests parents as well as children and teachers.

* * *

The enrollment in the village schools up to the end of the second week of the term amounts to 227 distributed as follows: 1st Department, 31; second Department, 46; third Department, 35; fourth Department, 42; fifth Department, 70.

THOUGHTS ON EDUCATIONAL TOPICS.

"Whatever you would have appear in the life of a nation you must first put into the schools, holds true preeminently in a republic. Our free school system has its short-comings and its defects; but taken as a whole, it is the broadest and the best ever organized. It is the duty of every true teacher to remedy its defects, not to submit to them as incurable. When taxes are high and times hard, the school will be subject to a running fire of criticism all along the line; but only timid and despairing souls are frightened into the belief that the foundations of society are breaking up on account of over-education in the common schools. Neither representatives of the 'caste of Capital nor the caste of Culture'" can convince the American people that vice, crime, idleness, poverty, social discontent, are the legitimate results of an elementary education among the workers of society, or that the school master is a public enemy. If our schools fail to meet the needs of changing social conditions, the kind and quality, not the extent, of education must be changed."—Swett.

"Physical training and drill should be a part of the regular business of the school. If something of the kind is not done, the English physique, which has been, and still is, on the whole, a grand one, will become as extinct as the dodo."—Huxley.

"To the wise educator, parent, or teacher, nothing is more certain than that the child is an animal with the possibility of reason."—Harris.

"To be a nation of good animals, is the first condition of national prosperity."—Spencer.

"We have not to train up a soul, nor yet a body, but a man, and we cannot divide him."—Montaigne.

Michigan gets but a small bite at the river and harbor bill, but the whole bill is of pinched proportions and is a veritable living skeleton as compared with the portly bill of other days. The administration is saving up on rivers and harbors in order to show big surplus in some other direction.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Northern Michigan News.

Thompson Smith & Sons, of Cheboygan, employ 400 men in their lumber camps.

All but two or three of the business men of Petoskey joined the protective association.

There are about twenty five teams delivering logs at the Cross Village mill yard at present.

The Middle Village Mill Co. are now delivering their cut of maple lumber at Cross Village.

It is a very small and a very dead northern Michigan town that is not afflicted with railroad fever.

The Sherman people are jubilant over their prospects for a railroad. We hope they will not be disappointed in their expectations.

Ice has formed about the shores of Grand Traverse bay, and at the head of the west bay extends out the distance of a mile or more.

The summer resort hotel known as the Aldrich house, at Northport, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 10th. Loss $3,000, with no insurance.

It is claimed by Hon Perry Hannah that more goods are sold by the merchants of Traverse City, than in any other town of its size in the state of Michigan.

The ice harvest at Cross Village has begun. D. A. Trumpour, of Mackinaw City, will put up a large quantity there for use in shipping fresh fish next season.

Long petitions have been presented to the U. S. Senate against granting permission to a second railroad to build a bridge across the canal and river at the "Soo."

The Mackinaw Lumber Co. will get out about 2,000,000 feet of pine by rail this winter, which will be brought down to St. Ignace to the railroad boom and rafted to the company's mill.

Says a Grayling correspondent: An extension of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad from Mt. Pleasant to Mackinaw, passing through Grayling, is the latest project engaging the minds of Cheboygan people. They will make a strong effort to bring the road there.

The Herald claims that there is more money paid out in Mancelona in one month than at East Jordan in six. So Bro. Nelson will have to put up the figures showing wherein East Jordan is the smartest town in Northern Michigan or stop bragging.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

The surveyors of the C. & W. M. railroad on Saturday last were about thirteen miles southwest of Sherman. The Sherman people claim to have positive assurances that the road will touch that place. An enthusiastic meeting was held at that place last Saturday evening, and some of the citizens of Sherman have gone to assist the surveyors to find the most favorable route in that town. We hope the Sherman folks may be successful.

The case of the People vs. Henry Sheldon was tried before Justice Garbutt last Tuesday. No witness was examined but the complaining witness. A verdict of guilty was rendered by the jury, and the defendant was fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to over $30 or 30 days in jail.

* * P. A. Badour has bought him a new outfit in Chicago and goes finally, to the upper peninsula. His wife remains in Cadillac during the winter.—Boyne Citizen.

A Cheboygan woman thought she saw bear tracks on the ground under her hired girl's bed room window, and not wishing to frighten the girl she set a big steel trap there without saying anything about it to anybody. She had hardly retired for the night when she was startled by a series of yells which would have done credit to a Sioux Indian on the war path. Upon investigation, she found her husband hopping around on one leg with the bear trap hanging to the other one. Her petition for divorce was on file before breakfast next morning.

Chippewa County News: Mr. Hosa Smith, keeper of the Point Iroquois light, left for a visit to Detroit, Bay City and the Saginaws recently. This is the first time Mr. Smith has been off the upper peninsula since 1851. He left Bay City that year for the Beaver Islands, where he engaged in the fishing business. The Islands at that time were under control of King Strang, the Mormon. After Mr. Smith had resided on the island he concluded he would either have to suffer the loss of his entire fishing outfit, or join the Mormons. As his fishing business was very lucrative to him, he joined the Mormon church, but remained a single man during his residence there. He was there at the time of Strang's arrest, and saw him depart for Detroit on board the U. S. gunboat Michigan. Strang was subsequently released and returned to his little kingdom only to lose his life a short time afterward by the hand of an assassin, one of his own followers. Mr. Smith can relate circumstances by the hour, that transpired on the peninsula before the average man of Sault Ste. Marie was born.

It is estimated that the cedar output this winter will bring in over $200,000 into Cheboygan county, and that 1,000,000 ties, besides posts and telegraph poles, will be gotten out in the county.

William Gibson, an old man who has been working in the lumber woods near St. Ignace, has been arrested on suspicion that he knows more about the Cronch murder in Jackson than he ought. He will be held until Jackson is heard from about it.

The Detroit, Mackinac and Marquette road have purchased for $10,000 the remainder of a tract of 140 acres of land at the Sault, which gives them 1½ miles of water front above the canal. The guess is that the road will put shops, freight depot and an elevator on this site.

The Jordan River House at East Jordan, is undergoing renovation and will shortly be opened to the public by Messrs Marshall & Beardsley, of Elk Rapids, who intend to rush the business and run a first class hotel at $1.50 per day. We have no doubt but they will command a share of the patronage.

The great International bridge to be erected next summer over the rapids at the Soo will be 2,500 feet in length, with 350 feet spans, and will cost a round million of dollars. Bids are being advertised for now for its construction. It will be built at some large iron manufactory, and taken there all ready to place upon the piers and bolt together. It is to be ready for trains to pass over it by January 1st next.

Mancelona Herald: A largely attended railroad meeting was held at Bellaire Tuesday evening. Committees were appointed to make examinations of a passable route from the G. R. & I. to Bellaire and on to Charlevoix. Other things were discussed. The opinion prevailing that it would be well to collect sufficient information concerning the proposed route, to enable the committee to fairly set forth the advantages of a road to Bellaire. The ease with which one could be constructed, and the benefits that would accrue to the road. Those familiar with the country state that a comparatively level line can be found from Bellaire to Charlevoix, via East Jordan.

Ketchum, in his letter from Mackinac Island to the St. Ignace Republican, says: The survey of the "reserve" of Bois Blanc (under the act of Congress appropriating the proceeds of sale of said lands for the improvement of the National Park on Mackinac Island) has developed some queer situations. It is found that several people, who had bought lands in severalty from the late Mr. Dousman, are entirely dispossessed, and that their title is of no earthly account. This finding works a serious injury to these people who purchased in good faith from the Dousman estate agents. But the fact stares them in the face that the government did and does own that same land yet.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Bullars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 49 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest.

We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS.
National Park Bank - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - Chicago.
Nat City Bank - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - Detroit.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me, Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

For Finest
JOB WORK,
Patronize The
Sentinel.

These Are Solid Facts.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetizer, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner. Free Trial Bottles of this Standard Remedy at Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

[illegible]

Bank of Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

[illegible]

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty, also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Notice of Attachment.

[illegible]

FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix.

John Plankinton and Patrick Cudahy vs. Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emrey. In Attachment.

[illegible]

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix.

[illegible]

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Chancery Sale.

[illegible]

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible]

For Sale!

[illegible]

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS!

LEAST MONEY!

LEAVE ORDERS

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

BOOTS AND SHOES,

Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Packs, And Everything

A. J. McLEOD,

Wholesale or Retail

FRESH MEATS, SALT PORK, SMOKED & SALTED HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S MARKET

All Kinds Of MEATS At Lowest Prices.

JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's MILLINERY ROOMS,

Come early and secure a Bargain.

NEW SHOP!

Blacksmithing,

Horseshoeing a specialty.

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

[illegible]

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER

Washburn & Ackert, FOUNDRYMEN, MACHINISTS.

Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH, FURNITURE AND JOBBING SHOP, Antrim Street, CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

The German-American Registers.

[illegible]

CUBAN ETIQUET

[illegible]

SNEERING AT CARLYLE.

[illegible]

Lamb's Philosophy.

[illegible]

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.

Special Offer!

MARVELOUS PRICES! BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

[illegible]

BARGAINS!

ATKINS SAWS, PERFECTION AXES, BEST HEATING AND COOK STOVES

HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.

JOB and TIN WORK. L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S LIVERY STABLE CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

SILVER WARE.

C. H. BELLINGER

J. T. Kirkpatrick, ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR, —ON— Charlevoix Summer Resorts.

Carpenters and Painters.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS

Choice Wines, Fine Liquors EXCELLENT CIGARS.

Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller

Offer a Mammoth Stock OF BOOTS, SHOES and other FOOT WEAR, —AT— LOWER PRICES Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN, At current rates of interest, on Approved Real Estate Security.

MILEY & CRAPIN.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS.

JAY L. PRICE.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN 19, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
L. F. PARMELEE, Assistant Editor.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Nothing even in Louisiana politics was more disgraceful than the Democratic conspiracy in Indiana.

The time is not distant when railroads must be required to double-track all their main lines. Such terrible disasters as occur from trains going in opposite directions trying to run through each other must be guarded against.

The New York World recommends that the Republicans and Democrats of the New York assembly and senate unite and elect Roscoe Conkling United States senator. The recommendation, however, is not likely to be heeded.

The old soldiers of Michigan, together with their many friends and sympathizers, will be glad enough to learn that the democratic editors of Michigan have not as yet succeeded in tearing down the recently dedicated soldiers' home at Grand Rapids. It is now confidently believed that the structure will be permitted to stand in its entirety. Again, let us rejoice and be glad.

The new folding letter-sheets, for which so much was predicted when they were first put on sale, are fast losing favor. As long as they were something of a novelty there was considerable demand for them. The very ones—business people—who were expected to hail and accept them as a great convenience are rapidly discarding them. The first month's sale in Chicago were 12,000, and for December sales fell off to 11,000, and the demand is daily decreasing.

The Michigan Masonic Home association held its first annual meeting at Grand Rapids Monday, and it was reported that the association has 800 members and is in a prosperous condition. The association purchased the Burchard farm near the city, including 112 acres of land, and it is expected that the citizens will contribute by subscription $12,000 to pay for a site. It is proposed to commence the erection of a $100,000 home on the farm next spring.

The New York Tribune says that there are nearly 8,000 indigent soldiers and sailors, who do not receive pensions, who are supported in almshouses and other public charitable institutions in the United States. Under these circumstances complaint is made with justice that the policy of allowing ex-soldiers who are receiving pensions, some as high as $50 per month, to remain in the Soldiers' Home to the exclusion of those who receive no pension is unfair. In the Homes the ex-soldiers are maintained at the public expense and have their pensions in addition. Certainly those who receive no pensions should be given the preference in such cases.

Dabney, the sharp shooter, who is reported to have practiced on union prisoners during the war, has written a card in which he denies that he was a guard at Andersonville, but the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette has proven by a score of witnesses that he boasted of having been a prison guard. A pension case came up in which the claimant alleged that he had incurred the disability at Andersonville prison. Dabney denied that any such disability could have been incurred at Andersonville, and to prove his statement declared that he had served as a guard at that prison, and knew what he was talking about. If Dabney's denial is true, he lied at first, and if he told the truth at first he lied at last. So, in any event, one thing is certain, which is that Dabney is a well advertised liar.

This is a sad, wicked world, just in proportion as its people are rich. Brother Dana of the New York Sun, has just been demonstrating so much editorially, and scripturally. A man in Mississippi wrote to him to inquire, "who is the wealthiest Christian-hearted man in the United States?" And the editor of the Sun says solemnly that his questioner "seems to forget that according to the Gospel the possession and acquirement of wealth are incompatible with a heart charged with Christian sentiment." And he says further of Jesus: "Again, and again, He makes the possession of wealth a bar to entrance into the Christian life and into Heaven, no part of His whole teaching being more emphatic." The Sun quotes in full the story of Lazarus and the rich man. But it refrains from drawing any invidious comparisons by reference to the good millionaire Childs of the Philadelphia Ledger, the good brother Dana of the Sun, or to the Goulds, Huntingtons and Vanderbilts of the business world; though at the gate of every one of them there are undoubtedly more than one Lazarus.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. [illegible], Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Almost every day we hear young people expressing regret that they have not made better use of their opportunities to procure an education. A very common remark is, that having, for some cause been detained from school until they had fallen behind their classes in scholarship, they felt a reluctance to enter a lower class and "show their ignorance" and had yielded to this feeling until their deficiencies became so marked that they entirely abandoned the idea of attending school. They never fail to suffer the keenest regret for yielding to this, which in later years, they are not slow to pronounce false pride. They see finally, but generally when it is too late to remedy the evil, that there is no disgrace in being ignorant, or backward, but only in submitting to remain so when an opportunity offers to advance. The diligent student is an honored member by any class no matter how great the disparity between his age and that of his mates. Parents too often yield to this feeling in the child, after enforced absence from school, forgetting that the first aim should be to educate the child, not simply to keep him in a certain grade, and that it is by no means necessary to abandon the former, because the latter has become impossible.

***

At the teachers' meeting last Wednesday evening, the hour was devoted to the subject of General Exercises in school. Suggestions on physical exercises such as marching, class movements, etc., were made by Miss Nelson. In Language, by Miss Gage; in Memory, by Miss Waterbury and in Arithmetic by Miss O'Neill. Many profitable hints were contributed to the common stock.

***

The Teachers' meetings are held on the second Monday evening of each school month beginning at 7:30 school time (7:15 standard time). The subject for the next meeting will be "the influence of teachers outside the school room, as affecting the character and conduct of the children." Various phases of the subject will be presented by different teachers. It is a matter that interests parents as well as children and teachers.

***

The enrollment in the village schools up to the end of the second week of the term amounts to 227 distributed as follows: 1st Department, 34; second Department, 46; third Department, 35; fourth Department, 42; fifth Department, 70.

THOUGHTS ON EDUCATIONAL TOPICS.

"Whatever you would have appear in the life of a nation you must first put into the schools, holds true preeminently in a republic. Our free school system has its short-comings and its defects; but taken as a whole, it is the broadest and the best ever organized. It is the duty of every true teacher to remedy its defects, not to submit to them as incurable. When taxes are high and times hard, the school will be subject to a running fire of criticism all along the line; but only timid and despairing souls are frightened into the belief that the foundations of society are breaking up on account of over-education in the common schools. Neither representatives of the "caste of Capital nor the caste of Culture" can convince the American people that vice, crime, idleness, poverty, social discontent, are the legitimate results of an elementary education among the workers of society, or that the school master is a public enemy. If our schools fail to meet the needs of changing social conditions, the kind and quality, not the extent, of education must be changed."—Swett.

"Physical training and drill should be a part of the regular business of the school. If something of the kind is not done, the English physique, which has been, and still is, on the whole, a grand one, will become as extinct as the dodo."—Huxley.

"To the wise educator, parent, or teacher, nothing is more certain than that the child is an animal with the possibility of reason."—Harris.

"To be a nation of good animals, is the first condition of national prosperity."—Spencer.

"We have not to train up a soul, nor yet a body, but a man, and we cannot divide him."—Montaigne.

Michigan gets but a small bite at the river and harbor bill, but the whole bill is of pinched proportions and is a veritable living skeleton as compared with the portly bill of other days. The administration is saving up on rivers and harbors in order to show big surplus in some other direction.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Northern Michigan News.

Thompson Smith & Sons, of Cheboygan, employ 300 men in their lumber camps.

All but two or three of the business men of Petoskey joined the protective association.

There are about twenty five teams delivering logs at the Cross Village mill yard at present.

The Middle Village Mill Co are now delivering their cut of maple lumber at Cross Village.

It is a very small and a very dead northern Michigan town that is not afflicted with railroad fever.

The Sherman people are jubilant over their prospects for a railroad. We hope they will not be disappointed in their expectations.

Ice has formed about the shores of Grand Traverse bay, and at the head of the west bay extends out the distance of a mile or more.

The summer resort hotel known as the Aldrich house, at Northport, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 10th. Loss $3,000, with no insurance.

It is claimed by Hon Perry Hannah that more goods are sold by the merchants of Traverse City, than in any other town of its size in the state of Michigan.

The ice harvest at Cross Village has begun, D. A. Turopour, of Mackinaw City, will put up a large quantity there for use in shipping fresh fish next season.

Long petitions have been presented to the U. S. Senate against granting permission to a second railroad to build a bridge across the canal and river at the "Soo."

The Mackinaw Lumber Co. will get out about 2,000,000 feet of pine by rail this winter, which will be brought down to St. Ignace to the railroad boom and rafted to the company's mill.

Says a Grayling correspondent: An extension of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad from Mt. Pleasant to Mackinaw, passing through Grayling, is the latest project engaging the minds of Cheboygan people. They will make a strong effort to bring the road there.

The Herald claims that there is more money paid out in Mancelona in one month than at East Jordan in six. So Bro. Nelson will have to put up the figures showing wherein East Jordan is the smartest town in Northern Michigan or stop bragging.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

The surveyors of the C. & W. M. railroad on Saturday last were about thirteen miles southwest of Sherman. The Sherman people claim to have positive assurances that the road will touch that place. An enthusiastic meeting was held at that place last Saturday evening, and some of the citizens of Sherman have gone to assist the surveyors to find the most favorable route in that town. We hope the Sherman folks may be successful.

The case of the People vs. Henry Sheldon was tried before Justice Garbutt last Tuesday. No witness was examined but the complaining witness. A verdict of guilty was rendered by the jury, and the defendant was fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to over $20 or 30 days in jail. * * P. A. Badour has bought him a new outfit in Chicago and goes finally, to the upper peninsula. His wife remains in Cadillac during the winter.—Boyne Citizen.

A Cheboygan woman thought she saw bear tracks on the ground under her hired girl's bed room window, and not wishing to frighten the girl she set a big steel trap there without saying anything about it to anybody. She had hardly retired for the night when she was startled by a series of yells which would have done credit to a Sioux Indian on the war path. Upon investigation, she found her husband hopping around on one leg with the bear trap hanging to the other one. Her petition for divorce was on file before breakfast next morning.

Chippewa County News: Mr. Hosa Smith, keeper of the Point Iroquois light, left for a visit to Detroit, Bay City and the Saginaws recently. This is the first time Mr. Smith has been off the upper peninsula since 1851. He left Bay City that year for the Beaver Islands, where he engaged in the fishing business. The Islands at that time were under control of King Strang, the Mormon. After Mr. Smith had resided on the island he concluded he would either have to suffer the loss of his entire fishing outfit, or join the Mormons. As his fishing business was very lucrative to him, he joined the Mormon church, but remained a single man during his residence there. He was there at the time of Strang's arrest, and saw him depart for Detroit on board the U. S. gunboat Michigan. Strang was subsequently released and returned to his little kingdom only to lose his life a short time afterward by the hand of an assassin, one of his own followers. Mr. Smith can relate circumstances by the hour, that transpired on the peninsula before the average man of Sault Ste. Marie was born.

It is estimated that the cedar output this winter will bring in over $200,000 into Cheboygan county, and that 1,000,000 ties, besides posts and telegraph poles, will be gotten out in the county.

William Tolson, an old man who has been working in the lumber woods near St Ignace, has been arrested on suspicion that he knows more about the Crouch murder in Jackson than he ought. He will be held until Jackson is heard from about it.

The Detroit, Mackinac and Marquette road have purchased for $10,000 the remainder of a tract of 140 acres of land at the Sault, which gives them 1½ miles of water front above the canal. The guess is that the road will put shops, freight depot and an elevator on this site.

The Jordan River House at East Jordan, is undergoing renovation and will shortly be opened to the public by Messrs. Marshall & Beardsley, of Elk Rapids, who intend to rush the business and run a first class hotel at $1.50 per day. We have no doubt but they will command a share of the patronage.

The great international bridge to be erected next summer over the rapids at the Soo will be 2,500 feet in length, with 350 feet spans, and will cost a round million of dollars. Bids are being advertised for now for its construction. It will be built at some large iron manufactory, and taken there all ready to place upon the piers and bolt together. It is to be ready for trains to pass over it by January 1st next.

Mancelona Herald: A largely attended railroad meeting was held at Bellaire Tuesday evening. Committees were appointed to make examinations on a passable route from the G. R. & I. to Bellaire and on to Charlevoix. Other things were discussed. The opinion prevailing that it would be well to collect sufficient information concerning the proposed route, to enable the committee to fairly set forth the advantages of a road to Bellaire. The ease with which one could be constructed, and the benefits that would accrue to the road. Those familiar with the country state that a comparatively level line can be found from Bellaire to Charlevoix, via East Jordan.

Ketemno, in his letter from Mackinac Island to the St. Ignace Republican, says: The survey of the "reserve" of Bois Blanc (under the act of Congress appropriating the proceeds of sale of said lands for the improvement of the National Park on Mackinac Island) has developed some queer situations. It is found that several people, who had bought lands in severalty from the late Mr. Dousemann, are entirely dispossessed, and that their title is of no earthly account. This finding works a serious injury to these people who purchased in good faith from the Dousemann estate agents. But the fact stares them in the facts that the government did and does own that same land yet.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Henry Bennett,	O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls,	A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright,	A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL,	$25,000
SURPLUS,	2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 [illegible] of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS.

NATIONAL PARK BANK	NEW YORK.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK	CHICAGO.
NAT. CITY BANK	GRAND RAPIDS.
DETROIT NAT. BANK	DETROIT.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed.

C. H. Maddaugh.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The

Sentinel.

These Are Solid Facts.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. [illegible] only certain [illegible] money refunded [illegible] bottle by Dr. [illegible]

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, [illegible] Standard Remedy at Dr. G. W. Crouter's Drug Store.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

[illegible]

Bank of
Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL $25,000

Perfect Security

Its Officers

Security in Banking

This Bank Invites

This Bank Will

Parties Seeking

Investment Notes,

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Notice of Attachment.

Notice of Attachment.

Notice of Attachment.

Chancery Sale.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgage Sale.

Mortgage Sale.

Offices To Rent.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

For Sale!

[illegible]

RIFENBURG
MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
[illegible]
3 EXTRA GRADES
OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!

[illegible]

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS
—AND—
SHOES,

which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.

We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25 Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,

having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $5.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

SOCIETIES.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, Mich.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
S. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, Mich.

NEWMAN HOUSE,
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, Mich.

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.

PILE DRIVER.

BARBER.

SURVEYORS.

DENTIST.

MILLINERY
AND
FANCY GOODS!
Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER

FANCY GOODS!

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,
Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
AND
JOBBING SHOP.
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

Forty Acres

The German-American Register.

Two Remarkable Men.

CUBAN ETIQUET.

SNEERING AT CARLYLE.

Lamb's Philosophy.

MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.

Special Offer!

Bismarck and His Bells.

BARGAINS!
ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND COOK STOVES
HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.
JOB and TIN WORK.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware—the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc.
is complete.

If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. H. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Charlevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,
At current rates of interest, on
Approved Real Estate Security.
School Bonds bought and sold.
MILEY & CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

SMITH & P'R[illegible]LEE, Editors and Proprietors.

CHARLEVOIX, · MICHIGAN.

WHAT IS YOUR LIFE?

What is your life? [illegible] away;
Like the [illegible] of the morning when [illegible] the day;
Like the dew on the grass in the silvery morn;
Like the flower that the bride on her bosom hath worn.

What is your life? A drop in the ocean that heaves,
Or a leaf in an infinite forest of leaves,
Or a small grain of sand on a measureless shore;
An emblem of nothingness—just that and no more.

What is your life? Your life is the mightiest thing
Of which sages can teach or the poets can sing;
The most mystical subject demanding a thought;
A work the most glorious the Creator hath wrought.

What is your life? Ah, so brief! and yet 'tis a time
For the moulding of thoughts that are pure and sublime,
For loving and laboring and sowing of seeds,
For planting of flowers and uprootal of weeds.

What is your life? To build up a grand character,
To weave for the spirit fairest garments to wear,
To gather in treasures that enduring shall last
When the glory of empires is faded and past.

Such is your life! Ah, 'tis immortal! divine!
Too great and majestic for this earth to confine!
Its bars shall be broken and its chains shall be riven,
And unto it opened the bright portals of Heaven!

—S. W. Crofts, in Chicago Inter-Ocean.

A LONG COURTSHIP.

Uncle Abel's Trials, as Told at His Funeral.

Funerals were always largely attended in Sampson; they made somewhere to go, and they were interesting in themselves. But there had not been so large a funeral as Uncle Abel Hollinshead's for years—not since two children over on the Ridge had been killed by a crazy mother. The Sampson Bugle Call, which had five hundred subscribers at a subscription of eighty cents a year, recorded Uncle Abel's death in what would otherwise have been a blank space between the acknowledgement of the editor's receipt of a fine specimen of muskmelon from his fellow-townsman, Syd Hankins, and J. L. Betts' advertisement of dry-goods which had been "just brought in" every week all summer:

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of our aged and respected fellow-citizen, Mr. Abel Hollinshead. Mr. Hollinshead was one of the pioneer settlers of Sampson, and will be mourned by all who knew him. Mr. Hollinshead passed from our midst at four o'clock yesterday morning, at the age of eighty-seven years. The funeral will be at the house of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. S. Peebles and wife, at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon, conducted by Elder Comstock of the Baptist Church.

The Peebles house was filled to the point of discomfort considerably before two o'clock. All the chairs, the calico lounges and the impromptu board benches were taken up, and a large proportion of the company was left standing. The several women who went to all funerals unflinchingly, whether known to the afflicted family or not, had come early and secured seats commanding a view of the parlor, which had been opened up, musty from disuse, for the occasion, and where the mourners and the pall bearers sat along the walls facing the coffin in the center of the room, their consciousness of the importance of their position solemnly visible in their faces.

Uncle Abel's death was the subject of the subdued whispers. Women, the natural gravity of whose high-cheek-boned faces wanted nothing for fitness to the hour, leaned forward over the children they had brought to exchange items, coughing behind loose cotton gloves or hard, large-knuckled hands. "I see him goin' by jest a-Tuesday, smart as a button, an' I says to Rufus: 'Wal, it's wonderful how Uncle Abel does keep up!' " "He sat down front o' the stove—hot day 'twas, too—an' complained o' feelin' kind o' chilly; an' half an hour after he wa'n't conscious, an' next mornin' he was dead." "Mis' Peebles sent Sary for our warmin'-pan, an' I went right over; an' I see in a minute he wa'n't never goin' to git up."

Outside, the yard was half filled with men standing about in their best clothes among the beds of balsams and late pinks. A long array of dusty buggies and waiting horses, patient with the apathy of old age, or whinnying and swishing their tails with the restlessness of youth stood outside the fence. The serious quiet of the scene had a Sunday aspect but for the line of drying clothes flapping in the back yard; Mrs. Peeble's household programme seemed not to have been disarranged. The well-stone at the side of the house was occupied by half a dozen men sitting with hats pushed to the backs of their heads and hands clasped across lank knees. They were listening, with an unconcern that betokened indulgence rather than interest, to the garrulity of the two old men in their midst. They could not have been far from Uncle Abel's age; now that he was gone they were Sampson's oldest inhabitants. They were known as Ole Levi Cushin' and Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh. The former was tall and large and skinny, with a face of faded yellow, wrinkled in countless sections and half covered by a white stubble; he wore a calfskin vest, though the day was warm, and a woolen cap—necessities to his thin-blooded old age. Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh was short and cumbersomely fat, with baggy white cheeks, purply veined, blurred and watery eyes, and a protruding under lip, which shook with palsied constancy.

"Yis, yis," he was repeating, in a slight, quavering voice, which seemed an echo of its past strength; "we was jest 'bout like brothers allus, Abel an' me—jest 'bout."

His dim eyes were on the hearse standing at the front gate. But there was little sorrow in his grotesque old face; the years had blunted his capacity for it. Ole Levi Cushin' peered at him from under his shaggy white brows with a sudden warmth of resentment.

"He hadn't never hed a better friend 'n I be," he said, the blood [illegible] in his hands shaking with impotent emotion. Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh eyed him with responsive hostility.

"I wa'n't lookin' to see ye out," he said. "[illegible]"

"I h'ain't [illegible]," Ole Levi Cushin' [illegible], with tremulous [illegible]. "I don't [illegible] to reason but what I sh'd be full as smart as them that's two or three year older'n I be."

His antagonist carefully unfolded a clean blue cotton handkerchief, in a silence of momentary defeat. The Baptist choir, headed by Elder Comstock, filed up the path and into the house. A moment later the notes of Mrs. Peebles' melodeon sounded forth, and the voices of the choir, irreproachable as to time and usually distinct in pronunciation, in the rendering of "China":

Why do we mourn departed friends,
Or shake at death's alarms?

"I don' know as I sh'd 'a hed no partic'ler fault to 'a found with Abel Hollinshead," said Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh, calmly shifting his tactics, "ef he'd 'a hed jest a leetle more enterprise—a leetle more push. Jest as clever-heartest a man as ever I see, but terrible lackin' thar. Ef I hadn't 'a give him two or three hints, I don' know whar he'd 'a ben."

He talked on fast, in his high-pitched quaver, to prevent Ole Levi Cushin', who sat dimly glowering at him, from breaking in.

"Back'ards, Abel was. Well-meanin', but he seemed to kind o' want boostin'. Length o' time it took him gettin' married, now—don' know as ye ever heerd; little too good to be lost, that thar."

He looked about, tentatively eager, over his hearers. They sat in silent depression. Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh had told about the length of time it had taken Uncle Abel to get married, with varied alterations and digressions, for some twenty years.

"Wal," said the old man, beginning slowly; with a tremulous smile, and rubbing his knotty hands together in the simple enjoyment of living over the past, which is the touching life of the old, and in gratification at having an audience for his timeworn theme, "ye might say 't Abel wa'n't just amenable, ner Haryit neither; but I don' know. 'Tain't many'd 'a hed fortitude fur nineteen years o' courtin'."

He paused with an expectant chuckle. But the pleasantry was a familiar one; the solemn silence remained intact. The voice of the preacher drifted out, rising and falling in sonorous prayer.

"Hed spunk enough, tew, Haryit Galpin did," said Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh, reflectively. "Mis' Peebles, she favors her consid'able. Had enough sight more git up an' git ahead 'n Abel; looked 'long to the fust as though Abel wa'n't predestined to git her. He'd ben goin' thar steddy fur a period o' two month afore he c'd work hisself up to comin' to the pint; an' 'twouldn't 'a been brought to pass then ef it hadn't 'a been for me. I says to him—I kin recollect sayin' it—'I wouldn't go a gret amount on yer chances, Abel,' says I, 'ef ye don't git it settled up middlin' quick. She h'ain't got the patience o' Job, 'tain't likely, thar h'ain't no gal 't has,' I says. Abel he was flustered—easy flustered, Abel was; but he give in 't I was talkin' reason. Wal, I didn't reely look to see him foller my counsel, bein' so weak-willed an' procrastinatin' as he be was; but sure as ye live 'twan't long afterwards I was goin' 'long past Galpinses' place—sot where the meetin'-house sets now; didn't look much like it does now, Sampson didn't. Woods all 'round here an' clean down to the river; half a squar mile er so down to the centre was all 't hed ben cleared off, an' jest a handful o' houses —"

"Them woods," said Ole Levi Cushin', clearing his throat deliberately, "was pretty nigh chock-full o' beasts 'long 'bout that time. I've shot more on 'em 'n ye c'd pint a stick at. I kin remember startin' off with my ole flint-lock an' a bite o' somethin' four or five times a week on a gineral average. Thar was oncet 't I kin recollect partic'ler; it 'd ben snowin' stiddy for a consid'able spell, an' them woods was as full o' tracks——"

"I was goin' 'long past Galpinses' place," Ole Cha'ncy Ma'sh pursued, shrilly, "an' I heerd a kind o' groanin' noise 't 'peared to come from somewhar round, an' come to investigate, thar was Abel Hollinshead settin' by the corner o' the fence takin' on like all possessed. 'What on airth 's ailin' ye, Abel?' says I. 'She ain't minded to hev me,' says Abel. Wal, I got him histed up somehow er 'nother an' pinted fur hum. But says I, 'Ye won't be wurth yer salt, Abel,' I says, 'ef ye don't foller her right up, now 't ye're started! Ye'll be lackin' in jedgment, Abel,' I says, 'an' so I tell ye.' Wal, I didn't much reckon 't he'd hev the gumption to heed me; but he seen the wisdom o' my words, an' he sort o' spunked up a leetle an' kep' on goin' to Galpinses' some oftener 'n afore; an' come a year or so an' Haryit she give in 't she'd hev him; pestered into it, I reckon.

"Wal, ef it hadn't been fur their folks they'd 'a settled down jest 'bout seventeen years sooner 'n they did; took 'em jest seventeen year as 'twas. Ther ain't much doubt but what their folks didn't do jest right by 'em; that thar was the gineral opinion.

"The Hollinsheads they made the fust rumpus. Haryit an' Abel, they'd fin'ly got it laid out when they'd git united, an' Haryit she was makin' ready for the doin's. Wal, the Hollinsheads they up all to oncet an' took exception to Haryit's settin'-out. Ole Mis' Hollinshead she went spearin' round an' diskivered a cotton piller-case an' a hen's-feather piller, an' she declar'd 't she wa'n't goin' to hev 'em comin' into her house; an' ole Hollinshead riz up in arms concernin' one o' the heifers 't the Galpinses was calc'latin' to give with Haryit; he said 'twas stiff in the fore-legs an' underfed, an' he wa'n't goin' to be put off with no sech trash. Wal, the Galpinses they flared up, an' they jawed back an' forth, them an' the Hollinsheads, fer a consid'able spell; an' the consekence was, thar wa'n't no weddin'. Abel he give in meek as a rabbit, never c'd stan' up 'ginst a mosquiter. Abel c'du't; and Haryit she didn't hev no ch'ice but jest to stan' back."

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 19, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

From the Lakes to Atlanta.

ATLANTA, GA., Jan. 1, 1887.

To the Editors of Sentinel.

On the morning of the 20th of November we left Detroit by the Michigan Central for Toledo, at which place we changed to the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton R. R. It being a pleasant day, it was a delightful ride, passing through the best portions of Michigan and Ohio. At noon we stopped for dinner at Lima, which is a very thrifty looking city, as are all the towns along the line of that road.

We arrived at Cincinnati at 7 p. m. the same day, after which a short car ride brought us to our hotel.

The next morning it was raining, and I think Cincinnati takes the cake for mud when it rains. But we will say they have good hotel accommodations here, and some portions of the city are very fine, especially around Fountain Square, on 4th street, and through the arcade of the Hotel Emery, where one sees more wealth than in any other spot of its size in the city. Then it is a pleasant trip to take the Inclined Road to the top of Walnut Hills, where some of the fine residences are. The Zoological Garden is also another place of interest, so that one can spend a few weeks there very pleasantly.

The next stage of our journey was down the mighty Ohio to Louisville, Ky. About 4 p. m., at the foot of Broadway, we went on board the steamer City of Madison, which, by the way, has been a very fine boat in her day, and, in fact is very pleasant and comfortable now. She made several stops during the night, and arrived at Louisville at 10 a. m., where we remained until 2 p. m., when we started for Nashville by the L. & N. R. R. The road runs through some very fine country, with some pleasant looking towns but neither show the thrift and enterprise one sees in Ohio and Michigan. We arrived in Nashville at 10 p. m., and spent Thanksgiving here.

The city is located on very uneven ground and the streets are too hilly to call it a beautiful city. The most of the streets are fairly paved, and the place shows more thrift and enterprise than any place I have found south of the Ohio. They have some very fine public buildings, and many beautiful residences.

From Nashville, we boarded the Nashville Chattanooga & St. Louis cars for Murphreesboro, where we stopped at the Miles House, kept by one Col. Miles a typical Southern gentleman of the old school. Murphreesboro is a quaint old town, with a square, around which the business houses are located. They had a disastrous fire just before we arrived, burning out nearly one entire side of the square, badly injuring the appearance of the town. But our stay there was very pleasant. There is a large National cemetery there, in which Col. Miles said they had a head of us Yankees buried. We remained there one day, and then started for Chattanooga. Along the road can be seen quite a number of the remains of old fortifications of war-times.

The most of the way is through a mountainous country, passing through the Backbone range of mountains. The first thing we know we sweep around the base of Lookout Mountain and then glide into the city of Chattanooga. We found good accommodations at the Read House, just across the street from the union depot. Chattanooga is quite a thriving city, with iron industries, furniture factories, saw mills, stave factories, and a variety of other enterprises. It is also quite a railroad center. The streets are in bad condition, but they are just beginning to put down the Belgian block pavement. When this is completed, the city will have fine streets. The city is on a fairly level flat of ground, almost surrounded by hills—Lookout Mountain on one side, with Missionary Ridge extending from that half way around the city to the river.

On these hills were fought two memorable battles of the war, the one on Lookout Mountain or "the battle above the clouds," and the battle of Missionary Ridge. Some of the old breastworks are still there. We did not ascend Lookout Mountain on account of bad weather. We visited the National cemetery here, where they say are buried about 17,000 Union boys. Neat slabs mark the graves, but what causes a feeling of sadness are the numbers marked unknown. But at the same time I think the government is doing a good thing in keeping up such fine cemeteries for the resting places of her brave boys who placed their lives upon the altar of their country.

The people of Chattanooga predict great things for the city within the next few years. Property is very high. The Read House, where we stopped, changed hands while we were there, at $175,000. I note this to show how they value property there. They are erecting some very good buildings—3 churches and four large business blocks; two of the latter will have five stores in each, and will be five stories high. Also a good many residences. The main part of the improvements are being carried on by Northern capitalists—guess that will do for Chattanooga.

The next stage of the trip is the most interesting to the old soldier—from Chattanooga to Atlanta, which I will describe in my next, also a brief description of this city.

Yours,
BYRON SEE.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society will meet Friday evening with Major Green. Paper of the evening by Miss Maggie O'Neill on "The Persian Invasion."

—We were prevented by a pressing engagement from attending the "Ten nights in a Bar Room" entertainment given here last week under the auspices of the Petoskey band. It is well spoken of by those who attended.

D. C. & E. R. R. CO.

A Corporation Being Effected—The Railroad Work Going Actively Forward.

Wednesday afternoon the adjourned railroad meeting occurred in Cruickshank & Grier's office. A good attendance of prominent citizens was present, and the reports of the committees were heard and accepted.

Thursday evening Capt. Aldrich and surveyor Dixon returned from their trip east and reported that they were joined at East Jordan by W. P. Empey and the surveyor of Antrim county, and proceeded to Alba, and from there made a thorough examination of the route to East Jordan. They found a perfectly feasible route to Alba, but none to Mancelona, direct. They found, however, that a feasible route exists from the Jordan river to a point four miles north of Mancelona.

But the preliminary survey has demonstrated the fact that no obstacle exists to the building of a road through the country proposed and that very important question is set at rest.

ORGANIZATION.

On Monday afternoon an adjourned meeting at J. Milo Eaton's office was attended by a large number of our citizens, and the report of the committee on survey was heard and accepted.

The resolution to incorporate was taken from the table and passed, and a committee was appointed to draft articles of incorporation, and take all other necessary legal steps to perfect such incorporation.

When the papers are filed with the Secretary of State, the Detroit Charlevoix & Escanaba Railroad Company will be a reality. The terminal points are to be Charlevoix and Grayling, via Ironton, East Jordan and Mancelona, (or Alba.)

The meeting, besides fixing the above details, established the distance at 70 miles, and the capital stock at $600,000. The Board of Directors is to consist of eleven members.

Hon. R. Leavitt, of Bellaire, was present, representing the interests of that section, and presented a strong argument in favor of establishing the route by that town. The meeting passed a resolution that, all other things being equal, it was the sense of the meeting that the request be granted.

The various committees will continue the work of perfecting the organization. Mancelona and Grayling will be visited, and further details of the route secured; correspondence will be opened with Escanaba, and the M. C. R. R. Co., and the work pushed with energy.

The people of Charlevoix, Ironton and East Jordan mean business, and there is much encouragement in the outlook.

Northern Michigan.

Many Elk Rapids hearths are warm and bright this winter, with driftwood gathered from the bleak shores of the icy bay.

The Bellaire fire department has been granted permission to fix up and use the basement of the town hall for their apparatus.

The steamer Queen of the Lakes will run next season on the same route as last season, Dexter & Noble having contracted with the Chicago & West Michigan.

The Canadian Pacific railroad company has issued tenders for the Algoma branch extension, distance of 86 miles, from Algoma mills to Sault Ste. Marie. The clearing of the road has already commenced, and will be completed by March 1, by terms of contracts. The laying of the rails is to be finished about the middle of next August.

Bellaire Breeze: It becoming apparent to the citizens of Bellaire that the Michigan Central Company is about to build a line of railroad from Grayling to Charlevoix a meeting was held at the town hall Tuesday evening, the object being to see that Bellaire is one of the points touched by the contemplated route. Roswell Leavitt was elected chairman of the meeting, and C. E. Densmore secretary. The chairman stated the object of the gathering, and the matter was fully discussed by citizens present, after which Roswell Leavitt, C. W. Ball and Gilman Willson were appointed a committee to examine the route from Bellaire to East Jordan and Charlevoix, and co-operate with parties from those two towns having the same object in view. A committee was appointed to examine the route from Bellaire to the G. R. & I. railroad, also one to raise funds for gathering information regarding the route from the G. R. & I. railroad to Charlevoix. The finance committee is at work and is having good success in securing funds to push the work along.

The Michigan legislature is starting out nobly. Thursday the House passed the submission resolution by a vote of 74 yeas to 21 nays, and the resolution was transmitted to the senate where it is to be hoped it will be considered and passed without delay. The merits of the question have been discussed over and over again and there is nothing new to be said concerning it. The question "shall the people be permitted to vote on the proposed amendment or shall they be denied that right?" is the only question to be considered at this time. The House showed its wisdom in promptly passing the resolution and we trust the senate will be equally wise, and that every republican senator's vote will be recorded in favor of submission.

Ironton.

Wood, logs, ties and shingle bolts are being hauled into town with an average force of 33 teams.

The new lining, bosh and hearth of the stack were completed on Thursday, and the masons left for Chicago on Friday.

Mr. Henry Jackson of Florence, Wis., is here to fit up the machinery in the furnace.

All the men working inside the furnace were laid off on Thursday for an indefinite time.

Charlie Noyes is laid up with a wound in his side, the results of fooling with a sharp ax.

Lot Allen bought one of the Freeman horses to take the place of one he lost. Mr. Allen expects to get out about 600 cords of wood besides a quantity of logs.

School opens with an enrollment of 80 pupils; 38 in Grammar Dep't, and 42 in Primary Dep't.

A show on Thursday night at Schoffen's hall; this is the first for an age.

The railroad creates a ripple around the post office, street corners, and other resorts.

The Pine Lake Lumber Co.'s scaler, P. M. Christie, who has been scaling at this point for four weeks, goes to Charlevoix on Wednesday to scale logs there.

Mrs. Alf Joles has been very sick for a few days. Dr. Carlstein is attending her.

Rev. John R. Robinson preached at the Congregational church on Sunday evening.

Messrs. Charlie and Eddie Jackson entertained a number of their young friends with a "taffy pull" on Saturday evening.

The report that there is an alliance between Russia and Germany is now confirmed. If this is not a strong double team then is strength but another name for weakness, and power but an empty word.

The Senate passes a bill giving a pension of two thousand dollars a year to General Logan's widow. Right! This Government can make no better use of a few thousand dollars than to use it in providing for the declining years of the families of its greatest defenders.

They talk now of sending Roscoe Conkling to the Senate from New York. He has probably learned moderation from experience, and is a man of such splendid talents that he should adorn public life. But there will be music in the air, and plenty of it, if he returns to the Senate.

33d Degree Masonry.

The United States for purposes of Scottish rite Masonry is divided into two jurisdictions, the northern and southern. The number of active 33d degree Masons to which the country is entitled is 99, the northern jurisdiction being entitled to 66 and the southern to 33. This number can never be increased. In addition to active members, there are two other kinds of Masons of the 33d degree, honorary members and emeritus members. The honorary members are chosen from the 32nd degree members, one being allowed for every so many of the 32nd. The active members are chosen from the honorary, whenever a vacancy occurs in the 99 to which the United States are entitled. The emeritus membership constitutes a sort of retired list on which active members may be placed in their old age after years of efficient service in the order. Michigan has but three active members of the 33d degree, Dr. Metcalf of this city, Mr. Hugh McCurdy of Corunna, and Mr. D. B. Tracey of Detroit. There are about a dozen honorary members in the state, while since the death of Mr. Landon of Niles, there is but one emeritus member, Rev. Blades of Detroit. Kalamazoo has two members of the 33d degree, Dr. Metcalf, who is an active member, and Mr. Frank Henderson, who was made an honorary member at the last meeting of the supreme council in Chicago. Dr. Metcalf was made a 33d degree Mason in 1867, and is now district deputy inspector general for Michigan. The supreme council of the northern jurisdiction is obliged to meet every third year at Boston. Other years, it meets at such cities as it may have designated in the previous year. It meets next year at Providence, R. I. A curious thing met with in investigating Scottish rite Masonry is that Minnesota, although a northern state, belongs to the southern jurisdiction. The division of the country into jurisdictions was made a great many years ago, when the territorial limits of Louisiana extended a good ways up into the northwest country, and probably for this reason Minnesota came to be considered as belonging to the southern jurisdiction. California also belongs to the southern jurisdiction. —Kalamazoo Telegraph.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Report

Of the condition of the Charlevoix Savings Bank at Charlevoix, Michigan, on Monday, January 3d, A. D. 1887, made in accordance with sections 18, 19 and 67 of the General Banking Law, as amended in 1871.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts	$29,063.01
Demand Loans	6,000.00
Overdrafts	145.41
Furniture and Fixtures	497.00
Expenses and Interest paid	2,046.63
Due from Banks and Bankers	6,729.19
Legal Tender and Bank Notes	3,749.26
	$47,670.55

LIABILITIES.

Capital paid in	$15,000.00
Surplus Fund	2,000.00
Undivided Profits	6,791.37
Due Depositors	23,879.18
	$47,670.55

I do solemnly swear that the above statement is true, to the best of my knowledge and belief.
FRED A. SMITH, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 6th day of January, 1887.
E. H. GREEN, Notary Public.

Notice of Dissolution.

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Heath, Francis & Co., was on the 1st day of September dissolved by mutual consent. The business heretofore conducted by that firm will in future be conducted by Jerome Heath, who assumes all liabilities and settles all outstanding accounts.
Dated January 4th, 1887.
JEROME HEATH,
WILLIAM FRANCIS,
ALEXANDER CAMERON.

Fred Cochran returned to Newberry, Friday.

—A charity ball for the benefit of Arza Campbell, will be given at Opera Hall, Friday evening, Jan. 21st. All turn out and help a worthy cause.

Gen. Hazen, Chief Signal Officer of the U. S. Army, is dead.

WANTED—A steady situation in a store. Six years experience. Address D. C. Bacon, Box 233, Charlevoix.

Frankfort expects a building boom to strike it hard in the spring, and sees prospects ahead for at least fifty new houses already.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horse shoeing.

Ferran's Baltimore oysters, 25, 35 and 40 cents at G. W. Smith's.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

Low Prices still Continue

AT

George W. Miller's.

A REMINDER FOR JANUARY

Our Remnants!

COME AND SEE THEM.
YOU ARE SURE TO BUY.

Everything Down, Down!
At
F. W. CRAINE & CO'S

OUR GREAT 1-4 OFF SALE!
A BIG SUCCESS.

OUR STORE CROWDED WITH CUSTOMERS EVERY DAY.

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY IN WHICH ANY MERCHANT CAN SUCCEED IN GETTING UP A GENUINE BIG RUSH AND THAT WAY IS TO GIVE CUSTOMERS REAL

BARGAINS,

and live straight up to your advertisements. This we have always fully carried out, and hence the great success of our 1-4 off Sale. When we say 1-4 off, it means 1-4 off. Buy what you please and we will sell it to you at the regular price and deduct 1-4 off the bottom of your bill. All our goods are marked in plain figures.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

SPECIAL

Clearance Sale of Dry Goods.

All Winter Goods at a Great Sacrifice to close.

We have too many BLANKETS, and FLANNELS, too much HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR YARN, KNIT GOODS, etc, and must close them out.

GROCERIES & PROVISIONS!
Always a full stock and always at guaranteed Lowest Prices.

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR SHIPPING WOOD, TIES, and POSTS.

J. L. HURD & CO.

CUT, SLASH, CRASH!!
BANG!

THE LARGEST STOCK OF

CLOTHING!

EVER FOUND IN OUR STORE.

After taking invoice of our stock we find our tables overrun with Clothing.

To this end we have decided to give a Special Sale in this line for

30-Days Only-30

BARGAINS! As our price-list below shows, can be had in Cent's. Youths', and Children's Suitings.

	Worth	for
A good Overcoat	$8	$4.50
A fine " "	$10	7.00
A Boys " "	$14	$10
" " "	$5	$3
A good Wool Suit	$8	5
An All " "	$7	4
A fine all wool Dress Suit	10	7
A " " "	$18	14
A " " "	$25	18
A Boy's Suit	$5	3
A Childs "	$3	1.50
A " "	$5	$4

Remember this bargain to purchasers is for 30 days only, and now if you are in need of Clothing, is the time to buy cheap.
Soliciting a share of your patronage, we are

RESPECTFULLY YOURS,

Rosenthal & Son
on the corner.

Jan 9 Miller Mayd 7

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO. 52. CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1887. WHOLE NO. 896

School Books!
SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!
—HEADQUARTERS—
For Everything needed in the School Room, at
HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.
You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.
Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of
BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN
Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best, Our Prices the Lowest, Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.
Send it to your friends abroad.

A Choice Line of
FRESH GROCERIES,
OF EVERY VARIETY,
Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock
For your inspection in OPERA BLOCK by
R. J. COOPER.

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS

OUR FAMOUS
AXES, SAWS,
WEDGES,
Handles,
Steel Mauls,
Stoves, and
Stove Boards,
And all other Seasonable Hardware,
VERY CHEAP.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

Pine Lake Iron Co.
IRONTON, MICH.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
BRANCH STORE AT
HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan
Address all business correspondence to the firm.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1 50 | Six months 75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Will See is in Canada.

—Remember the lecture at the M. E. church this evening.

—John R. Walker of South Arm lost a valuable horse, Saturday.

—The C. & W. M. engineers are within 15 miles of Traverse City.

—Weather prophets have already arisen this winter, who prophesy an early spring.

—The Elfenburg flouring mill has shut down for a short time owing to a scarcity of wheat.

—The villages of Northern Michigan are a unit on one sentiment, and that is: "Railroad, or bust."

—The ice extends out into the bay at Traverse City two or three miles but it is open water beyond that.

—Dr. S. C. Graves, formerly of this place, has been appointed jail physician at Grand Rapids, at $144 per year.

—Those that have heard the lecture "Pictures I have seen" by W. H. McCartney, speak of it in very high terms.

—D. C. Loveday has exchanged his residence on the south terrace with Mrs. Marion Moulton of East Jordan, for property in that place.

—S. Rosenthal of Petoskey, who has been here the past two weeks invoicing stock at Rosenthal & Son's store, returned home Saturday.

—John Brown has hauled from Dr. Lewis' place at Undine, 75,000 feet of logs to Cram & Whitford's mill, and has about 25,000 feet more to haul.

—Gov. Luce has appointed Varnum B. Cochran, of Marquette, and Loren E. Roberts, of Traverse City, trustees of the northern asylum for the insane.

—F. J. Meech has leased his mill property at South Arm to Glenn & Porter, until next October and that wide-awake firm will have two mills in operation next summer.

—The proposed railroad from Manistee to Traverse City was chartered the past week under the name of the "Manistee and Northwestern Railroad," with a capital of $600,000. Work will be commenced as soon as possible this spring.—Manistee Advocate.

—The temperance people, as was announced last week, held a meeting at the Bridge St. House Saturday evening to organize a Good Templars lodge. It was decided by the 30 present, to re-organize under the old charter, and a meeting will be held at the same place Saturday evening for that purpose.

—Petoskey raises her hands in unfeigned astonishment when the large and luminous fact dawns upon her corporate intellect that Charlevoix is not "too dead to skin." Dear sister, Charlevoix has been several years bottling up her energy for the supreme moment. Now we propose to make the fur fly.

—The following are the dates of the settlement of some of our old residents: A. G. Aldrich, May 1858; John Newman, same date; Hugh Miller, summer of 1858; Medad Thompson, same of 1853; Samuel Horton, 1857; Philo Beers, fall of 1863; Amos Fox, summer of 1864. The old dock was built in 1864.

Saturday, S. M. See purchased the furniture stock of R. Cooper. The name of the new concern will be S. M. See & Sons, and will be composed of S. M. See, Charley and Lewis See. A complete line of new furniture will be put in soon and a hearse purchased in the spring. See & Sons are well known throughout the county and will receive a good patronage.

If the Democrat is any criterion of public sentiment there, the Petoskey people are all torn up over the fact that Charlevoix is after a Michigan Central branch. It sounds the notes of warning and comes to the conclusion that if Charlevoix succeeds it means that the chances for Petoskey securing a M. C. R. R. branch are slim. It further remarks: "And still we are inclined to look upon Charlevoix as a pokey old place with no energy, but a greater mistake never was made."

—Mrs. L. W. Skinner of this place, died Thursday morning after a prolonged illness. Mrs. Skinner was the widow of Lemuel W. Skinner, an old resident of Charlevoix county, and who died in Virginia last spring. Mrs. Skinner has resided here for the past two years and was intending to make Virginia her future home had her husband lived, as he was preparing for the removal of his effects when he died. Mrs. Skinner had many friends in Charlevoix who will sincerely mourn her demise. She leaves three children, James Skinner, of Menominee; Mrs. E. S. Hawks, of East Jordan and Mrs. H. D. Wood, of this place. Her funeral occurred Saturday afternoon at the Congregational church.

Fred Mayne is happy. It's a girl.

—J. M. Harris of Ironton, called Saturday.

—Man wants but little here below [illegible].

—E. B. Marshall of Atwood, was in town on business, Saturday.

—Cooper Bros expect to have their new saw mill running this week.

—Miss Fannie Steele and Miss Emma Todd Sundayed at Ironton with friends.

—Mrs. John Shapton of Marion, who has been seriously ill for some weeks, is convalescent.

—W. A. Smith left Sunday for Detroit, to attend the annual session of the Grand Lodge, F. & A. M.

—An important question now is, when will there be a local demand for railroad ties and telegraph poles?

—Mr. John McCabe and Miss Mary Green both of Charlevoix, were married the 13th inst. by Fr. Ignatius of Petoskey.

—Notice the advertisement of Cross & Sons in another column. They are doing considerable business in the farmers produce line.

—Mrs. Gaed Brown returned home from Ypsilanti, Saturday. Her sister at whose bedside she has been, died of consumption, the 8th inst.

—Henry Barth left yesterday for Elk Rapids, where he will assist the Elk Rapids Iron Co. for a few weeks. Mr Barth is a superior workman.

—All those desiring to get masks and suits for the masquerade February 22nd, can get what they want in that line by leaving their order with Jay Price.

—John Wagner arrived yesterday to take the place of Lew Smith in Frank Wood's barber shop. That young bustler Lew, will remain among us, however.

—Grand Rapids Eagle: Chief Engineer Petheram, of the C. & W. M. railroad, is in the woods about forty miles north of Baldwin, surveying the route from that place to Traverse City.

—"Uncle Johnny Miller" has resided on his present farm over thirty years. When he and his family first arrived here, six weeks passed before that first sign of civilization—a white man—made his appearance.—Boyne Citizen.

—Lake Michigan still remains open, and this fact adds another link to the chain of facts going to show that Charlevoix will make a first-class terminus for the D. C. & E. R. R. On an average this harbor is open four weeks longer every year than ports twenty miles north of us.

—We hope Boyne City will succeed in her railroad project. The more railroads that get into this country the better. The first ride we take, however, will be over the D. C. & E. to Detroit about the summer of 1889. If we should have any business at Alpena, we shall apply for a pass over the Boyne City road.

—The County Clerk informs the senior editor of this paper, that a Notary Public's commission is only awaiting a remittance of $2.75 to be forwarded to his address. We suppose this is the work of that ship-carpenter who represents this district at Lansing. We have for many years tried to be a friend to Archie Dougherty. We supported him for Supervisor of Charlevoix when he was poor, and gave our undivided support to him for Representative. And now he goes and does this thing when our wood pile is low, and our flour barrel only [illegible] full of johnny-cake material. That's no way to treat an old friend.

—A Boyne City special to the Grand Rapids Democrat, says: "This place was 'all torn up' Thursday night over the matter of a railroad, there being the largest assemblage of persons ever held in this place for that purpose. It was unanimously determined to organize a stock company for the building of a road to Alpena by way of a point two miles north of Vanderbilt where a road is already built running east 12 miles. Judging by the character of the committee who were chosen to draft articles of association, it must be a success. The committee is composed of R. L. Corbett, attorney, Dr. A. W. Nicholson, Rev. T. J. Hill, W. J. Lewis, general grocer, and E. F. Allen, druggist.

—Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Marshall Daily Statesman, comes to our table. It is a very neat and well-filled six column folio, and displays the motto in pica full face, "We're here to stay." The weekly Statesman came into existence over forty year years ago to stay, and is to-day under the management of the son of the deceased veteran who founded it. Twenty four years ago, during the civil war, the senior editor of this paper entered the Statesman office as an apprentice. In nine months he became pressman, and for nearly three years worked the Statesman edition of from 700 to 1,000 copies on a hand press. The almost parental kindness of Uncle Seth Lewis and his wife for over three years will always have a place in our memory. "Bill," the present head of the concern, was a long haired "Oscar Wilde" sort of a fellow, but as good a boy as ever stood at a case. He is a worthy successor of his honest old father, and a thorough journalist. The Statesman is one of the very best papers in the State. May the new venture prove a profitable one.

—R. W. Kane is in the state of New York on business.

—The programme for the G. A. R. social appears next week.

—Stockman & Iddings present a new announcement next week.

—The work of re-building the Van Raalte has not commenced as yet.

—The tug Payne will be sold by Deputy U. S. Marshall McLeod next Friday.

—In about a month Northern Michigan will have a brigade of railroad directors and stock holders.

—Gregory, the miller, has moved from the See block to one of Harsha's tenement houses on Main street.

—Bellaire wants to enter the pool for the D. C. & E. R. R. Well, sister, show us a route and come down with the ducats.

—Mrs. R. A. Campbell and son Bertie, left yesterday for Traverse City and Northport, to be absent a few weeks.

—The lecture course noted elsewhere should be attended by every citizen. Aside from being for a worthy object the instruction gained will be worth double the price charged.

—As was feared at the time of the accident, the injury to the right eye of A. F. Myers was so serious as to deprive him of its use for life. He has the sympathy of a great many friends.

—John Torrent has sold the last of the pine he had bought of Hannah, Lay & Co. The sale included planing shingle and saw mill; also docks and water front, for $225,000. Mr. Fay, the purchaser, will remove to Traverse City in the spring.

—Supt. Enos at the school exhibition in Charlevoix, rigged out 20 little boys in "little coats of green, and 20 vests all white and clean" and they illustrated the "Frogs at School" as they sang it. It brought down the house.—School Moderator.

—The last action of the prohibition party is the redeeming act of its existence. Leading prohibitionists met in Lansing last week and agreed to unite with republicans and other friends of temperance at the polls next spring, in case the prohibition amendment is passed. Carry the news to Cressy!

—Word has been received by deputy collector Eaton that work on harbor improvement will be commenced early next spring. The south pier will be extended, the north side of the lower channel revetted to the bridge, the port between Round lake and the bayou and also the lower channel will be dredged and the harbor put in first class shape generally.

—The first monthly public meeting of the W. C. T. U. at the Congregational church Monday evening, was well attended. Instructive addresses were made by Dr. Carlstein and Rev. W. G. Clark. Miss Cody gave a pathetic temperance selection which brought many to tears. The singing was furnished by a quartette composed of Messrs. Watson and Carlstein, Miss Kanagy and Mrs. Clark.

—"Elk Rapids, Charlevoix, etc., keep talking about getting railroads, and it seems to all end in talk"—Enterprise. You probably have not heard of what Charlevoix has done the past week. When you see that handsome subscription list to provide for a survey to Mancelona, by way of Ironton and East Jordan, you will correct your remarks about all ending in talk. What is the status of East Jordan's railroad projects?—Petoskey Democrat.

—The following pension bill passed the house last week by 179 yeas to 76 nays: Parents of deceased soldiers, in cases where there are no widows or minor children, shall only be required to show that they are without means of support other than their own manual labor, and that this being done, they and all persons who served three months or more in any war in which the United States has been engaged, and who have been honorably discharged therefrom, and who are incapacitated for labor sufficient to earn support, shall be placed on the list of invalid pensioners and be entitled to receive $12 per month, such pension to commence upon the filing of application in the pension office. The act does not apply to persons under political disability.

—Petoskey Record: Elk Rapids, Bellaire, Mancelona, East Jordan and Charlevoix have got it bad—the railroad fever. The contagion is spreading. * * * * We are not at all alarmed by the tremendous railroad excitement over at Charlevoix, but the fact that that hitherto sleepy old town is getting ahead of Petoskey in the matter of a toboggan slide cuts us to the quick. * * * * The Charlevoix, Ironton, and East Jordan people have dropped the county seat squabble and are now organizing a joint movement to secure a railroad. Ostensibly it is to secure a branch of the Michigan Central. Probably however, they expect that the G. R. & I. will hump itself to "get there" under the pressure of this movement. * * * * The Charlevoix folks are all alive on the subject of a branch road from the Michigan Central, and Bro. Smith, whenever he now refers to Petoskey closes his left eye, and bulges out his right cheek with his tongue. All right! gentlemen. You ought to have a railroad outlet, and we hope you will get one; but we don't believe you will get the Michigan Central. Probably you will get the G. R. & I., and in due time the Chicago & West Michigan.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, Publishers

The Chicago board of trade has $39,916 on hand above all liabilities. The assessment for the new year was fixed at $60.

The steamer Lydian Monarch is unable to sail from Jersey City for London for lack of bonds for $200,000 to cover a libel by a stevedore.

Daniel J. Cushman, the proprietor of six clothing stores at Utica and adjacent cities in New York, has failed for $100,000.

David Johnson, a member of the North Chicago corps of the Salvation army, has been arrested for the perpetration of seven burglaries.

The St. Paul road has definitely decided to extend its tracks northeastward from Merrill to the Tomahawk river, the ultimate end being Lake Superior.

The Infanta Isabella of Spain, sister of the late King Alfonso, was thrown from her carriage while following the royal huntsmen, but escaped injury.

Professor B. Schaff, imprisoned at Cincinnati for swindling book sellers, was found in a stupor in his cell and expired after being taken to the hospital.

The lord lieutenant of Ireland, while declining to abate rentals on his estates in the county Down, offers to sell his tenants their holdings at reasonable rates.

The election of Roscoe Conkling as United States senator from New York by the joint vote of democrats and republicans is urged by The World.

The postmaster general recommends the re payment of $15,335 to to the postmaster at Minneapolis, that amount having been stolen from him.

The Rock Island road has nearly completed arrangements for the use of the Kansas Pacific track from Topeka to Kansas City.

The San Francisco produce-exchange finds the stock of wheat in the state and on vessels in the harbor to be 400,000 tons, of which 250,000 tons are available for shipment to Europe.

A Lutheran clergyman, of Oshkosh, devoted his last sermon to the Knights of Labor, and warned the members of his church that they will be expelled if they cling to the order.

"Buffalo" Miller predicts the collapse of the whisky pool before May, because of Kentucky competition and the assessment of three cents per bushels to keep certain distilleries closed.

A divorce from his fifth wife was recently procured by John Rand, of Osakis, Minnesota, now in his seventy-fourth year. By advertising in a Boston newspaper he has since secured a helpmeet.

A terrible snow storm has prevailed throughout the midland counties in England. Much loss of life is reported. The highways and railways were impassable in many places and the marts were blockaded.

The receipts and expenses of the Chicago Home for the Friendless for the past year were about $19,069 each. The admissions numbered 2,047, of whom 919 were children. Henry Field has been elected president.

Heavy losses on stock driven onto the Montana ranges during last summer and fall are anticipated owing to the intense cold weather, and also to the fact that the cattle reached their new grazing grounds in poor condition.

In the depot at Albert Lea, Minnesota, a young and handsome woman who fell on the track fifteen feet from an incoming train, was clutched by a bus-driver and squeezed against the platform in such manner as to leave her unharmed.

In a libel suit brought against a Chicago newspaper by a Connecticut lawyer, asking $20,000 damages for being pronounced a crank, the defendant recently filed a demurrer, giving the dictionary definition of crank as machinery having a circular motion.

The warden of the New Jersey penitentiary frustrated a plot by the convicts to kill the keepers and free themselves. It appears that jeweler's saws were smuggled into the prison in bars of soap and plugs of tobacco, and that several iron bars were sawed through.

Thomas P. May, once a wealthy planter of Louisiana, and at the outbreak of the war a union man, is said to be dying in London, where for some years he has been engaged in literary pursuits. He was subtreasurer at New Orleans, and established The Times in that city in the interest of Salmon P. Chase for the presidency.

The bill to give Mrs. Logan a pension of $2,000 per annum meets opposition from General Matson, of Indiana, chairman of the house committe on invalid pensions. A check for one thousand dollars for the Logan fund has been sent to Washington by John Fitzgerald, president of the Irish National League of America.

Sergeant Ballantyne, who died in England Sunday at the advanced age of 78, was probably the best-known lawyer in the old world. He is credited with having received the largest retaining fee ever paid. This was on the occasion of his traveling to India to defend a native prince in the local courts, and the fee was stated at the time to be $250,000. The Sergeant distinguished himself in the first Tichborne trial and many other notable cases, and refused a Judgeship on several occasions. His reminiscences had an enormous sale not only in England, but also in America when first published, and have been generally recognized as giving a better insight into the lives and habits of eminent lawyers and Judges than any other work. The Sergeant had been in failing health for some years.

DYNAMITE FIENDS.

Unknown Persons in San Francisco Place an Explosive on the Track, with Serious Results.

A Passenger Train Running at a High Rate of Speed Leaves the Track—Disastrous Fire, Etc.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

A Dynamite Explosion.

San Francisco, Jan. 14.—Residents on Post street between Larkin and Polk, were startled between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening by the sound of a tremendous explosion and the scattering of glass about their ears. A dynamite cartridge had been placed on the track of the Larkin street branch line of the Sutter street cable road, and had exploded under dummy No. 34. The dummy was completely wrecked, and the windows of the car and of houses in the vicinity were demolished. Mr. Hilderbrandt and his wife and brother were sitting on the dummy on the side where the explosion took place. They were all thrown into the street, and Mrs. Hilderbrandt, it is feared, was seriously injured. She was taken into a neighboring house and medical assistance was summoned. Later in the evening she was conveyed to her home. It was a miracle that there were no others injured, as several persons were on the dummy.

Went off the Track.

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 14.—The St. Louis limited express on the Erie road, due at New York at 11 a. m., was derailed three miles west of here at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The tender was thrown from the track by the rails spreading, and was followed by two baggage cars, three day coaches and three sleepers. The cars came to a standstill an eighth of a mile beyond where the accident occurred, and when they stopped they stood in every direction. Baggagemaster Hyland was the only person hurt. He was slightly injured by a heavy trunk falling on him. The train was running fifty miles an hour when it left the track.

A Millionaire's Loss.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—The magnificent brownstone residence of Mr. Norman B. Ream at No. 1901 Prairie avenue was almost completely destroyed by fire at an early hour Friday morning. The house, which is a two story and mansard roof, was formerly the residence of H. R. Keith, from whom Mr. Ream purchased it last spring, paying therefor $80,000 and his own residence on Groveland Park avenue. Since the date of the purchase a large force of workmen has been employed in making extensive and costly repairs, the whole house being remodeled at an additional expense of over $70,000. It was already furnished, and Mr. Ream's family was to have taken possession next week.

Work of Train-Wreckers.

Atchison, Kas., Jan. 12.—About 12 o'clock last night the south-bound passenger train on the Missouri Pacific extension was thrown from the track about half a mile east of Dunbar, Neb., and completely wrecked. The wreck was undoubtedly the work of some miscreant who tampered with the track, as an examination showed that the fish plates had been removed from the inside rail and a claw-bar was found four feet from the track. It is stated that Dewitt, the engineer, was not in favor with the Knights of Labor, because of his loyalty to the company, and that he had received several threatening letters. It is also stated that within the last four months, four switches had been opened mysteriously before his train, but that in each case he had discovered it in time.

The wrecked train consisted of an engine, baggage and express car, smoker, passenger-coach, chair-car, and sleeper, and carried a large number of passengers. The scene of the wreck was on a curve, where the track runs around the base of a high, wooded hill on a six foot embankment. At the foot of the embankment is a small stream, and along this stream the cars were scattered promiscuously, some on their sides and some bottom up. The engine turned over on its side, pinning the engineer, James Dewitt, to the ground, with the throttle bar through his right side. The fireman, Walter H. Gates, of Kansas City, was thrown out of the cab and seriously scalded. The express messenger, Frank I. Chenoweth, of Kansas City, was struck on the head by a heavy piece of baggage and had his skull fractured. The chair-car turned over and landed bottom up, with all the passengers in a heap amid broken lamps, seats, and personal baggage.

The Bomb Victims.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Officer Nic Shannon, who was cut and torn in a frightful manner by the bomb thrown at the haymarket riot, is again confined to his bed. A form of erysipelas called by Dr. J. B. Murphy cellulitis, is the name of the new trouble. The doctor does not anticipate any serious consequences, however, and predicts that his patient will be out again in about two weeks.

Iddesleigh is Dead.

London, Jan. 12.—Lord Iddesleigh, the British secretary of foreign affairs, is dead. Thus far but meager particulars are known regarding the death of Lord Iddesleigh. It has been ascertained, however, that he was taken suddenly ill this afternoon while in conference with Lord Salisbury, and that death ensued shortly after.

Killed by Coal-Gas.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Coal-gas killed Malvina Wecner, an 18 year-old girl, at 41 Seminary avenue, in the patch of shanties known as "Nickersonville," yesterday. Four other persons escaped a similar death only by their good luck, and one of them, Johnny Labuda, a boy of 14 years, is not yet out of danger.

Charles Schaaet, of 232 Thirteenth place, summoned as a juror in the Carey murder trial, in descending from the dining room of the Revere House this morning, slipped on the stairs, and, falling heavily to the bottom, broke his back. At first it was thought his injuries were not serious, but an examination revealed them to be of a most dangerous character. Mr. Schaaet fainted several times after he was picked up, and it became necessary to administer opiates to him and to keep him under the influence of drugs in order to deaden his pains. A room was prepared for his reception and thither he was removed, a physician stating it would be extremely dangerous to remove him from the hotel.

Jumped The Track.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Incoming trains on the Chicago & Evanston railroad were delayed by an accident which occurred just south of Clybourn place. The last car of the train jumped the track by the spreading of a switch. The car went bumping along over the ties, much to the consternation of the passengers, one of whom was so badly frightened that he jumped out of the window, cutting himself severely with broken glass.

A Large Failure.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—The Chicago Drug and Chemical company confessed judgment this morning to notes aggregating $78,750. One confession is for $73,000, to George Ethart, a New York brewer. Another is to the Chicago national bank for $5,250.

Deputy Sheriff Morgan served an execution for the amount on the firm.

Kills His Sweetheart.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Vaisin Rennie to-day shot and killed his sweetheart, Clara Carter, and then attempted suicide. The two principals in the tragedy are from St. Charles parish, just above the city. The girl, Clara, who was only 17 years old, came to New Orleans five months ago, and was in the employ of Mrs. Reed, on Standrow street. Rennie frequently came to the city to see her. For three weeks past he has been here endeavoring to persuade her to marry him and return with him to St. Charles. The girl was unwilling to leave, however, and made a number of excuses, which seemed only to enrage Rennie. Last night he insisted upon her going with him, and to-day at 2:30 he returned to the house in a violent passion. The girl was not home at the time, and Rennie slipped into her room. He stood leaning against the mantel when she entered, when he thrust his pistol into her face and fired twice, and she dropped dead. Then, placing the pistol against his own head, he fired, and his body fell over that of the girl. The entire scene was witnessed by Mrs. Reed, who stood at the door or the room. An examination of Rennie showed that the bullet had struck his skull, but glanced off, stunning but not seriously injuring him. The murderer is only 22 years of age.

Down an Embankment.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 11.—The Indianapolis & Vincennes passenger train leaving here last night was thrown from the track about three miles from this city by a broken rail. The train was running at a high speed, and all the coaches left the track rolling down an embankment. There were about seventy-five passengers aboard, nearly all of whom were more or less injured, but no one was killed. Among the injured are: S. J. Allen of Lyon, leg broken and bruised about the head; John Quackenbush of Sheridan, leg broken. The injuries received by the other passengers were not of a serious character. A wrecking train was sent out and the injured brought to this city where they received medical treatment.

State Legislatures.

Indianapolis, Jan. 11.—In the senate President Smith announced the standing committees, the most important of which, that on elections, is composed of Senators Bailey, Howard, French, Griffith, Moon, Sears and Dresser. In the house Mr. Jewett introduced a bill requiring parties running mines, stone-quarries, etc., to pay employes at least once a week in lawful money passed after the suspension of the rules.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—The Republican caucus was held to-night and I. B. Mills, of Jackson, nominated for Speaker, Mr C. K. Irwin of Monroe was nominated president pro tem. of the Senate by the Republicans. The Democratic Senators will make their nomination tomorrow.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—The senate was organized by electing C. K. Erwin, of Monroe, president pro-tem. Charles E. Bross of Dane, chief clerk, and Maj. T. F. George of Menomonee, Sergeant-at-Arms, were also elected. All the nominees of the Republican caucus were elected to the places for which they were nominated. In the assembly, Mr. Mills was elected speaker, the Democracy voting for Winans. Ed D. Coe of Walworth was elected chief clerk and O. C. Adamson of Fond du Lac Sergeant-at-Arms. W. L. Houser of Buffalo, was made assistant clerk and Martin Matson of Walworth assistant sergeant.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 11.—Eighty-two bills were introduced. Resolutions were adopted requring the Nebraska United States Senators and representatives to be in Washington early to vote when the Cullom-Reagan bill comes up.

Linolon, Neb. Jan. 12—The time of the Senate' was taken up by the introduction and reading of bills. A joint resolution was offered, urging upon Congress the importance of providing by law for the election of United States Senators by the people; also a bill to provide for the sinking of test wells in the State for the discovery of salt and other minerals. Bills were introduced to establish normal schools and insane hospitals at various places. The increase in wealth and population of the State of Nebraska has been so great and rapid that the public institutions will no longer accommodate the needs of the people, hence the demand for additional institutions.

Drowned at Sea.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 10.—The latest accounts from the wreck of the German ship Elizabeth, of Bremen, which went ashore off Fort Henry, reports twenty-five lives lost, including five members of a life saving crew, which attempted to rescue the sailors.

Party Feeling Runs High.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 10.—The Senate was in session for a short time but transacted little business of importance. In the House nothing was done beyond the attempt at a joint convention, after which the Democrats, under the lead of Jewett, attempted to settle the differences concerning the lieutenant governorship. Col. Robertson was finally sworn in as lieutenant-governor, but under much protest by the Democrats.

Without Warning.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The community was startled this afternoon by a report which spread with lightning rapidity that Judge John S. Rogers, chief justice of the Circuit Court had died suddenly. As the Judge had been in his usual health and spirits, and had been on the bench conducting the business of his court up to the usual hour of adjournment. On adjourning his court at 10 o'clock the Judge walked over to Gossage & Co.'s store, on State street, and on reaching it presented to the cashier's desk where he wrote a check for a bill which he desired to pay. The cashier Mr. Wilson examined the bill, vouchers and check, and was proceeding to receipt the bill when Judge Rogers suddenly dropped in what appeared to be an apoplectic fit. Mr. Wilson and several of the other assistants rushed to his aid, but their assistance was in vain. The Judge gave but two gasps and apparently all was over and the body was carried to the wrapping department in the rear of the store. In the meantime a message had been sent for a physician and Dr. Hooter was quickly in attendance. Examination of the body, however, at once convinced him that the distinguished jurist was beyond all medical assistance, and he pronounced life extinct. The Coroner was summoned, and Coroner Hertz was quickly on the spot making arrangements for holding an inquest.

Business Review.

New York, Jan. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their review of the trade, for the past week say: "The year opens with higher prices. Wheat has advanced 1¼ cents this week on sales of 25,000,000 bushels. Oil has advanced 1¼ cents on sales of 10,000,000, barrels. Cotton rises 1 16 with moderate transactions. Hogs, coffee, iron, and silver are higher. Corn and oats have been a little weaker, and large realizing by foreigners has checked the tendency to advance in stocks. But the expansion of currency and investment of large dividends received and profits realized tend to lift prices for the present in spite of fears regarding legislation. In the southwest failures have been unusually numerous, in other sections not more than might be expected for the first week of the year. Collections are generally satisfactory, and the increasing numbers of buyers gives greater activity here in the dry goods trade. Coal advances because of an important strike of handlers. Boston shipments of boots and shoes for 1886 were 2,875,316 cases, against 2,678,364 in 1885. Wool sales at Philadelphia were 19,000,000 pounds less than in 1885, but New York imports of foreign wool were 18,900,000 pounds larger. Higher prices here for wheat and cotton also imply a belief that productions will be curtailed next year as a result of unsatisfactory returns to farmers. Railroad earnings in December on twenty one roads exceeded those of 1885 about 13 per cent. Foreign exchange has advanced and shipments of gold hither are suspended. The failures during the last seven days number for the United States 271 and for Canada 28, a total of 299, against 273 last week and 263 the week previous.

Cannot Enter England.

New York, Jan. 8.—An Atlanta, Ga., special says: It has just been learned that the British government refuses to allow the Gate City guards to enter into England. It is supposed that this action was taken because Capt. J. S. Burke is an Irishman. The guard proposed to make a tour of the principal cites of the continent in full uniform and bearing arms. By special invitation, King Leopold was to inspect them and be present at several of their public manœuvers. They are to be accompanied by Col Emmons Clark of the 7th regiment of New York and Mrs. Clark, and several prominent citizens of Atlanta. It was calculated that $20,000 would be necessary to defray the expenses of the trips.

A coal famine is feared in New York because of the coal heavers strike.

Misplaced Swith.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—A coke train ran into a shifting engine on the Fort Wayne railroad just outside of Allegheny City last night. A number of cars were wrecked and Engineer Criddle and Freman Fletcher Agne, both of this city, were seriously injured. Criddle was hurt internally and will probly die. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch.

A Dynamite Explosion.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—Last evening a quantity of dynamite used for blasting, stored in a frame shanty on a lot at Twenty-ninth and Stiles streets, exploded, instantly killing Parrie Powers, the watchman, whose body was badly mutilated. The explosion caused houses in the vicinity to rock and the glass in their windows to rattle to such an extent that the frightened inmates rushed into the street to learn the cause. The force of the explosion was felt over nearly the whole of the northern portion of the city. Within a few minutes from the time of the occurrence inquiries were made of the operators at the Central station from the police stations in West Philadelphia, Falls of Schuylkill, Manayunk, Germantown, Chestnut Hill, Bustleton, Bridesburg, and Frankfort, some of the operators asking for particulars of the earthquake, which they believed had occurred. There was no person near the place, so far as known, except the watchman, and there is no one to explain the cause of the explosion.

—In Buffalo, N. Y., asphalt pavements laid in 1852 are as good as new.

A Narrow Escape.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—A passenger train on the Wabash road collided with a freight on Saturday morning, at the Forty-fifth street crossing. A Northwestern transfer train had pulled south over the Wabash tracks, across Forty-fifth street, and around a sharp curve at that point. The transfer train was en route to the New Albany yards at Forty eighth street, and after pulling probably 100 feet south of the sharp curve was compelled to stop, a train having stalled some distance south, and on the same track, making it impossible to go ahead. The St. Louis express, over the Wabash, leaves the city at 8:10, and arrives at Forty-seventh street, usually at 9 o'clock, and not having any stopping place between Forty-first and Forty-seventh street usually was at fearful speed. The first intimation any one had of approaching danger was the express train's usual signal for the Forty-seventh street crossing, and the next moment the train turned the sharp curve, running at perhaps fifteen miles an hour, and the stalled train 100 feet in front. The passenger engineer at once reversed his engine and whistled for brakes. But to stop was impossible. The momentum was too great, and the next instant the passenger engine struck the caboose of the transfer. The engine went through the caboose and preceding car, leaving the sides only intact, and wrecking several others. The passenger engine and baggage-cars were badly damaged. Beyond a severe shaking consequent to the sudden stop, the passengers were uninjured. The accident caused a delay of some hours. The damage will amount to some thousands of dollars.

Burned to a Crisp.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—A terrible accident occurred yesterday morning on the Wilmington & Northern railroad a little distance south of Lenape station by which two men were killed and two others badly wounded. A freight train northward bound stopped below the Lenape station because of no steam. A flagman was sent back, but before he got three hundred yards another freight train came up at full speed and dashed into the caboose of the standing train, killing the conductor, Harry Hobert, and a companion named William B. Martin, who were asleep at the time of the collision. The stove in the caboose was overturned, and set fire to the car, which was soon destroyed, and the bodies of the two men were burned to cinders.

Thurman Better.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 10.—The report sent out that Judge Thurman was seriously ill is without foundation. He was temporarily indisposed at the close of the Jackson banquet, but with a little rest is all right again. Mr. A. W. Thurman states that his father, Judge Thurman, is in no way seriously ill. He pronounces the extravagant reports about Judge Thurman's condition as being without any foundation in fact.

Strange Shooting.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 10.—Patrick Maher, a young man, at one time janitor in a bank here, was shot at Mendota, near Fort Snelling, Saturday under peculiar circumstances. He had been drinking and in a drunken delirium invaded the houses of two or three farmers. In that of Fred Wagonknich he became violent and was driven out and pursued by neighbors to a lake near by, where he was shot on the ice by Herman Unritcht and Charles Wagonknich, and there allowed to lie until the next morning. Both the above parties admitted the shooting to the Justice, who allowed them to go on their own recognizance. Fred Burt also admitted the shooting of Maher. Blood poisoning has set in, and Maher will die. Maher is said to have a brother living in Chicago.

Murdered by Girls

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—Three girls, no one of whom is more than 20 years of age, are in jail in Lewistown, Mifflin county, awaiting trial for one of the most diabolical murders that has ever been committed in this state. Their names are Della Corbett, Ella Kountzman and Jennie Ginay. On Christmas John Ackley, a coal-miner, took the three girls sleigh riding. A supply of whisky was taken in the sleigh, of which Ackley and his companions partook freely. As the party drove through town their conduct was shameful. Finally Ackley became helplessly drunk, and the girls threw him from the sleigh, but not before they had inflicted serious injuries on his person. A man named Austin carried Ackley into a house, where the unfortunate fellow died after suffering the most excruciating pain. Ackley had his month's pay in his pocket, and the girls are accused of stealing it, as the money is missing. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict against the girls.

Meeting of the Legislature.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 10.—The legislature will convene on Wednesday, and two weeks from that time, will elect a United States Senator to succeed Senator Sawyer, whose term will soon expire.

THE MARKETS.

CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice to Prime	4.60	@ 5.15
Good Shipping	4.15	@ 4.60
Common	3.25	@ 3.60
Hogs—Shipping Grades	4.00	@ 5.00
Flour—Extra Spring	4.25	@ 4.60
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	78	@ 78⅛
Corn—No. 2	36	@ 36⅜
Oats—No. 2	26¼	@ 27⅜
Butter—Choice Creamery	27	@ 28½
Fine Dairy	22	@ 25
Cheese—Full Cream Ched'r	12	@ 12½
Full Cream, new	12⅜	@ 12½
Eggs—Fresh	26	@ 27½
Potatoes—New, per bar'l	1.10	@ 1.35
Pork—mess	12.20	@ 12.25
NEW YORK.
Beeves	$4.35	@ 5.85
Hogs	4.40	@ 4.80
Wheat—No 1. White	91	@ 93
No. 2 Red	93	@ 93¼
Corn—No. 2	47½	@ 48½
Oats—White	38	@ 43
Pork—New mess	12.00	@ 12.50
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	81¼	@ 82¼
Corn—mixed	34½	@ 35½
Oats—mixed	28	@ 28⅜
Pork—new mess	11.75	@ 12.50
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	83	@ 84
Corn—No. 2	37½	@ 38
Oats No. 2	30	@ 31½
Pork—mess	12.05	@ 12.62½
Hogs	3.90	@ 4.60

CONGRESS.

House, Jan. 8.—Mr. Haley, of Idaho, reported a bill for the purchase of a tract of land near Salem, Oregon, for the use of the Indian Training School; Mr. Dibble, of South Carolina, a bill authorizing the construction of public buildings at Houston, Texas, and changing the limited appropriation of the building at Denver, Col., both being referred. After the introduction of several unimportant bills the House went into committee of the whole.

Senate, Jan. 10.—Among the communications presented by the presiding officer to the senate and referred were the following: From the secretary of war, transmitting the report of the board of engineers in regard to the bridging of the Mississippi at or near St. Louis. Petitions were also presented and referred: Praying a reduction of internal taxes; favoring a commission but presenting objections to the "pooling" and "short and long haul" sections of the inter state commerce bill; asking the repeal of revenue laws and a reduction of the tariff. At 12:50 p. m. the inter-state commerce bill was taken up, Senators Beck and Cullom, speaking in favor of the bill.

House, Jan. 10.—The following bills and resolutions were introduced and referred: Granting aid for the establishment of common schools, and for the professional education of public school teachers; for the relief of dependent parents of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors who are dependent on their own labor for support; to prevent the destruction of human life by fire in railroad accidents; giving the Wisconsin railway and Navigation company the right to build a bridge across Sturgeon Bay in Door county, Wisconsin; giving jurisdiction to United States Circuit Courts; to fix the amount of royalty that shall be paid by persons using a patent, and the amount of security to be given for the payment of such royalty. Adjourned.

Senate, Jan. 11.—Mr. Dalves, from the committee on Indian affairs, reported back, with amendments, the house bill granting to the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railroad company the right of way through Indian reservations in northern Montana and northwestern Dakota. Mr. Cameron, reported a bill for the relief of telegraph operators during the war.

House, Jan. 11—The senate amendments were concurred in to the bill providing for a school of instruction for cavalry and light artillery. The resolution calling on the secretary of war for information as to what steps have been taken to cause the removal of the sand-bar which has formed against the piers of the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific railroad bridge spanning the Red river at Shreveport, La., was reported back by committee on Rivers and Harbors. The committee on military affairs, reported back the senate bill authorizing the secretary of war to accept certain land near Chicago. Also a senate bill for the establishment of a military post near Denver. The river and harbor bill referred to the committee of the whole. Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 3 o'clock, was set apart for the consideration of resolutions touching the death of William T. Price, late representative from Wisconsin.

Senate, Jan. 12.—The following bills were reported: Committee on Claims; to extend the time of filing claims in the Court of Claims under the French Spoliation act for twelve months additional. Passed. From the Committee on Public buildings: For public buildings at Jefferson, Tex., and Hastings, Neb., placed on Calender. From Committee on Coast Defenses: Appropriating $5,000,000 for the construction of fortifications and other works of defense. From Committee on Appropriation: The Army Appropriation bill with amendments. Ordered printed. Mr. Manderson introduced a bill to facilitate promotions, and to retire from active service on their own application, officers of the army who served during the War of the Rebellion three years as officers or enlisted men in the volunteer or regular army.

House, Jan. 12.—A bill providing for an additional Circuit Judge in the second Judicial Circuit, was passed. The Edmunds anti-Polygamy bill and the Tucker substitute thereon was then taken under consideration. The speaker announced the appointment of Messrs. Skinner, Peel and Perkins as conferees on the bill for the allotment of land in severalty to Indians.

Senate, Jan. 13.—Memorials were presented and referred; in favor of the inter-state commerce bill, particularly of the pooling and short and long haul sections; relative to the claim of John Roach. The resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to furnish a full and complete statement, by itemized account, of all money paid out on account of prosecutions of criminal cases in State courts by Federal officials of the departments from July 1, 1879, to December 1, 1886, with a list of officials, agents or employes engaged in such prosecutions; the amount paid them, and for what specific services, etc., was adopted.

The senate at 1:10 resumed consideration of the conference report on the inter-state commerce bill.

House, Jan. 13.—A resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to the monthly purchase and coinage of silver during the last fiscal year, and the first six months of the present fiscal year. Also information as to whether the law requiring the purchase and coinage of not less than $2,000,000 worth of silver bullion has been complied with, was adopted.

Charges of Crookedness.

Jefferson, City, Mo., Jan. 10.—The State Legislature in joint session, appointed a committee to examine into the accounts of State Auditor Waller. Various charges of crookedness have been brought against the Auditor, but the only one of which has so far been substantiated is that he compelled one of his appointees to turn over to him a part of his salary under threats of dismissal should he refuse to do so. A full investigation will be made by the committee into this and other charges against the Auditor.

—Senator Evarts believes in the heredity of education.

MICHIGAN NEWS

—Port Huron laid 3,250 feet of new water-mains last year.

—Muskegon's heaviest policeman weighs 350 pounds.

—Rock salt has been struck at Royal Oak, at a depth of 1,600.

—A branch of the Salvation army has been established at Buchanan.

—Kalkaska business men have formed an association.

—William Wagner, an Ann Arbor merchant, has retired from business after an experience of forty years.

—There are nearly 100,000,000 feet of logs on the skids at the various Alpena camps.

—Battle Creek society young men are going extensively into the study of German.

—Bronson capitalists have decided to postpone establishing the proposed bank until more favorable times.

—Mike Ryan, of Portland, was thrown down by a savage hog and seriously wounded by the animal's tusks.

—Detroit city council adopted a resolution a few days ago abandoning standard time and returning to meridian time.

Detroit Markets:—Wheat, No. 1, white, 85c; Michigan red, 85c, No. 2, red, 85c; Corn, 37½c, Oats, No. 2, 31½c; No. 2, white, 32½c.

—The ice on Muskegon lake is 11 inches thick, and a thoroughfare is made on it from Muskegon to North Muskegon.

—There are thirty eight inmates of the poor-house in Gratiot county—more than has ever been known before at any one time.

—The East Saginaw Y. M. C. A. propose to hustle its business, and will appoint a Saginaw man to act as secretary and do the heavy work.

—Charles L. Stillman, a school-teacher at Grand Haven, was arrested and fined for flogging two of his pupils with a harness strap.

—A Muskegon lady received a young alligator by mail during the holidays. Her odd Christmas present was nearly frozen to death when it reached her.

—Levi Giddings, one of the pioneers and an old and highly respected citizen of Davis, died suddenly and without warning recently of heart disease, aged 64.

—The married ladies of Hooty, who recently defeated the single ladies of that place in a game of base ball, are about to challenge the married ladies of Fenton.

—A petition signed by over three hundred Muskegon business men has been sent to the postmaster general, asking that official to immediately place Muskegon on the free delivery list.

—A petition is being circulated by the ladies of Caro for signatures, to be presented to the state and national legislatures, asking that more stringent laws be enacted for the promotion of social purity.

—Hog cholera is reported from some portions of Lenawee county, and, it is noticed, in cases where almost a whole drove is affected the sows with pigs are invariable spared.

—The State Industrial home at Adrian is full, and Agent Boyle, of St. Clair county, was obliged to release a girl who had been sentenced there a day or two since, and who could not be taken in.

—The entire night police force of a certain town in this state has struck for higher wages. It consisted of one man who received 75 cents a night and was expected to be on duty twelve hours.

—A farmer in Tittabawassa township, Saginaw county, has a flowing well which spouts out coal. The well is but 17 feet deep. A drill will be put to work to ascertain the thickness of the vein of coal.

—Mr. Adsley, of Traverse City, struck his arm against a moving saw in a saw mill and it was cut off below the elbow. A surgeon who replaced the amputated member, sewing it fast to the stump, claims that the two parts will grow together again.

—Ishpeming's common council will pass on bills aggregating nearly $2,000, which are the result of the recent diptheria epidemic in that city. The neighbors of John McCarthy, who lost four children during the epidemic, have presented to him a purse of $225.

—The Bay City Tribune says: "Fishermen are preparing their shanties, spears, and fishing paraphernalia for their habitation on the bay, which will soon be started. The bay is solidly frozen over. Shanties will be located in the vicinity of Charity islands, and as the season advances the fishermen will gradually work in toward the river, coming in with the fish."

—Grand Sentinel, the best stallion in Michigan, fell in his stable at the National Driving park at Kalamazoo, dying in three minutes. He had been ailing several days with kidney complaint, which terminated in blood-poisoning. He was 12 years old, sired several colts that trot in 2:20, and a large number that have shown better than 2:30. Grand Sentinel was owned by S. A. Browne & Co., of that city. They have refused $20,000 for him several times.

—The high school now being built at Ishpeming will be ready for use Feb. 3d. It will cost $25,000.

—The burning of the lower depot at Big Rapids has caused the citizens of the town to seriously think of the union depot.

—Beaver City will build a new city hall next spring.

—The Sand Beach harbor of refuge sheltered 304 different vessels last season.

—A series of minstrel performances at Kalamazoo netted the projectors $500, which will be used in caring for the deserving poor.

—Kalamazoo citizens are highly pleased over the success of their representative, Col. Stockbridge, in his race for the senatorship.

—The plans for eight new blocks at Owosso have been completed, and their construction will be commenced in the spring.

—A thirty-four pound pickerel is said to have been captured a few days ago near Saline. It measured in length fifty-one inches.

HOME AND HEAVEN.

With the same letter Heaven and home begin,
And the words dwell together in the mind;
For they who would a home in Heaven win
Must first a Heaven in home begin to find.
Be happy here, yet with so humble soul
That looks for perfect happiness in Heaven;
For what thou hast is earnest of the whole
Which to the faithful shall at last be given.
As once the patriarch, in a vision blessed,
Saw the swift angels hastening to and fro,
And the lone spot whereon he lay to rest
Became to him the gate of Heaven below—
So may to thee, when life itself is done,
Thy home on earth and Heaven above be one.
—Joseph Very.

SUE'S RUSE.

Yes, sir, I've been in the show business one way and another, nearly thirty years, and I've had my ups and downs.

Made any money?

Well, sir, it's a business which either makes or loses big. I've made two or three fortunes, and lost about as much as I made. I've got a moderate provision for the time when I get too old to travel about this way. I reckon that's as much as most of 'em come out with, and I ought to be pretty well satisfied.

But I tell you there has been when I did not know where the next meal would come from, and half a dozen or a dozen players to be provided as for well as myself. I remember one of the bluest times I ever struck was at Albury—ha! ha! I can laugh now to think of that girl's sharpness, but it was no matter for laughing at that time.

I was starring it through the country with a specialty troupe—musical acts, plenny, pheliows," ventriloquists, tricksters, and minstrels, with a small comedy company thrown in.

Mam'selle Susine Allouette was with us (she was Sue Allen off the stage) as leading lady, and also in several daring tight-rope and trapeze acts.

She was a sharp little midget, and used to give us some spice off her tongue when she got riled a bit.

But she helped me out of a bad fix grandly, the time I speak of, and I felt like giving her a little liberty.

We had been having a fortnight of bad weather before we struck the town I allude to, and of course had played to very poor houses.

I hadn't been able to pay my company's salaries for three weeks, hadn't a shilling to send home to my wife, and things looked pretty bad, I tell you.

When we got to the town I had hardly money enough to pay the boys who distributed my bills, and not a penny for the newspapers.

I had about made up my mind to sell my watch (the only thing of value I had left), pay off the men and girls as far as I could, and disband the company.

We came on at night from the last town, and I resolved to see what the weather was in the morning before I decided what to do.

When I got up I saw the streets covered with mud and a sharp, cold wind blowing.

It would be an awful night and we would get no house at all.

My heart sunk like lead, and I wished I hadn't sent the bills out.

We should have to play that night, but it would be the last time.

I thought I would speak to my leading lady, so I went to Sue Allen's room and rapped.

She opened the door, and I found her mending the suit she wore in her trapeze acts—we were too poor to have new costumes just then.

"Sue," said I, "I've come to bring bad news."

"Well, what is it?" said she.

"We've got to break up," I said, with a sigh.

"Now I don't see that!" returned Sue, fixing her sharp eyes on me. "What is the reason?"

"Why, we've made nothing for a month, Sue. I can't pay any of you, and I know you need your money."

"Well, this is a fair-sized town," says Sue, calmly.

"Yes, but look what wretched weather! We won't have half a house to-night, and I can't even put a puff into the papers to coax people out. It's no use, Sue, we'll have to give up!"

"Not if I know it!" says Sue, striking an attitude. "Can't you get up a sensation that will draw?"

"I've tried to think of something, and I can't," I answered. "There isn't a dodge that can be gone through with without money, and that I haven't got."

"Well, I've been trying to think, too," says Miss Sue, coolly as before. "And I think we will have a crowded house tonight."

"Who's going to fill it?" I asked.

"I am," returned Miss Sue, demurely.

I gave a low whistle of incredulity.

"O I mean it," said Sue.

There was an air about the girl which struck me.

"Mr. Lane," said she, as I looked silently at her. "I want my salary, and I don't want this company to go down. If you'll let me do as I please, and ask no questions, I'll fill that hall full tonight and we'll all get our money."

"Then do as you please!" I groaned. "Anything to help us, just now!"

"You give me full liberty, and no questions?" asked Sue.

"Yes! Goahead!"

"All right. I'm going out for a walk in ten minutes. Make some of the men walk in the direction I do, but order them on no account to come near or interrupt me. Will you?"

"Yes, I will, Sue. Where are you going?"

"Never mind that. Isn't there a railway bridge near here?"

"Yes. We came past it."

"I thought so. What time does the next train from Melbourne arrive?"

I looked at my watch.

"In just half an hour," said I.

"Then I've no time to lose," cried Sue. "There, be off, so I can go."

"Look here, what are you going to do first?" I asked, anxiously.

"Nothing that will hurt me, I assure you," answered Sue, laughing. "And you promised to ask no questions. You stay here, and if you hear of anything extraordinary, why then come. Order the men to do as I told you, but they must not try to stop me. I can take care of myself, and they shall share the reward."

I began to catch a dim idea of what Sue intended. I said:

"Sue, you shall not run into danger."

"Be off, I tell you," commanded Sue. "I'll be in no danger. Do go or I'll miss that train."

Well, I submitted to go out, and told two of the men that when Sue walked out they must go, too, and keep her in sight, but on no account disturb her.

They promised, and I went out as quickly as I could. I knew that whatever Sue meant to do was connected with the railway, and I intended to see what she did without her knowledge.

I took a circuit round, and posted myself where I could see all that passed without being seen.

After a while I saw a little figure come tripping down the railway as if for a walk, and I knew it was our Sue, even before I could recognize her dress.

She came walking along and deliberately began to cross the railway bridge by stepping on the ties.

I glanced at my watch—it was just train time—and even then I heard the rumble of the oncoming train.

I began to tremble and feel cold, but Sue walked calmly on.

If I had not known her skill on the trapeze bar I should have rushed out after her.

But if she could trust herself I could trust her, so I waited.

Presently the engine-driver saw her and whistled "down brakes."

But Sue walked on as though she heard nothing.

The engine-driver blew a fearful shriek and did his best to slacken speed, but he could not stop in time.

And when the train was close to her Sue seemed to discover her danger, threw up her arms with a wild cry and disappeared from view.

By the time the train had passed over the bridge and stopped a crowd had collected.

I was there and my two men, and they were crying like babies, as they met me, saying, "O, Mr. Lane, Sue's killed! Poor Sue's killed!"

"Maybe not," I tried to answer, white as death myself.

"O, she is! The train went right over her as she fell!" sobbed one of them.

I feared it was indeed true.

But when we rushed down under the bridge, followed by the crowd, there was our plucky little Sue, clinging to the trestlework under the bridge, a bit pale, but not even a shred of her dress torn.

We got her out quickly, and such a time as there was on that bank I never saw!

And as for our company—well, you never saw such antics anywhere!

I don't know whether to cry over the darling little minx or to scold her roundly.

Of course the story flew like wildfire, and the streets were crowded with people trying to gain glimpse of the brave little actress before we got back to the hotel.

In the afternoon we put reserved seats on sale at two or three places where they had not been before, and by dark every seat was sold.

Sue's ruse was a success.

That hall was crowded half an hour before the curtain rose, and when Sue came on the stage the applause was deafening.

After the show was over we had enough to pay our bills, nearly all the back salaries, and make Sue a present of £10 for saving us.

Our company did not disband, but was in luck for the rest of the season.

Free Libraries in France.

Mr. Thomas Greenwood, the author of an English book on free public libraries, writes on that subject that, next to this country, France possesses more popular free libraries than any other country, having more than 1,000, with over 1,000,000 volumes, while there are 17,500 school libraries containing about 2,000,000 volumes. He says he has visited many of the free libraries in America, and our cousins there are far ahead of us." Australia leaves England behind in this matter, and Germany is already ahead of her. In thirty-six years from passing the first act England, he says, has the modest number of 135, and out of this the largest and wealthiest city in the world has two within and four outside the metropolitan area with an aggregate of 54,645 volumes. "How long are we to be behind other countries in this matter of free libraries?"

Oldest Military Body.

At a court of assistants of the Honorable Artillery Company held at Armory House, Finsbury, on Monday last, it was resolved, on motion of Capt. Woolmer-Williams, "That the court at its next meeting do take into consideration the best means of celebrating the 20th anniversary of the incorporation of the regiment, occurring on Aug. 25, 1887." It is understood that the event will be made the occasion for great festivities, which will be attended by a representative number of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, United States, an "offshoot" of the regiment which was founded by a member of the Honorably Artillery Company of London, who emigrated to Boston in 1638—a hundred and one years after the incorporation of the parent stem by royal charter of Henry VIII.

Wonder and Hope.

When slumber softly kisses baby's eyes,
As night surrounds the earth with sable shroud,
Its close sealed lips we see in mild surprise,
And wonder how its cries can sound so loud.
Hope brightly shines through disappointment's mist,
And lend us courage bravely to persist.
We call on two small deuces with a sigh,
And hope that he's been bluffing with one high.

Geographical Knowledge.

Teacher—What is an island?

Smart Pupil (whose father is a club man)—Body o' land s'rounded by water.

Teacher—Good. What is a strait?

Smart Pupil—I heard pop say it was a hard hand to get, and beats three of a kind.

Joke on the Letter F.

Husband (who is one of the funniest men unhung)—My dear, can you tell me why the letter F is like a cow's tail?

Wife—No certainly not.

Husband—Because it is the end of beef.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

THE OLD BARN.

I see it yet in fancy, with its red and wheel [illegible]
The [illegible] red [illegible] same carved [illegible]
The spacious mow upon the left, the manger on the right,
Where stood the old straw cutter—how I used to dread its sight.
For there were cripples it had made— of these I heard a few
Are drawing army pensions now— our agents put 'em through.
Again I hear the sound of flails upon the mudded floor;
The chickens scramble for the grains that reach the open door;
Up in the loft a laying hen sings of a deed sublime,
Unmindful though her daughter's bones were picked at dinner time;
While near a patient sister "sits," resolved to incubate,
An unprolific corn cob and the hinges of a gate.
How very huge the old barn looked, when viewed through boyish eyes,
Even Rome's big Colosseum seemed inferior in size;
And I so thought when near the roof, waist deep in scratching hay,
That for weeks to come that mow would roost all eggs the hens might lay.
I see the iron grain-scoop on which I "rode down hill"—
It leans confidingly against the old red fanning mill—
And the worn half-bushel measure which we boys oft tried to walk
Like circus men, by plastering our stocking feet with chalk;
It is strange how boys of eighty pounds and even smaller ones
Can save their bones and fall at times with the weight of eighty tons.
Last week the old barn vanished and a new one took its place,
The staunch old structure ran with time a long and noble race,
For in spite of rain and hail storms, and lightning rods and wind,
They found the timbers sound as when together they were pinned;
While the youth whose father, then a boy oft wondered at its age,
Now feebly plays an "old man's part" on life's uncertain stage.

CROP REVIEW.

The Chicago Farmer's Review for the current week says: The tenor of the reports from the winter wheat belt continues to be generally favorable, though the presence of the fly in various counties of Ohio and Indiana is reported, but no serious injury is as yet indicated. The reports from Kansas are not as encouraging as one month ago and a number of southern Illinois and northern Ohio and Indiana counties report the plant as looking feeble. Nine-tenths of the counties report, however, throughout the entire belt that the crop is in good to fine condition. The movement of corn is reported to be moderately free in Missouri but slow in Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. Five Illinois and 10 Iowa counties report, this week, that the corn supply is so short as to prevent any shipment or is entirely exhausted.

SENDING BEES BY MAIL.

The number of letters, post-cards newspapers etc., received at the Returned Letter Office in London, for year ending March 31, 1886, was 12,822,667, or an increase of 4.7 per cent over the previous year. Of this number 441,765 were unreturnable, 175,216 contained inclosures of value and 26,028 were posted without any address. Among the letters bearing no address were 1,624 which contained £3,733 17s 5d in cash and checks. In the year ending March 31, 1885, there were 26,472 letters posted without any address, 1,686 of which contained value to the amount of £2,898. Among the contents of parcels received in the Returned-letter Office at Dublin, and which had been stopped as contrary to regulations, were two bees, eight mice, and two hedgehogs. One of the bees, which was addressed to a veterinary surgeon in London, was in bad health, and although carefully attended to it died in the office. The remaining bee as well as the mice and hedgehogs, were given up alive to their owners.

POULTRY NOTES.

Keep bits of old iron in the water given to chickens to drink.

Chickens must have access to bare ground. Dust is absolutely necessary to them.

Utilize the hen manure. Combined with road dust it is the best possible fertilizer.

When mixing meal for chicks use skim-milk instead of water. The effect will be wonderful.

The United States imports millions of eggs every year. American poulterers ought to stop this.

To avoid gapes remove coops to a fresh location daily. Feed the chickens on clean boards, never on the ground.

Divide the sour milk between the pigs and chickens: the latter love it and it is a most beneficial diet in every respect.

Petroleum will often cure chicken cholera if given in time. A tablespoonful in a pint of meal, fed to the hens, is sufficient.

THE SUN'S HEAT.

The heat of the sun is not increasing. The researches of the botanist and geologist show that the solar radiation of heat cannot have varied but in a very trifling degree since the most remote geological ages—that is, for millions of years. It is estimated that the measure of the heat of the sun at its surface is 1,800 degrees Fahrenheit, which is five times the highest temperature man can produce artificially—equal, in fact, to what would result from burning each second a mass of coal (of the best quality) 200 miles broad, 200 miles long, and 200 miles high—that is, 8,000,000 cubic miles of coal. This would be about 12,000 millions of millions of tons per second. It will help us to imagine what this means if we consider that the whole out-put of our exceptionally coal-producing county is but about 150,000,000 of tons per annum. It is calculated that one 2,381,000,000th part of the sun's heat reaches us, and, therefore, the whole amount really passes either comprehension or calculation, and it is a vexed question with astronomers as to what becomes of the heat that goes off into space.

CONCERNING CORN.

The corn crop of this country this year is said to be 1,650,000,000 bushels. The same authority gives the consumption as more than this, namely: 180,000,000 bushels used in human food, 624,000,000 for working animals, 20,000,000 for seed, 100,000,000 for the production of spirits and glucose, 65,000,000 for export, and 650,000,000 for the food of meat-producing animals.

DAKOTA CORN.

The Commissioner of Immigration for Dakota, Lauren Dunlap, Bismarck sends the following in relation to Indian corn as showing the availability of the Territory in the cultivation of this important cereal:

The average yield per acre of corn in Dakota for the year 1886 is estimated by the Department of Agriculture at 28.5 bushels, and the average quality 85 points. This is a good showing for the older counties in the southeastern section, where the Yellow Dent corn is cultivated with about the same success as in Illinois. It will be interesting to note how the Dakota averages compare with the following: Illinois 24.7 bushels per acre, and quality 63 points; Wisconsin, 25.2 bushels and 90 points; Iowa, 24.5 bushels and 97 points; Minnesota, 30 and 99 points; Nebraska, 27.5 bushels and 93 points; Kansas, 21.8 bushels and 82 points. The yield in Dakota is higher than all the other States named except Minnesota, and the average quality less than any of the others with the exception of Kansas, which is something of a surprise, and an unusual score to the credit of the Dakota section of the corn belt.

THE SWINE PLAGUE

Dr. Salmon, Chief of Animal Bureau of the United States, says that for disinfecting, corrosive sublimate, one to 75,000 parts, will kill the bacteria swine-plague, and if a hog should drink two gallons of this solution it will do harm. The solution wat used for drinking should be freely sprinkled over the lot, yard, or pens in which the swine are kept. Sulphuric acid, one to 2,000 parts, is also recommended.

CURRENT NOTES.

The sweet and best-flavored pork in the world is produced on the Island of Madeira. The hogs there subsist mainly on fruits, roots, grass and roots.

Do not allow stock, especially work horses and milch cows, to drink ice-cold water. To take the chill from water costs so little that it is hardly to be considered in the expense account. Some of the more advanced stock-keepers now will not allow any of their stock to drink ice-cold water.

Six thousand Percheron horses have been imported into this country first and last. Of these more than 1,000 were brought over last year.

Young stock [illegible] wood [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] be [illegible] added to it is brutal.

The annual wool clip of Washington Territory is over 8,000,000 pounds.

The Farmers' Advocate, Ontario, says: "The rapid increase of wheat imports into Great Britain from Australasia and India must ultimately, if not in the near future, shut Canada, excepting Manitoba and our Northwest, from the British wheat markets. Indeed, it is questionable if we can export any more wheat at a profit, except in case of a disastrous wheat failure in Europe or a failure of the wheat crop in a majority of these countries.

It is stated as among the things that the coming Legislature of Minnesota will be asked to consider are certain amendments to the Grain and Warehouse law; a reduction of grain rates on certain railway lines; the establishment of a Soldiers' home; some further legislation concerning agricultural fairs; and appropriations for the holding of farmers' institutes in the different counties of the State.

A tract of land on the shore of Cayuga Lake, near Canoga, N. Y., has been leased to Rochester parties for the raising of frogs for the New York market.

Horses kept in stables will be all the better for a run in the barnyard an hour every day, where they will not exercise, but roll in the straw and clean themselves. Stable-kept horses need some extra grooming, but their improved condition under this management will repay it.

A correspondent writes that he has demonstrated the value of under-drains on his farm. He was too poor to buy tile, but substituted stone, placing the smaller ones each side of the ditch, covering with larger ones, then placing on sod and filling in with dirt. In the spring he finds he can sow oats or plant corn two weeks earlier than heretofore.

Over 191,000 tons of rock were quarried from the phosphate beds near Charleston, S. C., last year, all but 11,000 tons of which were shipped to foreign points. The State receives a royalty of $1 a ton.

Steel knives which are not in general use may be kept from rusting if they are dipped in a strong solution of soda—one part water to four of soda; then wipe dry, roll in flannel and keep in a dry place.

White paint that has become discolored may be nicely cleaned by using a little whiting in the water for washing.

HINTS AND HELPS

In cleaning silver kerosene may be used with advantage.

Carpet may be brightened by dusting with a damp flannel mop.

Egg stains can be removed by rubbing with common table salt.

A brilliant black varnish for iron stoves and fireplaces is made by stirring ivory-black into ordinary shellac varnish.

Prairie fires have devastated 3,500,000 acres in Texas this year.

Rub oiled furniture with a woolen cloth saturated slightly with oil.

Stains on wood can be removed with strong vinegar or salts of lemon.

Leather chair seats may be revived by rubbing them with well-beaten white of egg.

Sandpaper will whiten ivory knife-handles that may have become yellow with use or age.

A good cement for china is ordinary carriage varnish; if put together neatly the fracture will be hardly perceptible, and it is not affected by water.

Galvanized iron pails are not desirable receptacles for drinking-water. The zinc coating is quickly affected by the water, forming a poisonous oxide of zinc.

For cleaning brasses belonging to mahogany furniture use either powdered whiting or scraped rottenstone mixed with sweet oil and rub on with a chamois skin.

Vinegar is better than ice for keeping fish. By putting a little vinegar on the fish it will keep perfectly well even in very hot weather. Fish is often improved in flavor under this treatment.

To prevent polished steel from rusting, after cleaning, and when not in use, take a cloth with a very little sweet oil on it, and wipe the articles over so as to slightly but evenly oil the surface.

The Lost Bracelet.

Home Journal: One evening when Napoleon I. was in all his glory, there was a grand gala production at the Grand Opera. How many reigning Kings and Princes occupied the boxes and balconies it is impossible for me to estimate; the very seats usually occupied by the claqueurs were filled with noblemen.

The Princess Borghese, the beautiful and accomplished Pauline, sparkled and shone in her box, eclipsing all around her by the splendor of her loveliness, as the sun does its satellites by the brilliancy of its rays. On her neck she wore a necklace, the diamonds and massive pearls of which, intertwined and blended with transcendent art, still further enhanced her incomparable brilliancy. When she entered her box there was a murmur of general admiration.

The Imperial box opened in its turn and the master of the world appeared, saluted by these Kings and Princes with a formidable cry of "Vive l'Empereur!" It was generally remarked that the Empress seemed unable to take her eyes off her sister-in-law, and appeared to be fascinated, dazzled, like the other occupants of the vast auditorium with the marvelous brilliancy of the necklace. Suddenly the box of the Princess Borghese opened and a Major presented himself, wearing the brilliant blue and silver uniform of the aides-de-camp of the Emperor's staff. "Her Majesty, the Empress," said he, bowing low, "admires the wonderful necklace worn by your Imperial Highness, and has expressed the liveliest desire to examine it closer." The beautiful Pauline made a sign to one of her ladies of honor, who unclasped and detached the necklace from the Princess' neck and placed it in the hands of the staff officer. The latter bowed gravely and disappeared. This episode occurred toward the middle of the second act. The entr'acte came and passed away. The third act concluded in its turn. The fourth act came and passed, and the entertainment concluded, yet still the necklace was not returned.

The Princess Borghese took this for a characteristic freak of Marie Louise's. Next day however, she asked if the necklace had pleased the Empress and whether she had found the setting and arrangement of the jewels to her taste. The Empress was thunderstruck, for she had not seen it and had sent no officer for it as described. Napoleon deigned to mix himself up in the affair. He had the names of all the staff officers on duty the preceding evening ascertained. And then one by one, under some pretext or other, he had them called before his sister. She did not recognize one of them. They summoned the Prince of Otranto, Minister of Police. A long council was held. Everything possible was done, but in vain. The unfortunate Fouche was ready to tear his hair in despair. He set his keenest bloodhounds at work. His best detectives were literally worn off their legs, without result. As to their imperial master, he was bubbling over with rage, and was almost on the point of thrashing his Chief of Police. But neither the necklace (which was worth nearly a million) nor the audacious thief was ever seen again.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

SHALL BE ALLOTTED THE SPOILS.

[illegible]

LEGISLATIVE.

[illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, JAN. 26, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
SO F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Charles B. Farwell, of Chicago, has been elected U. S. Senator to succeed the late Gen. John A. Logan.

Frank B. Stockbridge was formally elected United States Senator by the Legislature in joint session, the 18th.

Mrs. Logan's Washington home is now her's without encumbrance, her Chicago friends having paid the mortgage thereon. No woman in the country has more true friends than Mary Logan.

Five hundred jugs of whiskey taken into Atlanta in one day, and twenty saloons selling whiskey in Portland. These two cities are the champion prohibition cities of the country. There is a screw loose somewhere.

By a strictly party vote—five ayes to seven nays—the committee on Invalid Pensions of the House of Representatives at Washington rejected the proposition to grant pensions to the widows of General John A. Logan and General Frank P. Blair.

The Philadelphia Times gets very near to the whole truth of the matter when it says: "Any theory of protection that does not honestly imply the greatest good to the greatest number is not honest protection, and monopoly and protection cannot survive together.

Prince Bismarck has a neat and effective way of dealing with the German Parliament when it doesn't vote to suit him. He simply gets the Kaiser to issue a decree of dissolution and sends it home in disgrace. He proposes to try again next month and see if he cant get a new Reichstag that will suit him better.

"Sunset" Cox, the sunbeam of Congress, is reported dangerously ill. His innumerable friends are awaiting the outcome of his affliction, pneumonia, with anxiously beating hearts and prayerful wishes for his recovery. The genial smile and gentle wit of the New York statesman, it is hoped, will illume the gloomy and somewhat musty halls of legislation for many years to come. May his cheerfulness and good humor never fade.—Ex.

The announcement that Mrs. Grant has sent $982.50 to the fund for a monument to her husband indicates that the widow realizes that if she wishes to see a stone raised over the dust of her great husband she must help to buy it. The contributions to the fund, which began to pour in from New York citizens immediately after the death of the general, have since been steadily dwindling down, and now we find Mrs. Grant reduced to the extremity of helping out of her private purse to honor the memory of her husband. All this in the great metropolis where Grant spent his declining years, and where his bones lie buried.

General W. B. Hazen, Chief Signal Officer, who died last week, was born in Hartford, Vt., September 27, 1830, and graduated at West Point July 1, 1855. He entered the army as Brevet Second Lieutenant of Infantry, receiving his full appointment as Second Lieutenant in September following. He was at once assigned to frontier duty, and was engaged in operations against the Indians until November, 1859, when he was severely wounded by the Comanches. He did gallant and effective service during the war of the rebellion. During the Franco-German war Gen. Hazen visited the seat of hostilities, and on his return prepared a work on School and Army in Germany and France. For gallant and meritorious services during the civil war he received the successive brevets from Major to Major General of the United States Army. He was appointed Chief of the Signal Service in 1880.

The ways of the third party prohibitionists are devious and past finding out. They have been for years belaboring the Republican party for not obeying their behests. Last week the House passed a resolution submitting a prohibitory amendment, and it goes to the Senate to be opposed by one of the leading prohibitionists of the state—Senator Deyo. He asserts that the Republicans only seek to submit the proposition in order that they may defeat it at the polls. Other leading prohibitionists oppose it for like reasons. They are trying no experiment with Republicans in the Michigan Legislature. They have always been right upon the question, and have never played double, as prohibitionists are now doing. But the danger that exists of the Republican party taking the work out of the hands of these demagogues, and doing it well, awakens their ire. The persistent dog-in-the-manger policy of the prohibition party is without a parallel in the annals of political history.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

What is the Use?

What is the need of the study of Algebra, History, Literature, or Science, to a boy or girl who would never engage in any occupation where these things will be called to use?

If the boy intends to be a mechanic or a farmer, the rudiments of Arithmetic are all he will make use of; or if a tradesman, fair skill in figures, and a little book-keeping will serve his purpose. The girl will seldom need even so much as the boy, and she can keep house, make jelly and sew on buttons without knowing anything about "The Origin of Nations" or any other of the high sounding subjects that find a place in the curriculum of the High school; and as for Grammar, "I don't know nothin' about it, and I don't believe it does nobody no good ennyhow; if I can't talk as well as the best of 'em I'd like to find out why." Let education be practical. So say some who take a narrow view of the scope and aim of education.

It is not so much the mere business utility of the study as the character, mental and moral, which the child acquired in the pursuit of it that is needed. We might as well argue that if a boy is to be an accountant or a scribe, his body might as well be dwarfed to fifty pounds as to grow to full manhood. Full intellectual manhood and womanhood are as essential to any occupation as is a healthy physical development, and they cannot be acquired by simply cultivating that faculty which is to be called into use in business.

The boy may be just as successful a farmer, or mechanic, as any others, even if he is comparatively ignorant; and he may be a prosperous business man even if he can barely write an order that will be honored; but he would be just as successful in either capacity and in addition to that, a far more useful citizen, and a happier man, for having acquired an education that would lift him out of the routine of mere animal activity. And the girl will be a better housewife for having trained her mind to a wholesome energy that will raise her, sometimes, above the stupefying drudgery of the kitchen, into communion with brighter things.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES, SERIES OF '87.

(1) James Buchanan was called the "Bachelor President."

(2) Mrs. Ross is said to have designed and made the first U. S. flag.

(3) Aaron Burr was tried for treason after serving his term as Vice President.

(4) Benjamin Franklin invented the lightning rod in 1754.

(5) Abraham Lincoln went to Washington in disguise at the urgent solicitation of his friends, who feared with good reason, that an attempt would be made to assassinate him in some way.

QUERIES, MISCELLANEOUS.

(6) Suppose a string fastened at one end will just support twenty-five lbs at the other. Unfasten it and let two persons pull it in opposite directions, how much can each pull without breaking it?

(7) Will a clock be most likely to gain time in summer or winter? Why?

(8) Why does cream rise on milk?

(9) Does a fan cool the air, or how do we account for the refreshing sense of being cooled by using it?

(10) Does it take longer to sail from America to Europe or from Europe to America? Why?

America has for some time been sending watches to Switzerland, plum puddings to England and coal (oil) to New castle; and the time is not far distant when we shall send school books to London. There are no school readers in any foreign country that can compare in careful grading and educational adaptability to the issues of the American press. ——Journal.

The semi-Centennial of Michigan's admission into the union will be celebrated by appropriate exercises in the fifth department of our public schools. An attractive program is being prepared by pupils of the Grammar grades, assisted by some in the higher classes, and which will be carried out on Thursday afternoon, last hour. Like all other exercises of the schools it is public.

To Americans, it is a curious fact that in England the Arithmetic course for boys is harder than that designed for girls, probably on the supposition that boys have a better capacity for mathematics than girls; a proposition that we have long since proved to be untrue. In nearly all our middle grade schools the girls are ahead of the boys not only in mathematics, but in nearly all branches pursued. This last fact challenges our attention; why is it?

Northern Michigan News.

Traverse City will incorporate as a city.

Business places in Petoskey are now closed at 7:30 p. m.

Six ice-houses were filled with ice at Cross Village last week.

A. T. Burnett has secured the mail contract between Cross Village and Harbor Springs.

The money is not yet entirely subscribed to the telephone fund for the Horton's Bay line.

In some place on the road running over Lloyd's hill near Boyne City, there are drifts eight feet deep.

Beaver Island people are once more connected with the outside world, the ice having formed sufficiently strong for teams to pass over.

The St. Ignace schools are closed on account of an epidemic resembling scarlet fever of which sore throat and high fever are the symptoms.

Farmers are complaining of the difficulty of procuring men this winter to chop wood. The men seem to be all engaged in the various camps.

Captain John Spalding, an old lake captain and for several years superintendent of the St. Mary's canal, died at his home in Sault Ste Marie, last Tuesday.

The Detroit Journal says the plans of John O. Plank, of Coshocton, O., have been adopted for the new summer hotel on Mackinac Island. The hotel will cost $150,000.

The Boyne Falls mill formerly run by the Northern Manufacturing Co., has not been sold as was supposed, and reported by several newspapers. It is again advertised for sale.

C. N. Gill has purchased and is repairing the saw-mill formerly owned by Good Hart parties, and burned down last fall at that place. He intends setting it up near Cross Village.

A Traverse City man tried to go down the toboggan slide at that place, on an iron shovel. It heated up the shovel and the man considerably, and he now stands up when he eats his meals.

A couple of traveling men risked the liveryman's horses and their own necks crossing from Ironton to Horton's Bay on the ice last week. It is said that they rode most of the way with their feet hanging over the side, prepared to jump.

The question of incorporation of Traverse City, as a city, was talked some at a public meeting last Thursday evening and a committee consisting of H. C. Davis, L. Roberts, J. W. Milliken, G. E. Steele, W. F. Griffin and R. Goodrich was appointed to investigate the matter and report at an adjourned meeting.

Boyne Falls Gazette: Rumor has it that there is a chance of the sale of the mill property to N. A. Gould, of Oakfield Center, falling through, owing to a misunderstanding between the contracting parties. Should this undesirable event happen, it will necessarily cause some delay, but there are two other purchasers in the field ready and anxious to step in.

There are now 465 patients at the Northern Michigan asylum. All the beds in the male wards are now full except seven. The management of patients at this institution is certainly wonderful. The death rate during the past year has been only four per cent., which for a community of between four and five hundred persons suffering from insanity, speaks volumes for the sanitary treatment of the inmates.

Albert Weitzell, the Reed City clerk who confessed to stealing $500 worth of stuff from his employers, must needs amend his idea. Officers have found $100 worth of truck in the rooms of a girl of the town, about $200 worth in the home of a respectable young lady, several hundred dollars in money and goods at his boarding house and it is claimed that he has been stocking up a store at Port Huron.

Petoskey Record: While all our sister villages within fifty miles are holding meetings, subscribing stock and making a great deal of noise about "a railroad," Petoskey sits quietly on her hillside and waits for the accomplishment of the inevitable. Why bless your dear souls! neighbors, we have the thing all fixed. The Michigan & Ohio, builds north from Marshall to Mackinaw via Petoskey. The Toledo, Ann Arbor & Anywhere, is coming from Mt. Pleasant, to Mackinaw via Petoskey. The Michigan Central is going to build a branch from Wolverine to Petoskey next summer, and unless the Charlevoix Sentinel is more polite we will have it stop here instead of going on to Charlevoix. The Chicago and West Michigan are coming to make their terminus at Petoskey, though accidentally they will put in a side track at Charlevoix. In point of fact all the railroads built in northern Michigan will center in Petoskey except the road from Conway Springs to Harbor Springs which Bro. Clark is working up. Pitch in, brethren! Petoskey will be glad to have railroad communication with you.

There is talk of a fruit nursery on a tract of land between Boyne City and Bear Lake.

One Indian at Cross Village worked 75 days on the repairs to the old Catholic church. He donated it all to the church.

Marshall & Beardsley, the new proprietors of the Jordan River House, at East Jordan, are to give a grand opening ball, for a starter, on Friday evening, January 28th.

The Cheboygan Democrat thinks the threat of "Doggy" Dumas' father to sue the village for $10,000 on account of his son's burning to death in the jail is mostly "guff."

State Senator Giddings of Cadillac, was presented with an elegant gold watch and chain last Wednesday evening at a banquet at the McKinnon house, for his course in the senatorial contest.

There are two car loads of blasting powder at Mackinac City awaiting transportation across the straits. It will have to be transported over by teams, as it is against the marine law for the Algomah to carry it.

Married—At Old Mission, Jan. 13, at the bride's home, in the presence of a large and pleasant company by Rev. D. Van Alstin, D. D., Capt. Jas. H. McClusky and Miss Lizzie J. Gilmore, both of Old Mission.

The first mile of the Sault branch from Sault Junction is graded, and the right of way is cut for five miles. About 165 men are at work at present and more will be put on as fast as they can be procured, in order to complete it by July 1, the contract time.—St. Ignace News.

Condy Gallagher, of the Beaver Island life saving station, and an uncle of Postmaster Gallagher, arrived in Cheboygan Thursday. He and two others crossed from the Beavers to Cross Village on the ice, which in some places was not over 1½ inches thick.—Cheboygan Tribune.

The Mancelona iron furnace under the new management, appears to be a success. It has been in blast since the 29th day of May last, and deducting 21 days that the fires were banked to make repairs, has made an average of 49 tons of pig iron a day. This, considering the size of the furnace, is good work. The Company are getting a good stock of wood on hand, having purchased during the month of December 6,600 cords.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. 47

Report

Of the condition of the Charlevoix Savings Bank at Charlevoix, Michigan, on Monday, January 31, A. D. 1887, made in accordance with sections 18, 19 and 67 of the General Banking Laws, as amended in 1871.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts	$29,064.05
Demand Loans	5,[illegible]
Overdrafts	64.44
Furniture and Fixtures	437.00
Expenses and Interest paid	2,046.63
Due from Banks and Bankers	6,720.19
Legal Tender and Bank Notes	3,749.26
	$47,670.55

LIABILITIES.

Capital paid in	$15,000.00
Surplus Fund	2,000.00
Undivided Profits	6,791.37
Due Depositors	23,879.18
	$47,670.55

I do solemnly swear that the above statement is true, to the best of my knowledge and belief.
FRED A. SMITH, Cashier.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 6th day of January, 1887.
E. H. GREEN, Notary Public.

Notice of Dissolution.

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Heath, Francis & Co., was on the 1st day of September dissolved by mutual consent. The business heretofore conducted by that firm will be from this date conducted by Jerome Heath, who assumes all liabilities and settles all outstanding accounts.
Dated January 4th, 1887.
JEROME HEATH,
WILLIAM FRANCIS,
ALEXANDER CAMERON.
41

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 46 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
National Park Bank - - - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - - - Chicago.
Nat. City Bank - - - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - - - Detroit.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.
§§
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Respectfully Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial Bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

In effect Sunday, March 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS	No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	9 20 p m
Petoskey	8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 10	11 30
Mancelona	10 18	12 30
Walton Junc	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Ar	12 10	2 30	6 15
Cadillac Lv	12 40	3 05	6 40
Le Roy	1 [illegible]	3 40	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 [illegible]	4 [illegible]	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 15	4 45	8 00
Big Rapids	[illegible]	5 [illegible]	8 31
Stanwood	[illegible]	[illegible]	8 55
Howard City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
D G H & M Cross	4 41	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	7 15	11 45
Plainwell	[illegible]	[illegible]	1 12
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	10 57	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond	4 30	3 35
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS	No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	1 00
Sturgis	4 21	5 25
Kalamazoo Ar	5 15	6 55
Kalamazoo Lv	5 30	7 00
Plainwell	6 10	7 48
Grand Rapids Ar	7 40	9 20
Grand Rapids Lv	11 30	4 55
D, G, H, & M cross	11 45	5 10
Howard City	12 52	6 18
Stanwood	1 23	6 44
Big Rapids	1 41	7 00
Reed City Ar	2 15	7 43
Reed City Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy	1 08	8 41
Cadillac Ar	1 47	9 10
Cadillac Lv	1 55	9 30
Walton Junc	4 45	10 25
Mancelona	6 10	11 50
Boyne Falls	7 11	12 52
Petoskey	7 [illegible]	1 30
Mackinaw City	9 30	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass Agent.

Bank of
Charlevoix,
W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with one's own money is folly, that to do so with the money of others is criminal.

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private Investments, without attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Take The Sentinel.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters
& Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames
made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS &
SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty
also contracting
and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix. [illegible] Notice is hereby given, that on the 8th day of November, A. D. 1886, [illegible] returnable on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.

Dated the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.
FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix. John Plankinton and Patrick Cudahy vs. Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery. In Attachment. Notice is hereby given that on the 5th day of November, A. D. 1886, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of John Plankinton and Patrick Cudahy, comprising the firm of John Plankinton & Co., of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the above named plaintiffs, against the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys and effects of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, comprising the firm of Upright & Emery, of Charlevoix, Michigan, the defendants above named for the sum of Two Hundred Thirty three [illegible] dollars [illegible], which said writ was returnable on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.
FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix. Moses D. Wells, H. J. Macfarland and B. K. Wells, plaintiffs vs. Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, defendants. In Attachment. Notice is hereby given that on the fifth day of November, A. D. 1886, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of Moses D. Wells, H. J. Macfarland and B. K. Wells, comprising the firm of M. D. Wells & Co., of Chicago, Illinois, the above named plaintiffs, against the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys and effects of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, comprising the firm of Upright & Emery, of Charlevoix, Michigan, the defendants above named, for the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred Fifty [illegible] and Thirty three one hundredths dollars [illegible], which said writ was returnable on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.
FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Chancery Sale.

[illegible] Complainant vs. August Stuebing, Defendant. State of Michigan, suit pending in the Thirteenth Judicial circuit, in chancery. In the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery. [illegible]

Dated this [illegible] day of December, A. D. 1886.
FRANK E. FOGG,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.
A true copy, attest,
SAMUEL B. THATCHER, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

Default has been made in the condition of a mortgage made [illegible] 1885 executed by Nicholas Morgan [illegible] to the John Wilkinson Company [illegible] on the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1887.

Dated this 1st day of November, A. D. 1886.
THE JOHN WILKINSON COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
FRED W. MAYNE,
Atty for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a mortgage made by Benjamin Walker [illegible] Friday, the 4th day of March, 1887, at one o'clock p. m. of said day, at the front door of the Court House in the village of Boyne City [illegible] the East half of the North east quarter of section twenty-eight [28] township thirty-four [34] North of Range seven [7] west, Charlevoix county, state of Michigan.

Dated December 7th, 1886.
DAVID CARPENTER, Mortgagee.
DART & CALL, Attys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Adelbert R. Upright and Amelia B. Upright, his wife, of Charlevoix, Michigan to Martha J. Ayers of Plattsburg, New York, dated the twenty-sixth day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan on the twenty-seventh day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four in liber "B" of mortgages on page 440 at ten o'clock and thirty minutes in the forenoon, and the same is now owned by the said Martha J. Ayers, and the whole of the principal and interest is past due and unpaid and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of [illegible] Dollars and twenty five cents [illegible] principal and interest, and no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the moneys secured by said mortgage or any part thereof; Now therefore by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises herein described. Notice is therefore hereby given that on Thursday the Twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1887, at one o'clock in the afternoon I shall sell at Public Auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Court House, now situated in the village of Boyne City, township of Evangeline county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan, (that being the place of holding the Circuit court for Charlevoix county) the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage with the interest at ten per cent and all legal costs including such attorney fee provided for [illegible] as is allowed by the statute in such case made and provided, which premises are described in the said mortgage as follows, to wit: All those certain pieces or parcels of land situated in the village of Charlevoix in the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan; A strip of land five [5] feet wide off of the north side of lot eight (8) of block five (5); and a strip of land twenty-five [25] feet wide off of the south side of lot seven [7] of block five [5] of the village of Charlevoix, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

Dated November 17th, A. D. 1886.
MARTHA J. AYERS, Mortgagee.
EDWARD H. GREEN,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the [illegible] Block. Inquire of D. See. 15tf.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price [illegible] cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

For Sale!

Prof. RICE'S nicely located House and two beautiful lots on Clinton street near the Park in the village of Charlevoix, are now for sale. Enquire of D. M. RICE, Alpena, Mich., or E. H. GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich.
May 4, 1886. 15

RIFENBURG
MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
[illegible] Wholesale and Retail [illegible]
3 EXTRA GRADES
OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, [illegible] boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best model, the easiest towing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special inducements for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co
We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS
—|AND|—
SHOES,
which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.
We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.
Womens grain shoes for $1.25
Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.
Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,
having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at
Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid
FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Zephyrs at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $1.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of
Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GREEN, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at Law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PHILLIPS, M. D. Physician and Surgeon. [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D. [illegible] Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 112, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 261, meets second and fourth Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows hall.

K. O. T. M.—Round Lake Tent No. [illegible], meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

I. O. G. T.—True Blues No. 151 meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members during fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.
President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—[illegible]
Treasurer—Albert R. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Liddings, W. A. Brown and C. L. [illegible]
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stevenson, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, L. M. Clark, H. Reeder.
All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will be [illegible] unsurpassed opportunities for all [illegible]

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Big Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connection. Only [illegible] feet to Steamboat landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE,
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central location.

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.
Drafts on New York, Chicago, Detroit and Ireland [illegible] Bank Remittances or Postal Orders to any person in Europe. Loans and Discounts on first mortgages on Real Estate. Railroad and Steamship Tickets to and from any place in Europe.
BROWN & CO.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken [illegible] at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. [illegible] Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. B. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Wood's drug Store. Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY
—AND—
FANCY GOODS!
Mrs. ELLA SMITH &
Miss ANNIE COOPER
Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of
FANCY GOODS!
Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and all other work of all kinds promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.
Give me call.

Forty Acres
OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE County, close to North Adams village, to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address
GAMBLE & CAMPBELL,
41 Real Estate Agents, Hillsdale, Mich.

Pan-Zama Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Troubles with which womankind is heir. $1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For circulars and particulars, Address
PAN-ZAMA MED. CO.,
Frankfort, Ind.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"A handsome woman is dangerous," says an exchange. Perhaps this is the reason why so many men court danger.

"Colts are just like children," said a well-known [illegible] who was driving a handsome colt the other day; "you begin to fight 'em when they're young, and you may fight 'em as long as they live."—Detroit Free Press.

In Brooklyn a deacon's 4-year-old daughter was accustomed to watch for the pastor's little son going to school opposite her home. One morning he was unusually early, whereupon the 4-year-old lassie exclaimed: "Good gracious! there goes Blank to school; either they must have had very little for breakfast or very short family prayers."—Gospel Age.

Angry Manager—Here, Miss Daffodill, something must be done to fill the houses. Your husband? Actress—Alas! You know he is in prison for threatening to attend the performance. Manager—And the Marquis? Actress—Under bonds to keep the peace. Manager—Heavens! this is awful. Pack your trunk, and I will tell the company to meet us in the west. We must elope.—Graphic.

Since it has become fashionable for young ladies to wear a collar and necktie their superiority to men has become fully demonstrated. You never see a lady with her necktie over her ears. A brief trial of six months has taught women more in the necktie wearing art than men have learned in 6,000 years. A human being that can make a necktie stay in place should have the right to cast two ballots at every election.—Lynn Union.

They were sitting in the parlor gazing into the red heart of the anthracite which glowed in the grate, when, taking her hand and squeezing it tenderly, he asked, in the poetical language that lovers often use: "Are you willing, darling, that we should drift down the stream of life together?" "O!" she exclaimed, somewhat impatiently, "we have had enough of drifting matches lately. If you want me to marry you say so."—Charlestown (Mass.) Enterprise.

"And shall you try to break his will?" the caller wanted to know, after the widow had told her how the recently deceased had fixed the property and rather left her out. "Try?" the widow echoed, as she smoothed out her dress complacently. "I don't think there will be much try about it. I didn't have any trouble breaking his will when he was alive, and I don't think it is going to trouble me any this time."—Rockland Gazette.

"Now, isn't it true that you went to this girl's father and tried to settle the case against the defendant?" asked Lawyer S—— of a dark-skinned witness during a recent session of court. "Yes, sah, I did sah," was the darky's prompt reply. "Oh, you did," spoke up the counsellor, "you acted the peacemaker; are you a peacemaker by occupation?" "No, sah," earnestly replied the witness, "I's a brickmaker." And the judge joined in the smile.—Detroit Free Press.

After the marriage: A friend of the family takes the father of the bride aside and says, confidentially: "Do you know that your son-in-law is a terribly bad case and is literally overwhelmed with debts?" "The deuce—how can I help it?" "I am certain of it. Why, he has only taken your daughter to pay his creditors with her dowry." "And you didn't warn me before?" "You don't take me for a fool, do you? He owes me more than 20,000 francs."—French Wit.

An old negro living in Wingo, Ky., recently had a friend write a letter for him to one of his friends in Tennessee. In due course of time he expected an answer to his letter, and made frequent inquiries of the postmaster. One day he looked in as usual, and was told by the postmaster that a letter had come for him, but it was a dead letter. The old darky's face collapsed to a sad expression as he snapped his hands together, and exclaimed: "Just about as I 'spected; some of them would be dead when I heard from them."

"Brondey, I'm right in with you. It will take money, but it will pay handsomely. I have $10,000 at interest which I can call in on ten day's notice. If you can command the same amount ——" "But, how is this, Darringer? Yesterday you made an awful poor mouth. You said you had no bonds, no stocks, no money at interest, no ——" "Did I say it to you, Brondey?" "No, but to a stranger who sat just over there. I was by, you know." "O, I remember. Well, do you know who the stranger was?" "No." "He was the assessor."—Philadelphia Call.

The other night a woman living on Franklin street was teaching her 4-year-old boy his evening prayer. The little fellow had always repeated the prayer word for word as his mother recited it, but this time the latter thought he might try to say it alone. Johnnie was just tired enough to think of little else but bed. However, after much encouragement, he began: "Now I lay me ——" then a long pause. "Well, Johnnie," said his mother. "Get there, Eli," responded Johnnie, and he was hurried off to bed.—Buffalo Express.

Wife (just home from the camp-meeting)—We have had such a glorious meeting to-day. You know what an invalid Mrs. Benton has been for fifteen years? Husband—Yes. Wife—Well, if there ever were saints on earth, she's one of them. She says that she has sat all through those long years in her invalid inclining chair without a murmur and in perfect peace and contentment. Husband (very much interested)—Is it possible! I wish you would get the name and address of the man who made that chair.—N. Y. Sun.

"Well," remarked a young man to a group of friends, "the only girl I ever really loved is to be married on the 10th of next month." "Too bad, old fell," said a member of the party. "You have my sympathy." "You know the old story about as good fish in the sea, don't you?" inquired another. "Why don't you punch the lucky fellow?" asked a pugilistic member, "and prevent him from coming to time at the wedding?" "Who is the lucky man?" asked a fourth member of the gathering. "If you would only give me a chance I will tell you. She is to marry me." Tableau.—Nashville Union.

"What d' you come home for?" demands the father. "Expelled," replies the boy. "Can't go back again?" "No, they said not." "What did they expel you for?" "Couldn't keep up with my classes." "Course not; you always were a fool. You haven't learned anything, I suppose?" "No, not much." "Don't know as much as you did when you started to school, I reckon?" "Don't know any more, anyhow." "What do you expect to do?" "I'm going into business as weather prophet." Delighted father—"Good boy: the very thing! You've got more sense than I thought you had. I'm afraid you've got too much to make a good prophet."—Burdette.

A Detroiter who was working across one of the northern counties with a horse and buggy this summer met a farmer on foot and asked him how far it was to Greenville. "Which one?" was the query after half a minute spent in reflection. "Why, I didn't know that there was but one Greenville." "Didn't you? There's one in South Carolina, a second in Kansas, a third in Ohio, and a fourth in Iowa. Which one do you want to go to?" "The nearest one." "Well, that's about seven miles off. Next time you inquire for Greenville you had better name the State. Got any tobacco?" "Which tobacco do you want?" "Why, I didn't know as there was more'n one tobacco." "O, yes there is. There's plug tobacco, fine-cut, shorts, and smoking. Which did you want?" "Well, I'll take plug." "I haven't got any. Next time you inquire for tobacco you'd better mention the kind." The two looked each other over for a minute and then separated in silence.—Free Press.

Glass 100 Feet in Thickness.

Among the scientific papers which will appear in the appendix of one of the forthcoming reports of the geological survey is one by Prof. Joseph P. Iddings upon an obsidian cliff of Yellowstone Park. This cliff is an elevation half a mile long by from 150 to 250 feet high, the material of which, Prof. Iddings says, "is as good a glass as any artificially manufactured. Its colors and structure not only make it highly interesting to the visitor but furnish to the scientific investigator phenomena of importance. The cliff presents a partial section of a surface flow of obsidian which poured down an ancient slope from the plateau lying east. It is impossible to determine what the original thickness of this flow may have been. The dense glass which now forms its lower portion is from 75 to 100 feet thick, while the porous and pumiceous upper portion has suffered from ages of erosion and glacial action.

A remarkable feature of the cliff is the development of prismatic columns which form its southern extremity. These are of shining black obsidian, rising from the talus slope, and are from fifty to sixty feet in hight, with diameters varying from two to four feet. The color of the material of this cliff is for the most part jet black, but much of it is mottled and streaked with bright brownish red and various shades of brown and olive green. The brilliant lustre of the rock and the strong contrast of colors with the black are very striking. In places the glass in the process of cooling has been broken into small angular pieces, which have been again cemented by the later flow, producing many colored and beautiful breccia. In some places the material shows a fine satin lustre, while in others a deep golden sheen is noticeable, which under the lens resolves itself into thin beams of red and yellow light. Through the black and red glass are scattered dull, bluish gray patches and bands and round gray and pink masses, the effect of which is to still further vary the appearance and beauty of the rock and make it the most conspicuous and characteristic variety of volcanic lava known.

Signs of Ill-Luck.

To be struck by lightning on Monday.

To sit on a buzz-saw in motion on Friday.

To break the mirror your wife's mother gave her.

To fall down-stairs with the parlor stove on Tuesday.

To speculate with other people's money, and get caught.

To spill salt in the coffee of a man who has the carving-knife.

To see a bill collector over your right shoulder on Saturday.

To dream of snakes after drinking cider in a prohibition town.

To get wet when you fall overboard while boating on Thursday.

To see a bulldog over your left shoulder in your neighbor's orchard.

To be one of thirteen at table when there is only food enough for six.

To call a bigger man than yourself hard names any day in the week.

To marry on Wednesday a girl who practices with ten-pound dumb-bells.

To meet a detective at the depot when you are buying a ticket to Canada.

To bet all your money on a horse whose driver has bet his money on another.

To attempt to sit on a chair that some one has removed when you were not looking.

To see your overcoat over either shoulder as you pass out of the shop of your uncle.

To offend your best-loved girl's little brother who saw you kiss another little boy's sister.—Tid-Bits.

Was Going There, Anyhow.

It doesn't make any difference what his other name was, but he was a congressman in Paris, and he had never been there before. It is the custom in that city, when a stage is full, to put up the sign complet, and no more passengers can get in. Our congressman wanted to see everything, and as these labeled stages would pass him he would try to stop them, but the driver would shake his head and drive on.

"You can't get in any of those," said an English-speaking citizen who had watched his vain attempts.

"But I want one of them," he persisted.

"Take one of the others with fewer people in it. There's plenty of them," urged the citizen.

"You go to thunder," he said, angrily, "I guess I know what I want. I'm in this town to see the sights. Everybody seems to be going to Complet, and I'm d——d if I ain't going there, too, if I have to wait a week to catch a bus with room in it for me. That's the kind of an American citizen I am, and don't you forget it."—Washington Critic.

Metal-workers are using the standard silver dollars as materials for lockets. They split them in two on the edge, hollow them out on the inside until a mere shell remains, and then thread them so that they screw together. This is done so skillfully that the alteration is not readily detected, and can be discovered only by the lightness of the coin.

There are some foolish, shallow, bigoted people in this Republic who think that $5,000 a year is too much to pay a United States Senator. And yet a United States Senator has just invented a new cocktail. Do the American people expect to get statesmanship for nothing?—Burdette.

LIFE SAVING.

Statistics are often cited to prove that the years of life have been greatly lengthened. Dr. Charles L. Dana so sums them up in an article in the Forum. The death rate in London in 1697 was 42 per 1,000; in 1750, 35 per 1,000; in 1880, 23 per 1,000. The mortality in Paris in the fourteenth century was 50 per 1,000, now it is 26 per 1,000. Records of death rates have been kept in Geneva since 1590; since that time the expectation of life has increased from 5 to 45 years. The average duration of life in the sixteenth century was only 18 years; now in England it is 41 years. In 1729 three out of every four children died before the age of two years. Now, outside of large cities only 30 per cent of all deaths occur under the age of five. In recent years there has been a steady decline in the annual mortality rate for the whole population. In England and Wales it has fallen from 22.5 per 1,000 in 1861 to 19.3 per 1,000 in 1880–82. This means that out of every 1,000 children born, 29.4 more reach the age of 15 than did twenty years ago. It means in this country, for example, that 20,000 more children grow to be 15 than under older methods of living.

Compared with a century ago, although no particular individual reaches any greater age, the average duration of life has doubled. English statistics show that since 1861 the decreased death rates adds 200 years to the lives of 1,000 males, of which years 70 per cent is passed between the ages of 20 and 60, the productive period.

Sanitarians have furnished us with some estimates of the economic value of this saving of life. The value of a child's life in money, says Sir James Paget, is $250. It costs an average of $500 to rear a child. Its death at the beginning of the productive age is therefore so much lost. The value of an adult life to the state is placed by Dr. Farr at $750, which is regarded as very low, and its annual productive power at $95. Another authority estimates the value of a healthy adult at $1,000. Rochard's estimate for every Frenchman is $219.

While the number varies in different countries, it is safe to say that nearly one-half of the population die during the productive age. In the United States the number of deaths annually at the productive ages is about 400,000. A diminution of even a small per cent in the death rate would thus represent a great economic saving. Further, every death represents two years of sickness, or 24 cases of sickness lasting one month. In the United States there are, therefore, 1,500,000 persons sick constantly, or 36,000,000 sick for one month every year. In England and Wales it has been found that every workingman averages a week and a half of sickness every year. Rochard estimates that the annual wages loss to France from sickness is $70,000,000; the total loss, $141,000,000; the loss from death $188,000,000. We are assured that the death rate can in time be reduced from the present average of 20 per 1,000 to 10 or even 5 per 1,000, while the amount of sickness ought to be reduced nearly one-fourth, or from 200 per 1,000 to 50 per 1,000.

The efforts to save human life or prolong it on the part of the medical profession have achieved notable results. Typhus fever in England killed 30 per cent of its victims previous to 1825. The death rate has since been reduced to 20 per cent or perhaps less. Ague, pneumonia, diabetes, Bright's disease, the fevers and diarrheal diseases of children, are less mortal than they once were. Death rates in hospitals have fallen from 20 per cent (for 40 years the ratio in Bellevue Hospital) to 10 and 12 per cent on the admissions. In 90 years (1741 to 1831), the proportion of cures to deaths in St. Bartholomew's Hospital increased fivefold. Consumption, being more quickly recognized and more rationally treated, has become less formidable and death rates from that source have steadily declined since 1850. In public institutions, where one out of every 29 puerperal women died, the ratio is now less than one in 200. Just as certainly the surgeon has done his share. The ratio of death after amputations has declined from about 40 per cent to less than 20. Every year modern surgical skill saves the lives of thousands of patients whom once the surgeons did not dare to touch.

There is, after all, says Dr. Dana, a steady increase in the proportionate number of defective, dependent, the chronic invalid, and degenerative classes. The only marked decrease obtained in late years is in the zymotic (miasmatic, etc.) diseases, while there is an increase in the local diseases—those of the heart, lungs, kidneys, etc. Consumption has decreased in fatality in most countries, about 7 per cent; fewer persons have the disease and more who have it get well.

Among 10,000 persons in Europe or the United States there will be found 8 deaf mutes, 10 blind, 13 criminals, 14 insane or idiotic, 20 chronic inebriates, 100 paupers, and 400 chronic sick, or altogether 563 persons who are more or less defective or dependent. Among 10,000 male adults in the working years of life, over 2,500 are not sufficiently perfect, physically, for military service. Every physician who has had experience in nervous diseases notices the fact that the race is filling with persons who have some degenerative taint or constitutional vice. It is those who misuse narcotics and stimulants, who are epileptic, eccentric, hypochondriacal, perverse, cranky and even criminal. What other result can be expected when our daily multiplying asylums and hospitals pour forth vast numbers of those who are crippled and sickly, but are still able to exist, perhaps propagate their kind; when founding institutions take without question the products of disease and crime; when the libertine knows that, however diseased his body, the state will suckle and try to rear his offspring.—Good Housekeeping.

The Emblematic Horse-Shoe.

And now it is authoritatively stated that the horse-shoe is not the emblem of good luck it has so long been supposed. On the contrary, it brings the reverse of luck to people who treasure it. The superstitious will please take notice, and cease to pick up this offending piece of iron wherever and whenever they chance to see it, as has long been their custom. One of the greatest scamps on record, a person who would have sold his mother's false teeth if the "it took him," once said nothing on earth or in heaven would prevent him stopping to pick up a horse-shoe, for, if he knew his fortune was at stake should he miss a certain train, he would rather lose both than pass this ancient toy! It is melancholy to acknowledge he was always a lucky fellow till he died, and then, who can tell whether he was or not? At all events he left a large collection of horse-shoes of all sizes and conditions to mourn his loss, and henceforth exercise their thaumaturgical power in some neighboring junk-shop.—Boston Herald.

A Modest, But a Good Traveler.

"It doesn't sound nice to say so, but it is a fact, that the Lake Shore folks were awfully glad when a certain man died up in Buffalo the other day," said a conductor, elately. "There's quite a story about that case, and I guess I'll have to tell it to you. The man's name was Talbot. About twelve years ago Talbot saved a train from going into a washout near his farm, and of course the company felt very grateful. E. P. Wright—Wright was then superintendent of the Buffalo division—sent for him and loaded him with thanks for himself and the company. Talbot modestly declined a money present of $500, but said he didn't object when Wright proposed making out for him a pass good for the remainder of his life. While Wright was writing out the pass Talbot inquired:

"Say, Mr. Wright, have you any objections to making that read good for me and a friend? I may want to take a friend up to Cleveland with me some time to see an uncle of mine.'

"Wright was so full of gratitude that he couldn't object to anything, and the man got his pass, good for himself and a friend, and it was afterward sent on to headquarters and countersigned by the president and general passenger agent.

"Well, now, what do you think? For more than [illegible] years that man Talbot has been riding constantly between Buffalo and Chicago, Buffalo and Cleveland, or Buffalo and Toledo. He was never alone. He always had 'a friend' with him. The friend was usually some commercial traveler. In short, Talbot had made railroad riding his regular business. He made arrangements with various wholesale and jobbing houses to carry their men, and booked his engagements months ahead, sometimes. When these failed he picked up stray passengers here and there. After paying his sleeping car and other expenses he had $7 or $8 a day left as clear profit, and out of these profits he managed to amass a snug little fortune. He tried to use his pass on the limited express, but the company wouldn't have it. In fact, they wanted to refuse to carry him altogether, but their lawyer concluded that the suit for damages would be too expensive.—Chi. Herald.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes is still a frequent [illegible] Corner Bookstore.

MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION
Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. They treat of a great variety of subjects, and we think no one can examine the list without finding therein many that he or she would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. Each book is complete in itself.
1. The Widow Bedott Papers. This is the book over which your grandmothers laughed till they cried, and it is just as funny to-day as it ever was.
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils," etc.
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 57 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread and Cheese and Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Philadelphia; illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4,500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.
OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of
"SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The beam is so [illegible] to the [illegible] but [illegible] directly in the Centre of the Line of Draft [illegible] before you buy. If our Agent has none write us for [illegible]
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

BARGAINS!
ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND
COOK STOVES
HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.
JOB and TIN WORK. L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and
STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates Low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.
My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc.
is complete.
If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,
At current rates of interest, on
Approved Real Estate Security.
School Bonds bought and sold.
MILEY & CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

MABEL CLARE.

If stars are in the quiet sky,
Or if the glass is blurred with rain,
With trembling lip and eager eye
Her face is pressed against the pane.
White lilies on her forehead blow,
The sun is tangled in her hair,
But as a broken mirror, so
The scattered mind of Mabel Clare.

Beneath the branches bloss[illegible],
In coat and cap of velvet brown,
And singing gayly, in the spring,
A handsome stranger came to town.
He found the ivy shaded door,
And many an eve he lingered there.
He vowed to love forever more,
And won the heart of Mabel Clare.

The trees about were touched with flame,
The skies above were dull and gray,
When, singing gayly as he came
The handsome stranger rode away.
He left no word of hope behind,
But faith betrayed and bla[illegible] despair,
A ruined life, a blighted mind,
A broken heart for Mabel Clare.

If wintry crescents glimmer pale,
Or stars of summer blaze and burn,
When twilight drops its silver veil
She watches still for his return.
She wears a rose at eventide,
She binds a ribbon in her hair;
O, all in vain your simple pride:
He will not see it, Mabel Clare.

But some time, when the hour is late,
And when your weary eyes are dim,
A guest will enter at the gate
And bid you rise and follow him,
And you will leave your window-pane,
And find the fields forever fair,
Where broken hearts are healed again
And minds are mended, Mabel Clare.

A SENSIBLE GIRL.

"Engaged to be married!" slowly uttered Theresa Middleton. "And to think that little Blanche Follett should have been the first of the graduating class to wear an engagement ring!"

It was rather strange. The three girls sat side by side on the broad veranda of the Acapulco Hotel at Long Branch—Theresa Middleton, tall, handsome, and stylish, with jetty hair, large dark eyes, and yellow roses in her hair; Sophie Dean, slight and graceful, a type of the most exquisite blond loveliness; and Blanche Follett, the fiancee of the group, an insignificant chestnut haired lassie, pretty enough when one came to examine her features, but nothing beyond the average.

"How soon are you to be married, Blanche?" asked Sophie.

"I don't know. As soon as Guy's father returns from Europe, I suppose."

"And are you to have your trosseau from Paris? O, dear, I wish it was I," said Theresa, enviously. "You scheming little thing! Who would have suspected you of captivating a rich husband?"

"I don't care whether he is rich or not," said Blanche, firing up. "I only know that I love him. That is enough."

"It wouldn't be enough for me," said Theresa. "I must have cash as well as caresses. But come, girls, it's time to dress for tea. Those handsome young Cubans will sit opposite us again and even a handkerchief flirtation is better than nothing. Blanche won't join us, but we don't care for that."

"What a funny old man, all in snuff color, that was that sat next us this afternoon at dinner!" laughed Sophie. "And how he stared at us. I shouldn't wonder if he were some rich widower."

"Horrid old fogy!" said Theresa. "Do you know, girls, he has taken the room next to ours! I saw them carrying an antediluvian trunk in there a little while ago. Depend upon it he's the first cousin to Methusaleh! I'm sure I don't know what such wretched old creatures want at a place like Long Branch. Why don't they stay at home and nurse their rheumatism in their own back garrets?"

"Hush, Theresa," whispered Miss Follett, glancing around. "He is sitting on the other bench, just beyond. He will hear you."

"Who cares if he does?" said Miss Middleton, insolent in the pride and flush of her young beauty.

The gray-haired old man who had been sitting with both hands clasped over his gold-headed cane, and his eyes intently fixed on the changing glories of the sunset sea, looked up here.

"I suppose, young lady," said he, "you think that the old have no business to exist. Perhaps when half a century or more has rolled over your own head you may think differently on the subject."

Theresa colored and tossed her head, Sophie Dean tittered as she rose and shook out her flounced muslin robes preparatory to going up stairs, but Blanche Follett lingered behind after the other two had swept away and glanced pleadingly up in the old man's face.

"I hope they have not hurt your feelings, sir," she said wistfully. "They mean no harm, only they are young and foolish."

"No, my dear, no," said the old man kindly. "You, at all events, have a gentler nature and more womanly temperament."

The August moon shone full that night, and long after midnight Sophie and Theresa were practicing on the guitar and singing sentimental songs, when a waiter tapped at their door with a message.

"Please, miss, No. 49's compliments, and 'e has a bad 'eadache and can't sleep, and wouldn't the young ladies oblige him by leavin' hoff a singing."

"What nonsense!" cried Theresa, sharply. "Every one is free to do as he or she likes in a hotel, I believe."

"Theresa," pleaded kind-hearted little Blanche, "if the old gentleman has a headache——"

"Pshaw! A regular fussy old bachelor," said Sophie, petulantly, "to spoil our practice in this way."

For Blanche was resolute in insisting that the guitar should be put away, and so the two pretty girls went grumbling to bed.

"What do you think?" exclaimed Sophie, coming in the next morning, dripping and radiant from the bath. "Old 49 is sick! The doctor was there half an hour ago, and I just saw the waiters carrying in ice for his head."

"Some horrid fever!" cried Theresa, turning pale. "I mean to change to some other hotel at once. Blanche—where is Blanche? Why she's gone, I declare! How provoking, when we are in a hurry to decide upon the matter!"

It was more than an hour before Blanche Follett returned, and when at length she entered the room Theresa and Sophie were half through the t[ask] of packing their trunks.

"Blanche!" cried the former, petulantly, "where have you been?"

"In the next room with a sick old gentleman, doing my best to nurse him."

"Blanche!" shrieked Theresa.

"Well?" was the calm response.

"Are you mad?" cried both girls in chorus.

"No—only human. If it was my father," added Blanche, courageously, "do you think I should want him to lie alone and unattended in a hotel like this?"

"Let him send for his friends," said Theresa sullenly.

"Who can tell who or what they are?"

"Search the trunk—that's the way. You all act like so many fools," said Sophie sharply.

"I suppose they will do so if he does not get better soon. In the meantime he needs a daughter's care, and the memory of my own dear, dead father prompts me to the mission."

"Blanche, you are crazy!" cried out Miss Dean. "What do you suppose Mr. Archfield would say to your risking your life thus?"

"I do not think there is any risk," said Blanche calmly. "Moreover, I believe Guy would bid me do my duty at any and all hazards."

"I'm glad my sense of duty isn't quite so superfine," said Theresa scornfully. "You can do as you please but Sophie and I intend removing at once to the Mermaid House."

"And if you are sensible you will do the same," added Miss Dean.

But Blanche shook her head.

"No," she said, quietly, "I have made up my mind."

"Well, then," said Sophie, "I wish that old Snuff Color would die and be done with it. For it won't be half so pleasant without you, Blanche."

"Old SnuffColor," however, as Sophie irreverently termed him, did not die. On the contrary, after that day of peril the scales of chance seemed to turn in his favor, and permanent recovery set in.

"My dear," said he to Blanche Follett, "I have much to thank you for. Before yesterday I never knew the soft touch of a daughter's hand upon my brow, the music of a daughter's footsteps around my bedside. Nor shall I consent to part with them now. I mean to keep you always, my child."

Blanche colored and started at these incomprehensible words.

"Does he mean to adopt me?" she asked herself. "Or—no, surely, that cannot be possible—he is going to propose to me?"

But the old gentleman's next sentence completely solved the riddle.

"For I do not think you have once suspected," he added, with a quiet smile, "that all your secret charitable offices have been rendered to—Guy Archfield's father!"

Blanche was more frightened than ever. Surely the old man was insane.

"Mr. Archfield Sr. is in Europe," she said, hesitatingly.

"He was, my dear," the old man answered dryly; "but he returned on the Ariadne and he is here by your side. I telegraphed to Guy this morning; he will be here in half an hour to confirm my words. Little Blanche, will you give me a daughter's kiss now?"

"My Blanche, you have won his heart," said Guy Archfield. "The only doubt I ever entertained about our marriage—his consent—is solved at last. He honors you as you deserve."

And the prettiest of all Blanche Follett's wedding-gifts was the parure of diamonds given by her wealthy and eccentric old father-in-law.

And Theresa Middleton and Sophie Dean cried out in chorus, as they had cried before many a time:

"Blanche is the luckiest girl!"

Ex-Marshal Lamon.

Washington Letter: Ward H. Lamon's success in collecting an enormous fee for a claim which he has pushed in Washington for years will be a great encouragement to the army of speculative lawyers and claimants who swarm in Washington. Lamon has been poor for years, and the sudden descent of a quarter of a million of dollars in the shape of a fee for his successful prosecution of the Choctaw claim leaves him a free and independent man if he keeps it. Lamon has been one of the characteristic figures in Washington life ever since Mr. Lincoln brought him here from Illinois and made him Marshal of the District. Lamon is very tall, broad-shouldered, with a very stout, powerful figure. Everything about him is on a large scale. He is over six feet in hight and is as large around the waist as was Sir John Falstaff.

He was a giant in his time. Tremendous stories have been told about his feats of strength. It is said of him that one day when he was Marshal of the District there was a parade and a great crowd in the neighborhood of Willard's Hotel. Marshal Lamon came out to clear a way for Lincoln, and finding an obstreperous rider and dancing horse in his way solved the difficulty by seizing the horse by the tail and lifting it around clear off its feet with a sudden turn of his brawny arms until a pathway was made. There is a small army of dead-beat claimants in the city who obtain money from year to year upon the claim that they have enormous interests pending before Congress or before the courts. Mr. Lamon has been over fifteen years pushing his claim before he reached success. The hungry legal tramps who devastate Washington hotels and boarding-houses will now encourage their creditors to renewed patience with the history of the Lamon case before them.

Judgment Day.

In a negro neighborhood on Tuesday while the earth was rocking the cry was raised that the judgment day was coming. An old mammy, with her kinky hair almost straight from fear, rushed out when she heard the announcement and gazed upward eagerly. Suddenly she shouted: "No hit aint, honey; no hit aint. De skies aint moved. When judgment cums hits er cumin' bofe ways." She was armed with the belief that on that dread day the heavens and the earth will rush together. It would be well if every man could sustain himself with some simple belief or philosophy in panicky times.—Macon Telegraph.

Lincoln and Sumner.

A well-known ex-member of the Cabinet tells some interesting reminiscences of Senator Sumner. A few days before Lincoln's second inauguration, Sumner called at the White House and told him that he was determined to defeat, in the Senate, his favorite measure regarding Louisiana, because it would involve a vicious principle, which would be quoted as a precedent when any large scheme of reconstruction might be brought forward.

Lincoln blandly listened to the Senator's remonstrance and replied: "Mr. Sumner, I am not convinced by your arguments, and as to your threats of defeating the bill, I can tell you it is impossible, for I know a clear majority of the Senate is in its favor."

"But I tell you, Mr. President," answered Sumner, "it shall and will be defeated."

"Try it," was the quiet response.

Sumner did try it. He appeared on the last night of that session of Congress with a small law library, partly on his desk and partly piled upon each side of it. The bill was introduced, and it was supposed it would be immediately passed. Sumner, however, had the floor, and he began to speak. After he had spoken an hour or two, it occurred to Senator Wade of Ohio to ask Sumner, as the session of Congress would soon expire, and as there was much necessary business still remaining to be done, how long the Senator from Massachusetts intended to occupy the attention of the Senate. Sumner replied that his speech must be of unusual length, and that he would not promise that it would come to a close before the legal session of Congress came to an end. Wade, who had in his charge what was to effect Lincoln's bill, was on this announcement compelled to abandon it. Sumner thus managed to have the whole great subject of reconstruction postponed to the period when it could be discussed in all its larger relations to the welfare of both sections of the country.

It is very likely that this incident, as Sumner told it, may be inaccurate in some details. If so, the fault is in the memory of the listener, not in his long narrative. But his object in telling it was to illustrate a beautiful quality of Lincoln's character.

"I thought," he said, "that the President would consider my opposition a personal affront. Instead of that you may judge of my surprise when he sent me a note on the next day, asking me to accompany Mrs. Lincoln in his carriage to the ceremonies of the inauguration, and also to accompany her to the ball in the evening. As to the ball you may imagine the kind of wonder that was excited, when, with Mrs. Lincoln on my arm, I made my way through the throng of ladies and gentlemen present, and placed her in her selected seat. The thing was nothing in itself, but still I thought it read a lesson to shrewd politicians, when they had to undertake the task of pleasing such a man as President Lincoln.

As to Whiskers.

Two fallacies are in vogue regarding the whisker question. One is that a thin-faced man should support side whiskers to widen his face; the other that a round-faced man should favor long chin whiskers to lengthen his face. Both are adopted on the counteraction and antidote principle, but are wrong as wrong can be. A man with a sharp chin exposed is thin and appears thin in spite of his pursuits. And a moon-shaped man gives himself a humorous and clownish appearance by wearing a long sharp tuft on his chin. The principle of conformity should be observed or a wholesale change made. A thin man, for instance, should not wear chin whiskers, no whiskers at all, or beard. He no more looks well with side whiskers and a peaked chin than he would to stuff his chest and not his cheeks or calves. To look well he must be uniformly and consistently thin, or he may modify it by a complete beard. A fat man should be made smooth-faced or wear universal whiskers pretty closely cropped. The well-proportioned and moderately full-faced man may vary the style and quantity of his whiskers with impunity so far as the thin or broad appearance is concerned. A very short beard gives an animal look; if very large it indicates vanity or crankiness.

Pleasantries.

"You don't say so," exclaimed Mrs. Goodform, when she was told of the demise of Miss Gimp the dressmaker. "How fortunate. She finished my garment only day before yesterday; now I am certain that she can make none like it for anybody else."

Miss Grace—"What do you think of these silhouettes, Mr. Fogg?" Fogg—"I think they are devilish good." Miss Grace—"You are not very happy in your choice of an adverb, Mr. Fogg." "On the contrary, I think I am. Aren't these prints of darkness?"

"Have ye got any raw oysters?" asked a newly wedded countryman of the waiter. "Yes, sir; how many will you have?" "How many had I better git, Firanda?" he said turning to the birde. "Well, I dunno, John," she replied, blushing becomingly; "but I feel as though I could eat a hull can."

He was an ardent but economical lover, and had been courting her for three months. "When do you think, dearest," he said, as they sat near the moonlit window one evening, "that the moon appears at its best?" "I think," she replied, "that the moon always looks the loveliest when one is returning home from the opera."

Hotel Keeping Kinks.

There are some odd kinks about hotelkeeping which the world knows little of, and which are generally guarded within the craft as closely as the secrets of the Masonic chamber. One of these kinks concerns the mail of guests, and the hotel clerk, who is not a philosopher on the entire gamut of the mail question, is liable to get his guests into a deal of trouble and himself incidently into a pretty mess. A day or two since a reporter stood at the counter at the Sherman when two telegrams came in. They were to a young couple, one to the husband, the other to the wife. Automatically the clerk called "Front" and sent the wife's [illegible] to their room while the husband's found a place in the keybox.

"That's odd: why didn't you send both up?"

"We never do that without express orders," replied the clerk, with a somewhat cynical smile. "I did it once too often and then quit. I was [illegible] and didn't know any better. It got the husband into a great kettle of fish, and he made it rather warm about the office. His wife, like wives in general, thought everything which was his was hers also. Of course, she opened it. What it contained beyond a nice family row I don't know, but it was pretty full of that article. No; the husband's mail never goes into hands but his own while he is in this hotel! The poor women; they have a hard chance of it, but once in a while a peculiar request about their mail shows that they have also learned a thing or two. In this instance the young man has a very pretty wife, who is innocence itself, but I am afraid if she saw some of the perfumed notes that go in to her husband's box there might be a scene. But she won't see them just yet. Since I have been behind this counter I have had my confidence in humanity pretty well shaken up; I have, indeed."

Another odd kink is the keeping secret of the number of the rooms where deaths have occurred. If the number once gets into the newspapers it is a source of constant annoyance for months, every patron of the hotel through the country having apparently made a mental note of that number for future reference. It is astonishing how long the things keeps up, and hotel-keepers invariably beg reporters in writing up deaths at their hostelries to omit the number of the room. Perhaps the most notable case of this species of superstition occurred at the Palmer, where the room in which Theresa Sturla killed Charles Stiles was virtually boycotted by travelers for a long time, and even yet a guest now and then asks not to be given that haunted chamber. Where it is located none but the older habitues around the hotel know, for the numbering has been changed in that hallway and the fatal number dropped.

The bell-boys could furnish a larger number of kinks about hotels, perhaps, than any other source. Taken from beginning to finish, they are a very smart lot—too smart the clerks sometimes think. A smart bell-boy is a sceptic. He has wonderful powers of vision, and can tell more of the guests and their doings than could a half-dozen shadow detectives. Of this power the bell-boy takes advantage to turn an honest penny, and the unfortunate wight who becomes his victim can but pay his price. His chance comes in where some guest oversteps the rules and regulations of the house and has private sociables in his room, and this will happen despite the most stringent management, the hotel-men say. Then it is that the bell-boy sees and must be "seen," to use a political term. Of course the offense would result in the sudden exit of both bell-boy and guest if it became known, but the bell-boy is quiet and so is the guest, and there the matter generally ends.

All in all, hotel management is beset with difficulties and does not lead to an abounding faith in human nature.

Short Men.

Senator Spooner of Wisconsin is only five feet three, but he thinks it lucky that he is no taller. Had he been he would not have made the efforts necessary to overcome the prejudices of the Wisconsin lumbermen against little fellows.

Coming Mayor Hewitt is barely five feet four. In an average company of men he is obliged constantly to look up while in conversation. A ten minutes' talk with him compels the brainiest men to look up to him. His force and power are all above his shoulders.

Sunset Cox will measure back to back just about even with Abe Hewitt. Yet in Congress he has so often proven a David to Republican Goliaths that no one ever thinks of him as a small man. Mr. Cox is able to make his presence felt without such adventitious aids as inch soles on his boots or a chair or desk for a platform.

Gov. David B. Hill's eyes are cast upward as he talks with most men, for he is short. But he is one of those who appear shortest when first seen, and seems to grow in size whenever one meets him. That is because he impresses men with a forceful manner, a clear intellect, and complete control.

The handsome and vivacious Theodore Roosevelt is short in stature, but he is well proportioned. In crowded assemblages he seeks a chair or bench to stand upon while speaking. In gatherings where such informalities would be undignified, Mr. Roosevelt speaks under some embarrassment, though he conceals it.

Dan Lamont carries an old head on young shoulders and short legs. President Cleveland could almost button him inside of one of the capacious executive overcoats after he had himself put the coat on.

Jay Gould is so short that youths' sizes in trousers fit him. Yet he looms like Samson before the Philistines among the business giants of the world.

Phil Sheridan is only five feet four, yet the people in the Shenandoah valley twenty odd years ago thought that mighty warrior was rushing down to overwhelm them.

Her Prayer Answered.

New York World: Mrs. Anna Eliza Young, an aged widow, once quite well to do, and residing all her life at Tuckahoe, Westchester county, was taken to the County Almshouse yesterday morning and died of fright and a broken heart in the carriage which landed her at the door. The old lady wept all the way to the almshouse, and prayed that death might overtake her before she became a pauper. When the carriage stopped at the door she looked out of the carriage window, gave a shriek, threw up her hands, and fell dead. Mrs. Young's husband was once a prosperous stonecutter, and they lived in comfort, but about twenty years ago he was drowned and since that time the widow has maintained herself on what remained of his property.

COUNTRY LIFE AND WORK.

CO-OPERATION.

"Help one another," the snowflakes said,
As they huddled down in their fleecy bed;
"One of us here would not be felt,
One of us here would quickly melt;
But I'll help you, and you help me,
And then what a big white drift we'll be."

"Help one another," the maple spray
Said to its fellow leaves one day;
"The sun would wither me here alone,
Long enough ere the day is gone;
But I'll help you, and you'll help me,
And what a splendid shade there'll be."

"Help one another," the dew drop cried,
Seeing another drop close to its side;
"The warm south breeze would dry me away
And I should be gone ere noon to-day;
But I'll help you, and you help me,
And we'll make a brook and run to the sea."

"Help one another," a grain of sand
Said to the other grain just at hand;
"The wind may carry me over the sea,
And then, O! what will become of me?
But come, my brother give me your hand.
We'll build a mountain and there we'll stand."

And so the snowflakes grew to drifts,
The grains of sand to mountains,
The leaves became a pleasant shade,
And dew-drops fed the fountains.

SANITARY VALUE OF HOUSE PLANTS.

In his book, "House Plants as Sanitary Agents," Dr. J. M. Anders opposes the old and well-established notion that growing plants in a sleeping-chamber or sick room are injurious to health. He contends that, far from being deleterious, they are of positive value as sanitary and curative agents, and recommends them as especially useful in certain diseases of the throat and lungs. This book will be read with especial interest by all lovers of "green things growing," and warmly welcomed by the people who like to have flowers and plants flourishing in every place where sun and air can be obtained. By the physician, the nurse, and the mother of children, the advice of Dr. Anders will be particularly valued, and it is not too much to hope that on account of this book many a sick-room window, instead of remaining a square of glaring light, will be transformed into a vision of freshness and beauty, charming tired eyes during the long hours of many weary days.

SHOES FOR WOMEN.

A few of the first-class retail shoe stores are selling a balmoral shoe for ladies' wear that is made precisely like a man's balmoral, except that it is higher cut. The heel, sole, vamp, quarter, stitching and fitting are identical with the same features in a fine shoe for gentlemen's wear. It looks sensible, will be very comfortable, and must be much more healthful for street wear.—Boot and Shoe Recorder.

NOT PNEUMONIA.

Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, has made a thorough investigation of the supposed pleuro-pneumonia in northern Indiana, and has, says the Indianapolis Journal, pronounced the disease not pneumonia at all. It is, he claims, the "husk" or "hoose," a parasitic bronchitis. The disease, he says, is not contagious, and there need be no further alarm among the stock men of the state over its spreading. The disease is caused by the irritation in the windpipe, bronchial tubes and lungs by a parasite named scientifically strongylus. The disease is very fatal to stock in many parts of the country, and especially in the East, where the affected cattle of this state came from. The worms generally attack calves under 1 year old, and especially such as are pastured in low-lying lands near a river, or land that has been subject to overflow. It is most prevalent in August and September. The disease is a difficult one to treat, and generally has to run its course.

HORSES THAT EAT TOO FAST.

If horses do not chew their food before swallowing it, it is seldom more than half digested. Among them there are many "perfect hogs"—voracious feeders, who swallow a mouthful simply to make room for another, without waiting to chew it or to moisten it with saliva, which is the real beginning of digestion. The writer once had a mare that was such a voracious eater, that she frequently nearly choked herself and finally in one of her half-choking paroxysms drew some oats or bran into her lungs, which produced inflammation and death. When dry feed—corn and oats ground together, bran, etc., is fed, horses having this tendency are obliged to eat slowly, for it is necessary for them to moisten the meal thoroughly before it is swallowed, and this involves chewing, so that they cannot eat faster than the flow of saliva moistens the food. With oats, or corn, unground, a very little moisture suffices, and the grain is swallowed whole, and is not digested at all. We should bear in mind that it is a provision of nature, or at least a fact of nature, that most seeds taken into the stomach of most of quadrupeds, unbroken, are not affected by the process of digestion, but are subsequently deposited upon the earth's prepared and accompanied by manure enough to give them a good start when they begin to grow. Another interesting fact is, that horses often prefer to eat hay with dry meal, rather than the meal alone, and will take both hay and meal in their mouths at the same time, when both lie separately before them. Why they do this, is not easy to state, but probably they find the process of mastication easier.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING IN DECEMBER.

Edina (Mo.) Democrat: strange as it may seem, a stroke of lightning last Monday killed two citizens of Knox County. A father and his three sons, bearing the name of McKinsey, were husking corn, when all were stricken down by a blinding flash of lightning. Two of the young men were killed, and the father and third son were badly stunned. A casualty of that kind in this latitude at this time of the year is of uncommon occurrence.

THE BEST THE WISEST.

In selecting a bull to place at the head of a herd it is often the case that a man will, for the sake of saving a small sum in the original investment, take an animal that is more or less defective and consider that he has saved some money by doing so. He does not stop to consider how a small sum added to the value of each calf sired during the time he uses a bull will amount a considerably larger outlay at the start. There are many sires that have, through the quality of their stock, increased the value of a herd enough to more than pay for themselves, even when the purchase price was one considered. This point should have special attention now, when, as now, prices of stock range lower than formerly.

HORSES CENSUS.

A German paper (Fuhrhalter) gives the following as census of horses used in cities of Europe and Great Britain: Berlin, 32,597; Hamburg, 7,600; Munich, 5,881; Dresden, 5,644; Breslau, 4,581; Konigsberg, 4,477; Hanover, 4,185; Frankfort-on-Main, 3,650; Stuttgart, 2,591; Leipsic, 2,481; Danzig, 2,385; Bremen, 2,199, and Cologne, 1,850. For London the number is stated at 200,000 horses, inclusive of 10,000 used in tramways and a like number in omnibuses. Paris has 61,247, including 12,000 omnibus horses; Vienna 14,377; Rome 11,733; Buda-Pesth, 11,011; Copenhagen, 6,302, and Stockholm, 3,509.

NEED WATER.

The American Cultivator says: "It is surprising to any one who has not noticed the fact before how much more water sows will drink that have to give milk to a lot of suckling pigs than is needed by others fattening on the same feed. There is sound philosophy underlying the prevalent practice of giving slops and other thin, watery or milky stuff to the sows with pig. They will make good use even of dish-water though this is apt to be salty and is necessarily plenty of pure water afterwards. The milk supply of breeding sows kept in pens during hot weather is very apt to be curtailed by lack of drink. Of course, plenty of good food is also necessary, or the sow will decline so much in flesh as to be permanently injured.

NOTHING LIKE OIL.

Oil says the American Agriculturist, is fatal to every insect which it touches, and sulphur is very offensive to them. A mixture of four ounces of lead and one of sulphur well rubbed together, and with the addition of one ounce of kerosene oil and one dram of creosote will be found an excellent remedy against all sorts of insect vermin, while the liberal use of kerosene oil on poultry roosts will free the fowls from their tormentors.

LEARNED, BUT NOT SENSE.

A doctor who doesn't believe in ordinary fats, says: "The fuel or fat, from which oleomargarine is made, cannot, under any circumstances, be a healthful or nourishing product, for its formation depends upon an abnormal or diseased condition of the animal. The process of fattening or developing the suet—necessitates an unbalanced relation between the assimilative and depurating organs consequently waste matter in the form of fat is retained." The doctor is clear off. Fat is [illegible] as much a normal product as lean meat, and necessary to the full development.

WATCH THE HEIFERS.

When breeding cows are taken up for the winter and kept in the stable or in a yard with stock they are more liable to meet with accidents that will cause them to abort than when they run on pasture, and hence the necessity of giving them special attention. Probably more loss is due to having a vicious cow or two in the herd than to any other cause. A cow that is continually watching her chance to hook her companions should never be allowed to remain where she can do harm, as she may cause losses that will exceed her own value. Such a cow should be sent to the butcher, unless regarded of special value as a breeder in itself, in which case she should be kept separate from the balance of the herd during the winter.

VIRTUE OF PUMPKIN PIES.

I don't know that one can find a pleasanter appetizer than coming into a warm kitchen on a biting day and encountering a deck-load of pumpkin pies coming out of the oven and taking flight into the pantry. Life comes to be a blank. One's faith in a divine Providence strengthens and grows tangible, and the world seems a good place to be in and stay in. While we are sure of such good pies in this world one hates to try another on uncertainties.—Elizabeth Cole in Good Housekeeping.

PHYSIOLOGICAL FACT.

To determine the proportion of pure blood in an animal, add together the pure blood contained in the sire and divide by two. For example, the produce of a three-quarter blood and a one-quarter blood will be a half-blood. So will the produce of a pure blood and common and the latter will, as a rule be superior to the first named.

SIGNS OF LUCK.

Dream of eggs, sign of money.

Dream of snake, sign of enemies.

If you sing before breakfast you'll cry before supper.

Dreaming of muddy or rushing water brings trouble.

Finding a horseshoe or a four-leaved clover brings good luck.

If you cut your nails or sneeze on Saturday you do it "for evil."

She who takes the last stitch at a quilting will be the first to marry.

If you cannot make up a handsome bed your husband will have a homely nose.

If you spill the salt some one will be "mad" with you, unless you put some of it in the fire.

Stub your right toe, you are going where you are wanted; your left, where you are not wanted.

If the first Sunday in the month is unpleasant there will be but one pleasant Sunday during the month.

If your right ear burns some one is praising you; if your left, your friends are taking you over the coals.

Returning to the house for a moment after having once started out will bring bad luck unless you sit down.

If the rooster crows on the fence the weather will be fair, if on the door step, he will bring company.

While at the washboard, if the suds splash and wet the clothes you are wearing you will have a drunken husband.

When in dropping a fork it sticks in the floor and stands upright, it will bring a gentleman visitor; if a knife, a lady.

If you drop your dishcloth you will have company, also if you sweep a black mark, or if two chairs stand accidentally back to back.

If a baby ever its face in the glass it will be death, in [illegible]; if its ear is cut he will be a thief, if its combing [illegible] will save his being a fool.

Break a mirror, sign of death. Death is also foretold by a dog howling under a window; hearing a mourning dove, or a dove hovering about, or dreaming of a white horse.

If you see the new moon through the glass you will have sorrow as long as it lasts. If you see it last in the [illegible] you'll have good luck; over the left shoulder bad luck, over the right good luck.

Initiating the Brethren.

At a recent party in an up-town residence the damsels insisted on being permitted to show their brethren something new. They took possession of the front parlor and closed the folding doors, leaving one of their number on guard. The gentlemen found one of their crowd—a beardless youth—had disappeared, and wondered what had become of him. They learned to their sorrow. The lodge being in readiness for the reception of candidates, one of the young men was escorted into the room. He found four blushing maidens standing in a row in the corner of the room with a tete in front of them. Upon this he was seated and blindfolded, and then told that one of the girls would kiss him. If he could guess her name he would be privileged to repeat the osculation. Of course, he made a miserable failure, but, instead of being allowed to retire, was compelled to occupy a seat on the opposite side of the room. Just imagine his feelings when the next victim was led in and he had been prepared for the sacrifice to see the missing beardless youth rise up ghostlike from behind the girls, imprint a good sound smack on the uplifted and expectant lips of the candidate, and then dodge back to his place of concealment. One after another of the young men were victimized. The fun of it was, though, to hear some of them demand more than one trial before the removal of the hoodwinks—one, a well-known physician, not being content with less than three kisses. He was enthusiastic over their sweetness, until the sweet was turned to gall, as he saw the boy salute his successor on the throne of mystery.

An Eloquent Lawyer.

Lawyers sometimes "throw themselves" in cases in which they have become thoroughly interested. Counselor Pratt, in summing up his point in the Dorr case before the General Term yesterday, said: "From the morn when the stars first sang together down to the night when Mayor Thacher repudiated the musical notes from Henry Horr's saloon, the love of music and the susceptibility to its power have ever been regarded as among the nobler qualities of the human soul, and the question is now presented for decision whether one of the most humanizing, elevating, and ennobling instrumentalities in the civilization, education, and refinement of the nineteenth century is to be prohibited as a source of evil by the Mayor of Albany."—Albany Journal.

How It Sounded.

A little boy of four summers was riding on the Providence railroad recently, and as usual he had been devouring with his eyes all that was going on. The newsboy interested him not a little. The boy cried as he passed, "Boston papers" in a manner which was rather decidedly uneven, and not a little indistinct even to the adults; but to the boy the words were a puzzle. Finally he turned to his mother, and with a most disgusted tone asked, "What's that boy saying 'Horse and 'taters' for?" —Boston Traveller.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Remedy for Rheumatism.—Celery root or celeriac is considered a remedy for rheumatism. Prepared in this manner it will be an acceptable dish, even should it fail as an antidote specific. Wash three roots of celeriac and boil for twenty minutes; when cool, peel and slice them; boil one pint of rich milk, and, when cool, pour it over a teaspoonful of melted butter and beat well, add salt and a soupcon of cayenne pepper; pour over the sliced celeriac and simmer for twenty minutes. Serve hot.

Ammonia for the Household.—It is hard to imagine a house running smoothly without household ammonia. It is very cheap, and for cleaning purposes is invaluable. A little of it softens the water and makes it easier to wash blankets; it takes out grease, removes stains from paint and carpets, cleans brushes, brightens jewelry and all metals. Always dilute it well in water. Aromatic ammonia is a most useful household remedy. Half a teaspoonful taken in half a tumbler of water is far better for faintness than alcoholic stimulants. In the temperance hospital in London it is used with the best results. It was used freely by Lieutenant Greely's Arctic party for keeping up circulation. It is a relief in nervousness, headaches and heart disturbances. I have seen it restore a person prostrated by the fumes of gas, and the recovery was without bad after effects. As in the case of all home dosing, aromatic ammonia should be used sparingly, and kept out of the baby's eyes.—The Examiner.

Drop Ginger Cookies.—One cup each of molasses and sour cream, one-half cup of sugar, one egg, one teaspoonful each of soda, ginger and cinnamon, and three heaping cups of flour. Drop in spoonfuls on a dripping pan. Bake quick.

Scalloped Codfish with Cheese.—Soak a pound of salted codfish six hours in tepid water; then boil it. When cold, pick it into flakes with a fork and season with pepper. Heat a cup of milk to a boil, stir into it a tablespoonful of hot butter stirred with two of flour; mix with the picked fish and pour into a bake dish. Strew grated cheese thickly on top and bake in a quick oven to a delicate brown. It is yet nicer if you add a raw egg to the mixture before cooking it.

A Seventeenth Century Dude.

Here is a picture of a Spanish masher of 200 years ago. His hair was parted in the middle and tied behind with a blue ribbon three inches wide and a yard long, which hung down his back. His corduroys were fastened above the knee with five or six buttons, and this was necessary to get them on, as they fitted so tightly. He wore a short waistcoat of white satin, a long frock-coat of black velvet with wide sleeves, slashed so as to exhibit the white silk waistcoat sleeves. His shirt was of black taffetas with colored cuffs or manchets. He wore his green cloth mantle in dandy fashion slung over his arm. He carried in his hand a long sword. An elegantly-shaped poniard was stuck behind in his belt. His gulille, or stiff-starched collar, forced him to hold his head so high that he could neither bend nor turn his head. His hat was of extraordinary size, with low crown surrounded with colored crepe. This crepe betokened the extreme height of fashion. His shoes were of the finest Cordovan leather, like glove-kid, and fitted as closely as if they were glued on. On entering a room he made an elaborate curtsey by crossing his legs, one over the other, and bowing slowly and deeply. Moreover, he was redolent with perfumes.

The Latest Fad in Osculation.

The little god of love will possibly laugh in his sleeve, if ever he wears one, to learn there is a new kiss. It is a ticklish subject to deal with, for everybody supposes he or she understands the art of this expression of affection, and will feel aggrieved to be told there's something new about so old a chestnut. Nevertheless, society has been stirred by the intelligence that it is now the proper caper to imprint a salute on the tip of the nose when friends desire to be particularly demonstrative. The courtly kiss upon the hand, the warmer osculation of the lips, have been thrown into social darkness by no less an arbiter than the Princess of Wales! It appears that this lovely specimen of royalty was observed kissing her sister-in-law, the Princess Waldemar, in this particular fashion, whether by accident or intention the observer fails to state, and immediately the idea caught on to the flattering crowd of courtiers. When two ladies meet or part now it won't be "My dear! (kiss on the right cheek) how glad I am to see you" (kiss for the left cheek)—but the gushing pair will just light on the tips of each other's noses, like two birds pecking at a lump of sugar. This fashionable kiss has its advantage, as will be seen at once. There can be no disturbance of "make up." No one understands that better than the lovely Princess. The French kiss on the forehead, emblematic of chastity and deep devotion, is routed—foot, horse, and dragoons—by this new kiss, which ought to be immensely popular, considering it is the latest London fad.—Boston Herald.

New Help in Surgery.

According to the statements made by Prof. Bonafoux, a powder composed of equal parts of colophony, carbon, and gum-arabic possesses a very great degree of hæmostatic power, and is capable, it is said, of so arresting the bleeding of large arteries as to prove decidedly serviceable in important surgical operations. The first experiments made by Prof. Bonafoux with this composition were on the brachial artery in man, and on the smaller vessels, on the carotid of the horse, and other vessels of the same animal all of these being attended with marked success. In the prevention of consecutive hemorrhage it also proves entirely satisfactory. The application can be lifted in the course of two or three days, when the vessels are found to be completely obliterated.

—J. N. Madvig, the great Danish philologist and statesman, whose death was recently announced, was born on the Island of Bernholm in 1804, and when 25 years old filled the chair of Latin at the University of Copenhagen. For more than thirty years he was one of the most influential politicians in Denmark.

Like Kriss Kringle.

"Why am I like Kriss Kringle, Kate?"
[illegible] Harry, chatting late in clover;
[illegible] we know so glad [illegible] when your visit's over."

"O, no! that isn't right, Miss Dean,"
Groaned Harry, at the clock a glancing;
"Kriss Kringle's presence, Kate, I mean
Must be—like mine—to you entrancing."

"Indeed! your presents! why," laughed she,
"I never knew you to make any."
"I mean my presence here," blushed he,
"Most that is—might give pleasures many."

"Perhaps, if you were like St. Nick,"
Smiled Kate, "Oh, tell me how," cried Harry,
"Well, then," she said, and made him sick,
"Come once a year, and never tarry."

IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

Mike Fireshine, an Iowa Veteran, who completed his application for a pension recently, composedly settled back in an easy chair when the writer visited him lately and interrupted his meditations with the abrupt question: "Didn't you have some thrilling experiences in your three years in the War?" He seemed not to have heard, his eyes were gazing out into the drizzling rain, but I could see the soul behind them was going far away—where?

"Why? Yes——" he suddenly ejaculated, as if called from a dream. "Thrilling experiences," he slowly [illegible]. "Well, if fifteen balls of various sizes in a fellow's body are an index of probabilities I should say I had. But not always those the most thrilling are the most interesting. It was thrilling to ride my horse across the wheat-field west of Round Top the third day at Gettysburg amid a storm of minie-balls that came thick as hail-drops five of which pierced my clothes. I had an experience, though, in the Shenandoah Valley in the latter part of November, 1864, that was rather of the dare-devil order, and as you fellows seem to be aching for a skirmish I will relate it." We were all attention, there being a number in the room and eagerly listened as he unfolded this story.

I enlisted in the Seventh Michigan Cavalry, Company H. There was a jolly lot of us then in that company. In 1864 we were ordered with our division, the First, under the command of Gen. Torbert, to the Shenandoah Valley to see it, under new leadership, we could not stay the devastating arm of Early and his cavalry. Our brigade was commanded by that dashing young General, Custer; a man of unquestioned bravery and steady loyalty. The whole command in the valley was under the direction of little Phil Sheridan. He took the initiative; no more maneuvering backward; no more retreats, but "Forward" was the order of the day. We were soon in active service and the battles of Opequon, Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek electrified the nation in quick succession and assured a loyal but disheartened people that the master was now at the front. Early was crushed; the valley cleared of a vigorous and watchful foe. A part of the command was at once sent to aid Grant in his work around Richmond. Our regiment was stationed on the Berryville pike, out toward the Opequon.

In my company were two comrades with whom I had messed and fought for many a day. One was Eli Hunt, the other Bill Kemp. Both were brave, but Bill was recklessly so. He had seen his aged father terribly mutilated by a savage sabre-cut in the hands of a Reb, and he had solemnly vowed that blood alone could atone for the paternal desecration. He never stopped to give quarter, and that he was naturally cruel or vindictive, but the scarred face of his father always seemed to intervene between the foe and all sentiments of mercy. This passion, if I may call it such, of Bill to get a shot at a Reb was the cause of our adventure. One bright morning in the latter part of November Bill, Hunt, and myself were standing near our camp talking with our Captain, when Hunt said: "Cap'n I'm durned tired eatin' nothing but hard tack and sowbelly; just give us fellows permission to go over to that white house on the hill yonder," pointing his long index finger to a [illegible] a mile to the north west, "and maybe we can forage around and treat our stomachs to a respectable supper."

"Well boys, if you can pass the pickets, you may go, but make your visit short," was the Captain's reply.

We were soon off and ready for any fate. It was but a short time 'ere we were making diligent search for evidences of modern civilization in and about the old mansion. Instinct led us to the hen-roost, but age and desolation had left nothing save a wooden nest egg—a Yankee device in a Southern hen-house! In the house we encountered a shaggy old specimen of prehistoric humanity, who informed us in a voice pitched so high I involuntarily stood on tiptoe to reach it that "you uns" had scoured the valley so thoroughly that "we uns" had only "hoecake" and r-e-v-e-n-g-e to live on. We laughed heartily at her apparent heat and left, Hunt telling her to stick to her revenge as a most invigorating condiment for the hoe-cake. We traveled about all day as a committee of investigation interviewing the farm-houses and looking sharply for hogs, chickens, turkeys, calves, or anything in fact that might break the monotony of camp fare. But our search was fruitless.

You can hardly imagine how completely the two armies, in their fighting backward and forward in the valley, had destroyed every vestige of vegetation and of cattle. Desolation was king. Sorrow was triumphant. Toward evening as we had headed in the direction of camp Kemp's keen eye espied a faint column of smoke slowly crawling out of the tops of the trees of a small woods about a mile to our right. "Hold up, boys," he said, "I'm going to see what that means. Maybe we can yet go into camp laden with spoil."

In a very short time he had made a reconnoitre and was back with us his frame fairly shaking with excitement. "Boys, we have now a chance for a good time. Down there in those woods are encamped a squad of Rebel cavalry eating supper as unconcernedly as though there was no one to molest or make them afraid."

"And who is there to disturb them, unless we go [illegible]" I asked.

"Who? Why, we three, of course," he instantly replied.

I took a good look at him to be sure I understood rightly, and asked: "You don't mean that we shall proclaim ourselves the three monumental fools of Custer's brigade, do you, by crawling up on a company of Confederate cavalry and firing at them?"

"No fool about it. Simply a loyal duty to rout the enemy and drive them out. What in thunder have we been fighting for if not to drive 'em out of the valley? And shall we now let a splendid opportunity pass to capture or destroy a portion of Fitzhugh Lee's division? Not while I can see dad's face, you may bet." The cold chills commenced to creep over me as I realized that he intended to assault that Rebel band and trust to luck to get out alive. I thought I was brave, at least moderately so, but this was an undertaking I had not contemplated. I thought I would quietly but firmly object to such foolhardiness, so I said: "Bill, you are insane. I enlisted to fight for my country; but hang me if I am a candidate for a fool's death in the vain endeavor to clean out the Southern Confederacy with six revolvers and animated idiots from Michigan."

"All right, then, fellows; I'll go alone. But have a shot at those Johnnies, I will, if I go the happy hunting grounds the next minute."

Hunt had said nothing but now he had started up, saying: "I don't just like the outlook; but if Bill is bent on shooting I reckon I'll take a hand, too. This is a game in which I am constitutionally opposed to seeing a lone hand played."

That settled my argument, either go or else think—well, even death isn't the worst that can befall a man. When Bill saw he had us both "booked" he was greatly elated, and then unfolded his plan of attack. The woods were not large, covering, probably, not over five acres, and were longer north and south than east and west. To the southwest about a mile was the Opequon River, while directly east nearly six miles was our camp. The country in that direction was undulating, with slight depressions or ravines that might have been the beds of spring creeks running parallel with the long way of the woods. Bill was to follow one of these ravines until he got south of the place where the Rebs were located some forty rods. I was to follow him, but take my position nearly east of the squad, while Hunt was to crawl up on the north side of them as near as he could without attracting their attention.

At the first shot from Bill we were all to commence firing and shouting orders, at the same time to move upon the enemy. We bid each other good-by and started out. Fortune favored us to start with, for by this time the sun had gone down and dusk was setting in.

I got to my position all right, but every crackling branch and every shadow startled me, while the thought of death or entertainment in some Southern prison pens would, in spite of me, intrude upon my thoughts. I crawled up within twenty rods of the Rebel camp on the very skirts of the woods, and could distinctly hear them laughing, and talking. My curiosity becoming aroused I rose up far enough to get a look at them, and counted thirty sitting and walking about the fire in tent upon watching, I forgot my companion, when suddenly one of the Rebs said, "What is that thing there?" and pointed directly at me. "Caught," was my instant thought, when I heard the report of a revolver to my left and saw the man who was pointing at me throw up his arms with an agonizing shriek and fall to the ground. Then the powerful voice of Bill, sounded through the woods: "Forward there to the right. Hurry up your company, Captain. Charge on the north!" At the same instant Hunt and I began firing and howling like wild men. The woods happened to be filled with underbrush, which was in part rotten and dry; this crackled as we trod upon it and added to the impression of numbers which our firing and yelling from different positions had aroused and without firing a round the Rebs broke for the west.

Bill [illegible]. They ran as though the Evil One were after them. We were around their fire. The dead man glared at us with glassy eyes and vindictively. No, not as though smiling. What could he have been thinking of? His face has been with me vividly through all the years since. But we had no time to spare. We knew the foe were no cowards, and when they found they were not pursued they would return. Their cavalry horses were picketed near by. "There's our prize, boys," shouted Bill. We tied them together by their halters, mounted one each, and started for our camp. None too soon, either, for just as we went down the slope into the first ravine a volley of bullets whistled over our heads. But we were safe; and we brought into camp that night thirty splendid horses, all caparisoned and ready for duty. Bill was the happiest man in the camp that night, and no doubt thought he had shown generalship sufficient to entitle him to three stars. He never got them, though. Republics are ungrateful.

To Much Courtesy.

A sharp plucky little terrier, belonging to a lady, one day found in his mistress's garden a monkey, owned by a traveling organ-grinder, who was playing outside the gates. The dog at once made a furious rush at the intruder. The monkey, dressed in a red jacket and hat, sat perfectly still, and waited quite calmly the onslaught of the enemy. This conduct rather puzzled the excited terrier, who stopped short a few feet from this queer visitor. The two animals then had a good long stare at each other, and, just when the dog was preparing to spring on the monkey, the latter quietly raised his hat, and saluted his enemy with a polite bow. This was too much for the amazed terrier. He instantly retreated into the house with his tail between his legs, nor could his mistress coax him outside again, until he was quite sure that the uncanny interloper had disappeared.

There is one recommendation for buckwheat griddle-cakes as an article of diet. They are always round if you want them.—Lowell Citizen.

FARM NOTES.

Every farmer must know what kind of swine breed well and are wanted in the markets. That is the kind which can be bred with profit.

The increased use of commercial fertilizers by the farmers all over the country would seem to prove the fact that the money laid out for them yearly is a good investment, yet we find now and then a farmer who says it does not pay to use them, but the number belonging to this class is growing less each year.

The crossing of breeds should be done carefully. Attempts have often been made to establish permanent flocks of sheep which possessed the qualities of both races, but without success. The results of those who have had experience in sheep-breeding by crossing any mutton breed on the Merino with but few exceptions have failed to relize their expectations, and have sacrificed their flocks or bred back to extirpate the foreign blood infused into their Merino flocks.

The following is said to be a good method for preparing fence posts, which can be made of any kind of timber. It is from the German Gazette of Forestry. It says:

The soaking of posts with blue vitriol is found to be the best test yet obtained. The mode of procedure is, indeed, very simple and easily executed. The posts must be new—that is, green; now dissolve, in a kerosene oil barrel, which is well adapted to this, four pounds of blue vitriol in 100 quarts of rain water; in this solution place the posts in as sunny and warm a place as possible. As early as the next day you will observe how the splint is turning green a sign that the vitriol has thoroughly impregnated the wood cells; in a few days the vitriol rises to the top of the posts, which thus becomes hardened against rot and weather. The posts should not be pointed before such soaking; a square end draws the fluid much better. This is a very simple, well-tried and proven remedy, which can safely be recommended to every farmer. Posts so saturated have stood fifteen years on the first point, whereas those not so prepared, but otherwise under like circumstances, lasted but four years.

LIVE STOCK IN EUROPE.

In figuring on the collective live stock of the several nations it is found that Russia has the largest number of animals of every class. Inclusive of Poland and Finland this Empire has no less than 25,000,000 head of cattle, 45,000,000 head of sheep, 10,000,000 swine, and 17,000,000 horses. Sheep have increased 5 per cent. and swine 4 per cent.

Next to Russia Germany has the greatest number of cattle, about 15,000,000 head, but Germany has barely 25,000,000 sheep, 7,000,000 swine and only 3,000,000 horses. Austria Hungary ranks third, with 12,000,000 horned cattle, 7,000,000 swine, and about 3,000,000 horses, but sixth on the list with regard to sheep, having only 20,000,000 head.

Austria stands next to France in cattle, having 11,000,000 head, but takes the fourth place in sheep and swine, having 24,000,000 of the first and 5,000,000 of the latter. Austria has 3,000,000 horses, and in this compares about with France and Servia combined.

Great Britain has but 9,000,000 cattle, but next to Russia is most populous in sheep, having 32,000,000 head. She stands fifth in the list of horses, having 2,500,000 head, and with 2,250,000 swine is sixth in the list. The census of live stock in Great Britain has been reduced during the last six years by over 500,000 cattle, 750,000 hogs, and 4,000,000 sheep.

Italy is not a live-stock country and the quality is low. The Kingdom has only 3,500,000 cattle, 1,000,000, horses, 9,000,000 sheep and 3,750,000 swine.

Holland, for the number of inhabitants, is rich in live stock, having 1,500,000 cattle, 1,000,000 sheep, 500,000 swine, and 300,000 horses. Holland has 40 per cent. of the area of the country in pasture.

To return to Scandinavia: Denmark has 347,500 horses, 1,470,000 head of cattle, 1,550,000 sheep, and 530,000 hogs; Norway, 1,000,000 head of cattle, 1,700,000 sheep, but only 1,[illegible] hogs; Sweden, 2,000,000 horned cattle, 1,500,000 sheep, 500,000 horses and 500,000 hogs.

Of countries outside of Europe the United States has 45,510,000 cattle, 48,322,000 sheep, 12,077,000 horses and 46,092,000 swine. The La Plata States of South America 19,500,000 head of cattle, 70,000,000 sheep, and 500,000 swine. To these must be added 30,000,000 cattle found on the pampas grass plains. The Australasian colonies have 8,500,000 head of cattle, 75,000,000 head of sheep and 800,000 head of cattle, 24,400 sheep, and 310 swine to each 1,000 of inhabitants.

An Old Virginia Tradition.

Once in the life of every man he hears the seven whistlers' call. They are strange birds on whom mortal eyes have never rested, the whistle of whose wings sometimes falls upon the startled ear. And there is always a portent of something momentous for good or evil, even though they may not "dree their weird" for weeks after the seven whistlers' "call." Like all portents, their coming is mostly in the gloaming. For then, after all, is the "witching hour." There is in the quiet of a secluded country side in the twilight hush which comes down from the mountain and the twilight shadows which fall from the heavens, a significance of another world and of the flimsy structure of the veil intervening, which is to be found at no other hour of the twenty-four.

It is then, by some lonely wood-pond, or in some valley circled by the woods, that this hush is broken by a faint, far-beat, distinct note in the air, not on earth or in the sky overhead, taken up and repeated six times, and ever growing clearer and more distinct, and finally pealing away with a rush of wings and a sound of passing like that which in all the Mediterranean isles, signaled the death of "the Great Pan" when Christ was born.

—Miss Bessie W. White, a graduate in pharmacy at the Michigan University, who was denied a certificate to practice by the Kentucky authorities because she was a woman, has been ordered a certificate by a judge of the Court of Appeals.

GRAND ARMY ITEMS.

LOGAN MOURNED.

Chicago, Jan. 9. Battery D presented an aspect of mourning last night, the occasion being the memorial services of the late John A. Logan under the auspices of the department of Illinois G. A. R. When the proceedings opened there were some three thousand people in the armory, including a number of ladies. On the platform were Col. Dan Munn, Gen. Green, Bishop Fallows, Gen Strong, Col J. Sexton, Judge Hawes, W. H. Keeler, E. A. Blodgett, E. A. Calkins Guy Gould, R. W. Smith, Gen. Chetlain, J. Curtiss, Gus Bend, Gen. Wallace, H. F. Thompson, A. F. Walcott, Maj. Fitch C. A. Dibble, Justice Lyon, and many others.

Eulogistic addresses were delivered by Ex-Governor John M. Hamilton, Col. Daniel Munn, Col R. S. Tuthill, Hon. W. E. Mason, Hon. E. A. Calkins and others.

Judge Kirk Hawes read the following resolutions, prefaced with a sketch of the general's life:

Resolved, that as a citizen-soldier Gen. John A. Logan stands first on the list of distinguished men who during the dark hours of the rebellion rendered valuable service to their country. The hero of two wars, he was, in the words of the great captain, "fitted to command an army." He was courageous and persistent, watchful and daring, and during the years that he devoted to his country on the field he displayed a talent and genius for military affairs never before exhibited by any man not especially educated or trained in the arts of war. While merciless to the foe he was magnanimous to the defeated, and as a soldier he will ever be held in grateful rembrace by his surviving comrades, while his brilliant achievements on so many hotly contested fields of battle will long be remembered by the grateful people of a country he so faithfully served. As a public man, his record is without blemish. In his political life he was without suspicion. The purity of his motives was never questioned. Resolute in his convictions and purposes, though tender in his personal feelings, he advocated each cause he espoused with all the energy with which he was capable, but took no mean or unfair advantage of his opponents. Rarely, if ever, has it been the good fortune of any state to be represented by a man possessing so many statesman like qualities as were combined in him. As a private citizen he was free from suspicion, even, of impurity and dishonor, finding his greatest happiness in the society of the noble woman who for so many years was his companion and strong helpmate, and to whom in this her hour of supreme affliction and sorrow we tender our heartfelt sympathy. Surrounded by children early taught to respect the laws of both God and man, with a heart full of true Christian charity, and a kind word for all. Gen. Logan, without ostentation or display, went in and out before his fellow-men, the true type of an honorable Christian gentleman. As a comrade and friend he was ever faithful, kind, and true. No unfortunate soldier, however humble his position, ever knocked at his gate without receiving a hearty welcome. His heart and his purse to the extent of his ability, were ever open to the appeal of a suffering comrade, without reference to his nationality, creed, or division of the army in which he served, and no man in congress or out of congress ever did more to advance the interests of the soldier and secure for him the recognition and justice to which he is fairly entitled than Senator Logan. In all the relations of life he was a man of generous impulses, noble aims, and lofty aspirations. He will ever be remembered with love and affection by all who wore the blue, and be ranked among the greatest men of this age by generations yet to come.

The following resolution was introduced in the House of Representatives, at Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 10, and met with unaminous approval:

WHEREAS, The Commander of the Universe having removed by death one of the Nation's noblest defenders, General and Senator John A. Logan; therefore be it.

Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of Nebraska, that in the death of General Logan the country loses an illustrious citizen of and soldier and a faithful public servant, a man of fine record and unswerving dignity and integrity. The greatest of the volunteer chiefs has passed away—the valiant friend of the soldier, the ever-ready defender of the widow and orphan.

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission to the Divine will, acknowledging the all wise supremacy of the call, recognizing the end to which all of us must come in the divine plan.

Resolved, That the respectful sympathy of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Nebraska be tendered to the mourning widow, with whom we greatly sympathize, and that an engrossed copy of these resolutions be forwarded to her.

SOUTHEASTERN MICHIGAN ASSOCIATION.

The executive of the Grand Army Association of Southeastern Michigan met in Adrian, Mich., on the 6th inst. The officers present were: President, Captain B. F. Graves, Adrian; Treasurer, Captain E. P. Allen, Ypsilanti; Secretary, Gus F. Smith, Jonesville; Assistant Secretary, Geo. D. Harding, Jonesville. The roll-call showed forty delegates present, representing thirty-six posts. The time for holding the annual encampment of 1887 was fixed for Tuesday, Aug. 23, to Friday, Aug. 26, inclusive. Three places made proposals to secure the encampment. Adrian offered $1,200 in money and the exclusive use of Lawrence Park free. Ann Arbor guaranteed $1,000 and the use of suitable grounds. Devil's Lake offered $500 in cash with grounds. The formal vote resulted: Adrain, 21; Ann Arbor, 14; Devil's Lake, 1. The five officers of the association were constituted a special committee to arrange for the encampments. A resolution recognizing the Woman's Relief Corps of Southern Michigan was spread upon the minutes. Adjourned.

—Paul Potter has retired from the editorship of Town Topics, New York, and has been succeeded by Mr. E. D. Mann.

Night.

Farewell, bright Day!
How softly falls the Night
As fades away
Thy beauty from our sight!
Sleep, folded flow'rs,
Rest for a little while,
Morn's radiant hours
Shall wake you with a smile.
Sad aspen-leaves
Sleep on Night's tranquil breast;
The low wind grieves
Your tremulous unrest.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, &c.

Earth's labors cease—
Her sorrows and her wrongs.
Such perfect peace
To thee, O Night, belongs,
That when we lie
Within thy sacred gloom,
Our spirits fly
Far from their living tomb,
And to the soul
Faint with vague fears of ill,
Thou, merciful,
Say'st ever, "Peace, be still!"

Piso's Cure for Consumption is the best Cough medicine. Price 25 cents.

The looming years
Whose loneliness we dread,
The ceaseless tears
For our beloved dead,
The sense of loss
That darkens all our days,
The bitter cross
We have not strength to raise—
From these, calm Night,
We ask of thee relief;
The Day's swift flight
Leaves us no time for grief.
Earth's labors cease,
Her sorrows stand apart;
Night, shed thy peace
On ev'ry troubled heart!

—In Philadelphia the Anglomania has developed to such proportions that a school has been started where young ladies can learn the English walk in less than a month.

The Youth's Companion wants to know "Why is Pond's Extract like Time," and truly answers, "Because it heals many a wound."

—There are said to be about 38,000,000 acres of government land in California still unoccupied, much of which, however, requires irrigation to be tillable.

—At Los Angeles, Cal., one week recently over $100,000 worth of oranges were sold to buyers from the east.

—The newest kind of a thief is one in Bellevue, O., who steals thermometers exclusively.

There are seven Swiss colonies in Kentucky, and all the people are doing well and living comfortably. A large number of Swiss are now on their way from Europe to found another colony near Lincoln.

Stop that Cough that tickling in the throat!
Stop that Consumptive Condition!
You can be cured! You can't afford to wait!
Dr. Kilmer's Cough Cure [CONSUMPTION OIL] will do it quickly and permanently.

—The most prominently picturesque old building in Albany, N. Y., is to succumb to the march of modern improvements. The Staats house, southeast corner of State and Pearl, with its date, "1667," is to give way to a fine banking house.

FITS.—All Fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

—An old citizen of Newburgh, N. Y. paid $3 for the privilege of driving the last spike in the street railroad. The spike had been driven once before, but when the ancient burger appeared upon the scene and made known his willingness to pay for the privilege of driving it again, the workmen gladly pulled it out and let him hammer away at it.

Mechanics, Laborers, Train Men, Farm hands should never be without Pond's Extract, Invaluable in cases of accidents, for cuts, burns, wounds, strains, broken limbs, etc. It is unsafe to use spurious imitations.

—In Oil City, Pa., the other day, a lad found a pocketbook containing $300, and on giving it to the owner received a reward of 5 cents.

A Chance for Health is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

—Between 6 A. M. Christmas day, and 6 A. M. Sunday, the police of New York city arrested four hundred drunks, and about three hundred during the previous twenty-four hours.

The Ladies' Friend. Pond's Extract. No household should be without it. Book of directions around each bottle. Sold only in Bottles with Buff wrappers.

—Morgan Dunn, a farmer in Washington county, Pennsylvania, has suddenly discovered that for a number of years he has been paying taxes to the wrong county. He always thought that he was living in Greene county until the other day, when surveyors proved to him that he was really living in Washington county.

The Brand on Cain was not more fearful than are the marks of skin diseases; and yet Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a certain cure for all of them. Blotches, pimples, eruptions, pustules, scaly incrustations, lumps, yellowed patches, salt-rheum, tetter, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, old sores, are by its use healed quickly and permanently.

—The great forest trees in Prospect park, Brooklyn, are rapidly being cut down by order of the park commissioners.

[illegible] World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

—A Canadian lady, who was undergoing examination for a teacher's certificate, was asked: "Who surrendered and to whom at the battle of Sedan?" She answered positively: "Gen. Washington to the duke of Wellington."

No Opium in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

—A flock of blackbirds said to have been three miles in length and nearly a hundred yards wide, lately passed over Edenton bay, North Carolina. They obscured the heavens like a dark cloud, and the noise of their flight was like the rush of a mighty wind.

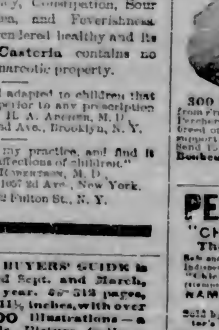
When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The mayor, city council, and leading citizens of Montgomery, Ala., are opposing the proposition of the colored people to hold a world's exposition in that town next year.

A QUESTION ABOUT
Brown's Iron Bitters
ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times, "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IRON. Physicians recognize Iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—all other iron medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, General Debility, Pain in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these ailments Iron is prescribed daily. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious. Physicians and Druggists recommend it. The Genuine has Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. TAKE NO OTHER.

ELY'S CREAM BALM. CATARRH
Cleanses the Head. Allays Inflammation. Heals the Sore. Restores the Senses of Taste, Smell, Hearing. A quick Relief & positive Cure.



HAY-FEVER
A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cts. by mail or at druggists. Send for circular. ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

Children Cry FOR PITCHER'S Castoria

Castoria promotes Digestion, and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, and Feverishness. Thus the child is rendered healthy and its sleep natural. Castoria contains no Morphine or other narcotic property.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 82 Portland Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I use Castoria in my practice, and find it specially adapted to affections of children." ALEX. ROBERTSON, M. D., 1057 2d Ave., New York.

THE CENTAUR CO., 182 Fulton St., N. Y.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year. 312 pages, 8½x11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢
The "Tansill Punch" 5c. cigars are booming. Never sold so many in so short a time. Will try and give you another order this month.
P. & A. [illegible], Elizabethtown, N. Y.
Your "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigar is a good seller. W. D. CRAIG, Druggist, Aledo, Ill.
Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

Free! Free! Free!
DR. J. P. BARNUM, the well-known Louisville druggist, will send free of charge on request for it, a circular containing a most valuable list of superior toilet articles and medicinal remedies of great value. Dr. Barnum is Professor of Chemistry in Louisville School of Pharmacy, and Chemist for L. and N. R. R. Co., and American Plate Glass Co. He makes a specialty of all kinds of chemical examinations, and refers to Courier-Journal Co., or any bank in Louisville. Address J. P. BARNUM & CO., Louisville, Ky.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success. Insane Persons Restored. Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. [illegible]

If you are bilious use Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," the original "Little Liver Pills." Of all druggists.

—Hurt Kern is the somewhat ominous name of a New York shoemaker.

DYSPEPSIA

Does not get well of itself; it requires careful, persistent attention and a remedy that will assist nature to throw off the causes and tone up the digestive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Mrs. Bosworth, of Amherst, N. H., after trying many "sure cures" without benefit, found that hit the nail on the head and restored her to health. Among the agonies experienced by the dyspeptic, are distress before or after eating, loss of appetite, irregularity of the bowels, wind or gas and pain in the stomach, heart-burn, sour stomach, &c., causing mental depression, nervous irritability and sleeplessness. If you are discouraged be of good cheer and try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured hundreds, it will cure you if you give it a fair chance.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Messrs. C. I. HOOD & Co.
Gentlemen—I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla for my wife, who has been troubled with indigestion and debility for several years, which had [illegible]. Before she had taken the first bottle her health commenced to improve. She is now taking the fourth bottle and her health has steadily and permanently improved, and I firmly believe Hood's Sarsaparilla is entitled to the credit. GEO. W. BOSWORTH, Amherst, N. H.

Prepared by C. I. HOOD & Co., Lowell, Mass. Price $1.00, six for $5.00. Sold by Druggists.

STANDARD MUSIC.

The "Standard" Series of Music Books named below, have been prepared under the supervision of an experienced professor of music, who has taken especial pains in the selection of the choicest gems from the best composers of both hemispheres. These books are printed on fine paper from new full sized music plates, published at the remarkably low price of 50 cents each, or prepaid for 65 cents each. $3 for the entire series.

STANDARD PIANO ALBUM.
220 pages, embracing selections from the piano-works of Moszkowski, Scharwenka, Liszt, Rubinstein, Wagner, Heller, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Weber, Spindler, Behr, Lange, Wilson, Baum, Richards, Sidney Smith, and other celebrated composers.

STANDARD DANCE ALBUM.
211 pages, embracing Dances and Marches, by Strauss, Zikoff, Lumbye, Von Suppe, Waldteufel, Lanner, Fahrbach, Gounod, Rodik Faust, Beethoven, Gobbaerts, Schumann, Coote, and other celebrated composers.

STANDARD GEMS.
220 pages, embracing 110 pages of Songs and Ballads with Piano accompaniment; the remainder consisting of Rondos, Variations, Transcriptions, and arrangements from the Operas.

STANDARD SONG ALBUM.
220 pages of Songs and Ballads, with Piano accompaniment, selected from the works of Gounod, Abt, Blumenthal, Ascher, Pinsuti, Claribel, Roeckel, Sullivan, Betton, Wrighton, Crouch, Thomas, Wellings, Reichardt, Kjerulf, and other celebrated composers.

STANDARD VOCAL ALBUM.
220 pages of Songs, Ballads, Duets, Trios, and selections from the Opera, by Glover, Molloy, Wallace, Dolores, Cowan, Lindsay, Balfe, Gabriel, Wakefield, Campana, Meyerbeer, Verdi, Mendelssohn, Donizetti, Bellini, Strauss, Flotow, Offenbach, and other celebrated composers.

LYON & HEALY,
67 AND 69 MONROE ST., CHICAGO.

DR. KILMER'S INDIAN COUGH CURE
CONSUMPTION OIL.
Every ingredient is from Vegetable products that grow in sight of every sufferer. IT has no Morphine, Opium or injurous Drugs.

Nose, Throat, Bronchial Tubes, Air-cells and Lung Tissues, causing Cough.
What Diseases Invade the Lungs?
Scrofula, Catarrh-poisons, Micro-organisms, Humors, and Blood Impurities.
What are the Primary Causes?
Colds, Chronic Cough, Bronchitis, Congestion, Inflammation, Catarrh or Hay-Fever, Asthma, Pneumonia, Malaria, Measles, Whooping Cough and Croup.
RELIEVES QUICKLY CURES PERMANENTLY
It will stop that Coughing, Tickling in Throat, Dry-hacking and Catarrh-dropping.
Is your Expectoration or Sputa Frothy, Blood-Stained, Catarrhal, Pus (Matter), Yellowish, Canker-like, Phlegm, Tubercular, Muco-purulent?
It prevents Decline, Night-Sweats, Hectic-Fever, and Death from Consumption.
25c, 50c, $1.00—6 bottles $5.00.
Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's Dispensary, Binghamton, N. Y. "Invalids' Guide to Health" (Sent Free). SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

OAKLAWN
The Great Nursery of
PERCHERON HORSES.
200 Imported Brood Mares
Of Choicest Families.
LARGE NUMBERS,
All Ages, both Sexes,
IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY
from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, Illustrations by Rosa Bonheur.
M. W. DUNHAM,
Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

PENNYROYAL PILLS
"CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH."
The Original and Only Genuine.
Safe and always Reliable. Beware of worthless Imitations. Indispensable to LADIES. Ask your Druggist for "Chichester's English" and take no other, or inclose 4c. (stamps) to us for particulars in letter by return mail. NAME PAPER. Chichester Chemical Co., 2818 Madison Square, Philada., Pa.
Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other.

RUPTURE
Relieved and cured by DR. J. A. SHERMAN'S method. Those who cannot avail themselves of personal attendance can have home treatment appliance and curative sent for $10 only. Send stamp for circular. 294 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

THE OLDEST MEDICINE IN THE WORLD is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's Celebrated EYE WATER.
This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century, and notwithstanding the many other preparations that have been introduced into the market, the sale of this article is constantly increasing. If the directions are followed, it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. JOHN L. THOMPSON SONS & CO. Sold by all druggists. Troy, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT
CURED AT HOME. NO PAIN. [illegible]
THE HUMANE REMEDY CO., LAFAYETTE, Ind.

TELEPHONES —FOR— PRIVATE LINES
Straight or Crooked. Call Bells. [illegible] Four Styles. 8 Patents. Prices Low. Send for Illustrated Circular. E. E. Harbert & Co., [illegible] La Salle St., Chicago.

M. N. P. Co. CHICAGO—No. 38

HOME STUDY. Secure a Business Education by mail. Bryant's Bus. College, Buffalo, N. Y.

$5 TO $8 A DAY. Samples worth $1.50 free. Lines not under the horse's feet. Write BREWSTER SAFETY REIN HOLDER CO., Holly, Mich.

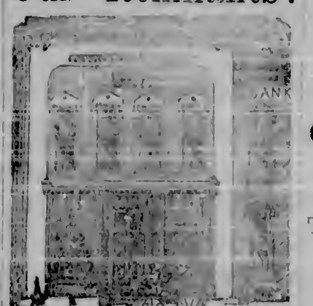
Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established 1869.
CHARLEVOIX, JAN 26, 1887.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.

ANNUAL HISTORY
Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned from the Files of the Sentinel.

[illegible]

Low Prices still Continue
AT
George W. Miller's.

A REMINDER FOR JANUARY
Our Remnants!



COME AND SEE THEM. YOU ARE SURE TO BUY.
Everything Down, Down! At
E. W. CRAINE & CO.

OUR GREAT 1-4 OFF SALE!
A BIG SUCCESS.
OUR STORE CROWDED WITH CUSTOMERS EVERY DAY.
THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY IN WHICH ANY MERCHANT CAN SUCCEED IN GETTING UP A GENUINE BIG RUSH AND THAT WAY IS TO GIVE CUSTOMERS REAL
BARGAINS,
and live straight up to your advertisements. This we have always fully carried out, and hence the great success of our 1-4 off Sale. When we say 1-4 off, it means 1-4 off. Buy what you please and we will sell it to you at the regular price and deduct 1-4 off the bottom of your bill. All our goods are marked in plain figures.
F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.
SPECIAL
Clearance Sale of
Dry Goods.
All Winter Goods at a Great Sacrifice to close.
We have too many BLANKETS, and FLANNELS, too much HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR, YARN, KNIT GOODS, etc, and must close them out.
GROCERIES & PROVISIONS!
Always a full stock and always at guaranteed Lowest Prices.
THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR SHIPPING WOOD, TIES, and POSTS.
J. L. HURD & CO.

CUT, SLASH, CRASH!!
BANG!
THE LARGEST STOCK OF CLOTHING!
EVER FOUND IN OUR STORE.
After taking invoice of our stock we find our tables overrun with Clothing.
To this end we have decided to give a Special Sale in this line for 30-Days Only-30
BARGAINS! As our price-list below shows, can be had in Gent's, Youths', and Children's Suitings.

A good Overcoat	worth $8	for $4.50
A fine "	" $10	" 7.00
" "	" $14	" $10
A Boys "	" $5	" $3
" "	" $8	" 5
A good Wool Suit	" $7	" 4
An All " "	" 10	" 7
A fine all wool Dress Suit,	" $18	" 14
A " " " " "	" $25	" 18
A Boy's Suit	" $5	" 3
A Childs "	" $3	" 1.50
A " "	" $5	" $4

Remember this benfit to purchasers is for 30 days only, and now if you are in need of Clothing, is the time to buy cheap.
Soliciting a share of your patronage, we are
RESPECTFULLY YOURS,
Rosenthal & Son
on the corner.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.
VOL. XVIII. NO.—40 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1887. WHOLE NO. 897

School Books!
SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!
---HEADQUARTERS---
For Everything needed in the School Room, at
HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.
You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.
Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.
New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.
We call especial attention to our complete stock of
BOOTS and SHOES.
TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.
ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.
A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.
BIG DRIVES IN
Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.
Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.
Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.
Resp'y Yours,
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.
Send it to your friends abroad.

A Choice Line of
FRESH GROCERIES,
OF EVERY VARIETY.
Including Confectionery, Fruits, Canned Goods, and Tobaccos and Cigars in stock
For your inspection in OPERA BLOCK by
R. J. COOPER.

"There is a tide in the affairs of Men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

If you are going to use any building Hardware, now is the time to buy it! Iron, Nails, and all kinds of Hardware are advancing. Be advised the present low prices cannot continue. Until after our annual invoice is taken, we offer great bargains in everything in our line. Buy NOW and save money! Heatng Stoves at remarkably low prices.
Yours Truly
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

Pine Lake Iron Co.
IRONTON, MICH.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
BRANCH STORE AT
HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, - Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1 50 | Six months - $ 75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—The communication from "Farmer" will appear next week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mudge are sojourning at Alba for a few weeks.

The little postal note is now payable at any postoffice which is a money order office.

—The Charlevoix toboggan slide is well patronized. A number of new toboggans have been received.

—It is expected that certainly 750 miles of railroad and possibly 1,000 will be built in Michigan this year.

—The tug Payne was bid in Friday by Capt. John Mason for Washburn & Ackert and A. E. Mason for $605.

—Jackson Ingalls and wife, pioneer residents of Charlevoix, were visiting among their many friends here last week.

—S. M. See has purchased the grocery stock of R. J. Cooper, in the Bartholomew block. It will be closed out and the room occupied as a furniture store by Mr. See.

—H. S. Harsha has sold in the past week, two of the celebrated Cottage Organs. They were artistic in design, beauty and finish. He is also agent for the Mason & Hamlin Organ.

—The steamers Fountain City and Idaho took part in an ice jam at Buffalo last week. After drawing blood on each other they together knocked a $100,000 bridge nearly off its pins.

—Business is lively at Smithson's lumber camp. Fifty men are still employed and the amount of ties, posts and logs already gotten out makes the eyes of the oldest inhabitant bulge.

—Elk Rapids' toboggan slide is mostly the work of nature, slightly improved by human skill, the slide proper being 150 feet in length, and the additional slide on the ice of Bass lake 800 feet, and the whole thing only cost $75.

—We understand that the negotiations which have been for some time pending between Mr. Hampton's friends and the present proprietors of the Democrat for the possession of that paper, have for the present fallen through.—Record.

—Hon. A. Buttars received a telegram from Port Austin Friday afternoon stating that his mother was dying. He left on the evening train but did not reach her bedside until a few hours after death. Mrs. Buttars was well known in Charlevoix where her fine Christian nature won her many friends.

—Down at Grand Haven where their harbors are inferior to that of the western Michigan terminus of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba railroad, the propellers Roanoke and Dean Richmond from Milwaukee, get ice bound every day or so. Come north, railroads, come north, for the best lake crossing!

—Col. O. T. Booth, the athletic woodsman, farmer, lumberman, bridge builder, and speculator, says he is 54 years old, and never slipped up and fell down, or was laid on his back in a wrestle. We would like to see him and ex-Sheriff Berdan, of Charlevoix come together in a catch as catch can bout best two in three.—Petoskey Record.

—What are called "geographical socials" are one of Coldwater's stupendous society wrinkles just now, in the interest of the heathen. They materialize and flow on thus: The gentlemen are given cards, on each of which is printed the name of some county in Michigan, while the ladies are each given a card with the name of a county seat printed thereon, all for a dime apiece. Then each gent hunts up the county seat of his county to take to refreshments. If you cannot tell the county seat belonging to your county you must pay 10 cents to the fund as a forfeit before you can obtain the desired information. This furnishes information but if it does not afford sufficient amusement for the evening geographical conundrums, charades, etc., can be introduced.

—The Detroit papers have already begun to talk "Marine." The Evening Journal says: As the marine season approaches again the expectations of vessel owners appear to expand, and the price of vessel property steadily goes up. Enthusiastic vessel owners are talking of fabulous gains next season. They are not going to make many carrying contracts yet. One owner stated that vessels would not accept $1.40 on ore from Escanaba, and ventured a prediction that the new Ashland and Marquette districts would be paying upward of $3 before next fall. The inter state commerce bill is now expected to become a law, and it is generally held that this alone will draw a large amount of trade from the railroads to the lakes. The dry docks and shipyards are full of work, and consequently those who desire to build new boats this season are unable to find a yard in which the work can be done.

—Mrs. Terlune of Harbor Springs is the guest of Mrs. H. Bedford.

—The ladies of the M. E. church give a 10 cent tea at the church tonight.

—Ice harvesting has commenced. Resort Warden Lawrence, has the resort ice houses filled.

—Craine & Co.'s ¼ off sale has proven so successful that it will be continued a few days.

—Mrs. H. S. Harsha, who has been in Ohio the past two months visiting with relatives, returned home Thursday.

—Bishop Gillespie has organized an Episcopal society at Petoskey, making the ninth church in that village.

—The tower of the Skilligalle lighthouse, being cracked and likely to fail, Congress has been petitioned to appropriate $8,000 for a new one.

—Mr. J. P. Woodbury, a well known Charlevoix resorter from Kalamazoo, sold Minnesota pine lands last week amounting to $105,000 cash.

—Stockman & Iddings have a complete assortment of hardware which is offered for sale at lower prices than ever. Notice their new advertisement.

—"Grant in the Wilderness," Wednesday evening, Feb. 9th, at Green's hall, by Mr. W. H. McCartney. The wounded soldier who saw the fight, will be sure to entertain you.

—Charlevoix is exhibiting more energy in railroad matters than Petoskey has ever thought of doing. Yet they call Charlevoix a "pokey old town." Inconsistency thy name is Petoskey!

—Regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, on Tuesday evening next, Feb. 8th. The attendance of every member is desired as it is expected that the third degree will be conferred.

—A recent decision of the supreme court says that no city or town has a right to license a man to sell any wares or merchandise in front of another man's lot. The street fronting his property or place of business is held to be one of the appurtenances thereto and for the especial use of the owner only, against the right of all others, excepting to travel.

—Burns & Scroggle's covered stage contained a jolly party of Charlevoix ladies en route for Petoskey, Saturday. The following answered to roll call: Mrs. Reed Furey, Mrs. A. Fox, Mrs. Ella Smith, Mrs. B. W. Miller, Mrs. H. Bedford, Mrs. F. A. Smith, Misses Bertie McLeod, Mary Scroggle, and Emma Todd. W. H. Downer was the only black sheep present.

—What is the matter with Mancelona? Since the conception of the railroad scheme which is now the topic of the hour, Mancelona has not lifted a finger to aid the enterprise—has sent no committee to confer with us, and has apparently been indifferent to the importance of the subject. It looks now as if she would be left out in the cold. If so, she has only herself to blame.

—Capt. Robertson writes the Grand Traverse Herald from Grand Haven to say that the statement that the steamer Cummings would run next season between East Jordan and Harbor Springs is premature. No definite arrangements have yet been made. A half or full interest in the boat is for sale. If she is not sold the Cummings will run on the bay, as before. Capt. Robertson expects to run the steam barge now building at Grand Haven for Gill & Son of Gill's Pier, Leelanaw county. The new barge will be 127 feet keel, 28 feet beam, depth of hold, 10 feet, boiler, 7½x14, engine, 22x26.

—About five years ago, Norman Pierce of Elk Rapids "turned up missing." It was thought he had committed suicide. He has just "turned up found." The Grand Rapids Eagle says: Dr. H. M. Pierce, formerly of this city, subsequently of Elk Rapids, where he established a chemical works, now of Nashville, Tenn., had a son Norman who very mysteriously disappeared shortly after the family moved from here. The family concluded, finally, that he was dead. Last Friday the doctor was greatly surprised as well as almost overjoyed by his son's walking into his office in Nashville, alive and well—so a letter to Hon. S. L. Fuller states. The young man has been at Heidelberg University, Germany, where he won honors.

—How many Mexican war veterans are there in Charlevoix county, who will be benefited by the new pension bill, granting $8 a month to all surviving officers and enlisted men, including marines, militia and volunteers of the military and naval services of the United States, who, being duly enlisted, actually served sixty days with the army or navy in Mexico, or on the coasts or frontier thereof, or en route thereto, in the war with that nation, or were actually engaged in a battle in said war, and were honorably discharged, and the surviving widows of such officers and enlisted men? provided, that such widows have not re-married; provided, that every such officer, enlisted man, or widow who is, or may become sixty-two years of age, or who is or may become subject to any disability or dependency equivalent to some cause prescribed or recognized by the pension laws of the United States as a sufficient reason for the allowance of a pension shall be entitled to the benefits of this act.

—The prohibition submission bill passed the senate last Thursday and the people will have a chance to vote as they have talked, at the coming spring election. In the house every straight republican voted for the bill, and every fusionist but ten against it. In the senate every fusionist voted against it and every republican but the two U. P. Senators, voted for it. Comment is unnecessary.

The first lecture of the home course, under the auspices of the Ladies' Society of the Baptist Church, will be given by Rev. W. H. McCartney, at Green's Hall, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 9. Subject, "Grant in the Wilderness." An intensely interesting and instructive lecture by a soldier who was in the battle. The dates for Prof. Enos, Dr. Carlstein, and Mr. Cruickshank, will be announced in another issue.

Last Monday night while the mercury was 30 below zero a fire broke out in Truscott's saloon on Mackinac Island, and was soon under great headway. From Truscott's the fire ran to the buildings in the block and in a few moments the Carson house, the Mackinac house, Dominick Murray's general store, Seigfreid Highstone's general store and William P. Preston's saloon and justice shop were one mass of flames. There was no insurance, and the loss is set at $60,000.

Railroad Meeting.

A meeting of the stockholders of the D. C. & E. R. R. was held at the Fountain City House Thursday evening for the purpose of meeting the committee from the Kalkaska Business Men's Association relative to crossing the G. R. & I. at that point instead of at Mancelona. Messrs. A. G. Drake and W. H. Pipp, who composed the committee, reported that the route by Kalkaska was much more feasible than that by Mancelona and stated that the people of Kalkaska were wide-awake in the matter and would gladly join hands with Charlevoix in the matter of expense. A resolution was adopted stating that other things being equal, Kalkaska should be included in the route.

The Railroad Situation.

Notwithstanding the fact that the East Jordan people have withdrawn from the enterprise, the work has suffered no check, but is progressing satisfactorily. Seven thousand dollars subscribed by East Jordan was taken from the list last week, but was promptly taken.

The cause of this defection is said to be the fact that David Ward has agreed to build a road from Mancelona to East Jordan, making the latter the terminus.

South Arm, however, which includes the largest manufacturing at the head of the Arm, remains loyal to the compact as also does S. G. Isaman, of East Jordan, an extensive owner of South Arm real estate.

This little incident has not even temporarily checked the progress of the enterprise. A meeting of stockholders was held Monday afternoon and the reports of the committees were encouraging.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Social on Wednesday evening (tonight) at the church. The ladies look for your presence. A feast of doughnuts and coffee will prepare you to appreciate the literary and musical features of the program and all will cost but a paltry dime.

Prayer meeting on Thursday evening, like the oasis in the desert, offers rest and refreshment to the traveller wearied by the toils of the week. Come and renew your strength.

We continue to hold the usual services on the Sabbath.

Elsewhere.

Preaching by Rev. J. T. Iddings next Sabbath at Ironton. Sermon will have reference to the young people of the town and vicinity. All are most cordially invited to attend.

Episcopal Church.

Divine services at the residence of W. P. Brown on Sunday p. m. Bible study, 1st St. John, III; Text, 8th verse: "He that sinneth is of the Devil." Subject, "The Devil and his work." All invited.

Congregational Church.

Thursday evening, "News from a wide field."

Sunday morning, "Is every man a sinner?" Evening, "My fellow."

Tuesday evening 7:30, address to young people, "The electric light."

Baptist Church.

Usual services Sunday.

Go to Craines store or to Mrs. Jefferies' bakery to secure your season tickets for the "Home Lecture Course." Four good lectures for fifty cents.

I. O. O. G. T.

At the meeting of the I. O. G. G. T. Saturday evening, the following officers were elected to be installed next Saturday evening: William Washburn, W. C. T.; Gladys Jefferies, W. V. T.; Nelson N. White, Sec'y; Lewis Campbell, Financial Sec'y; Hattie Atchinson, Treas.; Libbie Atchinson, Marshal; Alex Ross, Inside Guard; Geo. Olney, Outside Guard.

The next meeting will be held in the parlors of the Bridge St. House, at sharp 7 p. m.

An effort is being made at Cross Village to raise money enough by subscription with which to buy wild rice to sow on Weikamp Lake, which in a few years would be one of the best in Northern Michigan for duck hunting.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PAGELLE, Publishers.

SINCE October 30 to date Chicago packers have slaughtered 1,801,000 hogs, against 1,878,000 for the corresponding period a year ago.

THOMAS PRATT, one of the parties who robbed the bank at Kewanee, Ill., has been pardoned from Joliet prison by Governor Oglesby, after serving over four years.

THE English government has decided to purchase 40,000 additional horses and 500,000 Mannlicher repeating rifles, to be ready March 1.

THE compromise Cullom-Reagan interstate commerce bill has passed the United States Senate. The bill now goes to the house, where its passage is anticipated.

AN expedition under Prof. Charles A. Young is to be sent from Princeton college to Russia to observe the eclipse next August.

THE Minnesota & Northwestern road is enabled to lay six hundred feet of track per hour on its Chicago & Freeport line by the use of a novel apparatus.

GEORGE W. WEBER, the failed boot and shoe manufacturer of Chicago, made an assignment to Jacob F. Rehm, for $100,000, placing the liabilities at from $75,000 to $80,000.

PROMINENT citizens along the southern coast have issued a call for a convention at De Funiak Springs, Fla., on February 8, to counsel as to the best method of securing protection.

EFFORTS to secure raisin, orange, and wine shipments from California are now being made by the western freight agents of the Burlington & Denver and Rio Grande roads.

THE publishers of General Logan's book report that up to the date of his death they had paid him an average of $1,000 per month, and the sales have since increased to a marvelous degree.

AN extensive distillery at Terre Haute, Ind., with large quantities of highwines and whisky, was destroyed by fire recently. Loss about $40,000. One man perished in the flames.

THE court of inquiry requested by William V. Jacobs, colonel of the 1st cavalry of Chicago, finds him guilty of neglect and carelessness, and indebted to the regiment in the sum of $1,701.10.

The Eliot church at Trenton, Mass., valued at $70,000, was destroyed by flames originating from a dilapidated pipe. The congregation will at once commence a stone structure to cost $100,000.

Cholera is ravaging the towns of Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, hundreds of deaths occurring daily. Loaded vessels off Buenos Ayres are not allowed to communicate with the shore.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature of Texas requiring railroads to give thirty days' notice of the discharge of employes or reduction of their wages, and also requiring laborers to give a month's notice of a strike.

THE national banks of Chicago have petitioned congress to be placed on an equality with New York as a reserve center, when 25 per cent of their circulation and deposit liabilities must be kept in their vaults.

A MONUMENT to soldiers who fell in the war for the union is about to be placed in the public square at Burlington, Wis. The county appropriated $2,000, H. S. Magoon gave $1,000, and the people will contribute $3,000 more.

SAMUEL DYSART, the new president of the Illinois board of agriculture says that the board favors an appropriation of $25,000 toward the eradication of pleuro-pneumonia, and has appointed a committee to urge its passage by the legislature.

THERE is a house in Philadelphia that has been standing there for 259 years. It was built before Penn obtained his charter, and is one story high with an immense roof. The walls, made of stone, are two feet thick, and the oaken doors are large and heavy.

A NATURAL son of the late prince imperial of France and a schoolmistress in Australia is said to be at the chateau with the Marquis d'Oyley in Paris. The ex-Empress Eugenie has telegraphed to the duc de Mouchy to make an investigation of the story.

THE main points for the sale of 1,493 miles of track by the East Tennessee road to the Richmond & West Point company have been agreed upon. The parties controlling the former are to receive for their preferred stock $1,400,000 in cash and four thousand shares of Richmond stock.

THE receivers of the New Jersey Central road, after fully investigating the strike of employes of the coal shipping companies for 25 cent an hour, find that labor of the same grade on the railways brings but 12 cents, and that they cannot recommend that the coal companies yield.

THE Duchess of Galliera has recently been in Berlin as the guest of the crown princess. She is a middle-aged widow, and possessed of fabulous wealth, estimated at five hundred million lire. It is related of her that when some time ago her cashier decamped with more than a million lire she did not think it worth while even to prosecute him. One of her sons, the Marquis de Ferrari, is a professor in Paris.

SENATOR BAARD has addressed a communication to congress asking an additional appropriation of $6,000 to carry out the provisions of the resolutions of June 14, 1879, and Feb. 27, 1881, appropriating $30,000 for the erection of a memorial building on the site of the birthplace of George Washington, in Westmoreland county, Virginia, at the confluence of Bridge's creek and the Potomac river.

FIRED FIFTEEN SHOTS.

Three Men in San Antonio Do Battle, Two of Them Being Fatally Wounded.

French Preparations for War on Germany—Death of Mrs. Pinkerton—Nebraska's New Senator, Etc.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

A Lively Battle.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 22.—A shooting affair took place, yesterday afternoon, on the military plaza, between two brothers named Nicholson and Robert Wynne, resulting in the fatal wounding of W. O. Nicholson and Wynne. The Nicholsons and Wynne were formerly partners, owning a wood-yard, but the partnership had been dissolved. Wynne claimed he had been swindled. He called at the store of the Nicholson Brothers, and deliberately provoked a quarrel, with the above result. Fifteen shots were fired.

French Preparations of War.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Rumors of war are becoming more and more frequent. The North German Gazette, the National Gazette, and the Cologne Gazette, as well as the Times, Standard, and Daily News of London, all report that France is making elaborate preparations to dispatch to the German frontier strong reinforcements of arms.

Mrs. Allen Pinkerton.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Joan Carfrae Pinkerton, the widow of Allan Pinkerton, died early this morning after an illness of four weeks at her residence, No. 234 Ashland avenue. Mrs. Pinkerton was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, sixty-five years ago, and when she was 20 years old and singing in the choir of the Unitarian church of Glasgow, Scotland, she met Allan Pinkerton. They were married in 1842 and immediately set sail for America. The ship on which they embarked was wrecked on Sable isle, off the coast of Nova Scotia, and although the lives of the young couple were saved they lost all of their personal effects, and had but little money. They managed to reach Chicago, however, and here started out with no capital but strong hearts and willing hands.

In 1850 Allan Pinkerton discovered his true vocation and established the Pinkerton National Detective agency, and as it flourished the lives of both he and his wife were made easy. Since then Mrs. Pinkerton has lived continuously in Chicago, presiding with matronly grace over a happy household, until 1884, when her husband was taken away from her.

Mrs. Pinkerton was the mother of ten children, three of whom survive. Of these William, the eldest, and Robert, are now carrying on the business established by their father, while the daughter is happily married to William J. Chalmers, a manufacturer of Chicago. The time of the funeral is not as yet determined.

Paddock is Their Choice.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 22. The senatorial contest was brought to a happy conclusion yesterday by the election of ex-Senator Paddock. The ballot in joint convention resulted: A. S. Paddock, 91; Congressman McShane, (Democrat) 32; Van Wyck, 4.

Two Ineffective Votes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 22.—The two ballots for United States Senator yesterday did not elect, the vote being as heretofore: Turple 75, Harrison 71, and Allen 4. There was perfect silence during the call of the roll to ascertain if all were present, the rumor that there would be absentees having been generally circulated during the morning. The call of the roll on the two ballots was not marked by any demonstration except when Robinson voted for Allen.

Four Persons Torn to Pieces.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 21.—At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the boiler in a saw-mill owned by Jackson Norris, located in Daviess county, three miles from Washington, exploded with terrible effect.

Norris and his two grown sons, Frank and John, and William McAfee were killed outright, their bodies being terribly mangled.

The mill and machinery were totally wrecked. Portions of the boiler were carried four hundred feet from the scene of the catastrophe.

Norris was aged 55 years. He leaves a wife and two children. McAfee was single, as were both sons of Norris. The boiler had been in use a long time, and it was the intention to replace it with a new one in a few days.

A Mother's Fiendish Crime.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 21.—Great excitement prevails here over the horrible murder and suicide committed by Mrs. Antoinette Cabalek, living on Independence St., near the city limits. The husband, James Cabalek, a well-to-do carpenter, and his oldest son left for work, leaving the wife and mother in a bad humor over something which occurred at breakfast. Soon after they left she sent Henry, her 15-year-old son, to a grocery near by, and still another son to a milk depot. When they returned they could not get into the house. Going into the back yard, they saw James, 13 years old, in a closet, bleeding from sixteen wounds in his left side. They hastened away and called their older brother, who had gone off with the father, and, returning, the three boys forced an entrance to the house. They discovered Tony, an 8-year-old girl, bleeding from a dozen cuts in her left side. On the floor near by were Mamie, 5 years old; Antoinette, 8 years old, and Willie, three months old, all dead from dreadful stabs near the heart. A bloody pair of shears told the story. A hunt was made for the mother. She was found in the cellar, hanging from a rafter, dead. She had killed her three children, mortally injured two others, and had then suicided. The two children who were still alive were removed to a neighbor's house, but they will die. No cause for the terrible deed is given. The husband does not think that his wife was insane.

Tried Whittrock's Game.

MARSHALL, Mo., Jan. 20. A bold attempt at train-robbery of the St. Louis train on the Chicago and Alton railway took place last night about 8 o'clock, three miles east of Independence, Mo. The train was brought to a standstill by the violent pulling of the bell cord. Brakeman Painter and conductor Tremblett rushed through to the forward part of the train to ascertain the cause of stopping, when they were fired upon by a man standing on the front platform of the smoking-car and ordered back into the car. They barely escaped injury by dodging back into the car. The engineer was also fired upon, but not injured. Four or five shots were fired by the man. The would-be robber and murderer jumped from the car and escaped in the darkness. After a few minutes' delay the train started on its way.

Three Persons Cremated.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. Jan. 21.—The New Westminster hotel burned yesterday morning, catching fire in an unknown place. It was so quietly consumed that three guests were burned to death. One is believed to be Campbell. The register and all valuables, including the baggage of guests, were burned. The other guests escaped in their night clothes.

Balloting to No Purpose.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 20.—The Legislature took but one ballot to-day for United States senator, and that resulted as follows: Turple 75; Harrison 71; Allen 4. Allen is a druggist of Terre Haute, a Greenback man, a native of Holland, and a pleasant agreeable gentleman. He was the editor of a Greenback paper here for a time, but that he is in any sense a workingman, except in theory, has never been discovered. There are plenty of rumors as to the probable change of candidates by both parties. There is still talk of Judge Niblack being substituted for Turple, and the names of both Porter and Gresham are talked of slightly as Republican candidates, but none of these are received with any favor.

The Deadly Fly Wheel.

CHICAGO, Jan., 21.—The governor-belt of the heavy blast furnace engine in the rolling mills at South Chicago slipped from the fly-wheel and the engine "ran away." Before it could be stopped the ponderous fly-wheel, weighing fifty tons, burst, flying in all directions. Charles Weinfogel, the engineer, was almost instantly killed, and half a dozen other workmen were badly though not fatally hurt.

At the convention of live-stock commission men, yesterday, a National Association was formed, and Congress, by resolution, was asked to pass the Miller bill.

Hunting for Wolves.

TUSCOLA, Ill., Jan. 20. Yesterday occurred the much-talked of wolf hunt in Sargent Township, Douglas county, about fifteen miles southeast of this city. The area surrounding comprises the whole of Sargent township, and bright and early this morning sportsmen from every quarter gathered at the lines designated for the start, and a huge circle was formed, so strong that it seemed impossible for the beasts to penetrate it, but nevertheless many of them succeeded in doing so. The first wolf started was by the Oakland party, and after an exciting chase it was shot by Capt. Frank Pearce as it was attempting to break through the lines, and its capture seemed to animate the hunters to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

A Great Robbery.

BOSTON, Mass., JAN. 20.—The safe of the Belmont Savings Bank, in the town hall at Belmont, Mass., was blown open late on Tuesday night, and securities representing a large sum of money were stolen. Of these about $1,500,000 worth are negotiable, while the others are not. A number of unnegotiable notes were also taken and a small sum in cash. The job was done by professional cracksmen, who left no clew.

Trampled to Death.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—While about five hundred persons, mostly Jews, were witnessing a performance last night of the Hebrew Dramatic club at Spitalfields some one in the gallery, doubtless for a joke, shouted "Fire." The gas was immediately turned off at the meter and a terrible panic ensued. The people rushed in a solid mass for the doors and numbers were trodden under foot. When the panic had subsided it was found that twelve women and five youths had been trampled to death and many others injured.

McGlynn is Removed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Herald announces that Dr. McGlynn has not only been suspended from exercising his priestly functions but has by special order from Rome been "unfrocked" and deprived of all priestly office. It is this fact which caused the appearance Saturday of Father Donnelly in St. Stephen's as pastor. Dr. McGlynn has tried to keep the fact of his expulsion from the priesthood from the ears of his flock, but the news could not be suppressed.

Attacked by Albanians.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 20.—Three thousand Albanians attacked the military depot near Mitrovitza. The minister of war has ordered troops from Salonica Monaster to the scene of the trouble.

An Inhuman Pair.

PEKIN, Ill., Jan. 20.—Gottlieb Sanstl, of Tremont, came to Pekin and placed himself in the keeping of the Sheriff of the county in order to save himself from the wrath of the enraged people of Tremont. Sanstl and his wife are accused of treating their 10-year-old boy in a most heartless and cruel manner, such as burning him upon the stove, tying him to the floor and leaving him in that position till his feet were frozen, and at times whipping him nearly to death for some trifling offense. A complaint was made against the father, and he was taken to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The mother is said to be even more cruel in her treatment of the boy than is the father. The lad is now being cared for by friends, and it is thought will recover from the effects of his late ill-treatment, though the attending physician thinks the chances are against him.

The Sheriff Vetoes It.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—The license for the marriage of August Spies to Miss Nina Van Zandt was issued by the county clerk yesterday. The bride-elect called for the document herself, which was granted without hesitation. The license reads as follows:

"State of Illinois, Cook county—ss. No. 110,822. Miss Nina Stuart Clarke Van Zandt, of Chicago, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois, being duly sworn, deposes and says that she is of the age of 20 years, and that Mr. August Vincent Theodore Spies, of Chicago, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois, is of the age of 31 years and that said above-named persons are single and unmarried and may lawfully contract and be joined in marriage.

"(Signed)

NINA STUART CLARKE VAN ZANDT.

"Sworn to and subscribed before me this 18th day of January, 1887.

"HENRY WULFF,

"Clerk of the County Court.

"By M. Salomonsen, deputy."

The ceremony was to have come off on Thursday of this week, but Sheriff Matson positively refuses to let the wedding take place. "It is a silly infatuation," he said, "of a self-willed and romantic young woman, who can not possibly comprehend the position in which she seems anxious to place herself. I am surprised that her parents have ever permitted the girl to visit the jail, and much more that they would consent to let her wed in prison a man who is sentenced to be hanged. But since they will not attempt to save their own child from never-ending shame and disgrace I shall see that she is at least given a chance to look before she leaps. Spies occupies a cell in murderers' row. He has been tried and convicted of murder, and is now under sentence of death. If he should marry now, and the sentence of the court be carried out, his wife would forever share his disgrace, and she would be a wife in name only. Consequently, the marriage would not benefit him, while it would ruin her. On the other hand, if the Supreme Court should grant a new trial, and Spies should be given his liberty, the wedding might very properly take place. There is no possible excuse for it now. If their love for each other is mutual and prompted by pure and unselfish motives it is but fair to presume that it will last until the case of the Anarchists is finally disposed of.

Locked in by a Sea of Ice.

CORNWALL, ONT., Jan. 18.—The Stormont cotton mills, which are situated between the canal and the river, were completely surrounded by water, the boiler being submerged, and an immense amount of machinery and stock also being under water. The rising waters did not reach the Canada cotton mills, the woolen mills, Muck's flour mill, and other factories at the extreme east end of the city until the hands had all got to work. The flood burst in the doors, and those employed in the lower stories had to flee for their lives. In the Canada cotton mills two men were supposed to have been caught by the water in the machinery-room, Curtis De Ruchie and Frank Bergeron. They went back to look after their tools, and De Ruchie got out, after great exertions, but Bergeron has not been seen since, and it is feared he has been drowned.

All the mills were submerged to a depth of fully fifteen feet. The magnificent weaving room of the Canada cotton mill, the largest on the continent, was at least a foot deep with water. The quantity of stock in process of manufacture was very large and the loss is tremendous, not to speak of the machinery, much of which is wrecked. It is too soon to estimate the damage, but it will run up high in the thousands. In the rear of the town there was also a flood, the water backing up Fly Creek and inundating the surrounding land for hundreds of yards in either direction.

A Desperado Caught.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 18.—One of the most noted desperadoes in middle Tennessee, Luke Anderson, was captured yesterday at Anderson Station after a very bloody struggle. He has killed four men in the last ten years, and was wanted on four charges of arson. He was traced to an isolated house in the mountains last night by a posse and the building surrounded. Anderson had with him twelve of his confederates, and they all showed fight. In the melee that ensued, a man named Johnson was shot, and fully twenty-five shots were fired, slightly wounding several. Anderson finally was overpowered and was taken to Winchester, where he now lies in jail.

The Indiana Muddle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 20.—The members of the legislature in view of the restraining order against Lieutenant-Governor Robertson, agreed that Senator Smith should preside over the joint convention yesterday. The first ballot for senator was 75 for Judge Turple and 71 for Benjamin Harrison.

—Isabella Begg, a niece of Robert Burns, died in London recently.

THE MARKETS.

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice to Prime..	4.60	@	5.10
Good Shipping...	4.15		4.75
Common.....	3.60		4.30
HOGS—Shipping Grades...	4.00		4.75
FLOUR—Extra Spring......	4.25		4.60
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring......	78		80
CORN—No. 2..............	35¾		35⅞
OATS—No. 2..............	26¼		27⅜
BUTTER—Choice Creamery.	27½		30½
Fine Dairy.......	22		24
CHEESE—Full Cream Ched'r.	13		13½
Full Cream, new...	12½		12½
EGGS—Fresh...............	20		24
POTATOES—New, per bu....	48		60
PORK—mess..............	12.37		12.45

NEW YORK.

BEEVES....................	$4.20	@	5.45
HOGS......................	5.00	@	5.30
WHEAT—No. 1. White.......			1.00½
No. 2 Red.........	93	@	94
CORN—No. 2..............	47	@	47½
OATS—White..............	38½		39
PORK—New mess...........	12.00		12.50

ST. LOUIS

WHEAT—No. 2 Red.........	82½	@	83
CORN—mixed...............	34½		35¼
OATS—mixed...............	28½		28⅝
PORK—New mess...........	12.37½		13.50

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red.........	84½	@	84½
CORN—No. 2..............			37½
OATS—No. 2..............	30½		31
PORK—mess................			12.50
HOGS.....................	3.75		4.55

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of congress for the week ending January 20:

SENATE.

Mr. Mitchell, of Pennsylvania, reported back favorably the house bill for the relief of dependent parents and honorably discharged soldiers and sailors now disabled and dependent on their labor for support. He gave notice that he would ask the senate to take up and consider it.

The bill appropriating $300,000 to expedite the completion of the Charleston jetties (the appropriation to be available immediately) was passed. Mr. Edmunds presented the report from the committee on foreign relations on the subject of the fisheries. Ordered printed.

A message was presented from the President vetoing a bill granting a pension to William Dickens. The ground of the veto is that a pension had been already, in December, 1886, given to the beneficiary through the pension office. Mr. Conger reported back without amendment, the house bill to amend section 5 of the act of June 10, 1880, in transportation of dutiable goods, and asked for its immediate consideration. Mr. Cockrell presented a petition numerously signed by merchants and manufacturers of St. Louis for a repeal of the internal revenue laws. Mr. Hoar called up the conference report on the electoral count bill, which was agreed to.

The presiding officer presented a communication from the President, with a letter from Sam C. Reed, offering to the nation the sword of his father, Captain Reed, who commanded the privateer General Armstrong at the battle of Fayal. The President suggests that action be taken for the acceptance of the gift. Ordered printed and laid on the table.

Mr. Spooner was appointed on the Committee of privileges and Elections, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of General Logan.

HOUSE.

The house resumed the consideration of the joint resolution for the investigation of the accounts of the Pacific railroads. After a short but spirited debate, in which Mr. Hayden, of Mass., declared that this investigation resolution had been originated for stock jobbing purposes and to defeat the funding bill, the joint resolution was passed without division.

The bills granting pensions to Mrs. Logan and Mrs. Blair, widow of Gen. Frank Blair, were defeated in the house committee on invalid pensions. There were two absentees — Messrs. Fideock and Ellsberry—when the committee met. The members were arrayed on party lines—seven democrats voting against and five republicans in favor of the bills.

On motion of Mr. Clardy, of Missouri, a bill was passed authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Mississippi river at St. Louis. Mr. Frye, from the committee on foreign relations, reported an amendment to be offered to one of the appropriation bills appropriating $50,000 to take part in the international exposition in south Australia June 30, 1887.

Mr. Outhwaite (O.) reported back the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Resolved, That the secretary of the treasury be, and is hereby, requested to inform the house of representatives as soon as practicable the sums of money which were owing to the United States on the 1st day of January, 1887, from the Pacific railroads which have received aid from the government in bonds, giving the sums which are due, principal and interest, under existing law, severally and collectively, from said companies, and what will be the result to the treasury and effect upon these debts if the house bill 8318 should become a law and its provisions be complied with."

The following committee reports were submitted and referred: The senate bill for the admission of the state of Washington; for the suppression of the opium traffic; for the completion of the monument to Mary, the mother of Washington, at Fredericksburg; authorizing the commissioner of agriculture to make a special distribution of seed in the drought-stricken sections of Texas.

Mr. Martin (Ala.) called up Senate bill amending the law relating to patents trade marks, and copyrights. The bill, which was passed, provides that hereafter during the term of letters patent, for a design, it shall be unlawful for any person other than the owner of letters patent, without license of owner, to apply the design secured by such letters patent or any imitation thereof to any article of manufacture for the purpose of sale, or to sell or expose for sale any article of manufacture to which such design or imitation shall, without the license of the owner, have been applied, knowing that the same has been so applied.

The vote upon the adoption of the conference report on the Inter-State Commerce bill resulted yeas 219, nays 41. Those voting in the negative were Allen of Massachusetts, Anderson of Ohio, Bliss, Boutelle, Boyle, Bragg, Brumm, Campbell of Ohio, Caswell, Dibble, Ely, Evans, Felton, Findlay, Frederick, Gay, Gilfillan, Grosvenor, Hayden, Hill, Johnson (of New York), Kelly, Ketcham, Libby, Long, Markham, Martin, McKenna, Miller, Morrow, Oates, O'Neil (of Pennsylvania), O'Neil (of Missouri), Ranney, Reed (of Maine), Rice, Seymour, Wadsworth, Wait, Weaver (of Iowa), and White (of Pennsylvania). The bill after being enrolled and signed by the presiding officers of the two houses, will be sent to the President for his acception.

Mr. Belmont, of New York, offered the following resolution, which was referred to the committee on foreign affairs:

Resolved, That the President be requested to transmit to the house copies of such correspondence up to the present day between this government and the British government as he may decide can now properly be made public, in regard to the deprivation inflicted in certain ports on American fishing vessels having the right to touch and trade, of the liberty heretofore enjoyed by such vessels to enter Canadian ports open to foreign vessels, and buy and sell and to transmit merchandise therein, and which is permitted in such ports to American trading vessels, and to vessels of all other nationalities.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 2, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

The bill to pension Mrs. Logan has been practically defeated in the House.

The other night the pews in Beecher's church in Brooklyn were rented. The aggregate sales amounted to $27,861. In 1875 the proceeds were $63,997, and there has been a steady decline since. During the two years succeeding the Beecher trials the sales amounted upward. In 1877 they fell off $15,000. Beecher, however, has held the fort with surprising success.

Of the men nominated for the Presidency of the United States all are dead except Fremont, Hayes, Blaine and Cleveland. Fremont was the first nominee of the Republicans, and bids fair to survive even Blaine and Cleveland. What a long death roll of illustrious names spans the chasm between Fremont's candidacy and to-day, and what remarkable events are inscribed upon the record. The world of to-day advances farther in one man's lifetime, than it did in hundreds of years long ages ago.

Talking of 'long and short hauls,' how is this for an illustration? Here in this western country a person living three miles from a flouring mill pays fifty cents to have a barrel of flour delivered from the mill. A London, England, baker can order flour from the same mill and have it delivered for sixty cents a barrel. The former is for a single barrel, by horse express of course, while the latter is by rail and ocean ship, including cartage at both ends of the shipment. But no Inter-State Commerce law can remedy a difference of that sort. It is reported that sometimes a cent a bushel is paid for the privilege of carrying grain from the United States to Liverpool, something being needed for ballast.

One would think that Governor Alger's magnificent kindness to the 500 newsboys of Detroit in giving each of them a warm suit of clothes for a Christmas present would satisfy his charity for several months at least, but he has broken out again. The cold snap two weeks ago set him thinking of the destitute people in the city of Detroit, and with the aid of the associated charities, and poor commissioners, and private persons he found 500 families, mostly widows with children, or old people unable to work, or cases where the sickness of the father and husband had reduced them to want, and to each he sent a barrel of flour and either a ton of coal or a cord of wood. His bills for flour and fuel will foot up over $5,000.00.

The Cincinnati Price Current gives an exhaustive table showing the amount of wheat in the country Jan. 1, 1887, as compared with Jan. 1, 1886. In conclusion it says: "This exhibit implies that the available supply of wheat in the country Jan. 1 was approximately 11,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. The visible supply was 4,500,000 bushels greater than a year ago, which implies that the visible supply was 15,500,000 bushels smaller than a year ago. The domestic requirements for consumption for six months to July 1 next will be approximately 143,000,000 bushels which will leave 73,000,000 bushels available for export, by reducing reserves to minimum point, or 30,000,000 bushels lower than on July 1 last, which would compare with the low point in 1882."

At the recent meeting of the Wool Growers' Association of Ohio it was shown that the number of sheep in that state had decreased 850,000 head and the production of wool 4,000,000 pounds since the reduction of the wool tariff in 1883. For the whole country the decrease of sheep is estimated at 5,000,000 head. The manifest policy of the present Administration as disclosed by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury, is to remove the tariff on raw wool, which must inevitably have the effect to still further depress if not crush out the wool raising industry in this country. And it would be done but for the fact that there are a few Democratic protection advocates in the House, and a small Republican majority in the Senate. Their theory and their plea is that with free wool American manufacturers of woolen goods will be able to reach foreign markets with their products. But how they can imagine that such a consummation can be reached without a great depression of home prices and home wages, or how they can consider it desirable in the face of the fact that even now over $50,000,000 worth of foreign wool and woolens are imported annually, is past comprehension. Our manufacturers cannot suffer from their inability to sell goods abroad until they are within less than fifty millions a year of supplying their home market.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

THE SCHOOLS.

Report of Charlevoix Schools for the Month ending Jan. 29, 1887.

NO. ENROLLED
1st Department,	34
2nd Department,	46
3d Department,	37
4th Department,	43
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	33
5th Dep't High School,	37
Total,	230
NO. BELONGING.
1st Department,	29
2nd Department,	43
3d Department,	36
4th Department,	40
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	32
5th Dep't High School,	36
Total,	216
DAYS ATTENDANCE.
1st Department,	569½
2nd Department,	823
3d Department,	681½
4th Department,	742½
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	616
5th Dep't High School,	706½
Total,	4,139
DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.
1st Department,	57½
2nd Department,	62½
3d Department,	20½
4th Department,	58
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	18
5th Dep't High School,	16
Total,	233½
AVERAGE ATTENDANCE.
1st Department,	28½
2nd Department,	41.1
3d Department,	34
4th Department,	37.1
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	30.8
5th Dep't High School,	35⅓
Total,	206.8
CASES TARDY.
1st Department,	22
2nd Department,	28
3d Department,	3
4th Department,	5
5th Dep't Grammar School,	3
5th Dep't High School,	3
Total,	74
ATTENDANCE, PER CENT OF NUMBER BELONGING.
1st Department,	93.2
2nd Department,	94
3d Department,	98.2
4th Department,	95.9
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	98.3
5th Dep't High School,	99.4
Total,	96.4
NO. PUPILS NEITHER ABSENT NOR TARDY DURING THE MONTH.
1st Department,	6
2nd Department,	14
3d Department,	20
4th Department,
5th Dep't Grammar Section,	16
5th Department, High School,	20
Total,	76

Report of Ironton Schools for Month Ending January 28.

Whole number enrolled,	80
Average number belonging,	75
No. enrolled, Grammar Dep't	38
Average number belonging,	37
Average daily attendance,	31
No. enrolled, Primary Dep't,	42
Average number belonging,	38
Average daily attendance,	27

Results of monthly examinations for January: A Grade—Arthur Miller, 98; Nellie Noyes, 99; Eddie Bird, 92; Maggie Munson, 65.

B Grade—Martin Schoffen, 93; Charlie Box, 83; Gerwin Parish, 92; Amos Box, 90; Lewis Hammond, 87; Cassie Box, 78; Nellie Hammond, 89; Mary Schoffen, 89; Caroline Nelson, 90; Katie Maroney, 96; Frank Williams, 82; Nettie Waldron, 90; Walter Bird, 88.

C Grade—Mary Boyer, 95; Mena Ericks, 91; Martha Saunders, 86; Peter Knudson, 91; Walter Williams, 88; Eddie Williams, 90; Frankie Box, 84; Wilber King, 86; Bertie King, 92; Bertie Waldron, 75; Myrtle Shouts, 87; Mary Maroney, 89.

A Grade, Primary Dep't.—Nelson Holland, 81; Mary Saunders, 85; Susie Schoffen, 94; Lizzie Garland, 94; Emma Bird, 92; Archie Miller, 93; David Vaughn, 83; John Hodges, 73.

Teachers' Meeting.

At the next meeting of the Charlevoix Teachers' meeting to be held Monday evening, Feb. 7th, the question of the teachers' influence outside of the school room as effecting the character of the pupils, will be discussed.

Rev. W. H. McCartney will speak on "The Teacher as a power in the community;" suggestions on "The character of the teacher as affecting the pupils," will be made by Miss Mason; on the "Manners and habits of the teacher," by Miss Waterbury; on the "Teachers' attitude toward the pupils out of school," by Miss Nelson. Roll call at 7:30 sharp, school time.

The school Board have purchased a new Tellurium globe for the use of the Grammar and High schools. Both teachers and pupils feel happy over it.

Queries: (11) What President's son became President.

(12) Name three trees celebrated in our history.

(13) What are popularly called the "Seven wonders of the world."

(14) How many shoes does it take to shoe an ox?

Northern Michigan News.

Teams are crossing Torch lake with safety.

The Frankfort Iron works are offered for sale.

Fletcher, Peck & Co. of Alpena, have thirty-two logging camps in operation near there.

Steele & Titus of Traverse City, have sold to S. Pease, of Buffalo, 2,500 acres of hemlock and hardwood land on North Manitou Island, in Lake Michigan.

Beecher & Kymer of Elk Rapids, have sold out their drug store to Mr. Hanlon, of Middleville. His son will take charge of the business, as he is an experienced druggist.

The management of the Wilson Manufacturing Co. hame factory at Traverse City has changed hands, Mr. Russell withdrawing and Mr. J. A. Wilson, Jr. taking his place.

This winter the wolves in the Upper Peninsula have been numerous and ferocious. They kill deer and cattle, and many men have had narrow escapes from a horrible death. Recently Frank Holmes and Joseph Armstrong, of Pentwater, started out hunting from Manistique. In scrambling through the bush Holmes cut his leg badly and Armstrong, fearing he would bleed to death, left him and went in search of surgical assistance When he returned, two hours later, he found nothing but some bloody bones and pieces of clothing, and the carcasses of five wolves, which Holmes had killed in his struggle for life. Holmes had been devoured by a ferocious pack. They even ate his boots.

The Petoskey Dramatic Society on Monday of last week, completed its organization by the election of the following officers: President and manager, J. C. Bontreon; treasurer and business manager, M. F. Gunion; stage manager, E. A. Peck; property manager, Will Tracey. A partial list of the ladies and gentlemen who will take part in the production of plays is as follows: Miss Stella Brackett, Miss Della Phillips, Miss Etta Rowen, Mrs. M. F. Gunion, Mr. M. F. Gunion, Mr. Clarence Curtis, Mr Jay Crandall, Mr. G. M. Harwood, Mr. A. E. Peck, Mr. A. Winget, Mr. G. E. Mills. To this list will be added quite a number more before the first play "Our Boarding House" is put upon its rehearsal.

The following special to the Telegram-Herald from East Jordan shows that our friends up the arm are preparing for a boom: "The surveying party which went out a few days ago to look up a feasible route for a railroad from East Jordan to connect with the G. R. & I. at Alba or Mancelona, or the Michigan Central to Grayling, have discovered a line through the valleys of the Jordan and Green rivers to Alba that will require but little cutting or grading. The ascent is gradual for nearly the entire lenght, except for one mile where the raise is about seventy feet to the mile, which railroad men declare is not at all formidable. The practicability of a road being thus settled, confidence in its speedy realization in general, and emphatic; the kind of men engaged in the movement being a guarantee that business is intended. This and the expectation that East Jordan will incorporate in the spring, accounts for the manifestations of a boom in this place is becoming more unmistakable.

The Cheboygan News of last Friday has the following account of Mrs. Bowen's fight with wolves a week ago on Black Lake, about 40 miles east of Petoskey: "Our readers doubtless remember the pleasant countenance of Mrs. Bowen, wife of Dave Bowen, formerly a highly respected citizen of Cheboygan. Mr. Bowen and wife are now residing at Black lake. The former is running a camp for Mr. Chandler and one for himself. Mrs. Bowen in a letter to her sister here, Mrs. Bridgewater, very graphically describes her narrow escape from five ferocious wolves last Tuesday. She says: 'I was on my way to set some rabbit snares in the woods and when about a half a mile east of the house I observed a little bird, which appeared to be greatly agitated and finally flew away in a terrified manner. This caused me look over my shoulder, to discover if possible the cause of the bird's alarm. I then saw, to my dismay, five large terrible looking wolves approaching rapidly towards me. With the courage of despair, I instantly drew my revolver and shot three times in succession and was fortunate enough to hit one of the beasts each time. The remaining two made such a demonstration over their fallen companions as enabled me to gain the house and this ended my escapade with the wolves.' Mrs. Bowen adds that wolves are quite numerous in that section. Mrs. B. must be possessed of good nerve as says further in her letter that the last wolf she shot was within 20 feet of her when she discharged her revolver. She says it was a narrow escape and intimates that she has no desire to experience the feeling again that she did when she saw these ferocious monsters charging down upon her.

Elk Rapids girls are independent and steer their own toboggans.

The Petoskey pulp mill is manufacturing an excellent article of pulp from cedar timber.

Special mail service has been established from Bellaire to Stover, Antrim county.

It is estimated that the cedar output this winter in Cheboygan county, will bring over $200,000 into that section, and that 1,000,000 ties besides posts and telegraph poles, will be got out in that county.

Annie H. Kramer and John, Anthony and Edward Gallick, of Traverse City, for a consideration of $10,000, have sold the schooner Granger, to John Gwenaup and William Powers of Chicago.

Mr. Pethram, the engineer in charge of the C. & W. M. surveying party, came through from Sherman yesterday and took the train for the south in the afternoon. Mr. Pethram says he has found a feasible route into Sherman and that a crossing of the Manistee river has been found near that place that offers no serious obstacles. This is more favorable than had been feared by many. The snow is so deep in the woods that further work on the survey will have to be deferred until spring.—Herald, 27th.

Cadillac people are not very well pleased with their railroad prospects. Says the Express: "One year ago about everybody in Cadillac was fully persuaded that the Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan railroad would have its trains of cars running into this city before the close of the year 1886. The $35,000 of bonds voted had been executed, legalized and passed over to the holders at an expense of several hundred dollars to the city. This done, Mr. Ashley, the builder, turned his attention to building his Northern Michigan extension to Muskegon, Big Rapids and other points, and the city resumed its agitation of politics, which are still kept lively, while both railroad and city bonds are declared to be dead. Politics are still good, but taxes are nearly four per cent., and city property will not sell for what it is asssessed at by the supervisors. The Express modestly asks: What shall be done?

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial Bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris. Ironton.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad.

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS		No 2	No 6	No 4
Mackinaw City	Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey		8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls		9 16	11 30
Mancelona		10 18	12 30
Walton Junc		11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac	Ar	12 40	2 50	3 10
	Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy		1 36	6 46	7 07
Reed City	Ar	1 55	7 20	7 41
	Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids		2 46	8 11	8 33
Stanwood		3 10	8 30	8 55
Howard City		3 33	9 03	9 26
D G H & M Cross		4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids	Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
	Lv	7 15	5 15	11 45
Plainwell		8 36	6 43	1 12
Kalamazoo	Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
	Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis		10 27	8 58	3 28
Ft Wayne	Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
	Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond		4 30	3 35
Cincinnati	Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS		No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave		7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond		10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne	Ar	1 50	1 15
	Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis		4 24	5 25
Kalamazoo	Ar	5 45	6 55
	Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell		6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids	Ar	7 40	9 20
	Lv	11 30	4 55
D, G, H, & M cross		11 45	5 10
Howard City		12 52	6 18
Stanwood		1 22	6 48
Big Rapids		1 41	7 05
Reed City	Ar	2 15	7 40
	Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy		3 08	8 33
Cadillac	Ar	3 45	9 10
	Lv	3 55	9 30
Walton Junc		4 45	10 25
Mancelona		6 16	11 50
Boyne Falls		7 11	12 52
Petoskey		7 50	1 30
Mackinaw City		9 30	2 55

E. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bonnett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Butters,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, $25,000
SURPLUS, 2,000

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174, Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS:
National Park Bank - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - Chicago.
Nat. City Bank - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - Detroit.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down			Going East read up
	5 45 p m	Detroit	11 10 am
7 00 am	5 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 am	Marquette
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 55
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 39	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with St Ignace, M C & G R & I R R & M H & O
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette

Bank of
Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly, that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and believing that it furnishes an usual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms,
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd-fellows Block.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix. The Curtis & Co. Manufacturing company, plaintiff, vs Adelbert B. Upright and Ida C. Emrey, defendants. In Attachment. [illegible]

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.
FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Attachment.

[illegible]

Notice of Attachment.

[illegible]

Chancery Sale.

[illegible]

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] on the 3rd day of [illegible]
THE JOHN [illegible]
FRED W. MAYNE, Atty for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] Friday, the 4th day of March, A. D. 1887 [illegible]
Dated December 7th, 1886.
DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

[illegible] Thursday the [illegible] of February, A. D. 1887 [illegible]
Dated November 17th, 1886.
EDWARD H. GREEN, Attorney for said Mortgagee, Charlevoix, Mich.
MARTHA J. AYERS, Mortgagee.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the Nee block. Inquire of [illegible]

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale [illegible]

For Sale!

Prof. Bigh's [illegible] beautiful lots on Clinton [illegible] village of Charlevoix, [illegible]
GREEN, Charlevoix. [illegible]

RIFENBURG
MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for travelers, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co
We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS
AND SHOES,
which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.
We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.
Womens grain shoes for $1.25 Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.
Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,
having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at
Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of
Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Butters' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH H. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PALLTHORPE [illegible], Attorneys and Solicitors. Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M. meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 116, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron Nee.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—H. Sutfield.
Treasurer—Albert C. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and G. Y. Lusk.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. Nee, W. C. Newman, L. M. Bata, H. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Grand Traverse Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE.
B. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to steamboat landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

BANK.

Bank of Charlevoix.
Drafts on New York, Chicago, Detroit and Grand Rapids. Bank Remittances or Postoffice Order to any person in Europe. Loans and Discounts on first mortgage on Real Estate. Railroad and Steamship Tickets to and from any place in Europe.
BROWN & CO.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. G. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. [illegible] Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

MILLINERY
AND
FANCY GOODS!
Mrs. ELLA SMITH &
Miss ANNIE COOPER
Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of
FANCY GOODS!
Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
AND
JOBBING SHOP,
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.
Give me call.

Forty Acres
OF LAND IN ADAMS TOWNSHIP, HILLSDALE County, close to North Adams, [illegible] to trade for a farm in Charlevoix county. Address
HAMBLE & CAMPBELL,
Real Estate Agents, Hillsdale, Mich.

Fan-Fame Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES
The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir. [illegible]

The Reapers.

When the tired reapers with fragrant sheaves,
Come out of the corn in the sun gold-dawn,
And the sky is ripe as the falling [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
And watch as the [illegible] of the sunset weaves
Its cloth of gold over country and town.

And I think how the Summers have come and gone
Since we saw the shuttle across the blue
That wove the colors of dusk and dawn,
When the music of the [illegible] rose flew
On the wings of the south wind over the lawn,
And the evening shadows were longer drawn,
And the sun was low and the stars were few;

When Love was sweet to the lives we led
As the heaven that lay to the latter spring
To grow to the flowers, the books we read,
The romp and rush of the grapevine's swing,
Or work and work, to be fitted and fed
On brookside honey and wasted bread,
And sing to the songs that we used to sing.

And out of the shadows they come to me,
As flowers of the spring come, year by year,
The lovers we had when to love was free,
The stars were few and the skies were near,
And we knew it was happiness just to be,
Through the sheaves of the cloud-land fair to see,
While the weary reapers are drawing near.

Though the red and white roses have lost their leaves
In the ashes of summers of long ago,
They come, through the mellow and marvelous eves,
With the harvest of love that we used to sow,
As rich as the garlands the sunset weaves
When the tired reapers with fragrant sheaves
Come out of the corn and the sun is low.

—Will Wallace Harney in Harper's

"HOPE I DON'T INTRUDE."

Mr. Andrew Frosty chanced to reside in one of a long straight row of houses, no one of which bore any special mark on its front by which it could be distinguished from another. Such a row of buildings it would be a very hard matter to find anywhere else in the world; or even so alike; all with seven steps; all with porticoes, and as alike any other as could possibly be.

Tack on another item. Mr. Frosty was as jealous a man of his wife as any person need be. He was terribly jealous—and that is quite enough for the happiness or comfort of any family. Now it is an awful thing for a man to be jealous of his wife at all; if he have reason for it, it most certainly is; and if without cause then it is vastly more so. When either man or wife falls into such a wretched habit as that, they may as well draw their cotton caps over their eyes and say good night to the world. Living is no sort of an object to them.

But whether Mr. Frosty had any reason to be jealous of his wife is not what we are going to settle. And yet we never thought he could have; for a kinder, gentler, sweeter, more amiable and devoted wife than she made him, it would be difficult to put your finger upon anywhere in the street. But Mrs. Frosty was young and had a good deal of beauty, too, and was remarkably attractive in her manners. It would not be at all strange if there were reasons sufficient to excite Mr. Frosty against her; though, if there were, he ought to have been heartily ashamed of himself and gone and got a plainer wife to begin with.

Not many doors off, in the same row of undistinguishable dwellings, lived Col. Sawyer. Now the colonel rather prided himself on being esteemed a gentleman. Without assuming to be what is popularly termed a "ladies' man," he nevertheless was extremely particular in his carriage toward them, aiming always to impress them with a sense of his perfect purity and chivalry and truth.

No one in the neighborhood, or in the whole world either, that I know of, ever suspected him of being capable of insulting any one—least of all a lady. Mothers along the street held him up before the eyes of their sprouting sons as an example of the lofty and true. And mothers spoke of him now and then to their eldest daughters, and hoped that if they ever thought of marriage—and it is just possible that some of them did—they would be satisfied with nothing less than a character like his. This certainly would seem to be praise enough.

Coming home musingly, and with his head down, one evening, the colonel thought no such accident was possible as that he should mistake his own house, especially as he had been in and out that way so many times.

Perhaps the very fact that he felt such a confidence was the greatest reason why he should make a mistake at all. But as he was very much occupied with his reflections, he abandoned himself entirely to what he knew of the way home, and thought, of course, he should reach that pleasant spot all in proper time.

The consequence was, on this particular occasion, at least, that he slipped himself quietly in through Mr. Frosty's front door, hung up his hat and coat in the hall, and started for the dining-room.

As all the houses in the row were so much alike on the outside, their internal arrangements were pretty much after the same fashion likewise, so that the hall of Mr. Frosty seemed exactly like his own hall, and the dining-room door opened just where his own did.

The instant he opened the door, however, he began to awaken to his error. The table was spread in the middle of the room, and the pretty Mrs. Frosty sat near the grate, just glancing over the newspaper.

"Ah!" exclaimed he, bowing and scraping confusedly; "I beg pardon. Really Mrs. Frosty, I beg pardon."

In a moment the astonished lady was on her feet, her face flushed with the natural excitement of so unlooked for a visit. She knew not what to say.

"This is a ludicrous mistake, I declare, Mrs. Frosty," said the colonel. "Here I am invading and taking possession of your house, when I thought I was safe and snug in my own. Ha! ha! ha! All this comes of these houses wearing such similar faces. But it's the first mistake of the kind I ever made, and I trust you'll excuse it."

Mrs. Frosty comprehended it instantly, and began a good laugh over his innocent adventure.

"If I should ever happen to get caught so myself," said she; and the thought of the consequences made her put her white hand before her face that she might have her laugh out unseen. "We are always grateful for a call from you, Col. Sawyer," added Mrs. Frosty. "Now you are here, and dinner will soon be on the table, why don't you stop and sit down with us? My husband will be in soon. I am expecting him every minute."

The colonel began to thank her for her polite invitation and to excuse himself by reason of urgent engagements for the evening, and even while he was thus occupied the outer door opened and in came the veritable proprietor, Mr. Frosty himself.

"There!" exclaimed his wife; "my husband is coming now. You'll not be [illegible]

Along came Mr. Frosty through the hall, looking cross and sour enough. His face would have turned sweet milk to a twinkling.

The instant he caught the sound of a male voice in the dining-room his old suspicion began to flame up again, and as soon as he could creep along as far as the door in his stealthy way, and look in through the crevice and see who was there, his rage burst all bounds and made him a momentary madman. Col. Sawyer and his wife were in the room alone! That was enough!

"Now, what does this mean, sir?" shouted the enraged husband, dashing up before the thunderstruck colonel. "This is just what I have been expecting for a long time! I knew there was some mischief like this afoot! What are you here for, sir? What are you doing in my house? Tell me, sir, or march yourself out quicker than you came in!"

The colonel had got over his astonishment enough to commence a calm explanation, when Mrs. Frosty, bursting into tears, threw herself before her angry husband and implored him to be silent; for it was only a trifling mistake, and Col. Sawyer would immediately explain it all.

But the enraged man would hear nothing.

"Leave the room!" he exclaimed to his wife. "I'll hear nothing from you. I've had disgrace enough brought on me already. Leave the room!"

And mortified and in tears, she passed out, to brood over her misery and mortification alone.

Col. Sawyer essayed to begin, though it was exceedingly hard work, and he could accomplish nothing but with almost superhuman effort.

"I mistook the house, sir, that is all," said he. "My intentions were perfectly honorable, and out of this house, sir, you shall not call them in question without being held personally responsible. I am quite ready to leave the place, I assure you."

And he began to do so.

"That is very well to say," replied the jealous husband. "I should advise you for the future, however, to be a little careful before you go into other persons' houses, and see if your own number extends the whole length of the street."

Col. Sawyer withdrew, resolved to have no further words with such a creature. He saw that he was beside himself with jealousy, and he knew that speech would be wasted on him.

Perhaps it was a couple of months after this that a party of gentlemen lingered rather late at a luncheon at a tavern, and forgot that it was fairly 4 o'clock in the afternoon, until they found it had long ago struck 6. They were all jolly fellows; their eyes were flashing and their cheeks were getting rosy. The luncheon must have put them in the best of spirits—or, rather, the best of spirits in them.

Among them was Mr. Andrew Frosty.

If there was any one of them very particularly "mellow," it was but fair to say it was Frosty.

He had evidently improved his opportunities during the luncheon.

Going out into the bracing air after such a banquet, Mr. Frosty began to feel the effects very sensibly. By hook and by crook he finally sailed around to the street in which his domicile stood, pushing along till he thought he had got about where he ought to live, and went up the steps. After hanging up his great-coat and hat in the hall, he stepped along to the door of the dining-room and opened it. Who should suddenly appear to him as he looked around the room but Col. Sawyer, and Col. Sawyer's wife. Frosty rubbed his eyes, stammered, made half a bow, felt wholly lost, and finally gave it up.

"I d'clare," he exclaimed, looking blanker than the wall, "I've mistaken the house."

"O, no, my dear sir," said Col. Sawyer, immediately rising and going up to him, "you have done no such thing; you know you haven't. You have only stolen in here to bring disgrace upon my family. I've been suspecting this for some time, and now, sir, I'll just walk out myself with you and be at the trouble of finding your own house for you."

And upon this the colonel put on his coat and hat and insisted on accompanying the discomfited Mr. Frosty home. Not a syllable of explanation would he listen to.

"O, no, no!" he would answer whenever Frosty began to apologize. "I understand it well enough. I see how it is. It's all very well to say you lost your way into my house, but I should for the future advise you, before going into other persons' houses, to just look and see if your own number runs the whole length of the street."

Just the language Frosty had before used to him, and just what sealed his lips. Frosty was floored completely. But that was not the worst of it. The colonel insisted on going home with him and going in, and he offered his services in such a pleasant, yet persistent way, that Frosty could not have shaken him off, even if he were not himself rendered so missive by reason of his own mortification. And the colonel, therefore, went in and told Mrs. Frosty about it, which so thoroughly pleased that amiable lady that, in view of previous circumstances, she set up a resistless laugh in the face of her humbled lord, in the midst of which her very polite escort took occasion to withdraw.

But Frosty was thoroughly cured of his jealousy, for he admitted that it was quite possible for a respectable man to mistake even the number of his own door.

Laconics.

Brief was an episode of Emile de Girardin to his second wife, with whom he lived on most unfriendly terms. The house was large enough to permit them to dwell entirely separate from one another. One day Mme. Girardin had an important communication to make to her husband. Taking a small sheet of paper she wrote: "The Boudoir to the Library: Would like to go to Switzerland." M. de Girardin, imitating her concise style, responded: "The Library to the Boudoir: Go." That was all. One of the most laconic wills on record ran thus: "I have nothing; I owe a great deal—the rest I give to the poor." A similar terse epitaph to the following would have suited that will maker: "Died of thin shoes, January, 1839."—Chamber's Journal.

The exact spot where stood the log-cabin in which Abraham Lincoln was born has recently been identified by the Art Department of the Century, and is pictured in the November number in connection with the Nicolay and Hay Life of the President. The house has long since passed away, but the Century prints a sketch from memory by one [illegible]

THE CHAMPION SITTER.

An Editor Who [illegible] Wear Himself [illegible]

We are averse to betraying secrets of the editorial [illegible] but we feel compelled to put before the public the "various language" and the more curious doings of Mr. Wallace P. Reed, an esteemed member of the Constitution staff.

Mr. Reed says: "If you will sit down and stay down you will live forever. It is exercise that wears a man out. The man who sits is the man who lasts." Mr. Reed has long practised his newly declared philosophy. He has never been in the Kimball House. Only once in five years has he been in the Union Depot. It is six years since he saw Whitehall street and fifteen since he saw McDonough. He has been to the theater twice in four years and never to base-ball.

His home, by the air-line he takes, is 300 yards from the office. Twice a day he walks this. For five years he has not averaged fifty yards a day extra walking. One pair of shoes has lasted him three years. He carries an umbrella always and never looks beyond its bunding rim. One day his umbrella was pushed aside rudely, and looking out he saw a half dozen elephants and some camels crossing his path. He carefully picked his way through the unexpected caravan and on reaching the office remarked that there must be a circus in town.

Here, then, is the man who sits. For twelve hours every day he sits at his desk; four hours he sits at home. It takes twelve minutes to walk 300 yards four times each day. He sleeps seven and a half hours. His health is perfect. His appetite is keen, his brain clear and his capacity for work remarkable. He is never sick a day or an hour or a minute. He is genial, fresh, bright and does not age a shade. His knowledge of men and things is unusual. The only character in books that perplexes him is "The Wandering Jew." "I cannot understand," he says, "how he lived so long when he was continually moving about." He has never seen Grant's Park or Peter's Park, and says he will probably never see Whitehall street again or ever look upon the new Capitol.

"I do not care to wear myself out," he says, "therefore I sit down. Col. Thompson, who wrote 'Major Jones's Courtship,' was a man who sat. For years and years he never left his office except to go, sit, fine, to his home. He saw whole generations of fellows who walk and perish of gradual exhaustion, and at something above eighty years, in full possession of his faculties, he smiled placidly at the lumbering, young steam-engines-in-breeches, who went at forty running uneven and worn on their joints. The best prescription a doctor can give in nine cases out of ten is 'Sit down!' The men who sit are the men who stay; the men who flit are gone in a day. You see that poetry even is not impossible to him who sits!"
—Atlanta Constitution.

An Alaska Beverage.

In these Thlinket villages a great deal of hoochenoo is manufactured and consumed. It is a vile alcoholic compound, made in kerosene cans as stills, from sugar and molasses. A good story is told of the effect this fluid had at Washington on a cabinet meeting of a certain well-known temperance administration. A large bottle had been put before them by some friend of the temperance cause in Alaska, hoping that the exhibition of such a vile compound in such a high place might have some effect toward having the corks tied in with blue ribbons. When the [illegible] came up the bottle was produced, the president taking a smell of it, and as soon as he could recover his breath so as to be able to speak he advocated the most stringent measures toward suppressing the illicit manufacture of the stuff, even threatening to send the entire navy that was able to go to sea, the whole three ships, if need be, to crush out the evil. The secretary of state ventured a fractional portion of one nostril over the rim of the bottle's crater, and then suddenly left the room without explanation. The secretary of the treasury said that the diffused fragrance in the room was ample to stimulate him to any assistance the president might require in his department toward throttling the monster, and he passed the monster along. The postmaster general edged away from the table as it approached, adding that his department could do nothing more in the case than enforce the law against explosives passing through the mails, which he assured them would be done. The secretaries of the war and navy departments made appropriate remarks, and the death-dealing dose found itself in the hands of the secretary of the last cabinet department created by law. It is related, though not supported by affidavits, that he promptly clapped his nostrils over the bottle's mouth, then the lips of the two met, and when about half the bottle was gone he placed it on the table as he remarked: "I didn't think it was within the limits of possibility to manufacture such vile whisky. But," he added, as he regretfully pushed it away, "it beats nothing all to pieces."—Frederick Schwatka, in N. Y. Times.

Plenty of Fuel.

The Berlin Annalen fur Gewerbe und Bauwesen publish some interesting statements regarding European coal-fields still unexhausted, and add estimates of the probable duration of their supply.

In Great Britain the chief coal districts—namely, Newcastle, South Wales, and the Clyde country, yield about a hundred and seventy million tons per year. Taking last year's consumption as representing the average annual consumption for many years to come, the journal named estimates that the British coal-mines will not be exhausted in less than from 600 to 800 years.

In Germany the coal industry is more favored than in any other country of Europe. It is calculated that drawing upon only one of her fields—to wit: the Westphalian—Germany will not be able to exhaust her coal supply in less than a thousand years. She has, in addition, the riches of the Bavarian, the Aachen, and the Silesian coal districts.

It is thus evident that Great Britain and Germany alone—to say nothing of France, Austria, Denmark, Russia, Sweden, and Italy—are able to supply Europe with coal for a period which makes all speculation about the coming exhaustion of the coal supply, to say the least, highly premature.

To suppose, moreover, that a thousand years hence the industrial operations of the world will be still dependent upon the coal supply is to put even less faith in the resources and the future of science than were shown by the men who [illegible] repeated in them by a man predicting in the days of [illegible] inevitable exhaustion of bark [illegible]

MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible]

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 45 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

Farming Lands
500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.
These lands are timbered with beech and maple, elm and other wood and are accessible to good markets.
By Water and Rail
[illegible]
Not a Wilderness by any Means.
[illegible]
Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.
Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address
W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner.
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.
TITLE PERFECT.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
[illegible]
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, WIS.
Take The Sentinel.

BARGAINS!
ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND COOK STOVES
HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.
JOB and TIN WORK.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and
STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.
My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc.
is complete.
If you want to select nice Presents just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.
All classes of Repairing done quickly
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
—AT—
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,
At current rates of interest, on
Approved Real Estate Security.
School Bonds bought and sold.
MILEY & CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop on the north side of Bridge St. Bridge.
JAY L. PRICE.

BUNCH OF AUTUMN LEAVES.

Feathery clouds are few and fair,
Thistle-down is on the air,
Rippling sunshine on the lake,
Wild grapes scent the sunny brake
Wild bees murmuring take the ear,
Crickets make the silence dear;
Butterflies float in a dream,
Over all the swallows gleam.

Here and yonder, high and low,
Golden-rod and sunflower glow,
Here and there a maple flushes,
Summer reddens woodbine blushes,
Purple asters bloom and thrive—
I am glad to be alive!

E. K. Weeks.

MAY CAMERON.

"Fair as a lily, graceful as a gazelle. Who is she? I would give a thousand dollars if I might but paint that face!"

The words were spoken hurriedly, and somewhat too loudly for the time and place.

Many bystanders heard them, and looked at the speaker, the lady, then at each other, and smiled.

But the lady herself—a young, slight girl, with large blue eyes, pale, golden hair, and a face like the picture of a saint, so fair and pure it seemed—held on her way, leaning on her escort's arm, without a change of expression or even a startled sidelong glance, to show that the artist's impetuous wish had reached her ear.

Calmly she sat in her box at the concert that evening, with her blue eyes fixed upon the stage. Many an opera glass was turned upon her from below, and in a secluded corner of the stalls sat Gervase Livingstone, the artist, gazing at her, with his heart and soul in his large, dark, passionate eyes.

"Who can she be?" he whispered to an intimate friend.

"I do not know. The face is a new one," was the low reply.

"A new one! It looks as if it was but just created—as if those eyes had never looked upon a sinful world!" raved the artist. "Years ago, when I was a schoolboy in the country, I knew a child with a face almost as pure and sweet. She died, as earthly angels always do. Yet, had she lived, she would have been like that girl. Poor little May!"

Leaning his head upon his hand, the artist lost himself in a dream of his boyhood's love. When he looked up again the concert was drawing to a close, and the box was empty—the divinity had gone.

Hurrying from the house, he inquired right and left among the attendants at the door; and finally, by a gift of money, so refreshed the memory of one that he said that he had seen the young lady drive off in a private carriage before the concert was over, with "a gentleman as might be her father, sir, and they went to the Everett House."

To the Everett House followed the enamored artist, only to be disappointed. The servant whom he feed liberally assured him that no such young lady was stopping there. Some wild impulse, for which he could scarcely account, led the artist to examine the hotel register. He looked for the name of "May Cameron"—it was the name of his earliest love—and it was not there.

Meanwhile the fair object of his search was speeding from the city as fast as the midnight train could carry her toward Boston. Although the hour was so late, she was wakeful, and clasped her hands over her eyes as she rested her head on the pillow, in a vain attempt to shut out from mind and memory the picture of a haunting face.

"He did not recognize me," she thought, with a sigh, "and yet I knew him in spite of the change—in spite of the added height, the altered face, the dark moustache—I knew him at the moment when his eyes met mine, as we entered at the door."

And then she blushed at the memory of the words he had uttered.

"Pauline," said she, softly.

The second occupant of the "section" stirred on her couch, and, answered, drowsily:

"What is it, May?"

"Are you asleep?"

"What a question? No, not now," replied Pauline, stifling a groan. "What troubles you, my May of Mays? You generally drop asleep the instant your pretty head touches the pillow."

"But not to-night, Pauline. I cannot sleep. I have been thinking of all [illegible]—"

"About Gervase Livingstone?" asked Pauline finishing the sentence.

"Hush! Speak lower, Pauline, there are so many people near. Yes, I am troubled—deeply troubled by what you say of him."

"It is true, May."

"Who told you, Pauline?"

My brother, in the first instance. He knows him well—is often at his rooms—and regrets his intemperance more than any of the rest of his friends, I think."

"Does your brother think—does he consider him entirely past reform?" asked May, with a trembling voice.

Hearing it and the suppressed sob that followed the question, Pauline Danforth, who was a kind-hearted little city belle, came out of her nest and sat down beside her friend.

"Dear May, my brother James has often said that if Livingstone had a reason—a motive—for reforming, his reform would be a settled thing."

"What motive?"

"I explain myself bunglingly, I fear. James meant, my dear May, that if Livingstone could be induced to fall in love, the lady might work his reformation easily, if she chose to do so."

"He loves no one, then, at present?"

"No one, May. James says that he believes him to be faithful to the memory of a child who died years ago. It is an odd thing to say of a man like him, but James declares that Livingstone really loved that child, and that he loves her now."

"If that is true," said May Warburton, drying her eyes, "he may yet be saved."

"What do you mean, dear?"

"I mean that I am that child, Pauline."

"But the child died," replied Pauline, with an astonished look.

"[illegible] Mary Cameron, died, and [illegible] have seen the notice of her death, or heard of it, and supposed it to be mine. J[illegible] before her illness my good Uncle Warburton came to my country home, and finding me a poor and friendless orphan, adopted me as his own child, and gave me his name."

"And was it in that little country town that you knew Gervase Livingstone as a boy?" inquired Pauline.

"Yes. He had been sent to the house of some old family servant for his health, and he remained there for two years, while his parents were in Europe. Oh! Pauline, he was the noblest, kindest, most generous hearted boy! If you will only help me now to save him!"

"I!" exclaimed Pauline.

"You," replied May, caressing and kissing her. "Oh, don't refuse me, dear. Papa is so stern and unforgiving about such things. He would think Gervase—I mean Mr. Livingstone—not worth saving, because of this one fault. It is vain to hope for help from him. But if you will only assist me, dear, good Pauline, I have such a plan!"

"Indeed!" said Pauline, laughing. "So I am to be bribed with a kiss. Well, let me hear your plan for the benefit of Gervase—I mean Mr. Livingstone—and we will see what can be done."

"I shall need your brother's aid, too, but that you must secure. And oh! both of you must promise to keep my secret from every one," said May.

Then leaning her cheek against Pauline's she whispered, in the silence of the midnight, her innocent plot for the redemption of a human soul.

Pauline Danforth's stay in Boston was but a short one, and on her return to New York it was noticed by her escort that she carried in her own hand, and for the whole distance, a small ebony box, mounted in silver, and fastened with a silver lock and key. "A jewel box," as he supposed.

On the evening of her arrival at the home in Fifth Avenue, after the family greetings were over, Pauline sought a private interview with her brother James, and, after a long explanation, left the ebony box in his care.

"May is a trump, Pauline, and you are another," was the young man's somewhat undignified exclamation, as he brushed his cambric handkerchief across his eyes. "And Livingstone is well worth saving, and the little box shall be in his possession to-morrow evening before he sleeps."

"Secretly, James, remember" said Pauline. He must not know from whom the gift comes, till he has shown himself worthy of it.

"Trust me for that," replied her brother. "If there were more women on earth like you and May, women ready to use their influence over men in this fashion, we should be a great deal better than we are, my dear."

So James carried off his prize to his own room.

The next evening a party of gay friends met, as they were often in the habit of meeting, at the artist's rooms. Wine flowed freely, and the pictures on the wall could scarcely be seen for the cloud of smoke that rose from a dozen cigars.

When the revel was at its height James Danforth rose from his chair and held out his hand to the host:

"Good-by, Livingstone."

"What! are you going! So soon?" said the artist, surprised.

"Yes. Going for good and all, my boy."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean," said Danforth, seriously, "that there is a time for all things, and the time for reflection has now come to me. We are all on the downward track, boys—You kn[illegible] as well as I. An angel has wo[illegible], and I am going to stop now [illegible]ean. Follow my example if you have any regard for yourselves, or for the mothers, sisters, and wives at home who love you. Good-by, boys. Good-by, Gervase. I shall join you here no more."

He left the room. They all sat gazing at each other in silence. His words had struck home to every heart, as he had intended them to do. One after another of the now quiet party stole away with some excuse. In half an hour after James Danforth had closed the door behind him the artist sat alone by his fireside, leaning his head upon his hand, and gazing sadly into the burning coals.

"The wives—the mothers—the sisters at home—who love you," he muttered to himself. "They did well to obey the call. I would have obeyed it, in my turn, but who lives now to care for me? My mother and little May are both in their graves; sister I have none—wife I shall never have! Ah, what does it matter? A short life and a merry one for me, and no one will shed a tear over its ending. I'll have another glass of wine. What's this?"

In reaching up to the mantel-shelf for the glass he had left there, his hand struck against the little ebony chest, which stood in the place of honor, directly under a little water-color sketch made from memory of the long-lost child, "May."

The silver key was in the silver lock. The artist turned it, wondering how the beautiful toy came there without his knowledge. His surprise increased when the lid flew back, displaying a beautiful drinking cup of gold, elaborately chased, and enriched with rubies beneath the curving brim.

"What a beautiful thing!" exclaimed the artist, lifting the cup from its bed of rose-colored velvet. "Who can have sent such a gift? Did those fellows bring it secretly with them to night, I wonder? Anyway, it is a perfect gem, and I'll fill it to the brim with champagne, and see if I can drive these melancholy thoughts away."

Approaching the table, he lifted the flask. Something flashed at that moment at the bottom of the cup. Turning it toward the light he saw a picture, framed in gems, and bending nearer, the large blue eyes of the lovely stranger at the concert looked up at him from the depths of the goblet with an earnest, appealing gaze.

He nearly dropped the cup in his surprise. Snatching the ebony case from the chimney-piece, he searched it eagerly for some clew to the mysterious gift.

Half-hidden in the velvet lining, he found a morsel of paper, and drawing it forth, and holding it to the light, he read:

"Not dead, but hoping and praying for you ever. MAY."

"May! May alive! Alive and remembering me!" he exclaimed. And then, as the full significance of the gift flashed across his mind, the crimson flushed to his temples, and sinking on his knees, he laid his head down beside the magic goblet, and burst into a passion of tears.

Those who called at the rooms of the artist during the next week found them closely shut. At last it was rumored about that he had suddenly sailed for England, and a few days more proved the rumor to be true.

A year passed by, and at the annual exhibition of the Academy painters a picture made its appearance which took the world of fashion completely by storm. Every paper noticed it; every person spoke of it; and so numerous and so approving were the comments that pretty Pauline Danforth who, in general, cared nothing whatever about pictures of any kind, asked her brother James to take her to the gallery to see this wonder on a certain day.

James, like a kind brother, consented, but with an odd twinkle in his eye, which Pauline could not quite understand. When that evening's train from Boston brought Mr. Warburton and his adopted daughter, May, for a visit of some weeks, James, eyes seemed to twinkle more brightly than ever; and of his own accord, he invited Miss May to join their party on the following day.

May accepted the invitation with a suppressed sigh. Hearing which, James smiled so broadly that Pauline hunted him speedily into a corner, and demanded a share of his secret, whatever might be.

But James proved obdurate. She would know all, he said, at the gallery, where the name of the successful artist was to be proclaimed on the following day.

Pauline reflected a moment.

"Oh!" she exclaimed; and her eyes began to dance in their turn.

But not one word said the little traitress to her friend May. Only she took care that their visit to the gallery should be paid at a very early hour, before the fashionable world had scarcely risen from their beds.

Early as it was, however, one gentleman stood before the famous picture, gazing intently at the beautiful golden-haired guardian angel, who, with white waving wings, bent forward over the shoulder of a dark-browed man, walking heedlessly on a flower-strewn descent, toward a fearful gulf, and drew from his unwilling hand a golden cup overflowing with wine.

Pauline gave one swift glance at the angel in the picture and at the solitary gazer. Then she touched her brother's arm, and while May was unsuspecting [illegible] forward, the two vanished into [illegible] room, where a portrait gallery [illegible] recently improvised.

Hearing the light step behind [illegible] the artist turned away, wi[illegible] soning brow, from the con[illegible] of his own picture.

But with his first glance at [illegible] of the newcomer, he paused.

May, unheeding him in her haste to see the picture, lifted her eyes to the canvas. She stood rooted to the spot in her amazement, her heart throbbing, her color rising, and at last her blue eyes filling with tears.

"Oh, Pauline!" she exclaimed, in an agitated tone. "It must be his picture! No one else could have painted it! He is saved!"

"Yes, thanks to you sweet angel under God, he is saved!" replied a deep voice.

She turned and met the dark eyes of the artist gazing at her in worship.

"May—my little May—will you take the life you rescued?" he asked.

With a noble courage she laid her hand in his. And now no home is happier than that of the famous painter, where his sweet "Guardian Angel" smiles upon his walls, and dwells enshrined within his loving heart.

He Was Absent-Minded.

Some of the anecdotes told about Senator Camden's absent-mindedness are amusing. The day before his daughter was married to a young Lieutenant in the army Mr. Camden was sitting at his desk writing. The Lieutenant came in and spoke to him, and Senator Camden conversed with him for a moment and the young man bowed himself out. Mr. Camden turned to a brother Senator and said: "I have seen that young man before; do know who he is?" "Yes," was the answer; "he is the young man who is to marry your daughter tomorrow. Another time the Senator received and accepted an invitation to a dinner at the house of Senator Gibson. A few days afterward he found lying on his desk, the invitation to dinner. "See here Frank," he said to his private secretary; "here is an invitation to Gibson's dinner. I must go right up there and apologise to the Senator for not attending. I forgot all about it." "But, Senator," said the private secretary, "you went to that dinner. Don't you remember I got the carriage and saw you off?" "Why, yes," exclaimed the Senator. "I remember now, I was there. I am glad you mentioned it. I would have made a bad blunder."—Washington Letter to Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette;

New Teeth in Old Age.

There are several cases on record of aged people cutting a new set of teeth. In the last century the Hon. Edward Progers died in his 96th year "of anguish of cutting teeth, he having cut four new teeth, and had several ready to cut, which so inflamed his gums that he died thereof." There are many other instances on record of old people who were more fortunate than this, and who cut complete sets of teeth after having reached the time of life when they could only expect to be toothless. In some cases this third set of teeth appeared after the old person has been without a tooth for over twenty years or more.

Maiden Hair.

It is an open secret that there is a vast consumption of false hair among our ladies of fashion. Formerly the peasant women of Brittany and Auvergne kept the market well supplied; but nowadays a very large business is done with the convents, where the inmates part with their locks on taking the veil. One of these religious establishments is mentioned as having recently sold in one lot 800 pounds of hair for the sum of 30,000 francs.—La Reforme

THE HOUSEHOLD.

HINTS.

Hang up a pin-cushion in the kitchen. One sweeps away enough pins to keep it filled.

One keep-clean is worth a dozen make-cleans. Keep a pail at hand to throw refuse matter into. Do not throw it into the sink to be handled again.

Heat the bread knife very hot when about to cut new bread. This will prevent it crumbling.

An almost certain cure for sick-headache is a teaspoonful of salt dissolved in two or three tablespoonfuls of water. After drinking it, lie down for an hour, and in nine cases out of ten one feels after that as good as new.

To brighten gold or silver jewelry, if tarnished, brush it with an old toothbrush wet with soap-suds, and place it in saw-dust to dry. Some ladies keep their jewelry in sawdust. The jewelers use this method.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.

One pound of sifted flour, one pound of white sugar, half a pound of butter, whites of fourteen eggs, two pounds of chopped citron, two pounds of blanched almonds, one large grated cocoanut, two teaspoons of baking powder; bake slowly two hours; ice with cocoanut icing.

GULASCH.

Cut a piece of round steak into quite small pieces, lay them in a deep frying-pan, with a little bacon, some slices of onion, a little pepper and salt, and fry them in butter till the gravy looks brown; then add a little lemon juice, a small quantity of water; cover the pan and let the contents simmer till the meat is quite done. This is the dish that Munkacsy, the Hungarian artist, who had made such a long fast on shipboard, coming over to this country, had set before him on landing, with heartiest results to appetite.

HICKORY-NUT CAKE.

Two cups of sugar, three of flour, one cup of milk, half a cup of butter, four eggs, two teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of extract of lemon, a cup of hickory nut kernels cut fine.

BEEF SAUSAGES.

Chop a tough or coarse "steak-piece" fine, or get your butcher to do it for you; season with a little powdered thyme, salt, pepper, a very little mustard, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a pinch of grated lemon peel; make into round flat cakes, roll in flour, and fry in a little hot dripping of butter, turning as they brown. Drain and serve hot.

MARBLE CAKE.

Light part—Three cups of sugar, one of butter, one of sour cream, five cups of flour, white of eight eggs, one teaspoon of baking powder, and one of lemon extract. Dark part—Two cups of brown sugar, one of molasses, one of butter, one of milk, five cups of flour, yolks of eight eggs, one teaspoon of baking powder, one teaspoon each of extract of cloves, nutmegs, ginger, allspice, cinnamon, lemon and bitter almond; put in pan in alternate layers. Bake an hour. Ice when cold.

RAISED MUFFINS.

Two cups of milk; a teaspoonful of lard or butter, three cups of flour, half a yeast cake, a teaspoonful of salt sifted sifted with the flour; heat the milk; stir in the shortening, and when blood-warm add half the flour and beat hard for three minutes; let it rise in a moderately warm place all night; in the morning work in the rest of the flour and the salt; make into balls, and let rise in greased muffin rings; set on a floured board. When light slip a cake-turner under each and transfer to a hot griddle well greased. Turn when the under side is done. Eat warm, pulling them open to butter them.

Home Decorative Notes.

Sapphire blue and gray is an effective combination.

Billiard cloth is an excellent foundation for a lambrequin.

Egg stains can be removed by rubbing with common table salt.

Squares of gold lace are an extremely pretty addition to a plush chair.

A novel card-receiver is a porcelain pug-dog, holding in his mouth a brass umbrella.

Small thermometers attached to brass toboggans are among the popular oddities.

Lemonade sets of Pompona glass have a novel frosted effect, and are refreshing to behold.

Square dinner-plates grow in favor, and the newest are a perfect study of artistic decoration.

An inkstand in perfect imitation of a silver fox, with head of richly chased silver, is a novelty.

The newest bottles for aromatic salts are made of antique silver, chased in Etruscan designs.

Japanese teapots, being a square of copper with bamboo handles, are to be the thing at five-o'clock teas.

Square lanterns, perforated and adorned with large opals and agates of various colors, find universal favor.

Italian wine-jugs are now decorated with iridescent metallics or bronzes and finished with fancy ribbon bows.

Spots of grease may be removed from the most delicate fabric by the application of dry buckwheat flour.

A mixture of water and a little common soda is said to possess rare efficacy in cleansing old painted surfaces for a repainting.

Sprays of grass may be beautifully frosted by dipping them in a solution of gum arabic and sprinkling them with powdered glass.—New York Mail and Express.

The Richest Man in the World.

This modern Crœsus is neither a Jew nor an American—a fact which will surprise a good many people. He is not even a banker. According to undoubted statistics now before us the wealthiest mortal of modern times is a German Prince, the Prince of Lichtenstein, the proprietor of immense estates in Bavaria, Austria, and Switzerland. * * * It has been calculated that if all his wealth were reduced to copper coinage it would take four locomotive engines of sixty tons to remove it.—Choses Diverses.

A young girl in the upper part of the country had her lips frozen the other night while out sleigh-riding. Was she alone? No, she wasn't alone. But don't look so disgusted, girls; she didn't have a young man with her; she had her mother.

WHEN NIAGARA WAS DRY.

A Remarkable Day, Forty Years Ago, in the History of the Great Cataract.

"The winter of 1848 had been one of the coldest on record, and such ice has never been known on Lake Erie since, I guess, as formed that season," said an old resident of Niagara Falls village to a New York Sun correspondent. "It was of enormous thickness. It was quite late in the spring before the ice was loosened, even about the shores of the lake. One day I think it was near the end of April—a very stiff northeasterly wind came up, and its force was so great that it moved the great fields of ice, then entirely separated from the shores, up the lake, piling the floes in great banks as they moved. The sight of those ice banks is described yet by those who witnessed it as one of awful grandeur. Toward night the wind changed to the opposite quarter, and grew into a terrible gale from that direction. The lake's surface was packed with miniature icebergs, and these were hurled back by the gale with such tremendous force that an impenetrable dam was formed in the neck of the lake from which Niagara river flows, and the great current of water which finds its way from the lake in the running channel of that stream, to be dashed over the gigantic precipice at the falls, was so held in check that not more than one-quarter of the usual volume could find a passage through the immense pack of ice.

"As this pack was stubborn, it was naturally a very short time before the falls and drained nearly all the water out of the river. This, of course, occurred during the night, and we people who lived in Niagara village knew nothing of the phenomena until next morning. I remember that I awoke very early that morning with a sense of something exceedingly strange oppressing me. It was some time before I discovered that the feeling came from the fact that the noise of the cataract was almost missing. I jumped out of bed, and on leaving the house found that scores of others had been awakened by the same circumstance and were hurrying toward the falls to see what the trouble was. We found that the great Niagara falls was only about one-quarter its former volume.

"We had not heard of the trouble at Lake Erie, and the terrible thought that the falls were running dry created a feeling of alarm not easily imaginable. The American channel had dwindled to a creek in comparison with its original proportions, while the British channel resembled some ordinary river in the droughts of August. Goat island was as big as two Goat Islands, as the water had shrunk from every side of it, leaving a wide expanse of wet, slimy, jagged rocks, which no eye in that vicinity had ever seen before. The bed of the Canadian rapids, far out into the stream, was dry, as was the space between the lower end of Goat Island, and out beyond the tower. The rocks thus exposed were black and forbidding, giving the dry river bed the appearance of charred stumps. The Three Sisters looked forlorn in their increased dimensions. The great jet of water which had from time out of mind leaped into the air about 300 yards south of this group of islands in the great rapids—and which is leaping there to-day—was not leaping that morning, and, as some one remarked that day, the tremendous roar of Niagara had subsided to a moan.

"The scene was at once desolate, strange, and awful to contemplate. The picture will never leave my mind. The whole village was out exploring caves, dark recesses, curious formations in the rocks and other remarkable features of the cataract and rapids that no mortal eyes had probably ever gazed upon before. These explorations were made safely to the very brink of the Horseshoe rapids. A Mr. Holly drove a horse and buggy from the head of Goat Island and clear to the spot where the leaping jet of water had always writhed and foamed. He also got several sticks of timber near the brink of Horseshoe falls, had them hewed there, and hauled them away with four horses. These sticks they were large, fine timbers—are in the frame of some house now. This remarkable condition of affairs at the cataract continued all day, and showed no sign of change when the people went to bed that night. When we arose in the morning, however, the old, familiar thunder of the falls was again shaking the earth as before, and the river and rapids were again the seething, whirling, irresistible torrent of old. The ice in the lake had shifted again, and some time in the night the long-restrained volume of water had rushed down and claimed its own.

American Women and Men.

Omaha Herald: It is a frequent fashion to proclaim the general worthlessness of American women from the animal standpoint. They lack the breadth of back and the massiveness of limb observed in lands where wives plow with the ox and daughters delve in the mines. The American woman looks after her household, rears her children, makes happy a husband for whom she is much too good, and in her old age takes joy in manly sons and womanly daughters. It is slander to call her incompetent, or say that she falls short in the measure of duty, when compared to the women of other lands, whose strength she has, but whose grossness she lacks. Just now the fashion in talk has changed. It is the man who is the weakling, and who is hurrying the nation to extinction. There is a craze for big biceps and abnormal calves. In all of which there is considerable nonsense and some wisdom. Statistics show that in America length of life is increasing. Men are as healthy and as happy and as capable as a hundred years ago. Some striplings may go out in a cloud of cigaret smoke, but they are not dragging the nation toward extinction, and some of sound body will be left to bury the dead, in spite of the croakers who seem to think this continent is developing into a graveyard.

—The Italian people are about to erect a monument to Garibaldi on the Janiculum, in Rome, to cost 1,000,000 francs.

The oldest Free Mason in Connecticut is Abijah Resseguie, of Ridgefield, who is 95 years of age, and has been a Mason for over fifty-five years.

STOCK NOTES.

About 17,000 pounds of silk cocoons, averaging $1 per pound, have been raised in Utah during the last year. The industry is still in its infancy, but the outlook is very flattering.

It is somewhat remarkable that holders are so confident of the future of wool, notwithstanding the long period of quiet on the part of buyers. It is often quiet before a storm, as well as after.

For every thirty-five live animals imported into Great Britian sixty-four are imported in the form of dressed meat, and of the latter twenty-one are of fresh meat and forty-three of salt meat

The average yield of butter, says the Montreal Witness, in fair to good dairies, of fifty cows or over, is 175 to 200 pounds a cow; in very good dairies 250, and the dairy which reaches the high average yield of 300 pounds is rare in our best butter sections.

Breeding stock should not be pampered, but be kept in a thrifty condition, and not allowed to "run down." They need muscle rather than much fat, as the latter always means a loss of energy, if not of health and vigor.

Some curious facts present themselve in looking into the relation of the United States to the British imports of live stock. For instance, out of 216,349 beef cattle imported in the first ten months of this year we furnished 102,406; out of 39,657 cows, 156; out of 35,550 calves, 2; out of 902,836 sheep and lambs, 5,289; out of 20,566 swine, none. We lead all other countries in our exports to England of salt and fresh beef, salt pork, hams, and meats preserved otherwise than by salting.

A Norwegian engineer, W. C. Moller, has found that reindeer hair and skin possess remarkable buoyancy, and when the unshorn skin is used as a life belt it has the advantage over cork of warming the wearer while in water. He attributes great value to suits made from the reindeer hair, one of which of the weight of a pound may keep a man from drowning, while it furnishes greater protection from cold than oil skin and other materials.

National Stockman: Why is ensilage better than the same stalk dried? Why is a ripe, juicy apple better than a dried one? The one has not had its cellular structure turned into wood by drying, and it goes into the system in a soluble condition, ready to be acted upon by the fluids of the stomach, and without very much preparation is ready for assimilation. The cellular tissue of the dried plants must be first softened, or broken down, so that the starches, sugar, nitrogen, lime, etc., can be liberated, all calling for an increased expenditure of animal force to accomplish exactly what nature has already done in the succulent mutilled fodder.

A certain Pennsylvania breeder never publishes milk records, and expresses the following candid opinion about them: "We deem a milk record, in the absence of amount and quality of food consumed, the size and condition of the animal, whether in breeding or not, together with the management, care, trickery, etc., very unreliable and misleading and selections based on records under these circumstances generally end in disappointment."

A ranchman who is opposed to branding cattle on the side writes: The process of hoof branding is very simple. The first point is to have the figures made the requisite size to suit your taste. You will find that about three-eighths to one-half inch in length will be about the mark. Two figures ought to occupy about half an inch in breadth when placed on the hoof. The figures are generally made of iron; sometimes of steel. You can have them molded as narrow as you please—the face of the numbers are generally about one-eighth of an inch. As to branding, apply the figure to the hoof when perfectly hot. Brand directly in front of the hoof, and as high up as possible, taking care not to interfere with the coronet. Better brand on both sides of the hoof in case one number might get defaced; burn to the depth of an eighth of an inch. As the number will grow out in accordance with the growth of the hoof, probably you will have to rebrand about every twelve months. Hoof-marking is decidedly preferable to ear-tags, especially in a brush country.

GRADE CATTLE.

Writers on stock breeding, says the Canada Farmer, are as a rule singularly reticent on the subject of grade cattle, and yet it is probable that where $1 is made out of the production of pure breeds $10 is made by breeding grades. This is not saying that grades are more profitable than pure breeds, but that while hundreds are engaged in their production comparatively few farmers are able to breed pure strains. It costs no trifle to make a start in breeding pure breed improved animals, as the slightest influx of mongrel blood corrupts the whole herd, while valuable grades can be secured by the purchase of a solitary bull calf at a very modest figure. Let anyone compare a herd of scrubs with an equal number of half-bred grades and he will be inclined to wonder why farmers can be found who will go on year after year breeding nothing but scrubs. A farmer with ten scrub cows, for example, buys a Jersey, Holstein, or Ayrshire bull calf, which costs him not more than $100 (less than the price of a cheap top buggy or an organ, and but little more than it would take to recarpet his parlor and spare bedroom), and the next year after the bull has been in service he has ten calves, and each heifer in the lot is worth more for milking and breeding purposes than any two cows in the herd. The next year a similar gain is made, and the third year it is the same thing over. Then the bull can be sold for nearly or quite all that he cost (and perhaps more), and another of the same strain bred to the grade heifers will produce calves that, for all practical purposes, will be as good as thoroughbreds. Thus he can go on "breeding up" for a very moderate outlay till, in ten years, he has improved the producing capacity of his dairy more than 50 per cent. With the "beef" breeds the same, or even a greater, gain can be made by the use of pure-bred bulls, and the wonder is that farmers throughout the country do not more generally recognize the fact.

ROYAL LADIES.

Four Queens Described, One of Them in Very Uncomplimentary Terms.

Queens are not any better-looking, after all, than other women, and some of those now reigning may even be classed among the very plain women, says a writer in the New York Mail and Express. Not even the most regal of their state garments could make them anything else. The idea that patrician blood shows in the beauty and grace of the royal ladies is a great mistake, for it is quite the contrary, as far as I have seen, and the bluer the blood the uglier the queen. In Vienna, at their great exposition, were gathered a number of the then reigning ladies of Europe, and I had several views of those who were there. The first glimpse I had at all of royalty was of ex-Queen Isabella of Spain. I was in the Turkish section when I noticed a coarse, fat, elderly woman, plainly dressed and vulgar in every movement, come waddling along. She was shaking all over like a bowl of jelly, and looking keenly about her with beady eyes, while behind her walked a youth hardly come to manhood's age. He wore a stovepipe hat and a Prince Albert coat, and appeared to be a modest fellow with little taste for display. [illegible]

The board of trade at Chattanooga, Tenn., has decided to do everything in its power to encourage the building of railroads in that neighborhood.

26,587,335

BOTTLES OF

Warner's SAFE Cure

Sold, to Dec. 27, 1886.

No other Remedy in the World Can Produce Such a Record.

The wonderful success of "Warner's SAFE Cure" is due wholly to the real merit of the Remedy. For a long time it has been REGARDED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES AS THE ONLY SPECIFIC FOR KIDNEY, LIVER AND URINARY DISEASES AND FEMALE COMPLAINTS.

Thousands of people owe their life and health to "Warner's SAFE Cure," and we can produce 100,000 TESTIMONIALS to that effect.

Read the following and note the large number of bottles distributed. We guarantee these figures to be correct, as our sales-books will prove.

Boston, - - 1,149,122

CAPT. W. D. ROBINSON (U. S. Marine Insp., Buffalo, N. Y.), in 1880 was suffering with a skin humor like leprosy. Could not sleep; was in great agony. For two years tried everything, without benefit. Was pronounced incurable. "Twenty bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure completely cured me, and to-day I am strong and well." (Feb. 6, 1885.)

Providence, - - 171,929

EX-GOV. T. G. ALVORD (Syracuse, N. Y.), in 1884 began running down with General Debility, accompanied with a sense of weight in the lower part of the body, with a feverish sensation and a general giving out of the whole organism. Was in serious condition, confined to his bed much of the time. After a thorough treatment with Warner's SAFE Cure he says: "I am completely restored to health by its means."

Portland, Me. - 441,105

MAJOR S. B. ABBOTT (Springfield, Mo.), in 1871 was afflicted with lame back, Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Consulted the very best physicians in San Francisco, and visited all the mineral springs there. Took a health trip to the New England States, but for seven years suffered constantly from his malady, which had resulted in Bright's disease. After using a couple dozen bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and two of SAFE Pills, he wrote: "My back and kidneys are without pain, and, thank God, I owe it all to Warner's SAFE Remedies."

Bal. of New Eng., 441,753

MRS. J. T. RITCHEY (562 4th Ave., Louisville, Ky.), was a confined invalid for eleven years, just living, and hourly expecting death. Was confined to bed ten months each year. Was attended by the best physicians. Her left side was paralyzed. Could neither eat, sleep, nor enjoy life. The doctors said she was troubled with female complaints; but she was satisfied her kidneys were affected. Under the operation of Warner's SAFE Cure she passed a large stone or calculus, and in Nov., 1885, reported, "Am to-day as well as when a girl."

New York State, 3,870,773

Pennsylvania, - 1,821,218

F. MAYER (1028 N. 12th St., St. Louis, Mo.) afflicted with tired feelings, dizziness, and pain across the back, and lost appetite. Was sallow and care-worn all the time. The doctors failing he began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure, and reports, "I feel like a fighting cock."

Chicago, - 2,808,693

MR. R. BROWN (221 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.), injured his back from a fall, was confined to his bed for six weeks. The fall injured his kidneys, producing intense suffering. Warner's SAFE Cure restored his kidneys to their natural condition, and he writes "I am now eighty years of age, smart and active."

Detroit, - - 846,946

MRS. THOS. SCHMIDT (Wife of the Vice-Consul of Denmark, 69 Wall St., New York) reported that her little son, after an attack of Diphtheritic Sore Throat eight years ago, was afflicted with Bright's Disease in advanced form, by the advice of Gen'l Christiansen, of Drexel, Morgan & Co., Bankers, New York, she prescribed Warner's SAFE Cure, with the consent of the physicians, and reports, "the physicians say that he will be perfectly well."

Milwaukee, - 458,894

MISS Z. L. BOARDMAN (Quechee, Vt.), in May, 1882, began to bloat, thence came stomach trouble, terrible headaches, and finally the doctor's opinion that it was Bright's disease, and incurable. Eventually she became nearly blind, pronounced by the doctors to be the last stage of Bright's disease. After having been under treatment by Warner's SAFE Cure for one year, she reported, "I am as well as anyone."

Minnesota, - 648,017

HON. N. A. PLYMPTON (Worcester, Mass.) in May, 1880, was prostrated by Gravel. Under the operation of Warner's SAFE Cure alone he passed a large stone, and subsequently wrote, "I have had no recurrence of my trouble since Warner's SAFE Cure cured me."

Bal. N. W. States, 1,767,149

ASK YOUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS ABOUT

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

THE MOST POPULAR REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED.

Cleveland, - 682,632

EX-GOV. R. T. JACOB (Westport, Ky.), was prostrated with severe Kidney trouble and lost 49 pounds of flesh. After a thorough treatment with Warner's SAFE Cure he reports, "I have never enjoyed better health."

Cincinnati, - 873,667

GEN. H. D. WALLEN (144 Madison Ave., New York), scarcely able to walk two blocks without exhaustion, and, having lost flesh heavily, began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure and says: "I was much benefited by it."

Bal. Ohio, (State.) 633,158

COL. JOSEPH H. THORNTON (Cincinnati, O.), in 1885 reported that his daughter was very much prostrated; had palpitation of the heart. Intense pain in the head, nervous disorder and catarrh of the bladder. She lost fifty-five pounds. Other remedies failing they began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure, SAFE Pills and SAFE Nervine, and within three months she had gained fifty pounds in weight and was restored to good health. That was three years ago, and she is still in as good health as ever in her life. Col. Thornton himself was cured of Chronic Diarrhœa of eighteen years standing, in 1881, by Warner's SAFE Cure.

Southern States, 3,534,017

C. H. ALLEN (Leavenworth, Kan.), son Edwin, two years of age, afflicted with extreme case of Bright's Disease, and the doctors gave him up. By the advice of the doctor's wife began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure, and after taking seven bottles he is perfectly well and has had no relapse.

Canada, - - 1,467,824

St. Louis, - - 1,520,527

CAPT. GEO. B. WILTBANK (919 Spruce St., Phila., Pa.), prostrated in Central America with Malarial Fever, caused by congestion of Kidneys and Liver. Delirious part of the time. Liver enlarged one-third. Stomach badly affected. Could hold no food; even water was ejected. Using less than a dozen bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure he writes, "I was completely cured."

Kansas City, - 717,860

MRS. (PROF.) E. J. WOLF (Gettysburg, Pa., Wife of the Ed. of the Lutheran Quarterly), began to decline with Pulmonary Consumption. (Over 50 per cent. of all cases of Consumption are caused by diseased kidneys.) Despaired of living. After thorough course of treatment with Warner's SAFE Cure, she writes, "I am perfectly well."

Bal. S. W. States, 746,789

EX-SENATOR B. K. BRUCE (South Carolina), after doctoring for years for what we supposed was Malaria, discovered he was afflicted with Sugar Diabetes, and having obtained no relief whatever from his physicians, he began the use of Warner's SAFE Diabetes Cure, and he says: "My friends are astonished at my improvement."

San Francisco, 1,242,946

J. Q. ELKINS (Elkinsville, N. C.), suffered for ten years from Gravel, which attacked him every six months. He lost 45 pounds in three months, and his strength was nearly gone. After a thorough use of Warner's SAFE Diabetes Cure he reports, "I am as well as I ever was, after using fourteen bottles."

Bal. Pacific Coast, 732,316

☞ Every Testimonial we publish is genuine. Write to the testators, enclosing stamp for reply, and learn for yourselves.

PENNYROYAL PILLS "CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH." The Original and Only Genuine. [illegible] Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask for "Chichester's English" Pennyroyal Pills. Take no other.

RUPTURE Relieved and cured by DR. J. A. SHERMAN'S method. [illegible] 294 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

TELEPHONES PRIVATE LINES [illegible]

$5 TO $8 A DAY. [illegible]

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT [illegible]

FITS STOPPED FREE [illegible] DR. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER [illegible]

Free! Free! Free! J. P. BARNUM, the well-known Louisville druggist, will send free of charge on request [illegible]

HOME STUDY. Book-keeping, Business Forms, Penmanship, Arithmetic, Short-hand, etc., thoroughly taught by mail. Circulars free. BRYANT'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Buffalo, N. Y.

M. N. P. Co. CHICAGO—No. 89

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest. CATARRH

GRAND ARMY ITEMS.

[illegible]

INDUSTRIAL.

[illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 2, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

ANNUAL HISTORY

Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned From the Files of the Sentinel.

1870.

In January a petition was circulated by the postmaster, Philo Beers, praying that a tri-weekly mail to Charlevoix be established instead of the semi weekly mail then enjoyed.

In the winter of 1869-70 the Grand Traverse Herald predicted that Traverse City would have one railroad within three years, two within five, and three within eight years.

The New York Central line of steamers which had wooded at this point since 1865 were sold to the Western Transportation Company in February.

During the winter of 1869-70 the following amount of propeller wood was gotten out: A. Fox & Co., Charlevoix, 9,000 cords; D. O. Rose & Co., Northport, 10,000; D. F. Barber & Co., Norwood, 4,000; Dan Ross, Northport, 1,200; O. L. White, Northport, 2,500; Campbell & Goodrich, Northport, 5,000; R. Goodrich, Northport, 2,000; N. Pickark, Manitou Islands, 3,000; N. T. Co., Glenn Arbor, 10,000.

In March, D. C. Leach sold his interest in the SENTINEL to W. A. Smith.

At the Charlevoix township election the following ticket was elected: Supervisor, A. G. Aldrich; township clerk, W. A. Smith; treasurer, Philo Beers; commissioner, J. S. Dixon; justice, D. C. Burgess; full term, Isaac Greensky; school inspector, O. S. Washburn.

In Marion—Supervisor, Wm. Black; clerk, W. D. Thompson; treasurer, Jas. Graham; justice, A. M. Ross; school inspector, R. O'Neill; commissioner, T. Cunningham.

South Arm—Supervisor, A. B. Steele; clerk, A. A. Coon; treasurer, H. B. Hipp; com., A. Lloyd; justices, E. A. H. Cole and H. B. Hipp; school inspector, J. A. Keat.

Evangeline—Supervisor, E. B. Boynton; clerk, H. R. Miller; treasurer, I. Willis; school inspector, Geo. Higgs; commissioners, H. F. Warner and W. Herven; justices, E. B. Boynton and H. R. Miller.

Norwood—Supervisor, Wm. Harris; clerk, T. S. Carter; treasurer, Geo. Olney; school inspector, O. D. Wood; justice, Elmore Clark; com., L. H. Pearl.

Eveline—Supervisor, S. W. Steele; clerk, R. Bedwin; treasurer, Jas. Bartlett; justice, Geo. Rabb; school inspector, N. Jarman; com., D. Boyd.

The first boat of the season was the propeller Idaho from Buffalo, which touched at Charlevoix April 21st.

The Charlevoix Amateur Dramatic Club of which A. K. Dougherty was manager, and which had a cast of nine Charlevoix ladies and gentlemen, presented "The Maniac Lover" and "The Rough Diamond" in a manner that called for an encore in the shape of a repetition of the drama and farce three weeks later.

The scow Maple Leaf, arrived Apr. 29th from Milwaukee to load with lumber.

Old residents will remember the superior contributions to the SENTINEL at this time of the Rev. A. T. Gray of Antrim City, and those of Mr. Robert Miller of Charlevoix, under the head "Facts and Fancies of the early settlement of the Pine Lake Region." These productions which treat of a period preceding 1869 will well bear republishing at some future date.

Gilbert Randall, in May sold his homestead in Banks for $1,800 to Lucius Pearl and purchased the Norwood hotel for $1,600.

Morgan Bates, a name well known now in dramatic circles, as a writer of ability, resigned his position as foreman of the Grand Traverse Herald in May.

The sales of A. Buttars & Co., for the nine months ending April 1st were $22,373.00.

A new draw-bridge was commenced over Pine river in June, A. M. Ross being the contractor.

The Third Annual Regatta of Mackinac Fishermen came off at Beaver Island July 4th. Prizes amounting to $300 were given.

The negro Swan was shot by Chas. Randall, of Banks, June 10th.

At a term of the circuit court for Emmet county, held at Little Traverse on June 29th, Major E. H. Green of Charlevoix, was the only attorney present.

The fourth of July was observed by an excursion to the head of Pine lake.

The second annual meeting of the harbor association was held July 25. The following directors being elected: Messrs. Fox, Nelson, Dixon, Mason, Laister, Nettleton and Beers.

A large bear and cub were seen near the school house, August 6th.

August 1st, before a top-sail schooner had entered Round lake the prediction was made that "before our editorial head shall change its color, we, with yourselves, shall view with pride the crystal waters of Pine lake bearing up the agents of a busy commerce, and the bottom of our harbor be pierced with the tenacious flukes of many anchors."

On August 5th, the scow Maple Leaf was towed through the bridge into Round lake. She was a scow of 90 feet keel, 20 feet beam, 87 tons, and was the first schooner to enter Charlevoix harbor. She was commanded by Capt. Geo. Lund, one of her owners.

On the 10th the schooner S. G. Andrews loaded at the dock with shipping wood for A Buttars & Co.

The schooner Alice, launched by Wm. Laister in August, was a craft 42 feet keel and 14 feet beam.

D. F. Barber & Co., of Norwood, sold 2,500 cords of propeller wood to the Union Steamboat Co., in August, for $2.50 a cord.

For the fiscal year ending August 1st there were 41 births, 10 deaths and 7 marriages in the county.

That memorable raid on South Arm melon patches was made in September.

The population of Marion township in June was 302.

The population of Evangeline at the same time was 90.

Of Charlevoix, 453.

The following county ticket was elected at the fall election there being 124 votes cast in the county: Sheriff, R. Cooper; clerk, W. A. Smith; Register, Wm. Harris; Treasurer, J. Ingalls; Pros. Attorney, E. H. Green; Commissioner, E. H. Green; Surveyor, Wm. Miller; Coroners, L. W. Skinner and S. G. Isaman.

The sad accident of Nov. 15th whereby Mr. Seth F. Mason, one of the first pioneers of this region, lost his life is well remembered by old settlers. Mr. Mason was returning from Elk Rapids in the schooner rigged boat Sentinel, and when near the Charlevoix dock, while 'coming about' was capsized by the heavy sea. The occupants, Mr. Mason and Cornelius Manney, clung to the boat which drifted under the old dock. Mr. Mason was stunned in some manner, and drowned. His companion was saved by a line being thrown. Mr. Mason's body was recovered two days later a mile down the beach. He left a wife and nine children and many friends who mourn his sad fate. In the words of an old resident, "His death was a loss that was felt by everybody."

The following is a list of steamers and the number of times each touched at Charlevoix during the season of 1870. Gen. Paine, 31; Fountain City, 27; Idaho, 31; Plymouth, 18; Tonawanda, 13; Oneida, 7; Mohawk, 7; Empire State, 3; Badger State, 5, Roanoke, 3; Susquehanna, 3, St. Louis, 2; City of Concord, 1; Lake Breeze, 1. Tugs Leviathan, Hattie May and Waukazoo, each 1. Schooners Andrews and Alice, each 2; Phoenix, Union, Montezuma, William Smith and H. B. Steele, each 1. Scow Maple Leaf, 17. Making a total of 238 as compared with 212 the season previous.

Atlanta Correspondence.

ATLANTA, Ga. Jan 24, 1887.

To the Editors of Sentinel.

From Chattanooga to Atlanta over the Western and Atlantic R. R., we pass through what was, twenty-three years ago, almost a continual battle ground, principally between the armies commanded by Sherman and Johnston. Commencing at Chickamauga on the 18th, 19th and 20th of September, 1863, between the Confederates under Bragg and the Federals under Rosecranz, which is said to have been one of the bloodiest of the war, where 26,000 men were killed and wounded, and Bragg captured 8,000 prisoners, 51 cannon and 15,000 small arms. This is only 12 miles from Chattanooga. At the next station, Grayville, a battle was fought, Nov. 26, 1863, also a hot fight between Wheeler's Confederate cavalry and the Federals Aug. 16, 1864. Then at Ringold, the next station, on Sept. 21, 1863, a heavy cavalry fight took place, in which the Union forces were driven off in disorder. At the same place Nov. 27, 1863, a very hard fought battle occurred between fighting Joe Hooker and Pat Claybourne where Hooker was defeated with considerable loss. At the next station, Catoosa, only two miles from Ringold, on Sept. 14, 1863, a sharp cavalry fight took place where the Confederates were driven to Tunnel Hill, the next station; where, on Nov. 28, 1863, a very sharp battle was fought, when the Union forces were repulsed with quite a loss of life, and on the 23d of May, 1864, also on the 6th of May '64, and again on the 7th of May '64. The last one was a victory for the Union forces. There were others just off the line of the R. R., Mill Creek Gap, Dug Gap and Rocky Face. Then at Dalton, May 13, Aug. 14 and Oct. 13, '64; two at Tilton, the next next station, Aug. 14 and Oct. 13 '64. Resaca, the next station, had her share May 9, 13, 14 and 15, also Oct. 12, '64, where the old Confederate soldiers say was some hard fighting. Then comes Calhoun with a fight Aug. 14; Adamsville, May 17; Kingston, May 19. Cassville the the next, with two battles May 19 and 21. Altaloone on Oct. 5th. This is the place where Gen. Corse received by signals a message from Gen. Sherman on Kennesaw mountain, instructing him to "Hold the fort for I am coming."

As a memorial of this bloody battle at the south end of the pass, close to the track on the west side, is a lone grave, the last resting place of a Confederate soldier who was buried on the spot where he fell. The track hands of the W. & A. R. R. take care of the grave. They have a neat marble headstone on which is the inscription, "An unknown hero; he died for the cause he thought was right."

The next station, Acworth, June 5, also Oct. 4; then Big Shanty, June 5, a cavalry fight, also Oct. 4; then just off the R. R. line, Moon's Station, Noonday Creek, Pine Mountain, Gilgal Church, Mud Creek, Kupps Farm, also the battles around Kennesaw Mountain which were 7 in number. Then comes Marietta, which is only 20 miles from Atlanta, and is a fine looking place, and also is quite a summer resort for the people of the flat country of southern Georgia and northern Florida.

They have some good hotels there which they say are well filled during the winter with northern people.

From Marietta to Atlanta quite a number of battles were fought. Then the battles around here. I was talking with an old gentleman that lived here at the time, and he said Sherman was throwing shells into the town from some four different points at the same time. He said that he had thirteen shells buried in his yard that were thrown there during the siege. I should like to follow Sherman's trip from Atlanta to the sea, but I will not this trip.

We left Chattanooga in the morning at 8 o'clock via the Western and Atlantic R. R., arriving here at 1:30 p. m. The cars run almost through the center of the city and the car shed is as near the center as possible to get it, and is convenient to get to from any part of the city. The hotel accommodations here are good. The Kindel house is very fine. It is just across the street from the depot and covers about one-half of a square and is six stories high and very finely finished. Then the Markham house is almost as large, but not as handsome a building, but they take good care of their guests. Next the Adams, Arlington and a good many smaller ones. The prominent business streets are well paved with Belgian block pavement.

The old capitol is on Marrietta-st., a very plain building. One would call it anything but the capitol building. They are now at work on the new one, which they have up to the second story. It is of white marble and granite and when completed will be something which Atlanta and the state may justly feel proud of. The Governor's mansion is on Peachtree street, and is a lovely home. It is situated in a large yard with nice surroundings, making it very pleasant. The Post Office, City Hall and other public buildings, are of a fair order.

The principal business streets are Whitehall, Peachtree, Decatur and Marietta. They all start from the center of the city running east, west, north and south. Right at this point they have an artesian well about 2,200 feet deep, furnishing a limited supply of good water. The most of the inhabitants however, use their own well water. The city affords good water-works, but the water is not suitable for household purposes. The fire department is one of the best in the south and does excellent work. The city is well governed and has a good police force.

Atlanta had prohibition for the last year, but the way their law is, it does not prohibit, from the fact that they license wine rooms where native wines are sold, and on Christmas day there was one more drunk taken up than the year before. However it can be made a success here if the city council will do their duty. The people seem to be moving in that direction now and think they can make a success of it.

This is quite a railroad center, five or six different roads running in here. They have 50 trains in and out of the car sheds every 24 hours. There is considerable manufacturing done here—two large cotton factories with furniture factories, coffin factories, machine shops, founderies, car shops, and a host of smaller enterprises.

The weather is very fine here now. We have had some bad weather, but not much, and only a few days at a time. Have had two snow storms since we have been here. It is pleasant to spend the winter in the south, but for a permanent home give me Michigan.

Yours Respectfully,
BYRON SEE.

Ironton.

The H. H. Society now numbers 25 members.

Elder Iddings has some good talk for young people on hand and will dispense it on Feb. 6 to young men in the morning and young ladies in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop lost their little 10 months old Johnnie last week.

A four pound daughter came to the home of Eldridge Mason on Thursday morning, the 20th.

School inspector, F. E. Miller finished an inspection of the schools of this township last week, and reports all in a flourishing condition.

A child of John Mitchel, Indian, was buried from the Congregational church on Sunday.

Almond Bird is confined to his house by a lingering sickness which attacked him early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Perois buried their little Freddie from the M. E. church on Monday of last week. He was 9 months old and sick but a few days. The parents have the hearty sympathy of their many friends. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. T. Iddings.

It is to be regretted that a man should have to bury his own child, with no divine services whatever, in this town of two churches; yet it is a fact, that with only one man to drive the team, one of our citizens buried his child with no representation from any church. Let us look to it fellow-citizens that this does not occur again.

Geo. McMulkin strained his back severely on Friday while, with his men, he was loading the teams. The boys laid him across a load of wood and fetched him home. George says we are to report him as having "a lump on his back."

The universal verdict is the Company have the most obliging corps of teamsters this winter that has ever managed their teams.

Read educational column for report of schools for January.

Treasurer Brown smiled a patronizing smile on the tax-payers of Ironton last week. The Town Board have given him twenty more days from Feb. 1st. we understand, to finish collecting.

Prof. Burrows, phrenologist, etc., lectured and examined heads without a comb, at the school house, Friday and Saturday evenings. Among other hidden things revealed was the fact one of our prominent citizens was a cow doctor, a profession much needed here.

The residence of Egbert A. Smith, of the lumber firm of Thompson, Smith Sons with its contents were burned last week. The fire department could render no assistance. Loss on the building and contents is $25,000; insured for $8,000.—Cheboygan Tribune.

The navy department has definitely resolved to arm the new cruiser with the dynamite air gun, which carries a projectile containing 400 pounds of dynamite. There will be three of these guns in a line with the keel of the vessel, so that the firing will be dead fore-and-aft, insuring an accuracy of aim not possible with the broadside on account of the rolling of the vessel. The dynamite cartridge is expected to blow any vessel of any size or construction quite out of the water. It is the first approach to modern warfare that the United States government has attempted.

Shingles For Sale.

For sale cheap, 50,000 shingles at Smithson's Lumbering Camp, Norwood, Mich.

Old papers sold at this office.

HORSE FOR SALE. Inquire of S. M. See, Charlevoix.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

WANTED.—A steady situation in a store. Six years experience. Address D. C. BACON, Box 233, Charlevoix.

The Kalamazoo Minstrels are a great success. They gave an entertainment recently in which a number of members of the resort took part, at which $300 was realized for the benefit of the poor.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Low Prices still Continue

AT

George W. Miller's.

A REMINDER FOR JANUARY

Our Remnants!

COME AND SEE THEM. YOU ARE SURE TO BUY.

Everything Down, Down! At

F. W. CRAINE & CO'S

OUR GREAT 1-4 OFF SALE!

A BIG SUCCESS.

OUR STORE CROWDED WITH CUSTOMERS EVERY DAY.

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY IN WHICH ANY MERCHANT CAN SUCCEED IN GETTING UP A GENUINE BIG RUSH AND THAT WAY IS TO GIVE CUSTOMERS REAL

BARGAINS,

and live straight up to your advertisements. This we have always fully carried out, and hence the great success of our 1-4 off Sale. When we say 1-4 off, it means 1 4 off. Buy what you please and we will sell it to you at the regular price and deduct 1-4 off the bottom of your bill. All our goods are marked in plain figures.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

SPECIAL

Clearance Sale of Dry Goods.

All Winter Goods at a Great Sacrifice to close.

We have too many BLANKETS, and FLANNELS, too much HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR YARN, KNIT GOODS, etc, and must close them out.

GROCERIES & PROVISIONS! Always a full stock and always at guaranteed Lowest Prices.

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR SHIPPING WOOD, TIES, and POSTS.

J. L. HURD & CO.

CUT, SLASH, CRASH!! BANG!

THE LARGEST STOCK OF CLOTHING!

EVER FOUND IN OUR STORE.

After taking invoice of our stock we find our tables overrun with Clothing.

To this end we have decided to give a Special Sale in this line for

30-Days Only-30

BARGAINS! As our price-list below shows, can be had in Gent's, Youths', and Children's Suitings.

A good Overcoat	worth $8	for $4.50
A fine "	" $10	" 7.00
" "	" $14	" $10
A Boys "	" $5	" $3
" "	" $8	" 5
A good Wool Suit	" $7	" 4
An All " "	" 10	" 7
A fine all wool Dress Suit,	" $18	" 14
A " " " " "	" $25	" 18
A Boy's Suit	" $5	" 3
A Childs "	" $3	" 1.50
A " "	" $5	" $4

Remember this benfit to purchasers is for 30 days only, and now if you are in need of Clothing, is the time to buy cheap.
Soliciting a share of your patronage, we are

RESPECTFULLY YOURS,

Rosenthal & Son

on the corner.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—41 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1887. WHOLE NO. 898

ROSENTHAL & SON ARE SELLING OUT!

OWING TO A CHANGE WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE IN OUR STORE IN THE SPRING, WE MUST SELL OUR

---STOCK OF---

DRY GOODS, CARPETS, CLOTHING, CLOAKS, NOTIONS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, ETC.

REGARDLESS OF COST!

WE MEAN BUSINESS! EVERYTHING IN OUR STORE WILL BE SOLD AT SOME PRICE, FOR CASH ONLY.

Now is the time to get Bargains. Come and see for yourself.

RESPECTFULLY, ROSENTHAL & SON.

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!

---HEADQUARTERS---

For Everything needed in the School Room, at

HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods

BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

"There is a tide in the affairs of Men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

If you are going to use any building Hardware, now is the time to buy it! Iron, Nails, and all kinds of Hardware are advancing. Be advised the present low prices cannot continue. Until after our annual invoice is taken, we offer great bargains in everything in our line. Buy NOW and save money! Heatng Stoves at remarkably low prices.

Yours Truly
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BRANCH STORE AT HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year . $1 50 | Six months . 1 75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—C. J. Lloyd, of Detroit, was in town Saturday.

—The call for a county convention appears in another column.

—You will be sorry if you miss the G. A. R. camp fire Monday evening.

—Every $1.00 paid A. J. Mudge for trade secures a ticket for a valuable prize.

—Craine & Co. in their artistic advertisement, announce a continuance of their ¼ off sale.

—Preaching at Black's next Sabbath at 2:30 o'clock; in the evening at Johnson's. All are invited.

—W. H. Downer left Saturday for Chicago and Geneva Lake, Wis., and will be absent about two weeks.

—Myron Geer says that if a locomotive ever crosses his farm he will unyoke his cattle at the blamed thing.

—The gentleman who took the wrong fur cap by mistake at the Masonic Lodge last evening, is requested to call at this office.

—Dr. G. W. Crouter went this week to attend the sessions of the Grand Encampment and the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. He will be absent about two weeks.

—J. Reed Emrey received word from Capt. Vanderhoof yesterday that the Friant and Lou Cummings would both be placed on the route between Harbor Springs and East Jordan this season, under one management.

—Dr. Carlstein will deliver the second lecture in the home course at Green's Hall, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 23. "A talk on Travels in Europe." Let all remember the date, and come out to hear the Doctor, who is sure to entertain.

—In the event of war with Canada, the British have 111 war vessels that they could send through the Welland canal, and destroy the cities of the lakes. It is horrible to contemplate the possible fate of Chicago, Milwaukee and Norwood.

—A recent issue of the Grand Rapids Eagle contains a report of a meeting of the Traverse City Business Men's Association, of which the following is a paragraph: "Quite an interest was taken in a talk regarding a proposed railroad from Traverse City to Charlevoix and on motion of Mr. Hannah, Mr. T. T. Bates, Mr. F. Hamilton and Mr. G. E. Steele were made a committee of three to confer with the citizens of Charlevoix and invite them to turn their attention toward Traverse City with their proposed railroad to connect here with the G. R. & I. Ry. and C. & W. M. Ry."

Grand Rapids Telegram Herald: R. M. Cherrie, of Charlevoix, passed through the city yesterday on his way home from New York, where he has been to interview capitalists in a new railroad enterprise just born in the north country. A company has been organized with a capital of $600,000 to build a railroad from Charlevoix to Grayling, on the line of the Michigan Central railroad, touching at the principal points en route. The plans are not all perfected yet, and it may be decided later to run the road down Bellaire, around to Elk Rapids, and thence to Traverse City to connect with the G. R. & I. and the new extension of the C. & W. M., instead of to Grayling. The organization will be perfected this month, and it is expected that active work will commence as soon as weather will permit.

—A telephone office has been put in at Eastport.

—Amos Fox and family occupied their new residence Friday.

—Attend the G. A. R. camp fire at opera hall next Monday evening.

—Hon. John Nicholls and wife returned from Ohio on Sunday last.

—Show the old soldiers that you are their friends by attending their camp-fire at Opera Hall on Monday evening next.

—Rev. W. H. McCartney delivers the first of the course of home lectures at Green's Hall this (Wednesday) evening. Subject, "Grant in the Wilderness."

—Rosenthal and Son are preparing for a change in their establishment and are advertising a genuine closing out sale. Their stock is complete in every department.

—Among the various means of education the public lecture holds high rank. By the low price of season tickets, fifty cents, our "home course" of four lectures has been put within the reach of nearly every one who desires to enjoy its benefits.

—We have not been successful lately in our fishing and have been vowing the fool fish had left the Halifax, but yesterday a fine trout and bass weighing 12 pounds were brought into the office labeled HALIFAX JOURNAL, E. Carpenter. He is a Charlevoix, Mich. man but that does not prevent us from feeling pleasure at his friendly remembrance and gracefully yielding the palm to him as one of the cleverest fishermen of Port Orange. - Halifax, Fla., Journal:— And the editor might have added, "one of the best fellows that ever balanced a fish pole."

The Fire Department.

At the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Fire Department held Monday evening, all the old officers were re-elected, excepting Assistant Chief—John Kirby being the new officer. Mr. Grier's re-election was especially a wise action, and we are glad that he reconsidered his determination to decline a re-election. The department is wide awake and loyal.

What Are We Going to Do About It.

The crisis is at hand. The prohibitory amendment is submitted to the people. On the first Monday of April next, the voters of Michigan will record their verdict for or against constitutional prohibition of the manufacture of intoxicating liquors and the liquor traffic. Is there any temperance work to be done in the interval. Friends of the measure, in any part of the Grand Traverse region, desiring the services of a speaker are invited to correspond with the undersigned.

M. L. LEACH.

Programme for G. A. R. Campfire, Monday Evening, Feb. 14th, 1887.

Harrison Herdan, officer of the day.

1. Post will enter the Opera house at half past seven sharp, under command of E. H. Green, post commander. As they march in, the band will play "Marching through Georgia." They will change front by the right and left.
2. The manual of arms.
3. Music.
4. Saber exercises, command of Adjutant Glass.
5. Music.
6. Bayonet exercises, command of post commander Green.
7. Camp scenes; mail arrives; in from picket; the love letter; the mode of punishing the refractory, bucked and gagged; the hobby; surrounded by good influences; the sick call, etc.

PART SECOND.

1. Music.
2. Address by Rev. W. H. McCartney.
3. Music.
4. Reading by Miss Cody.
5. Hard tack and coffee free for all.
6. Voluntary talks, music, and a good time generally.

Tickets at the door fifteen cents; children ten cents. Tin cups can be had of the sutler.

Come one, come all.

Charlevoix Harbor.

We have just received the annual report of Capt. D. W. Lockwood, who has charge of the harbor improvement on this shore. From the report we clip as follows:

The amount expended to June 30, 1885, was $66,207.10, and resulted in obtaining a channel of navigable width and 12½ feet mid-depth between the piers, and a 12-foot channel 30 feet wide connecting Round and Pine lakes, revetted on the north side for 339 feet and on the south side 366 feet. The amount expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1886, was $3,772.79, and resulted in repairing and re-filling 330 feet of old north pier from shore-line out.

The available depth for navigation is about 12 feet.

The amount that can be profitably expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1888, is to be applied to extending the south pier into Lake Michigan in accordance with approved project, completing the revetment of channel between Round and Pine lakes, and in general repairs to piers and plank beam revetments.

July 1, 1886, amount available	1,028 11
Amount appropriated by act approved August 5, 1886	10,000 00
Amount available for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1887	11,028 11
Amount (estimated) required for completion of existing project	125,000 00
Amount that can be profitably expended in fiscal year ending June 30, 1888	30,000 00
Vessels entered and cleared	674
Revenue collected	$[illegible]

The crib-piers are in serviceable condition, but owing to the fact that the work stated to have been put in by local enterprise previous to 1873 was merely placed upon the natural bottom of the lake, it has never been possible to dredge the channel between the piers to its full width for fear of undermining. The plank-beam revetments are, in some places, particularly on the south side of the channel, showing evidences of weakness, this is due to the fact that the work was never properly tied back, and pressure from the rear, together with undermining in front, has, in some places inclined it towards the channel.

Historical Society.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Carlstein was filled by members and friends of the Historical Society on Friday evening last. The society was called to order by Vice President Al. T. Washburn. The debate that followed, "Resolved, that women have the right of suffrage," was ably discussed by E. M. Clark and Prof. H. M. Enos in the affirmative, and Dr. Carlstein and R. W. Kane in the negative. Other short speeches followed. The music comprised an organ solo by Miss Luna Washburn, a vocal duett by Dr. Carlstein and Mrs. E. M. Clark, "The Minute Gun at Sea," a quartette by W. A. Smith, Dr. Carlstein, Mrs. F. G. Hines and Mrs. E. M. Clark,— "Sweet and Low," words by Tennyson. The ladies of the society added considerable spice to the evening's entertainment in the tragedy they presented, which was quite an original portrayal of woman's bravery, after which came a reading by O. S. Washburn, showing how brave a man can be under like circumstances. The programme was concluded by a humorous recitation by Miss Cody, entitled "Der Oak und der Vine." The entire evening was one of pleasure and good humor. The decision of the judges on the debate was in the affirmative.

The next meeting will be with Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Allen. The paper of the evening will be by Rev. A. T. Waterman, on "Charlemagne."

Masonic.

There will be a special communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., on Tuesday evening next, Feb. 15, for work on the second degree. Meetings will be held every Tuesday until further notice. The attendance of every member is desired and members of other Lodges residing in this jurisdiction are respectfully invited.

W. A. SMITH, W. M.

Shingles For Sale.

For sale cheap, 50,000 shingles at Smithson's Lumbering Camp, Norwood, Mich.

THE SENTINEL
CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN
SMITH & PARMELEE, - PUBLISHERS

Pre-Historic Africa.

The readers of Mr. Haggard's new story "She" will remember that when his little party of adventurers passed in their boat from the sea into an East African river, they found on the bank a wall of stone that had evidently been a solidly-constructed wharf in some remote period. In a foot note he justifies this conceit by alluding to the ruins of a very ancient city on the coast at Kilwa, south of Zanzibar. It happens that 500 miles nearer the region in which he has placed his story there are evidences of a past civilization that are incomparably greater than those he mentions.

Some way south of the Zambesi river there is a large region extending from the sea nearly 400 miles inland, and 300 to 400 miles toward the south, in which ruins are constantly being discovered, proving that in pre-historic times the country was inhabited by a civilized people. To-day only the rudest black tribes inhabit this land, save in a few places where the Portuguese have established stations. The little beehive huts of the natives are seen among massive ruins betokening a degree of architectural skill which rivals that of the ancient Aztecs. Our knowledge of these ruins is still far from perfect. Our earliest records of travel and trade on the East African coast, extending back to the beginning of the Christian era, do not mention them. Only in recent years have the travels of Selous, Erskine, Mauch, Baines, Mohr, and O'Neill revealed to us the monumental evidences this country contains.

The coast town of Sofala is shown on all maps of East Africa. Near that town Carl Mauch found extensive ruins remarkable for their enduring nature and strange shapes. There are partly-ruined walls, still thirty feet high and twelve feet wide at the base, built of small hewn blocks of granite. In these walls, sometimes fifteen to twenty feet from the ground, are imbedded one end of blocks of stone eighteen to twenty feet long, which were evidently used to support galleries. Here and there, built in the walls or standing by themselves, are round stone towers which evidently rose to heights of thirty to fifty feet. Similar masses of masonry are found as far as 350 miles inland and a little north near the coast.

It is not positively known yet who built these ancient structures. No trained archeologist has visited them, and no search has yet been made for inscriptions, though O'Neill says he has no doubt from what he has recently heard that there are numerous inscriptions on the ruins about Manica. All these ruins are surrounded by surface gold mines. It is believed all this country was occupied some time before the Christian era by a great colony probably of Phœnician origin, and that its chief occupation was gold mining.

Mr. O'Neill says that these numerous ruins are nearly as well preserved as those of ancient Egypt, and better than those of Assyria. Some day, no doubt, they will be systematically studied. Their existence shows conclusively that a large region in inner Africa, now given up to savage men and wild beasts, was subject many centuries ago to the control of a people who were considerably advanced in the arts of civilization.

Relics of Barbarism.

A very limited knowledge of modern Indian life must have prepared the spectators for at least a display of snow-shoes, toboggans, miniature wigwams, and bead-work of every description; but it is doubtful if the superintendent general of Indian affairs himself would have been proof against surprise at what was shown as the result of a much sterner life. From the workshop there were agricultural implements, carpentering, and stone-cutting; while the leisure hours of the people were represented by penmanship, pictures, and portraits—one of the Huron chief of Lorrette, with tomahawk and canoe paddle, executed by himself—and by even original poems in manuscript.

But the Indians have not all too suddenly transformed themselves into farmers, artisans, and poets. They are still barbarous enough to retain some of their relish for recreation, and a genuine capability for enjoying it. So the "English Fellows," or "Royal Caughnawagas," as they prefer to call themselves, were in the full power of the red and yellow attire which struck terror into the hearts of their civilized lacrosse brethren in England. A glee club, modulating their war-cry into the strains of music, presented a varied programme as the result of their evening pastime by the winter log-fire.

And while the spears of the aborigines are being beaten into colonial pruning-hooks, the war-dance is preserved as an entertainment for fete days and favored guests.

The dance was introduced by a song, under the leadership of one who from time to time shook and rattled a horn filled with small pebbles. Then discussion took the place of music, the dispute growing more and more angry, until tomahawks were raised, and the faces of the combatants had assumed the most threatening expression and their bodies the most menacing attitudes. A warrior sprang into the center of the group, gesticulating, stamping, and yelling, while the others told their sympathy and hate by a low monotone of stamp kept up by the feet as if by electricity. This grew louder and more aggressive, until body and soul seemed to be possessed by one set purpose of yelling and stamping, impelled by the desire of blood and the prospect of revenge. The scene, even in mimicry, was too awful to be entertaining, had it not given evidence of having produced delight instead of rage in the breasts of the performers, and had it not been adroitly fused by them into a finale of farcical buffoonery, amid deafening rounds of applause.—The Quiver.

She Knew the Woman.

"I have found a letter from a woman in your pocket," said a jealous wife to her husband. "It's signed 'Annie,' too. It is bad enough for you to be running around after other women without getting hold of one who has my name."

"Did you read it?" he inquired.

"Yes, and it's perfectly sickening in its love talk. The shameless creature who could write such a letter ought to be sent to the penitentiary."

"Did you notice the date?"

"No, but I will. Why, it is dated Oct. 3, 1878."

"Yes, my love; it is one of the dear old love-letters you wrote me before we were married."—Drake's Travelers' Magazine.

NONE WILL MISS THEE.

Few will miss thee, friend, when thou
For a month in dust hast lain:
Skillful hand and anxious brow,
Tongue of wisdom, busy brain—
All thou wert shall be forgot,
And thy place shall know thee not.

Shadows from the bending trees
O'er thy lowly head may pass,
Sighs from every wandering breeze
Stir the long, thick churchyard grass;
Wilt thou heed them? No; thy sleep
Shall be dreamless, calm, and deep.

Some sweet bird may sit and sing
On the marble of thy tomb,
Soon to flit on joyous wing
From that place of death and gloom,
On some bough to warble clear,
But these songs thou shalt not hear.

Some kind voice may sing thy praise,
Passing near thy place of rest,
Fondly talk of other days;
But no throb within thy breast
Shall respond to words of praise,
Or old thoughts of other days.

Since so fleeting is thy name,
Talent, beauty, power and will,
It were well that without shame
Thou in God's great book were writ,
There in golden words to be
Graven for eternity.

MME. SASSON'S DILEMMA.

In 1885 M. Paul Sasson resided on the Boulevard de Neuilly, Paris. He was a speculator and financier and about 50 years of age. He was married and had a daughter Corinne and a son Charles. He kept up an expensive establishment and was reputed rich. Early in the year named he became reserved and morose and was constantly talking to his family about their extravagance and the necessity of reducing expenses. At length he grew almost violent in his conduct toward his family and the greatest forbearance had to be exercised by them.

Oct. 21 M. Sasson went to the city early. About noon he returned with a van, and set several men to work removing the pictures from the parlors. He was very stern, and took no notice of his family, who did not expostulate. He returned to the city, and was not home until late. The next morning at breakfast he informed his family that he was about to curtail his establishment, and to that end had resolved to move into a smaller and less pretentious dwelling.

"Have you suffered such heavy losses as to render this necessary?" his wife asked. "It is very inopportune just at this juncture, when Corinne expects soon to receive a proposal of marriage."

"Let her marry whom she pleases," he replied, roughly; "she will soon bring him to poverty with her extravagance."

"She is sought by a worthy gentleman," the son said, "and the connection is in every way desirable."

"It is proper for you not to interfere in such matters," the father said; "you will have enough to do to attend to your own cares in life. You have already failed in two examinations at college, and have shown yourself incompetent for anything."

"I am competent," the son replied with warmth, "to protect my mother and sister."

"Insolent!" exclaimed his father; and, rushing toward him, he clenched his fist as though to strike him.

Mme. Sasson interposed her person between the irate man and his son. M. Sasson ground his teeth with rage, and then struck his wife a violent blow over the side of the head. The son was ready to grapple with his father, but his mother entreated him to forbear. Soon afterward M. Sasson quitted the house.

After a brief consultation Mme. Sasson resolved to seek refuge with her sister, and her children agreed to accompany her. Trunks were hastily packed and preparations made for immediate departure. While her children were engaged in this work Mme. Sasson went to a bureau where her husband kept a revolver.

"If he should return and see us preparing for departure he might do something desperate," she said to herself.

She took the pistol from the drawer; and holding it among the folds of her dress went to her apartments. As she quitted the library she found M. Sasson's valet at the door. He turned aside and made no remark, and she passed on in silence. On reaching the apartments occupied by herself and her husband she found her children busy packing. She placed the revolver behind a vase on the mantlepiece without being observed.

When M. Sasson returned home in the evening he found the house deserted. The valet told him that his wife and children had departed together, having first packed several trunks, which they had taken with them.

"I saw madame go to your bureau in the library," the valet said at the conclusion of his story.

M. Sasson went to the library and examined the bureau.

"My revolver has been removed," he said.

"I saw madame quit the library," the valet said, "holding by her side something which was concealed by the drapery."

In the evening Mme. Sasson discovered that she had left a large sum of money in her boudoir. She had immediate need of this sum, and how to get it was the subject of much thought. She determined to say nothing of it to her children for fear Charles should insist upon going to their former residence for it and thus perhaps be brought into collision with his father. Finally she devised a scheme. She had the keys of the side entrance from the garden to the house. She thought that in the darkness she could easily find admission to the dwelling-house, reach unperceived the boudoir, procure the money, and return without any one's being the wiser for her adventure. To get her children out of the way she suggested that they should visit her brother, who resided a mile away, and communicate to him the step she had taken. As soon as they were gone she quitted her sister's house unknown to any one but her maid, whom she had taken with her, and, procuring a cab, went to within a hundred yards of her former residence on the Boulevard de Neuilly. Directing the driver to wait for her return she went toward the dwelling, opening the gate into the garden with caution; she left it ajar and crossed the lawn to a side door. This she also left ajar, being afraid that the closing of it might rouse the inmates.

Without difficulty or molestation she ascended the stairs and succeeded in getting possession of the money. She quitted the house, still leaving the side door ajar, but on passing out of the garden she closed the gate and hastily walked toward the cab. She reached her sister's house before her children returned and without her absence having been noticed.

The next morning M. Sasson failed to call for his valet as usual. After waiting for some time, according to the valet's statement, he went to his master's apartment and found him lying in bed with a bullet hole in his head. On the coverlet lay his revolver. His watch and purse were missing. His wardrobe had been ransacked and his escritoire broken open. There was no doubt that the assassin had been at work.

The Judge of Instruction and his officers investigated the case and arrived at the conclusion that murder and robbery had been done. The valet told what he knew about the family troubles and the fact that Mme. Sasson and her children having left their home the previous day on account of what had passed between monsieur and his wife and son. Then the valet related the incident of the revolver.

But how had any one entered the house? Jean Chauban, the valet, testified that early in the morning, as he was taking the milk at the garden door, he observed that the side door of the house was ajar, and going in that way closed it after him. The garden wall was high, but an expert climber could easily scale it on either side.

The gendarmes on duty near by testified that between 10 and 11 o'clock the previous night he saw a cab standing within a few hundred feet of the house. He spoke with the driver, who said:

"Some gay old bachelor must live near by for a very comely woman has just disappeared by the side of that house."

The cabman was easily found by the police. Did he know the lady? No. Where did he take her up? On the corner of the Rue de Morny and the Faubourg St. Honora. Mme. Sasson's sister presided on the Rue de Morny near the Rue de Ponthea. It was a very painful conclusion to reach, but there was no avoiding it—Mme. Sasson had assassinated her husband and the missing articles were taken merely to turn aside suspicion. She had lived unhappily with him; he had determined to reduce his establishment; he had struck her.

All these facts were testified to by domestics. Then came the episode of the pistol, narrated by the valet, and the further fact, admitted by Mme. Sasson's maid when she was cleverly captured on the street and removed to the office of the Judge of Instruction, that Mme. Sasson had a key to the garden and the side door of the house, and that she had been absent from her sister's house for two hours between 9:30 and 11:30 the night Oct. 22.

Everything being thus clear, Mme. Sasson was arrested and charged with the crime of murder. Mme. Sasson denied the accusation and told the story as the reader has it before him, omitting the episode of the pistol.

"Do you remember going to the bureau in the library before you left the house Oct. 22?" the Judge of Instruction asked her.

"Yes, I do."

"You took a revolver out of the bureau, and you haven't mentioned the fact."

"I did; but I refrained from saying anything about it because I did not wish to have to say that I was afraid my husband might shoot one or the other of us."

"What did you do with the pistol?"

"I put it behind a vase on the mantlepiece in my husband's apartment, intending to remove it, but I forgot it."

In consultation afterward the Judge said to Goupe, a detective:

"This woman does not talk nor look like a guilty person. If she is not guilty—and, mark you, she has just the sum of money she says she went for to her boudoir, and the missing watch has not been found near her or about her—if she is not the assassin, how came the murderer to find the pistol hidden behind the vase? You have seen the vase and know just how and where she laid it. Is it possible that any one whom Mme. Sasson left behind her did the deed?"

This suggestion put the detective on a line of inquiry, and he pursued it with vigor, but found no clew. Mme. Sasson was convicted of the killing of her husband and sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment.

Jean Chauban, the former valet of M. Sasson, assumed the name of Roumaine and opened a wineshop in the Rue Gresse, near the Bois de Boulogne. Six months after Mme. Sasson's conviction, in the spring of 1886, Detective Goupe was looking for a wandering swindler who had cheated several charitable ladies in the suburbs of the city. In his wanderings Goupe dropped into the wineshop of Jean Roumaine, and was soon on friendly terms with that gentleman, for he immediately identified him, elaborately transformed as he was, as M. Sasson's former valet, whom he had watched for a month, in various disguises to see whether he could connect him with the crime of Oct. 22.

M. Roumaine had a splendid gold chain on his vest, and Goupe asked him the time. He pulled out the elegant repeater, which Goupe had no hesitation in saying exactly answered the description of the watch stolen from M. Sasson when he was murdered.

"A fine watch," said the officer.

"Yes—a present from a dead friend," answered Roumaine.

"Ah, very precious, no doubt," said the officer.

"A sad remembrance," was the reply, with an assumed look of sorrow.

"I once knew a gentleman who had a watch just like that," said the detective, "and, strange to say, he is dead also."

"A coincidence," said the valet. "Won't monsieur drink?"

"Thanks," was the reply. "It is a strange coincidence, and, would you believe it, my friend was murdered. Why, monsieur, what is the matter with you? Was your friend murdered also?"

"No, no, not that, monsieur," was the answer; "but your words startled me. Murder you see, is such a dreadful thing, and one never knows, in this great city, who he has near him."

"That is very true," said the officer, "my poor friend, for instance, didn't know. Listen it is very strange. The jury said that my friend was murdered by his wife—think of that; but I say he was murdered by his valet."

Roumaine, pale as a ghost, was staring with alarmed gaze right at the officer and clinging with both hands to the counter.

"Let us drink," said the officer, apparently not noticing the state in which Roumaine was. Goupe filled his glass with brandy and Roumaine did the same.

"You feel strong and refreshed?" asked the officer. "Just so; now, if you please, you will put on your coat and come along with me, Jean Chauban, for you're wanted for the murder of M. Sasson."

As Goupe covered the man with his revolver at the moment he uttered these words there was no help for him. Quietly and without any resistance, Roumaine went with the officer. The watch in his possession, the money which he had invested in the wine-shop were evidence against him, and at length he broke down and confessed his guilt.

"I saw madame quitting her boudoir on the night of Oct. 22 and followed her to the garden. I saw her leave the door ajar and go out by the garden. It at once struck me that here was a good chance to rob my master and lay it to his wife. After she and the children had quitted the house I searched for the pistol and found it behind the vase. After I was sure that monsieur was fast asleep I got the revolver and went to his room. He had drunk heavily before retiring, but to my surprise he awoke as I was rummaging the wardrobe. He cried 'Thieves!' and was about to get out of bed, when I fired and he fell back dead. Then I gathered all the plunder I could and hid it away. I did not volunteer too much information during the investigation, because I thought the evidence would convict Mme. Sasson without much say on my part."

It is needless to say that Mme. Sasson was released and Jean Chauban sent to the gallows.

Experts in Handwriting.

I showed a letter one day to a lady who was thought to be a great authority on such matters. She loaded the handwriting with every species of abuse. It was the writing of a bad-tempered man, of a stupid man, of an ignorant man; there could be no relieving feature whatever in such handwriting as that. "And now, madam," I said, "will you look at the signature." It was the signature of Macaulay. So, if you wish to obtain an opinion worth having respecting the ownership of handwriting, it is far best for you to obtain a skilled opinion. You are not obliged to believe the expert any more than if you are upon a jury, and it becomes peculiarly difficult to believe when two experts are swearing hard against one another. Nevertheless, if the opinion of an expert will not help you, there is no opinion on which you can safely go. A very remarkable case of identification of handwriting came to my knowledge some time ago. A gentleman had offered a large sum of money for the discovery of a marriage register, the production of which was highly necessary in a heavy litigation.

A clergyman from the country wrote to say that the missing register had turned up in the vestry box of his own parish. A solicitor and a well-known expert were sent down to examine the document. The clergyman showed them the marriage register, and after a protracted examination they all went to lunch. Then an opinion decidedly unfavorable to the genuineness of the document was delivered by the expert in handwriting. It was quite modern handwriting, and did not possess the comparative and antiquity claimed it. "Then, how in the world did it get there?" asked the vicar. The expert had diligently examined the vicar's handwriting in his own note and said quietly, "Why, you forged it yourself." The unhappy parson, being threatened with highly penal consequences, fled the country. I am sorry to say anything against the cloth, but many of my readers will recognize this as a true story. The moral is that if it is really necessary to trace and expose an anonymous communication you had better use the best available means for doing so.—London Society.

Old Women's Whispers.

If on going out of the house you forget something you must under no circumstances turn back if you can possibly avoid it; if you do you must at any rate sit down a moment before going out again.

If the first person you meet is an old woman it is a sign of coming misfortune, while, on the contrary, a funeral procession denotes good fortune.

Pigs to your left bring good luck; to your right the opposite, to avert which, grasp something made of steel and the spell will be broken.

If on setting out on a journey you meet a sow with pigs your enterprise will be sure to be successful.

To meet two magpies portends marriage; three, a successful journey; four, unexpected good news.

To see one magpie and then more is unlucky; to kill one of these birds is irretrievable misfortune. It is also unlucky to kill a swallow.

If your left hand itches you will take in money; if the right you will pay it out.

A ringing in the right ear means that some one is speaking well of you; in the left, you may be sure that evil tongues are busy with you.

If your right eye itches you will see some beautiful sight; if the left, you will have cause to shed tears.

If your nose itches you will hear some news or—will fall into the mire.

Circumstantial Evidence.

I have very little faith in circumstantial evidence, having seen so many instances where it was in error. In direct testimony a witness may distort the truth, but in circumstantial evidence he has a double opportunity to lie, and no way of tripping him up. I remember a case in Mississippi, happening when I was a boy, that has made me chary about using circumstantial evidence since I have been engaged in the practice of law.

The victim was a poor man, who came there from the north, got hold of a small farm to cultivate, and constructed a log hut down by the river, in which he lived all alone. Near him resided a rich planter. Around his hut the country was very soft and swampy. It was off the main road and was not seen frequently by travelers, but a bridle-path leading near the hut was used considerably by people around there to cut off the distance to town. This rich planter one day, in closing up his season's crops went to town to settle up with his agents, and it was expected would have considerable money with him on his return.

The time passed for him to return and he did not come. Later his horse arrived home, riderless. A search was instituted, and early next morning the body of the planter was found in the swampy land off the bridle-path. His pockets had been rifled, and it was clear that the murder had been committed for robbery. Beside the body was found a derringer, with the name of the occupant of the hut engraved on it. Leading from the hut to the body and back to the hut were well-defined tracks. At the hut the man was found sleeping, the mate to the derringer by his side, his shoes muddy, and his hat filled with papers taken from the dead man's pockets. The shoes fitted the tracks nicely, and a very strong case of circumstantial evidence was made out. He was tried, convicted, and hanged. He protested his innocence so strongly on the scaffold that the sheriff delayed in the performance of his duty. Within twelve months after that a hard case in that county was mortally wounded, and on his death-bed he confessed to having committed the murder, and gave up money and papers he had secured. He said he had crossed from the road to the hut in his stocking feet, had put on the poor man's shoes, armed himself with his derringer, and laid in wait for the planter, and after committing the murder had fixed the evidences of guilt around the still sleeping occupant of the hut.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Under the Ocean.

One-half of the earth's solid surface is buried in the abysmal regions of the ocean, and exists as undulating plains beneath a watery covering from two to five miles thick. On this land at the bottom of the deep sea, the director of the Challenger publication tells us, the conditions presented are most uniform. The Temperature, near the freezing point of fresh water, does not exceed seven degrees in range, and is constant throughout the year in any locality. Sunlight and plant life are absent, and, although animals of the large types are present, there is no great variety of form or abundance of individuals. Change of any kind is exceedingly slow.

At the greatest depths the deposits are chiefly a red clay mixed with fragments of volcanic matter, remains of deep sea animals, cosmic dust, manganese iron nodules, and zeolitic crystals. No analogous deposits have been traced on dry land, although the continents are mainly made up of rocks, which must have formed under the sea near the coasts. Throughout all geological time the deposits of the continent bordering waters appear to have been forced up into dry land through the contraction of the earth, while the abysmal regions have remained the most permanent areas of the earth's surface.—Exchange.

A Curious Experiment.

Some forty years ago, M. Alfred d Vigny desired to ascertain the loss incurred by a continued change of coin. Leaving France, he proceeded first to Frankfort, where he converted a 20-franc piece into different kinds of current coin there, and put it in a purse apart. Arrived at Munich he changed the Frankfort money for the equivalent in Bavarian coin. At Berlin he converted the Munich money into that of Prussia. It went through the same ceremony at Vienna, at Milan, at Naples, and at Rome. After running through Italy, he passed into Switzerland, descended the Rhine, and traversed Holland and Belgium, always changing the money of the country he left for that he entered, addressing himself everywhere to persons worthy of confidence, and making sure he was not deceived or anything deducted for discount. Whilst moving from place to place the purse which originally contained the twenty francs became considerably lighter. In every country the money became less and less weighty. At the conclusion of his journey De Vigny exchanged the remains of his piece of gold against French money, and found that of the twenty francs, of which he had spent nothing, there remained just twelve sous, or about six pence English.

How Much Timber a Tree Will Make.

How is the amount of timber in a standing tree calculated? The usual rule for measuring timber is to measure the trunk round the middle, take one-fourth part of the girth and square it, and multiply this square by the length or hight of the tree. In calculating a standing tree it is usual to measure the hight of the tree to the first fork, and if there is still a good portion of trunk above that it is measured separately and added to the previous calculation. If a tree is very irregular, divide it into several lengths and find the solidity of each part separately; or add all the girths together and divide the sum by the number of them. When the square of the quarter girth is multiplied by the length, the product gives a result nearly one-fourth less than the quantity in the tree. This rule is, however, invariably practiced by timber merchants, and is not likely to be abolished. Some allowance ought to be made to the purchaser on account of the waste in squaring the wood so as to be fit for use. Dr. Hutton recommends the following rule, which will give the content extremely near the truth: "Multiply the square of one-fifth of the girth by twice the length, and the product will be the content."

The slaughter of lobsters at Prince Edward Island is something astounding. There were exported the last season 91 000 cases, mostly to Europe, which involved the killing of 35,000,000 lobsters.

GRAND ARMY ITEMS.

J. M. Mallory, of Nunda, Ill., writes: "General John A. Logan was the originator of Memorial Day, when the surviving veterans and the great mass of our people go to the various cemeteries to decorate the graves of our fallen braves. We wish to suggest that there could not be any more appropriate time to move the remains of our honored dead, General Logan, than the day he set apart for memorial services. Thousands of old soldiers would be present to honor him, who was their best friend."

Comrade W. F. Burnett, of Hanford, Tulare Co., Cal., suggests that the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and old soldiers and sailors generally start a subscription among themselves for a monument to General Logan, to be strictly a Grand Army enterprise, and says: "To my mind it would be a fitting tribute from the old veterans, who were loved so loyally by our great volunteer citizen-soldier. To us the noblest heart in all America ceased to throb at the death of John A. Logan. It is touching to veterans to know that the last words uttered by our heroic Logan were in our praise, in advocacy of certain recognition by the government of our services. Never had soldiers such an advocate, never was leader more loved or honored by the volunteers of the late war. Then, comrades, let us build to our General a monument worthy of our organization. One dollar each from the survivors of the Union volunteer army would be a princely sum and insure a graceful and fitting tribute."

Comrade Fred O. White writes from Aurora, Ill.: "The installation ceremony of Aurora Post, No. 20, Grand Army of the Republic, took place publicly in their beautiful hall last night. The officers installed are: M. D. Yeager, Commander; R. B. Johnson, Senior Vice Commander; J. M. Kennedy, Junior Vice Commander J. V. Raymond, Quartermaster; E. E. Hewitt, Chaplain; A. McNair, Officer of the Day; G. S. Chase, Officer of the Guard. After singing 'Marching Through Georgia,' Past Commander Eli Denney was taken completely by surprise by being made the recipient of an elegant gold-mounted badge, which was made to order at a cost of $75. Comrade Denney has served the past two years as chaplain, three years as adjutant, and two years as commander. The gift was richly deserved and highly appreciated. Rations for all were served by the ladies, and a neat little card was placed on each plate, bearing the inscription, 'Compliments of Women's Relief Corps, No. 10, Auxiliary, to Post No. 20, G. A. R., Aurora, Ill.'"

Champaign County Post, No. 29, Urbana, Ill., held its installation last Monday evening. Past Post Commander James S. McCullough officiated. Following are the officers: Isaac B. Smith, Commander; S. B. Hedges, Senior Vice Commander; D. C. Long, Junior Vice Commander; F. Hatch, Chaplain; W. G. Brown, Quartermaster: R. M Rea, Surgeon; M. M. Harvy, Officer of the Day; J. S. Butler, Officer of the Guard; Francis M. Snyder, Adjutant; J. G. Thompson, Sergeant Major; J. T. Levy, Quartermaster Sergeant.

Dennison Post No. 244, Department of Iowa, Grand Army of the Republic, Center Point, Iowa, had a gala time on installation night, Jan. 7. A large delegation of veterans from Cedar Rapids went by special car, on the Burlington road, to participate in the double installation of the officers of the post and of the Woman's Relief Corps, No. 73, auxiliary to the post. Commander Noble, of Cedar Rapids, conducted the ceremony in both cases. The delegation was met by the post and drum corps at the depot and escorted to the thoroughly equipped post hall. After the installation a literary and musical entertainment took place, followed by a fine supper. The post officers are: L. L. Wilson, Commander; J. B. Wayne, Senior Vice Commander; Joseph Muehler, Junior Vice Commander, J. W. Tiffany, Surgeon; A. L. Rucker, Chaplain; R. E. Tripp, Adjutant; George C. Bliss, Quartermaster; A. Kubins, Officer of the Day; Frank Chesey, Officer of the Guard; S. E. Connor, Sergeant Major; Abram Gable, Quartermaster Sergeant, and John McGaff, Guard. The Woman's Relief Corps is officered as follows: President, Mary Tiffany; Senior Vice President Emma Wilson; Junior Vice President, Phoebe Kubias; Treasurer Sophie Wayne; Secretary, Frances L. Bliss; Chaplain, Evelyn Bach; Conductor, Olive Chesley; Guard, Mary Floyd; Assistant Conductor, Nancy E. Maushan; Assistant Guard, Evelyn Hibard.

General George H Thomas Post, No. 5, Chicago, publicly installed its officers at the Methodist Church Jan. 14. The following comrades were installed into the respective positions to which they had been elected. Past Post Commander E. D. Swain officiating as mustering officer: Commander William H. Rose; Senior Vice Commander, Martin Conrad; Junior Vice Commander, Frederick A. Battery; Surgeon, John R. McCullough; Chaplain, Leander Haynes; Quartermaster, George C. Brown; Officer of the day William H. Wilder; Officer of the Guard, Henry H. Gage; Sergeant Major, George W. Bettsworth; Quartermaster Sergeant, A. M. Church; Adjutant, C. Hunter Miller. Succeeding the ceremony were two presentations, both made unusually interesting by the happy manner in which they were tendered and received. General A. L. Chetlain, on behalf of the Post, presented to Chaplain Haynes a beautiful gold badge, accompanying it with a characteristic speech. Comrade H. P. Thompson was chosen by the post to express its hearty approval of the administration of the retiring commander, G. G. Pierce, and he did it in a very graceful speech. The badge he handed to Comrade Pierce at the close of his remarks is one of great beauty, and will doubtless be worn with pride by the recipient. After the conclusion of these exercises the post and friends marched in a body to Grand Army Hall, where a dance was indulged in, and an excellent supper served.

—Mr. Reuben G. Thwaites has been elected Secretary of the Wisconsin Historical Society. He is a native of Boston, studied at Yale, and has devoted most of his time since to journalism.

Fight in a Church.

The Sources of Rivers.

The Unlucky Number.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

AS THE DOVES TO THEIR WINDOWS.

SHAMEFUL ABUSE

Increase of Heart Disease.

The Grand Old Woman of Hanaam.

Our Progress.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS
WILL CURE HEADACHE
INDIGESTION BILIOUSNESS
DYSPEPSIA
NERVOUS PROSTRATION MALARIA
CHILLS and FEVERS
TIRED FEELING
GENERAL DEBILITY
PAIN in the BACK & SIDES
IMPURE BLOOD
CONSTIPATION
FEMALE INFIRMITIES
RHEUMATISM NEURALGIA
KIDNEY AND LIVER TROUBLES
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

SCROFULA

Hood's Sarsaparilla

OAKLAWN
PERCHERON HORSES.

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT

TELEPHONES

ELY'S CREAM BALM. CATARRH
HAY-FEVER

RUPTURE

FITS

Children Cry FOR PITCHER'S Castoria

PENNYROYAL PILLS
"CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH."

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 9, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

The Indiana senatorial contest will be transferred from Indianapolis to Washington to be settled by the United States senate.

Now that Ninny VanZant has been married to Spies by proxy, the condemned anarchist would like to be hanged in the same way.

It is reported that Secretary Bayard will be given Secretary Manning's place when the latter resigns. If so, the president is getting ready to miss Mr. Manning very much.

The bill to add another judge to the bench of the supreme court has passed both houses and needs only the governor's signature to become a law. Two judges will therefore be elected at the next spring election.

How would Canada like to be annexed to a white country? To be cut loose from the mother apron strings of gouty and wheezy old England and join hands with our excelsior E Pluribus Unum?

The democratic committee of the House has reported Mrs. Logan's pension bill adversely. Were she Fitz John Porter's widow the committee would no doubt move to suspend the rules and place the bill on its immediate passage.

Free traders hope to change matters in this country by permitting England to do our manufacturing for us while we go into active competition with India raising wheat at twenty-five and thirty cents per bushel. A bright outlook this for American farmers. It is just possible, however, that the American farmer will prefer to sell his wheat to the busy artisans of our industrial centers. It will pay better.

Louisville Commercial: General Boynton was prodding his pencil into Logan's dead body before the widow's tears had dried upon his face. Now he has turned his swill bucket into General Grant's coffin. This is a most shameless desecration of two great soldiers. The ghouls who rob a cemetery to keep the dissecting knives of medical colleges busy, stand out pure and undefiled against such a background of baseness as Boynton has been guilty of.

Indianapolis Journal: The Democratic party to-day advocates cheap labor and demands that the laborers of this country shall compete on our own soil with the cheap labor of Europe. What does the laboring man think of the riotous extravagance of the present Administration at Washington? The press descriptions of the wine parties, balls, and the gold-plate receptions of the Whitneys and other Democratic leaders at Washington read like stories of the feasts of the Roman Emperors.

A recent action of the prohibition state central committee, resulting in the adoption of a resolution indorsing the position of the republican party on the "submission" question, is to be commended. It was not only an exhibition of good sense but of good politics also. It leaves that party in a position much more consistent than that in which its state organ placed it when it declared its hostility to the proposition. We are glad that the committee has at last come to the sensible conclusion that the best thing to do is to have the proposed amendment submitted to a vote of the people and thus obtain, by the only possible method, the popular verdict on this question.—Detroit Tribune.

A Buffalo dispatch says: Great excitement exists over the border. A member of the Dufferin Guards, Eighty-eighth Regiment Volunteer military organization is now in this city, and last night said, regarding the preparations being made through Lower Canada in the expectation of war being declared, that a few days ago every pensioner of the imperial service was ordered under arms, to be ready to move to the front at a moment's notice. At Brantford there are one thousand of these veterans, and they are drilling daily. At Hamilton there are six hundred, and at various other points through lower Canada there are enough to furnish a standing army of five thousand at an hour's notice. The excitement, he says, is great, and through all the lower peninsula the militia is getting in readiness for active service. The government has granted a subsidy to the White Star steamship company for the use of the steamers of that line as armed transports in the event of war. The agreement including a stipulation that the White Star company shall build several fast vessels in accordance with designs furnished by the admiralty. Negotiations are on foot for similar arrangements with the Cunard and Inman companies.

Northern Michigan News.

David Ward will put in 44,000,000 feet of cork pine this winter.

Boyne City mill is sawing about 16,000 feet of lumber per day.

A. C. Van Tassell, of Bellaire, has 111 traps set on the Jordan river.

The Mancelona Herald reports East Jordan parties in town looking up railroad pointers.

Tom Palmer, who has been a resident of Elk Rapids for a number of years, was found frozen to death in Milton township last week.

The bill incorporating East Jordan has passed the House of Representatives. South Arm refuses to be included in the incorporation.

Buckley & Douglass have contracted half a million of hemlock, at Sherman, to be cut into ties for use in building the new Manistee and Traverse City railroad.

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman says that Traverse City is likely soon to become one of the most important railroad centers of Northern Michigan.

The surveyors on the C. & W. M. road have quit work on account of the depth of snow. Work will be resumed and the surveying completed as soon as the weather will permit.

S. Pease, of Buffalo, has sold 2,500 acres of hemlock and hardwood land on North Manitou Island, to G. Paddock, of Milwaukee, who will build a mill on the island and saw out the lumber.

A saw mill, owned and operated by the Grangers, and situated about four miles from Elk Rapids on Petobago Lake, was entirely destroyed by fire recently. Cause unknown, no insurance.

The ice at Mackinaw City, where the G. R. & I. dock is being built, averages twenty-eight to thirty inches thick. There will be fourteen feet of water at the transfer and forty feet at the end of the dock.

Growing out of dissatisfaction with the Business Men's Association, a movement is on foot at East Jordan to establish a Mercantile Protective Association, with a general store. With this end in view, negotiations are in progress for the purchase of the John Chamberlain stock.

A Mackinac Island man, who is a wag, was acting as a pilot for the St. Ignace mail sleigh recently, and moving a short distance ahead of it, when he went through the ice and into the water neck deep. "Hold on there, John!" he exclaimed, without a change of countenance, "the ice is not safe here."

The Elk Rapids Iron Co. advertise by circular as follows: "We will pay $1.50 per thousand for hemlock, $3 for elm, $6 for basswood, $4 for ash, black and white, on the banks of Central Lake, or where banks are bad, put in suitable booms on the ice. Hemlock to be cut 16 feet 6 in. as far as possible; some 12 ft. 6 in. and 14 ft. 6 in. allowed. Elm not less than 16 in. in diameter, cut 12 ft. 6 in., 14 ft. 6 in., and 16 ft. 6 in. Basswood not less than 14 in. in diameter. Ash and basswood cut same as elm. Payment will be made at Thurston & Co.'s at Central Lake."

An amusing story is being told in Northern Michigan of a Traverse City man's experience who conceived the novel idea of going down the toboggan slide on an iron scoop shovel. Mounting the shovel with his legs astride the handle, the descent began—also the fun. As the speed increased, the shovel warmed up by the friction, and its rider was soon actuated by an irresistable impulse to dismount, but he had a through ticket and that allowed no stop offs. At the end of the trip he was carried home, and is said to be now taking his meals in a standing position.

Mancelona Herald: It is with pleasure we state, that at last Mancelona is fully awake to the importance of securing that much talked-of railroad, and, notwithstanding the fact that Kalkaska has quietly sneaked in and secured (?) the crossing at that place, our enterprising citizens do not by any means propose to give in without a determined resistance on their part. Spit on your hands and wade in, gentlemen, and may the best town win. * * * For the especial benefit of those gentlemen who related that nicely concocted little yarn at Charlevoix the other day, we will state that the Mancelona Iron Furnace is not now owned or controlled by the G. R. & I. R. R. Company, neither has the aforesaid railroad company any interest whatever in our iron furnace, except in its welfare and prosperity, the same that they take in every other manufacturing institution on their line. Further than this we are at liberty to state, that the Antrim Iron Company has never asked, nor have they ever received any favors at the hands of the G. R. & I. road that would not be extended to any other heavy shipper on the line. It is true that a couple of the stockholders of the G. R. & I. are stockholders in our furnace, but that could have been no incentive for making those reckless statements at Charlevoix.

The Boyne Falls Gazette says that the unused mill property there which has been for a long time in the hands of trustees, has been purchased by James L. Wilkinson, of Hastings, who will stock the mill at once and start it in the spring as soon as repairs are completed.

An Indian buck at Cross Village, threw his mother out of doors, she being too old to help about the wigwam, and she crawled on her hands and knees to a place of shelter. The result proved the son's diagnosis of the case to be correct. She wasn't able to stand much, and the exposure to the weather caused her death shortly after reaching shelter.

Kalkaska Leader: The D. C. & E. R. R., while still to great extent on paper, bids fair to become a reality in the near future, and citizens of Kalkaska are pulling together and straining every nerve to have the road come this way, and with a fair prospect of success. The committee which visited Charlevoix and Bellaire last week were well received, and their statements as to the advantages of the route via Kalkaska, evidently had a good effect. Upon the return of our committee the B. M. Association of this place decided to send our county surveyor Mr. Mosher, and a Mr. Teed, a Cadillac surveyor, over the proposed route from here to Bellaire and those gentlemen will be met en route by a party working this way from Bellaire, and their report will soon be made. In the mean time a part of the Business Men's Association have gone to Grayling, the eastern terminus of the route, to see how matters stand there. A. A. Bleazby and Alf R. Drake are the members of said committee who have gone to Grayling, and they were accompanied by O. C. Goodrich and W. R. Perkins. This road will be built, and if it comes our way, of which we are now hopeful, will give us the advantages of a competing and direct line to the east, and be of immense benefit to both village and county.

A Mancelona special to the Grand Rapids Democrat says: A company has been formed under the name of the Detroit, Charlevoix & Escanaba railroad company, and at its last meeting a resolution to incorporate was passed, and a committee appointed to draft articles of incorporation, and as soon as the papers are filed with the Secretary of State the company will be ready to begin operations. The terminal points of the railroad will be Charlevoix and Grayling, a distance of seventy miles. It will pass through Ironton and East Jordan, and will cross the G. R. & I. R. R. at Mancelona or Alba. On Wednesday, February 2, there will be a meeting at Mancelona, when it is expected that the company, with those interested in the line, will be present to take into consideration the location of the road. It is believed by those who have investigated the subject that the route through Mancelona has many advantages over any other location. The route commencing at Charlevoix and through Ironton, East Jordan, then down the shore of Intermediate Lake to Bellaire on Cedar river, following this river to section 2, in Custer Township, then by an easy grade on to a level of the village of Mancelona, then through a ravine east of Mancelona, an easy grade can be found over section 15 and 14, where the altitude of the Manistee river is reached, and all grading difficulties are passed. If what has been said is true, it would seem that the geographical obstacles are disposed of. Next let us consider what the inducements are to take the Mancelona route, in the way of business. The Antrim county Iron Company is located here, and since commencing operations the 27th of May last, have turned out an average of 48 tons of first quality of pig iron per day. The company is composed of Grand Rapids capitalists who in business matters know no such word as failure. The business is under the management of Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, formerly master of transportation on the G. R. & I. railroad, who is well and favorably known from Grand Rapids north. In the past few months he has overcome every obstacle that has presented itself in the way of business. The company have just opened a large store at their furnace, where a complete assortment of goods is kept. The Oval Dish Company is here, and cut annually 8,000,000 feet of lumber, employing 200 hands and are unable to answer the demand for their goods. There is also the Mancelona handle factory, the turning works of Harding & Snyder, the broom factory of John Otis, chair factory, foundry and two saw mills, and last, but not least, the road will pass directly through the large tract of pine timber owned by David Ward, Esq., of Detroit, who will undoubtedly favor this route. Mancelona comprises two townships, and Mr. Ward owns one-half of the area of Mancelona. Michigan furnishes no better example of what knowledge, integrity and industry will accomplish than is furnished in the business career of Mr. Ward, who is now the largest land holder in the state.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Lane, superintendent of the Charlevoix schools.

Results of School Training.

Some people occasionally express astonishment that after all the schooling their children get, they are still apparently poorly prepared for actual business, and manifest deplorable ignorance upon subjects with which they ought to be acquainted.

The boy who has graduated from Arithmetic is nonplussed when confronted with an ordinary transaction in business percentage or even stumbles in reckoning up the the butcher's bill; while the girl who has passed a creditable examination in Civil Government or History, is unable to answer some simple question in political science, and maybe cannot tell on what date the Fourth of July occurs; while six months in a meat market or a lumber yard will sometimes make a better scholar in fractions, than five years in school.

These reflections are discouraging, alike to parents and teachers; but we forget that the province of the common school is not to make specialists in any department of study or business, much less in all; but to lay a foundation of elementary knowledge and habits and thought, study, and work that will prepare for successful pursuit in any special line that the student may afterward choose. The student of Physiology has barely looked into the field of knowledge in that science when he passes his school examination. We cannot continually expect of him learned disquisitions upon the subject, nor can we expect the student who has passed the school course in Book-keeping to at once assume charge of the books of a great mercantile establishment.

The pupil is, or should be so educated, that while he may not be specially proficient in the business or practical application of any branch of knowledge, he will still be prepared by his school training to make that special application with the least possible loss of time and effort, when brought into actual contact with affairs. In school, the failure to make such application properly, to multiply, add, or copy with accuracy, can cost nothing more than a little more work and a slight loss in his comparative standing; but in actual business these will cost him money, sore disappointments, loss of social standing, or business position. The penalties spur him to activity and attention. The whole world cannot be brought into the school room; so competent, matured men and women cannot be made there, but if the children are properly taught, the schools will furnish the material out of which such men and women can be developed in active life.

We quote the following from the editorial column of the SENTINEL of Dec. 4th, 1869; E. H. Green, editor: "The young man or woman who can read well, can learn anything. Patience and perseverence will enable all who can read understandingly, to familiarize themselves with the world as it is and as it has been; and to acquaint themselves with the marvels and wonders which science makes known to men; and herein is one of the greatest benefits of our common schools. The pupils really learn but little of what they ought to know; but they are started on their way, and encouraged to go forward."

QUERIES.

(15) When was the first railroad put in operation? The first steamboat? The first telegraph?

(16) Which is correct, "2 and 2 are 4," or "2 and 2 is 4"?

(17) Who was the author of "Greenbacks"?

(18) Who were the first paper makers?

(19) What is the only instance where the people failed to elect a Vice President?

(20) Why cannot a hen swim as well as a duck?

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

(6) Each team could pull 25 lbs or as much as the string would sustain if fastened at one end.

(7) The clock will gain in winter because the cold shortens the pendulum, permitting it to vibrate faster.

(8) Cream rises on the milk because it is lighter than milk of course.

(9) A fan does not cool the air. The air, being put in motion by it, increases the evaporation from the face, and the temperature of the skin is thus lowered.

(10) It is easier to sail from America to Europe on account of the prevailing winds and currents.

(11) John Quincy Adams, son of the second president, became the sixth President.

(12) Penn's elm, Charter oak, and Boston elm, are three trees celebrated in our history.

Notice of Attachment. [illegible]

Notice of Attachment. [illegible]

Notice of Attachment. [illegible] FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Chancery Sale. [illegible]

Mortgage Sale. [illegible] Friday, the 4th day of March, 1887 [illegible] DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale. [illegible] Thursday the 3rd day of February, A. D. 1887 [illegible] EDWARD H. GREEN, Attorney for said Mortgagee, Charlevoix, Mich.

Mortgage Sale. [illegible] MARTHA J. AYERS, Mortgagee.

Offices To Rent. A number of desirable offices in the [illegible] block. Inquire of B. [illegible]

Bucklen's Arnica Salve. The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by [illegible]

For Sale! Prof. DICE'S nicely located House and two beautiful lots on Clinton street, near the Park in the village of Charlevoix, are now offered. Inquire of G. M. DICE, Alden, or E. H. GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich. May 6, 1886.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial Bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... 2,000

The liability of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Act 174 Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extends [illegible] customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS.
NATIONAL PARK BANK - - - NEW YORK
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK - - - CHICAGO
NAT. CITY BANK - - - GRAND RAPIDS
DETROIT NAT. BANK - - - DETROIT

Bank of
Charlevoix,
W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security
is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its capital and conservative management.

Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is "That to speculate with ones own money, is folly, that to do so with the money of others, is criminal."

Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and, believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, [illegible]

This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberally will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will
Borrow investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money and wanting to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,
Now yielding Five per cent yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Pan-Zama Balm
THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES
The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors in their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, address
PAN-ZAMA MED CO., Frankfort Ind.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

FRANK E. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms
Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd Fellows Block.

RIFENBURG
MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
[illegible]
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stocking boat livery.
J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co
We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS
—AND—
SHOES,
which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.
We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.
Womens grain shoes for $1.25
Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.
Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,
having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at
Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS.
I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Flowers at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of
Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Offices in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PHILADELPHIA GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at Law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of [illegible], Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLETON, M. D., Office [illegible], Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 114, meets second Monday of each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. [illegible], F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over [illegible] office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 291, meets [illegible] and [illegible] of each month, at Odd Fellows hall.

K. O. T. M.—[illegible] Tent No. [illegible], meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

U. O. L.—True Blues No. 117, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. 104, R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. [illegible], K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of its members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7 p. m.

President—Byron Sea.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—[illegible]
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—D. [illegible]
Treasurer—Albert [illegible] Mason.
Executive Committee—Milo Eaton, A. B. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. [illegible]
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. Sea, W. C. Newman, F. M. Clark, B. Berdan.

All Persons wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only hotel facing steamboat landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good stabling for horses. Central location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited anywhere between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. C. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. & S. J. E. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Wesley's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R
"Mackinac Short Line."
Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West, read down		Stations	Going East, read up
7 00 am	6 40 am	Detroit	10 15 am
10 25	8 25	St Ignace	8 30 pm	6 35 pm
12 20	9 40	Newberry	6 21	2 45
	10 12	Seney	5 45	1 35
4 25	11 31	Reedsboro	4 15
5 30	12 40	Au Train	3 25	8 1
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 45	7 10
	1 50	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 10	Ishpeming	1 50
	5 30	L'Anse	10 40
	6 35	Houghton	9 20
		Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M T Cos Boats, M C & R R, [illegible]
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad
IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.
(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS		No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City	Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey		8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls		9 00	11 30
Mancelona		10 15	12 30
Walton Junc		11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac	Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
	Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy		1 24	6 46	7 07
Reed City	Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
	Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids		2 40	8 11	8 34
Stanwood		3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City		3 33	9 03	9 20
D G H & M Cross		4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids	Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
	Lv	7 15	6 15	11 45
Plainwell		8 36	6 41	1 12
Kalamazoo	Ar	9 05	7 16	1 40
	Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis		10 22	8 50	3 28
Ft Wayne	Ar	12 40	11 20	6 00
	Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond		4 30	3 35
Cincinnati	Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS		No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave		7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond		10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne	Ar	1 50	1 15
	Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis		4 21	5 24
Kalamazoo	Ar	5 45	6 55
	Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell		6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids	Ar	7 30	9 20
	Lv	11 30	4 55
D. G. H. & M. Cross		11 45	5 10
Howard City		11 51	6 18
Stanwood		1 22	6 48
Big Rapids		1 43	7 09
Reed City	Ar	2 15	7 41
	Lv	2 35	8 00
Le Roy		3 06	8 23
Cadillac	Ar	3 45	9 00
	Lv	3 55	9 10
Walton Junc		4 45	10 25
Mancelona		6 10	11 50
Boyne Falls		7 11	12 52
Petoskey		7 50	1 30
Mackinaw City		9 30	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass Agent.

Old papers sold at this office.

POST-OFFICE PUZZLES.

Confusion Caused by the Duplicate Names of American Towns.

He was only a post-office clerk, but his lamentations over the stupidity—as he termed it—of mankind would have made even the melancholy Jaques smile. Picking up a soiled and ink-blotted envelope he read:

Mr. John Criger, A. M.
Adams,
Ohio.

"Now," said he, "what Adams? This fellow perhaps doesn't know that there are in the State of Ohio precisely eleven towns named to commemorate the one original and genuine Adam, who throve in Eden some years ago. These eleven towns are in as many different counties—why, no one can say. But how am I to know what Adams is honored by the possession of a Criger, A. M.? They must have been hard up for names when they named towns in the Buckeye State. And what patriots they are out there! Do you know that there are twenty-five towns called Liberty in Ohio? It's a fact."

"But Missouri can go Ohio one better on Liberties. She has twenty-six towns where they shout Liberty and feel free."

This was said by another clerk. The first speaker returned:

"They all love it in the West. Indiana boasts of eighteen towns of Liberty, Iowa nineteen, Kansas sixteen, Pennsylvania seven, and other states in proportion."

"Talk about names," chimed in a veteran, "think of Lincoln. He was born in Illinois, and they named two towns after him; but O, how they loved the martyr president in Iowa! There are thirty-eight Lincolns in Iowa. They liked Douglas pretty well too, as they named seventeen towns after him."

"Speaking of Adamses in Ohio, do you know how many Edens there are?" somebody asked.

"Only four."

"Four Edens for eleven Adamses! Are there any Eves?"

"Not an Eve. There's an Evesborough in New Jersey, though."

"Grant was a popular man in Iowa," said No. 1. "There are twenty-nine towns named for him in that state."

"And twenty in Kansas."

"And twelve in Michigan and ten in Missouri."

"As to that," said the veteran, "all our generals are popular, from Washington down. We have, all told 257 towns named for the Father of his Country. Iowa has fifty of these, Indiana has forty-seven, Iowa forty-six, Missouri twenty-six, Pennsylvania twenty-three, and the rest of the states two or three apiece. There are 200 towns of Jackson, fifty-two of Warren, besides a number of Warrensburgs, thirty-six Scotts, forty-one Shermans, thirty-one Sheridans, seventy-seven Harrisons, and so on."

"How about commodores?"

"Perry heads the list with seventy-one towns to his credit. Decatur comes next with twenty-one and a Decaturville."

"How about the presidents?"

Washington with his 257 first, of course. The Adamses had between them forty-two, Jefferson 112, Monroe eighty-eight, Madison ninety, Van Buren thirty-two, Jackson 200, Taylor twenty-four, Harrison seventy-seven, Tyler four, Polk twenty-nine, Pierce nine, Buchanan twelve, Lincoln 107, Johnson twenty-six, Grant eighty-four, Hayes sixteen, Garfield four, Arthur two, and Cleveland—well, there are thirteen Clevelands, all named before we knew Grover I. I don't know how many of them he will claim.

"The whole business of naming places is carried on in a ridiculous fashion," continued the clerk. "I'm in favor of leaving the matter to a commission elected or appointed for the express purpose of selecting names for towns. A name once selected should be copyrighted or made a kind of trade-mark so that no other place could use it. Think of 257 Washingtons! Nonsense. Then people can choose sometimes the most outlandish names in the world, names that mean absolutely nothing. Here was a town in Georgia called for twenty years Possum Trot. Then it was changed to Pine Log, and finally Frank Hatton, seeing that the people there didn't know enough to select a respectable name, lent them his own, and Possum Trot-Pine Log is now Hattonville. Then there is a place known variously by the names Shady Grove, Shake Rag, and Shirt-Tail. What do they mean, and what kind of people would give such names to towns? A fancy for certain names, like Union and Centre, seems at times to spread over the country like an epidemic and there is a great scramble to stick them on to towns regardless of the eternal fitness of things. There was a time in New York—it was in the days of De Witt Clinton, I think—when it was considered the height of idiocy even to mention other than a classic name for a town. Think of the classic (?) towns of the state!

"The pleasant-sounding, most attractive names we have in America are those handed down to us by the Indians. What are more euphonious than Oostanaula, Altamaha, Chattanooga, Etowah, Chappaqua, Chatauqua and the like? And yet within the last few years there has appeared a disposition to discard these beautiful relics and substitute such vulgarisms as Dirt-town, Hog-wallow, Swine-snout, Boomerang, etc., etc. There's a town in New Jersey called Pluckemin, which, I suppose literally means Pluck-'em-in. Overisel, in Michigan, no doubt means that I-over-sell everybody else. Louisiana has a town of 148 inhabitants called Many. Many what? Left Hand, in Colorado, signifies, I take it, that it was founded by some left-handed gold-digger. Joy, in Wayne County, New York, may cause strangers to feel happy. Hell-town, in California, can only mean one thing. The place is no doubt appropriately named. What T. B. means in Maryland I am at a loss to understand. Perhaps Too Bad, or Terrible Boy, or, anyhow, something so awful that it had to be abbreviated. But it is tiresome to go over the list. The only thing to do is to appoint a commission as I have suggested. When you want to give a foreign correspondent a cable address you cannot select one yourself, but must apply to the manager of the cable office so as to avoid duplication. Let towns be named in the same way. First, get your site, then apply to the commission for a name. Don't you see?"—New York Tribune.

The Philadelphia Ledger criticises those people who take pains to say day-po when they mean a railroad station, and tells them that they are but very little nearer to the French pronunciation than the less pretentious people who say dee-po. Of the two the latter is decidedly preferable, being according to the "custom of the country," and not being an affectation and an error at the same time.

MISSING LINKS.

A new industry in Gotham is the stealing of cats, their skins being sold for fur.

A 3½ carat diamond was recently discovered by a Chinaman near Helena, Montana.

The chestnut bell has been introduced at Salvation army services at Napanee, Canada.

A $100,000 bridge is being constructed over the Cumberland river in Davidson county, Tennessee.

A large whale fishery is being established on the west coast of Vancouver island, British Columbia.

David Hicks, aged 93 years, of Jefferson, N. H., amuses himself by hunting deer, partridges, and quail.

Four hundred and eighty thousand cans of fruit were put up by one factory at Batavia, N. Y., this season.

Three hundred and forty patients were admitted to the insane asylum at Napa, Cal., during the past year.

Two acres of ground mysteriously sunk to the depth of fourteen feet on J. F. Hartman's ranch near Ventura, Cal., one day recently.

In 1864 there were eight daily papers published in Atlanta, Ga., now there are but three—one morning, the Constitution, and two evening papers.

Miss Nellie Garfield is reported engaged to Mr. Stanley Brown, who for so long had confidential relations with the late President Garfield, and was his private secretary after he went to the White House.

The poorhouse of Tazewell county, Pennsylvania, is offered for sale. It has no inmates, and has had none for five years. Perhaps it is needless to say that the poorhouses in the mining portion of the State are not for sale.

The youngest school-teacher in the State is "little Mary Duke" of Clanton, between 6 and 7 years old. She has made up an infant's school and her terms are 10 cents a month for teaching the little ones their letters.—Mobile (Ala.) Register.

Ex-Secretary Hamilton Fish had a slight stroke of paralysis a month ago at his home in Garrison-on-the-Hudson. Mr. Fish is in his 79th year, but the stroke was very light and he was able to walk out in a week. He is now said to be as well as ever.

Cleanly shaven faces have gotten to be quite the thing nowadays, a fashion which is supposed to be due to its introduction here by Col. Ingersoll. It's as popular as that other fashion of wearing a single red flower in the button-hole.—N. Y. Times.

The north shore of Lake Superior has never been surveyed; consequently there are no charts to aid navigators, no buoys to indicate dangerous rocks and shoals; and but four light-houses along the entire north coast, some five hundred miles in length.

Negroes seldom steal rides on trains. As a rule, they always prefer riding conspicuously in a coach, and generally wave their handkerchiefs at every darky seen along the track. They pay a greater per cent of their earnings into the treasury of the railroads than any other class of people known.

There is a good deal of practical common sense in the answer of the old cook in New Orleans when her young mistress told her of Wiggins' coming earthquake. "Go 'long, chile," she said, "go 'long, wid yer nonsense! God-a-mity don' go and tell anybody what he's gwine ter do; he jes' go 'long and do it."

Col. Ingersoll is credited with the wish that the laboring-men could have a president of their own and a majority in congress, that they might learn how little can be done by legislation. "They will find," he thinks, "that making a living in this world is an individual affair, and that each man must look out for himself."

Miss Bettie Stapleford, the bride-elect of young Gov. Lloyd, of Maryland, is somewhat gushingly described thus: "Miss Bettie is about 19 years of age, and is the youngest of three lovely sisters. Golden hair, dark blue eyes, and Grecian features of rare symmetry, combined with gentleness of manner, make her an acknowledged beauty."

Miss May Fortescue, the actress and discarded fiancee of Lord Garmoyle, has the broad, somewhat stolid English countenance, topped out with a wealth of boisterously-banged blonde hair. Her eyebrows are full and curved, her eyes a sunny gray, her nose is straight, with a pretty feminine tip, and her mouth and chin are shapely.

Engineer George Ballard, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, recently arose in a Jersey City synagogue and said that he desired to embrace the Jewish faith. He said that he had never before professed any religious faith, but that he thought the Hebrew religion to be the most charitable and free from hypocrisy. He was permitted to become a member of the congregation.

A wonderful freak of nature in the shape of a corn-cob which has the exact shape of a human arm and hand is owned by a citizen of Greensboro, Ga. At the upper end of the cob are five distinctly marked fingers, and the cob looks like a human hand half closed. The shape of the fingers is perfect, and slope off naturally from the thumb and little fingers, to a perfectly-formed wrist.

Mrs. Norwood, an old lady living in this county, has a claim against the United States government for a mule owned by her grandfather and impressed into service in the war of 1812. The old lady has placed her papers in the hands of the Hon. H. G. Turner, and if he succeeds in getting the original cost of the mule, with accrued interest, it will be a great help to the good old lady.—Calhoun (Ga.) Courier.

Emperor William of Germany has three physicians always in attendance—Von Lour, Physician-in-Chief of the Imperial staff, Leuthold and Firman. Whenever his majesty is indisposed these three physicians hold a consultation. The emperor is fond of fish, but as sea fish is difficult of digestion he lives to a large extent on trout. In order to meet the imperial want in this respect a species of trout has been introduced from California in the river on the land of the Grand Duke of Baden.

There was never a more fastidious man in this city, or, perhaps, in this country, than Edward Everett, and yet one of his sons became a veterinary surgeon with his approval, and, if I am not mistaken, had his sign on his father's door in Summer street. One of the oldest and most experienced "horse doctors" in Boston to-day is a member of one of the best families in the city, and the idea of his losing caste through practice of his profession would draw from his friends a genuine "horse laugh."—Boston Post.

The fact that six editors of Boston have lived to be 80 years old or more—Maj. Ben Russell having died at 81, Joseph T. Buckingham at 81, William W. Clapp at 82, Nathaniel Greene at 80, Nathan Hale at 78, and John S. Sleeper at [illegible]—is mentioned as indicating that journalism is not so unhealthy a profession as it is sometimes represented to be. Those who remember the Boston papers of former years will readily agree that there was nothing in the conducting of them that tended to shorten life. Some of the editors at the present day in that quiet old town likewise seem determined to live to a ripe old age.

Dunn Pratt writes concerning his appointment as postmaster at Mud Creek, Conn. "It was greatness thrust upon me as a practical joke. The patrons of the office do not find it so funny now. I have moved the office to my house and taken down the old sign from my gate, which was, 'No Admission on Business,' and in its place hung up a tin horn with directions which read: 'Any one having business with this post-office will blow the horn and give the P. M. time to call off his dogs.' I have, to guard against county commissioners, lightning-rod men, book-agents, and other nuisances, two huge mastiffs, one St. Bernard, and a bull-dog of amazing pertinacity of purpose."

Gallantry.

Old Mr. Snooks is an inveterate wag. He lives at a large boarding-house on West Fourteenth street. In the same house live a couple of young dry-goods clerks. They are both of the genus dude, and affect an air of extreme and feminine languor which Mr. Snooks declares makes him sick at the stomach.

The other morning, just after Mr. Snooks had taken his seat at the breakfast table, the two young exquisites lolled into the room and sunk into their chairs.

"Geawge!" drawled one of them to the waiter, "wait on us immediately."

"But," said the waiter, "Mr. Snooks was in ahead of you, sir; I'm waiting on him."

"Weah in a huwy, Geawge, and must be waited on!"

In despair, George turned to Mr. Snooks. "What shall I do, sir?"

"George!" said Snooks, severely and audibly, "always wait on the ladies first!"

The dudes now express the opinion that Mr. Snooks is a coarse, brutal man—"sells potatoes on Chambahs street, y'know."—Life.

An organization with a noble purpose has been founded in Europe. A society has been formed whose aim is not only to protect strangers, but girls of all nationalities who are beset by any difficulties, material, moral or spiritual. The general headquarters are at Neufchatel, but the society has branch offices all over France, in Algiers, Germany and England.

Closed Him Out.

It is reported that the last murderer swung off in Ohio went to his death feeling that the Sheriff had not used him exactly square. The condemned had a deal in wheat through outside parties, and he waited just one more week to close it out. "Of course, I'd do anything personally for you," said the Sheriff, "but the Governor is behind this thing, and he seems to be in a hurry. I'll promise to carry out the deal for you, however, and whatever profits are made shall go into a gravestone for you." The prisoner had to submit, but he was emphatic in asserting that the Sheriff should consider business before pleasure.

MERCHANT
TAILORING.
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.
Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.
Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK
a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP,
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kinds promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.
Manufacturer of BED SPRINGS.
Give me call.

MILLINERY
—AND—
FANCY GOODS!
Mrs. ELLA SMITH &
Miss ANNIE COOPER
Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of
FANCY GOODS!
Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION
Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible] from good type upon good paper. [illegible] $1.00 each. [illegible]
1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home [illegible]
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils."
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. [illegible]
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, [illegible]
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes [illegible]
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, [illegible]
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. [illegible]
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, [illegible]
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, [illegible]
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, [illegible]
24. 57 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. [illegible]
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread-and-Cheese-and-Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila. Illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. [illegible]
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

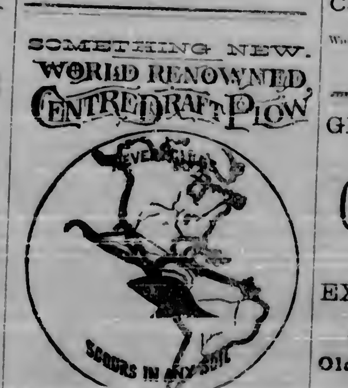
Farming Lands
500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.
These lands are timbered with beech and maple [illegible] and are accessible to best markets
By Water and Rail
And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.
The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the centre of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is
Not a Wilderness by any Means.
[illegible] rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.
Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.
Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address
W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.
TITLE PERFECT.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Contains the Associated Press Dispatches
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTREDRAFT PLOW



The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the land-side, but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly in the Centre of the line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.
If your Agent has none write us for price.
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, Wis.

BARGAINS!
ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND COOK STOVES
HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS.
JOB and TIN WORK.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and
STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.
My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.
If you want to select nice Presents, just call on me and see what I can give you for a small sum.
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,
At current rates of interest, on
Approved Real Estate Security.
School Bonds bought and sold.
MILEY & CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair cut, or bath, call and see me.
JAY L. PRICE.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, - Publishers

The democratic legislative caucus at Nashville agreed upon ex-Governor Bate as its candidate for senator.

A Fire at Readsville, North Carolina destroyed the Piedmont hotel and nine other buildings, the loss being $60,000.

A Brewery in Des Moines opened a retail trade recently, and supplied the thirsty without hesitation, in order to make a new case in court.

The West Division railway company of Chicago made a satisfactory test of a cable system at Garfield park which can be laid for $10,000 per mile.

CREMATED.

An Illinois Young Lady Visiting in Kankakee is Burned to Death in a Ball-Room.

Murders Her Babe and Takes Poison—Drowns Her Two Children and Herself.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

Cremated in a Ball Room.

Wellington, Kas., Jan. 29.—While a masquerade ball was in progress at Freeport, a few miles west of here, the paper head-dress worn by a Miss Cora Beuller, one of the maskers, caught fire from a bracket lamp near which she was standing. She immediately pulled the cap from her head and threw it upon the floor, but while endeavoring to trample it under foot her dress, which was also trimmed with paper of different colors, caught fire, and she was burned to death in the presence of a hundred panic stricken people.

A Mother's Crime.

Sturgis, Mich., Jan. 29.—The quiet village of Burr Oak, six miles east of here, is stirred to its foundation by a sad and deplorable tragedy which occurred there Thursday evening. Ezara Millman, a young farmer and thrashing machine maker, married a few years ago the daughter of Hon. Mona Hillebaugh, of Branch county. Ezara was then about 25 and the girl 20. Hillebaugh is a wealthy farmer. He owns over four hundred acres of fine farming land, and is supposed to be worth over $100,000. Millman's father died …

The Murderers Found.

New York, Jan. 29.—The mystery surrounding the dead body sent from this city to Baltimore in a trunk has been solved, and the man who is the perpetrator of the crime has been arrested. His name is Edward Unger, and the victim of his crime was August Bohle, a friend who lived with the prisoner. The police worked on a clew stating that one of Bohle's … with 22 Ridge street … it was … to Baltimore. Detectives went there, and they learned that a large trunk answering the description of the one in which the dead body was found was taken out by a man named Unger, who occupied a room and bed room on the top floor. They went to the apartment mentioned, but the door was locked. The housekeeper said that the tenant had gone …

Down to a Watery Grave.

Halifax, N. S., Jan 26.—Monday night was a wild one on the coast to the eastward and westward of Halifax. A fearful southwest gale prevailed, driving the breakers high and fierce on the rock bound, perilous shores. For several hours the wind blew at the rate of forty miles, the rain at times fell in torrents, and the darkness on the water was so dense that objects were scarcely discernible ten yards distant. … of the shore stretching to the west of Halifax harbor is one of the most dangerous on the whole Nova Scotia coast. It was off one of the high rocks on a reef several hundred yards from the shore, over which mountainous breakers were continually dashing, that an unfortunate and unknown vessel and helpless mariners met their sad fate. In the midst of a roaring …

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of congress for the week ending January 29.

SENATE.

The Senate bill concerning post offices of the third class, providing that they shall not be changed into post offices of the fourth class where the gross receipts amount to $1,900 a year, or where the box receipts and commissions, constituting the Postmaster's compensation, amount to $1,000, was, on motion of Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, taken from the calendar and passed.

The Edmunds bill for the protection of American fisherman passed by a vote of 46 yeas and 1 nay, Senator Riddleberger being the only negative vote. Fiery speeches were delivered …

MICHIGAN.

Condensed Reports of the Latest News from All Parts of the State.

LATEST FROM LANSING.

Proceedings of the Senate and House for the week ending January 29.

SENATE.

The resolution to submit a prohibitionary amendment at the spring election was considered in committee of the whole. The resolution was passed in committee, and will be reached on third reading at an early day. The following committee announcements were made:

Additional members of the railroad …

—For some reason or other the citizens of Ada are thoroughly dissatisfied with the public school teachers in that place, and it is thought that the recent attempt to burn the school building was the result of an effort to drive the objectionable characters out of town. The teachers still hold the fort, however, and the better class of the citizens are glad of it.

—S. V. Pringle, of Leslie, while cutting into a tree near that town a few days ago, found a large musket ball, which was about two and a half inches from the heart and nearly eighteen inches from the outside. It had probably lain there nearly a century and was not very much mutilated.

—The tower of the "Skilligalle" light-house, off Crosse village, Emmet …

COUNTRY LIFE AND WORK.

NEW EVERY MORNING.

Every day is a fresh beginning,
Every morn is the world made new,
You who are weary of sorrow and sinning,
Here is a beautiful hope for you,
A hope for me and a hope for you.

All the past things are past and over,
The tasks are done and the tears are shed.
Yesterday's errors let yesterday cover;
Yesterday's wounds, which smarted and bled;
Are healed with the healing which night has shed.

Yesterday now is a part of forever:
Bound up in a sheaf, which God holds tight,
With glad days, and sad days, and bad days which never,
Shall visit us more with their bloom and their blight,
Their fullness of sunshine or sorrowful night.

Let them go, since we cannot relieve them,
Cannot undo and cannot atone;
God in his mercy receive, forgive them!
Only the new days are our own,
To-day is ours, and to-day alone.

… tinged with brown, and gave an appreciable reaction. After this thorough washing, the pots were kept warm, and the plants very soon made new roots, immediately followed by vigorous growth.

WINTER TREE TRANSPLANTING.

A querist who wishes information as to transplanting shade trees in the winter asks, "should the digging around the trees be done before the ground freezes, and how much dirt should be used with, say a four inch tree," is thus answered:

It is better that the ball to be taken with the tree be worked around before freezing weather comes on. It saves labor, and the whole should then be covered with mulch to keep out the frost until ready for transplanting. In the spring chop the frost around the tree, leaving the diameter of the ball for a tree four inches in diameter about three feet across. Excavate below the frost and completely under the tree. Prepare a large-sized hole and add some rich soil if necessary; plant the tree not deeper than it stood originally, and firm the soil completely about the roots and cover all pretty deeply with mulch, and secure the tree from being blown about by properly-stretched guy wires.

… as a plain one of deliberate and premeditated murder. There seems to be scarcely a mitigating circumstance. The daughter Mary aided and assisted her mother in the murder, and after the conviction of her mother she pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, which plea, on account of her youth, the fact that she was probably acting under the influence of her mother, and other circumstances, was accepted by the District-Attorney, and she was sentenced to State Prison for life.

Chiropody.

Boston Courier: It was cold and bleak without but warm and bright within. They sat side by side near the glowing grate and watched the flickering firelight as it danced among the bric-a-brac on the tables. They were both in deep thought, and no sound …

INDUSTRIAL.

Indian corn, having very large kernels and long ears, is raised in central Germany, but, a former resident of the country states that the farmers make no use of it except for fattening geese.

The Indiana Wool-Growers' association held its next annual meeting in the rooms of the state board of agriculture, in Indianapolis, on Tuesday, Jan. 25, at 10 A. M.

The total product of raisins in California for 1886 is estimated at 14,993,000 pounds, of French prunes, 2,000,000 pounds, of oranges at 500,000 boxes, of wool at 47,225,000 pounds, of canned salmon at 924,000 cases, and of wheat at 1,190,000 tons.

It is sometimes the case that breeders of sheep, in their desire to protect them from the winter storms and cold …

STOCK NOTES.

There is as much profit in horse-raising as with any other class of stock. A good pasture will enable the farmer to raise two or three colts at but little expense, and if they are well-bred they will always sell at good prices.

Straight backs, broad loins and round bodies indicate valuable qualities in sheep, but it is only by the use of rams of the mutton breeds that such can be obtained. By grading up annually it requires but a short time to entirely change a flock.

From all over the range country come expressions of joy over the proposed stock yards at St. Louis. Now that the International Range association has entered the lists against the beef monopolists of Chicago, better rates and better treatment will be had …

Clocks of A Century Ago.

Mr. Charles S. Crossman is writing a history of watch and clock making in America, says The New York Mail and Express. He is dark haired, pleasant mannered man, about 43 years old. A reporter gained from him historical facts about watches and clocks.

"Luther Goddard was the pioneer watchmaker in America," Mr. Crossman said. "He began in 1809 at Shrewsbury, Mass. The factory building was one story high, with a hip roof, and built on the declivity of Shrewsbury hill. There are no traces left of the little factory. The watches he made are similar to English verge watches. The hands, dials, round and dovetail brass and steel wire main and hair springs, balance verges, chains, and pinions were all imported. …

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Some Very Crude People Found Floating on the Surface.

Now and then persons in official life come across crude specimens of humanity among their callers, whose remarks, innocently uttered, to the hostess create no small amusement. At the house of one of the Cabinet Ministers, during the height of a reception not long since, a self possessed looking female entered, and after making a tour of the rooms and satisfying herself with an ample and prolonged collation she sauntered up to the hostess and, eyeing her curiously, said: "Excuse me, but whom have I the honor of addressing?" Wholly taken back by such a question, the hostess naturally inquired of the caller if it were possible that she did not know in whose house she then was. "O, no," she replied with the utmost sang froid; …

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 9, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

The Railroad Situation.

If awakening interest and persistent endeavor are tokens of satisfactory progress, then our railroad boom may be said to be on the high road to success.

Our own people, who are the prime factors in the movement, are, through their various committees, making rapid progress in the preliminary steps toward legal incorporation, and but little more is to be done before the D. C. & E. R. R. Co. will be a fact and not a dream.

A feature of the movement which adds greatly to the strength of the project, is the fact that nearly all the villages of Northern Michigan south of Emmet county, are equally earnest in the matter.

Mancelona has come grandly to the front, and says through its committees that it means business, at the same time asserting their ability to find a route there via Bellaire.

Kalkaska wants the crossing, and her citizens are deeply in earnest in the matter of contesting with Mancelona the location of the G. R. & I. crossing. Already they are making surveys east and west of them.

Although East Jordan has withdrawn from the combination, the proceedings have suffered no perceptible check. The stock lacking has been promptly taken, and everything moves along just the same as if East Jordan and the hoop shop did not have an existence.

And now comes the information that Traverse City seeks to attract our attention that way, and presents arguments in favor of that route, which we publish elsewhere.

An enthusiastic meeting of the stockholders was held last Monday afternoon. All but three were present, representing 282 out of 300 shares. The following Board of directors were elected to serve until June next: R. M. Cherrie, S. G. Isaman, F. J. Meech, D. C. Nettleton, E. H. Green, G. W. Crouter, J. Milo Eaton, E. A. Lewis, John Nicholls, A. D. Cruickshank, L. D. Bartholomew. It is pretty well understood that R. M. Cherrie will be elected President.

Thus all things are moving favorably to the project. We can read in the stars, as it were, signs of promise. Everything seems to indicate unmistakably that the region embraced in the counties of Northern Michigan lying between Grand Traverse Bay and the M. C. R. R., has reached that stage of development when a railroad outlet is a necessity.

The business centers of that region have developed into an importance in manufacturing and commercial interests when their united and energetic action in an enterprise of this kind means success.

Ironton.

Harry Jackson, machinist, goes home for a short visit on Thursday.

Samuel Clark returned home from his visit to Canada on Thursday.

The whistle of the Pine Lake mills was plainly heard here on Monday morning.

Miss Lizzie Seymour closed a successful term of school in Dist. No. 3 on Wednesday last and started for her home in Ionia on Friday.

A series of special meetings is started in the M. E. church by the pastor who expects to be assisted by Rev. A. L. Thurston and John R. Robinson. Elder Robinson will conduct the services next Sunday morning and evening at usual hour.

Quite a large number of the patrons of the school were present at the general exercises conducted in the primary department on Friday afternoon. This is as it should be.

The question box at the school is a very interesting feature, and brings to light many hidden points.

The religious work in the M. E. church, is of the most encouraging character.

Correspondence.

With your permission I wish to say that the fair at East Jordan last September was a great success, and spoke in language not to be misunderstood, of the great capacity of this Northern Michigan to produce fruits, flowers, vegetables and grains not excelled in more southern latitudes; and considered merely as a fair, it was decidedly a grand success. But, when you take into consideration the very limited means at the disposal of the society what a grand display could have been made if the whole county had taken part in the matter.

Properly conducted, county fairs can be made a great educational factor in developing the forces inherent in our nature which are now almost wasted because of the lack of some organization to draw out and keep in active use the only means men have or can have of bettering their condition in the world, and of assuring a continuous upward and onward march to a higher and nobler civilization. Every farmer in the county should give encouragement to this matter because he is the one most interested. Without union,—without organization, but little can be accomplished. Let us make one effort to strengthen and consolidate the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society upon a firm and solid basis, because in doing so, we enhance the value of our own lands, in a pecuniary point of view, and at the same time improve our social status. Membership is but one dollar, and now in the winter months is a good time to prepare and make calculations for next year's exhibit.

Farmers let us hear from you: let us cast off the old robes of isolation and cold reserve, and dress up in a new garb, the garb of co-operation and good fellowship. We will feel better for it, and be better for it. It will give influence which never can be reached without it. It will give us the power there is in union.

FARMER.

County papers please copy.

ANNUAL HISTORY

Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned From the Files of the Sentinel.

1871.

The firm of Redington, Nelson & Co. was dissolved in the winter of '70-71, to be succeeded by Geo. W. Esterly & Co., a firm composed of Geo. W. Esterly, F. L. Kiser, C. L. Lewis and J. H. Page. In January the new firm announce that they will grind grists any day at their shingle and grist mill.

The steamer Gen. H. F. Paine, which had been running on Grand Traverse Bay for a number of years, was sold in January to Grand Haven parties, for $23,000. The steamer Van Raalte took her place in the spring. She was bought by Case & Knapp, for $10,500.

E. H. Green retired from the editorial chair of the SENTINEL Feb. 11, to be succeeded by W. A. Smith, proprietor and local editor.

The bill providing for the drainage and reclamation of state swamp land on Pine Lake and its tributaries, and appropriating 10,240 acres therefor, passed the Legislature this spring, but was annulled in October by the State Board of Control. The object of this legislation was the widening and deepening of the channel of Pine River.

Dennis T. Downing comes to the front again in March and confronts Wm. Harris and Capt. Aldrich, the committee to settle with Emmet county, with a surprise in the shape of a long list of claims headed by $500 for rent of county clerk's office.

The propeller City of Traverse was launched at Cleveland March 13th.

The following supervisors were elected at the spring elections: Charlevoix, A. G. Aldrich; Marion, John Newman; Evangeline, J. Willis; Norwood, Wm Harris; Eveline, Jos. Holland; South Arm, Jas. A. Keat;

The Fountain City arrived from Buffalo, having made the trip in 49 hours, and being the first boat of the season, Apr. 7th.

April 8th a fleet of 60 vessels passed within sight of the harbor, 42 being counted at one time.

The first public installation of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., occurred May 19th. The following officers were installed: W. M., E. H. Green; S. W., A. Buttars; J. W., W. A. Smith; S. D., L. W. Skinner; J. D., O. D. Hilton; Secretary, Jackson Ingalls; Treasurer, Philo Beers; Stewards, A. J. Beers and R. Cooper; Tyler, George Kyes.

Capt. Gibson, of the propeller Fountain City, reported that he brought more passengers to Pine River (Charlevoix) than to any other place at which he stopped between Buffalo and Chicago.

Here's an opportunity for agate hunters! In July a passenger from the Fountain City lost a $1,000 diamond pin through a crack in the old dock.

The steamer Dean Richmond, valued at $65,000, was burned in the Soo river in October.

A. Fox & Co. sold 9,580 cords of propeller wood during the summer.

Wm. Laister, an eccentric but honest pioneer merchant, committed suicide Dec. 6th, in his store. Mr. Laister, who was an Englishman 50 years of age, was also a ship carpenter.

The following prices ruled in December: pork; 6c; butter, 25c; eggs, 25c; potatoes, 40c; wheat, $1.00; corn, 60c; oats, 40c; barley, 50 cents.

The public school at this time was under the management of Prof. Hood and Mrs. Caoen, and numbered 45 pupils.

Northern Michigan.

During the past year 4,750 carloads of iron ore, and 315 carloads of charcoal and lime stone were received at the Mancelona furnace. These figures do not include the amount of merchandise received or number of carloads of pig iron shipped.

The steamer City of St. Joseph will be withdrawn from the fruit trade this summer and converted into an ore boat to ply between Escanaba and Benton Harbor. The Bangor Furnace company have given Capt. Williams a contract to deliver 25,000 tons of ore.

Norwood Notes.

The weather is fine and sleighing excellent.

Ten degrees below zero is the coldest it has been at this place.

G. V. Nash has bought C. Marshall's house and lot, and Marshall has bought 3 lots of F. J. Meech and will build in the spring.

Frank Guyles, formerly of the firm of Guyles & Nash, but for the last two years of Cleveland, was here for a few days last week, visiting friends.

The road is now open between this place and Smithson's camp, and the travel goes that way way to Charlevoix.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

S. S. Teachers meet as usual for study of the lesson and transaction of business on Tuesday evening at the Parsonage.

Prayer meeting on Thursday evening. "Oh come let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our maker."

Sabbath services will be resumed at the usual hours. Having rested awhile let us return to our service with renewed vigor, assured that He for whom we toil and wait will reward our activity.

The young people's meeting will be led by Nelson White. Subject, "Full Confession." Come one and all.

Congregational Church.

Tuesday evening, Luke 19, 12-27. The parable of the pounds. Please bring Bibles.

Sunday morning, "The gospel of forgiveness." Sunday evening, "Where is my boy?"

"Why don't our fathers and mothers visit the school?" was asked by a little 7 year old on Friday afternoon, to which a class replied in a song chorus, "O dear, what can the matter be?"—Ironton Notes.

—A. R. Upright is in town.

Charlevoix and Traverse City.

From the Grand Traverse Herald.

In the notice in another column, of the Tuesday evening meeting of the Business Men's Association, it will be seen that a committee was appointed to confer with the Charlevoix people, and invite them to turn their attention to Traverse City in planning the railroad outlet from that place. This is a matter of great importance to Charlevoix, Traverse City, and all points between. If Charlevoix means business, and the indications are that it does, then Traverse City is ready to join hands and work for the interests of the entire portion of the bay and inland lake country of the Grand Traverse region.

The present talk is a railroad from Charlevoix to Grayling, via Mancelona or Kalkaska. The distance would be 75 or 80 miles, at least one-third of the way across barren pine plains that could not by any possibility afford any business or revenue to the road. Much of the other two thirds distance would be found to require more or less grading. A route could be found to Traverse City, about 60 miles, almost absolutely without grade, every rod of it through a rich farming country, touching nearly all, if not all the principal villages between this place and Charlevoix. It would reach the bay at Acme, and a branch running into Elk Rapids would bring that town in connection with the line. One glance at the map will show the entire feasibility of the route suggested, and the large extent of rich and well improved farming country contiguous to the line. Mr. Steele, who is thoroughly familiar with every part of the ground between this place and Charlevoix, has something to say elsewhere in today's HERALD, of the feasibility of the proposed route.

At Traverse City, connection would be made with the two great lines of road, the G. R. & I. and the C. & W. M. This would give Charlevoix direct connection with a through west and south-west line, opening up the Chicago market, the natural outlet for the forest and farm products of the Torch Lake and Pine Lake regions while the merchants of Charlevoix and other towns, north of this place would be placed in close connection with the Chicago wholesale markets. In addition to this, connection would be made at this place with the G. R. & I., giving quick time to the east and south.

The territory directly interested in this line of road would be the townships of Charlevoix, Marion, Eveline, Banks, South Arm, Central Lake, Echo, Forest Home, Kearney, Helena, Custer, Clearwater, Whitewater, East Bay and Traverse, and the villages of East Jordan, Central Lake, Bellaire, Spencer Creek, Williamsburg, Acme and Traverse City. The interests of all these towns are identical. What is for the good of one is for the good of all. If the business of one is increased the business of the others is helped. Business makes business.

Traverse City asks Charlevoix to carefully investigate the plan proposed, and invites co-operation to advance the interests of the Grand Traverse region.

The Route Considered.

From the Grand Traverse Herald:

Having been asked to express an opinion as to the proposed railroad line from Traverse City to Charlevoix would say that knowing the lands between these points very well, I consider it a very feasible route. The proper location of a railroad line requires flatness of grade, least amount of cut or fill and expensive bridge work, with the consideration of what support the road can have in freight and passenger traffic after being built, and with all these determined, then the shortest distance. Length of road is not of primary importance. If one steep grade occurs in each fifty miles the road must be governed thereby, just as the shortest of two competing lines will make the rates.

If it is not thought best to extend this road by way of Elk Rapids on account of the nearness to the water north of there, then a very nice route can be had from here to Williamsburg by way of Acme, a distance of twelve miles,—where a short road of not over nine and one-half miles would reach Elk Rapids. Going from Williamsburg a distance of eleven and one-half miles will bring us to Spencer Creek, then a distance of ten miles to the county seat of Antrim county, at Bellaire, and twenty-five miles more to Charlevoix. To recapitulate:

Traverse City to Williamsburg	12 m
Williamsburg to Spencer Creek	11½ m
Spencer Creek to Bellaire	10 m
	33½ m
Add a half mile more to allowance already made	½ m
	34 m
Bellaire to Charlevoix	25 m
Traverse City to Charlevoix	59 m
Branch to Elk Rapids	9½ m
	68½ m

Now to further consider the route we will say that it could be located with no grade that would be called steep, and I would put the maximum at 50 ft.—in fact it would nearly all be a flat road bed. There would not be any costly bridges, and when once put in operation would have a most excellent region to support it, besides making connection with the G. R. & I., and also the Chicago and West Michigan, which is now being put through to this place.

It is the figures that tell, and when profile is made we are prepared to see, without the least surprise, that this fifty-nine miles is as good as any northern Michigan can produce, unless it is the route direct from Manistee to Traverse City.

In the above estimates I have not taken into account a route from the valley of the Intermediate to East Jordan, because I was not quite sure of its practicability, but if this thriving town can easily be reached with a few miles extra distance it should be done.

GEO. E. STEELE.

H. P. Cook has been appointed agent for Charlevoix county of the nursery establishment of Cody Bros., Geneva, N. Y., and will take orders for trees. Trees are warranted to be as represented. 4t

Republican County Convention.

A Charlevoix county Republican convention will be held in Charlevoix, February 17th, 1887, at 2 o'clock p. m., to elect delegates to the State Republican Convention to be held in Detroit, February 23d, 1887, and to the Republican Judicial Convention for this district to nominate a circuit judge and to transact such other business as may be brought before said convention. The several townships are entitled to representation as follows: Hudson 1, [illegible], Springvale 1, Bear Lake 1, Melrose 1, Boyne Valley 2, Russell 1, Evangeline [illegible], South Arm [illegible], Eveline 5, Hayes [illegible], Charlevoix [illegible], Marion 1, Norwood 1.

Charlevoix, Mich. Feb. [illegible], 1887.

FRED W. MAYNE, Chairman.

H. LEE IDDINGS, Secretary.

HORSE FOR SALE. Inquire of S. M. See, Charlevoix.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

WANTED.—A steady situation in a store. Six years experience. Address D. C. BACON, Box 233, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Parr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

Low Prices still Continue

AT

George W. Miller's.

A REMINDER

For February.

Our Remnants!

Our 1-4 off, a big Success. But it has made us piles of Remnants.

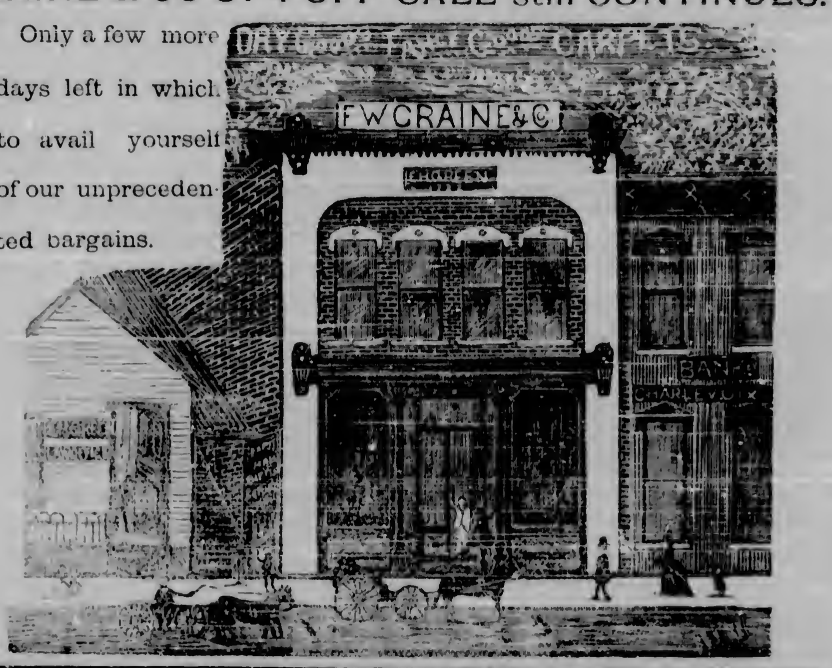
This week we shall give you all a better chance than ever to get bargains

COME IN AND SEE WHAT THIS MEANS. FOR REMEMBER WE ALWAYS LEAD.

F. W. Craine & Co

CRAINE & CO'S 1-4 OFF SALE still CONTINUES.

Only a few more days left in which to avail yourself of our unprecedented bargains.



J. L. HURD & CO.

SPECIAL

Clearance Sale of Dry Goods.

All Winter Goods at a Great Sacrifice to close.

We have too many BLANKETS, and FLANNELS, too much HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR YARN, KNIT GOODS, etc, and must close them out.

GROCERIES & PROVISIONS! Always a full stock and always at guaranteed Lowest Prices.

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR SHIPPING WOOD, TIES, and POSTS.

J. L. HURD & CO.

The Best Groceries

At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

J. MILO EATON'S

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

Jno C Miller May4 7

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—42 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 899

ROSENTHAL & SON ARE SELLING OUT!

OWING TO A CHANGE WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE IN OUR STORE IN THE SPRING, WE MUST SELL OUR

---STOCK OF---

DRY GOODS, CARPETS, CLOTHING, CLOAKS, NOTIONS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, ETC.

REGARDLESS OF COST!

WE MEAN BUSINESS! EVERYTHING IN OUR STORE WILL BE SOLD AT SOME PRICE, FOR CASH ONLY.

Now is the time to get Bargains. Come and see for yourself.

RESPECTFULLY, ROSENTHAL & SON.

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!

----HEADQUARTERS----

For Everything needed in the School Room, at

HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,

F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods

BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

"There is a tide in the affairs of Men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

If you are going to use any building Hardware, now is the time to buy it! Iron, Nails, and all kinds of Hardware are advancing. Be advised the present low prices cannot continue. Until after our annual invoice is taken, we offer great bargains in everything in our line. Buy NOW and save money! Heatng Stoves at remarkably low prices.

Yours Truly

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BRANCH STORE AT HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,

Charlevoix, - Michigan

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One year $1 50; six months $ 75

Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

Notice the call for a Republican caucus to-night.

—Attend the ball on the 22d and give the reading room a lift.

—S. B. Thatcher, of Boyne City, attended the G. A. R. campfire last Monday evening.

—The Republican county convention will be held at Bartholomew's Opera house tomorrow at 2 p. m.

—A first-class supper will be prepared at the Bridge St. House at 12 o'clock on the evening of the 22nd.

—The I. O. G. T. society have rented Jefferies' hall and will hold their meetings at that place hereafter.

—The brain of the late Prof. Olney weighed 61 ounces. An average weight of the human brain is only 49 ounces.

—Geo. W. Cook, of this place, has been awarded the contract of carrying the mail between Charlevoix and Petoskey, beginning July 1st.

—The county invalid, who has been under Superintendent Newman's care for some time, will be taken to the Soldier's Home at Grand Rapids.

—The new postage stamp—2 cent—to go into circulation presently, represents an embossed head of George Washington, in purple, on a blue background.

—Messrs. Eaton, Meech and Cherrie, the Charlevoix railroad committee, met the Grayling committee at Kalkaska yesterday. The report of the conference will be published in our next issue.

—A Republican Judicial convention will be held at Petoskey on Wednesday, March 2d, at 2 p. m., to nominate a Circuit Judge for the 13th Judicial Circuit. Charlevoix will be entitled to 7 delegates.

—"Advertise by the year," says an old experienced business man. It is cheaper and yields a better return in proportion to the money invested. An advertisement should always be before the public in some shape. If it disappears it is soon forgotten and those that remain have the superiority and advantage of the competitor. There is only one excuse for the discontinuance of advertisements—that of retiring from business."

—The following sensible suggestion comes from the Kalamazoo Herald: "The Ionia Mail says correctly that no man should get mad because a newspaper publisher asks him for money. A dun is not an impeaching of a subscriber's integrity, but simply an outcropping of the publisher's necessities. For instance, 1,500 men owe him from one to five dollars each. He has to dun them all to get enough to pay expenses. Instead of getting mad and stopping the paper because the publisher asks him for his dues, the subscriber should thank him and pay up like a man."

—The Cheboygan Democrat talks this way to business men and citizens generally: "Either run a town with vim or sell out and leave it. One or two things must be done: run your town for all it is worth or quit the whole thing slide out and give nature its course. Do you want trade? Bid for it. Do you want business to come to your town? Encourage that when does come. Do you want a prosperous community where people will be disposed to make a home? Then bury from sight all spite work, no more for a few individuals or for selfish ends, but pull together for the common wealth and mutual benefit."

—A. F. Myers is about again.

—R. White of Ellsworth, was in town on Wednesday.

—Round and Pine lakes afforded good skating last week.

—Byron See and wife are expected home this week or next.

—Mrs. R. A. Campbell returned from Northport, Monday.

—Miss Katie Scheffen of Ironton, is in town for a few weeks.

—Mr. Brink is giving excellent satisfaction as night watchman.

—Baxter Post cleared $30 at the hard tack social Monday evening.

—Will Aldrich is expected home this week from Chicago, for a visit.

—Cash will be paid for a load of dry block-wood delivered at this office.

—Mrs. Capt. Clifford and family returned from Washington, last week.

—The fire engine was at work Thursday filling the cisterns on the west side of town.

—Capt. Vanderhoef was in town Monday, on business connected with his steamboat route.

—H. A. Christy, of the firm of Mueller, Christie & Baber, of Chicago, was in town last week on business.

—Misses Lizzie and Sarah Aldrich left Sunday for Kalkaska and Coldwater to visit relatives and friends.

—J. L. Hurd & Co. offer great bargains in their line of goods, to close out. Notice their new advertisement.

—Arrangements are being perfected to make the masquerade the 22d for the benefit of the Reading Room, the most successful event of the kind ever given in Charlevoix.

—The first lecture of the home course was given Wednesday evening by Rev. W. H. McCartney. A good sized audience listened to the eloquent talk on "Grant in the Wilderness."

—A telegram announces that L. E. Allen has been awarded the harbor contracts at Charlevoix and Frankfort. Mr Allen returns home this week, and will doubtless begin to make the chips fly soon.

—The Cheboygan lumber cut this season will probably reach 150,000,000 feet, and more ties and posts will be shipped than ever before. Lumber rates and shipping prospects are exceedingly bright for this entire northern region.

—Ben Campbell and Joe Swails are at work on extensive repairs on the steamer Gazelle. She is receiving new frames, keelsons and deck. The tug Bob Campbell, under Washburn's deft hands, is torn up for a thorough re-build.

—Boyne Citizen: During the late railroad survey to Vanderbilt, it was ascertained that the approximate elevation of Boyne Falls above Boyne City was 99 feet, of Chambers' hill 758 feet, Hugh's hill, 712 feet, Thumb Lake, 501 feet, and Vanderbilt, 550 ft.

—The Band of Hope meets at Green's Hall on Saturday as usual. All who are interested in the temperance work are invited to be present. The programme will be interesting and instructive to all. Please come prepared to help in the great work of temperance reform. By order of the Secretary.

—It is predicted that northern Michigan will receive a boom during the coming summer that will surpass anything that has ever struck it before. Three railroads will probably be built into this region during the coming year. One at Charlevoix, a branch of the Chicago & West Michigan to Elk Rapids and one to Traverse City. They will give an outlet to the products of our forests and also to the pig iron which is manufactured at Ironton and Elk Rapids. There is money for the road which first reaches this region, as it will open up a vast tract of country which is rich in lumber, and it is also a good farming region, all of which will work to the advantage of Bay City.—Bay City Tribune.

The G. A. R. Social.

It goes without saying that the Hard-tack and Coffee Social at the Opera House Monday evening, was a grand success in every particular.

The bare announcement that Baxter Post is to give an entertainment of any kind is always sufficient to pack the Opera house to its fullest capacity.

The entertainment of Monday evening was no exception. Before the time announced for opening had arrived every seat was taken and soon standing room was at a premium.

When the Post, headed by their Commandant, Major Green, came marching in to the air of "Marching through Georgia," they were greeted with the prolonged applause which always accompanies their appearance in public and attests the large place they occupy in the hearts of the people.

The manual of arms and saber exercises under command of Major Green were executed with precision and celerity, while the Zouave drill under the command of Robert Miller was almost perfect and called forth the admiration of all present. The camp scenes gave the audience a good idea of "camp life as she was lived." The address by Comrade McCartney was replete with interest and Miss Rose Cody's rendition of "Bay Billie" was the most eagerly listened to of any reading ever heard in the Charlevoix Opera house.

Free hard tack and coffee were furnished to all, after which an hour was spent in having a good social time generally.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Services at usual hours. Miss Cody will have charge of the music in the young people's meeting. Sabbath morning, sermon appropriate to Washington's Birthday.

The revival work is progressing in the Ironton M. E. church, Rev. J. R. Robinson assisting the pastor.

Congregational Church.

Thursday evening, Matthew 13, 45, 46. "The Pearl of great price." Sunday morning, "The gospel on our estimate of others." Evening, "The American home."

Baptist Church.

Services as usual morning and evening at Green's hall.

Preaching at Hilton's school Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Ironton.

Some our citizens seem to shun professional notoriety.

Mrs. John Peterson has gone to Pennsylvania for a visit with her two brothers who live there.

The ladies of the Aid Society and W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. T. C. Bird on Tuesday.

Miss Annie Scheffen is quite ill and has been confined to her room for four weeks.

The time draweth near when every man you meet will want to shake hands with you.

John Clark, the oldest son of Timothy Clark, came over from Canada, where he has been living with his grand parents, last week and will remain under the parental roof.

Almond Bird has been confined to the house all winter and is still unable to be about.

The W. C. T. U. went to East Jordan on Tuesday.

R. A. Miller went to Grand Rapids on Monday.

Katie Scheffen, who has been home for some time, went to Charlevoix again on Monday.

Rev. John R. Robinson preached to crowded houses Sunday morning and evening in the M. E. church. Revival services will be continued this week.

Home Lecture Course.

Dr. Carlstein will deliver the 2d lecture in the Home course Wednesday eve, Feb. 23. Subject: "A talk on travels in Europe."

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, - Publishers

It is estimated that the public debt was reduced $[illegible] last month.

A bill has been reported to the House granting a pension to Walt Whitman.

The Nebraska House has agreed upon a bill fixing the age of consent at 18 years.

An Eastern syndicate has bought the street-car system of Minneapolis for $3,000,000.

Henry M. Stanley does not expect opposition in his expedition for the relief of Emin Bey.

The American Cotton Oil Trust has secured control of four-fifths of the mills of the country.

Two Polish Socialists have been sentenced to imprisonment at Posen for circulating Socialistic pamphlets.

The Texas Senatorial deadlock was broken by the election of Congressman Reagan on the thirty-first ballot.

John D. Lane, discount clerk in the First National Bank of Baltimore, has disappeared, as has also $60,000.

By the collision of the British emigrant ship Kapunda with an unknown vessel off the coast of Brazil 300 lives were lost.

Under the bill favorably reported to the house of representatives to refund war taxes to the states, Illinois would receive $1,146,000.

It is expected that Secretary Manning will give up the treasury portfolio by May, and that his successor will be William L. Scott, of Erie.

Articles of incorporation have been filed at Springfield for the Chicago, Kankakee and Kansas City road, with a capital stock of $2,000,000.

Colvin Park, a notorious moonshiner of Pope county, Ark., has been sentenced to eighteen months' confinement in the penitentiary of that state.

The Austro-Hungarian Government will ask the Parliament for an appropriation of [illegible] florins for the [illegible] and [illegible] for the militia.

It is reported that United States Minister Pendleton has returned from Berlin because of the President's desire to tender him the Treasury portfolio.

An investigation is demanded by the Minnesota Legislature of the charges that the saloon men have raised a big boodle fund to defeat high license legislation.

For being deposed from a pastorate at Lyons, Ia., fifteen years ago, Father P. C. Jess has been awarded damages of $2,000 against Bishop Hennessy, of Dubuque.

A seat in the British parliament, to be made vacant by the resignation of Lord Algernon Percy, is likely to be accepted by Mr. Goschen, chancellor of the exchequer.

An anarchist from Wisconsin visited the [illegible]

LAW FOR RAILROADS.

The Interstate Commerce Bill Signed by President Cleveland.

Emperor William and Prince Bismarck for Peace—Two Vessels Collide—The Fire Fiend.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

Signed by the President.

Washington, Feb. 5.—President Cleveland signed the interstate commerce bill yesterday afternoon. The signing of the bill by the president was in full accord with the opinion of Atty. Gen. Garland, rendered to him on last Monday, and it is very well understood to be in accord with the views of the cabinet.

The attorney general was asked to give his views in regard to the bill and explain wherein it differed from the senate bill of two years ago, which he opposed on the ground that it was unconstitutional. He declined to do so, saying that he regarded the opinion he had given to the president on the subject as strictly confidential. It is learned, however, from trustworthy sources that the attorney general, as well as the president, considers the bill which has just become a law free from all the material features which were objectionable in the senate bill of two years ago. According to this information the attorney general's objections to the old bill was to the vast powers of a legislative and judicial character that were given to the commission. The attorney general is said to hold that the present bill does not confer judicial powers on the commission, but puts them in the courts on the report from the commission, and that it does not confer legislative power except in the fourth section (the long and short haul clause), and that this is warranted by numberless precedents in the legislative history of the government.

Pacific Intentions.

Paris, Feb. 5.—Count von Münster, the German ambassador, visited M. Flourens, minister of foreign affairs, and received renewed assurances of the pacific intentions of France toward Germany. It is stated that Germany has not made complaint of the armaments which France has been making.

The Journal des Débats has a telegram from St. Petersburg saying that Emperor William, in reply to a message from the czar, has stated that Germany has no intention of attacking France and that Prince Bismarck has sent a similar dispatch to M. de Giers, the Russian minister of foreign affairs. The contents of both dispatches, the Journal correspondent says, were communicated to M. Laboulaye, the French ambassador at St. Petersburg.

Two Vessels Collide.

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 5.—In crossing the Charleston bar, yesterday, the schooner Fred W. Chase, of New [illegible]

CONGRESS.

MICHIGAN.

THE OLD HYMN.

To-day, with quiet heart, I heard
The prayer, the anthem, and the psalm,
And gently on my spirit fell
The sweetness of the Sunday calm,
Till, at the reading of the hymn,
With sudden tears my eyes were dim.

That old, old hymn! its sacred lines
Had fallen on my childish ears;
My life turned back, unhindered by
The stretch of intervening years;
Near me my little daughter sat led,
And yet I was again a child.

Outside the winds were fierce and rough,
The winter's chill was in the air;
But I could hear the bonny birds
And humming insects everywhere!
And feel, in spite of frost and snow,
A summer breeze from long ago.

To find the place I took the book,
And held it in a woman's hand,
While all my soul was moved with thrills,
No other soul could understand;
And quite unseen, with love divine,
My mother's fingers folded mine.

And not because the music rose
Exultingly I held my breath,
Lest I should lose its sweet delight.
Upon her lips the hush of death
For years has lain, and yet I heard
My mother's voice in every word.

Full well I know the dead are dead,
Yet sometimes at a look or tone,
With short relenting, will the past
One moment give us back our own.
Oh happy pain! Too quickly done—
[illegible]

"blessed hope of truth,' as some poet says."

It was a few days after these astonishing events that Miss Betty Le Breton returned from a vacation at the mountains without having heard of the disaster that had overtaken the Fanshawes.

"When I am married," she said, in the enthusiasm of a first acquaintance with the mountains, "I shall take my wedding tour through the hills in a buggy; it's just enchantment. Any letter for me, Aunt Helen? Any news?"

"News? O dear—yes—too much. I didn't write you because I didn't want to sadden your vacation, and you and Alec were always such friends."

"Aleck."

"Yes. The Albatross had been lost at sea, and the Fanshawes are just heart-broken. Louise is there with them; it seems she was engaged to Aleck privately, and her widow's weeds are very becoming. It's a dreadful, dreadful thing for her; but they say the Squire has about the same as adopted her, and that she'll have the lion's share of Aleck's money. She went in on the Squire's own arm when the funeral sermon was preached; it was very [illegible]

[illegible] strong enough to [illegible] them all at once.

It was summer at Haven, but it was not summer in Betty Le Breton's heart. I think she remembered other Junes, whose flowers were no sweeter, whose woods were no greener—Junes that had borrowed something of their charm from her own happiness, that, like the moon, shone with borrowed light. She was trying to sing one of the old songs at her piano one twilight—songs she had sung with Aleck in their drives through the woodland aisles, where they had loved to linger; but the sobs choked her and the tears crowded and jostled each other in her eyes; and suddenly, when the last vibration of the notes had ceased a voice outside took up the strain and sang it through.

"It is Aleck," she cried, hurrying toward the piazza like one in a dream. Then she waked, turned back, and sat down. Supposing it was Aleck, he belonged to Louise. Of course it was a mistake. It was because she had been thinking about him. Aleck was dead, and she had no right to think of him. She never would think of him again—never; she would forget him as he had forgotten her. Dead or alive, he could be nothing to her—nothing, nothing [illegible]

A Whole Ship's Crew in Love.

In [illegible] from the life of Hobart Pasha it is told that, after receiving his "baptism of fire" in Spain, while serving with the naval brigade against Don Carlos, Hobart, while still a midshipman, was sent to the South American station, where he was engaged in putting down the slave trade. The adventurer's first love experience in Buenos Ayres, that paradise of pretty women, is delightfully told.

Within forty-eight hours of arriving every man of the crew was deeply in love. My respectable Captain, who had been for many years living as a confirmed bachelor with his only relative, an old sister, with whom he chummed, and I fancy had hardly been known to speak to another woman, was suddenly perceived walking about the street with a large bouquet in his hand, his hair well oiled, his coat (generally so loose and comfortable-looking) buttoned tight to show his figure, and then he took to sporting beautiful kid gloves and even to dancing.

He could not be persuaded to go on board at any cost; while he had never left his ship before, except for an occasional day's shooting. In short, he had [illegible]

FARM NOTES.

Get your tools sharpened for next spring's work. A good farmer always uses sharp tools.

A good fodder cutter will more than pay for its cost in a single winter season, and it should be kept in constant use.

At a recent exhibition in England where prizes were given for walking horses, the speed attained was over five miles an hour.

Fresh-made butter, with dainty flavor, must always be sold in preference to a butter made three months before it is put on the market.

It is the appearance of goods that sells them. Nice, large, fat, plump white turkeys, ducks, chicks or geese always bring outside prices.

Poultry should have a certain proportion of salt in their food as well as animals, as it is necessary to the promotion of health and thrift.

Muslin answers all the purposes of glass for runs of little chicks, as it retains the warmth longer, and will turn water if tightly drawn on a frame.

The farmer who does not fence in [illegible]

[illegible] and lastly a teaspoonful of salt and the same of soda. Bake in a hot oven in well-greased tins. Muffins of all kinds should only be cut just around the edge, then pulled open with the fingers.

German Coffee Cake.—Beat together two cupfuls of sugar and one of butter; beat separately the whites and yolks of six eggs; mix well together with two large cupfuls of dough, first the sugar and butter, next the yolks, then the whites of the eggs; add one teaspoonful each of extract of cinnamon, allspice and nutmeg, half a pound of seeded raisins and a little more flour; let rise, make into small cakes, keep warm twenty minutes and bake.

Beef with Celery and White Beans.—Soak about one and half pints of white beans in cold water for about twelve hours; drain off the water, and put them in a stewpan with a lean piece of brisket, three heads of celery, cut in small pieces, pepper, salt, and sufficient water to cover the meat; stew slowly until the meat is quite tender and the beans soft, then add four or five large lumps of sugar and half a teacupful of vinegar, let it all stew for a few minutes.

GRAND ARMY ITEMS.

Mrs. John A. Logan contributes to the Chautauquan, for February, an article on official etiquette at Washington. This is her first contribution to magazine literature.

Morgan Post, No. 208, located at Hillopolis, Ill., held a solemn memorial service for General John A. Logan at its last meeting. The resolutions passed were appropriate and eloquent.

The ladies of Relief Corps, No. 23, auxiliary to Mulligan Post, inaugurated last week a series of monthly dime socials. The initial one was very successful, as the others will be, for the ladies have hosts of friends.

At the Decatur reunion last October the discharge of George W. Sore, Company D, Fiftieth Illinois Infantry Volunteers, was found, and Mr. Sore or his friends can get it by addressing E. G. Lee, Secretary Forty-first Illinois, Cerro Gordo, Ill.

Torrence Post, Keokuk, Ia., installed the following officers: Commander, S. A. Barry; Senior Vice Commander, G. W. Bowers; Junior Vice Com- [illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 16, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F PARMELEE Associate Editor

The United States Senate has passed two bills appropriating $21,000,000 for the purchase of modern ordnance and for coast fortifications.

It is reported that the British Government will equip its army with a peculiar pattern of American rifles. Anything they want of superior make and quality, from pocket-pistols to thousand-pounders, the Yankee Nation can furnish.

The pension appropriation for the next year is $75,000,000. The whole Austrian military establishment costs about $51,000,000 a year, and that of Germany $91,000,000, so we spend on pensions enough to maintain a first-class European standing army.

The sensitiveness of commerce is well illustrated by the jump in prices of certain drugs in consequence of war rumors. Carbolic acid—largely used for dressing gun shot wounds—has gone from 28 to 60 cents per pound. Quinine has advanced 25 per cent. Salicine has risen from $2 to $10 per pound within ten days. And all this on rumors of a war in Europe. At this rate, in the event of a war between England and the United States one might expect quinine and salicine to be a little more precious than refined gold.

The bill to give Alaska a full territorial government is a good deal criticised in some portions of the country. An organization like that is costly, is not necessary for the few hundred white people in our Russian purchase, and is scarcely applicable to so vast a region having its population scattered over 1,000 miles of coast. An election in a region where the situation of the people is one of extraordinary isolation would be a farce. The territory already has a governor, a judge and the machinery of a court. It perhaps needs to have the jurisdiction of the land laws extended to it, and then has all the provision that is needed.

The Panama Canal Company are advertising for laborers to work on the canal, in the New Orleans newspapers. There is little inducement for laborers to go to the Isthmus. The American Consul General at Panama not long ago stated that men have a poorer chance for getting permanent work than at home, and run the constant risk of dying from the deadly fevers which prevail. The Company have hospitals, but as the contractors have to pay for the hospital service they take the amount out of the laborers' wages. Very little work can be done during the rainy season, from May to December. The prospects are certainly not very bright for men who engage to work for the Canal Company and go from this country.

Flint Globe: A war between this country and England for any cause is too serious a thing to be talked of lightly, and it would be criminal for either Nation, by any act prompted by other than the most serious considerations, to say or do any thing that should be taken as a casus belli by the other, and lead to a declaration of war. There are still many thousands of men living in this country who know from painful experience, that the actualities of war are tragic in the extreme. And these who never participated in the somber and bloody scenes of battlefield or camp or march still know enough of their traditions, not to want to plunge lightly into them. Ambitious and enterprising journalists may be glad enough to make sensational headlines for their news columns from the rumors of angry feelings stirred on either side by acts or words on the other, but none of them really want a war between the two greatest Nations on earth. The sober, second thought is for peace, provided always that peace does not signify dishonor. The sentiment of every true American is that these differences about the Canadian fishing grounds ought to be settled amicably but certainly, and in a way to save future generations from the annoyance of having the questions now under discussion come up again. The people of this country will forget the insults and wrongs of the last few months if there shall be a guarantee that no repetition of them shall occur. It may as well, therefore, be understood that this question is now "before the House," so to speak, and it will never be put aside till it is settled in all its details, and in a way to assure to American fishermen perfect immunity from the insults and annoyances which they have been subjected to during the last year. Peaceably or otherwise it must be adjusted. This is the voice of the west as well as the east. The cause of the fisherman of Maine will be, and is the cause of the farmer of Michigan.

Railroad Notes.

Those of our citizens who received copies of last week's Charlevoix Sentinel no doubt wonder what "Escanaba" means at the end of the title of the railroad which the Charlevoix folks propose to build. If they will take a map of the state and trace the line from Charlevoix south of Pine lake and Jordan river to Mancelona and thence to Grayling, Crawford county, they will see that the route formed by the M. C. road and the new one from Detroit to Charlevoix and a line of good steamers between Charlevoix and Escanaba would make a very short route between Detroit (and Cleveland) and the iron country west of us; a summer route, to be sure, but a good one for the time that iron ore can be economically moved, for the season of business (other than local) in this peninsula. The plan is worth our attention, the more so as the plant can be used elsewhere if the experiment should not prove remunerative. Will not our men of means give the people on the other side of the lake assurance that the boats will be ready by the time they can have their road running to Charlevoix? They ought.
—Escanaba Iron Port.

From the Kalkaska Leader.

The East Jordan correspondent of the Grand Rapids Democrat has this to say of the proposed David Ward railroad from Alba to that place: "The Alba route is backed by Dr. Ward, of Pontiac, who has a large tract of pine land southeast of Alba and can build 16 miles of road this side of Alba on his own lands. He has had men the past two summers looking lands and routes along the Jordan river. One of his men named Barker was here a few days ago and said to an old acquaintance that if they could get certain dockage and right of way to it, before snow came another year the cars would be running here; that work would commence in the spring on the line near Alba, anyway. We learn that the dockage and right of way can be had. A road from here to Grayling will give us quite direct connections with Detroit. The business men here would like to retain their connection here with the Grand Rapids houses, but feel that they have not been fairly treated by the G. R. & I. railroad people, who have heretofore discriminated largely in favor of Boyne City freights. Our citizens are wide awake on the railroad question, and will offer inducements to the railroad that will give assurance of a fair show in return."——Whether Mr. Ward intends to build this road or not, we do not know, but it would require only a little, to him, of pocket change, and we presume he will have the road. This will cut no figure, however, in the road to come through Kalkaska, as the latest phase of this is that it will not touch East Jordan.

The engineers who went over the proposed route of the D. C. & E. railroad from here to Bellaire, found an easy and practicable route—a much better one in fact than was expected, and so reported. A large map or diagram of the same may be seen at the bank.

Another week will doubtless give us something more definite and tangible in the way of railroad news. The air is full of rumors and speculations of which we might give a column or two, and probably contradict them in our next issue. Everything looks favorable now, and hard work is being done to bring it this way.

From the Mancelona Herald.

Bellaire's committee to determine the most practical route from Bellaire to Charlevoix was out last week. The committee returned to Bellaire Sunday, and reported good progress.

What is the matter with Mancelona? Since the conception of the railroad scheme which is now the topic of the hour, Mancelona has not lifted a finger to aid the enterprise—has sent no committee to confer with us, and has apparently been indifferent to the importance of the subject. It looks now as though she would be left out in the cold. If so, she has only herself to blame.—Charlevoix Sentinel. In reply to the above we would say that from the first Mancelona has been willing to sacrifice her share, but could not very well take any action in the matter until she knew or had some faint understanding of what was expected of us. Upon learning that the Charlevoix and Grayling committees were to meet at this place Feb. 2, we immediately held a meeting and made preparations for entertaining the visitors, and expected that at that meeting some light would be thrown upon the matter. However, the meeting did not take place, and we were still in the dark, but we immediately held another meeting, at which two committees were appointed. One, to act in conjunction with a similar committee at Bellaire in looking a feasible route to the county seat which was done—and the other to represent our interests at Charlevoix.

The Emmet County Bible Society have received $50 worth of bibles and testaments, about 150 copies in English and German.

Northern Michigan News.

Kalkaska will be incorporated.

Northern Michigan is just now the center of railroad attraction.

Denster's saloon at Sutton's Bay, burned Monday night. Loss $1,500; no insurance.

W. S. Johnson's store at Good Harbor, burned last Monday night. Loss $8,000; Insurance, $5,000.

U. S. Marshal Waters has appointed Thos. G. Shilson, of Traverse City, deputy for that part of the district.

John Archibald, of Elk Rapids, has gone to Decatur, Ala., to fill a position offered him in the chemical works, just erected there, at a good salary.

James McMillan, of Detroit, favors tunnelling the straits of Mackinac in order to open the Northern Peninsula to Detroit trade at all seasons of the year.

Mancelona Herald: We are pleased to note that our friend, Ed. Kemp, who was lately given charge of the engines in the butter dish factory, is giving the best of satisfaction to his employers. Mr. Kemp is a thoroughly practical engineer, and we believe the company did well in securing his services.

Mackinac Island swears that if the Manistique Lumber Co. dismembers Mackinac county by taking all the good land on the north, and making a new county named Luce out of it, she will ask the Legislature to allow her to make a new county out of Mackinac and Bois Blanc Islands, and call it Stockbridge. All that would be left of Mackinac county then would be beastly.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad management has done a very just and right thing, issuing an order that hereafter when train men are kept out on the road by accidents, snow blockades, or other causes, they shall be paid for this extra time as follows: Engineers 38 cents an hour, fireman 20 cents, brakemen 20 cents, baggagemen 20 cents and conductors 30 cents. In estimating, odd half hours will be counted full hours.

The new county of Luce will be erected. The joint committee favor taking from Mackinac county, towns 45:8, 45:9, 45:10, 45:11 and 45:12, and giving them to the new county, the rest thereof (some 25 towns) being taken from Chippewa county. Luce county will have 39 miles front on Lake Superior, and will be about 30 miles square. The towns taken from Mackinac county are two of Lakefield, two of Garfield, and one of Hendricks, and these poll about 30 votes.

Connections are maintained at all points by the D M & M at Mackinaw City by the transfer steamer Algomah from St. Ignace with the M. C. R. R. and the G. R. & I. R. R. for all points in Canada, the east, south-east and south. The ice in the straits is in excellent condition this winter, and the boat is having no trouble in making her regular trips, while from the fact that the straits are frozen evenly and solidly no trouble is apprehended, the boat being able to maintain a channel, though in view of the fact that she goes readily through ice 24 inches in thickness when occasion demands, it will be understood that the closing of her channel would be but a temporary difficulty.

From the Kalkaskian.

The route between Kalkaska and Grayling runs through continuous tracts of heavy pine and hardwood timber.

It is now demonstrated that the route via Kalkaska to Charlevoix is shorter by actual measurement of the best grade that could be made, than any other—no curves being necessary to get around the hills or valleys between this place and Grayling, and but little variance from a direct line from here to Bellaire.

The route between Kalkaska and Bellaire is through splendid hardwood, with here and there a cleared farm. A railroad would open up a country which would afford a large traffic in passengers and freight.

The Amendment.

The following is the text of the prohibition amendment as it has been passed by the Legislature, and is to be voted upon at the spring election:

SEC. 49. The manufacture, gift or sale of spirituous, malt, or vinous liquors in this state, except for medical, mechanical, chemical, or scientific purposes, is prohibited, and no property rights in such spiritous, malt or vinous liquors shall be deemed to exist except the right to manufacture or sell for medical, chemical, mechanical or scientific purposes under such restrictions and regulations as may be provided by law. The legislature shall enact laws with suitable penalties for the suppression of the manufacture, sale, and keeping for sale or gift of intoxicating liquors, except as herein specified.

Our readers will notice the reading of this section that no exception is made for sacramental purposes. If the amendment is ratified, the manufacture, gift or sale of wine for sacramental purposes is absolutely forbidden.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Report of Teachers' Meeting.

A profitable hour was spent at the High School room, Monday evening, Feb 7th, Rev. Mr. McCartney speaking of the "Teachers as a Power in a Community" said that the educator occupies a divinely ordered station; it is one not to be assumed like an ordinary business or vocation; teachers are not made, but born. By thus recognizing it as a divine call one is better prepared to make good use of it. The teacher, like the minister, is to unfold God's truth as stamped on all nature and revealed in all science. Without being a religious teacher, he is still teaching the child to read what God has written, and to follow his footsteps: the work is the moulding of human souls: to make them noble men and women. They must regard the work as something more than a means of livelihood, a walk in life; taking hold of it not for so much a month, but because called to it.

Teachers should remember that much of what is taught in school will be forgotten; yet the work there done, will have its results in the pupil's after-life. The teacher should therefore, not only recognize the call, but carry the burden of it into every-day life, in and out of school, thereby exerting a constant influence for good, not only on the better pupils, but upon the worst; none are incorrigible.

This must not be done by the authority of the teacher, but by personal power, directing, yet not seeming to direct. Scholars will take on the characteristics of the teacher, and unconsciously pattern after them to a greater or less degree. It stands us in hand, then, to so live and act that we shall be glad to see ourselves represented in the characters of our pupils, when they have grown up. Like the builders who wrought for years in the quarries underneath Solomon's temple, to find some of the stones they had already cut, in places of honor, so may we hereafter look with satisfaction upon some of the results of our work.

Miss Mason spoke of the "Character of the Teacher" as affecting her work. The teachers' character is felt and recognized although they do not even realize its influence. "Whatever else the child may, or may not study, he is sure to study his teacher."

Miss Waterbury considered the habits and manners of the teacher. There is an eternal chain of influence; we attract or repel. Teachers should therefore be superior in mental, if not in moral qualities, as compared with those they teach. Example is all-powerful. We teach by what we are, not by what we say.

Miss Nelson, in reference to the attitude of the teacher toward the pupil out of school, said teachers should "come down" to the understandings of the children without being themselves lowered in character. Get acquainted with them, and sympathize with them. The true dignity of the teacher does not require him to keep out of the reach of his pupil.

The drift of the discussion tended strongly toward the idea that it is character and not accomplishment that constitutes the true aim of the teacher.

"Character, development of thought and expression, are the three primary objects which the earnest teacher must carry in his mind's eye every day. Everything taught must tend towards all or some one of the above elements and inspire the teacher in order to produce an effect on the pupil. The thoughtful man or woman cannot but be impressed with the importance of the right development of the child's character, when we consider the importance it assumes in developing the future character of our great nation, increasing in population at the rate of a million a year. The intelligence displayed at the ballot box must decide the nature of its future greatness, and our school-system must shape this intelligence through the teachers, and the teachers are a primary factor in mending the existing defaults in the system. So, it is no mean thing to teach a school, though it is small; the work which we do will live after us, and in proportion to our patriotism should be zealous in the performance of our duty."—J. M. Harris.

QUERIES.

(21) What is the oldest college in the United States? Where and when founded?

(22) What president served one day longer than his term?

(23) What state was formed from the territory of another?

(24) Who was president of the second Continental Congress?

(25) Why does a black slate pencil make a white mark?

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the [illegible] block. Inquire of [illegible]. 15tf.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix.

The Curtis & Co. Manufacturing Company, plaintiff vs Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, defendants. In Attachment.

[illegible]

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Attachment

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix.

John Plankinton and Patrick Cudahy vs Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery. In Attachment.

Notice is hereby given that on the 5th day of November A. D. 1886, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of John Plankinton and Patrick Cudahy comprising the firm of John Plankinton & Co., of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the above named plaintiffs against the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys and effects of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, composing the firm of Upright & Emery of Charlevoix, Michigan, the defendants above named for the sum of Two Hundred Thirty three and [illegible] dollars ($233.[illegible]) which said writ was returnable on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Notice of Attachment.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix.

Moses D. Wells, H. J. Macfarland and R. K. Wells, plaintiffs vs Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, defendants. In Attachment.

Notice is hereby given that on the 5th day of November A. D. 1886, a writ of attachment was duly issued out of the Circuit Court for the county of Charlevoix, state of Michigan, at the suit of Moses D. Wells, H. J. Macfarland and R. K. Wells, comprising the firm of M. D. Wells & Co., of Chicago, Illinois, the above named plaintiffs against the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, moneys and effects of Adelbert R. Upright and Ida C. Emery, composing the firm of Upright & Emery of Charlevoix, Michigan, the defendants above named, for the sum of One Thousand Six Hundred Fifty two and Thirty-three one hundredths dollars ($1,652.33) which said writ was returnable on the 7th day of December, A. D. 1886.

Dated this 27th day of December, A. D. 1886.

FREDERICK W. MAYNE,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Chancery Sale.

David Carpenter, Complainant, vs August Stueburg, Defendant.

State of Michigan, suit pending in the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit, in Chancery, in the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix in Chancery.

[illegible]

Dated this 10th day of December A. D. 1886.

FRANK E. TOGG,
Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Charlevoix County, Michigan.

A true copy, attest,
SAMUEL B. THATCHER, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a mortgage made by Benjamin Walker, Benjamin Mosaw [illegible] and the same person, and known and called by either name) and Mathe Mosaw, his wife, of Charlevoix county, to David Carpenter, of Bluefield, Michigan, bearing date July 16, 1880, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, July 22, 1880 in liber 3 of mortgages on pages 616 and 617, [illegible]

Friday, the 4th day of March, 1887, [illegible]

Dated December 7th, 1886.

DAVID CARPENTER, Mortgagee.
DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Adelbert R. Upright and Amelia R. Upright, his wife, of Charlevoix, Michigan, to Martha J. Ayers of Plattsburg, New York, dated the twenty-sixth day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the county of Charlevoix and state of Michigan, on the twenty-seventh day of June in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four in liber "B" of mortgages on page 440 at ten o'clock and thirty minutes in the forenoon, and the same is now owned by the said Martha J. Ayers, and the whole of the principal and interest is past due and unpaid and there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Eleven hundred and Ninety-two Dollars and twenty five cents ($1,192.25); [illegible]

Thursday the Twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1887, [illegible]

Dated November 17th, A. D. 1886.

MARTHA J AYERS,
Mortgagee.

EDWARD H. GREEN,
Attorney for said Mortgagee,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

For Sale!

Prof. RICE'S nicely located House and two beautiful lots on [illegible] street near the Park in the village of Charlevoix, are now for sale. Enquire of G. M. RICE, Alpena, Mich. or E. H. GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich.
May 4, 1886.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all Coughs and Colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial Bottles free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c per box by Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton.

CROSS & SONS.,

Buy and Sell all kinds of

Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, - Mich.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.

DIRECTORS.

Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. R. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL, ... $25,000
SURPLUS, ... [illegible]

The liabilities of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art 3171 Sec. 45 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS.

NATIONAL PARK BANK - - - NEW YORK
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK - - - CHICAGO
NAT. CITY BANK - - - GRAND RAPIDS
DETROIT NAT. BANK - - - DETROIT

Bank of

Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with one's own money, is folly, that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors, and, believing that it has been our usual guarantee, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its [illegible].

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the making of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.

Correspondence solicited.

Pan-Zoma Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month's treatment. Reliable lady Agents can make money for themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address PAN-ZOMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN,
MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

[illegible] Retail Dealers

3 EXTRA GRADES OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the

BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are silent statements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS

— AND —

SHOES,

which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Pacs, And Everything

Usually kept in a country shoe store.

We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25 Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S

MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $1.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED'K W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN M. D., Office at residence, Mason st., Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 295, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 151, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. [illegible] R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 156, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron See.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—P. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. V. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. M. See, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Bergen.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE,
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. E. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

BARBER.

JAY PRICE, Barber, east side of Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down		Stations	Going East read up
		Detroit
7 00 am	6 50 am	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 55 pm
10 25	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 18	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 18
2 25	11 21	Au Train	3 25	10 15
5 20	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	[illegible]
	[illegible]	Calumet	[illegible]

Connections made with M C R R at [illegible]

E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No 6	No 5	No 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey	8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 16	11 30
Mancelona	10 18	11 50
Walton Junc	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Ar	12 40	2 50	6 10
Cadillac Lv	12 45	6 05	6 30
Le Roy	1 21	6 40	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids	2 46	8 11	8 31
Stanwood	3 02	8 30	8 50
Howard City	3 33	9 03	9 25
G R & M Cross	4 40	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 55	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	[illegible]	11 15
Plainwell	[illegible]	6 45	[illegible]
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	7 10	[illegible]
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	[illegible]	[illegible]	3 28
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	11 21	6 00
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 45
Richmond	4 30	3 30
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No 3	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis	4 24	5 35
Kalamazoo Ar	5 45	6 55
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell	6 10	7 45
Grand Rapids Ar	7 40	9 20
Grand Rapids Lv	11 30	[illegible]
G R & M Cross	[illegible]	[illegible]
Howard City	12 51	5 18
Stanwood	1 22	5 53
Big Rapids	1 42	6 09
Reed City Ar	2 13	6 40
Reed City Lv	2 35	7 40
Le Roy	3 08	8 00
Cadillac Ar	3 40	8 33
Cadillac Lv	3 55	9 10
Walton June	4 45	10 24
Mancelona	5 11	11 30
Boyne Falls	7 11	12 52
Petoskey	7 50	1 50
Mackinaw City	8 [illegible]	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass Agent.

Old papers sold at this office.

AFTER THE HONEYMOON.

When Lily and Ralph first fell in love they were very young, and nothing more is to be said. They looked upon each other as superior beings, and married still holding that opinion. However, the honeymoon being over and housekeeping begun, breakfasts that turned out as they pleased, and dinners that had to be apologised for, rather changed Ralph's mood. His mother had been a perfect paragon in domestic affairs, and the meals and laundry-work had always been faultless under her roof. To be sure, she had been an experienced widow when she married his father, and he was the only child of people who had money enough and no struggles before them. Lily had never made a cup of tea until he bestowed upon her the honor of his name and a very limited income.

She had done the best with it if he had but known it; and it was very cruel of him to burst out one morning with these words:

"Ah, what would my mother say if she could see me eating steak scorched outside and raw within?"

"It is too bad," said Lily. "It's a shame. Biddy doesn't know anything."

"Then you should teach her," said Ralph. "My mother arose at five and superintended the servants."

"I'll get up earlier, Ralph," said Poor Lily. And she did. But the next day's breakfast was even more of a failure. The two girls—lady and servant—were utterly ignorant of the art of cooking, and Bridget, under Lily's advice, surpassed herself in her own line—that of making culinary failures.

Ralph was cruel this morning, Lily thought. He had so lately been a lover that it seemed strange to her that he should conduct himself like a man at a hotel who was ill served. Her blood boiled; she grew flushed and furious; she kept a restraint upon herself, however, and did not say:

"If you could let me pay the wages for a good cook, we might live better. A little green girl at ten pounds a year will hardly prove satisfactory."

She bit her tongue, but she would not utter these words. Women keep the romance of their courting days longer than men. How could she quarrel with her lover, the man who had thought it a joy to hold her hand a year ago?

She did her best not to show her feelings; and she bought a cookery book instead of a new scarf she had wished to have, and studied it carefully.

Alas, experience is so much!

She tried other breakfasts: ham bought cooked and cut in slices—fruit—coffee. He spoke of being starved. She made a meat pie; it was a curious thing when it was cut; no one ate a mouthful. She cried. He frowned, and fell back upon his mother again; that praiseworthy lady was quoted morning, noon and night. "My mother never forgets buttons; my mother never wastes time; my mother's preserves; my mother's tea; my mother's housekeeping," fell from his lips at regular intervals. "My mother's temper" was quoted at last.

Lily was a good girl, and loved her husband; but it would never be quite the same to her as if Ralph had been kinder; a little of the bloom was off the plum of matrimony, but she would not let the whole fruit spoil. She did her best very patiently, and finally he should really have bestowed praise, and did not, and was really wrong and blameworthy; but Lily held her tongue; she was proud and spirited, and she had a certain rod in pickle for this young man.

* * * * *

It was Christmas Day. Ralph had calculated, he said, on being invited home. "They will ask us, of course, on Christmas Day," he said. But his mother, on this occasion, broke through her usual custom.

"I shall dine out myself with some old friends," she told him; "and, of course, your father and O'Donnel are going out, too;" and Ralph felt very sorry. But for his opinion of Lily's cooking, he should have had great pleasure in getting his friends about him in his own house that day; but he felt it would not do.

He went out for a walk that morning, and, returning, found the table set. All was bright and pretty; but there were plates for four.

"You haven't asked company, my dear?" he said.

"Well, yes; just two people," said Lily.

"Two!" said Ralph. "Well, they will wish they had staid at home. My dear, I hope they have not delicate digestions; our dinners will be dangerous if they have. Turkey, plum-pudding, and mince pie, I suppose; I smell them; and what will you or Bridget do with them? Heaven knows."

Then he gave a start as his mother and father entered from the parlor, laughing at his surprise.

"I'm delighted to see you," he said, kissing his mother and giving his hand to his father; "but really—our dinners." He sighed. "Lily can't cook as you do, mother."

The dinner was brought in; it did smell nice. They seated themselves; all were served. Ralph, however, accompanied each dish with apologies, while all, even himself, ate heartily. "It's not as bad as usual," he thought, secretly, but he said nothing, and wound up by remarking, as he passed a glass of wine to his father:

"Well, we haven't spoiled this. Since wine is uncooked—Heaven bless it. Otherwise——"

"Ralph," said his mother, sharply, "this was an excellent dinner."

"Thank you," he said. "I never knew you to tell a fib before; and this is such an amiable one."

"You are not amiable, Ralph," said mamma. "Poor Lily has done her best."

"No doubt; and so has poor little Biddy," said Ralph. "But Lily and I know too well what that 'best' is. Excuse our wretched dinner, and be frank about it."

"Indeed and indeed!" cried a voice at the door. "I've known you since you wore petticoats, Master Ralph. I've no fear of you. I cooked that dinner. Now spake agin if you like." And amidst shrieks of laughter from all but Ralph, entered to them Mrs. O'Donnel, with arms akimbo. "This dinner I cooked," she repeated, with a curtsey of the old-fashioned sort to her mistress; "and for a good six months your purty little wife has been wid me larning to cook. There's few of any age can do better now, unless, perhaps, she needs some lessons in fancy desserts."

"But I knew nothing when I came to learn of you, Mrs. O'Donnel," said Lily, "and I almost poisoned my poor boy."

Ralph said nothing. What could he say? But he arose and kissed his wife; and if he felt very much ashamed of himself, it was no more than he deserved to be.

Miniature silver barrels, filled with the best Minneapolis flour, are the gifts which the Danish people of the northwest sent to their friends in Europe.

Gen. Grant's Horses.

Gen. Grant was particularly proud and fond of his stud of horses. His war charger was an especial favorite. He took great delight in exhibiting his horses to his friends with whom he was intimate. Once at his stables with a friend he said: "Perhaps you would like to see the horse I rode during all the campaigns I commanded?" The animal was ordered to be brought out. The gentleman was surprised to find the horse no larger than a lady's palfrey—small, slender, agile-limbed, black as coal, intelligent, mild, an eye like a hawk, and a lock on the mane for all the world like a boy's cow-lick. It was such animal as women and children would make into a family pet. The gentleman pronounced the animal a beauty, but expressed a doubt as to its endurance. "Endurance!" said the general. "This animal exceeds in endurance any horseflesh I ever saw. I have taken him out at daylight and kept in saddle till dark, and he come in as fresh when I dismounted as when we started in the morning. There isn't gold in America to buy him. He is an imported horse of fine breed and was once on Jeff Davis' plantation." This was just before Davis was caught, and the visitor said: "I presume you would exchange the horse for Jeff Davis?" "You have said it," exclaimed Grant; "I would exchange him for his old master, but for nothing else in the world."—Ben: Perley Poore, in the Boston Budget.

The Language of Monkeys.

In the way of language, monkeys manifest their passions, emotions, desires, and fears, by cries and gestures, emphasized by significant accents, which vary with the species. Monkeys and children, together with savages and uneducated people of civilized nations, manifest an inclination to mimic the gestures and motions of all persons whom they see. We think that this trait is especially prominent in monkeys, but thousands of instances might be cited to show that mankind, old and young, shares it with them. The attitude and the sagacity of monkeys are so human that some savages believe that it is out of maliciousness that they do not talk. In fact, a monkey might pass for a dumb man, because he does not articulate the consonants clearly, as we do; but not all men have this power of articulation in an equal degree. We have stammerers by birth and by habit. Some savage tribes have a scanty alphabet complicated by clicks and nasal and guttural sounds that can not be imagined till they are heard. All monkeys have voices, and many of them have very strong ones. Excepting the solitary and taciturn orang-outang, the species which live in troops are chatterers, and keep up a great hubbub. The principal tones of their noisy and rapid language, with the frequent repetitions of the same sounds, may also be found in the languages of the most savage people. They are, for the most part, complex, guttural, and harsh articulations, with few variations. But the alphabets of some of the African and Melanesian nations are not much richer. In both, it is generally the labials which are wanting. Laughter is not wholly peculiar to men, for some monkeys have a noisy and expansive laugh analogous to ours. Cook has stated that natives of the New Hebrides express their joy by a kind of guttural whistle, analogous to the jerky, rattling laugh of some monkeys. Monkeys are also capable of showing sorrow and weeping; and it is possible to follow on their faces the equivalent of the physiognomical changes which in man answer to the expression of his various emotions. Among these are the drawing back of the corners of the mouth and the contraction of the lower eyelid, which constitute the monkey's smile, and the depression of the eyebrow and forehead in anger.—Madame Clemence Royer, in Popular Science Monthly.

Every-Day Life at Monte Carlo.

At last one day the old earl accosted her as she rose from the table, after losing all she had brought with her.

"You seem out of luck to-day," he began.

She looked at him an instant, and replied: "Yes, but I usually am lately."

"Do you never win?"

"O, yes, sometimes, of course; but when I lose I plunge so heavily to get it back that even when luck turns it seldom gives me back what I have lost."

"Why do you play then?"

"O, what nonsense! You know we all do so when we lose."

"What do you mean by 'we,' young lady?" asked the earl fixing his eyes on her in a very earnest manner.

"You must know well enough. I mean all who gamble regularly."

"So you are one of those who gamble regularly, eh?"

Clemenza colored up; then, turning away to look for her mother, replied, carelessly, "I shall not be very regular for some time, as I have lost all my money."

Madam Ronzi and her uncle now approached; the young girl darted forward, exclaiming in Italian: "Uncle, do lend me some money!"

"I have very little left; but here are five louis."

She snatched at them, rushed back to the table, and put the whole sum he had given her on No. 36. Fortune favored her at last, for the number turned up and she had thirty-five times the stake she had put down; she fairly danced with joy. "There, uncle, I knew it must come soon; it has not been up"—here she referred to her marked card—"for fifty-eight times, and I changed my luck by getting up from the table." Her whole body seemed transformed; she laughed and shook her uncle's arm playfully. The dull, heavy, tortured look had gone, and a joyous radiance spread over her face that utterly disgusted the earl as he looked at her.

"You will leave off now dear, will you not?" asked the mother.

"What, leave off just as my luck has changed? O, no; that would be foolish" and the young gambler began again with renewed vigor.

The earl did not remain to see whether her "luck," as she called it, continued. His mind was made up. His nephew should not marry that girl, or he would never have a shilling from him. Horror and disgust at what he called a girl's depravity turned him away from her as much as her beauty had at first fascinated him.—From "The Lost State."

The largest vine in the world is said to be one growing at Ovs, Portugal, which has been in bearing since 1802. Its maximum yield was in 1864, in which year it produced a sufficient quantity of grapes to make 165 gallons of wine; in 1874, 164 gallons, and in 1881 only 79½ gallons. It covers an area of 5,315 square feet, and the stem at the base measures 6¾ feet in circumference.

My Neighbor Over the Way.

I know where [illegible] plot dwells.
A hoard [illegible]
In [illegible]
[illegible]
He [illegible]
And I [illegible]
He [illegible] and lilies.

I have [illegible]
We [illegible] walk every day,
He is [illegible] plain,
Is my [illegible] way;
He talks, perhaps, a little too much,
But he knows such a world more than I.
We have in our village a [illegible]
Who do no labor—the Lord knows why.

But they eat and drink of the very best,
And the cloth that they wear is soft and fine,
And they have more money than all the rest
With handsome houses and plate, and wine,
And I ponder at times, when tired and hungry,
How strangely the gifts of fortune fall,
And wonder if we are not to blame,
Who have so little, yet pay for all.

Alas for the workmen over the land
Who labor and watch, but well [illegible]
Who wear the vigor of brain and hand
In toiling [illegible], and drink and song.
Alas for the strength too much diffused
And the sights that lure from the better way,
For the gifts and riches we have not used,
And the true hearts tending to swift decay.

Alas for the twig, perversely bent,
And the tree of knowledge, so wrong to extend.
Alas that a dollar was ever spent
Until the dollar was earned or mined.
But my neighbor is one who [illegible]
All social riddles; and he explains
That some must labor with muscle and hands
While others may work with tongue and brains.

Though he doesn't make it so very clear
Why he should fare much better than one
Who does more work in a single year
Than he in all of his life has done,
But he argues me out of all demur
With logic that fogs my common-sense,
And I think of the old philosopher
Whose "shingle" hangs by the garden fence.

Food for the Sick.

Solid food should never be given to a sick person without the doctor's special permission. He will say when, in his judgment, its use may be begun safely, and thus the nurse is relieved from all responsibility. A convalescent's diet should be digestible and tempting. The appetite is beginning to return and must be encouraged, except after typhoid fever, when it has to be suppressed. During extreme illness food is a disagreeable necessity, to be disposed of as quickly as possible. There is no desire for it. It is swallowed under compulsion as a necessary but nauseous medicine and to escape from the opportunities of the nurse. In convalescence it is looked forward to with eagerness, and the dainty repasts are the events of the day. They should be made to look as enticing as they can be, and all the appointments should be daintily bright and clean. A teaspoonful of tea spilled in the saucer from a full cup seems a trifling matter to a well person, but it is enough to spoil the comfort of an invalid's meals. Food that is intended to be hot must be served very hot on a well warmed plate set over a bowl of boiling water and covered in its transit from the kitchen. A cup of lukewarm soup would be sent away untasted, whereas if it had been really hot it would have been eaten and enjoyed. Things that are intended to be cold should be left in the ice box, or the cool dairy, until the last moment before serving. Tepid blanc mange is not an inviting article of diet and custard, which would be delicious ice cold, loses its attractiveness when it is milk warm. Strawberries and all fruit should be placed on a plate over a bowl filled with chopped ice, and sliced tomatoes should be laid on ice. Attention to these little points makes all the difference between comfort and discomfort, between food being refused as unpalatable, or eaten with relish. The prettiest china that the house affords should be brought out to embellish the convalescent's tray. The eye must be pleased as well as the palate, and a victory is won when the invalid says, "Oh, how delicious it looks!" Butter should be rolled into tiny balls with the grooved paddles sold for the purpose, and bread cut in delicate slices divided into four.—Elizabeth Robinson Scovil, in Good Housekeeping.

There are a good many men in New York who would give considerable to be served as was Henry Dumble, of Kingston, Canada. He is sixty-eight years old, and for years has been perfectly bald; but last spring hair began to grow on his head, and now he has a fine crop of elegant black hair, and his whiskers, which have been gray for twenty years, are turning black too.

It is said that everybody in the town of Yakutsk, Siberia, gets drunk on New Year's day, the bishop solemnly setting the example.

MERCHANT

TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

J. A. HEATH,

FURNITURE

— AND —

JOBBING SHOP.

Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Manufacturer of BED SPRINGS.

Give me call.

MILLINERY

— AND —

FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH &
Miss ANNIE COOPER

Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of

FANCY GOODS!

Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils," etc.
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 57 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread and Cheese and Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Phila. Illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses ranging in cost from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $3.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of

"SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

MICHIGAN LANDS

For Sale By The

G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with beech and maple elm and other wood and are accessible to best markets.

By Water and Rail

And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of [illegible] souls and is rapidly filling up with settlers from almost every state in the Union.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address

W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

TITLE PERFECT.

FRANK E. WOODS

Bath & Barber Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

The Kalamazoo

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED

CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it

1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

The Beam is not bolted to the [illegible] side, but by means of a [illegible] is [illegible] in the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy.

If your Agent does not keep it write us for prices.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, Wis.

BARGAINS!

ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
BEST HEATING AND COOK STOVES

HARDWARE, TINWARE, LAMPS, NOTIONS

JOB and TIN WORK. L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line

JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING

YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of

Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.

If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.

All classes of Repairing done quickly

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT

AND CONTRACTOR,

— ON —

Chalevoix Summer Resorts,

I have the Plans of [illegible] Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS

Dealers in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash

WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee

Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a

FIRST-CLASS

SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,

At current rates of interest, on

Approved Real Estate Security.

[illegible] Bonds bought and sold.

MILEY & CHAPIN,

Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER

ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a good place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, Publishers

JOE JEFFERSON'S HOME.

Across the marshes and bayous eight miles to the west from Petite Anse Island rises Orange Island, famous for its orange plantation, but called Jefferson Island since it became the property and home of Joseph Jefferson. Not so high as Petite Anse, it is still conspicuous with its crown of dark forest. From a high point on Petite Anse, through a lovely vista of trees, with flowering earth in the foreground, Jefferson's house is a white spot in the landscape. We reached it by a circuitous drive of twelve miles over the prairie, sometimes in and sometimes out of the water, and occasionally diverting from our course by fences. It is a good sign of the thrift of the race, and of its independence, that the colored people have taken up or bought little tracts of thirty or forty acres, put up cabins, and new fences round their domains regardless of the traveling public. We zigzagged all about the country to get round these little enclosures. At one place, where the main road was bad, a thrifty Acadian had set up a toll of twenty-five cents for the privilege of passing through his premises. The scenery was pastoral and pleasing. There were frequent round ponds, brilliant with lilies and fleurs-de-lis, and hundreds of cattle feeding on the prairie or standing in the water, and generally of a dun-color, made always an agreeable picture. The monotony was broken by lines of trees, by copse-like woods stretching into the plain, and the horizon line was always fine. Great variety of birds enlivened the landscape; game birds abounding. There was the lively little nonpareil, which seems to change its color, and is red and green and blue—I believe of the oriole family—the poquebotte, a favorite on New Orleans tables in the autumn, snipe, killdee, the clerooke (snipe?) the meadow-lark, and quantities of teal ducks in the ponds. These little ponds are called "bull-holes." The traveler is told that they are started in this watery soil by the pawing of bulls, and gradually enlarged as the cattle frequent them. He remembers that he has seen similar circular ponds in the north not made by bulls.

Mr. Jefferson's residence—a pretty rose-vine covered cottage—is situated on the slope of the hill, overlooking a broad plain and a vast stretch of bayou country. Along one side of his house enclosure for a mile runs a superb hedge of Chickasaw roses. On the slope back of the house, and almost embracing it, is a magnificent grove of live-oaks, great gray stems, and the branches hung with heavy masses of moss, which swing in the wind like the pendant boughs of the willow, and with something of its sentimental and mournful suggestion. The recesses of this forest are cool and dark, but upon ascending the hill, suddenly bursts upon view under the trees a most lovely lake of clear blue water. This lake, which may be a mile long and half a mile broad, is called Lake Peigneur, from its fanciful resemblance, I believe, to a wool-comber. The shores are wooden. On the island side the bank is precipitous; on the opposite shore amid the trees is a hunting lodge, and I believe there are plantations on the north end, but it is in aspect altogether solitary and peaceful. But the island did not want life. The day was brilliant, with a deep blue sky and high-sailing fleecy clouds, and it seemed a sort of animal holiday; squirrels chattering; cardinal-birds flashed through the green leaves; there flitted about the red-winged blackbird, blue jays, red-headed wood-peckers, thrushes, and occasionally a rain-crow crossed the scene; high overhead sailed the heavy buzzards, describing great aerial circles; and off in the still lake the ugly heads of alligators toasting in the sun. Charles Dudley Warner, in Harpers' Magazine.

Proverbs About Snow.

There are many of these. Some have relation to signs by which the number of storms during the season are to be calculated, and others to the number of storms in the following winter, while still others claim a connection between the moon and the snow. Passing by these, it may be interesting at the beginning of the snow season to have a selection of the proverbs which seem to have a foundation in fact.

Snow is generally preceded by a general animation of man and beast, which continues until after the snow-fall ends.

When the first snow remains on the ground some time in places not exposed to the sun, expect a hard winter.

When the first snow falls dry it means to lie,
But flakes light and soft bring rain oft.

Burning wood in winter pops more before snow.

When dry leaves rattle on the trees expect snow.

When in the ditch the snow doth lie,
'Tis waiting for more by and by.

It takes three cloudy days to bring a heavy snow.

If the snow flakes increase in size a thaw will follow.

If there is no snow before January there will be the more snow in March and April.

In March much snow,
To plants and trees much woe.—German.

The more snow the more healthy the season.

Heavy snow in winter favors the crops of the following summer.

A snow year, a rich year.

Snow is a poor man's fertilizer, and good crops will follow a winter of heavy snowfall.

If much snow be spread on the mountains in winter, the season of planting will be made blue with verdure.—Indian.

A heavy fall of snow indicates a good year for crops, and a light fall the reverse.

Much sleet in winter will be followed by a good fruit year.—Boston Journal.

A new revolver has been patented which is expected to be less liable to be accidentally discharged than any of its predecessors. Its main feature is a concealed hammer, inclosed in the lock frame, which can not be unintentionally manipulated, and the trigger is so arranged that it can not be pulled unless a safety-lever in the rear of the lock frame is first pressed.

COUNTRY LIFE AND WORK

SUNRISE AND SUNSET.

SUNRISE.

Flame-hearted lover of the earth—great sun!
Rise from thy purple couch; stretch forth thine arms
Through morning's parted curtains; let the charms
Of waiting love which it were death to shun
Persuade thy clasp. Now hath the earth begun
To loose her robes of mist, with much amaze
She yields her beauty, which love's longing warms,
Forestalling the embrace thy kiss hath won.

Arise, great god of light and life, arise.
Enfold the fond earth in the deathless glowing
Of thy fierce love; bend from the shimmering skies,
Which burn before thee in their onward going.
No cheer have we and not of thy bestowing;
Thou art the joy of all hope-lifted eyes.

SUNSET.

Within thy burning palace in the west
Thou art awhile withdrawn. Yet doth thy face
Look from the closing portal for a space
Back to the earth, which thy dear love hath blessed;
While she with tears and soft sighs half repressed
Beholds thee sinking in thy resting-place,
As with up-gathered folds of dewy lace
She hugs remembrance to her yearning breast.

Thy glory darkens, and the careful night
Hangs out the moon's pale lamp while yet the flush
On evening's face—with thy departing light—
Turns from rose-pink to crimson, till the blush
Dies with the coming stars, and slumber's hush
Wraps thy warm bride, who waits thy waking might.

—Century.

HOW TO FEED HORSES.

According to the New York Star, the following is the method of feeding the horses of the Adams Express Co., in New York:

"In the morning, the first thing, we give our horses each about seven pounds of oats, with about a quart of shelled corn and a double handful of good hay. At noon we give them a good peck of chop, made of ground or mashed corn, white middlings and bran. Every other night we give them about ten pounds of hay, and every night eight or ten pounds of clean rye straw for bedding. We don't give them hay every night, because if we do they won't eat their chop up clean. By giving it every other night we find they always eat up their feed. We water them three times a day—before they go out, when they come in, and after we clean up for the night. Of course the drivers, when the horses are out, give them water when they feed it. In warm weather, instead of cracked corn and middlings, we give corn meal and wheat bran. Our horses have to do hard work, but we keep them in good condition. That is a general statement of the way we feed horses. Of course, in particular cases, we have to use judgment.

When a horse is dull and blows over its feed, the best thing is to take it away. The chances are that the next time it will eat up clean. Don't allow a horse to stand blowing over its feed. My men are particular also to clean the manger out well before feeding and not allow any stale or sour feed to be left in the manger. There is nothing like regularity in feeding. When horses don't have enough at one time, and then perhaps too much at another, you cannot expect to keep them well. I said we gave the horses hay every other night. That is a matter of judgment. If you find horses on their feed and eating it up clean, you can give them hay every night.

"You will notice when horses are cleaned oats with nothing else they do not digest them," continued Mr. Smith. "They get little or no benefit for them. In order to make the horses grind them up and masticate them properly, you should put a handful of hay with the oats. Then they eat them, digest them, and get the full benefit of them. Oats make muscle; corn makes fat. Men who own trotters feed little corn, but the best oats. Corn is both fattening and strengthening at the same time. It is a mistake to feed horses one thing all the time. They enjoy variety just as much as man does. In the winter time a good thing to give a horse is about ten ears of good sound corn. Then at noon the feed is varied and again at night, giving them a change each time."

VALUE OF COAL TAR.

The true value of coal tar on the farm has not generally come to be recognized. As a preserver of wood it is the best and the cheapest of anything we have. This product may be obtained from gas works at a very slight cost, and when properly applied goes a great way in its use. Any wood surface to be exposed a part of the time to moisture, will be made to last very perceptibly longer when given a covering of tar. Those who have tried dipping soft-wood posts, such as willow and poplar, certify that the wood is made to last in the ground equal to the best seasoned oak. Well curbing, the lower boards of fences or buildings, barn floors, in fact anything exposed to moisture, will be well preserved if given a covering of hot tar. As a disinfectant it is considered very valuable, and should be applied to the walls and roosts of poultry houses, and to the soiled portions of pig pens. The best condition in which to apply it, as a rule, is while hot. It is in this way the cheapest and forms a much better preservative, yet it can be applied as a paint, by thinning with turpentine when in a melted condition. This will be found more expensive, as turpentine costs about sixty cents a gallon. The ordinary way of tarring posts is to dip them; the process is convenient, and the result most effectual. A long, trough-like vat, provided with a sheet-iron bottom, and the whole set over a brick fireplace, makes a very convenient arrangement. Two men, each provided with a hook made of heavy wire, stand at each end of the vat, and are able to perform the dipping with a great deal of speed. The timber should be well seasoned so that all the openings, resulting from cracking, may become filled with the hot liquid and rendered impervious to water. If boarded roofs be covered with tar, water will run from them with greatest freedom. Cast-iron implements may be rendered rust proof by dipping in hot tar, and the covering will be equal to the best Japan finish.

CHEAP CATTLE SHED.

A correspondent of The Indiana Times writes: While visiting at the farm of Mr. John Laufer near Forsville, Indiana a few days ago, I saw what appeared to me to be not only a good, but also a very cheap and comfortable sheltering place for cattle in winter. Mr Laufer some years ago took from his woods a number of small trees, about one foot in diameter and such as he could well spare, and of these he constructed a rough pen or inclosure large enough to give shelter to about twelve head of cattle, and about four times as many hogs. The trees were placed in two rows, standing about fifteen feet apart, other, and probably a trifle smaller trees being used to connect the rows at the top. The latter were placed together close enough to carry a roof of straw, without letting too much of it fall through. When he was ready to thrash his wheat, of which he usually has a large crop, he placed the thresher near the structure, and as the straw came from the machine, he had it heaped up around and on top of the structure, leaving one end of it open, and taking care at the same time to have the stack well formed and proportioned. The trees supporting the straw and this hole in the stack making a warmer and decidedly cheaper sheltering place for his cattle than he could have built of wood or brick. Mr Laufer says that his cattle never injured each other and that there is but little waste of straw,—much less than there usually is by allowing the cattle to stand around the straw stack all winter and freeze. The covering of the shed is renewed each year, when the wheat or other grain is threshed. I have always considered it a piece of wanton carelessness and cruelty for farmers to permit their cattle to be exposed to the weather all winter, when a sheltering place could be built for them without much expense or trouble, and I therefore believe that I am simply performing a little missionary work by calling attention to the manner in which my friend Laufer provides for his stock.

RESTING LAND.

We like that good old Anglo-Saxon word "rest." In this age many try to give it a new meaning. They work all day and then after supper milk a dozen cows for a "rest." Mr. Henderson in the November American Agriculturist, proposes to rest land on the same principle. On the soil in frames, where cabbage and lettuce have been grown during the winter, and on which he intends to plant cabbage cauliflower and lettuce next winter, he sows clover, millet or oats in May, cuts the crop twice or thrice, and then turns under the "sod" in September, and this leaves the land in admirable condition for planting. But it is in no sense a rest.

Many of us like to "rest" our land by sowing oats in May, taking off the crop and turning under the "sod" in September and sowing wheat. We do this in hopes of getting a good crop of oats. But we think it is contrary alike to science and experience to suppose that the oats enrich or in any way benefit the land. If the land were plowed in May and again in September, and harrowed and cultivated to keep down the weeds, we should expect better wheat than if the land had been sown to oats.

HOW RAIN IS PRODUCED.

Did it ever occur to the reader that there is just as much water in the air above him on a clear bright day as on a cloudy or a rainy one? Rain does not come from somewhere else, or if it is wafted over you by the wind from elsewhere, the water that was over you is simply wafted on from some other place. What is said above explains this. Water is absorbed in the air above us at a certain temperature, and it becomes invisible. Cool that air by a wind draft of cooler atmosphere, or by a electrical or chemical influence, and the moment the air becomes cooler it gives up some of the watery particles that were insensible or invisible to the higher temperature. These small particles thus given out unite, and when enough of them coalesce, obstruct the light and show as clouds. When enough of them unite to be too heavy to float in the air, they begin to descend; pair after pair of them come together until a rain drop is formed. One of these minute rain drops is made up of millions of infinitely small watery particles.

Air passing over the cold tops of mountains is cooled down so that it gives up a good deal of the concealed watery vapor, and hence little rain falls in the region along the lee side of the mountains. This is why so little rain falls in Colorado and in other places north and south of that state. The prevailing winds blow from the west, and the cool tops of the Rocky Mountains lower the temperature, and thus take out the moisture, that would otherwise fall in rain.—Ex.

ENSILAGE.

An English dairyman thus sums up the advantages of ensilage: 1. It enables the farmer, irrespective of weather, to secure his crop in that state of ripeness where its feeding properties are of the greatest value. 2. Owing to its greater bulk and superior feeding qualities about one-third more stock can be maintained on the same area. 3. It encourages greater production by securing second crops and aftermaths. 4. The feeding value of ensilage is being about equal to that of turnips and hay combined, the former expensive and uncertain crop can be dispensed with, when desired. 5. When used in feeding milk cows, for which it is perhaps best adapted, it produces butter and milk more resembling the summer produce than can possibly be obtained from any other feeding. 6. It enables the farmer to secure his forage crops in the most simple and economical manner.

SMALL FARMS.

A commodity of small farms has many advantages which are not known where large farms are the rule. The farms are better cultivated and cared for, then the whole section bears a more thrifty appearance. Neighbors are nearer and generally of a more intelligent class, while roads are better, and churches, school houses, stores and other conveniences necessary to the most advanced civilization are more numerous and their advantages can be the more easily and conveniently enjoyed.

SOAP FOR CLEANSING CLOTHES.

For a soap to clean clothes without rubbing: Take two pounds sal soda, two pounds yellow bar soap, and ten quarts water. Cut the soap in thin slices, and boil together two hours; strain, and it will be fit for use. Put the clothes to soak the night before you wash, and to every pailful of water in which you boil them, add a pound of soap. They will need no rubbing, but merely rinsing.

FRENCH MUSTARD.

Three tablespoonfuls of mustard, one tablespoonful of granulated sugar, well worked together, then beat in an egg until it is smooth; add one teacupful of vinegar, a little at a time, working it all smooth, then set on the stove and cook three or four minutes, stirring all the time; when cool add one tablespoonful of the best olive oil, taking care to get it all thoroughly worked in, and smooth. You will find this very nice.

INDIAN PUDDING.

Three heaping tablespoonfuls of meal and one of flour stirred together, and wet with a little cold milk. Pour over this mixture one pint of boiling milk, and add half a cupful of molasses, half a teaspoonful of cloves, and salt. When ready for the oven add one and a half cupfuls of cold milk. This is very nice served with cream.

Queer Speech.

Nothing can be worse in taste than flippancy in connection with serious subjects, but it does sometimes happen that an innocent statement, made in all honesty, has power to bring a smile when our countenance should be saddest. The Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, Chaplain to Ernest, King of Hanover, tells the following anecdote of Temple, the King's coachman:

Temple lost his wife. Of course I, as chaplain, had to perform the funeral ceremony. A few days afterwards old Temple, in deep mourning, called upon me. He was very much upset, and evidently had something on his mind which he found difficulty in expression for he stood a few moments in silence and then turned his hat round and round, looking mournfully into it, and brushing it with his hand. At last he began, stammering:

"I've called, sir—I've called, sir—as I wish to ask—and don't like to put it off what I've got to pay you for that 'ere job."

"O," I said, "nothing, of course. I have no fees, Temple; but I remember now that I am in your debt, and must ask you what I have to pay for the two pots of ointment you made for my horse's cracked feet?"

"O," said Temple, "bless you, sir, don't mention it. Nothing, sir, nothing; one good turn deserves another, all the world over."

I am sure he meant nothing disrespectful, for he was devotedly fond of his "old woman," as he called her; but one could not help thinking it a queer way of speaking.

Digestibility of Breadstuffs.

Dr. Walzen Muller, the German physiologist, remarks upon the common idea that an admixture of bran with flour renders the latter much easier of digestion and asserts that the smallest comminution of the grain, as well as the amount of husky portion retained in the well-known Graham flour, produces a slight irritation of the digestive organs, which results in the separation of the pepsin from the husk of the grain, admitting of its mixture with the gastric fluids, thus greatly facilitating the process of assimilation; this mechanical irritation, particularly in the case of the aged and weak, being otherwise producible only by the use of alcoholic and similar stimulants. Dr. Muller is of the opinion that bread should not be made without salting, for the reason that the starch of the flour contains a large amount of the salt of potash, which neutralizes much salt in the system. Again, dry bread which has been baked some little time is most healthful, as the chewing process must of necessity be thorough and the bread consequently fully salivated previous to its entrance into the stomach. He also particularly urges the desirability of raising the dough of bread with milk.

Drunkenness in Switzerland.

Drunkenness having greatly increased in Switzerland, the Swiss are about to try a new experiment for restricting the sale of alcohol. The manufacture of spirits has been made a Federal monopoly, all distillers being required to sell their produce to the State, which will then resell it to the consumer. The quality will be improved, strict regulations being enforced as to the substances used in distillation; but the retail price will be raised, the Federal Government expecting to raise £600,000 a year from the monopoly, 74 per cent of which must be spent by the Cantons out measures calculated to check the abuse of alcohol. It will be interesting to watch the effect of this experiment, which is the first effort ever made on a great scale to reduce consumption of concentrated alcohol, while leaving that of diffused alcohol, as in wine and cider, untouched. English teetotalers will think the effort thus limited very foolish; but doctors, we suspect, will be of a different opinion. It will be observed that when the State has once obtained the monopoly it will be possible, if that is thought wise, to sell spirits on doctors' orders only—say for two years—and see what is the result of that.—London Spectator.

Paper Collars and Cuffs.

Brooklyn Eagle: "Paper collars and cuffs are becoming popular again," said a Fulton street haberdasher to an Eagle reporter. "In late years it was considered vulgar to wear them, but now they are effected by all classes of society. I have many wealthy customers who will wear nothing else. They are mostly elderly gentlemen who have been educated to that idea from boyhood and are loath to discard the style of linen worn by their daddies. Paper collars have the best sale in the rural districts. Farmers, if they wear collars at all, affect paper ones. A linen collar is almost unknown in some parts of the country, particularly in the West. Of late I have noticed that many young and dressy men wear paper linen, and especially in warm weather. Paper collars come cheap. Some brands are worth more than others. An excellent quality can be bought for 25 cents a box, which contains ten collars. Cuffs cost the same for a box containing five pairs. In hot weather paper collars are luxurious to men who perspire freely. They can be changed as often as desired, and are comparatively cheap when it is taken into consideration that a box can be purchased at about the same price that would be paid for one linen collar. But few men can tell a paper collar at a glance. Some brands make nearly as good an appearance as linen. Celluloid collars and cuffs are now seldom worn.

Turn on the Hose.

I have a great belief in the efficacy of fire engines against a mob. Wet clothes damp ardor; few men are brave when cold and wet; and this fact is so well known that a certain French politician living in Paris during the period of excitement was in the habit as soon as he rose of looking out of the window, and if he found that it was raining would exclaim with a cry of relief: "No revolution today." We also learn that when Louis Philippe was replacing Napoleon's statue on the column in the Place Vendome the Napoleonists assembled continually in excited crowds round the pedestal. The crowds were, however, dispersed by copious streams of water being pumped on them. The material effect of a stream of water projected from a fire-engine through a hose is considerable. No man can stand against it. Besides, on the principle that the mishaps of others afford human beings a certain amount of satisfaction, the members of a crowd are sure to laugh at seeing their companions wetted, and a crowd which begins to laugh ceases to be dangerous. I would, therefore, suggest that whenever a serious disturbance is anticipated a few fire-engines should be placed at the disposal of the police.—Fortnightly Review.

Feline Friendship.

A Newark hardware dealer has two female cats which have heretofore evinced a strong hatred for each other, but now are on most friendly terms. They patched up a peace on Sunday night after a very noisy fight in the cellar where each old cat had a litter of kittens in separate nests lined with hay. The owner of the cats heard the battle raging until midnight and confidently expected to find in the morning that it had been a war of extermination. He went down stairs early to gather up the slain, and to his intense surprise found the two old cats comfortably curled up together in one of the nests, while both families of kittens occupied the other. A few hours later the old cats concluded to move their families up-stairs. They succeeded very well until the last kitten's turn came. It was the most robust in the lot, and the tired mother failed in her trial to carry it up the fourth step.

A plaintive mew brought the other cat to her assistance. Taking the kitten by one of its hind legs, she helped the mother to carry it up the stairs. On reaching the top the grateful mother showed her gratitude by licking the other old cat's coat, and then bestowed the same attention to the kitten.—N. Y. Sun.

Antiquity of Gambling.

San Francisco Chronicle: I believe they played dominos in Egypt 3,660 years ago for money, and I dare say the mercenaries of ancient Carthage shook dice for the remuneration they had for their brutal services. Poker was known by another name, but I doubt not that Nebuchadnezzar's army anted up in their camp in the warm Assyrian night; and while Brutus was quarreling with Cassius in his tent the Roman soldiery were probably staking their prospective drachmas at some game of chance. Still, in the nineteenth century, with civilization in full blast and a hundred religious creeds fighting for the regulation of people's morals, the three-card-monte performer scoops in the astute man of business, and the bunko man lands the statesman and the poet just as of old.

TRAVELERS from Hawarden declare that Gladstone's countenance has grown more smiling than ever of late, and that he evidently believes that his period of seclusion is drawing to a close.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

WHO DECRY THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION?

Sunday morning Jan. 30 Rev. T. De Witt Talmage delivered the following in the Tabernacle at Brooklyn, taking for his text the following: "He made his arrows bright, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver." Ezekiel, xxi., 21.

By which the King of Babylon proposed to find out the will of God. He took a bundle of arrows, put them together, mixed them up, then pulled forth one, and by the inscription on it decided what city he should first assault. Then an animal was slain, and by the lighter or darker color of the liver, the brighter or darker prospect of success was inferred. That is the meaning of the text: "He made his arrows bright, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver."

Stupid delusion. And yet all the ages have been filled with delusions. It seems as if the world loves to be hoodwinked, the delusion of the text only a specimen of a vast number of deceits practiced upon the human race. In the latter part of the last century Johanna Southcote came forth pretending to have divine power, made prophecies, had chapels built in her honor, and one hundred thousand disciples came forth to follow her. About five years before the birth of Christ Apollonius was born, and he came forth; and after five years being speechless, according to the tradition, he healed the sick and raised the dead and preached virtue, and according to the myth, having deceased, was brought to resurrection.

The Delphic Oracle deceived vast multitudes of people; the Pythoness, seated in the Temple of Apollo, uttering a crazy jargon from which the people guessed their individual or national fortunes or misfortunes. The utterances were of such a nature that you could read them any way you wanted to read them. A General going forth to battle consulted the Delphic Oracle, and he wanted to find out whether he was going to be safe in the battle or killed in the battle, and the answer came forth from the Delphic Oracle, in such words that, if you put the comma before the word "never," it means one thing, and if you put the comma after the word "never," it means another thing just opposite. The message from the Delphic Oracle to the General was: "Go forth, return never in battle shalt thou perish." If he was killed, that was according to the Delphic Oracle; if he came home safely, that was according to the Delphic Oracle.

The priests of those auguries, by the flight of birds, or by the intonation of thunder, or by the inside appearance of slain animals, told the fortune or misfortune of individuals or nations. The sibyls deceived the people. The sibyls were supposed to be inspired women, who lived in caves and who wrote the sibylline books afterward purchased by Tarquin the Proud. So late as the year 1829 a man arose in New York, pretending to be a divine being, and playing his part so well that wealthy merchants became his disciples, and threw their fortunes into his discipleship. And so in all ages there have been necromancies, incantations, witchcrafts, sorceries, magical arts, enchantments, divinations and delusions. The one of the text was only a specimen of that which had been transpiring in all ages of the world. None of these delusions accomplished any good. They deceived, they pauperized the people. They were as cruel as they were absurd. They opened no hospitals, they healed no wounds, they wiped away no tears, they emancipated no serfdom.

But there are those who say that all delusions combined are as nothing compared with the delusion now abroad in the world, the delusion of the Christian religion.

That delusion has to-day two hundred million dupes. It proposes to encircle the earth with its girdle. That which has been called a delusion has already overshadowed the Appalachian range on this side the sea, and it has overshadowed the Balkan and Caucasian ranges on the other side the sea. It has conquered England and the United States. This champion delusion, this hoax, this swindle of the ages, as it has been called, has gone forth to conquer the islands of the Pacific: the Melanesia and the Micronesia and Malayan Polynesia have already surrendered to the delusion. Yea, it has conquered the Indian Archipelago; and Borneo, and Sumatra, and Celebes and Java have fallen under the wiles. In the Fiji Islands, where there are 121,000 people, 102,000 have already become the dupes of this Christian religion, and if things go on as they are now going on, and if the influence of this great hallucination of the ages can not be stopped it will swallow the globe.

And to show the immensity of this delusion, this awful swindle of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, I open a hospital, and I bring into that hospital the death-beds of a great many Christian people, and I take you by the hand this morning, and I walk up and down the wards of the hospital, and I ask a few questions. "Dying Stephen, what have you to say?" "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." "Dying John Wesley, what have you to say?" "The best of all is, God is with us." "Dying Edward Payson, what have you to say?" "I float in a sea of glory." "Dying John Bradford, what have you to say?" "If there be any way of going to heaven on horseback, or in a fiery chariot, it is this." "Dying Neander, what have you to say?" "I am going to sleep now—good night." "Dying Mrs. Florence Foster, what have you to say?" "A pilgrim in the valley, but the mountain-tops are all agleam from peak to peak." "Dying Alexander Mather, what have you to say?" "The Lord who has taken care of me fifty years will not cast me off now; glory be to God and to the Lamb! Amen, amen, amen, amen!" "Dying John Powson, after preaching the Gospel so many years, what have you to say?" "My death bed is a bed of roses." "Dying Doctor Thomas Scott, what have you to say?" "This is heaven begun." "Dying soldier in the last war, what have you to say?" "Boys, I am going to the front." "Dying telegraph operator on the battle field of Virginia, what have you to say?" "The wires are all laid and the poles are up from Stony Point to head-quarters." "Dy-

[…]

WATTERSON'S JOKES.

[…]

Rules in Afghanistan.

[…]

INDUSTRIAL.

ENCOURAGING CHEESE-MAKING.

[…]

SCIENTIFIC.

[…]

LEGAL OPINIONS.

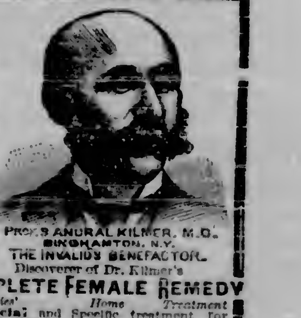
[…]

INJUSTICE CORRECTED.

[…]

Chinese Proverbs.

[…]



DYSPEPSIA

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

THE BEST TONIC

SWAYNE'S

OINTMENT

THE GREAT CURE FOR ITCHING PILES

PURIFY THE BLOOD.

COMPLETE FEMALE REMEDY

PATENTS

FITS STOPPED FREE

TELEPHONES

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT

RUPTURE

PENNYROYAL PILLS

"CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH."

CATARRH

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.
CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 16, 1887.
WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor
F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor

Northern Michigan.

The Bellaire Breeze booms Hon. Roswell Leavitt for Circuit Judge.

The Congregational parsonage at Northport, is at last free from debt.

Indications now are that many new settlers will enter Antrim county this spring.

L. M. Kanagy, of Banks, is Chairman of the Antrim County Building Committee.

The Beaver Island mail still makes regular trips across the ice between there and Cross Village.

Amos Burnett got the contract of carrying the mail between Cross Village and Harbor Springs.

The city incorporation question is submitted to a vote of the people of Traverse City, at the village election in March.

Col. Lorin Roberts of Traverse City will muster in E. P. Case post, No. 172, at Benzonia, on the evening of February 25.

An Episcopal church in Petoskey is an established fact. The various religious denominations are becoming well represented.

Will Nelson, publisher of the Leland Enterprise, and Miss Addie Huntington, of Barton, Wisconsin, were married at the home of the latter on the 2nd inst.

Michael Davitt of Harbor Springs, recently felled an ancient maple tree, which bore in its inmost heart the marks of an axe, overgrown by later rings of concentric growth, going to prove that the earlier chips flew at least a hundred years ago.

The matter of a mammoth hotel on Mackinac Island, which has caused so much newspaper talk is now an assured fact. It is to be built by the G. R. & I. and Michigan Central R. R's and the Detroit & Cleveland Steam Navigation Company, at a cost of $150,000, and will be completed in time for the coming resort season.

W. J. Clarke of Harbor Springs, was the lowest bidder on the Cross Village and St. James mail route, and will have the contract after June 1st. Mr. Clarke and Capt. Crysler are negotiating for a propeller to put on the route, and have two at their disposal one of which is not yet off the stocks. The Van Raalte has the contract until the first of June, and whether there will be two boats on the route after that time is not known. That two will not pay is certain.

A base ball league was organized at Reed City last week. W. A. Higbe was made chairman, and C. L. Hecox secretary. The following towns represented: Reed City, W. A. Higbe; Evart, J. C. Creith, R. A. Bennett; Cadillac, Bert Spafford; Big Rapids, C. H. Olds; Greenville, C. L. Hecox, G. Avery; Ionia, A. B. Greek, E. Walker. After some debate it was moved and carried that the organization be known as the Northern Michigan Base Ball League, and that the league embrace Reed City, Evart, Cadillac, Big Rapids, Greenville and Ionia. It was declared that two games be played each week by each club; and that a guarantee of $25 per game be made. Also that four months, commencing June 1st be the season.

Letter From W. C. Byers.

CHERRY VALLEY, Kas., Feb. 11, 1887.

To the Editors of Sentinel.

For the benefit of my wife's health, we left Michigan for a visit to this country. To any of your readers who may be interested, I will give a short history of our trip, and of the country as seen by me.

We left Atwood Monday, Feb. 7th, with the snow about 2½ feet deep. Left Traverse City Tuesday morning, and as we traveled south the snow fast disappeared with the warm rain that was falling, till we got to Reed City, where we saw the last sleighs in use. From there to Fort Wayne the waters were very high. We arrived there after midnight, one hour behind time, on account of a washout.

Left Fort Wayne next morning at 5 o'clock on the Wabash road to St. Louis, passing through the Wabash valley, one of the best of farming countries, and through Illinois, one of the muddiest of all.

The eyes grow weary in looking at the cribs of corn all through the state. The farmers seem to have nothing to do but collect in groups at the railroad stations, and watch the cars. The only way they can get there is on horseback, by the looks of the saddled horses hitched in all the towns through which we passed.

We arrived at St. Louis at 8:30 p. m. Crossed the Mississippi in the night, and missed seeing the bridge. Business lively at union depot, which we left in about 40 minutes after leaving St. Louis, on the Frisco & St. Louis R. R.

We pass through a rough, mountainous country. When daylight dawned, we were in the lead and zinc mines. After passing through these mines we come to a fine farming country—one of the best wheat countries I saw on the route. Wheat looks splendidly. It is also a good fruit country.

From there as far west as this point we found the farmers busy plowing and preparing for spring sowing. We arrived at Cherry Vale at 10 o'clock, nearly 400 miles from St. Louis.

This is a beautiful looking country, but I will withhold my opinion as to its advantages or disadvantages; yet, as I expect to see more of it before I return to Michigan, I may have something to say of it.

Corn is worth 30 cents, wheat 70 cents, hay $3 to $4 per ton, potatoes 75, apples 75. The thermometer registered 64 degrees yesterday.

Yours,
W. C. BYERS.

ANNUAL HISTORY

Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned From the Files of the Sentinel.

1872.

In 1872 calico sold for 12 cents a yard in Charlevoix, sheetings 10 to 18 cents, coffee 25 to 35 cents, tea 75c to $2, sugar 10 to 15 cents; about double the prices of to-day.

At this time, the Indians of the Grand Traverse region owned 148 houses and $87,000 worth of property.

The population of Charlevoix was 450.

January 27th, a mass meeting was held in the school house for the purpose of raising funds for the continuance of harbor improvement. Fifty seven subscriptions, aggregating $2,275 were obtained in amounts running from $25 to $500. The subscriptions above $25 were: Geo. W. Esterly & Co., $500; Henry Morgan, $200; A. Chamberlain, $100; John S. Dixon, $100, A. Buttars, John Stevenson and W. C. Newman, $50 each. Mr. Morgan submitted a plan and estimate for projecting a pier 240 feet on the north side. This pier was to be composed of six cribs each 40 feet long and 16 feet wide, and was to cost $1,115. Work was commenced March 1st. By the 30th the six cribs were completed and sunk. D. C. Nettleton had charge of the work.

Hon. Philo Beers, postmaster of Charlevoix, died April 3d, aged 72.

At a meeting of the State Board of Control, held March 27th, their action vetoing the legislative appropriation of 16 sections of state swamp land, valued at $10,000 was reconsidered.

At the spring elections the following supervisors were elected: Charlevoix, A. G. Aldrich; Norwood, F. J. Meech; Evangeline, G. W. Hood; South Arm, J. A. Keat; Marion, J. Newman; Eveline, J. C. Bartlett; Banks, (Antrim county) H. W. Beach.

Work was commenced on the three story addition to the Fountain City House April 15th. When it was completed, the Fountain City House was the largest hotel north of Manistee.

The dates for the opening of the straits for the 18 years preceding 1872 were as follows: 1854, April 25; 1855, May 1; 1856, May 2; 1857, May 1; 1858, April 15; 1859, April 4, 1860, April 11; 1861, April 25; 1862, April 25; 1863, April 17; 1864, April 23; 1865, April 21; 1866, April 29; 1867, April 23; 1868, April 19, 1869, April 23, 1870, April 18; 1871, April 3d.

At a Mass meeting, April 13th, D. C. Nettleton was elected Local Commissioner for harbor improvement.

Dennis T. Downing, the Emmet county autocrat, died April 9th.

The grading on the Traverse City railroad was commenced April 26th, H. O. Rose and W. W. Barton being the contractors.

The propeller Badger State was the first boat this spring. She arrived from Chicago May 2d.

W. A. Smith succeeded Philo Beers as postmaster in May.

The SENTINEL was enlarged to a six column folio June 22d.

The present school building, costing $4,000, was built during the summer. S. M. See and D. C. Nettleton were the contractors.

The tug Col. L. S. Paine was purchased by H. H. Ballard, of Northport, of Toledo parties, in August, for $3,000.

Contract No. 1, of the river improvement, was let to Henry Morgan, in August. The contract called for the completion of the piers by adding five feet to their height, and filling with stone three feet above the water.

Among the buildings erected this summer were the stores of Norris & Stockman, E. Carpenter, W. C. Newman, (now owned and occupied by Harrison Miller), Harry Newman, the upright of the Fountain City House, the school house, the warehouse of Fox, Rose & Buttars, and the residences of J. A. Cameron, A. O. D. McCabe, D. H. Norris, Byron See, and L. D. Bartholomew.

The second contract for harbor improvement was let to Henry Morgan in September. It called for the erection of two 40 foot cribs on the south side of the channel.

F. L. Kiser, of the firm of G. W. Esterly & Co., and a gentleman who had taken a leading part in the matter of harbor improvement, was drowned from the tug Minnie Warren, Oct. 17th, near Little Island, between Charlevoix and Norwood.

Rev. Geo. L. Cole, (Methodist) and G. W. Wood, (Presbyterian) were the Charlevoix pastors at this time.

Major E. H. Green was elected to the Legislature by a rousing majority at the fall election.

The county officers elected were: Judge of Probate, Richard Cooper; Sheriff, A. G. Aldrich; Clerk, J. S. Dixon; Register, M. J. Stockman; Treasurer, W. A. Smith; Surveyor, A. Hayden; Coroners, R. Cooper and John Ward. 274 votes were cast.

The Traverse City railroad was completed and cars running in November.

The total amount expended on the piers during the summer was $5,520.96.

—The Elk Rapids people are wide awake on the railroad question. Last Thursday evening they held an enthusiastic meeting, and appointed committees for railroad work. Mr. H. H. Noble recently had an interview with Mr. Mulliken, of the C. & W. M. Railway, and brings home much encouragement. If Mr. Noble's information is correct, the C. & W. M. people have a jealous eye upon the towns north of Traverse City on this shore. In speaking of the Traverse City scheme of building a branch east of the Antrim county lakes he remarked that he "would rather have Elk Rapids, Torch Lake, Charlevoix and Ironton, than Traverse City and all the towns east of the lakes;" and that "traffic comes down stream easier than it goes up." When Charlevoix people bring their present scheme to a successful issue, there is food for reflection in what Mr. Mulliken says. It means the possibility of another road besides the Michigan Central.

H. P. Cook has been appointed agent for Charlevoix county of the nursery establishment of Cody Bros., Geneva, N. Y., and will take orders for trees. Trees are warranted to be as represented. 4t

Masonic.

Special communication of Charlevoix Lodge, F. & A. M. next Tuesday evening, Feb. 22, for work upon the third degree. Members take due notice and govern yourselves accordingly. All Masons invited.

W. A. SMITH, W. M.

Banks.

DEAR SENTINEL: During my absence the good people of Banks have been jogging along in the even tenor of their way. Industry, energy, contentment, thrift and enterprise is manifestly characteristic of the masses. Plenty of work for man or team at good wages, the long winter through furnishes no small part of the farmers annual harvest. This may account for so little loafing and groaning over hard times.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Byers started Monday for southern Kansas. Mrs. B's health has been seriously impaired for several months. They have gone with the hope that climatic conditions there may aid in her recovery. They will remain indefinitely the guests of her sister, Mrs. Dr. J. F. Gard, of Cherryvale, Kansas. Mr. M. E. Byers will have charge of the farm operations during their absence.

Walter Chamberlain is the new mail carrier from Atwood to South Arm.

Mr. Wm. Flanagin lost his valuable fast horse, Don Pedro.

Mr. Thomas Chamberlain is slowly convalescing.

James G. Blaine will deliver an address before the Republican club of Michigan at Detroit on Feb 22d, the anniversary of Washington's birthday.

The scare about British cruisers visiting the upper lakes is unfounded. A single anarchist bomb sagaciously placed at a corner of one of the Welland canal locks, would make it as impossible for a vessel to pass through the canal as to pass up Niagara Falls.

The pension bill, which passed both houses of Congress, and which, if it had become a law, would have given $12 per month, from the time it became a law, to all soldiers and sailors who, though not injured in the war, are yet too feeble, through age or any other cause, to earn a livlihood, was vetoed by the President the 10th.

Democrats have a scheme to oust Ivory Littlefield, range light keeper at Cheboygan, a poor one-legged soldier, who fought all through the late war. The charge brought against him and forwarded to Secretary Manning at Washington, for his removal, is that he is discourteous to visitors who ask to go into the towers. An officer went there to investigate the matter. When it became public, the Bourbon signers of the petition, composed of village office-holders, cared not meet the officer to substantiate the charges.

There seems to be quite a general desire among many Republican papers of the State that at the convention to be held at Detroit Feb 23, the man to be nominated for Justice of the Supreme Court is Col. Chas. D. Long, of Flint. The SENTINEL cordially endorses the suggestion. We know Col. Long personally, and know him to be all that has been said of him by the press. He is a one-armed soldier, has a character above the shadow of reproach, and is a lawyer of standing and ability. He would be an honor to the supreme bench.

State Republican: Prohibition leaders are claiming that, if prohibition is adopted, the Republican party will be responsible for its enforcement. That claim is absurd. But it shows that even the Prohibitionists recognize that prohibitory laws are unnatural and altogether different from other laws, because nobody thinks of holding any party responsible for the enforcement of any other law. Laws are put upon the statute books, and then those interested are expected to enforce them. Neither the Republican party nor the State can reasonably be expected to step into a county, or city, or township, and make complaints for a violation of the laws, if the people there will not do it; nor to pack juries to convict, if the people there will not convict; nor to pick out prosecuting attorneys who will prosecute, and justices and judges who will sustain the laws if the people there choose to elect officials who are opposed to the law. Suppose the county of Wayne and City of Detroit elect Democratic Prosecuting Attorneys and justices and judges and sheriffs, opposed to the law, and expressly not to enforce it, and Wayne county and Detroit city juries will not convict—how can the Republican party be responsible? Suppose the prohibitionists themselves act as they used to do when this state tried prohibition for so many years, and will not make complaint against liquor dealers—how can the Republican party be to blame? The fact is, the Republican party will not incur or assume the slightest responsibility. If prohibition should again be attempted, it will be the duty of those who pretend to favor it to enforce it. If they won't enforce it, they may be sure nobody else will, and their old trick of trying to shirk the duty of making complaints and prosecutions off upon somebody else, will fail again as it always has failed.

Republican Caucus.

In front part of Sentinel building (to-night) Feb. 16, at 8 o'clock, to nominate delegates to the county convention to be held Thursday.

H. LEE IDDINGS,
Chairman Township Com.

Card of Thanks.

The members of Baxter Post G. A. R., take this method of expressing their thanks to the public for the liberal manner in which they patronized their entertainment. They tender especial thanks to Miss Rose M. Cody, the Band, Mr. W. H. Carr and all others who assisted in making their effort such a grand success.

COMMITTEE.

Charlevoix, Feb. 14th, 1887.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address, JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

Republican County Convention.

A Charlevoix county Republican convention will be held in Charlevoix, February 17th 1887, at 2 o'clock p. m., to elect delegates to the State Republican Convention to be held [illegible] February [illegible] 1887, and to the Republican Judicial Convention for this district to nominate a circuit judge and to transact such other business as may be brought before said convention. The several townships are entitled to representation as follows: [illegible] 1, Springvale 1, Bear Lake 1, [illegible] 1, [illegible] 1, Resort 1, Evangeline 4, Wilson [illegible] South Arm [illegible], Eveline 5, Hayes 2, Charlevoix 5, Marion [illegible], Norwood 1.

Charlevoix, Mich. Feb. 8, 1887.

FRED W. MAYNE, Chairman.
H. LEE IDDINGS, Secretary.

HORSE FOR SALE. Inquire of S. M. See, Charlevoix.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

WANTED—A steady situation in a store. Six years experience. Address D. C. BACON, Box 233, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

Low Prices still Continue

AT

George W. Miller's.

A REMINDER

For February.

Our Remnants!

Our 1-4 off, a big Success. But it has made us piles of Remnants.

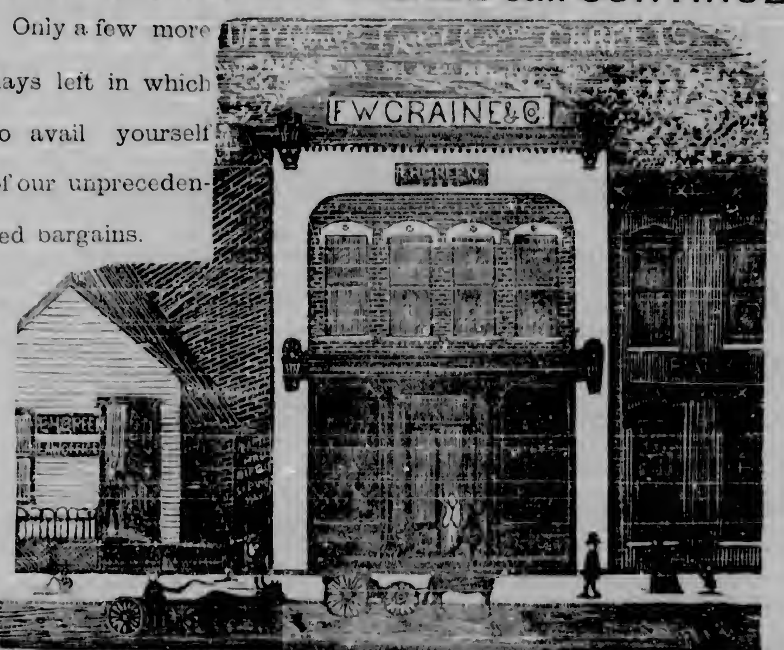
This week we shall give you all a better chance than ever to get bargains.

COME IN AND SEE WHAT THIS MEANS. FOR REMEMBER WE ALWAYS LEAD.

F. W. Craine & Co

CRAINE & CO'S 1-4 OFF SALE still CONTINUES.

Only a few more days left in which to avail yourself of our unprecedented bargains.



J. L. HURD & CO.

Look Around!

It always pays whether you are buying much or little. Trust your own judgment and see that you get good value for your money. We want you to look at our Bargains in Wool Dress Goods, Hosiery, Mitts, Flannels, Blankets, Yarns, Wool Skirts, etc.

We are determined to close out everything in these lines within 30 days, even if we have to pay people for taking them away. In fact our ENTIRE DRY GOODS STOCK is offered at MONEY-SAVING PRICES.

We guarantee lowest figures and will take Ties, Posts and Shipping Wood in exchange.

Come and get a sample of the best 50c Tea ever brought to Charlevoix.

J. L. HURD & CO.

The Best Groceries At The Lowest Prices ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

J. MILO EATON'S REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

VOL. XVIII. NO.—43 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 990

ROSENTHAL & SON ARE SELLING OUT!

OWING TO A CHANGE WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE IN OUR STORE IN THE SPRING, WE MUST SELL OUR ---STOCK OF---

DRY GOODS, CARPETS, CLOTHING, CLOAKS, NOTIONS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, ETC.

REGARDLESS OF COST!

WE MEAN BUSINESS! EVERYTHING IN OUR STORE WILL BE SOLD AT SOME PRICE, FOR CASH ONLY.

Now is the time to get Bargains. Come and see for yourself.

RESPECTFULLY, ROSENTHAL & SON.

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!

---HEADQUARTERS---

For Everything needed in the School Room, at HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully, F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces EVERYTHING usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best, Our Prices the Lowest, Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

"There is a tide in the affairs of Men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

If you are going to use any building Hardware, now is the time to buy it! Iron, Nails, and all kinds of Hardware are advancing. Be advised the present low prices cannot continue. Until after our annual invoice is taken, we offer great bargains in everything in our line. Buy NOW and save money! Heating Stoves at remarkably low prices.

Yours Truly

STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BRANCH STORE AT HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,

Charlevoix, - Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One year - $1 50 | Six months - $ 75

Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—H. W. Page, of Kalamazoo, was in town Friday.

—Mike Litney and wife returned home from Sutton's Bay, Friday.

—A ten cent tea will be given by the ladies of the M. E. church, Monday evening.

—Robert H. Sherman, of Dakota, brother of Joseph Sherman, is engineer at Cooper Bros. new saw mill.

—Michael Dooney, who was sent to the insane asylum from this place some time ago, died there recently.

—W. H. Downer returned from his visit to Chicago and Wisconsin Friday, and will remain here the rest of the winter.

—L. D. Bartholomew & Co., are on deck with a complete line of sugar makers' utensils. Notice their new announcement.

—The harbor work will begin to stir things up in Charlevoix as soon as navigation opens, and continue most of the season.

—Willie Aldrich, a compositor on the Chicago Inter-Ocean force, is home visiting his parents, and will remain a month or more.

—Capt. Dan Way has leased the Bradbeer gallery and the success he is having in taking fine photographs is drawing him a large patronage.

—The Chicago & West Michigan authorities are credited with saying that their road will not stop till it reaches the straits.—Detroit Tribune.

—Lyman Price and John Lamb leave next week for Bayfield, Wis., where they will enter the employ of the Bayfield Mfg Co., superintended by H. O. Cook, formerly of this place.

—The Kalkaska railroad committee, consisting of C. P. Sweet, W. H. Pipp, D. M. Stever, A. A. Bleasby, W. B. Perkins and A. G. Drake, were here in conference with our committee yesterday.

—The dispatches announce the transfer of Capt. Harrison Miller from the Beaver Island Life Saving Station to that at Point Betsey. The change is a promotion and increase of pay. The honor is deserved.

—R. A. Campbell takes possession of the Occidental house, Petoskey, to-day, and will move there with his family soon. He will also continue his management of the Bridge Street House, in Charlevoix, for a time.

—Hon. Fitch R. Williams and Mr. Newkirk, of Elk Rapids, were in town Saturday talking C. & W. M. railroad to our people. They are very sanguine that the road will be built to that point next season, and are equally as firm in the opinion that the interests of Charlevoix lie in that direction.

—L. E. Allen returned from Detroit, Saturday. Work will be commenced as soon as the ice will permit upon his Charlevoix contracts. Although there were five other bids on each of the three classes of work for this harbor, Mr. Allen underbid all his competitors, bidding $9,090 for Charlevoix and $5,873 for Frankfort. His contracts here call for dredging the lower channel to 15 feet, adding one 50 foot crib to the south pier, dredging the point near the upper channel, and revetting the gap in the north side of the lower channel below the bridge. At Frankfort he will sink one crib. Charlevoix is fortunate that Mr. Allen was the successful bidder as he announces that he will spend every cent possible, in the way of material and labor, at Charlevoix.

—Dr. Carlstein to-night at Green's hall.

—Mrs. J. L. Hurd returned from Ionia, to-day.

—Will See returned from Rochester, Saturday.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Burns returned from Canada, Friday.

—Mr. Daniel Williams of Harbor Springs, was in town Monday.

—Capt. A. G. Aldrich will take a trip as far as Cincinnati next week.

—A temperance communication is necessarily put over until next week.

—Do not forget the 10 cent tea at the M. E. church next Monday evening.

—Come out and hear Dr. Carlstein's lecture on "Travels in Europe" this evening.

—County Clerk Thatcher and Will A. Norton, of Boyne City, were in town Friday.

—Attend the temperance mass meeting at the M. E. church Thursday evening.

—Rev. J. J. Kanagy, of the Gaylord Congregational church, was home over Sunday.

—F. W. Craine & Co. announce the arrival of a mammoth line of spring dry goods.

—A meeting of the Board of Directors of the D. C. & E. R. R. was held Friday afternoon.

—J. L. Hurd & Co. offer a series of special sales to close out their present stock. Read about it in their advertisement.

—J. E. Watson, formerly of the Scranton & Watson Lumber Co., East Jordan, has returned to his first love, photography, in Cincinnati.

—The Charlevoix minstrels will give another of their popular entertainments the latter part of next week, probably Friday evening.

—Two Charlevoix young people have organized a snow-shoe club. "Two hearts with but a single thought, four soles that beat as one."

—The masquerade for the benefit of the public reading room last evening, was an immense success, in every way—as a carnival eclipsing anything of the kind ever held here. The prizes were awarded to Wm. Cross, representing "The Fat Boy," and Miss Annie McLeod, costumed in Mrs. John Nicholls grandmother's wedding dress, representing "One Hundred Years Ago."

If any man or set of men, lay the flattering unction to their souls that the D. C. & E. railroad project is a thing ephemeral and altogether wind, they should rectify their opinions before results make fools of them. No project was ever entered upon and prosecuted to any length but what encountered obstacles in its progress. Charlevoix knows something of this from experience. This railroad enterprise has met with obstacles, but the momentum which is the accumulated power of years of unconscious growth in bone and sinew, has prevailed to surmount them, and those whose action was intended to block the wheels of progress, are left to reflect upon the great big fact that the world would wag along just the same were the human family short just their number of souls. The organization is intact; the status of the stockholders has been settled down to a bed-rock basis; the Board of Directors are men of ability and energy; the people of Grayling, Kalkaska, Mancelona and Bellaire are all intensely in earnest; the M. C. R. R. folks have given the Board of Directors assurances that when the corporation is a legal reality they will treat with them. Everything looks bright, and we have no doubt of the ultimate success of the movement. Let not the interest abate; neither let croakers nor obstructionists cause discouragement. Work persistently and industriously; contribute generously and cheerfully, and the much desired end will surely be reached. The SENTINEL in past years has been a true prophet concerning these things, and it has not yet lost the gift of prophesy.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Teachers meetings are becoming larger and more interesting as time goes on. We will welcome any who are not teachers who may desire to study with us.

On Thursday a convention of the W. C. T. U., embracing the entire county, will meet at 2 p. m. Services also at 7 p. m. All are cordially invited to attend both services.

Saturday and Sunday mark the end of the second quarter. Preaching on Saturday at 2 p. m., after which the quarterly conference will meet for business. Love Feast on Sabbath morning at 9:30. Preaching at 10:30 after which the Lord's Supper will be administered as he gave commandment. Come and renew your vows, confess your faith, and honor Him who has loved you and given himself for you.

W. H. MCCARTNEY.

Elsewhere.

Revival services have been continued for two weeks in the Ironton M. E. church with good results.

Preaching next Sabbath evening at Johnson's school house. Come everybody.

Baptist Church.

The annual presentation of the cause of Foreign Missions next Sunday morning. Usual services in the evening.

Dr. Carlstein delivers the second of the series of home lectures at Green's hall this (Wednesday) evening. The date of Prof. Enos' Lecture will be announced.

Women's Christian Temperance Union:

There will be a temperance meeting at the M. E. church on Thursday of this week, at 2 p. m., at which time a county organization will be effected. It is expected there will be present large delegations from all the Unions of the county. Mrs. Thurman, a colored speaker will be with us, and occupy some time. At 7 p. m., at the same place, there will be a mass meeting, different delegates from the Unions participating in the exercises. The public are invited to both sessions. Let the house be filled.

The rumor comes to me that certain young men, who were at the temperance meeting at Jeffries' hall last week, claim to have paid me $1.50 each, asking for change and receiving none, etc. I was appointed to receive contributions, which resulted in two gentlemen handing me in all 25 cents. Both were men of families. These statements have been made in public places, for what purpose am unable to say; but desire thus publicly to deny the truthfulness of them.

R. A. CAMPBELL.

The W. C. T. U. meet at their rooms Friday at 2 p. m. A very general and especial invitation is extended to all ladies to be present. Some Unions complain of their editors being unfavorable to their work, but we are so fortunate as to find our editors always kind, courteous and obliging, when asked to give notice of anything pertaining to our work. Now, while they, with our pastors, business men and citizens, are willing to aid in this good work, are there not more Christian women who will come to the front and help battle for God, home and native land? Do not sit quietly by, waiting to reap the reward when the work is done.

SEC. W. C. T. U.

Reorganized.

Last evening a meeting of the stockholders of the D., C. & E. R. R. Co. was held at the Fountain City House, and a reorganization of the corporation effected, which distributes a share of the stock among the other towns on the route—the shares being held as follows: Charlevoix, 151; Ironton, 100; Bellaire, 50; Kalkaska, 190.

The following Board of Directors was elected: Charlevoix, John Nicholls, A. D. Cruickshank, J. Milo Eaton, Jos. R. Dixon, F. J. Meech; Ironton, R. M. Cherrie, E. A. Lewis; Bellaire, R. Leavitt; Kalkaska, A. A. Bleazby, A. G. Drake, W. H. Pipp.

The Board of Directors held a meeting and elected the following officers: President, R. M. Cherrie; Vice President, A. A. Bleazby; Secretary, J. Milo Eaton; Treasurer, F. J. Meech.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, Publishers

A Puzzled Traveler.

I find myself this morning in a novel predicament, amusing if one is philosophical enough to look at the amusing side of it, but at the same time very annoying, writes a correspondent from Placquemine, La., to the New York Commercial Advertiser. We are brought to a halt here by a railroad wreck, and are likely to be detained here for at least a day. I have my family with me, and naturally there are expenses to pay. I have in my pocket a number of coins made of gold and bearing the stamp of the United States government in certification of their weight and fineness. These coins are American $5, $10, and $20 gold pieces, and if I were in England, or Germany, or Russia, or India, or anywhere else in the world except right here in Placquemine, La., I should find my money current at its nominal and actual value, because the two are everywhere known to be identical.

But here in Placquemine, La., a little town whose people are direct descendants of Longfellow's Acadians, my American gold is uncurrent money!

I first encountered this state of things last night when I offered gold to the porter of the Pullman car in payment for my berths. That worthy politely refused it on the ground that "that kind o' money ain't good out here, sah." I remonstrated with him, and told him that American gold was worth its face everywhere, because the gold in it, merely as gold, is worth very nearly the amount of the face value of the piece. He was deaf to arguments of that kind, and so I expounded the law to him, and quoted the provision making the gold coin of the United States legal tender in payment of all debts. It was equally useless. The porter knew nothing about legal tender laws or standards of value, or anything of the kind; he only knew, or thought he knew, that gold coins were bad and uncurrent money in this quarter of the country, and he would have none of them. I managed to scrape together enough silver, eked out with nickels, to pay for the berths and decide in my own mind that the porter must have got hold of a counterfeit gold coin, and finding it bad, must have concluded that all gold was bad money.

This morning I have learned better. Finding ourselves stopped here, I ordered breakfast from the buffet, and after eating, set out to get some of my gold changed into bills or silver at the shops of the town. Alas! the shopkeepers of the place, even including the saloon men, were like-minded with the porter. One and all were persuaded that gold was not good money, and with one mind they refused to take it. I offered to "treat all round" at a saloon if the barkeeper would take a $5 gold piece in payment and give me change, but he declined. I asked if the genuineness of my gold was doubted, thinking that might be the trouble, but I was assured that all gold was refused in the town, and one man, a merchant, told me he believed there had been "some government action on the subject which made gold no longer of any account." Finally one man came to my rescue and gave me silver in return for a $5 gold piece, saying that the gold might perhaps "go for something in New Orleans." He did it very much as he might have given $5 to a human being in distress, and I could see that he had very little hope of ever getting anything out of the bright new gold piece which I had drawn a few days before from the London and San Francisco bank, in full faith that the gold coins of my country were the best and surest possible representative of value anywhere to be found.

I am still without any explanation of the phenomenon, but it is a fact worth recording that American gold coin is not current money in Placquemine, La.

A Senator's Beautiful Daughter.

Among the unmarried women here, writes a Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, Miss Mattie Mitchell, daughter of Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, holds the position most analogous to that of a professional beauty, and lives in a perpetual atmosphere of breakfasts and admiration, luncheons and adulation, dinners and adoration, germans and theater parties, and never goes to bed before 3 o'clock in the morning.

As a child Miss Mitchell must have looked like a Cupid in the corner of a valentine. Now she always suggests a grown-up cherub, if one can imagine a cherub in a tailor-made suit, with a perfect English accent and a taking French shrug. Miss Mitchell is deliciously plump, face and figure alike a succession of soft curves, punctuated with a thousand dimples. She resembles her father, who is a very handsome man, in his clear complexion and big eyes.

A competitor of the former for United States senator circulated the report that Miss Mitchell ate arsenic for her complexion, and questioned the naturalness of the beautiful bronze of her hair, but as she has survived the allotted time given her to die from the suppositious poison, and as her hair still waves in short forelocks from under a broad-brimmed Gainsborough, both may be presumed to be natural.

One thing I admire about Miss Mitchell is that with all her temptations in that line, she does not load her little hands down with rings, and what jewelry she displays is of the simplest. She wears soft, white, foamy stuffs spangled with silver, or delicate diaphanous materials for party dresses, with simple, low-necked corsage, laced at the back, and exquisitely plain but perfect accessories.

The other evening at the theater Miss Mitchell and the Misses West were in a box, and they all wore wraps of a beautiful electric gray plush, with tiny capotes to match, trimmed with small ostrich tips. I heard a gentleman say that Miss Mitchell made him think of "a Maltese kitten in the moonlight," and the simile was not a bad one.

Remarkable Intellectual Grasp.

A wealthy gentleman interrogates his son's teacher as to the boy's capabilities.

"You have been giving private lessons to my son for more than a year?"

"Yes, sir; it's more than a year."

"Well, by this time you must have got a pretty good idea as to his capabilities."

"I think I have."

"Now, tell me, candidly, has he not got a remarkable intellectual grasp?"

"Indeed he has; quite remarkable, in fact."

"Ah! I am glad to hear it."

"Yes; I think I can truthfully say that he grasps the simplest problem with the greatest imaginable difficulty."

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

PILLARS OF SMOKE.

Sunday morning, Feb. 6, Rev. T. De Witt Talmage delivered the following in the Tabernacle at Brooklyn, taking for his text the following: "Who is this that cometh out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke?" [Solomon's Song, iii., 6.

The architecture of the smoke is wondrous, whether God with his finger curls it into a cloud, or rounds it into a dome, or points it in a spire, or spreads it in a wing, or, as in the text, hoists it in a pillar. Watch it winding up from the country farm-house in the early morning, showing that the pastoral industries have begun; or see it ascending from the chimneys of the city, telling of the homes fed, the factories turning out valuable fabric, the printing-presses preparing book and newspaper, and all the ten thousand wheels of work in motion. On a clear day this vapor spoken of mounts with such buoyancy and spreads such a delicate veil across the sky, and traces such graceful lines of circle and semicircle, and waves, and tosses, and sinks, and soars, and scatters with such affluence of shape, and color, and suggestiveness, that if you have never noticed it you are like a man who has all his life lived in Paris and yet never seen the Luxembourg, and all his life in Rome and never seen the Vatican, and all his life at Lockport and never seen Niagara. Forty-four times the Bible speaks of the smoke, and it is about time that somebody preaches a sermon recognizing this strange, weird, beautiful, elastic, charming, terrible and fascinating vapor. Across the Bible sky floats the smoke of Sinai, the smoke of Sodom, the smoke of Ai, the smoke of the pit, the smoke of the volcanic hills when God touches them, and in my text the glorious Church of God coming up out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke.

In the first place, these pillars of smoke in my text indicate the suffering the Church of God has endured. What do I mean by the Church? I mean not a building, not a sect, but those who in all ages and all lands, and of all beliefs, love God and are trying to do right. For many centuries the heavens have been black with the smoke of martyrdom. If set side by side you could girdle the earth with the fires of persecution. Rowland Taylor burned at Hadleigh; Latimer burned at Oxford; John Rogers burned at Smithfield; John Hooper burned at Gloucester; John Huss burned at Constance; Lawrence Saunders burned at Coventry; Joan of Arc, burned at Rouen. Protestants have sometimes pointed to Catholics as persecutors, but both Protestant and Catholic have practiced infamous cruelties. The Catholics during the reign of Elizabeth were by Protestants put to the worst tortures, stripped of their clothing, hoisted in the air by pulleys with weights suspended from their feet, then let down, and ears and eyes, nose and tongue, were amputated, and red-hot plates were put against the tenderest part of their bodies.

Catholicism as well as Protestantism has had its martyrs. It does seem as if when any one sect got complete dominancy in any land the devil of persecution and cruelty took possession of that sect. Then see the Catholics after the Huguenots. See the Gentiles after the Jews in Touraine, where a great pit was dug and fire lighted at the bottom of the pit, and 160 Jewish victims were consumed. See the Presbyterian Parliament at England, more tyrannical in their treatment of opponents than had been the criminal courts. Persecution against the Baptists by Pedobaptists. Persecution of the Established Church against the Methodist Church. Persecution against the Quakers. Persecution against the Presbyterians.

No wonder John Milton put the groans of the martyrs to an immortal tune, writing:

> Avenge, O Lord, thy slaughtered saints, whose bones
> Lie scattered on the Alpine mountains cold.

The smoke of martyrs' homes and martyrs' bodies if rolling up all at once would have eclipsed the noonday sun and turned the brightest day the world ever saw into a midnight.

Who is this that cometh up out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke?

Has persecution ceased? Ask that young man who is trying to be a Christian in a store or factory where from morning to night he is the butt of all the mean witticisms of unbelieving employees. Ask that wife whose husband makes her fondness for the house of God and even her kneeling prayer by the bedside a derision, and is no more fit for holy companionship than a filthy crow would be fit companion for a robin or a golden oriole. Compromise with the world and surrender to its conventionalities and it may let you alone, but all who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution.

But as I already hinted in the first sentence of this sermon, nothing can be more beautiful than the figures of smoke on a clear sky.

The beauty of the transfigured smoke is a divine symbol of the beauty of the Church. The fairest of all the fair is she. Do not call those persecutors of whom I spoke, the Church. They are the parasites of the Church, not the Church itself. Her mission is to cover the earth with a supernatural gladness, to open all the prison doors, to balsam all the wounds, to moss all the graves, to burn up the night in the fireplace of a great morning, to change iron handcuffs into diamonded wristlets, to turn the whole race around, and whereas it faced death, commanding it, "Right about face for heaven!" According to the number of the spires of the churches in all our cities, towns and neighborhoods, are the good homes, the worldly prosperities, and the pure morals, and the happy souls.

Men may desecrate the Church as Cromwell when he stabled his cavalry horses in St. Paul's; or break off the image of Christ, as did the iconoclasts in York Minster; or hurl against it august literary antipathies, as did Gibbon; or plot its overthrow, as do some in every community whose pride and hate and debauchery are reproved by the Ten Commandments which it thunders, and the Sermon on the Mount which it breathes. But it will stand as long as the earth stands, the same unique, and wonder-working, and beatific, and miraculous thing for which God decreed it. Take her membership as a mass, they are the noblest, grandest, kindest, best men and women of the ages. But for them the earth would long ago have been a burned-out volcano. They have been the salt that has kept the human race from putrefaction insufferable either to human or angelic olfactories. The highest honor I ever had, and the highest honor I shall every receive, and the highest honor I ever want is to have my name on her record as a member. At her sacraments I believed. In her service let me die. From her doors let me be buried. O Church of God! Thou home of the righteous! Thou harbor from tempest! Thou refuge for the weary! Thou light house of many nations! Thou type of heaven! I could kiss the very dust with ecstacy of affection.

> For her my tears shall fall,
> For her my prayers ascend,
> To her my toils and cares be given
> Till toils and cares shall end.

My Bible, which tells me that the blacksmith's shop shall yet come to its grandest use when the warrior and the husbandman shall enter it side by side, and the soldier shall throw into the bank of fires his sword and the farmer shall pick it up a plowshare, and the straightest spear shall be bent into a crook at each end, and then cut in two, and what was one spear shall be two pruning forks.

Peace! Forever roll off the sky the black pillars of smoke from the Marengos, and Salamancas, and Borodinos, and Sedans, and Gettysburgs of earth! And right after them roll into the heavens the peaceful vapors from the chimneys of farm houses, and asylums, and churches, and capitols of Christian nations, and, as the sunlight strikes through these vapors they will write in letters of jet and gold all over the sky from horizon to zenith,

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men!"

Do you realize the momentum the Church of God is under? Why, the smoke of a chimney on the top of Mount Washington when the wind is blowing sixty miles the hour is slow as compared with the celerity of good influences. For fifty-nine centuries the devil had it his own way among the nations. Nearly all the great missionary movements have started within this century, and see what one century has done to recover the world from fifty nine centuries of devastation. What great revivals! What mighty churches! Wind-saved millions! What advancing civilization! In all the United States, Great Britain, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy, full freedom to worship God according to conscience. Along the coasts of China, Japan and Africa the batteries are placed which are to take all these empires for God and civilization. From the ruins of Babylon, and Assyria, and Nineveh, and the valleys of the Nile confirmations have been exhumed proving to all fair-minded men that the Bible is the truest book ever written.

Oh, come into the Church through Christ, the door—a door more glorious than that of the Temple of Hercules, which had two pillars, and one was gold and the other emerald! Come in to-day! Come in and be one of the eternal victors! The world you leave behind is a poor world, and it will burn and pass off like pillars of smoke. The world will become a great living coal, and that will take on ashen hue, and then our ruined planet will begin to smoke, and the valleys will smoke, and the islands will smoke, and the seas will smoke, and the cities will smoke, and the continents will be live pillars of smoke. But the black vapors will begin to lessen in height and density, and then will become hardly visible to those who look upon it from the sky galleries, and after awhile from just one point there will curl up a thin solitary vapor, and then even that will vanish, and there will be nothing left except the charred ruins of a burned out world, the corpse of a dead star, the ashes of an extinguished planet, a fallen pillar of smoke.

But that will not interfere with your investments if you have taken Christ as your savior. Secure heaven as your eternal home, you can look down upon a dismantled, disrupted and demolished earth without any perturbation.

> When wrapped in fire the realms of ether glow,
> And heaven's last thunder shake the earth below,
> Thou, undismayed, shalt o'er the ruins smile,
> And light thy torch at nature's funeral pile.

The Age of Steel announces that the Harrison & Howard Iron Company, of St. Louis, in consequence of inability to obtain sufficient supplies of pig iron from the South, has contracted for 10,000 tons of No. 3 Middlesboro (England) foundry for immediate shipment, via New Orleans. The price is about $21, duty included, on the wharf in St. Louis, which is $1 less than the present quotations on a similar grade of iron from the South. Mr. Howard, of the above firm, says in an interview: "We have 25,000 tons of Southern iron owing us at present, and if we had felt assured of sufficient deliveries we would not have gone abroad. We can get iron from England delivered more promptly than from the Southern States; sellers there give guarantee as to delivery. Shipments from the South are greatly retarded by the scarcity of cars and the large growth of traffic on the Southern railroads. It is estimated by those in a position to be well informed that 60,000 tons of scrap-iron are en route to this country from European ports, and that not less than 200,000 tons of pig iron have been purchased by American manufacturers from English makers within the last two weeks.

The Age of Steel, commenting editorially upon these facts, says: "Apparently all control of the market is lost after the first strong upward turn of prices, and while, as a body, furnacemen have desired the regulation of prices with reference to foreign supplies of iron, yet each has felt constrained to improve the opportunity for adding to his individual profits by the best possible sale of capacity not under contract. The question now arises, has not this upward movement gone far enough? Production is already 40 per cent greater than ever before, and prices have reached the point of importation."

Nilsson will be married the day after St. Valentine's Day.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Lady suppers are in vogue. These are held after a theatre party as a sort of finish to the entertainment.

To prevent the juice of fruit pies from soaking into the under crust rub the crust over with a beaten egg.

Finger bowls of finest engraved white glass are superseding on fashionable tables those of rainbow hues.

To relieve cramps in the limbs, wrap them in towels wrung out in cold water, and wrap outside a thick, dry cloth. The relief is immediate and complete.

Old Canton flannel is the best cloth for wiping gilt or bronze picture frames. A small quantity of salts of tartar, dissolved in water, is a good solution for cleaning frames.

When the burners of kerosene lamps become clogged, put them in a basin of hot water, containing washing soda, and let them boil for a few minutes. This will make them perfectly clean and almost as bright as new.

Where strict economy rules very pretty effects can be gained by covering furniture with some of the cretonnes. At 25 cents a yard one can buy cretonnes in artistic designs and colorings that cleverly simulate expensive tapestry fabrics.

There is just now something of a rage in the fashionable world for individual lights on the dinner-table. For this purpose come miniature lamps, with fancy bowls and colored shades and tiny candlesticks of silver, copper or wrought iron.

If women would only take better care of their feet there would be fewer complaints of muddy complexions and eruptions of the skin. The feet ought always to be warm in spite of weather, which means warm stockings frequently changed, and stout thick boots in cold weather.

A medical man advises the disuse of feather dusters and advises the use of a cloth to wipe away dust. He asks— Do you know just what you are doing when you brush dust away? You disseminate in the air, and consequently introduce into your own interior, into your tissues and respiratory organs all sorts of eggs, spores, epidemic germs and murderous vibriones which dust contains.

When the household of our grandmothers was threatened with infection, the common practice was to sprinkle brimstone on a hot shovel and carry the burning result through the house. But now this simple method of disinfection has gone out of fashion without any good and sufficient reason. The principal reason is neither good nor sufficient, viz., that nobody can patent it and sell it in twenty-five and fifty cent bottles. —Boston Transcript.

In transplanting ferns, temporarily or otherwise, disturb the earth about the roots as little as possible. Ferns after being potted should be kept several days in a dark room. To thrive they need plenty of fresh air and water, and but one plant in a pot is usually the rule. The delicately feathered varieties have been recommended for window culture. Potted ferns are not only a fashionable house decoration just now, but certainly one of the most charming that could be introduced.

The cheap gray blankets sold for horse blankets or ironing blankets make very nice rugs for use in the bathroom or bedroom. For this purpose a blanket is cut in half, bound with red braid or red flannel and trimmed with applique figures or monogram of red flannel. If a more decorative effect is desired the blanket can be embroidered with coarse wools in sunflowers and reeds, or daisies and grasses. If not sufficiently heavy the rugs may be made thicker by lining old carpet or burlaps, or by mere doubling the blanket.

PRESERVED FRUIT.

J. M. Pickett preserves fruit in a way not generally adopted. Instead of boiling the fruit and putting in jars or cans, he simply hangs it up in a dry place. Suspended in this way, pears can be preserved for over a year. Last September Mr. Pickett preserved a box of fine pears, suspending the fruit by means of a string tied about the stem. The pears lasted until the present time, last Sunday the last of the lot being disposed of. Pears preserved in this way retain their flavor and appearance perfectly, are in no way different from freshly picked fruit. —Hollister Free Lance.

STUFFED SPARE RIB.

One of the nicest ways of cooking a spare rib is to cut the ribs crosswise and place in a long dripping pan; dress with flour and season lightly with salt, two teaspoonfuls being sufficient. Prepare the dressing the same as for a turkey, a pint of stale bread chopped fine, a large tablespoonful of pulverized sage, a teaspoonful of black pepper. No salt or butter is needed in the dressing, but stir in an egg or a tablespoonful of cornstarch and enough water to make it mold easily. Place the dressing on the upper half of the ribs, the whole length of them; fold the upper part of thick side over and tie it with cotton twine to keep it in place. Put in three pints of water and set in the oven to bake; once in half an hour dredge it over with gravy. Let it brown lightly and be sure the meat is well cooked. Take off the twine before serving. If the dressing has not thickened the gravy sufficiently, stir up a spoonful of flour in cold water, pour it into the dripping pan, stir thoroughly and set it on the stove till it boils, then pour it into the gravy tureen. This is a most toothsome dish; better, I think, than roast turkey.

—A bill before the State Legislature of Tennessee makes it a criminal offense to preach polygamous doctrines in the state.

A Philadelphia paper some time ago offered prizes for the best anagrams upon the names of Grover Cleveland and James Gillespie Blaine. The successful anagrams were "Govern Clever lad" and "Jim's pen, I all ege, is able."

One of the newest things in New York is a strong aphrand type-writer who pays rent for a place in the reading room and does work for the patrons of the hotels. The merchant from afar can dictate his letters just as he does at home for a small fee. This idea is proving to be quite popular.

MICHIGAN.

Condensed Reports of the Latest News from All Parts of the State.

Latest From Lansing.

SENATE.

The following bills were introduced: To amend an act compelling the use of automatic couplers on all cars used in the state; and to prevent the giving or selling of tobacco to minors under 16 years. The appointments of a large number of notaries public were confirmed.

The joint resolution in reference to the raising of the salaries of state officers was tabled. Bill were introduced to reduce the test of illuminating oils; to incorporate the Merchants and Traders' Association of Michigan; to compel employers to compensate workmen for personal injuries received in their service; to amend the game and fish laws; to make associations liable for debts to the extent of their capital only.

Both houses of the Legislature adjourned not to convene again until Feb. 15.

HOUSE.

The bill to abolish the superior court of Detroit and to create a state and fish game warden was passed. The committee on the liquor traffic reported in favor of making saloon keepers give $6,000 and $10,000 bonds, instead of $3,000 and $6,000, as at present.

The House Committee on Military Affairs reported favorably upon a measure which, if it passes, will be the most stupendous expenditure which the state has ever undertaken—this is to pay bounty to veteran soldiers to the amount of nearly $15,000,000. Under the present law no sold er enlisting prior to March 6, 1863, is entitled to bounty. After that date the allowances are as follows: March 6 to Nov. 10, 1863, $50; Nov. 11, 1863, to Feb. 4, 1864, $50; Feb. 5 to May 14, 1864, $100; Feb. 3 to April 14, 1865, $150. This omits soldiers enlisting in 1861, 1862, part of 1863 and 1864, and after April 14, 1865. The new measure takes in all these, and the bounty goes to the widow or orphans in case of the soldier's death. The state will have to pay out if the bill becomes a law $11,815,300, according to figures compiled by the Quartermaster-General.

STATE ITEMS.

—A large new hospital for lumbermen will be built at Manistique in the spring.

—A Battle Creek man has written Mrs. Gen. Logan to loan him $100 for a term of years at 4 per cent.

—There are eight pensioners of the war of 1812 in the four counties of Jackson, Ingham, Eaton, and Livingston.

Alpena is engaged in building a toboggan slide twelve hundred feet long. She expects to use it next winter.

DETROIT MARKET.—Wheat, No. 1, white, 84c; Michigan red, 84½c; No. 2, red, 83½c; Corn, 38½c; Oats, No. 2, 32½c; Clover seed, $4.82½.

—Last week there were 810 convicts in prison at Jackson, the largest number at one time since the female convicts were transferred to the Detroit house of correction.

—Many St. John's citizens are asking that the village charter be so amended as to make the office of marshal appointive by the board instead of elective by the people.

—A St. Louis man was offered a good horse for his Russian bloodhound and refused it. He says $100 cash will buy him. The dog is one year old and weighs 130 pounds.

—The State House of Representatives have passed a resolution asking the President to appoint Omar D. Conger a member of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

—Francis B. Axell, a Justice of Frankfort, Benzie county, has sued the Detroit Evening News for $5,000 for charging him with robbery of the dead victims of the wrecks at that port last fall. The News now has libels aggregating $200,000.

—At East Saganaw, George Schaefer, a butcher, was hanging up a carcass when the ladder on which he was standing, gave way and in his descent he was caught on a meat hook, which penetrated the calf of his left leg and held him six feet above the floor. He remained in that position nearly twenty minutes before assistance arrived.

—Careful estimates by prominent iron-men place the output of iron-ore of mines within the corporation limits of Ishpeming at 875,000 tons during the year 1887. The rest of the Marquette district produces 1,225,000 tons, Menominee district, 1,000,000 tons, Gogebic district 1,000,000 tons, and the Vermilion Lake district in Minnesota 500,000 tons. Total, 4,500,000 tons.

—The recent gale broke up a large field of ice near the foot of Lake St. Clair, and the river from Belle Isle to Sandwich Point, which for several days had afforded a clear passage for boats, was impassable. The embargo on travel is the most complete known to the oldest river men for years. The ice in high cakes, in some instances several acres in extent, and frozen snow covering it, gives it a buoyancy that raises it high out of the water.

—Alfred Peterson of Perkins and his wife recently moved into the house of P. M. Peterson. Alfred Peterson was engaged in the cedar camps of Joseph Lemay. He returned home recently, and with others who he had collected at the house, began drinking and quarreling. The quarrel resulted in the killing of Alfred Peterson with a woodman's ax. His wife was placed under arrest, but the parties who are supposed to have done the killing are still at large.

—It is estimated that there are now 150 cases of tonsilitis under the care of the physicians of Lansing, the disease reaching almost an epidemic.

—Primus Greenhall colored, died at the Jackson county poor-house aged 100 years. He was sold five times before he was fifty years old.

—A curious case was concluded at Charlotte recently. John Davenport is a travelling salesman for the St. John's Plow Company of Kalamazoo and has a family residing near Ionia. In November last he went to the residence of Alva P. Claflin, this city, during the absence of Claflin, and was received cordially by Mrs. Claflin, who invited him in, and, according to his own admissions, he took the liberty of reciprocating the cordiality with a kiss. He was tried before a justice and based his defense on the claim that Mrs. Claflin assented to his conduct. He was convicted, appealed and in the trial just terminated based his defense on the Alabama theory. The jury found a verdict of guilty.

—The justices at Port Huron recently gave it as their opinion that policemen have no power to serve warrants. Thereupon Chief Carson came to the conclusion that if his policemen had no business to serve warrants that the city jail, under his control, had no place for prisoners arrested by constables. The constables now take all prisoners to the county jail. Now comes Sheriff Bernatz, who claims that all prisoners confined in the county jail are under his authority, and says that after they are once placed in his charge he will look after them. This prevents the constables taking prisoners to Ionia and other prisons, and consequently robs them of a good fat fee. There is likely to be a civil war between the constables and the sheriff.

—Thirty-three years ago James Hitchcock, of Ingham county, was sentenced to prison for life for murder. At the time of his sentence he was a prosperous farmer in the prime of life, possessed of a wife, two sons, and a loving daughter. A year ago last Thanksgiving he was pardoned, and he reentered the world to find all new and strange to his eyes and his wife and daughter in their graves. Hitchcock has always claimed that his sentence was an unjust one. One of the witnesses who testified that he saw Hitchcock deliberately stab Stephenson, eight years later admitted that he had perjured himself to satisfy a grudge against Hitchcock. Hitchcock was the oldest inmate of Jackson prison. Now he is in Lansing asking the legislature to make an appropriation to support his declining years in compensation for thirty-two years of unjust imprisonment.

A Tough Story From Georgia.

There lives in Cherokee county, just across the North Carolina line from here, a man who is looked upon as having the mark of Cain, writes a Clayton (Ga.) correspondent. He believes himself that providence has thus marked him, and in consequence courts the night, and never appears in the light of day.

In 1844 a rich Virginia planter named Mortimer sought the wilds of Cherokee county, North Carolina. Thither he took his family and a retinue of slaves. He was averse to the advent of strangers. In this hatred of intrusion he was fully joined by his wife. To them were born two children, Henry and Edward. In course of time Mr. Mortimer died, when the care of the children fell wholly upon the mother. She grew more and more a hater of her kind. It is said that during the four years of the war not a human being outside of her two children ever crossed her doorstep. The children inherited the strange characteristics of their parents, and were regarded in the neighborhood as young Ishmaelites.

It was about eight years ago that Edward lent his younger brother, Henry, a small sum of money, which the latter was slow about paying. One day Edward warned Henry that he would kill him before the sun went down if the money was not forthcoming. Toward sunset, as Henry was returning home from hunting, he saw his brother advancing with an open knife.

"Have you got my money?" asked Edward.

"No," was Henry's response.

"Then die!" shrieked Edward as he rushed forward.

A bullet from Henry's rifle penetrated Edward's forehead, and he fell dead. A terrible scene of excitement followed. Henry refused to be arrested, and took refuge in the wild haunts of Cherokee. Vigilance finally relaxed; excuse was made for the murder, and by degrees Henry ventured to appear abroad again.

But the change which had come over him produced a greater sensation than the killing of Edward Mortimer. He said that on the night after he had killed his brother he found it impossible to sleep. Just as he would begin to doze off his brother would appear at his side, and, with an expression of exquisite pleasure, he would slowly pluck, one by one, the hairs from his head and face. For three months this refined torture continued, when the visits were stopped, and there was not a single hair left on Henry's body. The pores of the skin opened wider, and with every breath the hundreds of pores would act in sympathy, so that on the warmest day the victim would feel freezing cold. He retired to a room of his mother's house and persistently refuses to let the light of the sun shine on him. He says that he is punished as Cain of old.

An Italian has discovered that fishes are fond of music. To one Signor Garetti the honor of the discovery is said to be due, and recently with a party of friends, he is said to have tried the experiment on Lake Geneva, which proved quite successful. Musical notes especially those produced by the human voice, attracted the fishes in great numbers around the boat. Fisherman should try the experiment.

Magnesium is an element which has several times been tried and abandoned as a source of light. It now, however appears likely to come into use again, as a process is stated to have been discovered whereby pure magnesium can be economically prepared by electrolysis.

—The father of Vice President Hamlin called his four sons after the great warriors of ancient history—Alexander Julius Cæsar, Cincinnatus and Hannibal. His four daughters were named, respectively, Europe, Asia, Australia and America.

—Mr. Henry Irving says his unsuccessful attempt to establish the reserved seal system in the pit of his London Lyceum Theater cost him $15,000.

—It cost $700,000 for repairs to the Erie canal last summer, and the freight floated was 2,293,982 tons, as against 4,731,864 tons in 1885.

STOCK NOTES.

There are 23 trotting horses in New York city with a record under 2:30. The lowest is 2:08¾.

Don't compel your horses to eat musty hay. It will produce fatal lung trouble, and, in any event, heaves.

The public hears only of the horses that win. Over 600 horses in training have not won this year. It never hears of them.

The Illinois Live-Stock Commissioners have sent out checks from Springfield for $20,000 for cattle slaughtered on account of pleuro-pneumonia.

The Northern Illinois Merino sheep-breeders held their annual session at Elgin, and decided to meet next year at Richmond. George E. Peck, of Geneva, was elected President. No public shearing will be held this year.

Have you better horses on your farm now than you had this time last year? If not, why not? The way to improve stock is to get rid of the inferior and introduce better blood. If you are not doing this you are not likely to make much headway in the right direction.

Some of the large mutton breeds of sheep, such as the Oxfords, often shear from 12 to 20 pounds of wool, and this fact, with their ability to attain heavy weights, should be a strong inducement to farmers to use rams of mutton breeds for crossing on the native ewes.

The Ohio Agricultural college states as the results of experiments there in soiling cattle that half the number of acres will feed the same amount of stock and keep them in better condition if the product be cut and placed before them. Nevertheless soiling is not everywhere profitable.

The Central Iowa railway gives notice that hereafter it will not allow the partitioning for the purpose of loading different kinds of live stock. Neither will it under any circumstances permit two or more kinds of live stock to be loaded in the same car for shipment to points on its own or connecting lines. —Sioux City Journal.

There is no necessity for expensive or elaborate hen houses for fowls. All the ornaments that can be applied will amount to nothing unless hens are kept warm. A poultry house that is low at the rear, and so constructed as to admit of as little loss of heat as possible, with plenty of light, will give better results than any other.

It is a matter of common belief that old meat, that is, meat from aged animals—is uniformly tough, and that from young as uniformly tender. There is something fallacious in this view; but if old beasts are fattened rapidly and killed when in the flush of condition, the meat will be tender, but if killed when in a shrinking condition the meat will be tough.

SPREADING SWINE DISEASE.

Railroads are helping to spread swine disease throughout the country without doubt, writes a correspondent of The Live-Stock Record of Kansas City, and every shipper runs the risk of sending his pigs by freight through a gauntlet of disease germs, and every buyer of hogs that goes to stock-yards to buy will soon get sick of that kind of business. It is a common practice in our stock yards to have a wallowing place for the swine in summer and often a straw or hay bed in winter. These are fruitful places to develop germs, and frequent experiments carefully and scientifically made demonstrate the well-known fact that in such places disease germs have been kept strong and healthy for a period of at least six months, to be taken up by the next unhealthy animal whose system is just right to receive them, and the disease factory travels on with the cars, and from the stock-yards, as it is not a common thing to use disinfectants. What is the lesson to be learned? Don't buy hogs to fatten out of the stock yards, or that have been shipped as freight on the cars, unless you want to run the risk of being broken up in business. Under all circumstances, when you buy a strange hog or hogs, place them away from all possible contact with others, and do not run any risk of mixing disease germs, for if you do experience shows that it acts exactly as if you had crossed the breed and they developed into new life and vigor and breed disease and death, which would not have happened otherwise. If you think this is a cranky idea, we ask you to watch the feeders who are buying hogs of various parties. They buy of farmers who do not lose their hogs but put the hogs of several of these same farmers together and the result is often death to the feeder's herd, while of those left at the farmer's home not one will be lost. Can you explain this phenomenon in any other way except disease germs degenerate and grow weaker. Crossed up with germs from a new herd they become vigorous again even unto death.

Sad Story of Jenny Lind's Later Days.

I was speaking the other day with an elderly Swedish gentleman about the stories one hears in America of the sensation Jenny Lind created there in 1850 of how people still told of hearing her marvelous voice in the streets outside the halls and churches in which she sang. He had known her ever since childhood, and is an intimate friend of an old gentleman still living at Stockholm who was tenor in the old operatic company she first belonged to away back in 1847, and who was once engaged to be married to her. He told many curious things of her later life. She is plain and wide-haired now, with a severe expression of countenance. She is very pious, and most of her talk is devoted to bemoaning the days when she was sinful enough to appear on the stage. She is intolerant toward young singers, sneering at their voices and their vocalism alike, and rebukes any one who ventures to address her by the name of Jenny Lind or even refer to the name. I was told of a case some years ago, when she was visiting here in London, when her host brought to her a young Swedish piano who had won fame and respect in Europe and America, and was proud of this opportunity of paying homage to Jenny Lind. She made the mistake of alluding to this name, and was so cruelly snubbed in consequence that Mme. Goldschmidt was never again asked to that house. —London Letter in the New York Times.

Farming in China.

In passing through the silk growing district, which begins very near to Shanghai and extends all around to the city of Hangchow, I could but be struck indeed with the comfort which prevailed everywhere, says a writer in the London Post. The farmhouses in China, or at any rate in that part of China, were models of what farmhouses should be. I had expected to see squalor and wretchedness, and was not prepared for what I beheld. Exceeding good gardening I was prepared for, for Chinese gardening is synonymous with everything that is neat and productive. But the orchards and mulberry trees all beautifully trimmed, with the brick-built and excellent houses half hidden away in them, certainly astonished me. I chanced to land from my houseboat frequently in order to shoot woodcock, for it was winter-time when I passed through the district. To get these birds it was necessary to scramble over the fields and through the mulberry orchards of the district, and I was simply amazed to see how beautifully the groves of trees were kept. Underneath great quantities of vegetables were grown, not a foot of earth appearing to be wasted, and every inch in the most superb order. Had the whole country been a vast garden it could not have been better tended and cared for. There were not thereabouts any hedges or walls; the fields were divided from each other by deep dikes, which served the double purpose of marking out the land and irrigating or draining as the case might be, the adjacent soil. The trees, of which there were myriads, were all planted with mathematical exactness and in the greatest order, unlike the trees in many English orchards, which seem to have been stuck into the ground with a view of wasting as much space as possible. And as for the tops of the trees, they had all been carefully trimmed to the same pattern, every little bough having been inspected and cut as circumstances chanced to require. I never saw anything half so orderly in any other country in the world; for these were no ornamental gardens which I was going through, but mulberry orchards, extending over hundreds of square miles of country, and owned by thousands of different husbandmen. Inside the house again, I was surprised at the comfort that prevailed. In each one there were at least two rooms set apart especially for the silk-worms, and these were kept scrupulously clean. The other rooms of the house were well furnished, comfortable, and warm—in every case very clean also, and I did not see in any country house any of the squalor or misery one sees in many English, Scotch, and especially Irish districts.

At the time when I was in this country, too, there was a very general feeling of increased contentment springing up, owing to the opening of some large silk winding factories at Shanghai by American or English firms. Hitherto the winding of the silk from the cocoons had been done in most cases by the silk-growers themselves, and the demand for the silk thus indifferently wound and the prices paid for it were alike small. But with the establishment of silk-winding factories filled with steam machinery at Shanghai it was hoped and expected by the silk-growers that the price of cocoons would go up, and that consequently silk-growing would improve as an industry. In any case the entire population seemed to be prosperous and well contented. It does not always do to take the dress of any Chinaman as an index to the wealth he may possess. He may have many reasons among them being a dread of attracting the attention of some rapacious mandarin—for not showing more richness of attire than is absolutely necessary, and he may prefer to go about in warm rags rather than run the risk of being "squeezed" by the local officials, so that many a traveler may mistake this intentional poverty of attire for want of money. I had pointed out to me in Canton, one day, for example, a particularly woe-begone looking Chinaman going up the street. The gentleman was with me, and who was a resident on the adjacent island of Shameen, said: "Poor? I wish I was as rich as that Chinaman. Why, half the European houses here are in his debt, but if he showed this by his dress the mandarin here would soon borrow a trifle of him."

The New York State Board of Health has recently published some investigations concerning the purity of the ice furnished the City of Syracuse. The supply is from Onondaga Lake, the Erie Canal, or Cazenovia Lake. The ice from the first of these sources is condemned as containing putrescent organic matter. The analyses of the ice from the lake showed it to contain from 10 to 12 per cent of the sewage impurities dissolved in the same amount of water taken from the lake. Bacteria also were abundantly present in the ice and yet alive. The ice from the Erie Canal was very similar in character, and was also condemned, while that from Cazenovia Lake was not found to unfit for use. Apart from its local significance the report is very important, as showing that water in freezing does not wholly free itself from organic impurities, notwithstanding the commonly accepted idea that all ice is of necessity pure and, therefore, water from it is the best for drinking purposes.

—Archdeacon Farrar is reported to have said that "in India the English have made 100 drunkards for one Christian."

—Sarah Bernhardt, whose purse is always as slim as her form, has received from her numerous engagements since May last nearly 1,890,000 francs. What becomes of her money she is unable to tell herself.

—At Lansing, Mich., recently nine brothers of the Howe family held a reunion. Their ages ranged from 71 to 99, and combined footed up 521 years. There total weight was 1,444 pounds, being an average of 160½.

—The French crown jewels will be sold from May 5 to 10. Nothing will go every high except the diamonds, for which large orders at almost unlimited rates have already been given. The Countess of Paris and Mrs. Mackay, it is rumored, will be the most prominent bidders.

A Snake-Bite Healer.

Not long since a man known as Baptiste Bequar, of Creole French descent, died on his farm near Kaskaskia, Ill., writes a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. For nearly a half century previous to his death he was credited with the remarkable gift of healing snake-bites, and of being on familiar terms with the most venomous reptiles the county afforded. It was said this power had been given him by a Canadian on his death-bed in return for some important service, or as an act of friendship. The conditions or circumstances attending the transfer of this curious knowledge never were learned with certainty, as its possessor was extremely jealous of it, guarding it with the greatest care, and revealed it to no one until the hour of his death, when he imparted the gift to his eldest son, who can not be induced to speak of it in the presence of strangers.

There is, however, an abundance of living evidence of Bequar's power to cure the bite of snakes without the use of any kind of medicine, and of his apparent love or fellowship with and control over all kinds of snakes. He would never consent to their being killed or injured, and it is said that he kept the largest and most venomous specimens about his place, and that they would approach him to be caressed or disappear into their hiding places at his will.

Whenever a person within reach of Baptiste was bitten, he was usually sent for to relieve the pains and render the poison innocuous. In this he was never known to fail. He simply placed his hands upon the wound and commanded the sufferer not to take any medicine offered by others. It would insult him highly if asked how much he charged for his services, and would only accept something, whatever it might be, if offered as a present upon some other occasion.

Being a devout Catholic, his gift brought him into bad repute with the parish priest, who, as the story goes, forbade him partaking of the holy sacrament unless he foreswore the exercise of the black art. The bishop, however, during one of his periodical visits to the parish, is said to have had an interview with his offending parishioner. He inquired of Bequar how he came by the gift, and why he did not, at the command of the priest, abjure such uncanny practices. Bequar responded that he had no compact with the evil one, nor was there anything wicked about it. How could there be any harm, he argued, in saving the life of a fellow-creature when it was so easily done. He had resolved many times to give up the use of it, but when an excited neighbor came begging him to come and save a little child, or the wife who had been bitten, he could not refuse, even at the risk of losing favor in the church. He was granted a dispensation by the bishop to participate in the comforts of the communion without revealing his actual confession, and when he died he was honored with a perpetual resting place in St. Mary of Help cemetery.

Wealth Beneath Rags.

A very poorly dressed woman named Catherine Donovan went to the City Hospital in Boston recently and said that she needed treatment. She was examined and it was found that she was suffering from a bad scalp wound. She refused to tell how it was received, and would not state where she lived. The wound was dressed, and as the woman claimed to be too poor to purchase medicine, some was given her. She asked to be allowed to remain over night, and the request was granted. In the early evening the mysterious patient was examined by the nurse, who made a wonderful discovery. In the pocket of the woman's dress was found several bank books representing about $9,100 in various city institutions. Sewed up in the lining of her dress was found about $380 in greenbacks, and a large stocking contained about $21 in silver. Several bands, worth many thousand dollars, were also found sewed up in the lining of the ragged gown. She was highly indignant at the outrage, as she called it and said that the nurse had no right to search her. She said that if she would wait a few moments he would obtain a herdic for her. She snapped back to have him mind his own business, and said that she could not afford to ride in a herdic, even if she wanted to. The last seen of her she was hurrying down Harrison avenue with her thin shawl wrapped closely about her. A hospital physician says that it was, without doubt, the strangest case which ever came under his notice. He says the woman was about 58 years of age, had gray hair and looked very masculine. He would imagine, to see her on the street, that she was either a rag-picker or a professional beggar. The supposition at the hospital is that the woman was assaulted to obtain the wealth which she had secreted about her person.

The Ohio Agricultural college states as the results of experiments there in soiling cattle that half the number of acres will feed the same amount of stock and keep them in better condition if the product be cut and placed before them. Nevertheless soiling is not everywhere profitable.

—Justin McCarthy, General Lew Wallace, Henry George, Carl Schurz and James G. Blaine are expected to address the students of the University of Wisconsin during the spring.

—The New York Academy of Music is to be sold March 1. The property has a frontage of 204 feet on Fourteenth street and 122 feet on Irving place; in all about ten city lots.

Belgium is now the greatest beer drinking country in Europe. It is third on the list of dram-drinking countries; 70,000,000 liters of spirits being drunk there every year.

—Ex-Senator Hannibal Hamlin's brothers were called Alexander, Julius Cæsar, and Cincinnatus.

INDUSTRIAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

Thirty thousand Lock Lavan trout eggs from Sterling, Scotland, have been placed in the State Fishing Hatching House at Livermore's Falls, N. H.

Large and fierce dogs are in demand for killing coyotes and wolves on western ranches and ranges. Scotch stag hounds appear to be the most effective.

Mr. J. D. Lineous, Aroostook county, Me., an ex member of the board of agriculture, raised the past season 470 bushels of Beauty of Hebron potatoes on one acre of land.

Last year was an excellent one for raising turkeys, and the markets in all parts of the country have been better supplied with them than during any season since the late war.

A St. Louis shop-keeper gives away a little secret which he says has been worth many dollars to him. He keeps his window-panes free from frost by rubbing them once or twice a week with a rag wet with glycerine.

Taking negatives of the bottom of the sea, sunken wrecks, or submarine works is said to be the latest attempts of photographers. This is to be accomplished by the aid of electric light; divers may be employed, or by electric arrangement the negatives may be taken from above water.

A centrifugal milk tester has been invented in England. It works upon the principle of the separator. The milk is placed in glass tubes and whirled about until the cream is driven out into one end while the milk settles at the other. The machine that will meet with most favor among dairymen is a small separator that can be worked by hand power and separate the milk of, say, five of six cows.

The light from an electric lamp tower at Davenport, Ia., falls full upon a flower garden about 160 feet away, and the owner observed that lilies which usually bloom only in the day opened in the night and that morning-glories unclosed their blossoms as soon as the electric light fell on them. It has frequently been observed that trees were most exuberant in their foliage on the side nearest the electric light.

This must be constantly borne in mind: The question we are about to solve in cultivating our farms is not when will the soil become perfectly exhausted? but how can we manage it so as to get profitable crops at the least expense now? Prof. Roberts, of the New York Experiment Station, found that a field of clover which yielded 3,295 pounds of cured hay had 4,884 pounds of dried roots, or nearly 1,600 pounds more of roots than of top.

The arrival of a solid train of twenty-seven car-loads of peanuts from Virginia into this city yesterday was the heaviest receipts ever known in the west, and indicates what an immense business in peanuts is now done in St. Louis, especially as three-fourths of the stock handled here comes from Tennessee. This shipment is but part of a recent purchase made from the producing sections of Virginia, and are brought here and reclaimed for the market. In bringing in large shipments at a time 50 per cent is saved in the freight rate. —St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Tests have been made at Louisville, Ky., of a new and not expensive process for hardening and tempering steel, by which hardness and elasticity are carried forward in combination. A drill made of the new steel penetrated, in forty minutes, a steel safe-plate warranted to resist any burglar drill for twelve hours. A penknife tempered by the process cut the stem of a steel key readily, and with the same blade the inventor shaved the hairs on his arm. The inventor is a young blacksmith. He has also a new process for converting iron into steel at small expense.

The Kansas City Journal is in favor of giving the woman a chance to take a hand in the striking business. It says: "And there is one thing we are inclined to think they will not imitate men in, and that is in strikes. A woman is too practical to give a percentage out of her hard-earned wages to pay an idle walking delegate a fat salary for ordering them to quit work one-third or one-half of the time. There is a new industry now—the salaried agitator—the man who never works and is paid to induce other men to quit work. Women have more sense than that—if they are women."

Dr. Emil Pots, president of the German Hop-growers' society, in his report for the past year, states that the total area of land under hop cultivation throughout the world is about 300,000 acres, of which nearly a fourth are in Bavaria, and the quantity grown last year was 92,342 tons. He estimates the annual consumption at only 82,000 tons, so that there was last year an excess of production over consumption amounting to nearly 10,000 tons. This, he thinks, will account for the considerable fall which has occurred in price, and he advises German growers to give up the cultivation of hops upon all grounds where the yield is generally poor, and to substitute for it potatoes, carrots and turnips.

A most remarkable case of post-mortem preservation comes to us from Indianapolis, Ind. A lady died in that city some thirty years since, and her body, in an iron coffin, was placed in a dry vault. Recently the coffin was opened and the body found to be perfectly preserved, even the blue color of the eyes being recognizable. A careful examination of the body showed that its material had changed into the so-called "adipocere." This is a peculiar chemical compound formed from the fatty acids with the alkalis. Other cases of such transformation in the presence of moisture are recorded. But this is one of the most remarkable, as the body, though kept perfectly dry, had retained its form completely.

The Oil, Paint, and Drug Reporter says that "the American Cotton Oil Trust will close its books on May 31 in possession of four-fifths of the mills in the country, nine-tenths of the refining capacity, a corresponding position in the lard and soap industries, no debts, and something like $4,000,000 of net earnings in the treasury. For a whole or a controlling interest in the individual concerns the trust has issued neither bonds nor stock, but certificates entitling the bearer to a proportionate undivided share of all the property involved. These certificates are the only lien upon the property, and form the only obligation of the trust, the expense of which are voted at the annual meeting and were limited to $...,... for this year. The total issue of certificates to date does not equal $...,..., 1886.

A report has been received from the Indian agricultural department stating that the area of the rice crop in Burmah is now estimated at 110,221 acres over last year's area, and that if the weather remains favorable, as it has been generally throughout the growing season, an export surplus of about 1,100,000 tons may be expected. An extraordinary increase in the area of the Bombay cotton crop is also officially reported, 1,106,082 acres being grown in the British districts, and 12,676 acres in the native states, as compared with 723,154 and 6,539 acres last year. An average area from the British districts is 884,566 acres. Thus the area is nearly 25 per cent. over the average and 51 per cent. over last year's acreage; while in the native states it is nearly 129 per cent. over last year's area, the average not being known.

The New York State Board of Health has recently published some investigations concerning the purity of the ice furnished the City of Syracuse. The supply is from Onondaga Lake, the Erie Canal, or Cazenovia Lake. The ice from the first of these sources is condemned as containing putrescent organic matter. The analyses of the ice from the lake showed it to contain from 10 to 12 per cent. of the sewage impurities dissolved in the same amount of water taken from the lake. Bacteria also were abundantly present in the ice and yet alive. The ice from the Erie Canal was very similar in character, and was also condemned, while that from Cazenovia Lake was not found so unfit for use. Apart from its local significance the report is very important, as showing that water in freezing does not wholly free itself from organic impurities, notwithstanding the commonly-accepted idea that all ice is of necessity pure and, therefore, water from it is the best for drinking purposes.

For fuel purposes natural gas is distributed under the boilers, and wherever needed, by a system of small pipes, the blaze supplying the heat directly; but for household uses, in stoves and fireplaces, the gas-pipe is usually placed at the bottom of the grates, which are filled above with something to receive and hold the heat. In rooms where the open grate, burning the soft bituminous coal, has always been used, a pleasing variety in the arrangement of gas-fires is found. Some people do away with the grate altogether, and supplant it with a clever imitation in cast iron of the old-time back-log. But the commonly accepted plan is to retain the grate, filling it generally with coarsely broken fire-brick, which, when heated, looks much like anthracite coal. Foundry-slag, properly arranged, presents a perfect representation of a soft-coal fire, and is, therefore, more beautiful and desirable. Others resort to the novel plan of filling their grates with porcelain door-knobs, for which purpose they are bought by the peck or bushel! The quantity of gas burned is regulated by a valve at each fire-place; and the ease with which a gas-fire is made, regulated, and put out, coupled with its freedom from smoke, dust, and ashes, has warmed the heart of womankind toward it with a very great affection. —St. Nicholas.

A well-known manufacturer of this city—it isn't necessary to give his name—finds it necessary to employ a double team to do his hauling. For several years he kept two horses, and, while they did their work well, he suddenly concluded to dispose of them and buy a pair of mules instead. He says that after the horses had done their day's or week's work, he was continually annoyed by some of his friends asking for the use of the horses to take pleasure drives. Not caring to offend them he frequently acceded to their requests, while all the time his better judgment told him that it was rough on the horses, which by their honest work were entitled to their just rest. This thing went on for a while and our friend was pondering by day and by night how he could bring about a change. It occurred to him one day that mules were not very popular for pleasure driving purposes, but that they answered every other purpose of horses—in fact, were in several respects preferable for his own use. So he concluded to sell his horses and get a mule team. His plan worked admirably, and the other day he informed us that since he got the mules he hasn't been asked once for their use by his friends or employes. —Allentown (Pa.) Register.

Safety and Dangers of Electric Lighting.

Under what circumstances or conditions "fires" may be caused by electric wires for incandescent lamps, and by the lamps themselves, are important matters to be well understood, and for that reason the intelligent and careful investigation of the subject by the Coroner's jury in the Temple Theater case is a considerable public service. No such thorough inquiry has heretofore been made in any case where electric wires and lamps have been involved. For this the public are indebted to the judicious selection of the jury by the Coroner, and to the intelligent, practical, as well as scientific exposition of the subject, with experiments, before the jury, by Inspector Melleville, of the Insurance Patrol. His services in this respect was admirable and the results valuable.

The immediately useful lesson is: That the "wiring" of a building for electric lights, the setting of the lamps, and the use of the safety appliances, should be committed only to the most skillful and scrupulously careful workmen, under the best trained and most intelligent supervision. When done by such hands and under such oversight, electric indoor lighting is entirely safe—safer than gas; but when done by unskilled or careless persons it is risky. The further deduction to be drawn from the verdict of the Coroner's jury in the Temple Theater case is that the wiring and the lamps and the safety appliances in all buildings lighted by electricity should be immediately and thoroughly inspected by competent and trusty men. There may have been careless or incompetent men at work in other places. —Philadelphia Ledger.

—Oakey Hall, of New York, has become a naturalized British subject.

N. N. Pike died near Damariscotta, Me., a few days ago, apparently in abject poverty. The whole of his household goods would not bring $5 if put up at auction. The night after his burial, which was unattended by his two daughters, a neighbor in rummaging around in Pike's house found an old trunk which contained a good suit of clothes which no one had ever seen him wear, national bank bills, bonds, and evidences of cash deposits, amounting in all to over $25,000. No one knows how he came by so much money; but it is supposed that he made it during the construction of the Knox and Lincoln railroad by cashing the due bills of the laborers before pay day at a great discount. His first wife left him on account of his miserly, filthy habits about twenty years ago. He obtained a divorce and married a young girl, who died in the insane asylum at Augusta. Since then he had lived alone, and would often walk to a neighbor's house to warm himself rather than build a fire. He was 67 years of age and was at one time a lawyer. His daughters will get the money.

A Sea Waif.

A very curious anecdote is told concerning Admiral Bythesea, V. C., C. B., who has just retired from the service, after having for many years filled the post of Consulting Naval Officer to the Government of India. It is stated that the Admiral was picked up, when an infant, far out at sea, lashed to a bale of goods. A lady—presumably his mother—was with him, but she was dead, and there was no evidence of any kind by which the names of the waifs could be traced. The officers of the man of war which picked up the poor little infant did all they could by advertisement and inquiry to discover his relatives, and, finding all their attempts futile, they determined to adopt the child, to whom they gave the name of "By the Sea." He was sent to a naval school, and, when old enough, joined the navy. By a happy coincidence the first ship in which he served was the one which had saved his life as an infant. He took to his profession, and during the Crimean War distinguished himself at the Island of Wardo, where he earned the Victoria Cross and the decoration of C. B. Later on his services in India gave him the Companionship of the Order of the Indian Empire; and he now retires from the service with the rank of Admiral—a consummation little dreamed of by the kind-hearted officers who rescued and educated him.

During the year 1872 I contracted a severe cold. It continued to get worse, and I went to a physician, who examined me and pronounced my disease to be Consumption, saying that I could not live six months. My father bought a bottle of Piso's Cure for Consumption. I began to take it and was greatly relieved. My night sweats gradually abated, and, after taking a dozen bottles, I was cured.—W. E. Robertson, Brandywine, Maryland.

—Miss Clara Foltz, the San Francisco woman lawyer, is described as remarkably handsome, with attractive manners.

Mrs. F. W. Ingham, 472 W. Madison street, Chicago Ill., recommends Red Star Cough Cure, a few doses of which gave entire relief from a violent cold. Price, 25 cents.

—Dr. Lenz is the tenth white man who has crossed Africa from sea to sea.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

—Three beautiful society girls have been received as nuns within the Visitation convent at Baltimore. They are Miss Emily McTavish, great grand niece of Charles Carroll of Carrollton—rich, courted and accomplished; Miss Lily Thurber, and Miss Lizzie McMaster, daughter of the late editor of the Freeman's Journal. Their new names are Sister Mary, Sister Rose, and Sister Angela.

Experience continually shows its power.—Its Healing properties are wonderful, Ponds Extract. Do not trust any worthless substitutes for the Genuine.

—M. De Lesseps has been saying some very plesant things about Americans to his friends in Paris.

* * * * Premature decline of manly powers, nervous debility and kindred diseases, radically cured. Consultation free. Book 10 cents in stamps. Address, confidentially, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

—Collector Magone, of New York, received $470 recently from various remorseful people who wanted some doubtful profits turned into the conscience fund.

The farmers, in their swamps, we're sure,
Could find the roots and plants that cure;
If by their knowledge they only knew
For just the disease each one grew.
Take courage now, and "Swamp-Root" try—
(for kidney, liver and bladder complaints).
As on this remedy you can rely.

—William E. Chandler, late secretary of the navy, is thinking of starting a paper in Manchester, N. H.

No Opium in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

—Senator Van Wyck is in no wise discouraged at his defeat, and it is believed that his friends will make another effort to secure his return when Senator Manderson's term expires.

Pond's Extract has won a great reputation for forty years, curing cases of acute pain. Spurious imitations are dear at any price.

—The wife of Senator Hale, of Maine, has decided to pass the remainder of the winter at Versailles, Me., with her family of boys.

Moxie's Nerve Food has proved to be the most remarkable remedy, for nervous exhaustion, tired out, over worked persons ever produced. It gives relief at once, with no reaction. It will beyond doubt, stop the liquor appetite, and has created more excitement all over the country than all other discoveries combined. Cheap for a wonder.

Mr. A. Furger, 605 Walnut steet, St. Louis, Mo., suffered for two years with lumbago, and was confined to his bed for several months. He was entirely cured by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, which he says is also the best cure for sprains and all other pains.

—Hannibal Hamlin told the Maine Press association the other day that "the newspaper dethrones kings."

Trouble Ahead.

When the appetite fails, and sleep grows restless and unrefreshing, there is trouble ahead. The digestive organs, when healthy, crave food, the nervous system, when vigorous and tranquil, gives its possessor no uneasiness at night. A tonic, to be effective, should not be a mere appetizer, nor are the nerves to be strengthened and soothed by the unaided action of a sedative or a narcotic. What is required is a medicine which invigorates the stomach, and promotes assimilation of food by the system, by which means the nervous system, as well as other parts of the physical organism, are strengthened. These are the effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine whose reputation is founded firmly in public confidence, and which physicians commend for its tonic, anti-bilious and other properties. It is used with the best results in fever and ague, rheumatism, kidney and uterine weakness, and other maladies.

—It cost $700,000 for repairs to the Erie canal last summer, and the freight floated was 2,293,982 tons, as against 4,731,864 tons in 1885.

FITS.—All Fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa.

—Freddie Gebhard emerged from his merited obscurity just long enough to witness the first presentation of "Harbor Lights," in New York, the other day.

Decay of the Bones, with some thirty other symptoms, mark the progress of that terrible disease known as catarrh. It advances from stage to stage of fearful annoyance, and if neglected, is certain to end in general debility, and possibly in consumption or insanity. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure it at any stage. This medicine has been long before the public, and thousands have been restored to health by its never-failing virtues.

—Senator Farwell's first vote was for the bill giving the ballot to woman.

Used by physicians and the people over forty years for Hemorrhages and Inflammations. Pond's Extract. Beware of imitations offered for the Genuine.

Chicago it seems is not big enough for both Pat Killen and Slugger Sullivan.

TIRED OUT!

At this season nearly every one needs to use some sort of tonic. IRON enters into almost every physician's prescription for those who need building up.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS —THE BEST TONIC

Trade Mark. QUALITY NOT QUANTITY. On Every Bottle.

For Weakness, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, etc., it HAS NO EQUAL, and is the only iron medicine that is not injurious. It Enriches the Blood, Invigorates the System, Restores Appetite, Aids Digestion. It does not blacken or injure the teeth, cause headache or produce constipation—other Iron medicines do.

Genuine has above Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other. Made only by BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

ELY'S CREAM BALM. CATARRH

For cold in the head Ely's Cream Balm works like magic. It cured me of catarrh and restored the sense of smell.—E. H. Sherwood, Banker, Elizabeth, N. J.

HAY-FEVER

ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

Children Cry FOR PITCHER'S Castoria

Castoria promotes Digestion, and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, and Feverishness. Thus the child is rendered healthy and its sleep natural. Castoria contains no Morphine or other narcotic property.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 82 Portland Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I use Castoria in my practice, and find it specially adapted to affections of children." ALEX. ROBERTSON, M. D., 1057 2d Ave., New York.

THE CENTAUR CO., 182 Fulton St., N. Y.

RUPTURE

Relieved and cured by DR. J. A. SHERMAN'S method. 294 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

A Terrible Fire

consumes the sympathies of a whole city. And yet the wild havoc of disease startles no one. Sad to relate women suffer from year to year with chronic diseases and weaknesses peculiar to their sex, knowing that they are growing worse with every day, and still take no measures for their own relief. Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the result of life-long and learned study of female complaints. It is guaranteed to cure.

—H. M. Kendrick, General Passenger Agent of the New York Central Road is dead.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is a carefully prepared extract of the best remedies of the vegetable kingdom known to medical science as Alteratives, Blood Purifiers, Diuretics and Tonics, such as Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Stillingia, Dandelion, Juniper Berries, Mandrake, Wild Cherry Bark and other selected roots, barks and herbs. A medicine, like anything else, can be fairly judged only by its results. We point with satisfaction to the glorious record Hood's Sarsaparilla has entered for itself upon the hearts of thousands of people in New England who have personally or indirectly been relieved of terrible suffering which all other remedies failed to reach.

C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. Price $1; six for $5. Sold by Druggists.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America. The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, backache, Weakness, colds in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP ROOT. CURES KIDNEY, LIVER & BLADDER

A MEDICAL VICTORY! Cures Brights' Disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, Torpid Liver. It dissolves Gall-Stones and Gravel.

SYMPTOMS and CONDITIONS of Urine for which this Remedy should be taken.

IT IS A SPECIFIC.

PRICE 25c, $1.00—6 bottles $5.00. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's Dispensary, Binghamton, N. Y., U. S. A. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

OAKLAWN The Great Nursery of PERCHERON HORSES. 200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families. LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY

M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

TANSILL'S PUNCH 5c

Address R. H. TANSILL & CO. Chicago

FITS STOPPED FREE. Insane Persons Restored. Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER.

THE OLDEST MEDICINE IN THE WORLD is probably Dr. Isaac Thompson's Celebrated EYE WATER. JOHN L. THOMPSON SONS & CO., Troy, N. Y.

Free! Free! Free! Dr. J. P. BARNUM, Louisville.

PENNYROYAL PILLS "CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH." The Original and Only Genuine.

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT

LADY

$5

HOME STUDY.

PATENTS

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 23, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. FARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Harbor Springs Independent: We think Grover missed it in vetoing the dependent pension bill.

A southern Democratic newspaper complains that the south receives no benefit from what it calls "the pension jobbery that now rules the roost." If the Democrats continue in power long enough, the rebels will probably get their share of "pension jobbery," and a rascally job it will be, too.

Perhaps the pension bill vetoed by President Cleveland was not sufficiently guarded, and that reasons to justify his veto may be found. But he signed the Mexican pension bill, which will put thousands of rebel soldiers on the pension rolls. This act will be strongly contrasted with his veto of a loyal pension bill.

A letter received in New York from the Rev. M. S. Vail, a missionary teacher in Tokio, Japan, describes an earthquake which occurred there on January 15—the severest he had ever experienced. Chimneys were thrown down both in Tokio and Yokohama, and considerable damage was done, though no lives were lost. This is the date of the earthquake at Hawaii mentioned in a San Francisco dispatch when the volcano Mauna Loa became active. The peculiarities of the earth's vibrations in the two remote places at the same moment were very similar.

The gold excitement this year is in a new Australian field. The discoveries which started people that way were made early in October. The region is accessible, being only 23 miles from a railroad station and 150 from Adelaide. Within eight weeks of the discovery 7,000 men were on the ground. Half the miners have poor success or none at all, while the other half do well and a few strike it rich, one getting $1,500 in three weeks. That does not compare with what has been done in some diggings, but it is supposed the South Australia field will nevertheless make a noticeable figure in contributing to the world's stocks of the precious metal.

The conferees representing the Senate and the House have finally reached an agreement concerning the pending bill for the suppression of polygamy in Utah. The bill passed by the Senate provided that the Mormon church should be governed by trustees appointed by the President. That provision has been rejected. The requirement that all marriages in Utah shall be matters of public and official record will assist prosecutors in the performance of their duty. The most important paragraphs of the bill as it now stands, are those which repeal the charters of the Mormon Church and the Mormon Immigration Society, and instruct the Attorney General to proceed in the courts for the recovery of all the church property which was not acquired in accordance with the laws of the United States. Section 1,890 of the revised statutes is as follows: "No corporation or association for religious or charitable purposes shall acquire or hold real estate in any Territory during the existence of the territorial government of a greater value than $50,000; and all real estate acquired or held by such corporation or association contrary hereto shall be forfeited and escheat to the United States."

A gentleman who has just returned from Florida, where he spent a month with Edison, said, in an interview, speaking of the recently reported invention of artificial food: "He has already perfected this discovery so that an army need carry no food. All it needs is to take along two or three of Edison's machines and turn the elements into food, as it is needed. But he has been doing other things. For instance, he has invented what he calls the miragephone. It is like a telephone, only you look in it instead of putting it to your ear, and you see what is going on at the other end. By putting a miragephone on the end of a telegraph wire at St. Louis, fixing the corresponding instrument at this end, you have a perfect picture of what is going on there. He has also invented a telegraph transmitter that writes its own messages in typewriter. You put your message in a box at this end, turn a crank, and at the other end the typewriter rattles off with lightning speed. To amuse his wife he rigged up a buggy with electric motors in the hubs of the wheels. It would go at the rate of 20 miles an hour. Then he invented a new way to catch fish. All he does is to run a wire out on the bottom of the sea or river, and he has some electrical effect or other so that every fish that swims above it immediately dies and comes floating to the surface."

Will that much abused surplus last till after the 4th of March?

Both houses of the Nevada Legislature have passed a bill to disfranchise Mormons.

Ben Butler thinks the Democrats will be defeated in 1888. Ben guesses very shrewdly sometimes.

Well, $21,000,000 will do for a starter on the sea-coast defense. It is a fair whack at the surplus, too.

Henry Watterson wants God to "raise up a party leader" for the Democratic party. Mr. Watterson has applied at the wrong headquarters.

The appropriations made by Congress from 1800 to date for the erection and remodeling of the United States capitol amounts to over $15,000,000.

When a man is not satisfied with his wages or his employer, the best thing he can do is to go and work for some one else, and not ask a hundred or a thousand other men to quit work on his account.

The Courier-Journal editor remarks: "It is safe to say that at this time Mr. Cleveland could not be elected." He might have added that the sentiment is likely to grow. A party can not live on vetoes alone.

The National House of Representatives lately amended and then passed the Senate bill for the retirement and recoinage of the trade dollar. The bill now goes back to the Senate for concurrence in the amendment.

The ocean monster and white elephant, the Great Eastern steamship, the largest vessel ever built and so large as to be useless, has been sold at auction for $130,000. It was completed in 1859, and cost ready for sea $4,000,000.

Preferring to earn bread for their families rather than obey the autocratic dictate of a Master Workman, the brewers and engineers of New York refused to quit work when ordered. Their example is likely to prove contagious.

A New York Democratic newspaper has figured out that the next Presidential election will turn upon the vote of New York, and that the only hope for the Democrats is in the Prohibition vote. It happened that way in 1884, but it will hardly happen that way again in 1888. Such things don't happen continuously.

Time is rapidly passing—only about a week more of the present Congress—and up to Feb. 15 only one appropriation bill, the Army bill, had become a law. It now looks as though the Democrats were fixing matters for an extra session of Congress, in which they will not have so large a majority.

Rev. Dr. Deyo, state senator, who claims to be a prohibitionist in principle, but would not vote to submit the amendment, because it was brought forward by the republicans, will probably vote against the measure for the season. If Mr. Deyo's religion is as inconsistent as his politics, the whiteness of his ministerial cloth must be sadly browned.—Bangor Advance.

Detroit Tribune: Some of the reasons advanced by Mr. Cleveland for his veto of the "dependent pensions" bill would be considered sound and proper, no doubt, if the public had the slightest confidence in his candor or his honesty of purpose. But in view of the reason which he has heretofore spat out upon the old veterans in the course of other pension vetoes, the general public opinion will doubtless be that in this case also his action has been governed mainly by his unconcealed hatred of the union soldier. It is a fact that the present administration is pursuing the veterans of the war for the union with a malignant persistence without a parallel among the ingratitude of nations anywhere.

A recent conflagration in a remote Chinese village destroyed the ancestral home of the family of Confucius with all its contents; texts on stone; commentaries; wondrous carvings in jade and alabaster; priceless jars of porcelain; jewels and precious metal work; in brief, one of the most remarkable literary and artistic museums in the world, containing as it did nearly every extant memorial of the great teacher. In that building, erected 600 B. C., generation after generation, the male heirs of the Chinese philosopher have dwelt in unbroken line for 2,500 years, bearing the title of dukes. With every other family in China, a nobleman's rank must always be lower than that of his ancestors; for no true Confucian would presume to stand higher than his grandfather, father or his eldest brother. In the illustrious "House of Confucius," however, the lofty title of Duke passes unchanged, except when Emperor after Emperor adds by royal decree some new phrase of honor to the name and line of the famous philosopher.

Northern Michigan News.

The Petoskey Unitarians will build a church, probably the coming summer.

St Ignace public schools are closed on account of the prevalence of scarlet fever.

Joseph McKay has been appointed postmaster at Central Lake, Antrim county, in place of F. H. Thurston, removed.

The Algomah has contracted to carry across 300 cars of Lake Superior copper, before the opening of navigation.

The Independent has nearly two columns of descriptions of real estate in the village of Harbor Springs advertised for sale for delinquent village taxes.

At the State prohibition convention held at Detroit last Friday, we notice that Judge J. G. Ramsdell was appointed a member at large of the Prohibition State Central Committee.

Bellaire Breeze: No special railroad news to offer to-day, more than that all things seem to be working very favorably. It appears certain that the road will be built, and that it will pass through our village.

Bellaire Breeze, Banks correspondence: Guyles & Nash will shut down their mill in Banks about the first of March.—We are not very much excited about the new railroad for we feel quite confident that we will have our road along the bay shore in due time.

Col. Charles D. Long, of Flint, who is so prominently mentioned for the Supreme bench, by republican papers, is a brother of Mr. S. Long and Mr. George Long, who live west of Petoskey in the Carpenter neighborhood, and a brother-in-law of R. C. Light, postmaster at Carpenter.

Petoskey has met with another business crash. This time it is a shingle mill, owned or operated by a man by the name of Stevens. The mill is located between the village and Bay View. All of his employes and many of the Petoskey merchants have to suffer and are left to think over their misfortunes.

Cheboygan's got it, too, and this is the way it looks to the Democrat man: "The reaching out of the Michigan Central road across to the west side of the state, into the territory of the F. & P. M and G. R. & I. roads, will as certainly result in the coming of the latter road into the eastern part of the state, as night follows day, and this means new railroad connections for Cheboygan, which will be competitive lines. Then the shore road from Alpena will surely be in Cheboygan inside of five years."

In the case of Aaron Hafford vs G. R. & I. railroad company, brought to recover damages for payment of railroad fare from Manton to Traverse City, a conductor refusing to take part of an excursion ticket good from Sturgis to Traverse City, when first bought, the supreme court decides in favor of Hafford. The Company was bound by the act of its agent and the conductor, on being apprised of the facts, should have allowed the man to ride. People are not required to know what rules are made by a railroad company to govern its agents and employes, and cannot lose their rights in consequence of them.

Bellaire Breeze: Committees representing the interests of Charlevoix, Ironton, Bellaire, Kalkaska and Grayling, met at Kalkaska on Tuesday of this week for the discussion of matters relative to the new D., C. & E. R. R. Preceding the committee meeting the business men of Kalkaska and other interested places met with the visiting committee in Sweet's Hall for general discussion of the several routes under consideration. In this discussion statements were made by A. A. Bleazby and A. E. Drake, of Kalkaska; Roswell Leavitt, of Bellaire; F. J. Meech and J. Mike Eaton of Charlevoix; R. M. Cherrie, of Ironton; R. W. Coy, and J. P. Smith of Spencer Creek; M. J. Conlane and J. O. Hadley, of Grayling, and J. N. Rickers, of Rapid River. A nearly direct route between Kalkaska and Bellaire was considered, and also one along the Rapid river valley via Spencer Creek. Three routes were discussed between Bellaire and Charlevoix—one by way of Warner's mill, near the east side of Kearney, another directly up the Intermediate valley and through by the Twin lakes to the shore of Pine lake, about a mile and a half north of Ironton, and thence along the lake shore to Charlevoix, and another following the same valley to the Ox-bow and thence easterly to Monro's creek and down to the South Arm shore, through Ironton, to Charlevoix. The route from Kalkaska to Grayling was also considered. The final determination of the route depends on the preliminary surveys to be made; but present indication are favorable to a nearly direct route from Grayling to Kalkaska, thence by the most direct route to Bellaire, and up the Intermediate valley to the Ox-bow, from which point either of two or three easy routes may be taken.

Cheboygan expects to have one of the best harbors on the lakes after the $25,000 appropriations are expended.

The people of Sault Ste. Marie are after a chance to incorporate as a city and a bill is to be prepared to present to the legislature [illegible]

Ex Mayor M. F. Mulcrone has been named as postmaster at St. Ignace. Mr. Mulcrone was formerly a republican but turned Mugwump and the postoffice is his reward.

Harbor Springs girls have mapped out a campaign that means no ice cream for them during the coming summer. They will not associate with young men who frequent the saloons.

It is rumored that a prize fight is to take place here some time this week between a Cadillac and Petoskey man. We hope, however, that the officers will be on the alert and stop an exhibition which would be an everlasting disgrace to our town.—Kalkaskian.

The Mackinac Island correspondent of the St. Ignace Republican says: "The owners of the burnt district have not yet concluded as to plans and other particulars of rebuilding, through the summer months will no doubt discover a nice block of buildings where the delapidated ones were. It is the valuable business site in Mackinac, and is worthy of good and sightly buildings.

R. J. Hersey, principal member of the syndicate which is building the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, states that the bridge across Sault Ste. Marie, will be open to all railroads touching that point and that the Brockville, Westport & Sault Ste. Marie company which has been recently chartered will be an extension of the former road to St. Lawrence. Near Brockville a bridge will be built across the St. Lawrence, where the river is only 1,000 feet wide, and connections will be built to roads now running to New York and Boston.

The Chippewa county jail at the "Soo" was broken into Sunday night between the hours of 10 and 11 and four prisoners liberated. The main entrance to the jail was forced as were also the iron doors leading to the cells, the jail janitor in the meanwhile being summarily disposed of. The iron cages surrounding the cells were then wrenched asunder, giving liberty to one prisoner under a two years' sentence to Ionia, and three others that were being held over for burglary committed at Newberry. The prisoners escaped over the border into the Queen's dominions, where, after a slight detention by the authorities, they were again given their liberty.

B. C. Greene reached this place last evening from the South Manitou island. On Saturday last Mr. Greene, in company with Mr. Knudsen, light keeper, Jas. Armstrong, assistant light keeper, and Thomas Armstrong walked over from the island to Glen Arbor, a distance of 10 miles to get the mail, which has not been received since Dec 22d. The ice was thin, but safe, except occasional cracks. On Monday the cracks began to widen, and the warm weather so affected it that it was not considered safe crossing, but Mr. Knudsen was very anxious to get back to his family and insisted on starting off alone. He took a piece of board, and those on shore saw him paddle across a wide opening on a cake of ice, but soon lost sight of him in the gathering mist. Considerable uneasiness is felt, as it is not yet known that he reached the island safely. On Tuesday the ice broke entirely up, and the rest of the party must now wait until the ice, which is piled up 10 to 12 feet high, is loosened so that a boat can be got out.—Grand Traverse Herald, 10th.

And now Traverse City wants the D., C. & E. R. R., and in order to make capital tries to throw cold water on the proposed route via Kalkaska, and especially that portion of it between this place and Grayling. True, a small portion of the route east of us crosses "plains," but by far the major portion of the line through this county is through as fine a section of country as Traverse or any other northern county can boast of. Again, Charlevoix understands its own best interests too well to be led astray by the seductive arguments of Traverse City, or to allow itself to be located at the tail end of a spur of the G. R. & I. R. R. The people at that end of the route are not in the position of the old maid who wanted a husband and was willing to take "Most anybody, good Lord." On the contrary, they are in a position to demand what they want and moreover, get it, and being sure of a road anyway, they are not foolish enough to want to put themselves at the end of a one-horse extension when they can be at the terminus of a line that will intersect both the G. R. & I. and the Michigan Central, giving them competing lines to the east and south with almost a certainty of securing the Chicago & West Michigan, later, as well.—Kalkaska Leader.

Buckien's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

For Sale!

Prof. BICE'S nicely located beautiful lots on Clinton street in the village of Charlevoix, are now for sale. Enquire of G. M. BICE, Alpena, or GREEN, Charlevoix, Mich. May 4, 1886.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN
Boiler Works!
Builder and Manufacturer of
BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.
Sheet Iron Work given special attention.
MARINE WORK a specialty.
HENRY BARTH, Prop.
Charlevoix, Mich.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free Trial Bottles at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.
Henry Bennett, Pres., John Nicholls, Vice-Pres., F. A. Smith, Cashier.
DIRECTORS.
Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, F. A. Smith, O. D. Wood, A. Hollars, A. Fox.
CAPITAL $25,000
SURPLUS 2,000

Bank of
Charlevoix,
W. P. BROWN, Cashier.
W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.
CAPITAL, $25,000
Perfect Security
Its Officers
Security in Banking
This Bank Invites
This Bank Will
Parties Seeking
Investment Notes.
We Solicit Your Patronage.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS.
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Washburn & Ackert,
FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

RIFENBURG
MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
I will guarantee the best modelled, easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for stacking boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co
We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS
AND SHOES,
which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces
Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Pacs, And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.
We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.
Womens grain shoes for $1.25
Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.
Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at
Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of
Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED.
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Farming Lands
500,000 ACRES
Of Splendid
MICHIGAN LANDS
For Sale By The
G. R. & I. R. R.
50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.
By Water and Rail
Not a Wilderness by any Means.
Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.
Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address
W. H. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.
TITLE PERFECT

MERCHANT
TAILORING.
I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.
Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.
Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,
C. H. Maddaugh.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
AND
JOBBING SHOP.
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
Manufacturer of BED SPRINGS.
Give me call.

MILLINERY
AND
FANCY GOODS!
Mrs. ELLA SMITH &
Miss ANNIE COOPER
FANCY GOODS!
Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

MARVELOUS PRICES!
BOOKS FOR THE MILLION
OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.
We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of
"SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

SOMETHING NEW.
WORLD RENOWNED
CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,
RACINE, WIS.

CURES
Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.
YOUNG'S
COUGH SYRUP
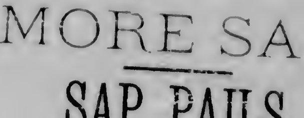
Sold by all druggists.
W. JOHNSTON & CO.,
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

FRANK F. WOODS
Bath & Barber Rooms.

The Kalamazoo
"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
Sent by Mail at 50c a month.



MORE SAP!
SAP PAILS,
Sap Pans, - Sap Spiles.
ATKINS SAWS,
PERFECTION AXES,
JOB and TIN WORK.
L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and
STATIONERY,
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
A Large and Complete New Line
JUST RECEIVED.
EVERYTHING
YOU CAN THINK OF.
You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.
PERRY WEED.
The only News stand in town.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S
LIVERY STABLE
CHARLEVOIX.
The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.
Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.
My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT
AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Charlevoix Summer Resorts.
Carpenters and Painters.
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

GELLICK & INGALLS
Dealers in
Choice Wines,
Fine Liquors
EXCELLENT CIGARS.
We call Special Attention to our
Old Kentucky Sour Mash
WHISKIES.
We also keep continually on draught
Milwaukee
Export and lager Beer.
Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

Take The Sentinel.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

MONEY TO LOAN,
At current rates of interest, on
Approved Real Estate Security.
School Bonds bought and sold.
MILEY & CHAPIN,
Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER
ROOMS.
Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.
JAY S. PRICE.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, Publishers

[illegible] to [illegible] "[illegible]."

The British Government has vetoed the Newfoundland bill forbidding the purchase of bait in its ports.

A house in New York dealing in oriental goods, has sent out the only Japanese drummer on the road in the United States.

A socialistic meeting in a brewery at Stettin was dispersed by troops. The hall was wrecked and several people were wounded with bayonets.

The Illinois Secretary of State has issued a license of organization to the Illinois Industrial Training School for Boys, to be located at Chicago.

Some idea of the rapid growth of Los Angeles can be gained from the fact that the city has received an offer of $50,000 for a new cable railroad franchise.

The British government has decided not to permit the Queen's Own rifles of Toronto, and Royal Scots, of Montreal, to visit England and take part in the queen's jubilee.

Lorenzo Snow, a polygamist, on being released from the Utah penitentiary by a decision of the federal supreme court, was taken to his home by Mormon friends in a four horse sleigh.

Most of the factories at Rockford, Ill., were closed on account of the flood last week, and hundreds of cellars were full of water. The inundation was the most serious ever known there.

A man can "get high" by going to Denver. It is 5,175 feet above the sea level, and the highest State capital in the Union. Annapolis, Md., is the lowest, being just four feet above the sea level.

Henry Clay Dean, once a prominent Democratic political orator of Iowa, who acquired considerable notoriety from his eccentricities of dress, died recently at his home in Putnam county, Mo.

John H. Reagan, of Texas, will be the only farmer in the Senate of the United States after the 4th of March next. In the last census year there were in this country 7,670,493 farmers and 64,000 lawyers.

The lord mayor of London recently received the duke of Abercorn and other members of a deputation appealing for funds to aid Irish loyalists deprived of their incomes by the action of the national league.

Freight officers of the Pennsylvania road, at a recent conference, agreed that the company would be benefited by the operations of the inter-state commerce law. Although over six hundred contracts will be daily copied and sent to the commission.

The railroads which heat their cars in winter by other means than coal stoves, and light them by other agencies than coal oil, are going to be immensely popular in the near future. The traveler does not wish to take chances of being roasted as well as wrecked.

The executive committee of the Central Traffic association, at a meeting held last week in Cleveland, resolved to continue the methods and statistics of the pool, within the provisions of the interstate commerce law, with the federal commissioners in securing the benefits of the new measure.

The Emporia (Kansas) Standard says: The present year will witness the construction of four independent lines of railroad to Emporia, namely, the Missouri, Kansas, and Southwestern, the Chicago, Kansas and Western, the Kansas, Colorado and Texas, and the Carbondale Branch of the Union Pacific, with a branch of the M. K. and S. W. from that city to St. Joseph.

The River Press says that Benton, M. T., is down to 100 sacks of flour, with prices advanced to correspond. Flour is reported scarce in Great Falls, and long before navigation opens on the Missouri, there will not be a pound of the commodity in Benton. Coal oil is also scarce and the price has been advanced to $6 a case. With coal at $24 a ton, and no flour and a little coal oil, the city at the head of navigation is in a bad fix.

A fire occurred recently in New Westminster, 120 miles north of Seattle, W. T. In order to get news of the occurrence to the Seattle papers, some lively telegraphing was done. The dispatch telling of the fire was first sent to St. Paul and then to New York. The San Francisco office received it from there and forwarded it to Seattle. Thus Seattle had an item from a neighboring town that had traveled a distance of about 8,000 miles.

An adjourned meeting of the publishers of a number of daily papers in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan, was held in Chicago last week, for the purpose of organizing a press association, having for its object better telegraphic service, special work, and correspondence. The following directors were chosen: W. H. Adams, Commercial, Vincennes, Ind.; F. W. Starbuck, Journal, Racine, Wis.; E. A. Nattinger, Times, Ottawa, Ill.; S. D. Atkins, Journal, Freeport, Ill.; John W. Pocnof, Free Press, Streator, Ill.

At the National Sugar-Growers' association which met in St. Louis on the 5th inst., President Colman's address was read by the secretary. It showed that the total production of cane sugar in 1885-6 was 3,197,000 meteric tons, and in 1886-7 2,368,000 meteric tons. The production of sugar from sorghum cane in this country has only lately commenced, but it already reaches an amount equal to our total production of all kinds of sugar. The commissioner considers that upon the whole, although expectations of a year ago have not been realized, the outlook is favorable for a large production of sugar from sorghum by the adoption of the new processes of diffusion and saturation.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Towns Deluged—The Vermont Disaster—Big Suit Against P. D. Armour—A Ghastly Discovery, Etc.

Great Fire at St. Louis—The Lincoln Hearse Burned—Abduction Punished—A Bomb for Patti, Etc.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

A Miraculous Escape.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 11.—The Cleveland and Pittsburg express, which left here at 12:15 this morning ran through a bridge about six miles from the city. The engine and baggage and express cars ran across all right, but the smoker, containing four passengers went down with the bridge. The engine and express and baggage cars ran off the track after crossing the bridge and turned over. A day coach went partially over into the stream, but was held back by the sleeper, which remained on the track. The passengers in the smoker miraculously escaped injury. The fireman had a leg broken. High water undermined the abutment of the bridge and caused the accident.

Towns Flooded.

LYONS, Mich., Feb. 11.—An ice-gorge has resulted in the flooding of the town. Several families have been driven out, and the water is higher than the second floor of the Cornell Work and the woolen mills. It is reported that the streets of Lansing are being navigated by boats and all the mills along the river are shut down. The bridges imperiled have been secured by cables, and dynamite has been used successfully to scatter the ice.

Vermont's Railway Disaster.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Feb. 11.—The railroad commissioners resumed yesterday their investigation into the causes of the recent railroad accident, examining a number of the injured passengers. The evidence elicited threw no light upon the cause of the accident. The investigation was then adjourned till Monday. The bodies of Delima Brodeur of Nashua, N. H., and James A. Stone, proprietor of the City hotel, Burlington, Vt., were identified yesterday. It has been discovered that J. W. Moore of Everett, Mass., and R. E. French of Hartland, who were counted on the conductor's list, stopped here. This leaves the figures: Total on the train, 91; accounted for, 87; still missing, 4; total of identified dead, 19.

Big Suit.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 11.—Philip D. Armour was sued in the Superior court yesterday in separate actions by Adam Magener and his wife Wilhelmine Magener, who charged that they were made ill with trichiniasis through eating pork from his establishment a year ago. The plaintiffs live at Grand Crossing and bought the meat of a local butcher who purchased it of Armour. Magener's sister was also made ill by eating the meat and died, and they claim to be only now recovering from their illness. Magener claims $50,000 and his wife $25,000 damages.

Fire at St. Louis—Destruction of a Sacred Relic.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 11.—The extensive livery stable of Jesse Arnot was burned yesterday morning, and over 100 horses and a great number of carriages, buggies, etc., were burned. Three men were killed by falling walls and six badly wounded. Among other things burned was a sacred relic, the hearse in which the remains of Abraham Lincoln were conveyed to their last resting place.

Abduction Punished.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Edward Russell, a peddler 21 years old, was sent to prison for ten day for abducting and marrying Pauline Schlicht, a 12 year-old girl. His child-wife is under the charge of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Against Hoke.

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 11.—The grand jury returned yesterday twenty indictments against Finlay Hoke on charges of forgery based on drafts for $10,000 filled out by Hoke. There are several counts in some of the indictments. Hoke will probably be arraigned the first of next week. His counsel will object to including more than the seven drafts on which the extradition proceedings were commenced. If successful they can thus reduce the amount one half and possibly furnish bail.

Deliberate Suicide.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 11.—G. T. Buckley of Omaha, who had twice taken morphine with suicidal intent, ended his life yesterday at the Cincinnati house in Nebraska City, by cutting the carotid artery in his throat. He first spread newspapers over the carpet in the room, then, placing a washbowl on the floor, cut the artery with a penknife, and allowed himself to bleed to death. He was undoubtedly insane.

A Novelist Dead.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Henry Wood, the novelist, is dead. She was born in Worcestershire about 1820. Her principal novels were "East Lynne," "A Life Secret," "Within the Maze," and "Oswald Cray."

Patti's Peril.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—A crank attempted to kill Adelina Patti during a concert at the Grand Opera House last night by a bomb, which he took into the theater but in attempting to throw it, it exploded and dangerously wounded only him. He was arrested and quiet soon restored.

A Ghastly Discovery.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 11.—A most horrible discovery was made in Green county, this state, a day or two ago. The dead body of John Keeth was found wrapped in a blanket and concealed in the carcass of a dead horse. It is supposed that he was murdered and his body concealed there by the murderer. Keeth was a brother-in-law of William Despain. He had been missing for several days, but no search had been made for him, his friends supposing that he was away on a visit, until a dog belonging to William Despain came into the house, carrying something in his mouth which, when examined, was found to be the hand of a man. Mr. Despain tracked the dog to the carcass of an old horse, and was horrified to find the body of his brother in law therein, half eaten up by dogs. It was a horrible sight. The mystery connected with the affair will probably never be solved. Keeth was a married man and the father of six children.

End of a Strike.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 10.—The strike of the 6,000 Monongahela river coal miners is practically settled, and work will be resumed in nearly all the mines in the first, second, and third pools today at the rate decided upon by the miners' national executive board. Meetings were held by the miners in the various pools, and it was resolved to accept the compromise suggested by the national board. The operators were acquainted with the action, and several of the largest dealers notified their men to report for work to-day.

The Floods in Canada.

LONDON, Canada, Feb. 10.—Almost a repetition of the flood of '83 has occurred at London, Canada. The north branch of the Thames has again overflowed its banks and nearly all the houses in West London are flooded, some of them to the depth of three feet. Great damage is also reported from St. Catherines by the overflowing of the old canal yesterday morning. People living on its banks had to flee to high grounds to save their lives. The rush of water swept everything before it and entered the dry docks. Steamers which were undergoing repairs had to be scuttled in order to save them.

Montreal Carnival Closed.

MONTREAL, Canada, Feb. 10.—The carnival proceedings last night were closed with the attack and defense of the ice-castle. Snow-shoers 1,900 in number made the attack. There were several narrow escapes. A little girl and a man were seriously injured by bombs.

Base Ball.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Mike Kelley of the Chicago says: "I hope my arm will drop off if I play ball with the Chicago team again." He says, also: "It is not a question of salary, but dislike for manager Spaulding, and, if not released, will retire altogether." It is said he wants to join the New York team.

Floods.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—The floods northwest of the city, in Jefferson and Lake View, are assuming alarming proportions. Bridges and buildings are in imminent danger. An attempt is being made to break up the ice gorges with explosives. Advices from Ottawa and Dixon, Ill.; Beloit and Janesville, Wis.; Detroit, Grand Rapids and Monroe, Mich., say, the result of the floods is disastrous.

Bombs in France.

LYONS, Feb. 10.—Two bombs were simultaneously exploded yesterday in front of the police head quarters office in this city. The bombs struck against the railing, and were thus prevented from expending their force on the building. At St. Etienne, thirty-two miles southwest of Lyons, a bomb was thrown at the police station. It exploded outside the office but with such force that three of the officers within the building were seriously injured. Eight men were arrested for alleged complicity in the latter outrage.

Lost at Sea.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 9.—While off Saybrook Point yesterday afternoon the schooner Samuel Daly was cut in two by the ice and began to fill rapidly. The captain, Samuel Spaulding, ordered the yawl launched, and with his wife and child and three sailors was casting off from the schooner when the vessel sank. The yawl was carried down with the schooner and all but the captain and one sailor were drowned. Mrs. Spaulding's body was found floating, being held up by her clothing.

Coast Defences.

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS, Fla., Feb. 9.—The coast-defence congress organized here yesterday. Resolutions were unanimously passed, saying, among other things: "In view of the defenceless condition of the harbors of the Atlantic and gulf states, as well as the Pacific and lake states, we most respectfully memorialize the congress of the United States to at once take such steps and enact such laws as are necessary to put our coasts in a proper state of defence by building such fortifications as the engineering skill of our army officers may determine to be the best and most important, and further by supplying our navy with such ships and armament as modern naval science renders necessary." They also recommend the establishment of an arsenal in the south remote from the seaboard, and a navy-yard at some southern port.

Living in Slavery.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—A special from Charleston, S. C., says: Information of a reliable character has just been received of the discovery of a negro man in one of the narrow valleys near Hogback mountain, not far from Greenville, who has just learned of his emancipation. He is a negro of heavy physique and somewhat striped appearance. His story is that since the war he has been working for Mr. Holley and that he was not allowed to come back to his kinfolk; that he was flogged by his master, who gave him no money and few clothes. The man's name is Calvin Garmany. He ran off to the mountains just after the war and was only recently heard of by his brother, who lives near Greenville, and who rescued him from servitude last week.

The Inter-State Commission.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 7.—The Inter-State Commission will soon be named. It is said by one who has the ear of the President, that the selection will be made from the following: A. G. Thurman, of Ohio; Wm. Windom, of Minn.; T. M. Cooley, of Mich., F. C. Kernan, Jr., of New York; Gen. J. H. Wilson, of Delaware; J. M. Smith, of Georgia; W. H. Swift and W. T. Coleman, of California.

FOREIGN.

The Paris Bourse closed flat on the 8th, owing to unfavorable rumors from Germany.

The German Government has introduced a bill in the Chamber of Deputies for extra budget appropriations, amounting to 19,000,000 francs, of which 19,000,000 francs are asked for pressing military measures.

Prime Minister Depretis of Rome, announced to the Chamber of Deputies that the entire Cabinet had resigned.

It is stated that the Abyssinians lost 5,000 men in the battles in which the Italians were defeated near Massowah, in the Soudan, on January 26 and 27.

The Chamber of Deputies at Paris passed without debate or scrutiny the extra budgets asked for by the War and Naval Departments.

Peter Rylands (liberal-unionist) member of the English parliament for Burnley, is dead.

The official dispatches which passed between the Russian and British governments regarding the Bulgarian question are made public in London. They show that the czar approved of the course of Gen. Kaulbars in Bulgaria, and declared that the efforts to restore the independence of that country would be continued. The late Lord Iddesleigh (then foreign secretary) in reply, said that, though the Russian government's impression of the events in Bulgaria differed widely with those of the British government, England was equally desirous of maintaining the treaties relative to Bulgaria and obtaining a pacific solution of the difficulty.

Acting by his physician's advice, Mr. Parnell will go abroad to recruit his health after the conclusion of the debate on the address.

The Pall Mall Gazette asserts that England has practically decided to adopt the Lee American rifle for the use of her army.

Le Paris expresses thankfulness that France is under a republican government. A king, says that journal, could never have brooked German insults.

Spanish republican immigrants residing in France have decided to form a volunteer force of 2,000 men to assist France in the event of war with Germany.

The members of the extreme left in Paris have decided in favor of granting priority to Gen. Boulanger's military-organization bill, with a view of drawing from Premier Goblet a statement regarding the political situation.

Great alarm has been caused by frequent murderous attacks upon pedestrians in the streets of Madrid at night. Seven persons have been killed or badly wounded in less than a month.

The Carlists, of Spain, are organizing clubs and committees for election purposes in several provinces.

The Berliner Nachrichten, at Berlin, says that Gen. von Moltke, in receiving a deputation of Conservative electors, declared that the political situation was most serious, and authorized the deputation to give publicity to his statement.

The inhabitants of Baku, the centre of the great Russian petroleum fields, have been much alarmed over a subterranean explosion, which shook houses and caused considerable damage. At the same time a volcano burst on Lokbatan, ten miles distant from Baku. For two nights the volcano threw out a column of fire and mud 350 feet high, illuminating the country for miles around. The mud emitted during the eruption already lies from seven to fourteen feet deep over a full square mile of the territory.

Rushing Rivers.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—News from all parts of Northern Illinois, Southern Wisconsin and parts of Michigan shows that in consequence of the recent heavy rains, the rivers and the smaller streams are full to the overflowing. Much damage was done at Aurora and Elgin, Ill. At Rockford, Ill., the water was yesterday higher than it had been before for 36 years. At Beloit, Wis., the Free Press office was flooded. In this city the damage was not as great as was feared.

France Means Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The French chamber of deputies yesterday passed without debate or scrutiny, the extra war and naval budgets. It was expected that there would be some discussion, and that Premier Goblet would be forced to forecast the political outlook and give a hint regarding the real designs of Boulanger. But there was no debate. In Belgium, too, they are preparing for war. It is expected that if hostilities break out between France and Germany Bismarck will march his armies through Belgium, but King Leopold is averse to this design.

Almost Another Horror.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Feb. 9.—About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon there was a very narrow escape from a bad accident on a covered bridge, over which the Passumpsic Railway passes the White River in entering this town. As a freight train was pulling out of the station a switch broke, opening the track between the wheels of the truck on one of the forward cars, throwing it from the rails and crowding the car up against the side of the bridge, which, being covered, prevented the rolling stock from falling into the river with all on board. The train hands escaped without injury. No guard rails are used on this bridge.

Suit for Trial.

LONDON, Feb. 9th.—George Franklin Anderson, described as an American Judge, hailing from Detroit, Mich., was yesterday committed for trial on a charge of having swindled Chas. Deakin of Susquehanna, Pa., out of large sums of money. In the hearing yesterday Mr. Deakin's son testified that Anderson's wife offered $6,000 as a bribe to the plaintiff to withdraw the charge against him.

Sudden Death.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 9.—F. Friend, of J. Friend Bros., dealers in hides at 127 Michigan street, Chicago, dropped dead yesterday evening in a drug store, whither he had gone to get some medicine. His last expressions were those of sorrow that he had to die away from his wife and children. The doctor pronounced it a case of appoplexy of the heart.

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of congress for the week ending February 11:

SENATE.

The Railway Attorney bill passed in a modified form by a vote of yeas 32, nays 14. The following is the text of the bill. That it shall be unlawful for any member of either house to accept employment as attorney-at-law or payment for services of any kind in opposition to the United States in any case to which the United States may be a party, or in which the interests may be concerned, or from any railroad company, if such member shall have reasonable cause to believe that measures specially affecting the interests of such company are pending before congress, or are about to be so pending during his term of office. Any person who violates the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be punished by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding $500, or by both, in the discretion of the court.

Among the papers submitted to the senate was a communication from the secretary of the navy with a report of Lieut. Eli Taunt, U. S. N., of his six months journey on the Congo river, together with articles, ornaments, and coins collected by him. The house bill to authorize the construction of a high wagon and foot passenger bridge over the Mississippi river between East Dubuque, Ill. and Dubuque, Iowa was taken up and passed. The conference report on the bill for a public building at Chattanooga, Tenn., was presented and agreed to. A resolution to discharge the committee on territories from further consideration of the house-bill to change the time of the meeting of the legislative assembly of Washington territory was offered. Sixty-six pension bills were passed, among them a bill increasing the pension of the widow of Major Gen. Hunter to $50 a month, and one increasing the pension of the widow of Col. Loren Burritt to $100. The senate then proceeded to consideration of the Indian appropriation bill which contains fifty-two printed pages and was passed without a word of discussion. A motion to proceed to the consideration of the bill to reimburse the depositors of the Freedmen's Savings and Trust company, was not agreed to.

Twenty bills were passed by the Senate on Monday. Among them: to amend the acts to prohibit the importation and immigration of foreigners and in relation to the immediate transportation of dutiable goods and to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Tradewater river. The bill appropriating $21,000,000 for ordnance and coast fortifications was adopted without debate, following which the Eads Tehuantepec bill was taken up and Mr. Morgan spoke in favor of it.

A memorial from New Lexington, Ohio, asking the initiation of negotiations for the acquisition of Canada was referred to the foreign relations committee. Several house bills were placed on the calendar, among others one authorizing the Secretary of War to credit Dakota with certain sums for ordnance and stores issued by that territory. A joint resolution was introduced by Mr. Morrill for the preservation of all official correspondence, documents and historical material at the various foreign legations and consulates. Bills were introduced to create a port of entry at Port Angelos; for the purchase of a picture of Andrew Jackson, and to authorize the construction of a bridge over the Missouri river at Lexington, Mo.

The Senate was the scene of unusual interest, as the day was spent mainly by members in delivering eulogies on the lamented Senator Logan. Addresses were delivered by Senators Cullom, Cockrell, Spooner, Evarts, Allison, Hampton, Morgan, Edmunds, Manderson, Plumb, Palmer, Sabin and Farwell.

A resolution from the House of the General Assembly of Indiana protesting against the validity of the election of D. S. Turpie as U. S. Senator, was presented [illegible] House of Representatives with a [illegible] Chinese indemnity bill; agreed to. In consequence of a disagreement of the conference committee on the timber and desert land bill, a new conference was ordered. [illegible] for the purchase of Ericsson's "Destroyer" was referred to committee on appropriations. Bills for the division of Illinois into judicial districts; for bridges over the Mississippi river at Grand Tower, over the Sunflower Yazoo and Tombigbee in Mississippi and the Coosa in Alabama and to provide for [illegible] United States were placed on the calendar; the bill for the appropriation of $100,000 to build a branch home for disabled volunteers west of the Rocky Mountains was changed to $150,000.

HOUSE.

The speaker laid before the House a message from the president returning without his approval a bill granting a pension to Alexander Falconer. Also a message from the president returning without his approval a bill granting a pension to William Lynch. The messages were referred to the committee on pensions. Thirty pension bills were passed.

The speaker laid before the house the senate bill for the refund of direct taxes. It was referred to the committee on the judiciary. The resolutions of the Pennsylvania legislature in favor of the Miller pleuro pneumonia bill and the bill for the establishment of agricultural experiment stations was referred. The bill for the payment of what are known as the "Fourth of July claims," after some discussion, was passed. It appropriates about $180,000.

A motion was passed for holding terms of the United States Court at Duluth, Minn. Under the call of states a large number of bills were introduced and referred. Under a suspension of the rules bills to abolish terms of U. S. Court at St. Joseph, Hannibal and Springfield, Mo.; granting the right of way through the Indian Territory to the Chicago, Kansas & Nebraska Railway and to appropriate $125,000 for the completion of public buildings at Detroit, Mich., were passed.

The Senate bills for the erection of a public building at Houston, Texas and granting certain seal rocks to San Francisco were passed. Bills for the issue of subsidiary coin; fixing the salaries of the civil service commissioners at $5,000 per annum were referred. The bill for the protection of American cables was passed, when the bill for the purpose of promoting arbitration and encouraging reciprocal relations with Mexico and South American countries, was taken up and considered. Resolutions in memory of representatives Beach, Arnold and Dowdney were considered.

The Speaker laid before the House the Senate bill to encourage the manufacture of steel for modern naval ordinance and other naval purposes and to provide heavy ordnance adapted to modern naval warfare. Unanimous consent was asked for its immediate consideration but objection was made. Then a motion to make it the special order on Monday was objected to, and it was referred to the committee on Appropriations. In the afternoon public business was suspended and the House considered resolutions in memory of Hon. W. T. Price of Wisconsin, deceased.

Wednesday, the 16th inst., was set apart for delivering eulogies on the life of Senator Logan. The Senate bill limiting the cost of a public building at Denver, Col., to $575,000 was passed as was the Senate bill appropriating $50,000 for a public building at Lafayette, Ind. A bill granting the right of way across the Fort Douglas Reservation to the Salt Lake & Ft. Douglas R. R. was adopted. A bill reported in reference to the title of the Lake Front at Chicago was placed on the calendar.

The Disastrous Floods.

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 8.—Forty-eight hours of continuous rain in this section is causing serious damage to property. Early yesterday morning the rain poured down in torrents for several hours, accompanied by the most violent thunderclaps and frequent lightning. The railroad bridges across Spring and Hickory creeks are swept away, and along the valleys of those streams, which are spreading far over their banks, the people are moving out to safe quarters. The rain is still pouring down and a serious flood is threatening. Traffic on the Santa Fe road along the Desplaines river is suspended, and extensive general damage will result unless the rain and thaw ceases within the next six hours and a freezing temperature sets in.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 8.—The river is falling at the rate of half an inch an hour, and the danger of a repetition of the disastrous floods of 1883 and 1884 is considered past.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 8.—The river continues to recede gradually. The weather is cloudy.

Millions for Defense, etc.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—The action by the Senate yesterday in adopting the twin bill appropriating $21,000,000 for coast defenses is loudly commended, and if the House will take as prompt action, it will not be long before an army of mechanics and artisans will be at work preparing for any contingency in the future.

The following nominations were confirmed by the senate: Consuls—E. J. Smith, at Tien-Tsin; S. A. Pratt, at Zanzibar; I. H. Diller of Chicago, at Florence. Associate Justices—W. G. Langford, Washington Territory; J. Spencer of New York, Dakota.

George H. Pendleton, United States Minister to Germany, visited the senate chamber yesterday afternoon, and was warmly greeted by many of the senators.

Compelled to Walk.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 8.—The employes of the South Boston horse railroad, at a meeting which lasted until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, voted unanimously to "tie up" the road, and in pursuance of this vote no cars were taken out yesterday morning. This is one of the largest horse railways in the city. The men are opposed to the present superintendent and want ten hour's work during a twelve hour day.

Terrible Death.

LEBANON, Pa., Feb. 8.—Yesterday morning near Lebanon Valley furnace, an iron tank on a truck filled with red hot cinders collided with another car and the hot metal was thrown over the bodies of Peter Reddinger, aged 45 years, and Henry Kurtz, aged 38 years. Reddinger died soon after the accident and Kurtz died shortly after.

Sent to Joliet.

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 8.—Two Hungarian coal miners, Chas. Grokofskey and John Leicher, from Pontiac, were received at the prison yesterday afternoon waylaying and murdering a fellow miner at Coal City, named Gibolt, during a strike there last fall, because he would not quit work. They have been sentenced to long terms.

Foresters at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ill., Feb. 8.—The ninth annual session of the high court Independent Order of Foresters will hold a four-day's session here this week. One hundred delegates arrived from Chicago last night and were publicly welcomed by Mayor Allen.

THE MARKETS.

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice to Prime..	5.00	@	5.40
Good Shipping...	4.40		4.95
Common.........	3.90		4.10
HOGS—Shipping Grades....	4.50		5.10
FLOUR—Extra Spring......	4.25		4.60
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring......	77¼		77⅞
CORN—No. 2...........	35¼		35⅞
OATS—No. 2...........	25½		27
BUTTER—Choice Creamery..	27		28
Fine Dairy......	19½		21
CHEESE—Full Cream Ched'r	12½		13
Full Cream, new....			13½
EGGS—Fresh............	20		16
POTATOES—New, per bu.....	10		55
PORK—mess..............	12.45		12.50

NEW YORK.

BEEVES..................	$4.35	@	5.85
HOGS...................	4.40	@	4.80
WHEAT—No. 1. White......	93		94
No. 2 Red........	91	@	19⅞
CORN—No. 2.............	47¾	@	47⅞
OATS—White..............	38		42
PORK—New mess..........	12.50		12.75

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red.........	81	@	82¼
CORN—mixed............	34½		34⅞
OATS—mixed............	27¼		27½
PORK—New mess..........			12.75

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red.........	84	@	84½
CORN—No. 2.............	37¾
OATS—No. 2.............	30		30¼
PORK—mess..............	12.45		12.85
HOGS...................	4.75		5.15

GRAND ARMY ITEMS.

A short time ago Champaign Post, No. 129, Department of Illinois, petitioned the department commander for a change of name to Black Eagle Post. On Jan. 26 the Post Commander, Isaac B. Smith, received a letter from Department Commander Post granting the petition, and it will hereafter be known as Black Eagle Post. It is located at Urbana, Ill., and has a large membership.

The rumor that Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, auxiliary to the post of Aurora, Ill., had disbanded, or intended to disband, is authoritatively denied by Mrs. Sine, late Department Councilor. She personally visited the corps this week, and reports it in a flourishing condition. The "Veteran's Corner" did not give publication to the rumor, and it was deemed extremely impossible that such a prominent and effective organization would see any cause for disbanding. The story was floated by some one who has taken a pique against the corps, probably without any sufficient cause.

POST DIRECTORY.

The following is a complete directory of the Grand Army posts in Chicago and Cook County, and their meeting nights in each month.

No. 5, George H. Thomas, Post, No. 167 East Washington street, second and fourth Tuesdays.

No. 7, Whittier Post, No. 167 East Washington street, first and third Wednesdays.

No. 9, Lyons Post, No. 167 East Washington street, first and third Thursdays.

No. 28, U. S. Grant Post, No. 167 East Washington street, second and fourth Tuesdays.

No. 40, George A. Custer Post, corner of Lake and Lasalle streets, first and third Tuesdays.

No. 59, John Brown Post, No. 328 South Clark street, first and third Thursdays.

No. 91, Abraham Lincoln Post, corner of Thirty-first street and Indiana avenue, first and third Thursdays.

No. 109, Ambrose E. Burnside Post, South Chicago, second and fourth Tuesdays.

No. 276, Judson C. Kilpatrick Post, Austin, first and third Tuesdays.

No. 306, James A. Mulligan Post, No. 167, East Washington street, second and fourth Thursdays.

No. 378, Blenker Post, No. 2100 Archer avenue, second and fourth Thursdays.

No. 425, Godfrey Weitzel Post, No. 679 West Lake street, second and fourth Wednesdays.

No. 444, George A. Meade Post, Englewood, second and fourth Thursdays.

No. 445, Jefferson Post, Maplewood, first and third Wednesdays.

No. 463, Blue Island Post, Blue Island, second and fourth Thursdays.

No. 467, I. H. Drury Post, Grand Crossing, first Tuesday.

No. 519, Gamble Post, Evanston, first Thursday.

No. 555, Silas Casey Post, Brighton Park, second and fourth Mondays.

No. 560, Winfield S. Hancock Post, Larrabee and Wisconsin streets, second and fourth Tuesdays.

No. 578, Washington Post, corner of Diversey street and Jefferson avenue, second and fourth Fridays.

No. 602, Farragut Post, No. 385 South Western avenue, second and fourth Mondays.

LOGAN HALL OF SCIENCE.

U. S. Grant post, No. 28, G. A. R., at its last meeting took the initial step toward establishing in the Grant Memorial university of Athens, Tenn. "The John A. Logan Hall Science." The following paper was presented and enthusiastically indorsed by every member of the post:

Whereas, U. S. Grant post No. 28, department of Illinois, G. A. R., holding in high esteem the name and splendid character of their recently deceased comrade, Gen. John A. Logan, and knowing of his intimate relationship with Gen. Grant while living both on the field of battle and in the halls of peace; and

Whereas, Gen. Logan's war record as fully represents the bravery and military skill of the volunteer soldiers as Gen. Grant's represents that of the regular army; therefore,

Resolved, That this post recommend the changing the name of the contemplated Grand Army hall in the Grant University to that of "John A. Logan Hall of Science," and thus forever associate the names of these sons of freedom in the university now established in the central south.

Resolved, That we further recommend to the comrades of this department and elsewhere to extend the helping hand in the upbuilding of this fitting memorial to our departed comrade.

Grant Memorial university is located amid the mountains of east Tennessee, and was founded in 1867. For the establishment of the school in the midst of the poverty and desolation made by the war, Gen. Grant made the first donation. In view of this fact, and because his friends—the families of more than seventy thousand union soldiers in the central south—desired to perpetuate his memory, this living monument to his name is being enlarged and strengthened. During the last twenty years over three thousand students have been matriculated, and over one thousand teachers have been trained in its halls. No institution in all the south has done more in the last two decades for the uplifting and education of the middle class of whites than Grant university.

It has now an enrollment of nearly three hundred students and a scholar ship gymnasium of six seminaries, with an annual enrollment of at least six hundred preparatory students. No human instrumentality will do so much toward harmonizing the discordant elements in the south, or go so far toward brushing out the very place where Mason and Dixon's line used to be, as a liberal education furnished to the illiterate white masses of that section or our common country. Rev. Dr. J. F. Spence, president of Grant university, is now visiting the city in the interest of the Logan Hall of Science. His address is No. 57 Washington street, Chicago, where he will be pleased to welcome all who are interested in the university.

— Fred W. Long, of Chicago, was elected President of the State Labor Association at Springfield.

Society's Free-Lunchery.

I am starving, ladies, starving!
I have come to this at last,
And the empty, sounding hollows
Are growing in me fast.
Let thy lord, O [illegible] me,
Let thy banquets [illegible],
[illegible] me to my station,
And my hungry soul [illegible].

Should the base plebeian rabble
Dare as at [illegible] feed and wine,
Bring to [illegible] and [illegible] them
Who usurp the place that's mine.
I am [illegible],
I'm above the common herd,
But, all the same, I'm hungry
Give me fish, and flesh, and bird.

And for thee, free lunch donators,
Recognizers of my need,
Light my path through styx and darkness
With the splendor of thy feed.
Give to others thrones and kingdoms,
Let their brows the laurel twine,
I can scorn all meaner triumphs,
Thus on [illegible] in feed like Offine.

—Washington Critic.

THE END OF A JOURNEY.

The Houghton landau drew up at the station and Louise alighted with her friend, Sybil Travers. The latter young lady, clad in a gray Mother Hubbard, and wearing a pretty poke bonnet piled high with ostrich feathers, was the very picture of elegance. Louise was a little insignificant thing, and she appeared less attractive then ever as she made her way to the waiting room alongside of her distinguished looking friend.

"It is too absurd, Sybil," she said as they sat together in a remote corner enjoying a last confidential chat before Miss Travers left for the West. "The idea of your posting off to San Francisco all alone, simply because a harmless youth promises to come this way, and to act as your escort!"

"It is only three weeks earlier than I meant to go anyhow," said Sybil, stoutly. "You know why I prefer to go alone, Louise. You see Uncle Jerry has made up his mind that propinquity is the only thing necessary to make Mr. Valleau and myself fall madly in love with each other. He fancies that a trip across the continent is especially well calculated to bring about that much-desired result. But I don't see it that way. I know very well that I should hate Mr. Valleau from the outset. I should feel bound to do it just for contrariety. So, you see, I prefer to go home a few weeks earlier, and to go alone; for if I did wait for Mr. Valleau, as Uncle Jerry wished me to, and if I failed to fall in love with him, you know very well that it would be impossible for me to explain the phenomenon satisfactorily. As it is, I can smooth matters over easily."

"How far-sighted you are, Sybil," Louise said, laughing. "Mr. Valleau will be terribly disappointed though, I fear. But there's your train, dear. Good by. Write to me as soon as you arrive."

Then followed considerable girlish demonstration, which provoked a smile on the lips of a nonchalant young traveler who reclined at his ease before one of the windows of a parlor car, and who had been watching Louise and Sybil with interest.

"A very handsome girl, by Jove!" was the mental comment as Sybil took her seat just behind him, and the mirror at the end of the car enabled him to command a full view of her face. "I wonder how far she is going."

There was no means of ascertaining just then, but when the conductor came through the car and the young man presented his ticket, to which was attached a long string of coupons running all the way from New York to San Francisco, he noted with satisfaction that Sybil had one like it.

"A through passenger," he observed. "I wonder who she is? Traveling alone, too; but evidently a lady. She must be a Californian, but she looks like a New Yorker," etc.

The young man's fancy ran riot, and all the while he kept his eyes fixed on the mirror in which was reflected Sybil's lovely face, with its rich, warm coloring and its beautiful frame of rippling hair. Very often their eyes met, as was only natural; but Sybil had wonderful composure for so young a girl, and the look of serenity she continued to wear rather chagrined the handsome stranger, who had entertained a hope, innocent enough in its nature, that the long ride over the plains might be enlivened with piquant flirtation.

"Pallas Athene," he said, regretfully. "Beautiful, but insusceptible of a passion that is not animated by reason."

Such a conclusion might have been rather hasty, but it appears that this aggressive young man in an ulster and traveling cap made some pretense toward being a reader of character.

Meanwhile Sybil, constitutionally opposed to "ogling," as all sensible, womanly girls are, formed a pretty severe opinion of the stranger who took such a mean advantage of the power of reflection. But she scorned to change her seat. Her policy was one of complete oblivion, and, settling herself comfortably, she soon forgot all about the handsome pair of brown eyes so deliberately fixed on the tell-tale mirror.

The other passengers were pretty well acquainted by the time they reached Chicago, but Sybil, naturally reserved, and becoming more so through the protective instinct which prompted her to make few friends when traveling alone, had not joined the little coterie which soon establishes itself in every westward-bound train. Her neighbor had been baffled in several attempts to make her acquaintance, but difficulty only fired his determination.

"She's something new in the feminine line, by Jove she is!" he remarked, when one of his deep-est-laid schemes had been overthrown by Sybil's courteous but unapproachable dignity.

It appears that this handsome stranger had been a "lady's man for many a day." He was of a peculiar temperament. When he made up his mind to anything he usually accomplished it, and in accomplishing it was quite willing to relinquish all subordinate interests. He, too, held himself aloof from his fellow-passengers, and so it was that when they reached Council Bluffs not a soul was on board the train who could have told who the lady and gentleman were that traveled alone and were so very exclusive.

Any one who has made a transcontinental trip will appreciate the desire to take a turn on terra firma that seized Sybil's peculiar vis-a-vis when he reached Council Bluffs. He was a lithe, athletic fellow, and during the hour and a half that the train halted he made a pedestrian tour into the surrounding country. Unfortunately, he prolonged his walk beyond a desirable limit, and when he reached the station again the train had already begun to move slowly. Many a time he had boarded the train when it was going much more rapidly, and, with a moment's hesitation, he ran for the rear platform of his car, making a spring and catching at the iron railing.

As often happens, he had not calculated on the full speed of the train. He missed the step and fell backward, striking his head on the platform and only escaping a terrible fracture by the presence of a pile of empty mail bags, which broke his fall.

The train stopped and the injured man was taken aboard. He was wholly insensible, and the blood gushed freely from the wound in his head. A skillful surgeon who happened to be among the passengers was summoned at once, and, having seen the young man made comfortable in a sleeping car he examined the contusion.

"Will some one please help me with these bandages?" the doctor asked. "No, thanks," he added as a gentleman offered his services. "A lady, please."

He glanced around the car and his eyes fell on Sybil's calm face, on the slim white hands that looked so deft and agile, and he noted the composure with which she bore herself, while the rest of the ladies were nearly all in a semi-hysterical state.

"Will you hold these bandages, miss?" he asked kindly. "Do you understand how to do it?"

"O, yes, sir," said she promptly. "My father was a doctor. I am used to such work."

The wound was shortly dressed, but it was a whole day before the young stranger awoke from the stupor occasioned by his fall, and then it was only to pass into a state of delirium.

"Do you know who he is?" the doctor asked Sybil, who had been installed by common consent as the sick man's nurse.

"This dropped out of his pocket," she replied, handing him a business-card. "I think that is his name, as his baggage is marked with those initials."

The doctor read: "Robert Vincent & Co., commission merchants, New York."

"He had a narrow escape," he observed, handing the card back to Sybil. "A little more force would have crushed his skull like a nutshell."

A new interest suddenly awakened for Sybil.

"I wonder what Louise will say when she learns that I have been playing nurse?" she pondered the day after the assumption of her new duties. "Poor fellow! I'm sorry for him."

"At Cheyenne, happily for the sick man, the train was delayed two days by a landslide. During the interval of quiet and rest the doctor succeeded in breaking his fever, and on the fourth day after the accident Mr. Vincent opened his eyes in weak astonishment as his returning consciousness discerned in his faithful attendant the handsome young lady with whom he had tried so assiduously to flirt.

He felt too weak from the shock and from the loss of blood to ask any questions, but Sybil divined his wonder, and she explained to him the details of his accident, with a gentle grace as charming as her former reserve had been admirable.

Nothing could have been prettier than Sybil's devotion to the unfortunate stranger, and the other passengers seemed to appreciate it, for they held aloof and were content with being merely spectators. She waited on him with persevering devotion. It was Sybil's way to do that. She read to him, or, when he wished it, talked to him. The presence of an invalid seemed to infuse a home feeling into the life aboard the train, and when the week's journey was protracted by various obstacles to ten days no one complained.

Before they reached San Francisco Mr. Vincent was able to sit up. It would take some time for the wound to heal, but he had recovered pretty well from the shock. In the opinion of some of the passengers he was not altogether anxious for immediate convalescence, which was hardly to be wondered at; and really I think Sybil felt a twinge of regret as she sat the last evening beside Mr. Vincent's couch and listened to a party of gentlemen warbling a Swiss air out on the front platform. It was twilight, and the porter had not yet come in to light the lamps.

"Don't you think, Miss Sybil," Mr. Vincent said in a low voice, "that some acquaintances ripen very much faster than others? I feel as though I had known you for years, yet I cannot tell what your last name is. The doctor calls you just Miss Sybil."

"I thought you knew," she said, simply ignoring the first question, which had sent a strange thrill to her heart. "My name is Travers."

"What?" he almost shouted. "What did you say?"

"Travers," she repeated, looking at him surprised.

He sank back on the cushions, helplessly, and, turning his face toward her, he murmured: "Kismet!"

"Do you know," he continued, after a pause which Sybil felt to be pregnant with meaning, "do you know we have been as badly mixed up as to our identities as the people in a play. I had no idea you were Miss Travers. Your Uncle Jerry ——"

"Do you know my Uncle Jerry?" she cried, in surprise.

"I ought to," he replied, with an odd smile. "I am—Sybil, do you ever forgive people who practice little deceits upon you?"

The familiar manner of this address did not offend her, strange to say.

"That depends," she said softly.

"What would you say if I were to tell you that my name wasn't Vincent at all?"

He had contrived to get hold of her hand, and he felt it flutter slightly, but she made no response.

"I do not know what led you to believe that my name was Vincent. At first I could not correct the impression, and, when I was able, I didn't care to, for I was so pleased with our relation that I feared to do anything that might jar upon it. It is all the worse for me now, for I fear this deceit may have prejudiced you. I am your uncle's friend, Sybil. I am Royal Valleau."

It was her turn to start in astonishment. She snatched her hand away from him, but he secured it again.

"Don't!" he pleaded in a low tone. "Forgive me! You have made me love you and you must not be so cruel. You will at least forget that I have deceived you at all?"

Sybil gave no spoken reply, but her hand was still clasped in his, and when the porter lit the lamps [illegible] led him to carry it to his lips.

This story was detailed in letter to Miss Louise Houghton the following week, with the appended comments.

"And just think of it, Louise! I have actually engaged myself to him. I meant to hate him so, too! Uncle Jerry is delighted, of course. For myself, I can only say that I am perfectly happy, and leave the rest to your imagination. Wasn't it funny, though? He left New York three weeks before he had intended to, because he didn't want to be bothered with looking after me; and I ran away from him in the same unceremonious style. Yet we both got on the same train after all. It is quite like a romance, isn't it, dear? But I must close, as Roy is begging me to hurry and finish. I will write you more again. Your loving friend, SYBIL."

Rawlins To Grant.

A Washington correspondent of The New York Sun writes: The following letter was written to Gen. Grant when he was in command before Vicksburg, by Gen. John A. Rawlins, his chief of staff, and delivered by the latter to Gen. Grant upon the day of its date:

[Copy.]

"BEFORE VICKSBURG, Miss., June 6, 1863, 1 o'clock A. M. DEAR GENERAL: The great solicitude I feel for the safety of this army leads me to mention what I had hoped never again to do—the subject of your drinking. This may surprise you, for I may be (and I trust I am) doing you an injustice by unfounded suspicions, but if an error it better be on the side of his country's safety than in fear of offending a friend. I have heard that Dr. McMillan, at Gen. Sherman's a few days ago, induced you, notwithstanding your pledge to me, to take a glass of wine; and to-day when I found a box of wine in front of your tent and proposed to move it, which I did, I was told you had forbid its being taken away, for you intended to keep it until you entered Vicksburg, that you might have it for your friends; and to-night, when you should, because of the condition of your health, if nothing else, have been in bed, I find you where the wine bottle has just been emptied in company with those who drink and urge you to do likewise, and the lack of your usual promptness of decision and clearness in expressing yourself in writing, tended to confirm my suspicions.

"You have the full control over your appetite and can let drinking alone. Had you not pledged me the sincerity of your honor early last March that you would not drink any more during the war, and kept that pledge during your recent campaign, you would not to-day have stood first in the world's history as a successful military leader. Your only salvation depends upon your strict adherence to that pledge. You can not succeed in any other way. As I have before stated, I may be wrong in my suspicions, but if one sees that which leads him to suppose a sentinel is falling asleep on his post it is his duty to arouse him, and if one sees that which leads him to fear the general commanding a great army is being seduced to that step which he knows will bring disgrace upon that general, and defeat to his command, if he fails to sound the proper note of warning, the friends, wives and children of those brave men whose lives he permits to remain thus imperiled will accuse him while he lives, and stand swift witnesses of wrath against him in the day when all shall be tried. If my suspicions are unfounded, let my friendship for you and my zeal for my country be my excuse for this letter; and if they are correctly founded, and you determine not to heed the admonitions and the prayers of this hasty note by immediately ceasing to touch a single drop of any kind of liquor, no matter by whom asked or under what circumstances, let my immediate relief from duty in this department be the result.

I am, general, your friend,

"JOHN A. RAWLINS."

The retained copy of this letter was indorsed by Gen. Rawlins as follows:

"This is an exact copy of a letter given to the person to whom it is addressed at its date, about four miles from our headquarters in the rear of Vicksburg. Its admonitions were heeded and all went well.

JOHN A. RAWLINS."

After Fifteen Years.

A remarkably strange and interesting case has just been dismissed from the Missouri Supreme Court. The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York having become convinced of the justice of Mrs. William Wackerle's claim has dismissed its appeal to the Supreme Court, and has paid to her the sum of $8,000. This noted case has been awaiting settlement for fifteen years. In 1872 Mrs. Wackerle's husband died and was buried in Shreveport, La. An insurance policy on his life was held in the above company, and to prove the deceased's identity Mrs. Wackerle went to Shreveport and had the body examined. She then presented her claim to the company, which refused payment, giving as its reason for so doing that Mr. Wackerle still lived. In support of this refusal, when the case came to trial, a witness was introduced who swore that he was the plaintiff's husband. This testimony, however, was discredited and the jury decided the case in favor of Mrs. Wackerle. The Insurance Company then took the case to the Appellate Court, where the decision was affirmed. An appeal was then taken to the Supreme Court, where the case has ever since been pending. The action of this company will make it possible for Mrs. Wackerle to collect the amounts of the policies in other companies which refused payment on the same ground that the New York company did. Mrs. Wackerle has been living in poverty all these years, but will now be made comparatively wealthy by payment of her claims, which in all amount to about $25,000.

How He Knew It.

Circumstantial evidence: "Uncle Ben, how can you tell that your hands are dirty, they're so black, you know?" "Hel he! wot a chile you is! Yo' see, honey, de water gets riley."—Harper's Bazar.

WASHINGTON AT TRENTON.

The Footsteps in the Snow.

On the night dark and dreary of the 25th of December, 1776, in an ancient log house yet to be seen on the shores of the Delaware, sat an old man, his wife and children around the broad hearth in the full glow of flame, which brightened the snowy locks of the father, the mild face of the mother, and the young blonde of the fair daughters.

As the old man, his wife and daughters cluster around their fire, tell me, why does the old man's head droop slowly down, his eyes fill and his hands tremble?

Ah, there is one absent from this bright hearthstone.

He is thinking of this absent one—his manly brave boy who has been gone from the farm-house a year.

But hark! even as the thought comes over him, the silence is broken by a faint moan—a faint cry heard over the wastes of snow without.

The old man grasps his lantern, and with a daughter by his side, goes out upon the dark night.

Look, as following the sound of that moan, how the lantern flashes over their forms—over a few white paces in the snow, while all beyond is darkness.

Still that moan so low and faint, quivers on the air.

Something arrests the old man's sight; he bends down, and there painted in snow, painted in blood, is a human foot-step.

"My child," whispers the old man, "go pray for Washington. From this bloody footstep. I judge that his army is passing near."

Still that moan quivers on the air.

Then the old man and the young girl, following these footsteps, go on until they reach that rock leaning over the river shore.

There the lantern flashes over the form of a half naked man, crouching down in the snow—freezing and bleeding to death.

The old man looks upon that form, clad in the ragged uniform of the Continental army, the stiffened fingers grasping a battered musket.

It was his only son.

He called to him—the young girl, knelt and warmed his frozen fingers with her hot tears. Suddenly the brother raised his head, and extended his hand towards the river. "Look there, father," he said, in a husky voice.

And looking down the old man looked far over the river, and there, under a dark sky was a fleet of boats tossing amid piles of floating ice. They bore men and arms and extended in irregular lines from shore to shore; and the last boat of the fleet, just leaving the western shore of the Delaware, contained a tall form, half muffled in a warrior's cloak, with a grey war-horse by his side.

The old man turned to the dying son to ask the meaning of the mystery.

"Father!" gasped the brave boy. "Give me—give me—my musket—help me—for to-night—the—British—Washington—Trenton—"

And with that word "Trenton" on his lips, he died.

The old man did not know the meaning of that word till next morning. Then there was a sound of musketry to the south: then booming along the Delaware came the roar of battle. Then the old man and his family knew that George Washington had burst like a thunderbolt upon the British Camp at Trenton.

Would that I could linger here and picture the great deeds of that morning—linger here upon the holy ground of Trenton. For it is holy ground. It was here in the darkest hour of the Revolution that George Washington whose memory is kept green on each 22d day of February, made one stout and gallant blow in the name of the Immortal Declaration of Independence.

The first gleam of the morning shone over the form of the immortal Washington standing beside the couch of the dying Hessian leader, Rahl, placing a cup of water to his parched lips, and the same gleam shone over the forms of father, mother and sisters, clustered around the dead body of the only son.

He was clad in rags, his face was cold and wet with a sister's tears, but his soul had gone to join the martyrs of Trenton and Bunker Hill.

How Tea is Grown.

Minister Denby in the Indianapolis Sentinel: The China tree is principally grown in the provinces of Fokien, Kiang-nan, the Kiang and Kiang sy. It grows on the hill on a small evergreen shrub. Locality has something to do with the value. I saw tea worth $10 a pound. It was grown in a particular district. The season in which the tea is gathered affects its value. The young leaves gathered in the spring are of finer flavor than the full-grown leaves of summer. The tea districts are divided into small farms. The farmers gather the leaves, dry them in the sun just enough to prevent their being spoiled, and sell them to the Hong merchants.

There is no distinctive green or black tea. The two teas come from the same plant. The color depends entirely upon manipulation. Young plants for both varieties are raised from seeds. The seeds are gathered in October, and during the winter are mixed with earth and sand. In the spring they were sown. In a year they are transplanted. They are then placed in rows about four feet apart. Five or six plants are placed in each hole, and the holes are about four feet apart. The plantation looks like a shrubbery of evergreens. They are not molested in three years. They the leaves are gathered and spread out on small bamboo trays, in order to get rid of moisture. After two hours' drying the leaves are thrown into roasting pans, and are rapidly moved about five minutes, and then placed on the rolling-table. The leaves are distributed among men who roll them in their hands. They are rolled in balls and the moisture is expelled. The leaves are then shaken on flat trays and are again subjected to the roasting process. They are well dried, and in an hour and a half their color is fixed. After that the tea is winnowed and passed through various sieves in order to get rid of impurities and to divide it into the several teas of commerce.

In the transportation to the shipping point the finest tea must never touch the soil. It is carried in single chests, while the ordinary tea is carried in chests of sixty pounds each on the end of a bamboo pole.

The green tea so much liked by ladies at home seems to owe its origin to coloring matter. Salts of copper and gypsum seem to be responsible for the bright green color. The Chinese do not use this colored tea. I am not an expert on tea. My fancy at home was for green tea. But one soon acquires Chinese habits. A Chinaman never drinks water. He drinks enormous quantities of tea. He never uses milk or sugar. A Chinaman at a tavern on a visit, receiving a visitor, drinks tea. He drinks tea the last thing before dinner and the first thing after dinner. The official visit commences with tea in small cups with covers to them. The little cup is covered with a small saucer and, removing it, one sees the leaves on which boiling water has been poured. When the visit is properly over the most distinguished person present takes up his cup, takes a sip, and departs.

The Chinese affect water taken from a running stream and boiled over a lively fire. Spring water is the best, river water next, and well water worst. The water should not be too hastily boiled. Tea cools, they say, or cheers the animal spirits. The Chinese think it tends to clear away impurities, prevents headache, and drives off drowsiness. At all events, foreigners rapidly adopt Chinese notions. The cup of tea is as regular an observance as dinner. After the nominal breakfast and the absurd tiffin with a hungry reach of eight hours to the 8 o'clock dinner—at 4 o'clock one relishes immensely the cakes and the bright, golden, sparkling cup of tea. I find also, that the habit of tea drinking insures temperance. Here in Peking the visitor is always offered tea. He rarely refuses. The cup of tea takes away the desire for whisky. Foreigners, generally, drink only at meal time, then, ordinarily, claret. If our temperance friends would abandon the impracticable and unconstitutional doctrine of prohibition and introduce the general use of tea their cause would be successful.

Where Josephine Died.

I went the other day to Malmaison, the old home of Napoleon and Josephine, and the quiet old-fashioned mansion in which Josephine died. I had not been there since 1867, at which time the Imperial government had organized a complete Napoleon museum in the old place. The library, where Napoleon had worked out his campaigns, the boudoirs, the salons, were all fitted with the furniture which had done duty in the early days of the first empire, and one would almost imagine, while strolling from room to room, that the Little Corporal would suddenly appear and in curt tones inquire to what the intrusion was due. The small bed-room in which Napoleon slept on an ordinary camp bedstead was filled with his old clothes and cocked hats, and his favorite books were thrown down as if they had just quitted the impatient imperial hand, which they sometimes did in a great hurry, as Napoleon would pitch a book even out of a travelling carriage if he happened to find anything which was not in harmony with his own notions. During his Austrian and Russian campaigns he had a light carriage fitted up with a compact library, and it is said that one of the duties of the aid-de-camp who followed this carriage was the rescuing from the mud of the war-worn roads of the time the books which Napoleon shied into the air when he disliked them.

Malmaison was dreadfully cut up during the Franco-German war, and to-day there is but little left of the old-fashioned country-house. Some of the rooms are so unsafe that visitors are requested not to venture on the shaky floors or under their ancient ceilings. The library is especially dilapidated. Not a book remains in it, and the concierge who shows visitors over the house dwells with a kind of [illegible] emphasis upon the mischief which the Prussian headquarters officers did during their long sojourn there. The beautiful park into which Napoleon used to pass from a little drawbridge rigged over almost directly from his private bedroom is being parceled out and sold to the rich landlords in the neighborhood. The magnificent alley of sycamore which leads to the chateau is now unkempt and somewhat desolate, and there is none of the [illegible] life or gayety at Malmaison, save when a joyous party of literati or painters penetrate the old domain in their capricious way to [illegible] for rowing or driving parties.

I went into the little room in which Josephine breathed her last. It was as desolate and forlorn as that of some old colonial mansion on the eastern coast of America. Life and thought had gone away. It seemed impossible to believe that in the suite of rooms adjoining were once assembled the most brilliant collection of French poets that has been known in the last two centuries.—Cor. Boston Journal.

"Woman" or "Lady."

Notes and Queries: Some few years ago I was reading a case, reported in the newspapers, in which a gentleman had knocked a cabman down because he had been impertinent to his wife, and it appeared from the evidence that the chief insult was addressed the lady by the cabman was that he called her a "woman." This led me to consider, not for the first time, why it was that "woman," applied as a mode of address to any female, is generally considered as an insult. I was reminded again the other day of this peculiar sensitiveness on part of the female sex by another case, reported in the newspapers, in which, speaking of a butcher, the reporter said, "the lady that Mr. [illegible] married was a laundress." Apart from the snobbish tendency to call every person who wears petticoats a lady there is a decided prejudice, almost universally entertained, against addressing any women whom we love and respect by what may be called her generic title. And it will be noted by any one who has taken the pains to make any careful observation of the subject that this prejudice is not only entertained against the use of the vocative case. For instance, none of us would think it derogatory to speak of our wives or mothers as being charming, clever, or beautiful "women." But none of us, unless in [illegible] speaking in anger or in strong rebuke, would address either his mother, his wife, or his sister as "Woman;" and strange to say, this prejudice does not seem to be of modern date.

FARM AND HOME.

[illegible]

[illegible] Wyandotte [illegible] average two [illegible] weight.

The tomato is a native of South America. It was introduced into Europe about 1583.

Horses enjoy the kind familiarity of their owners and drivers, and work more cheerfully with than without it.

Don't forget to attend the institute, dairy, and other winter meetings. The information you will obtain will be of great value, to say nothing of the many ideas which will be advanced [illegible] of comparative leisure.

In trimming a hedge something else should be considered as well as the matter of cutting off the extra growth. A proper shape should be given it. There is nothing so attractive or ornamental as a shapely, well kept hedge, and it adds value to the farm.

The value of barn manure is increased by the fact that in the process of decomposition it has a mechanical effect on the soil, and while it thus forms from itself plant food, no doubt it also changes substances in the soil to plant food.—Practical Farmer.

Our native vine, "bitter sweet," has become a favorite in the East, and is being quite extensively planted in gardens and door yards. It seems strange that it was not appreciated long ago, as it is far more beautiful than many of the ornamental vines for which high prices are paid.

The planter has to rely on the dealer's catalogue for descriptions of new varieties of fruits and vegetables. To a certain extent this is advertisable. Procure a limited lot of new varieties and test in your own soil under your peculiar method of cultivation. By this mode of procedure you make no costly mistakes.

A prominent farmer, writing to the State Board of Agriculture, says he has abundantly demonstrated the fact that hog cholera, now prevailing in many parts of this state, is frequently spread by crows carrying the flesh of hogs dying of the disease and dropping it where healthy hogs feed on it and eat it. He urges as a sanitary clause to the contagious diseases act compelling the immediate burning or burying of all hogs dying from this disease.

Practical tests have proved that where hen manure has been placed side by side with commercial fertilizers, it is worth about $1.17 per barrel, and that barn manure is worth $5 per cord, delivered on the land. But to be worth this, the hen manure must be kept under cover and free from foreign substances, and the barn manure must also be kept under cover, and must be made by cattle well fed. The value of any manure depends very much on the feed.

THE BEETLY.

Mr. J. T. Hill, of Red Fork, I. T., in describing the beetly and its effect on cattle says: "The beetly is an insect closely resembling the yellow horsefly in everything except color, the former insect being black. They sometimes appear in great swarms among the herds, and sting the cattle in the leg or heel, depositing their eggs under the skin. This would seem a small matter, but it sets the cattle perfectly wild, and it is impossible to hold a herd when this fly is about. They rush round as if mad under the intolerable torture, and I have seen them spring over a forty-foot bank in order to get into muddy water, which seems to be the only thing that can give them relief. They lose flesh rapidly when the fly is bad, and readily succumb to the slightest indisposition. This fly is a pest for which there seems to be no remedy."

THE VALUE OF HEN MANURE.

The question is often asked, "What is the commercial value of hen manure?" Farmers in their estimates of its value as applied to their crops differ in their opinion, at least one half, some believing it to be worth not less than seventy-five cents per barrel, while others are willing to give $1.50 a barrel for all they can get.

A table of the value of the different fertilizers, prepared by Jos. Harris and published in his "Talks on Manures," informs us that hen manure contains in each 1,000 pounds, 16.3 pounds of nitrogen, 8.5 of potash and 15.4 pounds of phosphoric acid.

Sheep manure, 8.3 nitrogen, 6.7 potash, 1.6 phosphoric acid. Horn manure, 4.5 nitrogen, 5.2 potash, 2.1 phosphoric acid. Peruvian guano, 130 pounds nitrogen, twenty three potash, 134 phosphoric acid. Thus at the market price of nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid, as found in these several fertilizers would make 1,000 pounds of hen manure worth $5.77; sheep manure, $1.44, barn manure, eighty one cents—Peruvian guano, $41.33. In coming to this result the different values of nitrogen and phosphoric acid, as found in different substances, was taken. For example, nitrogen, as found in Peruvian guano, is put down as worth twenty three cents a pound, while in barn manure it is but seventeen cents. Phosphoric acid as found in guano is put down as worth eight cents, while in barn manure it is but four cents.

It is evident enough that if we are to estimate the value of barn manure by the amount of nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid, as thus laid down, the Western people are not so far wrong as we have thought, when they have moved their barns instead of the manure, that the cattle might get in and out at the doors.

There is so much difference in manures that, unless we take the greatest care, comparisons are very misleading, so much so that the farmer will often be quite as near right when he falls back on his own judgment as formed by practice on his own farm.

CARE OF CALVES AND COLTS.

In order that last spring's calves and colts should go on grass in the spring, good feeding and shelter from now until that time is most important. Merely hay and corn are not adapted to either health, vigor or large growth. Something as oats, bran or a little oil meal should enter the ration, that the muscles, bones and nerves have material for growth. Foods that merely fatten are not sufficient for the whole ration. Should these young animals begin to look rough and poor, something is most certainly wrong, and the matter should have immediate attention. A backset now will not only give the animal less weight in the spring, but the build-up to maturity afterward will be several times the amount worth [illegible] the first year.

Calves or colts coming out in the spring rough, or poor, perhaps lousy and diseased, have much less power to make profits out of pasture grass than have the sleek, robust young things that have been well housed and fed during the winter. Profits can hardly be expected from the winter feeding of itself. The summer feeding on grass is the period when this is realized, and the necessary winter feeding should be so conducted as to give the young animals the size and vigor with which to manufacture large quantities of frame and flesh, out of the cheap pasture grass. When warm shelter and plenty of good fine hay is provided, there is no need of much corn being fed to these growing animals. A small, substantial ration of oats is as good feed as either colts or calves can have, though a little shelled or cracked corn mixed in will not be amiss, especially if the animal is exposed to cold during the day. A very good substitute for the oats can be made by mixing bran and corn meal in the proportion of one of corn to three of bran. Ground oil-cake may be used occasionally, and, if mixed in proper proportions with corn meal, a second substitute for oats is secured. Ground oil-cake is somewhat dangerous in the hands of inexperienced feeders, on account of its being such a condensed form of feed; and when mixed with corn meal the danger from over-feeding is not much lessened. Where the two can be mixed with finely cut straw or hay, and fed in tight mangers, the feeding can be left to hired men with less danger.—Prairie Farmer.

Don't

Don't read this if you expect to find the old stereotyped advice that is usually sprung on the unprotected public at the beginning of the year.

Don't go to bed with cold feet unless they have been pickled and taken inwardly. Even then the healthiest plan is to get a friend to take the pickled feet inwardly.

Don't lie on the left side too much—lie on the right side all you can, as it pays better. Be a mugwump.

Don't jump out of bed immediately on awakening in the morning unless you are a lunatic. No sane man ever jumped out of bed immediatly on awakening except, perhaps in a few isolated cases.

Don't forget to take a drink of pure water before breakfast. If you are very thirsty during the night you can get up and empty the water pitcher; it settles things after the last night's seance, reduces the size of the head, and, besides, makes one appear like a temperance advocate.

Don't take long walks on an empty stomach; if you want to take a stroll on a stomach at all try and find a full one, as it is softer. If you can find an empty stomach large enough you can take a ride upon it.

Don't start to do a day's work without eating a good breakfast. Be sure to chew the coffee properly. If you haven't got a good breakfast don't commence work until after dinner.

Don't eat between meals, but, if anybody invites you, it is healthier to take a drink. If you get hungry have the meals oftener.

Don't try to keep up on coffee when nature is calling you to bed; coffee is an uncomfortable thing to sleep on; a sack of flour or a quiet conscience would be better.

Don't stand over hot-air registers, it is tiresome. Unless the register is hot enough to be used as a branding-iron you might as well sit down on a register and be comfortable.

Don't strain your eyes reading on an empty stomach. If, however it is essential to your happiness to read on an empty stomach spread a copy of Texas Siftings over the vacant organ and read that.

Don't make a practice of relating scandal calculated to depress the spirits of the sick; only tell that kind of scandal that will raise a laugh. Get some back files of the English papers containing accounts of the Lady Campbell trial.

Don't forget to cheer and gently amuse invalids on visiting them; tickle them under the nose with a feather, dance a jig, sing a comic song, or do something that is light and convivial. If the invalid objects and tries to throw things at you, tie them down in the bed. Don't talk your sick friend to death. It is easier to fracture his skull with a paper weight; besides, you have no right to interfere with the prerogative of the doctor.

Don't worry yourself about other people's habits to the extent of making an ass of yourself. If you want to make yourself ridiculous write war articles for the magazine.—Siftings.

Something New in Telegraphy.

Inventive genius has brought out little recently in electricity, but it is whispered that one of the great telephone inventors has hit upon something in telegraphy which will go far beyond anything known in that line or in telephony. The invention, as described to me, is like a slate placed on a man's desk upon which a message may be written and by a simple touch of a button transferred to the central office and thence to destination in an exact fac simile. Messages can be delivered automatically without the presence of the persons to whom they are directed.—New York Tribune.

Young Mr. Fair, son of Senator Fair of Nevada, can be a [illegible] of the most expensive drunk on record when he tried to shoot ex-Representative Page of California because the latter refused to take a drink with him. Young Fair had been promised a cool $1,000,000 if he would go for a year without drinking and had scored up seven months of the allotted time, but the temptation to go on a tear that would cost a round million was too glittering for his little mind, and he fell.

George Westinghouse of Pittsburgh, Pa., patentee of the famous airbrake and many other valuable inventions, has manufacturing establishments in England, France and Germany and employs nearly 4,000 men. He is a native of Schenectady, N. Y., and a graduate of Cornell.

There is a newspaper in Dakota to every 1,200 population.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, FEB. 23, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

Northern Michigan.

A 240-pound Emmet county woman stole a 160-pound dressed hog and lugged it off, hiding the same in a snowdrift. But a 200-pound sheriff unearthed the theft, traced the thief and recovered the hog. About a 1,200-pound jury presided over by a 175-pound judge, and aired up pro and con by a 150-pound prosecutor and a 300-pound lawyer, will determine the iniquity there is in stealing an ordinary dead Emmet county hog.

Hello, Mancelona! How's the weather up among the mountains and clouds? How's railroad stock? Has Kalkaska made any more sneaks on you of late? Jump on an avalanche some day and slide down here. We'll use you well, show you where the D., C. & E. road will cross the G. R. & I., have a lot of fun with you and lend you a balloon to climb back with. Return the call, did you say? Excuse us please; we always get dizzy at high elevations like that.—Kalkaska Leader.

Kalkaska is really having a first-class boom. It has been a long time coming, but has been steadily predicted and confidently expected by those who understood its possibilities and patient waiting is now having its reward. Its population is increasing very fast, and dwelling houses are in great demand. Its show for another railroad is very promising, the proposed route being from Grayling, in Crawford county, via Kalkaska to Bellaire and Charlevoix. This route has an almost perfect grade, and opens up a section of country rich in valuable timber and farming lands. Without doubt Kalkaska has the best geographical position of any town on the G. R. & I. between Cadillac and Petoskey. Manufacturers are being attracted by its superior facilities for their operations, and the future prosperity of the town is assured. Glad to see it.—Fife Lake Comet.

Reed City Clarion: If you want your town to improve, improve it. Don't go to sleep, but get up and work for it. Push. Get in. Advertise it. Talk about it and talk favorably. If you have any property, improve it. Paint your house; clean up your back yard. Make your surroundings pleasant, and you will feel better, and your property will be worth more in the market. If you are doing reasonably well, advertise your far-away friends to come and invest near you. Work steadily for your home place and home interests. Trade at home and help your home dealers. Keep your money at home as much as possible, and it is likely to help you in return. Public improvement is an investment that pays. Don't waste your time over some dirty little neighborhood quarrel, and hold back your aid to some good object through spite, but work for the general good and you will find yourself benefited. Get at it. Wake up. Rustle. There is no time to be lost, and every little helps. Toot your horn, and toot it loud.

The C. & W. M. will run to Charlevoix by way of Elk Rapids and Torch Lake and will run through the finest farming country in Northern Michigan. When the road reaches the straits Elk Rapids will furnish it yearly with $125,000 in freights alone. Besides the business which Elk Rapids offers in freights it is splendidly situated for the resort business and so is Torch Lake and Eastport and Charlevoix. Thousands would annually visit our beautiful lakes. We think our lakes are more beautiful than those in Charlevoix county, but there is no more charming spot in the world than the town bearing the above name. The managers of the above line know just what this town and country is capable of doing which justifies them in saying that "just as sure as there is a balm in Gilead, we shall go to Elk Rapids." The resort business to Elk Rapids and Torch Lake and Charlevoix would be boomed, and thousands would every season visit this country and the "Six Lakes" and Pine lake regions. The other route mentioned is not feasible on account of its nearness to the G. R. & I. and what the G. R. & I. wishes two roads so near together for, we are unable to understand. Another thing. For manufacturing purposes Elk Rapids offers the best advantages in Northern Michigan. Dexter & Nolde will offer every inducement to men with money desiring to locate here and engage in manufacturing. We have the finest water power in the state which can be leased and ground necessary for buildings can be bought at a low figure. Furniture manufacturers, and all kinds of wooden ware manufacturers are requested to look this matter up.—Progress.

Ironton.

The heavy wind of Thursday blew two large panes of glass out of the windows in the postoffice.

Johnnie Martin, a boy about 10 years old, while playing on the ice on Tuesday at school, slipped and his right leg was broken above the knee either by falling back on it himself or by some of his playmates falling on him. Much sympathy is expressed for him by his fellow-pupils. The boy's mother is also very sick.

The Company's teams are now hauling wood from across the lake.

Owen Hammond was home from Mancelona on Sunday. Owen works in the furnace there and says the heavy wind Thursday night blew the smoke stack off.

Capt. Lennox and family visited in East Jordan on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond entertained a party of young people Monday evening before Owen's return on Tuesday.

Rev. John R. Robinson will preach in the M. E. church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

ANNUAL HISTORY

Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned From the Files of the Sentinel.

1873.

Among the appropriations of Congress the preceding year was one for the survey of the month of Pine River. The Pine River in Charlevoix county was intended, but through a technical error, the Pine River in St. Clair county received the appropriation. Attention was called to the error by the editor of the SENTINEL, and a new survey was ordered.

As a testimonial of the "fearless, energetic and well directed efforts" of the SENTINEL in the matter of harbor improvement, Mr. Smith, the editor, was presented with the written thanks of 80 citizens of Charlevoix.

In March, the Board of Supervisors passed a resolution authorizing the purchase of a site for county buildings, fixing the price at $250.

At the spring elections the following Supervisors were elected: Charlevoix, S. M. See; South Arm, James A. Keat; Eveline, James C. Bartlett; Marion, John Ward; Norwood, F. J. Meech; Evangeline, Hugh R. Miller.

A. Fox & Co. beached 10,700 cords of propeller wood during the winter of 1872-73.

April 30th witnessed the first boat of the season, the Idaho, bound down.

The following item appears May 31: "Wm. Nelson arrived on Thursday from Milwaukee with furniture and fixtures for his new hotel on the railroad, near the head of Pine Lake."

During the summer all the railroad iron needed to complete the G. R. & I. R. R. to Little Traverse Bay was landed at Traverse City and taken over the Traverse City branch to its place of destination.

In 1873 Geo. E. Steele surveyed and platted the new town of Kalkaska, which then consisted of two hotels, a saw-mill, several saloons, and about a dozen dwellings.

The second case of drowning in Pine Lake occurred in June. A son of Robert Coan, of Boyne Valley, was knocked overboard by the boom of the "Union Jack" Sunday night, the 22d.

The first passenger steamer to run on Pine Lake was the Annie, owned by Capt. Wm. Mees & Son, and commanded by Capt. Jas. Mees. She was 60 feet keel and 12 feet beam. Her first trip was made July 8th, to the head of South Arm. Her daily trips embraced the circuit of the whole lake excepting on Saturdays and Mondays, when she made two trips to either the head of Pine Lake or South Arm, giving the up-lake people an opportunity to do their trading at Charlevoix.

Up to this time the freight and passenger trade of Pine Lake had been done by "Uncle John" Miller, with the sail-boat Union Jack.

The tug Tempest with a steam-dredge in tow, arrived July 22d. The first day's dredging resulted in a channel ten feet deep for a distance of 80 feet. A like depth was secured for the entire lower channel by August 16th.

Col. S. M. Mansfield, U. S. Engineers, arrived July 25th to make an examination of the harbor.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors held August 1st, it was voted that bonds to the amount of $1,000 be issued in order to dredge the upper channel of Pine River. At a meeting held August 9th $360 additional was subscribed. S. M. See, D. C. Nettleton and E. K. Robinson were appointed a committee to present estimates for a new bridge across Pine River at some future meeting.

Senator John A. Logan, of Illinois, and Fairbanks, the scale manufacturer, paid Charlevoix a visit in August, being on a fishing expedition among the inland lakes.

The upper channel was dredged to a depth of eight feet during the fall.

In August the G. R. & I. R. R. was graded and the ties being distributed as far as Boyne Falls.

In August, 1873, the location of the depot on Little Traverse Bay was an uncertain matter. The three embryo villages of Bayfield, Muh-quh-ba City and Roseville, all contested for the plum. Petoskey, as a village site, was unheard of, then.

In October the G. R. & I. depot was located near H. O. Rose's property, at Bear Creek, and the boom for Petoskey commenced. On October 25th it is announced that the iron had been laid up to that point, and that a passenger train was running as far as Boyne Falls every Sunday. The first passenger train reached Bear Creek (Petoskey), October 26th.

The winter term of school began Nov. 24th, with Prof. C. Dexter Page, a graduate of Cornell University, and Miss Helen Smith, a sister of Mrs. O. S. Washburn, as teachers.

In December Charlevoix pledged nearly $400 toward the construction of the Western Union Telegraph line from Frankfort.

The Charlevoix business places at this time were: Fox, Rose & Buttars, W. C. Newman, Carpenter & See, Henry Morgan, all general merchandise; M. J. Stockman, hardware, G. W. Crouter and Dr. Lewis, drugs; Byron See, groceries; A. J. McLeod, meat market; A. O. D. McCabe and J. B. White, boots and shoes; W. W. Ream, jewelry; Mrs. H. L. Miller, millinery, and F. J. Meech & Co., general merchandise, Norwood.

—Dave Bradbeer is working in a Kansas gallery.

—The schooner Charlotte Raab was sold recently by the Raabs of Sheboygan, to Capt. Melchert, of Chicago, for $2000. This sale closes out the last of the Raab fleet.

—Wm. Holland, of Eveline, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Scroggle Monday, on a charge of abuse preferred by his wife. He has an examination in justice court to-day.

The transfer steamer Algomah when within a quarter of a mile of St. Ignace on the 18th broke her main shaft coupling. It will take a week or longer to repair this part of the machinery which will have to be sent to Detroit. The only means of transportation in the meantime will be teams crossing on the ice.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican County Convention held at Charlevoix on the 17th, for the purpose of electing delegates to the State and Judicial conventions, was organized by the election of Fred. J. Meech as chairman, and Wm. Harris secretary.

Fred J. Meech, G. V. Nash, Will A. Norton and W. A. Smith, were appointed to attend the State convention to be held at Detroit on the 23d.

R. L. Corbett, William Harris, F. E. Fogg, James A. Keat, Will A. Norton, S. B. Thatcher, and F. W. Mayne were chosen delegates to attend the judicial convention.

The county committee was reorganized by the election of F. W. Mayne as chairman; James A. Kent, secretary, and Wm. Harris, Treasurer.

The Township committee is as follows: Bear Lake, Frank Jones; Boyne Valley, Frank P. Myres; Chandler, William J. Pierson; Charlevoix, Frank Craine; Evangeline, R. L. Corbett; Eveline, Robert Miller; Hayes, Eugene Burgess; Hudson, James McKibbon; Marion, William Black; Melrose, A. K. Smith; Norwood, Wm. Harris; Resort, C. J. Wooden; South Arm, Frank E. Fogg; Springvale, Jacob Levie; Wilson, Frank E. Smith.

The basis of representation was fixed at one delegate for each 20 Republican votes, and a majority thereof cast for governor at the State election in 1886.

WM. HARRIS, Sec.

The Old Settlers' Association.

The Old Settlers' Association of Grand Traverse Region will hold its annual meeting at the town hall in Elk Rapids, the first day of March. They will meet at the hall and organize at eleven o'clock sharp to elect the officers for the ensuing year, and then proceed to the Hughs house for dinner which will be served at 2 p. m. The Elk Rapids and Elk Lake bands will be in attendance and short speeches from the old settlers giving their early experience in this new country. A cordial invitation is extended to all. By order of

COMMITTEE.

Secretary Manning, of the Treasury, tendered his resignation to the President last week, as soon as his successor can be appointed and qualified. It is understood that Mr. Manning resigns to accept the presidency of a new national bank that is soon to be started in New York city.

President Cleveland draw a salary of $50,000 per year, or $150 for each work day. On account of such a miserly salary it is no wonder that the President feels that when an old soldier draws $4 per month pension, he is receiving plenty; and any bill to increase that pension will be speedily vetoed by "his nibs."

Closely following the adverse report upon the bill awarding a pension to Mrs. Logan, Surgeon General Hamilton certifies that the illness which caused Gen. Logan's death can be clearly traced to exposure during the war. This makes it incumbent upon the cheese-paring economists who negatived the bill to take the ground that the General had no right to expose himself.

The river and harbor bill is before the Senate. It appropriates $10,300,000. The bill as it came from the House, only appropriated $7,500,000. There are 100 members of the House who are opposed to the passage of the bill, and who will filibuster as much as possible to defeat it. They nearly accomplished their end when the bill was originally in the House. There will be a big fight over it, and it is impossible at present to say what the result will be.

Detroit Tribune: The Democratic House at Washington is playing the coward act in its treatment of the coast defense and fortification bills, which passed the Senate almost unanimously. The whole country is clamoring for the immediate passage of these bills, and if the House were Republican instead of Democratic the bills would have passed ere this. The Democratic party always puts on the brakes when going up grade, and turns them loose going down. It spends most of its time disappointing the people.

Henry Ward Beecher is not in love with the knights of labor order. In the course of a speech at the recent annual banquet of the Amherst alumni association, Mr. Beecher said: "This abomination, the knights of labor, is the result of this infernal idea of paternity of government. Because a few men in New Jersey think their employers wronged them all this nation is called upon to suffer on the order of the paternal government of the knights of labor. This is from want of intelligence. God knows I am a friend of the workingman. I came from working stock. My grandfather and his father were blacksmiths, and my mother's people worked in leather. The working people are being taken care of by the knights of labor instead of taking care of themselves, and people all over the land are being punished, and business is stagnated because of it. Just because a few men in Jersey have done wrong. The destruction of the poor is their ignorance."

HOUSE FOR SALE. Inquire of S. M. See, Charlevoix.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

Go to Maddaugh & Stoll's if you wish to see a dandy line of fine samples just received for spring and summer suits.

WANTED, tamarack piles at Charlevoix, also stone on the beach handy to scow. Address, L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

H. P. Cook has been appointed agent for Charlevoix county of the nursery establishment of Cody Bros., Geneva, N. Y., and will take orders for trees. Trees are warranted to be as represented. 4t

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

WANTED. A steady situation in a store. Six years experience. Address D. C. BACON, Box 243, Charlevoix.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the See block. Inquire of B. See. 15tf.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

Low Prices still Continue

AT

George W. Miller's.

A REMINDER
For February.

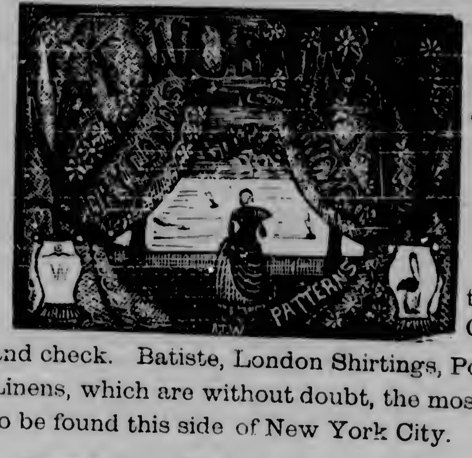
Our Remnants!

Our 1-4 off, a big Success. But it has made us piles of Remnants.

This week we shall give you all a better chance than ever to get bargains

COME IN AND SEE WHAT THIS MEANS. FOR REMEMBER WE ALWAYS LEAD.

F. W. Craine & Co



First Arrival
---OF---
NEW SPRING GOODS!

We have received a large line of the latest Novelties in White Goods, such as Nainsooks in plain and check. Batiste, London Shirtings, Pongees, Tufted Batiste and India Linens, which are without doubt, the most desirable patterns and qualities to be found this side of New York City.

Our new Flannels and Dress Goods are all of the most approved styles and colorings, with beautiful trimmings to match. Come and see them.

A few more Cloaks to close out at an extremely low figure. Come in and see us whether you wish to buy or not.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Are resuming their SPECIAL SALES which attracted so much attention last season. Many rare bargains will be offered which will be presented but once as our stock in some lines is light.

Everything sold just as advertised and prices reduced on all goods.

SATURDAY, FEB. 26.
Men's all-wool Socks 3 pairs for 50c.
Men's wool-filled Mitts, 22c a pair.
50c Japan Tea for 35 cents

MONDAY, FEB. 28.
Ladies Scarlet Underwear worth 1.25 for for 85c.
Standard Dress Prints, 5c
Cotton Flannels at cost.
Shirting Prints 4 cents.

TUESDAY, MAR. 1.
Broadhead Worsted Dress Goods, your choice 25c.
Cordaville Gray Blankets $1.95 a pair.
Kingsfords Starch, 4 lbs. for 25 cents

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 2.
Wool Moss Trimming in garnet, brown, navy, 28c.
Tricot Dress Flannels, all-wool, 69c.
Acme Factory Flannels, 34 cents.
DeLands Soda, 4lb for 25c

THURSDAY, MAR. 3.
Immense Drive in Hamburg Edgings.
60c Leggings for 45 cents.
Wool Hosiery slaughter'd
Dress Ginghams, 9 cents.

FRIDAY, MAR. 4.
Great Reductions in Table Linens etc.
Mixed Shirting Flannels, 19c worth 25.

SATURDAY, MAR. 5.
Combined offer.
10 yards L L Cotton,
10 lbs Granulated Sugar,
1 lb 50c Japan Tea,
2 lbs Arbuckles Coffee,
ALL FOR $2.00.

An elegant $25 Music Box given away. Call for particulars.

Our store closes at 7:30 every evening except Saturdays, but for the benefit of laboring men, we will upon request send to any house in town and take orders, delivering goods the same day.

J. L. HURD & CO.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE, AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO.—44 | CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2, 1887. | WHOLE NO. 901

ROSENTHAL & SON ARE SELLING OUT!

OWING TO A CHANGE WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE IN OUR STORE IN THE SPRING, WE MUST SELL OUR

---STOCK OF---

DRY GOODS, CARPETS, CLOTHING, CLOAKS, NOTIONS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, ETC.

REGARDLESS OF COST!

WE MEAN BUSINESS! EVERYTHING IN OUR STORE WILL BE SOLD AT SOME PRICE, FOR CASH ONLY.

Now is the time to get Bargains. Come and see for yourself.

RESPECTFULLY, ROSENTHAL & SON.

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!
---HEADQUARTERS---
For Everything needed in the School Room, at
HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of
BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN
Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours,
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

"There is a tide in the affairs of Men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

If you are going to use any building Hardware, now is the time to buy it! Iron, Nails, and all kinds of Hardware are advancing. Be advised the present low prices cannot continue. Until after our annual invoice is taken, we offer great bargains in everything in our line. Buy NOW and save money! Heatng Stoves at remarkably low prices.

Yours Truly
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BRANCH STORE AT HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY

SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

Address all business correspondence to the firm.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1.50 | Six months $.75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

—Yesterday was the first day of "balmy spring."

—Bring us in that block wood before the sleighing breaks up.

—Geo. Saunby of Hayes, has put in a stock of groceries at his place.

—The Charlevoix Minstrels give their entertainment next Monday eve.

—The Boyne City G. A. R. boys held a very successful campfire entertainment on the 24th.

—Henry Barth returned from Elk Rapids Thursday, where he had been in the employ of the Iron Co.

—Henry Gibson has returned to East Jordan and is again wielding the pen in the Enterprise office.

The indications point to an early opening of navigation. On Saturday no ice could be seen outside the points.

—The general offices of the D. C. & E. R. R. Co. are established, and the officers have settled down to active and vigorous work.

—The Board of School Inspectors have closed the public library and reading room excepting Tuesday and Friday afternoons and Friday evenings.

Byron See returned home from the South on Friday. Mrs. See remained in Atlanta, and will not return home until some time in April. Her health is much improved.

—A bill has been introduced in the Legislature empowering the Township of Charlevoix to borrow money for railroad aid to an amount not to exceed $20,000. It is understood that Eveline, Kalkaska and Bellaire had similar bills introduced.

—Village election occurs one week from next Monday. A President, three Trustees, Clerk, Treasurer, Assessor and Street Commissioner. The Trustees whose terms of office expire are Messrs. Washburn, McLeod and Mason. Mr. McLeod is spoken of favorably for President.

—The severest snow storm of the season prevailed during Saturday night and Sunday forenoon. Sunday morning our citizens awoke to find the streets full above the fences especially the east and west streets. The drifts were so deep that the city plow did not get through them until afternoon. The snow banks on both sides of the streets are as high as a man's head.

—A "sparring match" is to come off at East Jordan on the 10th at East Jordan between Jim Taylor and Pike Johnson, two well-known sports, for $400 a side. The match is to be fought with three-ounce gloves, to a finish, Marquis of Queensbury rules—admission to the mill, $2.00. Several other knockers throughout the state are to be there and spar for the edification of the audience. East Jordan, by the way, is the residence of the Sheriff of Charlevoix county.

—The report of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad for the year ending December 31, shows, Gross earnings, $2,033,126.76, an increase over the previous year of $151,983.32. Operating expenses show a decrease of 5 per cent. The net earnings and other credits were $760,593.13, an increase of $176,378.06; charges to income for interest and other accounts, $716,105.74, leaving a surplus of $44,487.39. The net earnings exceeded by $109,128.44 the previous best record. The main line from Richmond to Mackinaw is laid with steel tracks. The leased lines all show increased earnings, and the prospects are good for the coming year.

—The Minstrels, judging from the time they have spent in practice, will give an entertainment Monday evening, that will astonish the natives.

—We regret to learn, through the East Saginaw papers, that Mrs. J. S. Estabrook of the south side resort, is troubled with congestion of the brain and that insanity is feared.

—William Holland, of Eveline, who has been under arrest here on a charge of domestic cussedness, was arraigned before Justice McLeod on Monday, and put under $200 bonds to keep the peace.

—Ingham county is having prepared a separate list of all the mortgages, and assignments thereof, on record in the register's office of that county for use of the supervisors in making out their assessment rolls the coming spring. Wonder why that isn't an idea worth adopting?

—Thursday's Grand Rapids Telegram-Herald says: "J. B. Mulliken will go to Boston next week to confer with the officers of the C. & W. M. and D. L. & N. Railroads and the capitalists interested in those enterprises, relative to the Lansing extension to this city, and the northern extension to Traverse City.

—Spectacle reef light house pier, situated at the head of Lake Huron, eighteen miles from the nearest land, is said to have received bad usage last fall. The floors of the engine house and other buildings on the pier are raised out of place by the water working through fissures of the foundation of the structure during heavy weather. It will cost the government fully $20,000 to make the structure safe and substantial again.

—Perhaps there are no two men in the legislature who are so thoroughly different as Senators Wisner and Barton. Senator Wisner in his jovial way, is in the habit of doing a good deal of visiting about the senate and house and his approach is everywhere hailed with pleasure, and being a level headed man he is a valuable counsellor in committee work and other places. Senator Barton may usually be found in his seat, reading or meditating on some affair best known to himself. He comes early in the morning and is among the last to leave the senate at night. He always votes, but never attempts to make a speech. He is a stanch republican while Mr. Wisner is well known as a democrat. Both are inveterate smokers and are rarely seen without cigars. They have warm friends and admirers and although Mr. Barton is a remarkably reserved man he is generally well liked.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

—It was a happy thought when the "Kindergarten" was conceived. A "garden of children," every child a flower; and as every flower in a beautiful garden teaches its lesson, so there are lessons even for a great big self righteous man at the Kindergarten. If there is a tender spot in his callous nature, it will be touched, and the well-spring of what little good there is in him stirred from the bottom. The little tender slips of humanity are trained in soil watered with kindness, and every word and movement is culture for mind and body. Courtesy, self-denial, grace, love and industry, the task of imparting which so taxes the time and patience of the parent, are there inculcated in such a loving and effective manner that the child finds in the teacher a playmate as well as an instructor. Song and cadence, rythmics and melodies, dynamics and phrasing—the foundation of musical education—are to the little ones a pastime more than a study, and the "morning hymn," "God is Great," uttered by the little voices in unison, is a sermon more touching than the most studied pulpit effort. The patter of the little feet in time with the happy voices; the courtesy one to another, and the joyousness of the very atmosphere of the Kindergarten is a revelation to big humanity which will drive away a fit of the blues from the surliest brute of a man in the world. The Charlevoix Kindergarten should be made a permanent institution. Its work, exercised upon the tender natures of childhood, will blossom out in beauty hereafter.

—Remember the Minstrel entertainment next Monday evening.

—J. L. Hurd & Co. continue their bargains at special sales. See ad.

—The ten cent tea at the M. E. church Monday evening netted $11 to the church.

—Geo. W. Miller is on hand again with a new ad. He is selling clothing way down to make room for new stock.

—The Grand Traverse Dist. Lodge, I. O. G. T., is held at Mancelona, to-day. Nelson White left yesterday as a delegate from the Charlevoix lodge.

—Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, in Hayes, Feb. 26th, Mr. Geo. A. Fraunfelder and Miss Kathrina Kopf. Rev. W. G. Clark officiating.

—At the annual meeting last Wednesday evening, of directors of the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, Hon. A. Buttars was elected Superintendent for the coming year.

—The Charlevoix W. C. T. U. perfected a county organization Thursday. They also gave a dinner to the Ironton Union, the Charlevoix pastors and wives and the members of the Charlevoix press and their wives.

Historical Society.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Bartholomew, on Friday evening last, was thrown open to the Historical Society, who filled every available space, and listened to one of the best programmes presented this season. The following contributions were presented. Mrs. A. T. Waterman read a paper on the religion of Persia, which was received with marked attention as the reader drew many pen pictures of their religious rites, as well as of Persian life. Miss Cochran executed a fine piano solo, and Mrs. Guyles and Miss Cody a brilliant piano duett. Miss Winnie Bartholomew rendered a pleasing piano solo, and Misses Blanche Bartholomew and Aggie Miller gave a cornet duett. Miss May Waterbury gave a recitation, as also did Miss Cody, who presented with side splitting effect "The Automatic Cradle." Mrs. E. M. Clark and Mrs. Frank Hines gave a vocal duett, and Miss Cody rendered a vocal solo. The entire programme was exceptionally interesting and instructive. The next meeting will be on Friday evening of this week, at the parlors of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Blanchard. Paper by E. H. Green.

Kalkaska Railroad Notes.

From the Kalkaska Leader.

It didn't take Kalkaska long to toe the mark set for her on this railroad business. A few hours was all that was needed to secure the necessary subscriptions for the stock apportioned to this part of the line.

The cry of the future at the Kalkaska union depot will be: "Passengers for Traverse City and other suburban points will find first-class accommodations at the —— house while waiting for the semi-weekly stage."

Traverse City put some sugar on a stick and tried to coax the D. C. & E. R. R. over that way; Mancelona held out her apron to catch it in; had to come that way or it wouldn't amount to anything, you know; while Kalkaska took the old black stocking down from the chimney corner, and reached way into the toe of it after the hard earned dollars laid by for a rainy day. Result: Kalkaska takes that plum.

* * * In a few hours Kalkaska secured the necessary pledges for stock ($10,000) and could have done even better had the occasion demanded. As a result of such prompt action the road is assured us. Bellaire also came to the front in good shape, but Grayling flunked. As a result of this action, or want of action, on the part of the last-named town, she is liable to be counted out. The road will be built to Kalkaska anyway, and then to Roscommon or some other available point on the Michigan Central, or possibly intersect the Toledo & Ann Arbor R. R., which is pushing slowly north, so the only loser by Grayling's apathy will be Grayling. So much for that.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, - PUBLISHERS

The Belgian General [illegible] is to conduct experiments at [illegible] [illegible].

The Earl of [illegible] has succeeded the [illegible] as Parliamentary Secretary of the British Colonial Office.

[illegible] Taylor, who has left Winnipeg for Rome, is in such poor health that his friends fear he will never return.

There are four candidates in the field for mayor of Sharon, Penn., the leader being a colored soldier backed by the Knights of Labor.

The appointment of Count Schmettau as military attache to the German Embassy at Brussels, a post long vacant, is regarded as significant.

John R. [illegible], one of the Civil Service Commissioners, is negotiating with W. T. Dowdall for the purchase of the Peoria (Ill.) Democrat.

The United States government has 154,000 Springfield rifles stored away, and is still manufacturing the same kind of weapon at the rate of [illegible] per annum.

The British house of commons, by a vote of [illegible], recently defeated a motion to require the [illegible] administration of laws in the [illegible].

The [illegible] of Mississippi seems nearly unanimous in asking for the appointment of ex-Governor John M. Stone as one of the interstate commerce commissioners.

A FALLEN BRIDGE.

Chicago Excited over Official Corruption—Another Headless Body—War Believed to be Imminent Between France and Germany, Etc.

Lives Lost at Rochester, N. Y.—Angry Railroad Companies—A Diamond Find, Etc.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

Lives Lost in a Flood.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Annie Graham, a young girl, and a man lost their lives here yesterday. All morning there had been a high wind, and, coming from the south, it had full sweep down the Genesee river channel. A gust of wind of more than ordinary strength snapped off two large poles which carry telegraph wires across the bridge, and which fell and carried with them the two spans of the bridge upon which they stood. The river is very high, and the torrent carried them rapidly away. Three employes of W. S. Kimball & Co. are missing, and fears are entertained that they, too, were swept down the river. The exact number of lives lost cannot yet be ascertained.

Ready to Arrest.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—The investigation into the contracts made by certain individuals with the city and county for supplies and work for the county, pursued by the County Attorney, it is believed will result in the arrest [illegible]

[illegible] fluence of what he thought was morphine.

A Terrible Tornado.

DENVER, Col., Feb. [illegible]—[illegible] do in this city and all the [illegible] tion yesterday, did g[illegible] Full particulars cannot [illegible]

Frightful Mine Disaster.

LAVANT, Ont., Feb. [illegible]—[illegible] accident occurred at the [illegible] mines near here yesterday. Five men were instantly [killed] [illegible] seriously wounded by the [illegible] from the roof. The names [of the] killed are: John Benton, [illegible] Thomas Woodruff, Julius [illegible] liam Carver and Joseph [illegible] Those wounded are [illegible] and Joseph Revell. Most [of them] were married and had fa[milies]. [Lav]ant is a mining town of [one] hundred and fifty inhabitants [in L]ark county, about seven[ty miles] north of Kingston.

Strange Ringing of Bells.

WASHINGTON, D. C., [illegible] remarkable coincidence [illegible] the death of Mrs. A. L. D[illegible] ter of Capt. D. E. Duffy, th[illegible] torney on Wednesday. M[illegible] laid in a dying condition [illegible] hours, being surrounded [illegible] bers of her immediate [illegible] was conscious to the last [illegible] calmly with those about [illegible] moment or two before th[illegible] watcher had scarcely ma[illegible] nouncement that she was [illegible] servant from below entere[illegible] in answer to a summons [illegible] bell. No one had rung [illegible] [illegible] of the circumst[illegible] the fact that all of the six [illegible] in the dining room and con[illegible] with the different rooms [illegible]

[illegible]

FOREIGN.

[illegible]

CONGRESS.

[illegible]

MICHIGAN.

Condensed Reports of the Latest News from All Parts of the State.

[illegible]

MIDWINTER.

Winds that sweep the powdery snow,
And whirl it, sounding shrilly,
Icicles that snap below
The branches, crisp and chilly!

Forest tops that clash and toss;
Jagged cloud rifts darkling;
Stately moonshine struggling through,
And o'er the white waste sparkling.
Oh, the drear midwinter weather,
Heart and I so sad together!

Oh, to see the pale, gold sun!
Leaping rills that waken;
Dead leaves showing dank and dun,
From last year's branches shaken;

Emerald fields where childhood soon
Will greet the early daisies;
The smiles and tears of April days
Among the woodland mazes!

Wayside springs fresh bubbling o'er,
That lately yielded no drop;
Birds that thrill the azure air,
And one wee lonely snowdrop!
Sweet the dream of springtime weather,
Heart and I now dream together!

DEAD IN THE SNOW SLIDE.

Swan Nilson the Mail Carrier of Ophir.

There now lies in the office of the postoffice inspector at Denver, an old, weather-beaten mail pouch. It is shriveled and water-soaked, and its padlock is covered with rust. That old mail-pouch has a thrilling history, and is soon to be sent to the Smithsonian Institution as a memento of one of the most exciting episodes of the Rocky mountain region.

If that old pouch could open its capacious maw, which has so often opened to deliver all sorts of messages to all sorts of people—tender tokens to [illegible]

[illegible] and many bets were made as to how [so]on the carrier would make his appearance.

But the hours went by and Nilson did not come. At last they made up their minds that he had staid over at Silverton, not daring to venture out into the storm. But that, they knew, was not like Swan Nilson.

When the next day went by, and the next, they knew that something was wrong. Then stories were started by the evil-minded of dishonor and theft. Nilson knew that the pouch was full of Christmas presents and valuables. He had made off with the contents, some said, and was now living in dishonorable safety. But most of them did not believe these stories. They knew him, and knew his faithful honesty.

Then Swan's brother came forward and said that he knew Swan was dead, and swore that he would vindicate his dead brother's honor. The postoffice authorities agreed with him in his theory. So sure were they of it that they allowed him a competent sum per day while he was making the search.

For a year and a half nothing was heard of the carrier. All the next summer and the next one after that Swan's brother led searching parties over the trail. They dug into the snow-banks on the mountains and in the gulches. Many huge heaps of snow were found in the gulches—the results of avalanches and slides. They were dug into, but no Swan was found.

Finally, on the 13th of August, 1885, they had dug into every snow pile in Ophir gulch but one. When they had [illegible]

Hopeless Insane.

Atlanta Constitution: The [illegible] train which left Atlanta [illegible] the Central Railroad carried a [passen]ger whose recent adventure ha[s been] both remarkable and unfortunate. [The] passenger referred to was M[rs.] Swaffield of Beverly, Mass. She [was in] company with her parents, her hu[sband] and two of his sisters. She is a brunette of great beauty. [There is] nothing in her behavior indica[ting] insanity, yet she is a hopeless [lunatic]. Her reason was dethroned in a s[ingular] way. Her insanity is the result [of a] practical joke. She was the belle [of the] Town of Beverly and had many [suitors] among the first young men of the [town]. A prominent young flour mer[chant] named Swaffield, sued for her hand [and] wooed successfully. They were [mar]ried New Year's night.

About two weeks ago her hu[sband] in company with several young [men of] the town, went on a hunting [expedition in] the country. One of the young [men] who had been an unsuccessful [rival of] Swaffield in the contest for the h[and of] the young woman, got tired of th[e hunt] and returned home several hours [in ad]vance of his companions. A [bright] idea entered his head, and he re[solved] to play a practical joke on the [young] wife. He went to her home, and [as]suming a solemn air and looki[ng as] miserable as possible, said to the [young] woman: "I have come to bring [you] bad news. Your husband has be[en ac]cidently killed." No sooner had [illegible]

[illegible]

WIT AND HUMOR.

Toboggan doesn't make a very good rhyme for hugging, but—well, it gets there just the same.—Merchant Traveler.

"Meet me at the gate, love," has been changed to "Meet me at the grate, love." The cold weather necessitates the change.

The University of Bologna is soon to celebrate the eight hundredth anniversary of its foundation. The original sausage will be there.—Burlington Free Press.

Palmistry is not such a new craze; we have known men to sit around a table for hours trying to find out about each other's hands.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

A writer says that the mating of human beings is beyond the science of man. Perhaps this is the reason why matchmakers are usually of the gentler sex.—New Haven News.

The "Beak"—I fancy I remember your face. You have been here before? Prisoner—Many a time, your Worship. But how stout you've grown! How's the missis?—La Ruppel.

An uptown merchant said to a farmer: "A dollar will go farther than it used to." "Yes," the farmer quickly replied, "and it makes the distance in quicker time."—Hudson Republican.

"I see we are going to have standard time here now," observed Mrs. McSwilligan. "Yes," replied the husband, "the Standard has gobbled everything [illegible]

MISSING LINKS.

Frances Hodgson Burnett is a magnificent looking woman, though disproportionately short and broad-shouldered.

Up in Washington Territory it is said that the edelweiss, the famous flower of the Alps, is found on Mount Rainier.

Franz Liszt, it is now definitely ascertained, was a Freemason. He was received into the order at Frankfort-on-the-Main in 1841.

A locomotive used as a switch engine at Bellows Falls, Vt., is said to be the oldest in this country, having first been used July 25, 1849.

It is estimated that over $500,000 has been spent in unsuccessful attempts to establish newspapers in Portland, Oregon, during the past twenty years.

The Dominion government has declined to compensate the Saskatoon settlers for protecting the government telegraph line during the rebellion before the arrival of the troops.

In Montana during the winter cowboys make a living by killing mountain lions, for which a bounty of $8 per head is paid. The animals are ferocious, and some are very large.

Prof. Sanson, a French biologist, concludes that the use of animals is more economical than that of steam engines in cases where the power required does not exceed that of twenty horses.

People living on Johnson's Island, [illegible]

[illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, MARCH 2, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

An amendment to the River and Harbor bill has been brought about by Senator Conger, which provides for a survey and estimate of the expense of making a channel in Grand River from Lake Michigan to Grand Rapids, twelve feet deep.

When J. H. Lester gets his $100,000 damages out of Ben Butler for injuries inflicted during the war it will be Jeff Davis' turn to sue his captor, Gen. Pritchard, of Allegan, Mich., for violent seizure of his person at a private masquerade.—Detroit Tribune.

It is stated that Sam Jones and Sam Small received over $38,000 for their month's "religious work" in Boston. Many a country minister could keep his family an entire year on that sum. But possibly there will be no strike among them.

The most disastrous results of the floods in the southern part of the state have occurred at Lyons. The worst now appears to be over, yet a vast amount of property has been destroyed, and donations to the sufferers are greatly called for. Business has again been resumed to some extent.

Over 100 jars of whitefish eggs have been transferred from the hatchery at Alpena to the Northville hatchery. The United States Fish Commission car was at Alpena on the 29th for the purpose of transferring eggs. There were also brought up in the car several hundred California and brook trout, and Henry Belton, of Alpena has planted them in the Ossineke stream.

P. T. Barnum, the veteran showman, has been interviewed. He says he is not aware that he is to be made the Presidential candidate of the Prohibitionists, and while saying that he has been a teetotaler since 1847, and that he believes intemperance to be a vice and a curse, he adds: "In cities prohibition is not possible. Temperance advocates should use all their influence with the regular political parties and compel them to adopt temperance laws; for positive prohibition will never succeed until the millennium.

Representative Damon has drafted a bill which he will introduce, providing for appointment of a State Marshal, whose duty it shall be to enforce the statutes for the regulation or prohibition of the liquor traffic, now in force or that may hereafter be enacted. The said marshal is to be appointed by the Governor, and shall hold his office for two years. He shall receive a salary of $1,200 per year, and shall have the same powers in executing liquor laws as are accorded to sheriffs. He shall receive pay for actual expenses, and may appoint a deputy in each county who shall receive $2 per day and expenses for actual service.

Promptly the railroad managers have decided upon one radical departure under the inter-state commerce law—the abolition of the pass system. Whoever wants to ride must pay the regular fare. It will relieve them of a large amount of labor and trouble, and also of a vexing variety of exactions, impositions and frauds. "Dead-beating" will lose one of its wide fields of operation. Everybody and everybody's friends will be treated alike, and lobbying and political and social assignations which have heretofore been greatly aided by free railway rides will be subjected to regular expenses, like honest business travel. Whether or not this will have the effect to reduce passenger rates, does not yet appear. It should either do that or give the railroads larger profits.

There is a hot oven under North Carolina, unless the people are too much excited to know what is the matter. It is reported that a party of residents near the town of Webster, in the western part of that state, the other day, on the road near the Tuckaseega River saw a huge tongue of flame burst from a crevice inside the cliff above the river. They watched the flame for over ten minutes, when it died away. As no person could have gone to the spot whence the flame emerged or have had any fire anywhere near it, those who witnessed the phenomenon are inclined to think it of volcanic or other natural origin. On August 31 last, the day of the great earthquake, a remarkable smoke overhung that section for a distance of eighty miles, and a smell like that of burning coal pervaded the atmosphere. It is asserted that during the earthquake, when the immense masses of stone were thrown down the mountain sides, flames were visible in several places in Mitchell, Jackson and Swain counties.

The Frankfort salt well is 250 feet deep and is now in slate rock.

Northern Michigan News.

Frankfort soon votes on the question of a steam or hand fire engine.

Elk Rapids has appointed a committee to report on the question of incorporating.

Pickerel and suckers are being taken in large quantities in Betsey lake by means of nets.

A fine 1,500 pound bell will soon be placed in the belfry of the Traverse City M. E. Church.

It is estimated that $30,000 a day is expended by lumbermen in Cheboygan county this winter getting out logs.

The exports of Frankfort last year were valued at $520,166, of which $144,000 was lumber, one-third hardwood.

Among the recent postoffice appointments are James P. Childs, Chestonia, vice Isaac F. Dick, resigned, and Benjamin Minaker, Good Harbor, vice Charles Mann, removed because he is a republican.

The Progress states that one of Chicago's wealthiest gentlemen is about to purchase the Lewis House at Torch Lake. It is to be turned into a club house and several thousand dollars to be expended upon it.

Messrs. Dexter & Noble and the Elk Rapids Iron Company paid out at Elk Rapids during the year 1886 for labor and products of the country without including timber cut on their own lands by themselves, $248,408.

After a brief illness, Allen W. Wilbur, of Northport, passed quietly away recently. Mr. Wilbur was one of the oldest settlers here, having lived in Northport since 1858. He was the father of Captain O. E. Wilbur, of the City of Grand Rapids.

Fife Lake was visited on the night of the 22d with the most disastrous fire known in the history of that village. There was no protection, and nothing but the still night saved the town. This loss will aggregate $7,000 in small losses. Little insurance.

The male department of the Traverse City insane asylum is full and it has been found necessary to notify the judges of probate in the northern district that hereafter notice will have to be given before a patient can be sent. There are still some vacancies in the female wards.

Messrs. Clarke and Crysler, of Harbor Springs, expect to leave for Detroit and Cleveland this week to purchase a steamboat for the Manistique route. Their mail contract does not take effect until July 1st, but Mr. Clarke says the boat will be ready to go on the route when navigation opens.

Last Thursday night the stage plying between the Sault and St. Ignace was upset when about twenty miles out and the stove set fire to the hay. By great efforts the occupants broke out, but were then at the mercy of the freezing winds until rescued by the proprietor of the Mud Lake house who drove out to them.

The C. & W. M. R. R. Co. has made a contract with Dexter & Noble for the Queen of the Lakes—the popular Captain Johnson, master—to run on the route on Bear lake this coming summer, making connection between all trains and the resorts at the mouth of the lake. The Queen has been rebuilt and raised some eighteen inches during the winter, and will be entirely safe and comfortable for a load of 600 passengers.

Joseph Rabiar, Sr., died at South Frankfort, and was laid to rest Thursday last. A large body of sorrowing friends followed the remains to their last resting place. Mr. Rabiar was one of the pioneer fishermen along the shore. Born at Mackinaw, he was used to the waters of Lake Michigan from boyhood up, and it was generally reported that no better boatman ever sailed on this lake.

Following are mail contracts for the coming four years: Traverse City to Elk Rapids, J. J. Dunn, of Traverse City; Traverse City to Northport, J. E. Mason, of Athens, Mich.; Traverse City to Frankfort, F. J. Smith, of Petoskey; Eastport to Charlevoix, Jas. Archer, of Eastport; Charlevoix to Petoskey, G. W. Cook, of Charlevoix; Frankfort to Pierport, Wm. A. Baker; Cross Village to St. James, (Beaver Island), W. J. Clarke; Cross Village to Harbor Springs, Amos Burnett; Traverse City to Glen Haven, J. D. Emerson, of Ohio.

Geo. Ray, who was lately removed from the Glen Arbor postoffice for "offensive partisanship," had one of the longest postoffice experiences of any man in Michigan. He was first appointed Sept. 3, 1840, by John M. Niles, then postmaster general, and he has held office under every administration since that time. Once before removal was made for the same reason as now given, but reappointment soon followed. The only vacation was a short one made necessary by removal from Ohio to Michigan. It was an almost continuous service of forty-seven years. This is a hard record to beat.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. Enos, superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

THE SCHOOLS.

Report of Charlevoix Schools for the Month ending Feb. 25th, 1887.

NO. ENROLLED.

1st Department	37
2nd Department	46
3d Department	38
4th Department	43
5th Dep't Grammar Section	33
5th Dep't High School	37
Total	234

NO. BELONGING.

1st Department	31
2nd Department	39
3d Department	35
4th Department	46
5th Dep't Grammar Section	32
5th Dep't High School	34
Total	214

DAYS ATTENDANCE.

1st Department	575½
2nd Department	681½
3d Department	634½
4th Department	756
5th Dep't Grammar Section	540½
5th Dep't High School	641½
Total	3,840½

DAYS LOST BY ABSENCE.

1st Department	39
2nd Department	71½
3d Department	36
4th Department	29
5th Dep't Grammar Section	15½
5th Dep't High School	17
Total	208

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE.

1st Department	28.8
2nd Department	35.9
3d Department	33
4th Department	38.2
5th Dep't Grammar Section	29.5
5th Dep't High School	32.3
Total	197.7

ATTENDANCE, PER CENT OF NUMBER BELONGING.

1st Department	95.1
2nd Department	93.2
3d Department	96.5
4th Department	98
5th Dep't Grammar Section	98.5
5th Dep't High School	98.6
Total	96.6

CASES TARDY.

1st Department	19
2nd Department	25
3d Department	8
4th Department	2
5th Dep't Grammar School	1
5th Dep't High School	1
Total	56

NO. PUPILS NEITHER ABSENT NOR TARDY DURING THE MONTH.

1st Department	10
2nd Department	12
3d Department	18
4th Department	22
5th Dep't Grammar Section	11
5th Department, High School	19
Total	95

Report of Ironton Schools for Month Ending Feb. 25th, 1887.

Whole number enrolled	78
Grammar Department	35
Primary Department	43
Average daily attendance	64
Grammar Department	33
Primary Department	31

Results of examinations, A Grade: Arthur Miller, 96; Maggie Munson, 86; Nellie Noyes, 93; Eddie Bird, 94.

B Grade: Charlie Box, 86; Frank Williams, 92; Walter Bird, 97; Lewis Hammond, 88; Amos Box, 93; Girwin Parish, 94; Martin Schoffen, 94; Caroline Nelson, 96; Mary Schoffen, 97; Katie Maroney, 98; Nellie Hammond, 95; Selina Saunders, 89; Cassie Box, 92; Mary Kneudson, 95; Nettie Waldron, 95.

C Grade: Wilbur King, 86; Eddie Williams, 80; Bertie King, 94; Oley Nelson, 72; Frankie Box, 83; Walter Williams, 86; Matthew Saunders, 82; Bertie Waldron, 80; Peter Kneudson, 92; Myrtle Shoats, 93, Jennie Hunt, 72; Mary Boyer, 89; Martha Saunders, 85; Mary Maroney, 86.

A Grade, Primary: Emma Bird, 85; John Hodge, 78; Samuel Clarke, 66; Lizzie Garland, 81; Mary Saunders, 81; Archie Miller, 75; David Vaugh, 99.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

(13) The seven wonders of the world were, (1) Pyramids of Egypt; (2) The Pharos of Alexandria; (3) The walls and hanging gardens of Babylon; (4) The Temple of Diana at Ephesus; (5) Statue of Olympian Jupiter; (6) Mausoleum of Artemisia; (7) Colossus of Rhodes.

(14) It takes eight shoes to shoe an ox.

(15) The first railroad was operated in 1826; the first steamboat in 1807; the first telegraph in 1844; all in the United States.

(16) "Two times two are four" and "two times two is four" are both correct according to circumstances in which used.

(17) Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury under Lincoln, was the author of "Greenbacks."

(18) Wasps were the first paper makers.

(19) In Van Buren's administration, the people, for the only time failed to elect a vice-President.

(20) The hen can not swim as well as the duck, because not web-footed.

"What is sometimes hastily set down as 'diligence in business' is not always profitable. There was once a man who, though never idle, was always behind-hand. Everybody wondered what the trouble was, but one incident revealed the cause. Being employed to fence a piece of land, he began before breakfast and dug twenty-five holes. 'A good day's work well done' said his employer. But judge of his surprise when it was discovered that they were all different distances apart. He brought no system to his work, and it all had to be done over again.

Another incident of the late war illustrates the point that real diligence is that which plans to avoid useless labor. A soldier was wounded. His life was fast ebbing away. The surgeon sat by his side a full minute and thought. In one minute more the man was safe. 'What made you wait so long before you went to work?' asked an attendant. 'I knew the man had at least two minutes to live,' he said 'and I took one of them to think what to do.' He did the right thing and saved the soldier's life."—School Journal.

"Many a pupil dashes into his problems or language exercises, without thinking, to find perhaps when it is too late to amend it, that it is mostly wrong, and that he must pass in a blotched and patched paper (a true index of his mental character) or fail entirely. This habit is really the result of laziness and lack of principle. The time spent in making a haphazard experiment often leaves no time for correction. 'Be sure you're right, then go ahead.' If you can't be absolutely sure, then be as sure as you possibly can.

"Out of 1,500 students in the university, the parents of 501 are farmers, of 171 are merchants, of 51 are clergymen, of 65 are mechanics; and of the students three-fifths are either wholly or in part, paying their own way through college. These figures only corroborate the statistics compiled by State Superintendent Gass, showing that our high school students are largely from the laboring classes. The poor man who antagonizes higher education, is an enemy to his fellows, and only needs enlightenment in order to be set right."—Moderator.

The following problem is handed in for solution: I sent to a dealer 20 cents for 20 pencils and he sent me three kinds. Some were 4 cents each, some 2 for a cent and some 4 for a cent. How many of each did I receive? Remember I received 20 pencils for my money.

Sir John MacDonald will sit on the high seat of Canada's political chariot and drive a while longer.

The New York Tribune thinks if the President were tendered a renomination he wouldn't go off and drown himself.

Bismark was victorious in the recent German elections. He will have 50 majority in favor of his military measures in the parliament. It will, it is thought, be the means of preserving the peace of Europe.

Fred D. Grant says he spent twenty-six years of his life in the society of his father and he never saw him intoxicated. With true filial affection, the son regards him as the best and purest man he ever saw.

A second constitutional amendment has been submitted to the people by the legislature to be voted on in April, it being one relative to the salaries of state officers. It fixes the salaries as follows: Circuit judges, $2,500; governor, $5,000; attorney general, $3,000 and $2,500 each for the state treasurer, secretary of state, commissioner of the state land office and the superintendent of public instruction.

The Republican State Convention held in Detroit last week nominated Judge Campbell and Col Chas. D. Long, for justices of the Supreme court, and R. W. Butterfield, of Grand Rapids, and Chas. Hubbard, of the Upper Peninsula, for Regents. The resolutions adopted form a model platform. They are short and direct to the point, and such as appeal to the intelligent judgment and the common sense of men. The Convention did right in leaving the Amendment question just where it has been placed by the Legislature—in the hands of the electors, without regard to partisan ties, to be disposed of by them at the polls on the first Monday in April.

They say that it would not do for this great Republic to annex the provinces of Canada and to make out of them half a dozen new states or more in the Union, because they owe a public debt of $220,000,000, and each Canadian family has to contribute every year $9.27 toward the interest, while here in the United States each family has to pay only $4.15 for a similar purpose. The debt of Canada is very big, to be sure, but if the provinces really want to "jine" the Yankee Nation, we can afford to overlook that, interest or no interest, and bid them welcome. After coming under the Stars and Stripes they will get rich so fast that their old debt will soon be of no account.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of a mortgage made by [illegible] Walker, Benjamin [illegible] and [illegible] Marie [illegible] his wife, of Charlevoix county, to David Carpenter of Blissfield, Michigan, bearing date July 10, 1880, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix county, July 22, 1880 in Liber 3 of mortgages on page [illegible] ... Now therefore, notice is hereby given that on Friday, the 4th day of March, 1887, at one o'clock p. m. of said day, at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Boyne City in said county of Charlevoix, Michigan, said mortgage will be foreclosed under the power of sale therein contained and the statute in such case made and provided, by a sale at public auction to the highest bidder of the premises described in said mortgage ... [illegible] ... of section twenty-eight (28) township thirty-four (34) North of Range seven (7) west, Charlevoix county, state of Michigan.

Dated December 7th, 1886.

DAVID CARPENTER, Mortgagee.
DART & CALL, Att'ys for Mortgagee.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr Crouter.

Pan-Zama Balm.

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Troubles, which [illegible] ... Reliable Lady Agents can make money ... For medicine, particulars, Address PAN-ZAMA MED. CO., Frankfort, Ind.

CROSS & SONS., Buy and Sell all kinds of Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc. Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY, Photographer. In Bradbeer's Gallery. Photographs of all sizes taken. Old Pictures copied and enlarged. CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

SILVER WARE. I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures. My Stock of Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete. If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum. All classes of Repairing done quickly. C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick, ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR, —ON— Chalevoix Summer Resorts. I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages. I employ only first-class workmen, both Carpenters and Painters. Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention. J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

CHARLEVOIX Manufacturing Co. Charlevoix, Mich., Manufacturers of Sash and Doors, Blinds, Mouldings etc. NEWELL Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails kept in stock. Window & Door Frames made to order. All Kinds of Building Material Kept constantly on hand. PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS, Furnished on application. Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building. Correspondence solicited.

Washburn & Ackert, FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS, And Manufacturers of The Charlevoix Plow.

CHARLEVOIX Savings Bank. Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan. Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice-Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier. DIRECTORS. Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, O. D. Wood, A. Buttars, A. Fox, F. A. Smith. CAPITAL, $25,000. SURPLUS, 2,000. The liability of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Art. 3174 Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety. Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage. CORRESPONDENTS: National Park Bank, New York. Commercial Nat. Bank, Chicago. Nat. City Bank, Grand Rapids. Detroit Nat. Bank, Detroit.

Bank of Charlevoix, W. F. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier. CAPITAL, $25,000. Perfect Security Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its capital and conservative management. Its Officers Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to Speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal. Security in Banking Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and believing that it furnishes unusual guarantees, therefore, This Bank Invites People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings. This Bank Will Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money. Parties Seeking Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's Investment Notes, Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford Investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits. We Solicit Your Patronage.

Fox & Miller Offer a Mammoth Stock OF BOOTS, SHOES and other FOOT WEAR, --AT-- LOWER PRICES Than can be found elsewhere in the County. We have just secured a FIRST-CLASS SHOEMAKER, And will make Repairing a specialty. We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them. NOTHING SHODDY. Fox & Miller.

J. A. HEATH, FURNITURE —AND— JOBBING SHOP. Antrim Street, CHARLEVOIX, MICH. All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed. Manufacturer of BED SPRINGS. Give me call.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO. Charlevoix, Mich. Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers. 3 EXTRA GRADES OF FLOUR. Feed, Corn Meal, Graham. We will do custom work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the BEST BOATS! The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references. I will guarantee the best modelled easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the LEAST MONEY! All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made. LEAVE ORDERS with me for a boat for [illegible] season's use. I am bound to please you. Special facilities for storing boat liveries. J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co. We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS AND SHOES, which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Pacs, And Everything Usually kept in a country shoe store. We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear. Womens grain shoes for $1.25. Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers. Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD, Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at Wholesale or Retail All kinds of FRESH MEATS, SALT PORK, SMOKED & SALTED HAMS, Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage. Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS. Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates. A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S MARKET Is supplied with All Kinds Of MEATS At Lowest Prices. CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs. Corner of State & Mason sts. JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE! At Miss Spaulding's MILLINERY ROOMS, I will sell my entire stock of goods, except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only. Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $5.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed hat in the store. Come early and secure a Bargain. MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP! All kinds of Blacksmithing, At the Shop in the Foundry Building. Horseshoeing a specialty. ALL WORK GUARANTEED. M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH H. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GLOSTER, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. [Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.]

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors east of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st. Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC—Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Postoffice.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake Lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

K. O. T. M.—Bowen Tent No. 139, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 157, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. [illegible] R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 145, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron Sse.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—B. Suffield.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Hildings, W. A. Brown and C. Y. Cook.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, B. M. Lee, W. C. Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Bedau.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequaled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE, RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r. Charlevoix, - - Mich. Every convenience for the traveling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE, R. A. Campbell, Prop'r. Charlevoix, Mich. The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to steamboat landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE, W. C. Newman, Prop'r. Charlevoix, - - Mich. Fitted up with a view to the comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. B. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNROE'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address, JOHN MUNROE, Jr., Gen'l Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. [Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.]

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.
"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and north and [illegible] Michigan.

Going West read down		Stations	Going East read up
7 00 am	3 45 pm	Detroit	11 15 am
	6 50	St Ignace	8 30 pm	5 50 pm
10 21	8 52	Newberry	6 21	2 05
12 20	9 40	Seney	5 15	12 35
	10 42	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 25	9 05
3 30	11 40	Marquette	3 15	7 10
	12 50 pm	Marquette	2 10 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 54
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	6 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 35	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with [illegible]
E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt. Marquette.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.
(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No 6	No 8	No 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	8 30 p m
Petoskey	8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 16	11 30
Mancelona	10 18	12 30
Walton Junc	11 50	1 20
Cadillac Ar	12 46	2 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Lv	12 45	6 05	6 10
Le Roy	1 24	6 40	6 30
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 07
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	7 40
Big Rapids	2 46	8 11	8 30
Stanwood	3 05	8 30	8 31
Howard City	3 33	9 03	8 55
D G H & M Cross	4 40	9 03	9 26
Grand Rapids Ar	[illegible]	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	10 15	10 50
Plainwell	8 36	5 15	11 45
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	6 40	1 12
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 10	1 45
Sturgis	10 27	7 30	1 00
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	8 50	3 25
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 20	6 00
Richmond	4 30	11 45
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No 1	No 5	No 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 20	10 00
Fort Wayne Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	1 35
Sturgis	4 21	3 00
Kalamazoo Ar	5 45	6 25
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	6 55
Plainwell	6 16	7 20
Grand Rapids Ar	7 40	7 45
Grand Rapids Lv	7 40	9 20
D., G., H. & M. cross	11 45	4 45
Howard City	12 51	5 10
Stanwood	1 22	6 18
Big Rapids	1 15	6 48
Reed City Ar	3 15	7 09
Reed City Lv	2 35	7 40
Le Roy	3 08	8 00
Cadillac Ar	4 45	8 33
Cadillac Lv	5 55	9 10
Walton Junc	7 55	9 30
Mancelona	8 16	10 25
Boyne Falls	7 11	11 50
Petoskey	7 50	12 05
Mackinaw City	9 30	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

A BIT OF RIBBON.

Outside, the keen, sharp winds of a cold winter day, the particles of snow and ice gleaming like diamonds in the bright rays of the sun, which possessed no power to melt them. Inside, in the light, clean ward of the H—— Hospital, warmth and brightness and comfort; rows of neat white cots on either side, and nurses in white caps and aprons flitting to and fro, in constant attendance upon the sufferers lying there.

At the farther extremity of the long ward, where the sunshine fell softly over the white-draped cot, lay a little girl of eight years, but so small, so frail and delicate, she seemed scarcely more than half that age. An accident on the street, several weeks before, had seriously injured her, and as no one seemed to claim or care for her, she had been brought to the hospital.

The skill of the ablest physicians and the constant care of skilled nurses had, however, been able to do little more than to give temporary relief from the severe pain she constantly suffered, but her gentleness and patience had won the hearts of all about her.

To-day she lay quietly upon her cot, twisting in and out over her slender fingers a strip of bright tinsel paper, which she now and then held in the sunlight, turning it to and fro to catch the lustre upon its shining surface. Then, folding it softly, she tried to fashion a tiny bow, but the stiff, brittle paper parted in her hands, and fell in shining bits over the white coverlid. With a patient sigh, she dropped her hands and turned wearily upon her pillow.

Dr. Jay, one of the visiting physicians, was making his morning tour of the hospital, and had stopped for a moment to watch the child's patient endeavors to amuse herself. The case had been one which had interested him deeply. Poor little Maggie! Her patience and gentleness had won his sympathies.

"She seems to have a peculiar love for everything bright and pretty," the nurse said, in answer to a low-toned remark from Dr. Jay. "She will amuse herself for hours with some bit of paper or string."

"You should petition for a supply of dolls," was the doctor's humorous rejoinder. "I think in this case they would be more beneficial than medicine," and with a smile and a pleasant word to the child, and a few directions to the nurse, he passed on.

The next day, in making his morning round of calls, he was delayed a few moments by a passing procession. His carriage had stopped just in front of the windows of a millinery store, and a piece of bright brocaded ribbon caught his eye.

In an instant there rose before him the pale face of his little hospital patient, and her piece of tinsel paper, and the next moment he had put a five-dollar bill in the hand of his colored coachman, as he took the reins from him.

"Run in there, Jim, and buy me two yards of that flowered ribbon," he said; and five minutes later the procession had passed, and he was driving down the street, with the package of ribbon stowed away in his capacious pockets. He seemed perfectly indifferent to the fact that Jim had returned but two dollars of the five, and to the apparent absurdity of paying three dollars for a gift to a child who, doubtless, could not have told the difference between this elegant fabric and a piece of ten-cent ribbon.

But if any one had dared to hint that he had committed a piece of folly, he would simply have shrugged his shoulders indifferently. Dr. Jay's kindnesses were never done by halves.

"There, Maggie, you can make a bow out of that to suit you," he said, pleasantly, as, an hour later, he stood by the little one's cot, and unrolling the ribbon, let it fall in lovely shimmering waves over the white coverlid.

The child's large dark eyes opened wide in surprise and delight; there was a quick indrawing of the breath, a clasping of the thin white hands in an ecstasy of rapture too deep for words.

At last she stretched out her hands, touched lightly the shining folds, drew them softly through her fingers, and laid them against her cheek with loving tenderness, as if the ribbon had been some animate creature.

It was indeed a lovely piece of goods; a soft, lustrous background of bright, delicate blue, over which was carelessly strewn half-opened moss-roses and buds, the deep pink of the flowers and soft shaded green of the leaves forming a lovely contrast to the lustrous blue of the groundwork.

Older eyes than Maggie's, and those more accustomed to luxuries, might have dilated in delight at sight of so beautiful a gift.

"And is it mine—for true?" she said, at last, as if such great good fortune could not possibly be hers.

"Yes, all your own, to do just as you choose with."

"Oh! oh!" was all the delighted child could say, but there was such a world of love and gratitude in the depths of the soft, dark eyes, that Dr. Jay turned away with suspiciously wet eye-lashes.

"You have made a heaven for little Maggie," the head nurse said, upon his next call. "I never saw such pleasure as the child takes with that bit of ribbon. She has certainly made a hundred different combinations of bows and dolls and all sorts of fancy fixings out of it. She is a queen, a fairy princess, and everything else by turns. Once I offered to cut it for her, that she might make bows more conveniently. You should have seen her. She hugged it up to her, and looked at me with such frightened, pleading eyes, one would certainly have thought it was some living creature I was going to harm. There, just look at her! Isn't she a picture?"

She certainly was a most lovely picture, as the doctor came up to the little bed. The dark eyes were bright with happiness, and the pale cheeks flushed a delicate pink, rivalling the roses on her beautiful gift. Pain and sorrow were all forgotten in the delight of her new possession.

She had evidently exercised all her taste and skill in arranging her beloved ribbon to the best advantage, in anticipation of the doctor's visit. It was looped and bowed and festooned in a most graceful manner about her head and form, for, all unknown to herself, Maggie had inherited all the taste and skill of the loving, gentle little French mother who, deserted by the one who should have been her protector, had died broken-hearted at the birth of her child.

"If she could but see how pretty she looks!" the nurse said, softly.

The next day when, from the capacious pockets of his overcoat, Dr. Jay brought forth a small hand-mirror, and held it before the eyes of the delighted child, her cup of happiness was overflowing.

Every night the beloved gift was carefully smoothed and folded in tissue paper. With one bunch of roses turned on the outside of the package, and with a tender pressure of it against her cheek, and a loving good-night kiss, Maggie would fall asleep, her hand resting lovingly upon its soft, lustrous folds. At her best waking moments it was unrolled, and the delight of manifold manipulations recommenced, with ever fresh delight.

But there came a day when even the possession of her heart's treasure could not overcome the terrible pain which racked her slight frame.

For days she had been growing worse, and the physicians saw no hope save in an operation difficult and dangerous, one which if unsuccessful must result fatally.

They had postponed it from week to week, hoping for a favorable result without it. But one morning Dr. Jay found Maggie lying so white and exhausted from pain and sleeplessness, he saw clearly that there was no alternative.

She seemed unconscious of his presence, even when he pressed the thin white hand as he felt her pulse. The pallid, pain-marked face, the limp, wasted little form, appealed most pathetically to his kind heart, and bending over her, he pressed a kiss of fatherly tenderness on the white forehead. Her large dark eyes suddenly unclosed, the warm blood flashed the pale cheeks, and a smile of tender, loving delight flashed over her face.

"Is the pain so hard to bear, dear child?" he asked, sympathetically.

"It is better now," was her low reply.

Ah, how little Dr. Jay suspected, as the dark eyes followed him with such worshipful tenderness, that his kiss was the first caress the poor child had ever known! Kicks and cuffs and drunken oaths had been often showered upon her, but a father's kiss, a mother's tender caress, poor Maggie—worse than orphaned—had never known.

"There must be an operation without delay," was Dr. Jay's decision, after a brief consultation with the house physicians. "To-morrow at eleven at the very latest. She cannot live over forty-eight hours in her present condition."

Then to the head nurse whom he had summoned, "You will please tell her, Mrs. Hatch, sufficient to have her understand the necessity of the operation. She seems unusually intelligent, and it will save her from fright and nervousness, and she needs everything possible in her favor. Do not tell her until an hour before the operation; let her sleep to-night if she can under the opiate, without knowing it."

So at ten o'clock next morning the nurse, in the most tender manner possible, explained to the child, so far as she thought necessary, the operation she was about to undergo, concluding with—

"We hope to make you strong and well again, dear."

"Will they hurt me very much?" Maggie asked, her lip quivering notwithstanding her brave efforts at self-control.

"Not very much, and you will know nothing about it; they will give you something to put you to sleep until it is all over."

"Who will do it?"

"Dr. Jay."

"Oh, it's all right then!" with a glad smile of loving confidence; "he will save me for sure, if anybody can, and I know he won't hurt me."

When the hour arrived, without a murmur of dread or shrinking on her part, the little frail, emaciated form was laid upon the operation table, her hand tightly clasping the beloved ribbon even in that dread hour.

She glanced from one to another of the grave faces of nurses and physicians who stood around, looking in vain for Dr. Jay, who, delayed by patients, had but just arrived. She called his name softly, and hastening to her side, he bent over her with a kindly, reassuring smile. The thin, wasted little hands were eagerly outstretched to him, and the face lighted up with a smile of loving tenderness as she said, softly—

"I'm not afraid if you do it—you'll save me if you can, I know—but if I should die"—she hesitated, stopped, looked up appealingly into the kind face above her.

"What is it, dear?" he asked reassuringly.

"Would you mind—would you care—if—I"—her voice sank lower and lower, as she hesitated, her eyes still wearing that appealing look—"would you—let me kiss you—just once—before I go to sleep? I mightn't wake up, you know, and you've been so good to me." Still lower, almost a whisper, "No one ever kissed me before you did!"

Did Dr. Jay think of his own petted darling at home—his only child—to whom life had been one long caress? and did he feel the contrast between her and this poor homeless little waif, to whom caresses were unknown luxuries?

Perhaps so. There certainly were tears in his kind eyes as he tenderly raised the frail little form in his arms and pressed her to his breast.

The slender, childish arms were clasped about his neck, and her lips met his with a tender, clinging kiss. For a moment her cheeks nestled fondly against his, then touching her lips lightly to his forehead, she sank softly back upon her pillow.

"Will you hold my hand, please, while I go to sleep?" she asked, pleadingly.

Dr. Jay clasped the frail little hand in his broad warm palm, and with her beloved ribbon tightly held in the other hand, Maggie fell asleep.

At the end of half an hour it was over, and Maggie slowly unclosed her eyes.

Then glancing down as if searching for something, the lips moved faintly.

"What is it, dear?" Dr. Jay asked, bending near her lips.

"My ribbon," came faintly to his ear.

Picking it up from the floor where it had fallen, he laid it in her outstretched hand. Feebly she raised it to her cheek, her lips, then the hand fell, with a slight tender pressure on that of Dr. Jay. The eyes met his with a world of tender, loving devotion, then their light faded, and little Maggie was safe from pain and sorrow.—Jennie P. Arnold, in Youth's Companion.

One of the celebrities of Florida is "Alligator Platt," who lives in Kissimmee City, and is noted for his exploits in catching saurians. His method is said to be to jump into a stream in pursuit of an alligator, and if necessary, diving under water for his victim, whom he manages to subdue by getting his fingers in the creature's eyes, and then riding him ashore in triumph. Platt claims that he can manage the largest alligators in this manner.

The Weiner Med. Zeitung describes Koch, the discoverer of the cholera and the tubercle bacillus, as being a medium sized, slender man, with an earnest, inquiring countenance. His hair, which is whitening, makes him appear older than his actual age, which is 41. Born in Klausthal, he studied medicine in Gottingen, and practiced in Posen. He studied microscopy under Cohn in Breslau, and earned his first professorship through his investigations into wound infection and splenic-fever.

The Habits of a Centenarian.

M. Chevreul has a considerable library of his own, which has been [illegible] by the [illegible] of [illegible] which his son, a bibliophile like himself, has helped him to find. His good life has been engaged in thought, and concentrated upon the studies from which such useful discoveries have resulted. He has kept himself in good condition and happy by work and moderation. His wife, who has now been dead for more than twenty years, attended to his comforts with all the devotion which such superior minds are able to invoke. His only son, a retired magistrate, lives at Dijon. The illustrious old man lives, therefore, alone, with his books for companions, by the aid of which he is able to converse with his brethren, the great ones of mankind, the Newtons and the Galileos. When not among his books, he is at his laboratory in the Gobelins, where he goes on with his experiments with a dexterity still quite juvenile.

M. Chevreul possesses a large fortune, which is augmented from year to year by the rewards of his scientific labors. His life therefore passes along placidly, enlivened by the pleasure of seeing the closing years of his career emphasized by ovations to his merit. He has witnessed the birth of all the scientific discoveries of our century, and has beheld the marvelous spectacle of the development of modern industry.

M. Chevreul is tall, and bears to this day an erect body. Of elegant manners and incomparable affability, he rarely fails to receive you with a smile. His head is a very fine one, with a broad and massive forehead, shaded with white locks. He is a man of wit as well as of genius. Recently, when engaging a new preparator for his laboratory, he said to him: 'You must have a good deal of courage to take this place; I have killed four preparators already.' We recollect, says M. Tissandier, seeing him at a ball in the Elysee, at midnight, of a winter night, fresh and lively, surrounded by ladies whom he was gayly entertaining, with an exquisite and charming grace.

M. Chevreul is very sober. He drinks nothing but water and beer, except that, by the special request of Minister Goblet, he for the first time in his life departed from his abstinence to drink a glass of champagne in response to the sentiment "Vive la France!" at his century-banquet; and to his temperance, with his robust constitution and his prudent, regular, and industrious life, he doubtless owes his survival to so high an age.—W. H. Larrabee, in Popular Science Monthly.

A Peculiar Piece of Work.

A woman from Cleveland, Ohio, had rather a peculiar piece of work done last week at a Union square jeweler's shop. Ten years ago she was a willowy blonde whose figure was as lithe as Sarah Bernhardt's. At this time she allowed a bracelet to be locked on her slender arm, and made a promise that it never would be removed. The donor of the golden band died, and the pretty blonde married a young society man. Time has not dealt fairly with her, for the beautifully-moleded figure is now almost too pronounced in its curves for beauty. The white arm is just as fair as ever, but it, too, is more rounded than formerly. The bracelet alone had not until a few days ago increased in size. In fact, it had become so tight as to cut into the flesh, and when its owner was in evening dress it created remark. So she came on to New York, and her case was put before a skillful workman. He thought it over, and finally told her that if she would spend three days in his work-room he thought he could enlarge the bracelet and yet not take it from her arm nor break the circle. A cast was taken of the closely-woven links, and three new ones, exact fac-similes of the old ones, were made. Then the fair arm was stretched out on a shelf and the new gold was caught into the old by fine wires. Two of the old links were cut out and the new ones slowly and carefully substituted for them, the improvised wire links keeping the bracelet a unit, as it were, all the time. The woman spent in all eighteen hours in the place, and a lot of money. As it is said that all her family grow stout, she will perhaps have to have the ornament enlarged several times.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Dr. G. W. Crouter and Crouter & Harris, Ironton, can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free.

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by Dr. G. W. Crouter.

SOMETHING NEW. WORLD RENOWNED CENTRE DRAFT PLOW.

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it
1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.
The Beam is not bolted to the [illegible] ... Centre of the [illegible] Draft ... If your Agent has none write us for prices. MANUFACTURED ONLY BY J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS, RACINE, Wis.

MARVELOUS PRICES! BOOKS FOR THE MILLION. Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. ...
2. Winter Evening Recreations, ...
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay ...
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, ...
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, ...
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, ...
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, ...
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. ...
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, ...
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, ...
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, ...
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, ...
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, ...
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, ...
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, ...
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. ...
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, ...
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, ...
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, ...
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, ...
24. 87 Popular Ballads. ...
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway, ...
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, ...
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," ...
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, ...
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, ...
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, ...
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, ...
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, ...
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, ...
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, ...
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, ...
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, ...
39. Robinson Crusoe. ...
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. ...
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, ...
42. Gems of the Poets, ...
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. ...
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, ...
45. Æsop's Fables. ...

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER. We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $2.00; or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S LIVERY STABLE CHARLEVOIX. The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand. Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low. Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

MERCHANT TAILORING. I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring. Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates. Call and see me. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours, C. H. Maddaugh.

Farming Lands. 500,000 ACRES Of Splendid MICHIGAN LANDS For Sale By The G. R. & I. R. R. 50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co. These lands are timbered with beech and maple, elm and other wood and are a credit to [illegible]. By Water and Rail. And are in a state unequalled for health, well watered and contiguous to the great fruit raising section of Michigan. The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. [illegible] Not a Wilderness by any Means. It contains a population of [illegible] ... settlers from almost every state in the Union. Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold. Send for English or German Pamphlet. Address W. R. HUGHART, Commissioner, GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. TITLE PERFECT.

The Kalamazoo "DAILY TELEGRAPH." Contains the Associated Press Dispatches. Sent by Mail at 50c a month.

MORE SAP! SAP PAILS, Sap Pans, - Sap Spiles. ATKINS SAWS, PERFECTION AXES, JOB and TIN WORK. L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and STATIONERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION. A Large and Complete New Line JUST RECEIVED. EVERYTHING YOU CAN THINK OF. You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices. PERRY WEED. The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN Boiler Works! Builder and Manufacturer of BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS. Sheet Iron Work given special attention. MARINE WORK a specialty. HENRY BARTH, Prop. Charlevoix, Mich.

AUTOMATIC Single Thread Sewing Machines will absolutely take the place of Shuttle Machines. No woman ever wants a Shuttle Machine after trying an Automatic. Address, 78 W. 23d St., New York City.

CURES Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases. YOUNG'S COUGH SYRUP. [Testimonials: Dansville, Mich. ... REV. ROBT. COPE. | Howell, Mich., ... REV. S. D. KIMMELL.] Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price. W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Take The Sentinel.

FRANK E. WOODS Bath & Barber Rooms. Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

MONEY TO LOAN, At current rates of interest, on Approved Real Estate Security. School Bonds bought and sold. MILEY & CHAPIN, Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER ROOMS. Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House. If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me. JAY L. PRICE.

MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS! Mrs. ELLA SMITH & Miss ANNIE COOPER Have opened a store in the Ingleside Building, and invite their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of FANCY GOODS! Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

For Finest JOB WORK, Patronize The Sentinel.

GELLICK & INGALLS Dealers in Choice Wines, Fine Liquors EXCELLENT CIGARS. We call Special Attention to our Old Kentucky Sour Mash WHISKIES. We also keep continually on draught Milwaukee Export and lager Beer. Bridge St., 2d door south of [illegible].

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, - Publishers

Antidote for Cancer.

About thirteen years ago a woman belonging to the middle walks of life, suffering from cancer, was pronounced beyond their skill by the physicians of Shrewsbury Infirmary, England, the tumor being in such close proximity to the jugular vein that, rather than risk the imperiling of her life, they deemed it best not to undertake such an operation.

Straightway after this announcement was made she returned to her home, which was three miles from Oswestry, the nearest railway station in the County of Montgomery, North Wales. Here she became a greater sufferer, when one day she bethought herself of a neighbor, whom she soon found, and with all the eloquence of one enthralled by an implacable foe she appealed to her sympathy. "If it were possible," she implored, "do, do something to assuage my pain." With that tenderness and willingness characteristic of every true and noble woman to allay her sister's many pains this friend, for she proved a friend in need and deed, forthwith sent her boys (one of whom is our informant) to gather what in the United States is known as sheep sorrel; by the people of England as "sour leaf or the cuckoo plant;" in the Welsh language, to the people of North Wales, as "dail surion y gog." To this timely opportunity, and the efficacy of this herb as an antidote for cancer, this sufferer is in a large measure indebted for her health and life to-day, while not the slightest vestige of this hitherto unconquerable disease is to be found.

The leaves were wrapped in brown paper so tight as to make the package impervious to air. This package was then placed beneath an open grate and covered with the hot ashes of the same. When sufficiently cooked it was removed and in as hot a state as possible and not to burn it was now applied, the leaves being in direct contact with the ulcer, which was firmly held to the part affected by a linen handkerchief. Strange to say, at the expiration of one month the tumor came away and has not since appeared. For the first four days the pain was most excruciating, but gradually decreased as it became loosened. There is much to be said in favor of this method over that of the knife. The nature of its drawing power in the form of poultice, though at first very severe, still is gradual and sure, while new blood rushes into the vacuum caused by removal, thus serving as a fitting helpmeet for aiding and stimulating nature's efforts, and in the meantime the arteries which feed this fell destroyer are given a greater impulse to move rapidly, flow healthy, and strengthen the weaker parts as fast as it egresses.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE COST OF REDEMPTION.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage recently delivered the following in the Tabernacle at Brooklyn, N. Y., taking for his text: Ye are bought with a price.—[I Corinthians, vi., 20.

Your friend takes you through his valuable house. You examine the arches, the fresco, the grass-plots, the fish-ponds, the conservatories, the parks of deer, and you say within yourself, or you say aloud:

"What did all this cost?"

You see costly apparel, or you see a high mettled span of horses harnessed with silver and gold, and you begin to make an estimate of the value. The man who owns a large estate can not instantly tell you what it is all worth. He says:

"I will estimate so much for the house, so much for the furniture, so much for laying out the grounds, so much for the stock, so much for the barn, so much for the equipage—adding up, in all making this aggregate."

Well, my friends, I hear so much about our mansion in heaven, about its furniture and the grand surroundings, that I want to know how much it is all worth, and what has actually been paid for it. I can not complete in a month or in a year the magnificent calculation; but before I get through to-day I hope to give you the figures.

Ye are bought with a price.

With some friends I went into London Tower to look at the crown jewels of England. We walked around, caught one glimpse of them, and being in the procession were compelled to pass out. I wish that to-day I could take this audience into the tower of God's mercy and strength, that you might walk around just once, at least, and see the crown jewels of eternity, behold their brilliance and estimate their value.

Ye are bought with a price.

Now, if you have a large amount of money to pay, you do not pay it all at once, but you pay it by installments—so much the 1st of January, so much the 1st of April, so much the 1st of July, so much the 1st of October—until the entire amount is paid. And I have to tell this audience that "You have been bought with a price," and that that price was paid in different installments.

The first installment paid for the clearance of our souls was the ignominious birth of Christ in Bethlehem. Though we may never be carefully looked after afterwards, our advent into the world is carefully guarded. We come into the world amid kindly attention. Privacy and silence are afforded when God launches an immortal soul into the world. Even the roughest of men know enough to stand back. But I have to tell you that in the village on the side of the hill there was a very bedlam of uproar when Jesus was born. One would have supposed that Christ would have made a more gradual descent...

...the coming on of a night that soothes and refreshes; it was the swinging of a great gloom all around the heavens. God hung it. As when there is a dead one in the house you bow the shutters or turn the lattice, so God in the afternoon shut the windows of the world. As it is appropriate to throw a black pall upon the coffin as it passes along, so it was appropriate that everything should be somber that day as the great hearse of the earth rolled on, bearing the corpse of the King.

A man's last hours are ordinarily kept sacred. However you may have hated or caricatured a man, when you hear he is dying silence puts its hand on your lips, and you would have a loathing for the man who could stand by a death-bed making faces and scoffing. But Christ in his last hour can not be left alone. What! pursuing him after so long a pursuit. You have been drinking his tears, do you want to drink his blood? They came up closely, so that, notwithstanding the darkness, they can glut their revenge with the contortions of his countenance. They examine his feet. They want to feel for themselves whether those feet are really spiked. They put out their hands and touch the spikes, and bring them back wet with blood, and wipe them on their garments.

Women stand there and weep, but can do no good. It is no place for tender-hearted women. It wants a heart that crime has turned into granite. The waves of man's hatred and of hell's vengeance dash up against the mangled feet, and the hands of sin and pain and torture clutch for his holy heart. Had he not been thoroughly fastened to the cross they would have torn him down and trampled him with both feet...

THE LOVER'S REASONING.

Tell why I love her? Tell me why,
Turning from murky town and passing men,
You love the woodland path, and placid sky,
I'll answer then.

Why do I love her? Analyze
Where in the violet the perfume is,
Where in the music's strains the tears arise.
Can you do this?

Tell why I love her? Yes, when you
Reveal the secrets which in snowdrops lie,
Or strain the beauty from the drops of dew,
Then I'll tell why.

Why do I love her? First make clear
Whence steals through minster aisles and restful spell
That fills with mystic sense the atmosphere,
I then will tell.

Yes, love, I turn to thee from glare and crowd,
Tender as dales in spring, as summer's cloud,
Soothing as gentlest song, soft as perfume,
Purer than beads of dew, or snowdrops bloom.
In thy presence rest, where tumults cease,
The minster gate is closed, within is peace.

—Temple Bar.

THE LIEUTENANT'S MULE.

I have not, so far, given Lieut. D.'s father a reputation for veracity in his stories. The mention of the Vigilance Committee a few moments ago reminds me of one on him which will illustrate his character in another respect. In 1850 he was in California at a mining camp then called Hangtown, but now known as Placerville; Hangtown was well named, for it was the headquarters of the Vigilance Committee in that portion of the State, and more hangings of lawless characters were going on there per hour than in any other village, town, or city on earth. The little community had long suffered...

FARM AND HOME.

Warm the drinking water given milch cows.

The Western Rural believes butter is injured by being frozen.

If female breeding animals be too fat, the young will be weak and puny.

Over $100,000 worth of rabbit skins were exported last year from Tasmania.

Oats and corn mixed in equal weight make a good ration for fattening, especially young sheep.

The Normandy dairyman churns every day, no matter how small the amount of milk he has.

At this season, when you are feeding corn to hogs, remember that the more comfortably the hogs are housed the less corn will be required.

The children in Germany are taught horticulture in their schools. The same will be required some day in our now plentiful and wasteful country.

An impoverished or "worn out" soil means that it needs food. You may supply it with farm manures or with fertilizers. But the food must be supplied or the crops will be light.

Give plenty of green food now while the ground is frozen. Cabbages, onions and steamed chopped hay are very good for stimulating the fowls, and it will greatly increase the laying of eggs.

Mr. Pratt, of Brattleboro, Vt., thinks there is danger of feeding too much cotton seed to milk cows. He feeds one quart to each cow, but takes it with four times the bulk of ground grain, and allows also a bushel of ensilage twice a day.

There is no better food for hogs and poultry...

...or torn off and lost, and the horses lean and bare, left to pick up a living on the barest possible feed. To say nothing of the inhumanity of such care of stock, there is no economy in it and it is done at a loss to the farmer. Stalks set around barns will protect much from winds the animals confined in them. Shelters made of straw or any material that will keep off cold and storms should not be neglected. Reader, will you not shelter your stock?

Household Hints.

A little ammonia and borax in the water when washing blankets keeps the flannel soft and prevents shrinking.

Burning coke in the kitchen and laundry stoves saves many a big coal bill and makes a better fire for such purposes.

Casters made of leather are a new invention, sure to prove useful. A solid leather caster will save many a rug or carpet.

A dust-pan full of clean snow scattered over the carpet before sweeping will make the whole brighter than swept with a damp broom.

Windows and mirrors can be made to shine without long polishing, if after being washed in hot soap suds, they are rubbed dry with a newspaper.

The juice of two lemons in a glass of ice water before going to bed, and in the morning before breakfast the juice of one in water, will cure the system of an attack of biliousness.

Colored and black stockings, if washed before wearing at all, and a little beef's gall put in the water will never fade...

LEGAL OPINIONS.

After verdict rendered, it is too late to object that a juror was not of proper age, although the party was not aware of the fact prior to the verdict.—Maryland Court of Appeals.

Equity will interfere in behalf of the vendor to enable him to enforce his right to stoppage in transitu if it be necessary for the protection of the lien and the goods.—N. Y. Common Pleas.

A person is liable for catching fish in the prohibited season from water, though within his own land, unless it be so enclosed as to prevent the free passage of the fish.—New Hampshire Supreme Court.

A livery-stable keeper who lets a horse for hire for a trip, impliedly promises that the horse is a kind and suitable one for the purpose for which he is let, and not vicious nor in the habit of kicking.—Maine Supreme Judicial Court.

The wife's implied agency to act for her husband differs under different circumstances. She may ordinarily contract for domestic supplies and if abandoned by her husband without her fault, she may always pledge his credit for necessaries.—Iowa Supreme Court.

When a lot is conveyed as designated in a city plat, bounded on a navigable stream, with the water as a boundary, such conveyance carries with it the land under the water to the center of the stream. And any island between the shore and the center is appurtenant to the shore, and passes with it.—Michigan Supreme Court.

Section men employed by defendant...

IS THERE ANY HOPE?

NEW AND IMPORTANT OPINIONS OF PULMONARY EXPERTS.

Can the Universal Consumption be Successfully Treated?

Dr. Borreon, a leading French doctor, has a new treatment for consumption!

He gives an enema of carbonic acid and sulphuretted hydrogen gases, the latter gas carrying the former into every part of the throat and lungs.

This treatment, too, is directed at effects—the cause remains undisturbed.

What this cause is has been stated by perhaps the highest pulmonary authority in the world, i. e. the Brompton Hospital for Consumptives, in London, Eng.

This malady every year carries off from one-seventh to one-fifth of the entire population of England!

Dr. Payne, M. D., M. R. C. P., London, is authority for this statement.

The same or a greater proportion of deaths obtains in America.

Dr. Payne also says that one-half the total number of deaths from all other causes have seeds of this disease in the system which only require some irritant to develop!

Dr. Hermann Brehmer, an eminent German authority, says that consumption is caused by deficient nutrition of the lungs, by poor blood.

These authorities cannot be disputed. The medical world recognizes them. The uric acid is the irritant in the blood...

The Aurora Borealis.

Poetically speaking, Aurora is the goddess of the morning, who opens the gates of light, but in our ordinary language we almost always employ the term in a special and restricted sense.

In places far north, as Sweden, Lapland, Greenland and Siberia, the Aurora is singularly grand, and even terrific. It frequently occupies the whole heavens, and is so brilliant that it eclipses the splendor of the stars and the planets and the moon.

A more beautiful spectacle cannot be painted; but whoever should see such a northern light for the first time could not behold it without terror, for, however brilliant the illumination may be, it is attended, according to the testimony of many witnesses, with a hissing crackling, rushing noise, which resembles the discharge of the largest fireworks. The hunters who pursue the white and blue foxes on the confines of the icy sea, are frequently overtaken by these northern lights, and their dogs are then so much frightened that they will not move, but lie obstinately on the ground till the noise has passed.

Mrs. F. A. George, of Barre, Vt., who has used one package of Piso's Remedy for Catarrh, says in a letter dated March 15, 1886, that it is the first remedy, and she has tried many, that has been of any benefit to her.

Respecting the cause of this beautiful phenomenon, a great variety of theories have been proposed, but the most...

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869
CHARLEVOIX, MARCH 2, 1887.
WILLARD A. SMITH EDITOR
ED F. PARMELEE ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

The Prohibition Blunder.

On the 24th the prohibitionists held their convention in Lansing, and, with their usual assinine stupidity, placed in the field a third party ticket for Justices and Regents.

With the submission of the amendment to the people the prohibitionists had reached a result for the accomplishment of which they professed to have been devoting their energies. By consistent and concerted effort in the cause of the amendment, they had it in their power to enlist the aid of temperance people of both the great parties, and accomplish the more important result of constitutional prohibition.

But the prohibition demagogues could not be satisfied with the abstract issue of whiskey or no whiskey. By one fell stroke of holy zeal they have antagonized a strong element of the Republican party which constituted their chief hope, and the temperance cause in Michigan receives a set-back from which it cannot recover in this campaign.

Just what was to be accomplished by this move no prohibitionist can explain in any other way than that the "third party" seek to keep up their record for inconsistency and bad faith.

The Detroit Evening Journal has this to say concerning it: "The Michigan prohibitionists would probably have been wiser had they declined making any nominations, instead of antagonizing the Republicans with a ticket which will harm that party more than it will the Democratic party. By refusing to nominate they might have obtained a good many Republican votes for the prohibition amendment which they will now lose. It is not too late yet for the candidates to decline.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

The pastor of the Ironton M. E. church will give a discourse to the young people next Sabbath morning. At night he will address a mass temperance meeting. Everybody invited.

Amid the important interests crowding for place and attention please reserve time for teachers' meeting on Tuesday evening of next week. To be well qualified for the work you need to do in the vinyard of God attend the prayer meeting on Thursday evening.

At the meeting of the Quarterly Conference on Saturday, the pastor was requested to call a meeting of all members of the church, and all friends of Methodism, on Thursday evening of this week, immediately after the prayer meeting, to make plans for renovating our church edifice.

Because of the storm last Sabbath, the communion service was postponed. After preaching service next Sabbath, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. Come ye lovers of God, and celebrate his praise.

W. H. M.

Baptist Church.

The presentation of the subject of Foreign Missions was deferred one week, and will occur next Sunday morning. Usual evening service.

Preaching at Hilton's school house at 3 o'clock p. m.

Prof. Enos will deliver the third lecture of the course which will occur on Wednesday March 9, at Green's hall. Subject: "Conditions of success."

Norwood Notes.

The worst storm of the season occurred on Sunday.

No services on Sunday on account of the storm.

J. C. Guyles was in town Friday.

Fred Meech and wife were in town over Sunday.

Mrs. Benjamin, of Portland, will speak at this place on the 12th of March. She comes under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., and will speak on the subject of prohibition.

Henry Wagoner, who was cut on the knee some two weeks since, died on Saturday night from the effects of blood-poisoning.

Joseph Wheaton's wife, who has been sick with dropsy for a long time, died on Sunday.

The snow-shoe club, referred to in the SENTINEL of last week, have been rusticating in Norwood for a few days. They have improved their practice so much that one pair of snow-shoes will answer for both.

The quotation should be "Two hearts with but a single thought; two soles that beat as one." The junior editor is advised to go armed, as he is threatened with dire vengeance.

Hastings from Hayes.

We are home again; have shaken hands with our friends, been barked at by the dogs, took off our coat, spit on our hands, ready to tackle most anything, from a job of dock-whalloping, to the presidency of a National bank.

Wm. Gray moved to Charlevoix last week. He has rented his farm to John Shunton.

About two weeks ago, Geo. Lewis, nephew of G. O. Scott, caught his left hand in a feed-cutter, and almost severed the fingers from the hand. He has been at Charlevoix since, under the care of Dr. Carlstein, and will return home this week. The fingers are healing nicely.

A. R. Strathers has placed the machinery of the saw-mill lately bought of Stroud & Dilworth, on his farm on Oyster Bay.

The school in Dist. No. 1, Charles Wilcox, teacher, and No. 2, Miss Hannah Bell, teacher, closed Friday.

The school at Burgess gave a very pleasant entertainment last Wednesday evening.

The revival at Maple Grove, under the management of Rev. J. F. Crane, is resulting in much good.

WANTED. A steady situation in a store. Six years experience. Address D. C. BACON, Box 233, Charlevoix.

ANNUAL HISTORY

Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned from the Files of the Sentinel.

1874.

The first of January, the name of Bear River postoffice was changed to that of Petoskey City, and Wm. Little appointed postmaster.

Jan. 10th A. J. McLeod succeeded Louis Gebo as landlord of the Charlevoix House.

In March, the village of Petoskey numbered only a dozen buildings the most of them of inferior appearance. Among them were the store of H. O. Rose & Co., Little's hotel and the residence of H. O. Rose. About a mile south of town was the dock and store of Band & Ingalls, and a mile up Bear River were located the saw mill of Hazen Ingalls and the grist mill of A. Porter.

Messrs. Porter and Ingalls were the first white settlers at Bear River. Speaking of Petoskey the SENTINEL says: "While we acknowledge faith in the future importance of Petoskey and recognize it as a rival village, we do not grant that it has superior, and in some respects equal advantages to those of Charlevoix. Petoskey's boast is 'railroad.' Give us an open entrance to Round lake and they will have no greater reason to boast than we. In the near future the iron rail will reach us and then we will have two tallies to their one. But we wish them God-speed."

At the April election the following Supervisors were elected: Charlevoix, E. H. Green; South Arm, J. A. Kent; Wilson, Geo. W. Bailey; Norwood, O. D. Wood; Evangeline, E. D. Park; Marion, John Ward; Boyne Valley, E. K. Robinson; Eveline, Asa Smith; Bear River, (Emmet county), Dr. Wm. Little; Little Traverse, (Emmet county), Paul Wasson.

The following is the number of acres of railroad lands in each township in the county in April 1874: Charlevoix, 1678; Norwood, 1371; Eveline, 6517; Marion, 7247; Wilson, 8796; South Arm, 9616; Boyne Valley, 18,917; Evangeline, 22,431.

In May, Amos Fox took the contract for $400 of bridging the river. This draw-bridge was built by Charlevoix township after repeated efforts to secure a county appropriation for a better one, had been voted down by a majority of the board of supervisors.

The first boat to arrive this season was the Van Raalte, from Detroit.

Charlevoix postoffice became a money order office July 1st.

In excavating for a cellar on Antrim street in May, Mr. J. M. Clark exhumed from beneath a large and decayed hemlock stump, two Indian skeletons, which dated from way back. They were accompanied by large strings of roughly wrought but pure copper beads, a large tomahawk and 276 flint arrow heads.

Capt. Stickney's steam dredge resumed work in June in both channels.

A special election was ordered by the Board of Supervisors for June 6th on the proposition to tax the county $5,000 for the improvement of Pine River. Just before the election the legality of the scheme was submitted to the Attorney General, and he decided that the river could not be considered a highway as defined in sections 9-11 of Article X. of the Constitution, and thus the election, although carried by a vote of 117 to 47, was of no effect. But the question of harbor improvement did not lag by any means. Within ten days $550 was subscribed, and the dredging and crib-work continued.

The steamer John A. Dix made regular trips between Petoskey and Mackinac.

Gen. T. J. Thorpe was elected principal of the Charlevoix schools, but after his arrival here was tendered a much larger salary by A. S. Barnes & Co., the school book publishers, and was released by the school board.

Among the schooners trading at Charlevoix and Pine Lake during the summer, were the Raleigh, Madonna, Two Brothers, Travis, Purington, Wescott, E. M. Stanton, and the scows Maple Leaf, Forest, Quickstep and Salma.

Capt. James Mees, of the steamer Annie, was drowned in August on the return trip of the steamer from Petoskey.

Carpenter & See were succeeded by Carpenter & Bartholomew in Sept.

The fall term of school began Oct. 19th, with A. R. Upright as principal, and Miss Sackett as assistant.

It was in August that "Dr. Whitefeather, the Shawnee orator," a made-up mulatto from Sturgis, played to full houses in northern Michigan, lecturing on the mound-builders, and preaching on "Abraham's faith" and "Ishmael's prophecy."

In October the mercantile house of H. O. Rose & Co., of Petoskey, was merged into the firm of Fox, Rose & Buttars, and continued as a branch of the Charlevoix establishment, Mr. Buttars having personal supervision of both concerns.

At the fall election, Major Green was returned to the Legislature, and the following county officers elected: Sheriff, A. G. Aldrich; Clerk, J. S. Dixon; Treasurer, B. See; Register, M. J. Stockman; Surveyor, Wm. Miller; Coroners, R. Miller and F. J. Meech.

The W. U. Telegraph line was in operation at Charlevoix Nov. 21, and the daily mail established Jan. 1, '75.

—Please remember the Band of Hope next Saturday at 3 o'clock, at Green's Hall. Truths taught now will have a great influence in forming the after life of these children, and will help in a great degree to keep our country free from the vice of intemperance hereafter.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

WANTED, tamarack piles at Charlevoix, also stone on the beach handy to scow. Address, L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

HOUSE FOR SALE. Inquire of S. M. See, Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent, Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Old papers sold at this office.

Newspaper Laws.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2—If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until "all arrearages are paid."

3—If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodical from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4—Any person who receives a newspaper from the postoffice, whether he has ordered it or not, is held by the Postal Laws to be a subscriber.

5—If subscribers pay in advance they must give notice to the publishers when their time expires, if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on and the subscriber will be held responsible until an express notice with payment of all arrears are sent to the publisher.

6. It is a State Prison offence to take the paper from the office, and then return it to the publisher refused. U. S. Session Laws for Newspapers.

Masonic.

Regular communication of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M., on next Tuesday evening, March 8th. Work on 3d°. The attendance of every member is desired. A special will be held on Monday evening, March 7th, at which every officer and member is requested to be present for exemplification. Emergency.

W. A. SMITH, W. M.

Northern Michigan.

J. J. Avers has been appointed deputy sheriff for Antrim county.

Work will soon begin on the new Emmet county jail and sheriff's residence.

Joseph Rabair, Sr., of South Frankfort, whose death is recorded on our inside pages, was one of the men who sailed from Mackinaw on the schooner Abel, Capt. Newton, in 1856, and drove the Mormons from Beaver Island. He also took part in the expedition against the Mormons at Pine Lake, (now Charlevoix). He has resided at Frankfort for many years past. He was a good citizen, and commanded the esteem of all.

Women's Christian Temperance Union

Citizens' meeting on Monday evening in Green's hall, at 7:30.

W. C. T. U. regular meeting on Friday afternoon at 2:30, in Jeffries' hall.

This evening, March 2, Mrs. Thorman, of Jackson, will speak in favor of the Amendment at the Congregational church, at 7:30. Let all come and hear a good address. Voters are especially invited.

The W. C. T. U. of Charlevoix wish to put the claims of the proposed Amendment to the Constitution fairly before the people of our village and vicinity. To aid them in this work, they ask liberal contributions of money from all their friends and friends of the cause. The Union have chosen as a committee to receive contributions: Mrs. W. H. McCartney, Mrs. W. G. Clark, Mrs. A. T. Waterman, Mrs. A. J. Mudge, Mrs. C. J. Strang and Mrs. G. W. Jeffries.

The contest which is upon us because of the submission to the people on April 4th, of the Prohibition Constitutional Amendment is the most important in our history. Let every friend of temperance and enemy to the liquor traffic commence to work for its passage. Plan meetings, arrange for speakers, hold citizen's meetings, circulate literature and in every possible way agitate, agitate. The officers of the 11th Dist., W. C. T. U. are calling for volunteers from pastors and others to address meetings. We desire to reach every school district in our territory. I write this article to ask any one who think an audience can be secured in their district or community, and who will advertise and arrange meetings, plan for the entertainment of speakers and taking of collections at such meetings, to write me giving their address, and stating the evening in the week preferred and if possible we will conform to it and send you speakers. In some cases we might arrange to hold weekly meetings until after election. I speak of collections that we may cover the expense of sending speakers and the literature we circulate. We shall not ask for large things but many mites aggregated accomplish much. I should also be very glad to get the names of all who can speak for us—number of evenings they can give etc. Our opponents are on the alert. The Public Leader comes out with frantic appeals for the "preservation of their liberties" saying, "It is the solemn duty of every man connected with the (liquor) business to see that the nefarious scheme does not carry. All must work in harmony and work hard." Shall Christian and law-abiding citizens do less? Let every one send to 261 Woodward-ave., Detroit, for the Censor the state organ of all temperance societies in the state. Prices from the time the money is received until the 10th of April, 15 cents, single copies. Clubs of 50, 10 cents each. Nothing better to keep us informed of the work all over the state and make notes. In the words of our State President, "Our battle cry, the home against the saloon—our rally, for God, home and the state."

MRS. B. A. CAMPBELL,
President 11th Dist., W. C. T. U.,
Charlevoix, Mich.

The President's veto of the dependent pension bill has been sustained by Congress by a close vote.

Under the specifications of Gen. Cutcheon's muster and roll bill, the 1,000 or 1,500 Michigan soldiers who are to be benefitted, should take notice that all claims must be in before June 5 next.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

H. P. Cook has been appointed agent for Charlevoix county of the nursery establishment of Cady Bros., Geneva, N. Y., and will take orders for trees. Trees are warranted to be as represented. H

Mrs. Latney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

Charlevoix County Board of School Examiners.

Spring examinations will occur as follows: Boyne City, Friday, March 25th, 1887; East Jordan, Friday, April 29th, 1887. Examinations will commence at 8:30 a. m., and end at 5:30 p. m. Candidates for first or second grades can write only at the examination at Boyne City, and may write until 9 o'clock, p. m.

WM. HARRIS, Sec., Norwood.

Notice of Election.

Notice is hereby given to the Electors of the Village of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, that the annual village election of said Village of Charlevoix is on Monday the 14th day of March, A. D., 1887, at which time the following officers are to be elected, to-wit: A President, three (3) Trustees, one Clerk, one Treasurer, one Village Assessor, one Street Commissioner, one Constable. The President, Clerk, Treasurer, Street Commissioner and Constable to be elected for one year from the Second Monday of March, 1887, and three Trustees for the term of two (2) years from the above date. The polls of this election will be opened at 8 o'clock in the forenoon, and continue open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon ... the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour.

Dated, Charlevoix, Mich., March 1, 1887.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Village Clerk.

Offices To Rent.

A number of desirable offices to rent in the See block. Inquire of R. See. 1611

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix. tf

---

I am Not Selling Out!

JUST YET, BUT I AM BOUND TO SELL my goods. If you will give me a chance I will soon convince you that I will sell you better goods for less money than you can buy in this town or any other.

These "Selling Out" and "1-4 Off Sales" are getting old. I am going to continue to sell for cash only till my stock is reduced down to make room for Spring Goods.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER

A REMINDER
For MARCH.

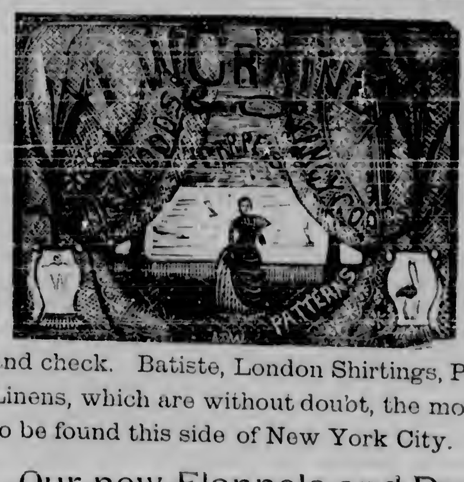
Our Remnants!

Our 1-4 off, a big Success. But it has made us piles of Remnants.

This week we shall give you all a better chance than ever to get bargains

COME IN AND SEE WHAT THIS MEANS. FOR REMEMBER WE ALWAYS LEAD.

F. W. Craine & Co



First Arrival
---OF---
NEW SPRING GOODS!

We have received a large line of the latest Novelties in White Goods, such as Nainsooks in plain and check. Batiste, London Shirtings, Pongees, Tufted Batiste and India Linens, which are without doubt, the most desirable patterns and qualities to be found this side of New York City.

Our new Flannels and Dress Goods are all of the most approved styles and colorings, with beautiful trimmings to match. Come and see them.

A few more Cloaks to close out at an extremely low figure. Come in and see us whether you wish to buy or not.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Are resuming their SPECIAL SALES which attracted so much attention last season. Many rare bargains will be offered which will be presented but once as our stock in some lines is light.

Everything sold just as advertised and prices reduced on all goods.

THURSDAY, MAR. 3.
Immense Drive in Hamburg Edgings.
60c Leggings for 45 cents.
Wool Hosiery slaughter'd
Dress Ginghams, 9 cents.

FRIDAY, MAR. 4.
Great Reductions in Table Linens etc.
Mixed Shirting Flannels, 19c worth 25.

SATURDAY, MAR. 5.
Combined offer.
10 yards L L Cotton,
10 lbs Granulated Sugar,
1 lb 50c Japan Tea,
2 lbs Arbuckles Coffee,
ALL FOR $2.00.

MONDAY, MAR. 7.
Special Bargains in Black Silks, Satins, etc.
Bates Crochet Quilts, 99c.
Turkey Red Table Damask, excellent grade, 34c.

TUESDAY, MAR. 8.
58 in. Loom Dice, 25 cents
10-4 Pepperell Sheeting 21 cents.
6-4 Dress Flannels all wool, 69c.
50c Tea for 35 cents.

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 9.
Scrim Cloth, good quality 12 1-2 cents.
Opaqued Window Shadings, 15c.
Men's Blue Shirts, $1.25.
Arbuckles Coffee 21 cents

THURSDAY, March 10.
Western Reserve Blankets white or scarlet, $3.65.
Berkshire 10-4 White Blankets, $2.00
Wool Yarns, 80c a pound
Corned Beef, 2lb for 20c.

An elegant $25 Music Box given away. Call for particulars.

Our store closes at 7:30 every evening except Saturdays, but for the benefit of laboring men, we will upon request send to any house in town and take orders, delivering goods the same day.

J. L. HURD & CO.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

---

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL

Jas C Miller Mar 7

VOL. XVIII. NO.—45 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1887. WHOLE NO. 902

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!
---HEADQUARTERS---
For Everything needed in the School Room, at
HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of

BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in

FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN

Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces

EVERYTHING

usually found in a General Store.

Remember: Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.

Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

"There is a tide in the affairs of Men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to Fortune."

If you are going to use any building Hardware, now is the time to buy it! Iron, Nails, and all kinds of Hardware are advancing. Be advised the present low prices cannot continue. Until after our annual invoice is taken, we offer great bargains in everything in our line. Buy NOW and save money! Heatng Stoves at remarkably low prices.

Yours Truly
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices

ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

A. E. MASON.

I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.

The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.

Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

---

Pine Lake Iron Co.

IRONTON, MICH.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BRANCH STORE AT HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1.50 | Six months $.75
Invariably in Advance

Local News.

—Hon R. Knight of Banks, was in town, Thursday.

Mrs. Kate Smith, of Petoskey, is the guest of her son, Fred A. Smith.

—Campbell Brothers will build a 55-foot pleasure yacht for Congressman Anderson.

—John Saunby has over 10,000 pieces of cedar ties and posts on the beach near Burgess' dock.

—J. L. Hurd & Co. continue their special sales during the next week. Consult their columns for bargains.

—Mrs. W. S. Humphrey, wife of the Hon. W. S. Humphrey, of Cheboygan, died last week, after only three days' illness.

—John Saveland, the Milwaukee commission merchant, arrived Thursday and was in the hands of his many friends until Tuesday.

—Milt Newkirk, the bright young attorney of Elk Rapids was in town Thursday on his return from the Judicial Convention at Petoskey.

The opinion is quite unanimous that Gurley Beak would make a rattling good successor to "Brudder Gardner" of the Lime Kiln Club.

Al. Washburn goes to Cadillac this week to assist Mr Gow in the store there a few weeks. Mrs. W., Al's mother goes to Battle Creek on a visit.

—The ladies of the M. E. Mission Society, with their husbands, were handsomely entertained by Mrs. J. T. Iddings Wednesday afternoon and evening.

—There will be an entertainment at the Barnard school house on Friday evening, March 18th, for the benefit of the pastor. Admission 25 cts., children half price.

Through the efforts of L. D. Bartholomew & Co., the State Fish Commissioner has promised to deposit 15,000 brook trout fry in the headwaters of Stover's creek.

—The Old Settlers Association has adjourned its annual meeting until March 11. The same program will be observed and the Elk Lake and Elk Rapids bands will furnish music.

—Sheldon Pease, of Buffalo, N. Y., who for a long time held a large tract of land on North Manitou Island, has been adjudged insane, and his estate is managed by his brother, John Pease. Mr. Pease was at one time a member of the firm of A. Fox & Co., Charlevoix

—The Petoskey Dramatic Company will appear at Opera Hall in this village on Monday and Tuesday evening of next week, presenting "Our Boarding House" and "A Soldier of Fortune." The organization embraces the best amateur talent in Petoskey, and their presentation of these plays is said to be excellent.

—The entertainment given by the Charlevoix Minstrels on Monday night may be said to have been the local event of the season. "Standing-room only" was the condition of affairs before the curtain rose, and the programme was one which did credit to the boys. The "gags" were modern, and some of them more or less local. They deserved the fine benefit they received.

—Kalamazoo Telegraph: H. W. Page returned from Charlevoix, Saturday, whither he went on business and to look after some resort matters. The Belvedere he pronounces a very imposing and handsome structure and far advanced towards completion. The carpets and other furnishings have been purchased and all will be ready for an early opening of what is believed will be the most prosperous season of the resort.

—The Charlevoix people are active and enterprising in their efforts to secure railroad connections and the organization of the Detroit, Charlevoix and Escanaba Railroad Company is proof that they are determined to secure a railroad without further delay than may be needed to complete the enterprise. They have taken a wise action in planning their line to Grayling, as they thus secure shortest connection with Detroit. Charlevoix will build best for itself if it adheres to its original determination to strike across to the Central and not be turned aside by temporary inducements which have for their objects the promotion of other objects.—Kalkaska.

—Charlevoix people are pushing their railroad project with a vim that promises an early construction of the road. Do our folks desire that the 'Escanaba' at the end of its title shall have any meaning? Will they take any steps toward showing such a desire? It would help those who have the matter in hand on the other side of the lake to receive some assurance that such is the case—that Escanaba business men and property holders would see to it that a line of steamers shall be ready as soon as the road, with proper additional facilities here. Shall we have any such assurance?—Escanaba Iron Port.

—The Charlevoix Minstrels took in $86 at their entertainment Monday evening.

—R. A. Campbell and wife have taken possession of the Occidental hotel at Petoskey.

—Come out and hear Prof. Enos' lecture on "Conditions of Success" this evening at Green's Hall.

—Captain Dan Way has struck something rich in the way of large portraits. Call and see samples.

—Joseph Beauvais is building a steam-launch for Gus Brown. She will be twenty feet long and have a Shipman engine.

—The papers of the D. C. & E. R. R. Co. were filed with the Secretary of State on Monday, and the organization is now a fact in law.

—Mrs. Ella Smith entertained a party of her friends at the Fountain City House Saturday evening. A most enjoyable evening was spent.

—Friday, Will Francis bought the furniture and jobbing shop of Jerome Heath and will remove the same to his lot on the south terrace. He will continue to do shop work in connection with contracting. Mr. Francis is a good workman and deserves a good patronage.

—His most puissant majesty Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, was too cowardly to veto the river and harbor bill, but "pocket vetoed" it. Thus Charlevoix is deprived of the $7,500 which Congress appropriated, and many of the harbors of the lakes will suffer as a result.

—Fred H. Aldrich, formerly of East Jordan, now of Cadillac, is a candidate for Circuit Judge in the 28th Circuit. There were three conventions held at Kalkaska last Wednesday, viz.: the regular republican, the people, and the bar. The people's convention, which was composed of representatives of all parties and of their best and most prominent men, such as W. W. Cummer, acting mayor of the city; W. W. Mitchell, J. M. Wardell, M. D., E. E. Hoskins, Esq., and many other prominent republicans and H. B. Sturtevant, H. P. McFarlan, M. T. Woodruff, Daniel Reader, and other eminent democrats chose Fred H. Aldrich, republican, as their candidate. The bar convention gave, on the first informal ballot, an almost unanimous vote for Silas S. Fallass as his own successor. A letter for Mr. Fallas was then read by Mr. Sawyer, in anticipation of such possible action on the part of the bar, absolutely refusing the nomination. The bar afteward by unanimous vote endorsed Mr. Aldrich's nomination. The regular republican convention nominated M. L. Dunham as its candidate. The democrats will hold no convention and put forward no candidate, but will generally support Aldrich, who, though a straight republican, has a very clean record and has not been offensively partisan as such. The action of the independent republicans in calling and acting in a people's convention was caused by a quite widespread aversion to M. L. Dunham who captured the county delegations and was sure of the regular nomination. The fight between Aldrich and him for election will be sharp as both are republicans, and the circuit under ordinary circumstances is also republican by a considerable majority.

Historical Society.

The Historical Society gathered last week in the pleasant parlors of Mr and Mrs. L. Hannah, and passed another very pleasant and profitable evening.

The meeting was called to order by Vice President A. T. Washburn, and the programme was introduced by a violin and organ duett by Mrs. O. L. Wheat and Mrs. J. Litney, after which came the paper of the evening by President E. H. Green on Napoleon III. Miss Phila Wood gave a faultless and pleasing recitation, and Mrs. Dr. Carlstein gave a reading. Dr. Perry and Mrs. Ella Smith performed a violin and organ duett, and Misses Angie Miller and Blanche Bartholomew a cornet medley.

Mr. O. L. Wheat closed the evening's entertainment with a violin solo.

This week the Society will meet with D. C. Loveday, East Jordan, (weather permitting), otherwise at John Nicholls'. Paper by W. A. Brown, on "Cæsar and the First Triumvirate."

Northern Michigan.

Dr. C. E. Graham, from Schoolcraft, dentist, has located in Elk Rapids.

The Antrim Iron Company are doing big work at their furnace near Mancelona.

Dr. Leach says the "Six Lakes" of Antrim country should be called the "Twelve Lakes," and writes the Progress: No correct map of the county has ever yet been published. The six lakes intended are Elk, Round, Torch, Clam, Grass, and Intermediate. What is usually called Intermediate, is a chain of seven distinct lakes, connected by rivers, which are generally narrow, crooked and rapid. Naming them in order, as we pass up stream from Grass lake, they are Central, Hanley's, Sisson's Wilson's, Baur's, Saint Clair's, and Shales'. With the exception of the break caused by the dam at Bellaire, a steam yacht of light draft can easily ascend the whole chain of lakes and streams, from Elk Rapids to the south end of Shales' lake. There are still other small lakes of the same system, above Shales', but I am not able to give any account of them.

Religious.

M. E. Church.

Our Sunday School Superintendent, as well as the pastor, earnestly desire the presence of every teacher, and any who may be willing to act as supplies, on Tuesday evening at the parsonage. 7:30 is the time.

Prayer meeting as usual on Thursday evening.

On Sabbath morning and evening we will be glad to see you in your places at service.

The young people's meeting will be led by Rev. W. G. Clark. Subject, "The Habit of Thanksgiving." 1 Thess. 5, 18.

Elsewhere.

Mrs. Benjamin will lecture on temperance at Ironton M. E. church next Friday evening.

Preaching services at Black's school house next Sabbath afternoon at 2:30. Rev. J. R. Robinson is expected. Also at Johnson's in the evening.

Episcopal Church

The ladies of the Episcopal church will have a spectacle social at the residence of W. P. Brown, on Tuesday evening, March 15th. Let everyone come and hear a good entertainment, and have refreshments for ten cents.

Women's Christian Temperance Union:

Some have asked does prohibition prohibit. In answer permit me to quote what the republican party of Maine says about the law. Ever since the formation of the party in Maine, in 1856, it has always put prohibition into its platform. I give you here its latest affirmations on the subject, as adopted by the state conventions of the party:

1878. "Temperance among the people may be greatly promoted by wise prohibitory legislation, as well as by all those moral agencies which have secured us beneficent results; and it is a source of congratulation that the principle of prohibition, which has always been upheld by republicans, is now concurred in by so large a majority of the people that it is no longer a party question, the democrats having for several years declined to contest and dispute it."

1879. "We recognize temperance as a cause which has conferred the greatest benefit on the state, and we sustain the principle of prohibition, which in its operation has so largely suppressed liquor selling and added incalculably to the sum of virtue and prosperity among the people."

1880. "Experience has demonstrated the wisdom of the policy of prohibition as an auxiliary of temperance, and as contributing to the material wealth, happiness and prosperity of the state; and we refer with confidence and pride to an undeviating support of the same as one of the cardinal principles of the republican party of Maine."

In 1881 there was no election and no State Republican Convention, and no resolution.

1882. "We refer with confidence and pride to the general record of the republican party in support of the policy of prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating liquors, the wisdom and efficiency of which legislation, in promoting the moral and material interests of Maine, have been demonstrated through the practical annihilation of that traffic in a large portion of the state; and we favor such legislation and such enforcement of law as will secure to every portion of our territory freedom from that traffic. We further recommend the submission to the people of a constitutional prohibitory amendment."

The last resolution of the party was the following:

1886. "The republicans of Maine, now as heretofore, indorse and approve the law for the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquor. The law and its several amendments, were enacted by republican legislation, and this convention now declares, in answer to representations in many quarters, that the general effect of the prohibitory law has been beneficent, and has proved in a marked degree helpful to the cause of temperance in Maine. It has largely reduced the consumption of alcoholic liquors and has in many ways contributed to the moral and material welfare of the state."

By request of the State President of the W. C. T. U., the names of the Bands of Hope have been changed to Loyal Legion. With the change of name, please change your tactics toward the Society, and when you do your Saturday shopping, start an hour earlier and be at Green's hall at three o'clock. We have now 70 names on our rolls, and more are joining every week. Let every friend of temperance come and help establish temperance sentiment in Charlevoix. Those things that are taught at the Loyal Legion in some way unknown to us may be means of influencing some of the voters of the village to vote for the amendment. Don't fail to be present.

M. T. Woodruff of the Cadillac Democrat, is going to start a bourbon sheet at Lake City.

A heavy wind blew down the smoke stack of the Mancelona furnace a few days ago.

W. S. Johnson, of Suttons Bay, has bought out S. P. Boston's entire stock of goods in S. S. Bennet's old store at Good Harbor. Mr. Boston has retired and is now firing in H. Schomberg's mill.

S. S. Braman, of Williamsburg, supplies some Mancelona families with milk. He will sell this year $1,700 worth. His farm is one mile from town. Seven years ago he paid $1,200 for 76 acres. He then sold 5 acres for $75. He has 60 acres uncultivated; fine buildings.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARVELEE, - Publishers

THE President has approved the act for the construction of a bridge over the Mississippi river near Dubuque, Ia.

THE MARDI GRAS festivities attracted sixty thousand strangers to New Orleans. The king of the carnival appeared as Saladin.

A CALL for $10,000,000 in 3 per cent. bonds was issued last week by the treasury department. Principal and interest will be paid at once.

REV. THOMAS E. GREEN, of Chicago, who last year resigned from a Presbyterian pulpit, was lately ordained priest at St. Andrew's church, in that city, by Bishop Seymour.

THE editor of a Berlin newspaper was sent to prison for a month for printing the false statement that the Czar shot the military attache of the German legation at St. Petersburg.

THE American residents of the City of Mexico, joined by one hundred tourists, celebrated Washington's birthday by a picnic, and contributed freely toward the proposed American hospital.

REV. E. S. THOMAS, who has been elected an assistant bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Kansas, is rector of the largest [illegible]

GREAT FIRES.

Washington News—Election of Senator Ingalls, President Pro Tem of the Senate—Labor Troubles and Strikes in the East—Latest News from Stanley in Africa, Etc.

[illegible]'s Body to be Buried at Chicago—Death of [illegible] W. Fell—Official List of Earthquake Losses—Twelve Men Drowned, Etc.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

Big Blazes.

The six story iron front and side warehouse of Darby & Co.'s candy manufactory in Baltimore, Md., was burned Friday morning and several hundred persons were thrown out of employment. Losses $200,000. At Nebraska City, Neb., Robert Hawke's general store, and the Masonic and Odd Fellows block were burned and nine firemen crushed beneath falling walls, two of them fatally. Losses $175,000.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, D. C., [illegible]—The President [illegible] and that the existing building be repaired.

Europe Shaken.

ROME, Feb. [illegible]—The shocks of earthquake [illegible]

FOREIGN.

CONGRESS.

WAR IN EUROPE IMMINENT

AN ORCHARD AT VIGNON.

TOMMY'S PARTNERSHIP.

FARM AND HOME.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

GRAND ARMY ITEMS.

[illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, MARCH 9, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH, Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE, Associate Editor.

There was "applause on the Democratic side" when the House refused to pass the Dependent Pension bill over the President's veto. The failure of this legislation is peculiarly calculated to fire the Copperhead heart.

P. T. Barnum says he would not accept the prohibition nomination for president under any circumstances. It would seem a "little off-color" for the old gentleman to go back into the side show business after running the biggest show on earth.

Hon. George Bancroft, the venerable historian, is lying at the point of death at his home in Washington. Several days ago he was stricken with pneumonia, and has grown steadily worse. Owing to his advanced age only the smallest hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The name of St. John county in Kansas has been changed by the Legislature to Logan county. Speaker Smith told why it was done. He said it was because St. John was a hypocrite. Seventeen Democrats voted for the change. St. John's friends are not numerous. He has lived there too long.

Denver Republican: Francis Murphy is the kind of temperance agitator we believe in. He does not preach that prohibition is a political question. He ignores the third party movement, and does not talk politics at all. He has done more for the cause of temperance, reformed more drunkards, than all the rest of the cold-water brigade put together.

"The Prohibitionists," says the New York Evening Post, "are men who are more interested in building up a third party than in checking the very evil which they pretend to be fighting." What a remarkably accurate judgment a Mugwump journal can form on all subjects but Mugwumpery. The above judgment on the political prohibitionists is a righteous one. But to say that the Mugwumps are men more interested in building up a controlling political influence for themselves than in real labor for administrative reform would be equally righteous.

The Prohibitionists, true to their malice against the Republican party, have nominated a full state ticket. Their object in this is, if possible, to turn our State Supreme Court wholly into a Democratic body. Their animus is the same that it was last year, when their leaders boasted that their purpose was to "beat the Republican party." Nevertheless, we do not believe the honest and patriotic people of Michigan will support any such demoralizing scheme. As the Detroit Tribune says, in speaking of a malicious attack from another quarter: "The Republicanism of the State understands well its duty in this important campaign, and it proposes to perform it to the letter. That means the election of Campbell and Long to the Supreme Bench, and of Hebard and Butterfield to the University Regencies by the full and legitimate majority of the Republican party in Michigan."

Grand Rapids Eagle: The Prohibitory Amendment is not and cannot be a "temperance law." It is full of the intemperance of disbelief in the power of intelligence and right education. It is full of the intemperance of all uncharitableness. * * The same logic which would exclude wine from the table of the private citizen would exclude it from the church communion. The minister who stickles for the latter while favoring the former is inconsistent. Neither of these is, in its nature, an abuse or a crime. But if the one use is a crime the other is. The law that stops or attempts to stop the temperate exercise of a man's judgment or will in matters not essentially criminal, is essentially the embodiment of a spirit that would make one a tyrant over his neighbor. It cannot be enforced so long as the spirit of true democracy prevails. * * * * Upon any ground whatever, there is no call for the prohibitory amendment in the constitution. The constitution to-day gives the Legislature just as much and more power to deal with intemperance by law than it will have if that amendment be carried at the polls. The amendment is an attempt to abridge the law-making power of the people. If they want prohibition there is nothing now in their constitution to prevent it. But if the amendment shall be adopted it will prohibit the people trying any but one plan to promote temperance, no matter how impotent or abortive that plan may be, till again two-thirds of the Legislature can be induced to propose its repeal. It will tie the hands of temperance to a broken reed.

Northern Michigan News.

Forepaugh's great show will visit Grand Traverse the coming season.

Petoskey is to have a railroad from Alpena. See particulars elsewhere.

A disastrous fire at Fife Lake last week destroyed $8,000 worth of property. The Comet office is an entire loss.

Scarlet fever is still prevalent at St. Ignace, although the public schools have been opened under certain restrictions.

The G. R. & I. may be set down as one of the most prosperous railroads of the State. The net earnings for 1886 were more than $100,000 greater than for any other year.

A veneer factory is to be in operation at Wolverine this spring and parties are now stocking it. The mill will employ from 50 to 100 men, and will be a great benefit to that section.

Eighteen Reed City gentlemen have purchased 1,322 acres of land in Manistee and Mason counties. These lands lay in the immediate vicinity of the oil wells, and oil is bubbling out all over.

It is reported by the keeper of the Spectacle Reef Light that before leaving there last fall that the foundation had been badly damaged by the ice, and in his opinion it will require $20,000 to make the repairs.

At the Judicial convention at Petoskey last week, Judge Keat, of Charlevoix county, was elected chairman, and Mr. Bell, of Cheboygan, Secretary. Several able speeches were made favoring the renomination of Judge Ramsdell, and he was nominated by acclamation.

East Jordan Enterprise: John Munro arrived home from St. Ignace Monday, and left again for there yesterday. John was the successful bidder for building an enormous new dock for the D. M. & M. R. R. Co. at St. Ignace. He will commence the work at once with a crew of 30 men, mostly from this vicinity, the contract to be finished May 1st.

The Detroit Journal's Mancelona special says: The Oval Wood Dish Factory burned on Monday night. Through the efforts of citizens the engine room and saw mill department were saved. The water supply running short, snow was used to fight the fire. Loss, $20,000; partly insured. The factory will be rebuilt immediately. One hundred and fifty hands are thrown out of employment.

The Cheboygan Tribune has an article from a farmer of that county regarding the profits of peppermint raising. He says this country can raise the best of mint, and an acre will produce from forty to seventy dollars worth of oil, and the distilling is easily done. It will pay our farmers to look into the matter, as it looks as though there might be a "mint" of money in mint growing.

And now the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad contemplates an extension of the Lansing branch to the straits. This but confirms what was stated in the Herald the other day, that the leading railroads of Michigan are all making their way to the straits of Mackinac to secure a share of the traffic which a development of the immense country beyond the straits will open up.—Saginaw Herald.

Harbor Springs Independent: Capt. Neil Gallagher has been over to Beaver Island and returned home with four horses which he purchased on the Island. * * * Old Mr. Boyd, Margaret's husband, died last week, aged 70. He contracted a cold, which led to complications causing his death. He was an industrious, sober Indian, and if all our native citizens were as upright and honorable it would elevate the race beyond their present level.

Petoskey Record: Judge W. H. Miller, of Harbor Springs, who is acting as clerk of the Soldiers' Home Committee at Lansing purely as a matter of accommodation, has been charged with "giving away" the report of the joint committee before seal of secrecy was removed, and demands an investigation. The people of Emmet county who know how sensitive is the honor of Capt. Miller, and how trustworthy and true he is in every respect, will resent these imputations that money or other consideration could induce him to betray a trust, and will look for his triumphant vindication. Later—he is vindicated.

Boyne Falls Gazette: David Leroy, of Deer Lake, died last week, and was buried at Boyne cemetery. He was one of the earliest settlers in these parts, and had attained the ripe old age of eighty years. His career was one which reflects honor on his memory. * * * It is settled now beyond a doubt, that Wm. Mears will purchase the Northern Manufacturing Company's mill property. He has deposited forfeit money and has the option of completing the purchase any time within three weeks from the date of deposit. During the present week he proposes to drain off the mill pond for the purpose of investigating and making such repairs to the water power as may be found necessary.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. H. M. [illegible], Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

The Day Out of School.

Few parents or pupils realize the actual value of the occasional day lost by the absence from school. "It is only one lesson from each of the studies pursued" they argue, as though a course of study were only a string which will be merely shortened at one end by a lesson or two, and which will be long enough anyway, instead of being a string broken here and there by the lessons left out, whole sections of which will probably become worthless from the lack of connection with the others.

Some parents, not quite so thoughtless, realize that the day's lessons cannot be safely omitted entirely, and permit the time to be lost from school with the understanding that the lessons shall be made up during some spare time taken from the work of the day or in the evening. Possibly the pupil assures them that he can get both lessons next day in school, and these are the ones who seldom have the one lesson well learned when they are supposed to give the entire time to it.

By those even, who honestly endeavor to have the pupil prepare the lost lessons out of school hours, some very important considerations are entirely overlooked. By his absence from school, even if the lesson is fairly well learned, the pupil loses the review which the recitation gives, and which is often worth more than the first study. He misses the additional instruction given there, which serves to enlarge his ideas of the subject, and make his knowledge clearer. He loses the class drill which may often have more effect in fixing the lessons in his mind, than his previous study has produced.

More than all this, a hasty study of the lesson, though he may be able to recite it, does not make that deep impression on his mind, that is secured by the more deliberate and prolonged consideration of it, which the school room permits, and that impression, made in the irregular intervals of work or play, is far more likely to be in part or wholly effaced by the surrounding circumstances which speedily divert his mind from the subject.

Nor does the loss stop here; the habits of industry, and the interest in the work, which are absolutely necessary to good work are only maintained by unbroken effort. No one can possess either of these requisites, where their work is interrupted by frequent diversions. Children are far more susceptible to these injurious influences than older people. Instances have come under the observation of almost any teacher, in which steady, studious, and progressive pupils, having by some accident lost only a little time, have had their interest so much impaired, that they have for no other cause, become less punctual in their attendance, and continued to decline in scholarship until almost, if not quite a total failure could be traced to a little loss which the exercise of proper foresight might have avoided. In the history of many of the best pupils, a week of indifferent or absolutely poor work has followed even a day or two of absence. The effects of these interruptions are too serious and too far-reaching to be risked for any but imperative reasons.

All these considerations touch only the interests of the individual pupil. The moral effect of irregularity in attendance, upon the class to which he belongs is a matter of great moment, and furnishes equally weighty arrangements against it.

Speaking of the township district-system, the Ohio Educational Monthly says: "There is another particular in which Pennsylvania is in advance of Ohio. She has a township organization. Each township constitutes a school district, and all the schools of the township are under the exclusive control of a township board of education, consisting of six members. There must be no rest until this is secured for Ohio. Her present mongrel sub-district-system is an incubus and a disgrace." What is true of Ohio is true of Michigan. Township control and county supervision will do more to lift our schools, than all the legislation of the past twenty-five years. When shall we get it?

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

(21) The oldest college in the United States is at Cambridge, Mass., founded by John Harvard in 1638.

(22) Presidents Grant and Polk served one day more than their respective terms.

(23) West Virginia was formed from the territory of another state.

(24) Payton Randolph was President of the Second Continental Congress.

(24) A black slate pencil makes a white mark on a slate because the minute particles of the pencil, broken up by erasion, reflect and refract the rays of white light.

WIT AND HUMOR.

A gentleman asked a little girl what a smile is. She told him: "A whisper of a laugh."

What this great American Republic seems to need more than anything just at the present time is a protective tariff on English actresses.—New Haven News.

A bright idea from Cholly: "I say, boys, since she has refused all three of us individually, I say we follow her home, and try it as a body. She couldn't resist us."

A child who was sitting in the sun was admonished by her mother: "My dear, come out of the sun." "No, mother," said the little girl, with emphasis, "I got here first."

Two rival belles met at a masquerade ball one evening last week. "How well you look under the gas light," said one to the other. "And how charming you look in the dark," was the courteous reply.

A train was delayed for an hour in Troy, N. Y., recently, and a drummer remarked to the conductor: "This is a sort of twelve ounces to the pound affair, ain't it?" "How's that?" "Troy wait, you know."—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Literary man (laughing)—"Yes, I took to literature naturally. I was vaccinated from a quill, you know." Friend (grimly)—"Ha! The world would have been the gainer if you had been vaccinated from a pick or shovel."—Philadelphia Call.

Omaha Man—I see the English have a queer fashion. After the period of deep mourning is over ladies make no change except to wear light gloves. Young Widow—Yes, dear, it shows that the hand has passed the mourning stage if the heart hasn't.

Son—"What was Esau, father?" Wall street broker—"Well, let me see. O. Esau went 'short' on his birthright, Jacob having 'cornered' him, and 'called' in all the 'pottage.' There was not much left on the 'market,' and—ask your mother, boy."—The Judge.

Wife—"Mrs. Hendricks is to give a small informal tea party to-morrow afternoon to a few ladies, and I was wondering if I had better wear gloves." Husband—"I have always understood that on such informal occasions the ladies handle each other without gloves."—New York Sun.

When Dollar street in Ponkapog was named, Mr. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, whose summer home is in Ponkapog, protested, as it might be expected that a poet would. "There are," declared Mr. Aldrich, "at least 150 scents in it and it should be named Dollar-an-a-half street."—Boston Post.

"You are going too fast," said a physician to a rapid young patient—"much too fast, and you will have to haul in your horns." "Well, doctor, I will do my best to follow your advice; but I really don't see how I can get away with any more horns than I am hauling in now."—Drake's Magazine.

"I say, Jobkins, can you let me have that dollar you owe me?" "Want it to-day, particularly?" "Well, you see, I have the toothache." "What has that to do with it?" "A great shock will cure the toothache, Jobkins, and I thought perhaps if you paid me, I—er. Thank you."—Philadelphia Call.

A short-sighted man approached a stranger on Austin avenue and said: "You are a wretched donkey." "What do you mean, sir?" thundered the insulted party. "I beg your pardon. I made a mistake. You have a remarkable resemblance to the donkey I supposed you were."—Texas Siftings.

Old Mrs. Bently—"Tears to me, Ebenezer, as if these ministers have had altogether too much rest this summer?" Old Mr. Bently—"O, I don't know, Martha; them fellers is awful hard-worked during the winter. Why, just think, Parson Brownlow had five donation parties last season."—Tid-Bits.

Bridget (who has been sent to crack some nuts in preparation for Mrs. Blank's little dinner party to be held during the evening, enters with a few badly cracked upon the plate)—"An' indade, Missus Blank, Oi'll break me tathe a-crackin' any more of thim nuts. My jaw's all lame now, as it is, so it is."—Life.

"John," she said, as she entered his office one day and sniffed suspiciously; "I thought you had promised never to drink again." "My dear," he replied, deprecatingly, "your suspicions are unjust. I have just had a call from a Chicago Alderman." "Ah, that explains it. Forgive me, John."—Rambler.

"I see," said Stubbs, "that Dr. Michael Foster tells the British Association that smoking tobacco produces defective vision; do you believe it?" "O, I am sure of it," replied Mrs. S., "for I saw your friend Barns last evening puffing away, quite unconscious that there were several ladies in the room."—Boston Transcript.

Fogg went to see old man Fenderson the other day. Fenderson exhibited his art treasures. "A fine old master," said Fogg, stopping before a big painting. "Old master be blowed!" exclaimed Fenderson, indignantly. "No cheat-nut about that. That's brand new. I can swear to that, for I got it home before it was half dry."

Husband (to noble theatrical manager)—I—I—beg p—pardon, sir, but may I see my wife to-morrow for five minutes? Noble manager—To-morrow? Ah, let me see—no. I guess not, for to-morrow she must take her afternoon drive in the park. Perhaps the next day, but (frowning), remember, for five minutes only.—Graphic.

Summer sojourner to Saratoga tradesman—"What on earth do you do here all winter after robbing visitors during the summer months? I should think you would die from want of excitement." Saratoga tradesman—"O, no; we manage to keep things fairly alive after you city folks get away from us." "You do, eh. And how?" "By robbing one another."—Lowell Citizen.

Physician—I am afraid, Mrs. Quickmoney, that there is some trouble with your bronchial organ. Mrs. Quickmoney (alarmed)—Bronchial organ? Physician—Yes. Mrs. Quickmoney—Why, I never heard it called that before; but I am sure if you heard my daughter play on it you would be convinced that it is all right.—Graphic.

Gen. Schofield, after careful investigation, announces that the bit of land on which the Statue of Liberty stands is Bedlow's island—spelled with a w instead of a final e. Why there should ever have been any doubt about it, says the New York Tribune, is hard to understand. The ancestors of ex-Mayor Bedlow, of Newport, once owned the spot, and neither they nor their descendants have thought of refining the end of their name to loe. So Bedlow's island let it be. The title is honorable, traditional, and like all other old names, should be retained.

Notice of Election.

Notice is hereby given to the Electors of the Village of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, that the annual village election of said Village of Charlevoix, will be held at [illegible] on Monday, the [illegible] day of March, A. D. 18[illegible], at which time the following officers are to be elected, to-wit: A President, [illegible] Trustees, one [illegible], one Treasurer, one Village Assessor, [illegible] [illegible]. The President, [illegible] [illegible] elected for one year from the second Monday of March, 1887, and three Trustees for the term of (2) years from the above date. The polls of this election will be opened at [illegible] o'clock in the forenoon and continue open until five o'clock in the afternoon, unless the Board shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour.

Dated, Charlevoix, Mich., March 1, 1887.

HORACE S. HARSHA, Village Clerk.

For Sale.

A GOOD SAW MILL COMPLETE FOR SALE cheap. Inquire at Bank of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix County Board of School Examiners.

Spring examinations will occur as follows: Boyne City, Friday, March 25th, 1887; East Jordan, Friday, April 29th, 1887. Examinations will commence at 8:30 a. m., and end at 8:30 p. m. Candidates for first or second grades can write only at the examination at Boyne City, and may write until 9 o'clock, p. m.

WM. HARRIS, Sec., Norwood.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

Pan-Zama Balm

THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES. The grandest and simplest known remedy for all Female Trouble to which womankind is heir—$1 per box of [illegible] [illegible]. Reliable Lady Agents can make money [illegible] themselves and become benefactors to their race by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For medicine and particulars, Address PAN-ZAMA MED Co., Frankfort, Ind.

CROSS & SONS.,

Buy and Sell all kinds of

Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.

Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,

Photographer.

In Bradbeer's Gallery.

Photographs of all sizes taken.

Old Pictures copied and enlarged.

CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

SILVER WARE.

I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.

My Stock of

Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.

If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.

All classes of Repairing done quickly.

C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,

ARCHITECT

AND CONTRACTOR,

—ON—

Chalevoix Summer Resorts.

I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.

I employ only first-class workmen, both

Carpenters and Painters.

Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

CHARLEVOIX

Manufacturing Co.

Charlevoix, Mich.,

Manufacturers of

Sash and Doors,

Blinds, Mouldings etc.

NEWELL

Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails

kept in stock.

Window & Door Frames made to order.

All Kinds of

Building Material

Kept constantly on hand.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,

Furnished on application.

Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.

Correspondence solicited.

Washburn & Ackert,

FOUNDREYMEN,

MACHINISTS,

And Manufacturers of The

Charlevoix Plow.

CHARLEVOIX

Savings Bank.

Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

Henry Bennett, Pres., John Nicholls, Vice Pres., F. A. Smith, Cashier

DIRECTORS:

Henry Bennett, John Nicholls, A. R. Upright, O. D. Wood, A. Buttars, A. Fox, F. A. Smith.

CAPITAL $25,000

SURPLUS 2,000

The liability of Stockholders in all State banks as provided in Sec. 3174 Sec. 40 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan, is double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.

Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.

CORRESPONDENTS

National Park Bank - - New York.
Commercial Nat. Bank - - Chicago.
Nat. City Bank - - Grand Rapids.
Detroit Nat. Bank - - Detroit.

Bank of

Charlevoix,

W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.

CAPITAL, $25,000

Perfect Security

Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its Capital and conservative management.

Its Officers

Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to speculate with ones own money, is folly; that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.

Security in Banking

Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors, and, believing that it furnishes the usual guarantees, therefore,

This Bank Invites

People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. Just liberality will mark its dealings.

This Bank Will

Borrow Investment money when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be compatible with safe use of the money.

Parties Seeking

Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of private investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's

Investment Notes,

Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.

We Solicit Your Patronage.

Fox & Miller

Offer a

Mammoth Stock

OF

BOOTS, SHOES

and other

FOOT WEAR,

--AT--

LOWER PRICES

Than can be found elsewhere in the County.

We have just secured a

FIRST-CLASS

SHOEMAKER,

And will make Repairing a specialty.

We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.

NOTHING SHODDY.

Fox & Miller.

J. A. HEATH,

FURNITURE

—AND—

JOBBING SHOP.

Antrim Street,

CHARLEVOIX, MICH.

All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Manufacturer of BED SPRINGS.

Give me call.

RIFENBURG

MILLING CO.

Charlevoix, Mich.

Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

3 EXTRA GRADES

OF

FLOUR

Feed, Corn Meal, Graham

We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the

BEST BOATS!

The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do. In boat building. Call and get references.

I will guarantee the best modelled easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the

LEAST MONEY!

All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.

LEAVE ORDERS

with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.

Special facilities for stocking boat liveries.

J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co

We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of

BOOTS

(AND)

SHOES,

which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces

Lumbermen's Rubbers, Wool Boots, Shoe Pacs, And Everything

Usually kept in a country shoe store

We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.

Womens grain shoes for $1.25. Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.

Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,

Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at

Wholesale or Retail

All kinds of

FRESH MEATS,

SALT PORK,

SMOKED & SALTED

HAMS,

Dried and Smoked BACON, DRIED BEEF, Bologna, Head Cheese, Sausage.

Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.

Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.

A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S

MARKET

Is supplied with

All Kinds Of

MEATS

At Lowest Prices.

CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.

Corner of State & Mason sts.,

JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!

At Miss Spaulding's

MILLINERY ROOMS,

I will sell my entire stock of goods except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.

Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $5.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed hat in the store.

Come early and secure a Bargain.

MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!

All kinds of

Blacksmithing,

At the

Shop in the Foundry Building.

Horseshoeing a specialty.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED. W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GREEN, Attorneys at Law. Office in Buttars' Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORPE GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 4 doors west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. CARLSTEIN, M. D., Office at residence, Main st., Charlevoix, Mich.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. 119, meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows' hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix lodge No. 282, F. & A. M. Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post office.

I. O. O. F.—Round Lake lodge No. 293, meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. 138 meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

L. O. L.—True Blues No. 397, meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows' hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. [illegible] R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. 136, K. T., meets at their Asylum in Petoskey on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the homes of the members, during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.

President—Byron Sec.
First Vice President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strong.
Financial Secretary—H. [illegible]field.
Treasurer—Albert L. Mason.
Executive Committee—J. Milo Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. Lee Iddings, W. A. Brown and G. Y. Lasch.
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, R. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, B. W. Miller, S. M. [illegible], W. C. Newman, L. M. Clark, R. Berdan.

All those wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequalled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE,

RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

Every convenience for the travelling public, and headquarters for Petoskey and Elk Rapids stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE.

R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich

The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only 100 feet to Steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.

W. C. Newman, Prop'r.

Charlevoix, - - - Mich.

Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and Dock work solicited at any point between Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. R. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MENSROS'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Dock owners and Builders, look to your interest. Contracts taken and dock work solicited at any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. Correspondence promptly attended to. Address,

JOHN MENSROS, Jr., Ass't Manager, South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Weed's Drug Store, Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West (read down)			Going East (read up)
	5 45 pm	Detroit	11 10 am
7 05 am	6 35 am	St Ignace	8 35 am	5 55 pm
10 30	8 02	Newberry	[illegible]	3 05
12 [illegible]	[illegible]	Seney	5 15	12 45
	10 12	Reedsboro	4 15
3 25	11 31	Au Train	3 45	3 05
5 30	12 40	Marquette	2 15	7 00
	12 [illegible] pm	Marquette	2 00 pm
	1 55	Ishpeming	12 58
	4 10	L'Anse	10 40
	5 30	Houghton	9 20
	6 25	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

E. W. ALLEN, Gen Pass Agt, Marquette.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 6	No. 8	No. 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 15 a m	9 30 p m
Petoskey	8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 16	11 30
Mancelona	10 18	12 30
Walton Junc	11 50	1 50	5 15 p m
Cadillac Ar	12 30	2 50	6 10
Cadillac Lv	12 45	[illegible]	6 30
Le Roy	1 24	[illegible]	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 40
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids	2 40	8 11	8 33
Stanwood	3 05	8 30	8 55
Howard City	3 33	9 08	9 20
D G H & M Cross	[illegible]	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 50	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	[illegible]	11 15
Plainwell	8 33	[illegible]	1 12
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	7 15	1 40
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 30	2 00
Sturgis	10 27	8 50	3 28
Ft Wayne Ar	12 30	11 30	6 [illegible]
Ft Wayne Lv	12 50	11 [illegible]
Richmond	4 00	3 [illegible]
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 55 a m	7 20 p m
Richmond	10 20	10 [illegible]
Fort Wayne Ar	1 50	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	3 [illegible]
Sturgis	4 14	5 25
Kalamazoo Ar	5 45	6 [illegible]
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	7 20
Plainwell	6 [illegible]	7 48
Grand Rapids Ar	7 50	9 [illegible]
Grand Rapids Lv	11 30	4 [illegible]
D. G. H. & M. cross	11 45	5 [illegible]
Howard City	12 52	6 18
Stanwood	1 22	6 48
Big Rapids	1 43	7 13
Reed City Ar	2 15	7 45
Reed City Lv	2 [illegible]	[illegible]
Le Roy	3 08	8 33
Cadillac Ar	3 45	[illegible]
Cadillac Lv	3 55	9 [illegible]
Walton Junc	4 15	10 25
Mancelona	6 16	11 50
Boyne Falls	7 11	12 47
Petoskey	7 50	1 30
Mackinaw City	9 30	2 53

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

MISSING LINKS.

Pet turtles are becoming the fashion in New York city.

The erection of a $100,000 opera house is talked of at San Diego, California.

At Newton, Mass., the artesian wells furnish 800,000 barrels of pure water daily.

Mrs. Jenny June Croly has resigned from the editorship of Demorest's Monthly.

The Buffalo Express has come out with a new word, "solured," but does not furnish the definition.

The sand thrown up by the Charleston earthquake is deep black, pale blue, light brown, pale yellow and silvery.

An orchard near South Glastonbury, Conn., contains twelve thousand peach trees, and is the largest one in the state.

Abraham Lincoln, grandfather of the great Abraham Lincoln, was slain by an Indian's tomahawk just one hundred years ago.

Miss Kate Field will pass the early winter at Old Point Comfort. In one way and another Kate manages to get a good deal of comfort out of life.

Dwight L. Moody will this winter pursue his evangelical labors in the south. It is not known as yet whether he will be accompanied by Mr. Sankey.

A grape-grower in the Allegheny valley, Pennsylvania, claims to have raised eighteen thousand pounds of grapes from five acres of ground this year.

Since the recent revolt among the convicts at the San Quentin, Cal., prison, the directors have issued an order forbidding female visitors within the walls.

Artificially grown ducks are said to be the plumpest in the Boston market. At one duck-pond at South Easton, Mass., seven thousand have been hatched this season.

Francis K. Pendleton says his father, Minister Pendleton, has no intention of resigning. He is said to have become closely attached to his home and his duties in Berlin.

Now it is the Boston Traveler that prints a list of men and women in San Francisco who are worth $1,000,000 or more. The entire number of millionaires thus given is 104.

There are more daily papers in Philadelphia than in New York city and Boston combined, while New York city has more places of amusement than Boston and Philadelphia combined.

Queen Victoria's health is said to be better now than it has been for several years, and more guests are being entertained at Balmoral than at any time since the Prince Consort's death.

Prof. Whitney, of Yale college, has been working too hard on the new dictionary, and in consequence will have to give up his classes in the Sheffield Scientific school for several months at least.

Mrs. Anna Woerishoffer, daughter of Mrs. Ottendorfer and widow of Charles F. Woerishoffer, the banker of New York, has just given to several charitable and scientific societies the sum of $100,000.

Hand bouquets most in demand for the society season will be of very long-stalked roses that will hang loosely, being supported by banks of smilax and maidenhair fern. Corsage bouquets are to be of Russian violets.

The United States and Canada sent forty-two representatives to the recent congress of naturalists in Berlin, out of a total of 429 foreign delegates. England sent seventeen, Japan sixteen, Italy fifteen, and South America twelve.

Amelia Steele, who claims to have been the wife of Joseph Gall, a Brooklyn oysterman, who died recently, worth $150,000, received but $1,000 from the estate, and proposes to begin an action in the Supreme court for a larger slice of the pie.

A Massachusetts citizen tells of a voyage he made from Europe many years ago Anchoria fashion. He was on a sailing vessel, and, as the winds were unusually light, the vessel drifted away up into the Iceland channels, and when New York was reached had been on the water 103 days.

An awning on the first building south of the Delaware and Hudson cut on Broadway, Albany, N. Y., projects across the track of the company, so that trains can not pass without wrecking it. The agent of the property refuses to remove it, and the cut must remain useless until the matter is settled.

A gentleman near Stilesboro, Ga., discovered recently what he at first thought would amount to a big treasure. It was an old stone image or idol, about eighteen inches in height, and from appearances must be very old, probably being one of the last relics of the ancient idolatrous "mound-builders," traces of whose existence have been discovered all along the Etowah and other Georgia rivers.

At a medical convention the physical decay of women was recently a melancholy subject. When women's gymnasiums, riding-schools, and lawn-tennis courts are increasing in popular feminine favor, and the vim for the exertion of shopping has not utterly disappeared, there seem to be indications that the physical condition of women may have been misunderstood by the learned medical men.

There appeared before a court in Sparta, Ga., the other day, a negro named Cooper Lamar, who was captured off the coast of Africa and brought to America on the Wanderer twenty-six years ago, and consequently was one of the last negroes ever stolen and smuggled into slavery. Notwithstanding his twenty-six years' residence here, he knows but little of the English tongue, and had to be questioned by signs.

Cardinal Jacobini, Papal Secretary, who has been in ill-health for some time, is to take a year's rest. He is only 54 and has a good constitution, but less broken down under too much work. His substitute will be Archbishop Vanutelli, now Nuncio at Lisbon, a very able man and skilled diplomat. But the strongest man at the Vatican is the Pope himself, who regularly works from twelve to fourteen hours a day, and is wonderfully decisive and methodical.

A young woman picking her way across the railroad tracks in Indianapolis saw a brakeman wave his hand to her from the top of a departing freight train. She smiled sweetly and waved back. Then the brakeman waved more violently, and the girl smiled more sweetly and stopped and tried to get out her handkerchief, to fittingly carry on the flirtation. The next thing she knew she was yanked off the track by a flagman, just in time to escape a backing train, which the brakeman had seen and had tried in vain to warn her of.

Modest Don Cameron.

When Senator Don Cameron of Pennsylvania, writes his name in a hotel register he invariably puts a dash in front of it thus: ——J. D. Cameron. The dash is very long, and begins where the page of the book is fastened in its place. If the register is a very wide book the eccentric dash of the Pennsylvania senator is supplemented by an affix: ——J. D. Cameron.—— Whenever he writes his name on the Fifth Avenue Hotel register, which is a wide book, he uses the double dash. A gentleman gives this explanation: "I have lived in Washington, know Senator Cameron well, and the reason he uses a dash before his name. He never uses a dash except on a hotel register. At the capital nearly every man has a handle to his name. When a senator or general registers at a hotel the clerk politely adds the prefix, whatever it may be, and it appears that General So-and-so has deliberately written his en title. Senator Cameron, instead of being a vain man, is very modest and unassuming. The polite clerks put the prefix senator to his name frequently on the registers, which was exceedingly repugnant to him. His simple request to leave off all appendages to his signature did not have the desired effect, and he hit upon the happy idea of the dash to keep anything from being written in front of his name. The front dash worked for a time on narrow registers, but finally the ingenious clerk wrote the word 'senator' after his name. This required double vigilance, so the retiring and genial senator added the affix dash."

Bad Yankee Customs.

An English tourist relates some of his American experiences in the New York Herald: My wife and I stayed at a prominent hotel in New York, taking high-priced rooms, and noticed after two or three days that we were kept waiting a long time for each meal; that we were always being served by a strange waiter; that we were made to sit at any and every part of the room, and seldom at an unoccupied table, badly served, kept waiting a long time between each course, were given stale or indifferent strawberries and milk much watered, while others were served at once, always had the same waiter and table, were never kept waiting, and had their strawberries fresh and served with good cream. I applied to a friend whom I made after my arrival here and told him how matters were. "Ah!" said he, "have you given the head waiter who seats the guests a dollar?" "No," I replied, "I understood this was not usual in this country; besides it is my custom, if a waiter is obliging, to give him a gratuity on leaving the hotel." "Oh, that won't do here," was his answer; "you must give your dollar first and then you will find all will be right."

So I acted on his advice, and found that the effect of this dollar lasted for about a month; then it began to wane and another was expected. Now, this compares very unfavorably with the tipping system in England, which I have heard Americans decry so vehemently, and I admit justly. A head waiter at a London hotel would have been content with a shilling given on my leaving in return for any attentions he might have shown me.

At Chicago the same system was practiced upon me in a worse degree. I was positively denied food that I ordered, and told "they were out of it," when others who had entered the room after me were served with the very things that I ordered.

A Bird's-Eye View of the Earth.

If we imagine an observer contemplating the earth from a convenient distance in space, and scrutinizing its features as it rolls before him, we may suppose him to be struck with the fact that eleven sixteenths of its surface are covered with water, and that the land is so unequally distributed that from one point of view he would see a hemisphere almost exclusively oceanic, while nearly the whole of the dry land is gathered in the opposite hemisphere. He might observe that the great oceanic area of the Pacific and Antarctic Oceans is dotted with islands—like a shallow pool with stones rising above its surface—as if its great depth were small in comparison with its area. He might also notice that a mass or belt of land surrounds each pole, and that the northern ring sends off to the southward three vast tongues of land and of mountain-chains, terminating respectively in South America, South Africa, and Australia, toward which feebler and insular processes are given off by the Antarctic continental mass. This, as some geographers have observed, gives a rudely three-ribbed aspect to the earth, though two of the three ribs are crowded together and form the Europ-Asian mass, or double continent, while the third is isolated in the single continent of America. He might also observe that the northern girdle is cut across, so that the Atlantic opens by a wide space into the Arctic sea, while the Pacific is contracted toward the north, but confluent with the Antarctic ocean. The Atlantic is also relatively deeper and less cumbered with islands than the Pacific, which has the higher ridges near its shores, constituting what some visitors to the Pacific coast of America have so inaptly called the "back of the world," while the wider slopes face the narrower ocean, into which for this reason the greater part of the drainage of the land is poured. The Pacific and Atlantic, though both depressions or flattenings of the earth, are, we shall find, different in age, character, and conditions; and the Atlantic, though the smaller, is the older, and from the geological point of view, in some respects, the more important of the two. If our imaginary observer had the means of knowing anything of the rock formations of the continents, he would notice that those bounding the north Atlantic are in general of great age, some belonging to the Laurentian system. On the other hand, he would see that many of the mountain-ranges along the Pacific are comparatively new, and that modern igneous action occurs in connection with them. Thus he might be led to believe that the Atlantic, though comparatively narrow, is an older feature of the earth's surface, while the Pacific belongs to more modern times.—Sir William Dawson, in Popular Science Monthly.

"That Parisian trick—the Vanishing Lady—that Herrmann does is a great one," said Jones. "He covers a lady with a veil, and after a little maneuvering removes the veil and the lady has disappeared." "That's nothing to a young lady in our boarding-house," answered Brown. "I have seen ten or twelve persons in the parlor, and this young lady comes in, sits down to the piano, and begins to play and sing. In two minutes all the rest had disappeared. Talk about Herrmann! He isn't a patch to her."—New York Sun.

MRS. A. T. STEWART.

Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart, widow of the merchant prince who died recently, was [illegible] [illegible] before the public [illegible] [illegible] her husband's death by [illegible] [illegible] in connection with Garden City, which was one of her husband's pet projects. The most prominent feature of the place is the memorial cathedral which she built. The corner-stone was laid Thursday, June 12, 1877, and the Cathedral of the Incarnation, as it is called, was opened April 8, 1885. Mrs. Stewart's maiden name was Cornelia M. Clinch. She was born in this city. She was the daughter of Jacob Clinch, a well-known shipchandler, and her brother, Charles P. Clinch, was at one time Assistant Customs Collector of this port. Mrs. Stewart was married to the famous merchant in 1823. They had three children, all of whom were at rest in St. Mark's churchyard before Mr. Stewart died, April 10, 1876. During Mr. Stewart's long career as a business-man he frequently said that Mrs. Stewart was his partner as well as his wife.

It is said to Mrs. Stewart's keen business sense her husband owed much of his success. She saw as soon as he did that mercantile prosperity lay up-town, and together they selected the site of the great store at Broadway, Fourth avenue, Ninth and Tenth streets. The building erected there cost about $3,000,000. As Mr. Stewart's fortune increased he made his domestic arrangements keep pace with it, and several years before he died he made his home in the palatial residence at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. His fortune at the time of his death was estimated at from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000. Since her husband's death Mrs. Stewart has lived very quietly in the mansion at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, and her name has not appeared frequently in public prints of late years. Some prominence was given to it by the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Stewart's body from its last resting-place, and two or three times her name has been brought before the public in connection with suits by claimants against the estate. She always dreaded publicity or display, and the sensation and comments caused by the grave robbery were entirely distasteful to her. During her closing years she was convinced that her husband's body had been recovered and that her last resting-place would be beside his.

It used to be said that Mr. Stewart was displeased because his wife reared him no sons to share his name and fortune; that his love for her had vanished; that he had gone out to other women and lavished his devotion and wealth upon them; that children were growing up that might claim him as father, but not his wife as mother, and so on.

Those who knew the Stewart's well knew well that while the quiet, almost grim, little old man was as cold as ice and hard as flint in his business relations, and while to the world he showed few sympathetic traits, toward his wife his manner was always chivalrous, devoted, tender. Two days in every year—the anniversaries of their engagement and of their marriage—they never to the end of their wedded life failed to remember and commemorate with tender love tokens. To the day of his death he regarded her as the loveliest of women, and to her last day she thought of him only as the truest and noblest of men, whose like she would not seen again.

The death of her husband was a terrible blow to Mrs. Stewart. Having no children, and but few kindred even of remote degree, she felt herself alone in the world. She gave up the remainder of her life to two objects—to cherish his memory and to complete the work that he had left unfinished. The former she did with all her heart; the latter she sadly failed to do, because she trusted too much to a man who has shown himself unequal to the task.—N. Y. Dispatch.

It is not generally known that President Lincoln was an inventor, but the first installment of the Lincoln Life, in the November Century, contains reduced fac-similes of the drawings in the patent-office, on which was obtained a patent for "A. Lincoln's improved manner of buoying vessels." A drawing is also given from the model of the invention. The patent is dated the 22d of May, 1849.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head, everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Dr. G. W. Crouter's.

SOMETHING NEW.

WORLD RENOWNED

CENTRE DRAFT PLOW

The Special Features of this Celebrated Plow are, that it

1st. NEVER CLOGS.
2d. ALWAYS SCOURS.
3d. TURNS A PERFECT FURROW.

The Beam is not bolted to the [illegible], but—by means of a steel frog—is set directly to the Centre of the Line of Draft, making a steady light running plow, and one that cannot be Clogged. See one before you buy. If your Agent has none write us for price.

MANUFACTURED BY

J. I. CASE PLOW WORKS,

RACINE, Wis.

MARVELOUS PRICES!

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away. [illegible] good type upon good paper. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] $1.00 each. [illegible]

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. [illegible]
2. Winter Evening Recreations, a large collection of Acting Charades, Tableaux, Games, Puzzles, etc. for social gatherings, private theatricals, and evenings at home.
3. Back to the Old Home. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Hidden Perils."
4. Dialogues, Recitations and Readings, a large and choice collection for school exhibitions and public and private entertainments.
5. The Standard Letter Writer for Ladies and Gentlemen, a complete guide to correspondence, giving plain directions for the composition of letters of every kind, with innumerable forms and examples.
6. The Frozen Deep. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
7. Red Court Farm. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne," etc.
8. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. "The Lady of the Lake" is a romance in verse, and of all the works of Scott none is more beautiful than this.
9. In Cupid's Net. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
10. Amos Barton. A Novel. By George Eliot, author of "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss," etc.
11. Lady Gwendoline's Dream. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
12. The Mystery of the Holly Tree. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
13. The Budget of Wit, Humor and Fun, a large collection of the funny stories, sketches, anecdotes, poems, and jokes.
14. John Bowerbank's Wife. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
15. The Gray Woman. A Novel. By Mrs. Gaskell, author of "Mary Barton," etc.
16. Sixteen Complete Stories by Popular Authors, embracing love, humorous and detective stories, stories of society life, of adventure, of railway life, etc., all very interesting.
17. Jasper Dane's Secret. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Aurora Floyd," etc.
18. Fancy Work for Home Adornment, an entirely new work upon this subject, containing easy and practical instructions for making fancy baskets, wall pockets, brackets, needle work, embroidery, etc., etc., profusely and elegantly illustrated.
19. Grimm's Fairy Stories for the Young. The finest collection of fairy stories published. The children are delighted with them.
20. Manual of Etiquette for Ladies and Gentlemen, a guide to politeness and good breeding, giving the rules of modern etiquette for all occasions.
21. Useful Knowledge for the Million, a handy book of useful information for all, upon many and various subjects.
22. The Home Cook Book and Family Physician, containing hundreds of excellent cooking recipes and hints to housekeepers, also telling how to cure all common ailments by simple home remedies.
23. Manners and Customs in Far Away Lands, a very interesting and instructive book of travels, describing the peculiar life, habits, manners and customs of the people of foreign countries.
24. 37 Popular Ballads. Same size as sheet music. Words of all the old and new songs.
25. Called Back. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
26. At the World's Mercy. A Novel. By Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh," etc.
27. Mildred Trevanion. A Novel. By "The Duchess," author of "Molly Bawn," etc.
28. Dark Days. A Novel. By the author of "Called Back."
29. Shadows on the Snow. A Novel. By B. L. Farjeon, author of "Bread-and-Cheese-and-Kisses," etc.
30. Leoline. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Brenda Yorke," etc.
31. Gabriel's Marriage. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "No Name," etc.
32. Reaping the Whirlwind. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay, author of "Old Middleton's Money," etc.
33. Dudley Carleon. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret," etc.
34. A Golden Dawn. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne," etc.
35. Valerie's Fate. A Novel. By Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," etc.
36. Sister Rose. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins, author of "The Woman in White," etc.
37. Anne. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne."
38. The Laurel Bush. A Novel. By Miss Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," etc.
39. Robinson Crusoe. A thrilling narrative by Daniel De Foe, describing the adventures of a castaway in the South Pacific Ocean.
40. How to Make Poultry Pay. A practical and instructive series of articles by Mr. P. H. Jacobs, Poultry Editor of "The Farm and Garden," Philadelphia. Illustrated.
41. Parlor Magic and Chemical Experiments, a book which tells how to perform hundreds of amusing tricks in magic and instructive experiments with simple agents.
42. Gems of the Poets, containing charming selections from Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Bryant, and many others.
43. Building Plans for Practical, Low-cost Houses. A full description and plans of Eight modern houses, ranging in price from $500 to $4500. Illustrated.
44. Anecdotes of Public Men—Washington, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Tilden, Lincoln, Scott, Grant, Garfield, Gladstone, Butler, Hancock, Lee, and all the leading men of the century.
45. Æsop's Fables. The work of an ancient genius. Children have read them for centuries, and grown people quote them every day.

OUR UNEQUALED OFFER.

We have arranged with the publishers of these books to furnish the whole forty-five with one year's subscription to our paper for $4.00, or we will send any five for 25 cts., or the whole forty-five for $1.50. Address all orders to publishers of "SENTINEL," Charlevoix, Mich.

BURNS & SCROGGIE'S

LIVERY STABLE

CHARLEVOIX.

The Best Single and Double Rigs always on hand.

Drivers furnished if desired. Rates low.

Burns & Scroggie, Charlevoix.

MERCHANT

TAILORING.

I have located at Charlevoix, and am prepared to do all kinds of Merchant Tailoring.

Repairing and Cleaning done promptly at lowest rates.

Call and see me, Satisfaction Guaranteed. Resp'y Yours,

C. H. Maddaugh.

Farming Lands

500,000 ACRES

Of Splendid

MICHIGAN LANDS

For Sale By The

G. R. & I. R. R.

50,000 Acres in Charlevoix Co.

These lands are timbered with hard and maple and other wood and are accessible to best markets.

By Water and Rail

And [illegible] in a state unequalled for health, well watered [illegible] [illegible] in the great fruit raising section of Michigan.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad runs through the center of the grant. The part of Michigan in which these lands are situated is

Not a Wilderness by any Means.

It contains a population of [illegible] [illegible] and is rapidly filling up with settlers [illegible] almost every [illegible] in the Union.

Over 200,000 acres of the lands of this grant have been sold.

Send for Pamphlet or [illegible] Pamphlet, Address

W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner,

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.

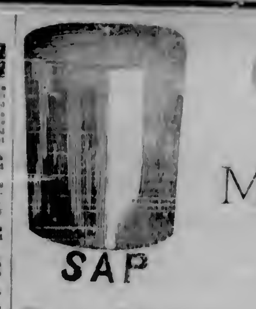
TITLE PERFECT.

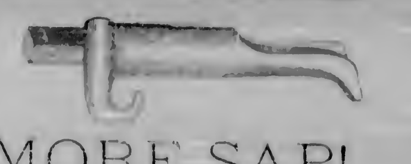
The Kalamazoo

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Contains the Associated Press Dispatches

Sent by Mail at 50c a month.





MORE SAP!

SAP PAILS,

Sap Pans, - Sap Spiles.

ATKINS SAWS,

PERFECTION AXES,

JOB and TIN WORK.

L. D. BARTHOLOMEW & CO.

DRUGS and

STATIONERY,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

A Large and Complete New Line

JUST RECEIVED.

EVERYTHING

YOU CAN THINK OF.

You'll be sorry if you do not examine our Goods and Prices.

PERRY WEED.

The only News stand in town.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Boiler Works!

Builder and Manufacturer of

BOILERS, HEATERS, LARD TANKS OF ALL KINDS.

Sheet Iron Work given special attention.

MARINE WORK

a specialty.

HENRY BARTH, Prop.

Charlevoix, Mich.

AUTOMATIC

Single Thread Sewing Machines

Will absolutely take the place of Shuttle Machines. No woman ever wants a Shuttle Machine after trying an Automatic.

Address,

73 W. 23d St., New York City.

CURES

Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Whooping Cough, Quinzy, Sore Throat, Consumption, Bronchitis, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

YOUNG'S

COUGH

SYRUP

Dansville, Mich., Aug. 15, 18[illegible]. I was attacked with a severe cold and threatened with lung fever while on a visit to Hudson, Mich., about a month ago, so much so that I was unable to fill an appointment to preach on account of my severe coughing, but managed to get home, and immediately took some of Dr. F. A. Young's Cough & Lung Syrup [illegible] in the house, and my cough left me [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] commenced taking it. I find permanent relief when I am attacked by cough or lung complaint.

REV. ROBT. COPE

Howell, Mich., Oct. 26, 18[illegible]. I have tried Dr. F. A. Young's Cough and Lung Syrup for more than a year, as I had occasion, as a remedy for Colds and Coughs, and found it a reliable medicine. I have used his Ague and Liver Syrup in my family with the best of success, curing my mother (whose age was over [illegible]) [illegible] one of the hardest attacks of Fever and Ague after the second chill and fever. I take pleasure in recommending the above remedies to all who need them.

REV. S. B. KIMMELL.

Sold by all druggists. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Large bottles sent free on receipt of price.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Take The Sentinel.

FRANK E. WOODS

Bath & Barber Rooms.

Hot and Cold Baths at all hours. Odd fellows Block.

MONEY TO LOAN,

At current rates of interest, on

Approved Real Estate Security.

School Bonds bought and sold.

MILEY & CHAPIN,

Boyne City.

BATH & BARBER

ROOMS.

Hot and Cold Baths and Sea Water Baths at the Barber Shop, 1st door north of Bridge St. House.

If you want a quiet place to get a shave, hair dress or bath call and see me.

JAY L. PRICE.

MILLINERY

—AND—

FANCY GOODS!

Mrs. ELLA SMITH &

Miss ANNIE COOPER

Have opened a store in the Ingleside Hotel, [illegible] [illegible] their friends to call and inspect their fine stock of

FANCY GOODS!

Of all varieties usually kept in a first-class millinery store.

For Finest

JOB WORK,

Patronize The

Sentinel.

GELLICK & INGALLS

Dealers in

Choice Wines,

Fine Liquors

EXCELLENT CIGARS.

We call Special Attention to our

Old Kentucky Sour Mash

WHISKIES.

We also keep continually on draught

Milwaukee

Export and lager Beer.

Bridge St., 1st door south of Sentinel.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, - PUBLISHERS

Speak and Write Plainly.

A lady stepped into a cab and said sweetly to the driver "... Huron." All seemed well for a time until the jehu gave signs of going over to the west division. Upon inquiry he was found to be setting forth for Van Buren. It was in vain Booth cried out Sic semper tyrannus, because the plain man who heard the words did not possess any familiarity with the Latin tongue and very naturally rejected the words as being: "I am sick, send for Maginnis." While Lewis Gaylord Clark was in our world and was helping N. P. Willis edit a paper, his note that he would write for the Home Journal as soon as he could find his lost muse, was so printed as to put Clark in the attitude of seeking a lost mule. A doctor in the country left a dispatch at the telegraph office ordering "a dozen lines" for a patient. The man in Chicago filled the requisition by expressing to the invalid a dozen "Times." A fashionable girl of this city sent a letter to Winona, but it reached its true destination in a month after it had been well inspected by the postmaster at Vienna, Austria. Poor letter, it did not know where to go!

A city lawyer fell into a terrible passion over a letter he had received from a brother attorney. After making some hot remarks about wasting time over "hieroglyphics," "puzzles," "chicken tracks" and "ink lightning," he sat down and gave the offender some red hot advice about writing more plainly; but the letter did not hurt the man's feelings in the least; he could not read the note, and put it aside with the remark: "I never could read that fellow's writing." Mr. Emerson sometimes ...

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

WISE MEN WHO PLAY THE FOOL.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage recently delivered the following in the Tabernacle at Brooklyn, N. Y., taking for his text: "And he changed his behavior before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard."—I. Sam. xxi., 13.

He said: There is one scene in the life of David that you may not have pondered. You have seen him with a harp playing the devil out of Saul; with a sling, smashing the skull of Goliath; with a sword, hacking to pieces the Philistines; with a scepter, ruling a vast realm; with a psalm, gathering all nations into doxology; but in my text you have David playing the fool. He has been anointed king, yet he is in exile and passing incognito among the Gathites. They begin to suspect who he is, and say:

"I wonder if this is not the warrior King David? It looks like him. Is not this the man about whom they used to make poetry, and about whom they composed a dance, so that the maidens of the city, reeling now on one foot and now on the other, used to sing: 'Saul has slain his thousands but David has slain his tens of thousands.' Yes, it is very much like David. It must be David. It is David."

David, to escape their hands, pretends to be demented. He said within himself: "If I act crazily, then these people will not injure me. No one would be so much of a coward as to assault a madman."

So, one day, while these Gathites are watching David with increased suspicion, they see him standing by the door running his hands meaninglessly up and down the panels—scrabbling on the door as though he would climb up, his mouth wide open, drooling like an infant. I suppose the boys of the streets threw missiles at ...

[illegible]

MICHIGAN.

Condensed Reports of the Latest News from All Parts of the State.

Latest from Lansing.

SENATE.

Bills were introduced to protect the chastity of girls between the ages of 14 and 16 years; to make an appropriation for the State Library; to make an appropriation for the Industrial Home for Girls; to authorize the officers of the State Agricultural Society to permanently locate the State fair; to provide for the erection and furnishing of an executive mansion; to authorize the organization of corporations to carry on the business of buying, selling and breeding live stock; to better protect the interests of wives whose husbands neglect or desert them when possessed of sufficient property for their support.

A bill passed organizing the County of Luce, in the Upper Peninsula. Bills introduced: To abolish the State Board of Health and provide for closing up its affairs; to require railroad companies not organized in the State to conform to the laws, to give the United States exclusive jurisdiction over territory to be used by the Portage Land and River Improvement Company; to authorize the Erie and Kalamazoo Railroad to change their line from Palmyra to Adrian; to regulate rates of railroad and other transportation companies, to organize a military corps in connection with the Michigan State troops.

The following bills were introduced: To revise the charter of Jackson City; to amend the laws relating to the inspection of illuminating oils; to eliminate from the statutes all obsolete laws, to make an appropriation for lighting the Michigan Insane Asylum and the State Capitol building with electricity, to authorize the Erie and Kalamazoo Railroad ... change its ...

—The strike at the Champion Mine at Marquette has been ended by the men going back to work. The company made no concessions.

DETROIT MARKETS.—Wheat, No. 1, white, 81½c; Michigan red, 81½c; No. 2, red, 81½c; Corn, 39½c; Oats, No. 2, 31c; No. 2, white, 33c; Clover seed, $4.50.

—The winter herring fishing of the Sault river is up to its general average. It is no uncommon occurrence for a net of two pounds to lift three hundred fish.

—Friends of four prisoners held for burglary in the Chippewa county jail broke in the door of the prison, overpowered the turnkey, and released the inmates.

—About one thousand Jackson Catholics who want the bishop to continue to hold the church property have signed a petition against the Gorman bill, pending in the state legislature.

—Senator Stockbridge of Michigan has purchased an old church edifice and lot in Kalamazoo and presented it to the Young Men's Christian association of that city. The gift is valued at $7,000.

—William Nardin, a farmer living near Grand Rapids tried to drive a muskrat out of its house by poking it with the butt end of his gun. The weapon was discharged and the farmer lost an arm.

—It is believed by the Charlotte authorities that Dee Winters, the 16-year-old boy who disappeared recently lost his life in the river at that place while he was attempting to cross it during a severe storm.

—The two doctors in Mayber are bitter foes. One of them went to the office of the other, locked the door behind him, and began to flourish a knife and a revolver. The frightened proprietor called assistance, and thus escaped with his life.

—Michigan's crop of spring story tellers has evidently ...

[illegible]

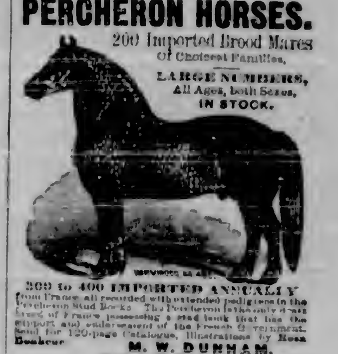
A LESSON WITH A MORAL.

[illegible]

SCROFULA

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria



OAKLAWN PERCHERON HORSES.

FITS

PENNYROYAL PILLS "CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH."

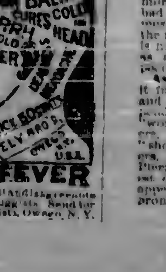
OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

ELY'S CREAM BALM. CATARRH



TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

[illegible]

Charlevoix Sentinel.
Established, 1869.
CHARLEVOIX, MARCH 9, 1887.
WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

ANNUAL HISTORY

Of the Pine Lake Region, As Gleaned From the Files of the Sentinel.

1875.

A resolution passed the Michigan Legislature in January praying Congress to aid in the improvement of Pine River.

Jan 29th, Gov. Bagley appointed Wm. Harris, of Norwood, Judge of Probate, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R Cooper.

A snow blockade on the G. R. & I. delayed the mail a week in February.

The Indian reservation was made subject to homestead entry April 15.

At the spring election, the following supervisors were elected: Charlevoix, A. K Dougherty; South Arm, James A. Keat; Marion, John Ward; Eveline, Ava Smith; Evangeline, B. R. Miller; Norwood, O. D. Wood; Boyne Valley, F. K. Robinson. Reuben Hatch was elected Circuit Judge. The county gave a Democratic majority of 17.

C. R. Ford, "Emmet county's legal carbuncle," brought suit against the SENTINEL in March for libel. The suit still hangs fire.

The Emmet county Democrat began to grind in May

The schooner W. A. Smith, built by Campbell & See, was launched May 5th.

The G. R. & I. R. R. paid $5,633 taxes on their Charlevoix county lands in 1874.

The SENTINEL was enlarged to a six-column quarto July 10th—the largest paper in the Grand Traverse region.

During the year ending July 10th, 1875, money orders amounting to $27,385 were issued.

Rev. W. L. Tilden succeeded Rev. Geo. L. Cole as pastor of the M. E. church in September.

At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors, October 11th, the salary of the Judge of Probate was fixed at $75, that of the Sheriff $50, the Clerk's $175, the Treasurer $175. The sum of $400 was appropriated for the erection of a building for county offices.

Speaking of up-lake villages the SENTINEL in November says: "We understand that W. H. Porter of Advance, contemplates platting a village this fall.——John Miller already has a village surveyed at the head, which must at no distant day make quite a settlement. It is called Spring Harbor and is appropriately named. ——At the head of South Arm Mr. Isaman has a village platted which is already quite a trading center. Opposite this point Mr. Empey has a tract of land which he will plat at some future day, he having already erected a large store building thereon.——Beyne Falls, upon the railroad is now entitled to the name and dignity of a village."

ALPENA & PETOSKEY.

A Scheme for a New Railroad Across the State.

The News of the 2nd says: Articles of incorporation for the Alpena & Petoskey railroad company will be filed on Saturday. The proposed new railroad was first suggested by Controller Wm. B Moran about a year ago and was thought of by the necessity he felt for some means of marketing timber which he owns upon a 15,000 acre tract in the northern part of the state. Messrs. Buckley, Wachtel and toll of Petoskey, Messrs Pack, Comstock, Fletcher, Maltz and Shields of Alpena, and Messrs F. F. Palms, M. W. O'Brien and John V. Moran of Detroit, nearly all of whom have timber lands in the same region, indorsed the plan, and those are the names which will appear in the articles of incorporation.

The new railroad will open up a large area of new country. The air line between Alpena and Petoskey is about 69 miles. The route selected, however, contemplates the construction of 76 miles of road. Commencing at Alpena it will take a southward dip into Montmorency county; turning north it will cross the northeastern corner of Otsego county, the southwestern corner of Cheboygan county, the northeastern corner of Charlevoix county and thence into Emmet county to Petoskey. By means of spurs it is calculated to open up all of Presque Isle and Montmorency counties, and the western part of Alpena county.

The new country, Mr. Moran says, is rich in hardwood timber which can never be marketed except by rail; there are also many good pine belts which are not reached by steamers.

In the counties mentioned there are 52,000 acres of swamp lands owned by the state and held expressly for the purpose of opening up and reclaiming and draining the adjacent territory. Mr. Moran says it has long been conceded that the best way to open up and reclaim land is to build a railroad through it. Therefore, the company has had a bill filed at Lansing asking for a grant of the 52,000 acres mentioned.

The capital stock of the company will be $600,000, and the work of construction will be pushed as fast as possible during the coming summer.

Ironton.

Mrs. Alonzo Sheldon who was quite ill last week, is recovering.

Prof. Emrey, state agent of Michigan State Reading Circle, spent a day visiting ye scribe last week.

Our W. C. T. U. ladies are awfully in earnest when they want you to give them 10 cents.

The snow storm of last week Sunday blocked all the roads in and out of town. No church service was held.

The kilns were fired again last week.

Mrs. James Briggs, of Elk Rapids, has sued David Sieber for $4,000 for selling liquor to her husband.

Fire Fishing on the Halifax.

From the Halifax (Fla.) Journal.

We are not proposing to tell a fish story, that is, a Jonah kind of an affair, requiring an elastic faith to stretch eyes, but to give a plain, unvarnished account of a night's sport on the Halifax river, not uncommon in its experiences and results here, which we hope will please many of our readers who love piscatorial pictures.

There is at Port Orange a winter colony of Charlevoix, Mich., folks, who not only delight in orange growing and the enjoyment of our winter sunshine, but are expert fishermen, especially in spearing fish by fire-light at night. One of these gentlemen, M. J. Stockman, paid this office a visit last week, and extended an invitation which was readily accepted, to "come down some night and go fire-fishing" with them. Accordingly Monday at 3 p. m., after scribbling a lot of copy, we sailed to Port Orange, which place, having a fair wind, we reached in an hour's sailing time, and calling at the cottage occupied by our friends, notified them that if it suited their convenience and pleasure we were ready to take in the fun and fishing that night. A consultation was held in which it was decided that all hands would go if the wind should fall, which was hoped at sunset or after, sufficiently to prevent a ripple on the water or the fires from burning too fiercely, or scattering sparks uncomfortably.

Uncle Mac, at the hotel, which is one of the pleasantest places to stop at on the Halifax, gave us one of his cordial receptions, and an excellent supper, which was enjoyed to the utmost. The Charlevoix party consists of M. J. Stockman, E. Carpenter, A. E. Mason, C. Y. Cook and John [?] Ackert. It was decided that we should go with Stockman and Mason (Ackert having concluded that his hair had been cut so short that he might take cold in the night air, if he went,) in one boat, while Carpenter and Cook took another.

The jacks, iron frames for the fires, fastened to uprights, four feet high, projecting from the boats' bows, were prepared, light-wood, i. e., fat pine, was split into convenient pieces, and fish-spears or grains, consisting of four or five tined and barbed steel spears on long tough handles, provided for the party, and thus fully equipped, with considerable patience and doubt as to whether the wind would fall sufficiently, a couple of hours were whiled away on the hotel verandahs, until a hail came from the dock announcing that all was ready for the start. Carpenter and Cook had pulled on with their boat. The wind had fallen, the tide was coming up, and the night was moonless. Getting into the boat and turning southward toward the many winding creeks amongst the mangrove islands selected for the night's fishing, our oars were soon flashing in measured splash amongst the phosphorescent waters, each dip making brilliant aquarian fire-works, while in every direction darted mullet, each one followed by a curving serpentine trail of light—with the stars overhead coquetting with their images in the water, a balmy air to breathe, and a temperature like that of a Mayday on the western prairies—it was a perfect night, only to be still better for our anticipated sport if the wind should die out entirely.

The increasing tide made strong pulling necessary, but in a short time Sharp's Creek was reached, and, halting under the lee of a mangrove island, Mason proceeded to light a fire in the jack. Meantime, still further to the southward was a gleam or halo which showed us where the other party were.

Soon the brilliant flames of the pitch pine brought out the island shore with its dead mangrove bushes, its rank flag grass and oyster beds still uncovered, and gleaming over the water, showed every shell or fish in it or on the bottom. The scene in the water under the light was fascinating in its vividness, as in the shallows everything was shown with perfect distinctness, the sand, shells and scales of fishes reflecting in appropriate shades its rays, while our two companions loomed up with poised spears, and eyes intently watching for their game, making altogether a picture worthy of a painter's finest art.

Like the lightning thrust of a crane's bill, out went Stockman's spear, and in came a shining "sailor's choice," not a very large fish, but a good one. Next Mason played the crane act, and brought in a flopping bass, while we struck at a flounder and caught a crab.

Winding in and out amongst the bewildering nameless mangrove islets, so near alike we could not tell where we were, nor cared, so long as fish were found, the play went on, with variations of trout, bass, sheepshead, etc., wriggling on the spears and flopping in the boat, often a sting ray pierced for a flounder, held up for momentary inspection, and then cast away as unwelcome, with interludes such as these.

"See there! on your side!

"I've got him; no I haven't; yes I have! dang it, he's gone."

"Keep off that shoal!"

"Guess we'll have to wade the boat over this place." N. B. We did our wading by proxy, not having rubber boots on, and also did our fishing by the same proxies, they doing the poking while we did the poling.

Steadily the fish increased in the boat, and occasionally, when all three were striking at once, the scene was not only exciting, but it required skill combined with good luck to keep the boat from filling with water. This was especially the case when Mason struck a shovel-nose shark and had a vigorous fight to drag him into the boat, making us climb upon the seat while he gave him the coup de grace, which stopped the possibility of his biting.

Often fish would be found either so dazzled by the light as to be incapable of motion, or actually asleep, only to be awakened too late by the barbed tines, which held them fast. Others would deliberately swim right up to the boat and meet the same fate. Very frequently hundreds of "darn fool mullett," as our leader called them, would go swimming in front of the boat, brought out with wonderful distinctness by the fire-light, and too small to spear, would rouse the large fish vexatiously. In many of the pools and coves, and along the oyster beds, the number of bass and trout (or sergeant fish, similar in most respects) was astonishing, and then there would be stretches of sand flats, on which there were no fish.

In all these waters there are no places like these creeks for one to lose his way, and it is not to be wondered at that at a late hour we lost our reckoning. After vain disputes as to the right direction homeward, and coming back three times to the same points, we found by the north star that we were going south instead of north, that the main land was to the right instead of left, and vice versa. Not once had we come across the other party, and only while skirting Fozzard's bay was a fair glimpse of their light seen.

Long after midnight our boat reached the hotel wharf, and well pleased with our share of the sport, although decidedly wet, with many scaly beauties to reward our great exertions and skill (by proxy), we slept the sleep of the just until sunrise, which came unusually early, being awakened at that time by Mr. Carpenter, who requested us to come up to their cottage and see their boat load. We went, of course, and were again rewarded, being told that we had speared 72 more by proxy (Carpenter and Cook), which made in all 101 bass, trout, sheephead, sailors' choice, flounders and mullet, all of which are choice fish, exclusive of the shovel-nose shark, who could not be called a dainty fellow, or a beauty in any sense, and in order to prove our statements with regard to the Port Orange fire-fishing just related, both boat loads were transferred to our sail boat, and as soon as the breeze permitted were duly landed in Daytona and distributed amongst all our neighbors and friends, so that Tuesday was practically a fish day in a multitude of dining rooms on both sides of the Halifax within our bailiwick, and we have thereby secured the evidence of most reliable witnesses, all of whom have stomachs as well as consciences, to the absolute truth of the whole narration.

Reader, amongst the snows or chilling winds of February in the far north, if you desire to take a hand in a fire-fishing or fish-spearing picnic, come with us on the next trip, and if we cannot do it ourself, we know we can by proxy, convince the most skeptical that there is not only lots of fun in it, but as much fish as fun, which is not usually the case in your own fishing experiences.

Circuit Court.

Circuit Court convened at Boyne City, Feb. 23d. The record of the proceedings may be summarized as follows:

CRIMINAL CASES.

The people of the State of Michigan vs. Andrew Mortenson et al; Assault and battery. Reversal.

The people of the S. of M. vs. John Rowe. Assault and battery; appealed from Justice Court. Defendant found guilty. Motion in arrest of judgment.

The people of the S. of M. vs. H. Sheldon. Assault and battery. Judgment of Justice Court affirmed.

ISSUES OF FACT.

Levi Lewis, plaintiff, vs. Jacob Keller, defendant and appellant. Assumpsit. Continued; Justice to amend his return.

Edgar A. Weed et al, plaintiffs, vs. James H. Stone, defendant. Assumpsit. Continued on terms.

Chauncey S. Kibbe, plaintiff and appellant vs James H. Stone, defendant, Assumpsit. Judgment for plaintiff.

David Denny vs. George Randall. Assumpsit. Continued.

Z. N. Garbutt vs. H. B. Chapman. Trespass on the case. Motion granted for security for costs.

The Charlevoix Savings Bank vs. A. R. Upright and Isaac Staufer. Assumpsit. Countermanded.

James Fox, et al, vs. Arthur Koon. Assumpsit. Judgment in favor of plaintiffs, $195.

MOTIONS.

Levi Lewis vs. Jacob Keller. Motion. Dismissed.

James Swanson vs. A. M. Wilson. Dismissed.

R. S. Hubbard vs W. F. Empey and James Inwood. Motion to amend bill. Continued.

Jos. K. Felck vs. A. Tousley, et al. Continued.

Fred Sneathen vs. E. M. Clark. Motion for new trial. Taken under advisement.

CHANCERY.

Geo. F. Beardsley vs. W. W. Smith. Foreclosure. Decree granted.

Jane Hamilton vs. John Hamilton. Divorce. Continued.

Edith Sheldon vs. Charles Sheldon. Divorce. Continued.

John Alexander vs. Wm. A. Stone. Specific performance of contract. Decree taken in favor of defendant.

Hello, Mancelona! Talk is cheap, but it takes $$$$$ to build railroads. Do you catch on? Tra la.—Leader.

WANTED, tamarack piles at Charlevoix, also stone on the beach handy to scow. Hemlock timber or logs delivered on beach. Address,
L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Wood wanted at this office on subscription.

Fresh oysters direct from Baltimore at Jefferies' market.

Go to Scott's shop for a first-class job of horseshoeing.

TO RENT. Two very pleasant offices over the Bank of Charlevoix.

HORSE FOR SALE. Inquire of S. M. See, Charlevoix.

A house and 6 lots for sale or rent. Inquire of L. E. Allen, Charlevoix.

Old papers sold at this office.

Henry Ward Beecher Dead.

Henry Ward Beecher, the eminent Brooklyn divine, was stricken with apoplexy on Saturday, and died Monday evening.

The Cross Village Indian band has been reorganized.

The Petoskey lecture course was not a financial success

The Business Men's Association of Petoskey have undertaken the job of closing the gambling houses in that town frequented by the boys and young men.

Mrs. Litney & Carr, the popular milliners, have just received and are still receiving one of the finest and fullest lines of fall and winter goods ever brought to Charlevoix. The ladies are invited to call in and inspect their stock.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Charlevoix, ss. In the matter of the Estate of Richard Coryon. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of an order granted to the undersigned, William Coryon, Guardian of the estate of said Richard Coryon, by the Hon. Judge of Probate of Charlevoix county, on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1886, there will be sold at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the premises hereinafter described, in the county of Charlevoix, in said State, on Saturday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, (subject to all encumbrances by mortgage or otherwise existing at the time of granting license therefor,) the following described real estate, to-wit: All that certain piece or parcel of land lying and being situate in the Township of [illegible] Lake, in the County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: The south-east quarter (¼) of the south-west quarter (¼) of section nineteen, (19) Township Thirty-four, (34) North, of Range Five (5) West.

Dated, Feb. 26, 1887.

WILLIAM COYVON,
as Guardian of Richard Coryon, Insane.

A REMINDER
For MARCH.

Our Remnants!

Our 1-4 off, a big Success. But it has made us piles of Remnants.

This week we shall give you all a better chance than ever to get bargains

COME IN AND SEE WHAT THIS MEANS, FOR REMEMBER WE ALWAYS LEAD.

F. W. Craine & Co

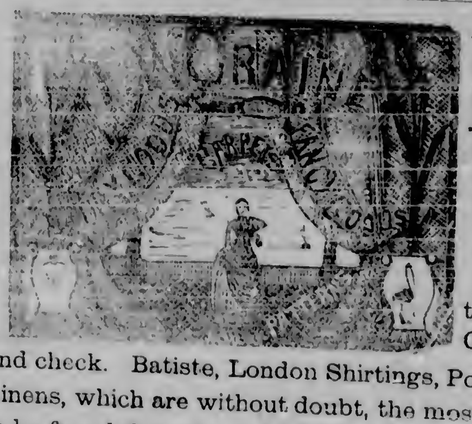
I am Not Selling Out!

JUST YET, BUT I AM BOUND TO SELL my goods. If you will give me a chance I will soon convince you that I will sell you better goods for less money than you can buy in this town or any other.

These "Selling Out" and "1-4 Off Sales" are getting old. I am going to continue to sell for cash only till my stock is reduced down to make room for Spring Goods.

Now is a Grand Time To Obtain Bargains.

GEO. W. MILLER.



First Arrival
---OF---
NEW SPRING GOODS!

We have received a large line of the latest Novelties in White Goods, such as Nainsooks in plain and check. Batiste, London Shirtings, Pongees, Tufted Batiste and India Linens, which are without doubt, the most desirable patterns and qualities to be found this side of New York City.

Our new Flannels and Dress Goods are all of the most approved styles and colorings, with beautiful trimmings to match. Come and see them.

A few more Cloaks to close out at an extremely low figure. Come in and see us whether you wish to buy or not.

F. W. CRAINE & CO.

J. L. HURD & CO.

Are resuming their SPECIAL SALES which attracted so much attention last season. Many rare bargains will be offered which will be presented but once as our stock in some lines is light.

Everything sold just as advertised and prices reduced on all goods.

THURSDAY, MAR. 10.
Immense Drive in Hamburg Edgings.
60c Leggings for 45 cents.
Wool Hosiery slaughter'd
Dress Ginghams, 9 cents.

FRIDAY, MAR. 11.
Great Reductions in Table Linens etc.
Mixed Shirting Flannels, 19c worth 25.

SATURDAY, MAR. 12.
Combined offer.
10 yards L L Cotton,
10 lbs Granulated Sugar,
1 lb 50c Japan Tea,
2 lbs Arbuckles Coffee,
ALL FOR $2.00.

MONDAY, MAR. 14.
Special Bargains in Black Silks, Satins, etc.
Bates Crochet Quilts, 99c.
Turkey Red Table Damask, excellent grade, 34c.

TUESDAY, MAR. 15.
58 in. Loom Dice, 25 cents
10-4 Pepperell Sheeting 21 cents.
6-4 Dress Flannels all wool, 69c.
50c Tea for 35 cents.

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 16.
Scrim Cloth, good quality 12 1-2 cents.
Opaqued Window Shadings, 15c.
Men's Blue Shirts, $1.25.
Arbuckles Coffee 21 cents

THURSDAY, March 17.
Western Reserve Blankets white or scarlet, $3.65.
Berkshire 10-4 White Blankets, $2.00
Wool Yarns, 80c a pound
Corned Beef, 2lb for 20c.

An elegant $25 Music Box given away. Call for particulars.

Our store closes at 7:30 every evening except Saturdays, but for the benefit of laboring men, we will upon request send to any house in town and take orders, delivering goods the same day.

J. L. HURD & CO.

ROSENTHAL & SON

ARE SELLING OUT

OWING TO A CHANGE WHICH WILL TAKE PLACE IN OUR STORE IN THE SPRING WE MUST SELL OUR STOCK OF

DRY GOODS, CARPETS, CLOTHING, CLOAKS, NOTIONS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS,

REGARDLESS OF COST!

WE MEAN BUSINESS! EVERYTHING IN OUR STORE WILL BE SOLD AT SOME PRICE, FOR CASH ONLY.

Now is the time to get Bargains.

ROSENTHAL & SON.

CHARLEVOIX SENTINEL.

VOL. XVIII. NO. 46 CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16, 1887. WHOLE NO. 903

School Books!

SCHOOL BOOKS! SCHOOL BOOKS!

---HEADQUARTERS---

For Everything needed in the School Room, at

HINES & CO.'S DRUG AND STATIONERY STORE.

You will find it to your interest to look over our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Respectfully,
F. G. HINES & CO.

THE PIONEER HOUSE OF CHARLEVOIX CO.

New Winter Goods
BEING RECEIVED WEEKLY.

We call especial attention to our complete stock of
BOOTS and SHOES.

TEAS of all kinds. We will guarantee you the best Tea for the money, in the county.

ALL GRADES of FRESH ROASTED AND GREEN COFFEES.

A Fine line of Everything in
FURNITURE.

BIG DRIVES IN
Flannels, Yarns, and Blankets.

Please bear in mind that our stock embraces
EVERYTHING
usually found in a General Store.

Remember. Our Goods are the Best. Our Prices the Lowest. Our Record the Oldest.

Resp'y Yours.
Carpenter, Bartholomew & Co.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR THE SENTINEL.

Send it to your friends abroad.

TIME
TO BUY
Your Sugar Outfit!

THE PLACE
Stockman & Iddings'

SAP PAILS,
SUGAR PANS,
SPILES,
SKIMMERS,
MOULDS, Etc.

Cheapest and Best

If you are going to want a Spring Tooth Harvester you had better buy one of Yours Truly
STOCKMAN & IDDINGS.

The Best Groceries
At The Lowest Prices
ARE FOUND AT THE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF
A. E. MASON.
I do a strictly Cash-over-counter business and will guarantee lowest prices.

J. MILO EATON'S
REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE,
AND LOAN OFFICE.
The oldest in the county. Established in 1875.
Money to loan in sums to suit and at lowest rates on improved farms.
ABSTRACTS OF TITLE furnished on short notice. Office over Postoffice

Pine Lake Iron Co.
IRONTON, MICH.
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
BRANCH STORE AT
HORTON'S BAY.

Charlevoix Sentinel.
The Oldest Paper North of Grand Traverse Bay, in this Peninsula.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY
SMITH & PARMELEE,
Charlevoix, Michigan.
Address all business correspondence to the firm
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION
One year $1.50 | Six months 75
Invariably in Advance.

Local News.

Geo Brandt left for the West, Monday.

—J. L. Hurd left for Grand Rapids yesterday

—The Charlevoix Minstrels have $130 in the bank.

—At the village caucus Saturday evening 151 votes were cast.

Hon. A. Buttars left for Grand Rapids and Lansing, Monday.

—L. E. Allen has returned home from his Chicago and Frankfort trip.

—F. A. Watson left for Frankfort Wednesday, to be gone about ten days.

—Stockman & Iddings call attention to their large stock of sugar makers supplies.

—Perry Weed has much improved the appearance of his drug store during the past week.

—The crows, those harbingers of spring, are reported as having put in an appearance in this section.

—The bill providing for the issuance of marriage licenses in this state passed the Senate last Friday.

—M. J. Stockman and wife, A. E. Mason, and Mrs. E. Carpenter are expected home from Florida, Saturday.

—Navigation is declared open at Grand Haven, the schooner Jennie Mullen having cleared for Chicago Friday.

—The Charlevoix Minstrels appear at Norwood to-morrow evening. They deserve a full house and they will probably get it.

—Capt Harrison Miller left Thursday to take charge of the Point Betsey Life Saving Station. His family will follow when navigation opens.

—L. E. Allen left Monday for Chicago where he will purchase a machine for lifting stone for his Charlevoix and Frankfort harbor contracts.

—Notwithstanding the immense forests of hardwood near at hand, dry wood in Cheboygan is about as expensive as in Detroit. It is selling at $2 per cord, stove length.

—J. W. Tripp, who has been running F. W. Willcox's camp in Norwood township reports a cut of 22,000 cedar ties and posts. Camp broke Friday. Employment has been given eighteen men for the past five months.

—W. S. Stripp and others are sending out 5,000 circulars advertising the agricultural lands and resources of the Pine Lake region. The circular is well-worded, contains a view of Charlevoix, and map of the county, and cannot help drawing new settlers.

—The schooner St. Lawrence was sunk off St. Helena Island 31 years ago. Divers have discovered that her cargo of wheat, below about a foot of empty shell, is sound, and when dried, is as good as any wheat taken from a wreck within a week of its going down.

—We regret that a written notice of the recent lecture of Dr. J. A. Carlstein was accidentally omitted from our columns. The lecture is spoken of as one of the best of the course, and very interesting. It was a review of the Doctor's observations in Europe—a subject always interesting and instructive.

Petoskey Record: The Cheboygan base ball club have made contracts with Morrisey, who played short stop here last summer, and Barber, of the Harbor Springs club. They want to make a little compact circuit of the following clubs: Cheboygan, Petoskey, Mackinaw City, Fort Mackinac, St. Ignace, and some club on Pine Lake. If we are going to do anything next season we had better be making preparations.

Escanaba Mirror: Should there be a direct summer communication between Escanaba and Charlevoix, would it not tend to bring fruit from lower Michigan direct to this point at much cheaper rates than to ship it by rail to Chicago, and thence to towns on the upper peninsula? A route between these two points would undoubtedly give the lower peninsula folks a good market for their product, as well as to give us fruit at fair market prices. The fruit growers of Old Mission would be benefited materially by a project of this nature.

—On Friday the stage brought three large cans bearing the brand of the State Fish Commission. They were about two feet high and eighteen inches in diameter, and were unloaded at L. D. Bartholomew & Co.'s store. An examination proved them to contain the 15,000 brook trout fry spoken of in these columns last week. There were 5,000 in each can, and were so small that they barely covered the bottom of the can. They were lively infants, but their beauty spots were not visible to the naked eye. They were immediately taken by Mr. Bartholomew to the headwaters of Stover's Creek and turned loose to battle with the world.

—A new boy at Levi Lamphear's house.

—Bryant Weed is home on a short vacation.

—An $80,000 fire visited Howell last Sunday.

—Major Green and Dr. Crouter are in Grand Rapids.

—J. L. Hurd & Co. offer bargains preparatory to annual invoice.

—Geo. Weaver left Monday to join the Grand Haven Life Saving Crew.

—Jim Taylor "knocked out" his antagonist at East Jordan, Thursday.

—F. W. Craine & Co. present an announcement of spring goods next week.

—Messrs Dillon and Guinon of the Petoskey Democrat, made us a call, yesterday.

—Mrs. Byron See returned from the south yesterday, much improved in health.

—Send orders for your ballots to the SENTINEL. They will be promptly filled at low prices.

—Our Petoskey friends should give the Charlevoix Minstrels a good house Monday evening.

—Wm. Gow, of Cadillac, of the firm of F. W. Craine & Co., Charlevoix, was here last week.

—There will be a school exhibition at Black's school house next Tuesday evening. Admission 10 cents.

—The Marion township caucus will be held at Black's school house, Saturday, March 26, 1 o'clock p. m.

—The Petoskey Dramatic club is composed of as fine a lot of young people as ever appeared in amateur roles.

—Ballots for township officers printed at the office of the SENTINEL will be found correct. Send in your orders.

—Messrs. Parmenter, Barbour, Willard and Empey, of East Jordan, visited Charlevoix Lodge F. & A. M. a week ago last night.

—S. H. Comfort has a desirable position in the office of the Anchor Manufacturing Co. They manufacture one-stave barrels, heading, etc.

—The officers of the D. C. & E. R. R. are corresponding with several engineers and a surveying party will be put on the route as soon as the snow lowers.

—At the Democratic Judicial Convention held at Petoskey Friday afternoon, E. S. Pratt, Esq., of the firm of Pratt, Hatch & Davis, of Traverse City, was nominated.

—Prof. Enos' lecture last Wednesday evening was all that was expected. It was scholarly and elegant, and exemplified in a marked degree the topic "Conditions of Success."

—The Charlevoix Minstrels gave entertainments at East Jordan and Boyne City last week, and had crowded houses at both places. They will appear in Petoskey next Monday evening.

—The Historical society report an immensely enjoyable trip to East Jordan last Friday evening. There were twenty-five members who availed themselves of the invitation of Miss Loveday.

—Boyne Falls Gazette: William Mears is at Grand Rapids completing the purchase of the saw mill and factory. He calculates to be in full operation by May 1. The mill will be thoroughly fixed up as soon as the weather permits.

—Mike Litney, of this place, and Joe Steimel, of Sutton's Bay, will start a livery stable in the Eaton barn, on Clinton street, which will be enlarged and repaired. They will put in eight horses, which Mike will go to Wisconsin after in time to get them here on the first boat.

—Mrs. Judge J. M. Rice, of Cadillac, mother of F. W. Craine of this place, we learn, has had a successful operation performed upon her eyes, at Ann Arbor, and the prospects of a restoration of her eye sight assured. Her many friends here will rejoice with her. Mrs. Rice is a sister of Mrs. Amos Fox and Mrs. George W. Miller.

—The Petoskey Dramatic club presented "Our Boarding House" and "A Soldier of Fortune" to good audiences at Opera hall, Monday and Tuesday evenings. They are all ladies and gentlemen and we can name several professional troupes that have visited Northern Michigan who are not the equals in acting of our Petoskey neighbors.

—The young people of the Charlevoix Summer Resort sustained a great social loss last week Monday, in the death of Miss Gertie Sears, of East Saginaw, who died of paralysis of the heart. The funeral, held Wednesday, was one of the largest ever witnessed in East Saginaw. The floral tributes were unusually numerous and elegant, among them being 5,000 roses. The circumstances surrounding Miss Sears' death render it peculiarly touching.

—The Cross Village correspondent of the Harbor Springs Independent says: "It is suspected that on investigation the recent deaths in and about the village will be proven to have been caused by wholesome poisoning with aconite, administered by parties here. The last victim suffered 32 hours of untold agony. Physicians pronounce it such, and if proven so, we know not what the result will be, for indignation is at its height here among the people."

Northern Michigan.

H. W. Stewart talks of opening a livery stable in Elk Rapids.

Dexter & Noble, of Elk Rapids, gristed 40,000 bushels last year.

S. Yalomstein has rented his Elk Rapids store building and will leave that place.

Cheboygan harbor has an unexpended balance of $19,000, which will be used this summer.

Dole Bros. have secured the mail routes from Bellaire to Eastport and Bellaire to Mancelona.

The Grand Traverse Herald and Petoskey Record are out in favor of the prohibitory amendment.

The Antrim Iron Company's charcoal kilns at Elmira are turning out on an average 18,200 bushels of coal per month.

Ralph Enos, son of Professor Enos, of Charlevoix, is writing a series of able educational articles for the Grand Traverse Herald.

Woodsmen's wages in the vicinity of Cadillac range from $22 to $30 a month, with board, averaging about $25. Last season they ranged from $18 to $24, averaging about $21.

Elk Rapids has the champion snow drift along the north side of River street, averaging twelve feet in depth. If any town in Northern Michigan can beat it, let it produce its proofs in open court.

The Weekly (Cadillac) News exchanged hands Thursday, Senator J. Wight Giddings having sold the office entire to Cadillac parties. The paper will continue under the old name and be run in the interests of the republican party.

Thomas Nester, of Detroit, with mill at Baraga, upper Michigan, has had built at the latter point the past winter a schooner with a carrying capacity of 1,100,000 feet of lumber, or 1,500 tons of ore. The vessel is 225 feet long, 36 feet beam, and 16 feet depth of hold.

H. R. Towle, the pioneer boat-maker, of Cadillac, has put $2,500 worth of machinery into his building on North Mitchell street, which he has fitted up for a boat factory. His first contract is a pleasure steamer for W. W. Cummer which measures 35 feet by 8 feet and is nearly completed.

C. P. Avery writes the Herald that he will be in Traverse City, at Park Place, after March 10, for three weeks, to deliver seed peas to the farmers. Mr. Avery writes: "I shall still contract for the higher priced peas to be cultivated. The long vine peas are grown in Canada at one-quarter less than I have been paying farmers this year. This knocks Michigan peas out at present prices."

Elk Rapids Progress: Just as we are going to press the sad intelligence reaches us of the death of Mrs. Clara Holbrook, the beloved wife of Orin J. Holbrook, the daughter of Mrs. J. E. Cooper, and one of the most esteemed ladies of this community. The grief-stricken husband and father, the two motherless little ones, the loving brother and sister and mother have the sympathy of the entire community.

Kalkaska Leader: Quite an important business change is announced, by which A. E. Palmer will associate with himself in business Messrs. J. C. Gray and Arthur Gibson, both well known young men of this place, the former having been for several years cashier in Pinney's Bank, and the latter in the employ of Alf G. Drake. Mr. Gray has had several years' experience in the dry goods business, and Mr. Gibson is a popular salesman. The new arrangement will go into effect about March 10.

Bellaire Breeze: The Chestonia postoffice has been removed to Scott's Corners, and James B. Childs has received the appointment as postmaster. The Mt. Bliss office has been consolidated with the Chestonia office. In connection Mr. C. has a small stock of groceries, is prepared to entertain all travelers, expects to add to his building this spring in order to have rooms to accommodate fishermen and tourists. ——We understand that Antrim County greenbackers contemplate endorsing the nomination of Judge Ramsdell. It will be to their credit if they do so.

Mason & Rice, of Detroit, have completed plans of the grand hotel to be erected at Mackinac Island by the Michigan Central and Grand Rapids & Indiana railways and the Cleveland Steam Navigation Company. It will be 427 feet long, three stories high, and built after the colonial style of architecture, with a colonnaded portico, upon which the windows of every floor open, and every alternate window having a balcony of its own. Its interior arrangement will be such as to meet every demand of comfort and convenience. It will be located on the west of the town, on the upper bluff, a little more than a quarter of a mile from the landing. Work has been commenced and the house is to be ready for furniture by June 15. John O. Plank, one of the best known landlords of the country, will be in charge.

Notice.

There will be a Union caucus at Black's school house on Thursday evening, March 24, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of nominating men for the several township offices of the township of Marion.

Bring in that wood on subscription before the snow goes off.

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, - MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, - Publishers

A LAND company organized at Kansas City has purchased the Arkansas and Maxwell grants, comprising 79,000,000 acres.

THE Illinois State Fair for the years 1887 and 1888 will be held at Olney, Richland county, which is in the southern portion of the State.

EDWARD KERNS, who died recently in Omaha, left a will directing that his body be cremated and the ashes be placed in an urn over the bar of a popular saloon.

ITALY desires a renewal of the alliance with Germany and Austria, according to the Popolo Romano, because these Powers are the most able to guarantee peace.

ARTICLES of incorporation are about to be filed in Michigan for a company to build a railway from Alpena to Petoskey connecting Grand Traverse and Thunder bays.

THE Western Iron Association has decided to make no increase in the price of iron. This is a disappointment to the workmen, as their wages will not be increased.

A PETITION from business men and merchants, representing $40,000,000 capital, was presented recently to the Rhode Island Legislature, asking for a repeal of the prohibitory law.

BENJAMIN T. ROBBINS, who died in Arizona recently, was captain of the ship Golden Hind, which was wrecked years ago on the Falkland islands. After that fearful and memorable experience he never went to sea again.

A FRENCHMAN has lately estimated that in a life of fifty years a man sleeps away 6,000 days, walks 800 days, and feeds and fusses the rest of the time. The estimate is doubtless about correct. The Gaul is flighty, but he does make estimates with accuracy.

THE charge has been made in the British house of commons that the corporation of London had diverted £20,000 of public money to defeat the bill for the reform of the city government. The sum was mostly expended on bogus meetings, where audiences were hired to be present.

THE British government refuses to permit the taking effect of the act recently passed by the legislature of Newfoundland in relation to the fisheries, owing to the protest by France. A Halifax special represents that the people would vote for annexation to the United States by a three-fourths majority.

THE elections in New South Wales have resulted in the return to the legislative assembly of eighty-three free traders and forty-one protectionists. The Australian colony is entitled to a correction by the protection newspapers, which have asserted that she was finding free trade an unfortunate experiment.

THE brief in the Chicago anarchist case sent to the Illinois Supreme Court, by counsel for the condemned is a printed volume of 426 pages. Leonard Swett had previously filed a document of ninety-six pages. The people's docket has been set for hearing on the 10th inst., and the time for argument is unlimited.

GENERAL BOULANGER, of the French Army, has decreed that in future no officer [illegible]

ADJOURNED.

Explosion of a Boiler—Burned to Death—Opening of the New German Reichstag—A Daring Robbery.

A New York Earthquake—Confirmed by the Senate—A Mysterious Murder.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Eastern, Western, Southern and Foreign News.

Congress Adjourns.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—The House adjourned sine die at noon. The Senate adjourned at 11.56 senate time; 12.01 actual time. The deficiency bill failed for want of time to engross it. The fortifications bill was abandoned in conference. The Senate confirmed the nominations of Capt. A. W. Greely to be brigadier general and James M. Trotter to be recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia; Arthur K. Delaney of Wisconsin, to be collector of customs for the district of Alaska; Owen McCaughlin of Iowa to be surveyor of customs for the port of Dubuque, Iowa; John M. Mercer of Iowa, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Burlington, Iowa; Thomas F. Ashby of Nebraska, to be register of the land office at Bloomington, Neb.; Sterling P. Hart of Nebraska, to be register of the land office at McCook, Neb.; E. F. Hodsen of Nebraska, to be receiver of public moneys at Lincoln, Neb.; Jacob Steinmetz of Nebraska, to be receiver of public moneys at McCook, Neb.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

CINCINNATI, O., March 5.—The steamer Fleetwood, en route from Louisville to Cincinnati, burst her steampipe yesterday morning near Lawrenceburg, Ind. Three roustabouts were totally scalded and the engineer badly injured.

Cremated in Burning Houses.

OSHKOSH, Wis., March 5.—A brick house in which Mrs. Mary Young, aged 67, occupied apartments, was burned to the ground yesterday and Mrs. Young perished in the flames. A store and two adjoining tenement houses in New York City were burned Friday morning, and Mrs. Sarah L. Johnson, colored, aged 50, and her 6-year-old daughter May perished.

The New German Parliament.

BERLIN, March 4.—The new German Reichstag was opened yesterday. The emperor's speech was read from the throne. In it he says he is gratified at the benevolent disposition the pope has shown toward the empire. The foreign policy of the emperor is continually directed to the maintenance of peace with all powers, and especially with Germany's neighbors. "The foreign relations of the government are the same as when the last reichstag was opened. If the present reichstag, without hesitation or division gives unanimous expression to the resolve that the nation will put forth its full strength in full panoply now and all times against any attack upon our frontiers, such resolution, even before carried out, will materially strengthen the guarantees of peace and remove the doubts which late parliamentary debates may have inspired."

The emperor feels assured that the reichstag, by its resolutions, will give the federal government a national [illegible]

[illegible]

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of Congress for the Week ending March 5:

SENATE.

Mr. Hatch asked unanimous consent that the house non-concur in the senate amendments to the bill creating a department of agriculture and labor. Mr. Morrison objected, and the bill was referred to the committee on agriculture. On motion of Mr. Belmont the house insisted on its amendments to the senate retaliation bill, and Messrs. Belmont, Clements, and Rice were appointed conferrees. Mr. Hatch moved to suspend the rules and pass the senate bill providing for agricultural experiment stations, which after some discussion was agreed to. The committee on appropriations, reported the deficiency appropriation bill, and it was referred to the committee of the whole, and the conference report upon the invalid-pension appropriation bill was agreed to.

The credentials of Mr. Regan as senator from Texas and of Mr. Bate as senator from Tennessee were presented to the senate and placed on file. Mr. Plumb, from the conference committee on the postoffice appropriation bill, reported a disagreement on the subsidy question, and moved that the senate insist and ask further conference. So ordered. Mr. Plum, from the conference committee on the house bill to restrict ownership of real estate in the territories to American citizens, made a report which was agreed to. Mr. Hoar, from the committee on the library, reported a bill appropriating $20,000 for the completion of the monument of Mary, the mother of Washington at Fredericksburg, Va. Passed. Mr. Jones, of Nevada, offered a resolution (which was adopted) calling on the [illegible] departments in Washington, the causes of delay in the transaction of public business, as to the necessity for additional buildings, etc. was taken up. Mr. Vest opposed the resolution as entirely unnecessary. After some discussion it was agreed to. The conference report on the house bill authorizing the employment of male messengers in the postal service was made and concurred in. The senate then proceeded to the consideration of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill, voting on the amendments recommended by the committee on appropriations as they were reached. As the Committee on Appropriation reported few amendments to the bill, and those of but little importance, there was no delay beyond that made necessary by the complete reading of the bill (114 printed pages), which was done very rapidly and at 1:30 o'clock the end was reached. The bill was presented to the Senate and passed.

Mr. Plumb presented the conference report on the bill for the relief of settlers and purchasers of public lands in Kansas and Nebraska. Agreed to. Also the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill—the Senate receding from the section for mail-steamer service to South America. It was agreed to. The deficiency bill being taken up, and after a number of amendments it was passed and the House notified. The House bill to authorize the sale of the United States barracks property in Newport Ky., and the purchase of a new site and the erection of buildings thereon, was also passed; bill authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at Winona, Minn. House bills authorizing the construction of railroad bridges were passed, as follows: Across the Mississippi river at Fort [illegible]

[illegible]

MICHIGAN.

Condensed Reports of the Latest News from All Parts of the State.

Latest From Lansing.

SENATE.

The Senate took a recess from 10 last evening to ten this morning, thus extending Wednesday's legislative day, and received quite a number of bills, closing the record at 502 bills and 28 joint resolutions. The following bills were introduced. To provide for the safe heating and lighting of passenger cars; to make the admission fee to the Department of Literature, Science, and Art at the State University not less than $500 to non-residents; to provide for brigade and regimental encampments of the State militia; to provide for building a State armory; to require a rebate upon the advanced price of fares paid conductors on railroads; to compel public notice of the formation of copartnerships. After much wrangling the bill to prohibit the sale of liquor within a mile of the Soldiers' Home; was passed.

The following bills passed the Senate: To divide the township of Breen, Menominee county, into two election districts; to authorize the incorporation of associations for improving the breeds of horses, and several minor acts which refer to incorporating villages.

The Senate proceedings to-day were devoid of public interest, most of the session being occupied in committee of the whole.

Bills passed permitting suits to be inaugurated against houses of ill-fame, simply on information and belief; providing that chronic insane patients of the State may be kept in county hospitals, and that the county may receive [illegible]

[illegible]

COUNTRY LIFE AND WORK.

LUTHER'S FAMOUS HYMN.

Mr. John S. Dwight contributes a version of Luther's famous hymn, which is remarkable for its preservation, in text largely of Saxon origin, of Luther's homely but vigorous phrases and rugged rhythms. Here it is:

"EIN, FESTE BURG."

A mighty stronghold is our God,
A right good shield and weapon;
In every strait He'll help us out,
Whatever now may happen.
The ancient bitter foe
Means our deadly woe;
Great might and deep guile
Are his dread arms the while;
On earth there's no one like him.

With our own might we nothing can,
Too fast the battle losing;
There fights for us the very Man,
The Man of God's own choosing.
Ask ye who is this?
Jesus Christ he is,
The Lord of Sabbaoth,
And there's no other God;
He'll hold the field forever.

And were the world of devils full,
All hungry to devour us,
Yet fearing naught, we'll stand the pall—
Nor shall they overpower us;
Fierce though this world's Prince
Frowneth, we'll not wince;
Nothing need we fear;
He's judged, his doom is clear,
One little word can fell him.

The Word, they'll have to let it stand—
No thanks for that they merit—
He still with us is close at hand
With all his gifts and spirit.
Take they away our life,
Goods, name, child and wife,
Yet, after all's done,
For them there's nothing won,
The Kingdom ours remaineth.

—Boston Transcript.

HOG CHOLERA.

Law says in his "Veterinary Adviser" that this disease is undoubtedly provoked by faults in diet and manage- [illegible]

[illegible] ing one or two weeks before calving, then after calving, for one week give only warm water and dry hay. A day or two previous to dropping the calf give one pound of epsom salts and one large spoon heaping full of ginger, dissolve this in a pint of warm water, and turn down the cow by means of a long necked bottle; give nearly the same quantity again within twenty-four hours after calving. This dose is for a medium sized cow weighing about 1,000 pounds; vary according as the cow varies in size. If the weather is cold blanket the cow for a few days. The salts and ginger may be omitted in medium milkers.

CURE FOR GARGET.

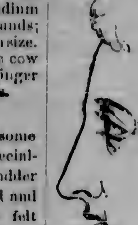
This ailment may result from some external injury, or from cold, especially at the time of calving. The udder becomes enlarged, hard, congested and painful; hard cakes are generally felt in the udder, and the teats become tense and painful. One or both sides may be affected, and in severe cases there may be lameness on the affected side. The teats become often partly impervious, the flow of milk decreases, and the milk becomes ropy, and, in cases with much inflammation, bloody. Hot fomentations should be applied at the earliest moment the disease is noticed. The udder and teats should be bathed in warm water. If there is very much swelling, it may be necessary to support the udder by applying a bandage with holes in it to fit the teats, and fastening over the hind-quarters. Poultices of bran or linseed meal may be put in this bag. The cow should be milked three times a day, and the udder well rubbed each time. Half a pound [illegible]

[illegible]

ALL ABOUT NOSES.

DO YOU FOLLOW YOUR NOSE?

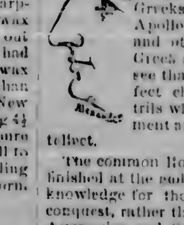
The Grecian Nose—The Roman Nose—The Aquiline Nose—The Pug Nose—The Nose the Organ of Inspiration.



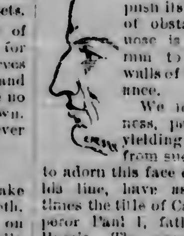
Chiseled and arched with many a line,
O door of fragrance all divine,
Pride of aristocratic birth,
Index of worthlessness, or worth,
Of these I sing in jerky prose,
O frontispiece, O human nose!

Indeed, that appears to be a good and proper thing upon the very face of it. The philosopher and the fool each knows that this is the obvious pointing of nature. The fool may only see in his nose a convenient thing to smell with; but the philosopher reads there the sure indications of sagacity (literally, keen scented), of judgment and force of character, with many other things not to be dispensed with in the mental furnishing of either civilized or savage. An inch on the end of a man's nose is a good deal, both as regards the dignity of expression in that appendage and the qualities of mind which it signifies. Roman, Aquiline, Grecian or Pug, we are all obliged to wear it, and so it may be well for us to inquire what this frontispiece of the face symbolizes, in general and in particular.

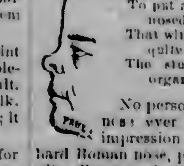
Alexander the Great was a Greek, but at the upper part of his nose we see the prominent sign of aggression, which marked the Roman nose and character. It was this extremely large faculty which led Alexander to depart from the established policy of Greece, and to carry on aggressive wars of foreign conquest, and to plant colonies and kingdoms in other countries. The lower end of his nose indicated the same artistic and literary tastes which marked the Greeks as a nation. In the Apollo, in Venus, Mercury, and other idealizations of Greek art and thought, we see that delicate and perfect chiseling of the nostrils which indicates refinement and symmetry of intellect.



The common Roman nose was less finished at the end; its possessor loved knowledge for the sake of power and conquest, rather than for its own sake. Aggression and Self Defense were the leading signs which gave character to the Roman nose. They are large in this face of Julius Cæsar, who carried the genius of Roman conquest up to its meridian splendor. Civilization has always had to push its way against a mass of obstacles. The Roman nose is a moral battering ram to beat down these walls of savagery and ignorance.



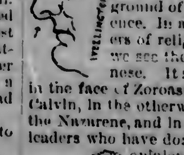
We might expect quickness, pertness, or a quick yielding to impressions, from such a nose as failed to adorn this face of a ruler who, with his line, have assumed in modern times the title of Cæsar. It is the Emperor Paul I, father of Nicholas of Russia. The excessive shortness of the nose shows small signs of intellect, notwithstanding the apparent expanse of the forehead. You will agree with another in thinking that



'Twould puzzle even O. S. Fowler
To put a head upon this pug-nosed growler,
That with its majesty would quite efface all
The stupidness of such an organ nasal.

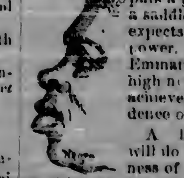
No person with a very short nose ever made a profound impression in the world. The hard Roman nose, pushing its way despite all personal suffering, has played a conspicuous part in the moral as well as the political advancement of the world. It dominated the old Roman race as well as the modern aggressive Briton. It carried Washington on to triumph, it stood in the forefront of Lincoln's unyielding strength, as it had sustained the shocks of Waterloo in the face of the Iron Duke. Against him was pitted the Roman-nosed Napoleon, but in the septum of Wellington's nose the sign of synthesis, of intellectual combination and perseverance, was very large, and this caused him to hold out on that day, even when the apparent tide of war had turned against him, until Blucher came, and all was saved.

The face of John Wesley, a cousin of Wellington, shows the same aggressive character. It gave him moral force to batter down the conservative walls of the old Episcopacy, and plant Methodism up on the ground of personal experience. In all the great founders of religions, or of sects, we see the same aggressive nose. It stands boldly forth in the face of Zoroaster, in Mahomet, in Calvin, in the otherwise gentle face of the Nazarene, and in the hosts of other leaders who have done fierce battle for opinion.



Nature never puts a great cause upon a saddle-backed nose and expects it will ride into power. It was not Victor Emmanuel, but rather the high nosed Garibaldi, who achieved the independence of Italy.

A low-bridged nose will do for the helplessness of childhood or the servility of the African, but such a bridge will never carry a great work safely over.



The aquiline nose of the Jews has large signs of Aggression, Defense and Protection, while the breadth of their noses indicates their money getting propensities. This form of the nose was common among the Assyrians, as shown by their sculptures.

The projection of the tip of the nose indicates observation, the questioning faculty, and belongs to the inquisitive mind of the child. He [illegible] also a poor developed and sluggish nervous system.

[illegible]

The heading of our article binds us to speak chiefly of the nose, but the reader must not suppose that the rest of the features do not play an important part in giving expression to the human face divine. A perfect face is an index to a perfect soul. Such a face helps us to realize that man is in the image of a perfect Creator. If the faculties had not a definite location in the face, then the face could have neither expression nor beauty. A look which indicated love at one moment might indicate hate the next. We know that the face is no such bundle of contradictions.—American Traveler and Tourist.

The Largest Farm in the World.

In the extreme southwest corner of Louisiana lies the largest producing farm in the world. It runs 100 miles north and south and — miles east and west, and is owned and operated by a syndicate of Northern capitalists. Their general manager, J. B. Watkins, gives an interesting account of this gigantic plantation, which throws the great Dalrymple farm in Dakota into the shade completely. The 1,500,000 acres of our tract, Mr. Watkins said, was purchased in 1883 from the State of Louisiana and from the United States Government. At that time it was a vast grazing land for the cattle of the few dealers of the neighborhood. When I took possession I found over 30,000 head of half-wild horses and cattle. My work was to divide the immense tract into convenient pastures, establishing stations or ranches every six miles. The fencing alone cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. The land I found to be best adapted to rice, sugar, corn and cotton. All our cultivating, ditching, etc., is done by steam power. We take a tract, say half a mile wide for instance, and place an engine on each side. The engines are portable, and operate a cable attached to four plows, and under this arrangement we are able to plow thirty acres a day with only the labor of three men. Our harrowing, planting and other cultivation is done in a like manner; in fact, there is not a single draught horse on the entire place. We have, of course, horses for the herders of cattle, of which we now have 16,000 head. The Southern Pacific Railroad runs for thirty-six miles through our farm. We have three steamboats operating on the waters of our estate, upon which there are 300 miles of navigable waters. We have an ice house, a bank, a shipyard and a rice mill.—St. Louis Republican.

The Girl in the Moon.

A monthly paper called the Glacier, which is made up of contributions from the pupils of the Thlinket Training Academy, at Fort Wrangel, Alaska, contains the following:

When I was a little girl living in the Hydah country the old folks used to frighten the little girls about the moon. They used to tell us that a little girl went after water at night. When she was coming home she stuck her tongue out at the moon, and that made the moon mad. It came down and took her up. She had her bucket in one hand and caught a bunch of grass with the other to keep her from going up; but the moon took her, with bucket and grass.

The large figure in the moon is the girl—grass in one hand, bucket in the other. They said that was what you can see in the moon. I used to want to stick my tongue out at the moon awfully, to see if it would come down and take me up; but I was afraid that it would come. I used to feel sorry for the little girl when I looked at the moon.

SUSIE YOUNG.

Track-Walkers in Cold Weather.

Somebody announces as a discovery that the greatest number of destructive railroad accidents occur in January and February. There is no mystery about this fact. Most railroad companies have in their employ individuals known as "track-walkers," whose business it is to look after broken rails and other impediments to the progress of trains. In mild weather it is no hardship for these functionaries to attend to their duties, but with the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero it is a different matter, and they naturally prefer to "lay off;" hence, perhaps, the variation in the accident rate.—Indianapolis Journal.

A GETTYSBURG INCIDENT.

New York Mail and Express: Col. [illegible] Stegman, ex Sheriff of Kings county, lectured in the Trinity Baptist Church, Brooklyn, last evening. His subject was entitled, "On the Right at Gettysburg." The Colonel told of the memorable battle in an exceedingly entertaining manner, and, at the conclusion of one of the audience, [illegible] an enthusiastic expression of thanks. At the conclusion of the lecture Gen. H. W. Slocum, who commanded on the right at Gettysburg [illegible] the invitation of the audience to speak to them of himself. He said: [illegible] years ago I took a trip to Europe in company with my wife. One evening, shortly after arriving at Brussels, I asked the landlord of our hotel if I could obtain a conveyance to the battlefield of Waterloo. He smiled and said "Certainly, sir; there will be a four-horse coach leaving for the battlefield from every hotel in Brussels tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock; but if you desire to go you should engage your seats tonight." I did so; and when we arrived upon the field we found many others there.

An old man, some 70 or 75 years old who had served in the battle as a Sergeant under Wellington, was acting as guide to a party about the size of this audience (some 300 or 400). The [illegible] high to a man and extending along their whole front. Then by their gallant resistance to the impetuous assaults of Early they held the lines until assistance arrived, and the Rebels were beaten back, defeated and dismayed!

[illegible]

A Southern Story of Vicksburg.

"Little Dandy" the boys called him. He joined our company in Vicksburg just before the siege, and none of us felt enough interest in him to make any inquiries. His extreme youth (he was about 16) would have excited our sympathy under other circumstances, but the war-worn veterans in the trenches had no use for the curled darlings of the parlor, and Little Dandy's appearance was against him. The lad wore the gray uniform of a private, but it was of the very finest material—finer than anything worn by our Generals. His buttons had an unsoldierly glitter. He sported white handkerchiefs, carried a pocket mirror, and every morning he combed and curled his golden locks until they looked like a girl's tresses.

"Hello, Little Dandy!" yelled the soldiers, whenever the young fellow passed them. To this rough salutation he always responded with a bow and a smile, but his soft ways did not win favor. When we met in town we passed him by without notice, and in camp we let him alone. Little Dandy was proud after a fashion—too proud to notice the many slights heaped upon [illegible] find it, and at once began a search through the racks, shelves, and out-of-the-way corners, and finally came up smiling from a dark place with the book in his hands. I thanked him, and, taking the volume to the dealer, I ordered it laid aside, and at the same time ordered the late numbers of Macaulay's works, which were appearing in parts and some of which I had bought in America.

[illegible]

"I told my new friend that in my estimation Macaulay was the greatest English writer, and that I had read everything he had written, as far as I knew. He smiled pleasantly, and after a few moments' further conversation we parted, with the hope of meeting again. The next morning I left London for York, and when I had settled myself in the compartment assigned me I found my traveling companion to be the old gentleman I had met in the book store the day previously. I was glad to see him and told him I was bound for New York, and he said he was going there, too. This pleased me and I settled down for a good talk, for he was exceedingly entertaining and thoroughly the gentleman. We made no stops for some time, and when we did I noticed a large crowd at the station.

"'There must be some distinguished person aboard the train,' I said, 'and these people are here to see him.'

"'Possibly,' he answered, with a smile like the one he gave me the day before among the books, and we continued our talk. At the next station there was a larger crowd, and getting outside I asked what was going on, and some one told me Lord Macaulay [illegible]

[illegible]

THE SENTINEL

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

SMITH & PARMELEE, Publishers.

[illegible]

workmen, as their wages will not be increased.

A PETITION from business men and merchants, representing $40,000,000 capital, was presented recently to the Rhode Island Legislature, asking for a repeal of the prohibitory law.

BENJAMIN T. ROBERTS, who died in Arizona recently, was captain of the ship Golden Hind, which was wrecked years ago on the Falkland Islands. After that fearful and memorable experience he never went to sea again.

A FRENCHMAN has lately estimated that in a life of fifty years a man sleeps 6,000 days, walks 800 days, and feeds and fusses the rest of the time. The estimate is doubtless about correct. The Gaul is flighty, but he does make estimates with accuracy.

THE charge has been made in the British house of commons that the corporation of London had diverted 220,000 of public money to defeat the bill for the reform of the city government. The coin was mostly expended on bogus meetings, where audiences were hired to be present.

THE British government refuses to permit the taking effect of the act recently passed by the legislature of Newfoundland in relation to the fisheries, owing to the protest by France. A Halifax special represents that the people would vote for annexation to the United States by a three-fourths majority.

THE elections in New South Wales have resulted in the return to the legislative assembly of eighty-three free traders and forty-one protectionists. The Australian colony is entitled to a correction by the protection newspapers, which have asserted that she was finding free trade an unfortunate experiment.

THE brief in the Chicago anarchist case sent to the Illinois Supreme Court, by counsel for the condemned is a printed volume of 423 pages. Leonard Swett had previously filed a document of ninety-six pages. The people's docket has been set for hearing on the 10th inst., and the time for argument is unlimited.

GENERAL BOULANGER, of the French Army, has decreed that in future no officer in the army shall be allowed to have in his service any foreigner of either sex. This decree is owing to the fact that the governess of General Cavonti's children has been discovered to be the wife of a Prussian officer quartered at Neuf Breisach.

A CABLEGRAM from Rome states that Cardinal Gibbons has informed the Vatican that condemnation of the Knights of Labor would not only be useless, but might alienate the American laboring classes from the church. He considers the organization not only harmless, but possibly beneficial in assisting to settle the relations between capital and labor.

IF I wanted to get good square judgment on something I had done I would rather go to a newspaper office for it than to any other court of justice. I know that the newspapers probe into men's characters, and the pure need not fear all the presses in America. The way to be safe from so-called newspaper attacks is to be a Christian. The newspaper men are the best detective force in this country. They have brought more criminals to justice and [illegible] more shams than all other agencies combined.—Sam Jones.

THERE is about 2,000 measures left on the calendars of the Senate and House of Representatives, representing work in committees and elsewhere which would have taken the lifetime of any lawyer had it been performed by one. Hundred of the measures which died with Congress have occupied as many as half a dozen meetings of committees composed of from nine to fifteen members, most of whom are active workers, and whose time, devoted to law, medicine, or other professions, or business, would command high remuneration. Most of the measures which die on the calendar are of a private nature—for claims, pension, etc.—but more than one-third of them are of a general character, and one-fourth of them are of national importance.

POLITICALLY, there are ominous signs of coming trouble in Eastern Europe. Russian agents have organized a military revolt in Bulgaria; large bodies of Russian troops, including clouds of Cossacks, are being massed on the frontier of Austrian Galicia; a meeting of Russian generals has been called at St. Petersburg for the present month; further, there is a rumor that the peace-loving De Giers is to retire from the position of secretary of state, the place to be given to one of the most reactionary of the Pan-Slavists, with whom the present emperor is in such close political rapport; Roumania is putting herself in readiness to side with the strongest party to the coming contest; and, finally, it is even said that the czar has definitely determined on war.

ADJOURNED.

Explosion of a Boiler—Burned to Death—Opening of the New German Reichstag—A Daring Robbery.

A New York Earthquake—Confirmed by the Senate—A Mysterious Murder.

Latest Congressional, Legislative and General Events. Western, Southern and Foreign News.

Congress Adjourns.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.—The [illegible] at noon. The [illegible] deficiency bill [illegible] to engross it. [illegible] was abandoned [illegible] senate confirmed [illegible] A. W. Greely [illegible] and James M. [illegible] for the [illegible] Arthur K. Delaney, to be collector of customs for the district of Alaska; Owen McLaughlin of Iowa to be surveyor of customs for the port of Dubuque, Iowa; John M. M[illegible] of Iowa, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Burlington, Iowa; Thomas F. Ashby of Nebraska, to be register of the land office at Bloomington, Neb.; Sterling P. Hart of Nebraska, to be register of the land office at McCook, Neb.; E. P. Hubbard of Nebraska, to be receiver of public moneys at Lincoln, Neb.; Jacob Steinmetz of Nebraska, to be receiver of public moneys at McCook, Neb.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

CINCINNATI, O., March 5.—The steamer Fleetwood, en route from Louisville to Cincinnati, burst her steam pipe yesterday morning near Lawrenceburg, Ind. Three roustabouts were fatally scalded and the engineer badly injured.

Cremated in Burning Houses.

OSHKOSH, Wis., March 5.—A brick house in which Mrs Mary Young, aged 67, occupied apartments, was burned to the ground yesterday and Mrs Young perished in the flames. A store and two adjoining tenements houses in New York City were burned Friday morning, and Mrs. Sarah L. Johnson, colored, aged 50, and her 6-year-old daughter May perished.

The New German Parliament.

BERLIN, March 4.—The new German Reichstag was opened yesterday. The emperor's speech was read from the throne. In it he says he is gratified at the benevolent disposition the pope has shown toward the empire. The foreign policy of the empire is continually directed to the maintenance of peace with all powers, and especially with Germany's neighbors. "The foreign relations of the government are the same as when the last reichstag was opened. If the present reichstag, without hesitation or division gives unanimous expression to the resolve that the nation will put forth its full strength in full panoply now and all times against any attack upon our frontiers, such resolution, even before carried out, will materially strengthen the guaranties of peace and remove the doubts which late parliamentary debates may leave inspired."

The emperor feels assured that the reichstag, by its resolutions, will give the federal government a national policy on a safe basis, and derives from this conviction the confident hope that God will bless his efforts to preserve the peace and security of Germany. The same internal bills that were submitted to the previous reichstag will again be offered. The creation of new sources of revenue and the reform of the methods of taxation are urged.

A Plucky Clerk.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 1.—A daring robbery was committed in this city yesterday morning in broad daylight. At 7 o'clock Tate Brady, a clerk at W. F. Lewis' store, had just opened the store when a stranger entered and purchased a pair of shoes, giving in payment a $10 bill. Brady was compelled to open the safe in order to change the bill and just as he was doing so the robber seized the money drawer, and at the same time pointing a revolver at the clerk's head. Brady jumped to one side and drew his pistol, but before he could use it the robber fired, the ball passing through the clerk's ear. The shot was returned without effect, and after a short scuffle the robber made his escape, getting away with only $5 of the money. During the struggle Brady was seriously, though not fatally wounded.

An Earthquake in New York.

A severe earthquake shock was felt at Fire Island, N. Y., Wednesday afternoon, lasting four seconds and causing the marine observatory to tremble violently and windows to rattle. The shock appeared to come from the ocean and pass off in a northwesterly direction. The shock was also felt at Breslau, Merrick, Baldwin's, South Oyster Bay, and on the south side of Long Island between Babylon and East New York. A low rumbling sound, followed by a distinct tremor of the earth, which shook many buildings, was noticed at Far Rockaway. The shock was very perceptibly felt in Babylon, L. I. Many buildings swayed slightly, and it is reported that some timbers of the Presbyterian Church steeple, were displaced. The sea was smooth and a moderate breeze was blowing from the south. The sky had a very hazy appearance.

A Mysterious Murder.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March, 3.—A sensational story has struggled to the surface to-night, although the facts have been known to a few persons for several days. Henry Page, a track-walker on the Belt road, states that late Sunday night, as he was walking his usual rounds and had approached the bridge that crosses White river, near Morris street, his attention was arrested by the rapid approach of a hack driven furiously by two men on the box seat. He withdrew to the side of the road and concealed himself. The hack stopped near the river bank, when the two men hastily jumped down, opened the back door, and pulled the body of a man out. They dragged him to the river and threw him out as far as they could. Page says he heard the body drop, and then the two men hurriedly returned to the hack and drove away. Page at once notified a deputy sheriff and the coroner. An investigation has been going on quietly ever since. A soft felt hat was yesterday found lodged in some drift-wood below the place where the man was dropped into the river. Up to last night no further developments have occurred to solve the mysterious affair. Page said he was afraid to approach the men at the time, as he thought they might kill him.

Big Fire in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 4.—A disastrous fire occurred at Cherokee at an early hour yesterday, destroying over $50,000 worth of property. It originated in the store of Kennedy & Co., clothing merchants. Following are some of the losses and insurance: Kennedy & Co., $14,000, insurance $7,000; B. Hick, $6,000; insurance $2,500; C. H. Kellogg, brick block, $13,000; insurance, $7,000; Steel's bank, $10,000, Cherokee Democrat office, $1,000; fully insured. Several offices were burned, but are covered by insurance.

A Railroad Sold.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 3.—The Des Moines, Osceola and Southern railroad was sold here yesterday under mortgage, and was purchased for $750,000 by a committee representing the bondholders who unite for that purpose. The majority of them live in New England, and they will proceed to reorganize the road as soon as the sale is consummated.

Ohio's Congressmen Resign.

COLUMBUS, O., March 3.—Lieutenant Governor Kennedy, Congressman Elect, presented his resignation to the Governor yesterday which was forwarded to the Senate and accepted by that body. Senator Conrad, of the Stark district, was elected President of the Senate to fill the vacancy. Senators Pugsley and Crouse, Congressmen elect, also presented their resignation to take effect to-day.

Weary of Life.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, March 4.—Amelia Zimdars, a woman of about 30 years committed suicide yesterday by hanging herself in her employer's barn.

Anarchy Sympathizers in New York.

NEW YORK, March 3.—A large crowd of anarchists filled Clarendon hall last night and howled and hissed, derided and menaced, when mention was made of Recorder Smith, Col. Fellows, the press, and especially the reporters. The meeting was held in honor of Braunschweig and Schenk, who have just been released from prison. The two ex-convicts made fiery speeches which were enthusiastically applauded. The judge who sentenced them, the state's attorney who tried them, and the Pinkertons were denounced and warned of the fate that awaits them, and even the workingmen were taken to task for not tearing down the Tombs prison and liberating the martyrs. When the speaker denounced the "capitalistic press" and the reporters present, the crowd responded with "Kill them!" "Hang them!" The meeting broke up with cheers for Most and anarchy.

A Brakemen's Strike.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 3.—All the freight brakemen on the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio railroad of the yard and road crews struck yesterday morning against the discharge of the third brakeman of each crew, and freight traffic on the line through here is entirely suspended. They assert that when the strike was settled last fall it was agreed that each crew should have three brakemen.

Six Men Killed.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 2.—A special from Garden City, Kans., says: Word has just been received here of a serious shooting affray at Coronado, Wichita county, Sunday night, in which two men lost their lives, four were fatally shot, and three were seriously injured. The killed and fatally injured were from Leoti and the others from Coronado. The trouble occurred over the location of the county seat, both towns being candidates for the honor.

Licked up by the Flames.

Small blazes occurred Tuesday night, destroying at Geneseo, Ill., Dr. Brix's barn, three horses and several sheep, pigs, and chickens perished. At Floyd Court House, Va., T. [illegible]ett's livery stables were burned. Fourteen horses and a yoke of oxen perished and a large quantity of forage and some farming implements were destroyed. Both are supposed to have been incendiary. At Quincy, Ill., the electric light station was burned and the city will be in darkness several nights. The oval wood-dish factory in Mancelona, Mich., was burned throwing 150 hands out of work. Loss $20,000; partly insured. Fifty thousand dollars' worth of property was burned at Three Mile Bay, a small village near Watertown, N. Y. At Pinckney, Mich., fire destroyed five buildings, including the postoffice. Loss $20,000; insurance, $4,000.

A Printers' Strike in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 2.—All the compositors employed on three daily papers, and all those in the job offices with one exception—250 printers in number—struck yesterday for an increase of 5 cents.

Twenty Lives Lost on a Burned Steamer.

MOBILE, Ala., March 2.—The steamer W. H. Gardner, one of the largest boats plying on the Tombigbee river from Mobile, was burned yesterday afternoon below Gainesville, Sumter county, Ala., and twenty persons are known to have perished, including seven colored deck hands, and most of them leave families. The boat is a total loss, together with 464 bales of cotton. Mrs. Rembert, one of the lost, was the wife of the clerk and part owner of the boat, and lived at Mobile. The remaining whites were passengers living in the upper Tombigbee district. No details of the cause and progress of the fire have been received.

The Gardner was built five years ago for the Tombigbee trade. She was owned by F. S. Stone, Sid. C. Coleman, and W. T. Rembert, and was valued at $25,000. She was fully insured. The cotton was insured in local companies for $25,000.

CONGRESS.

Proceedings of Congress for the week ending March 5:

SENATE.

Mr. Hatch asked unanimous consent that the house non concur in the senate amendments to the bill creating a department of agriculture and labor. Mr. Morrison objected, and the bill was referred to the committee on agriculture. On motion of Mr. Belmont the house insisted on its amendments to the senate retaliation bill, and Messrs. Belmont, Clements, and Rice were appointed conferrees. Mr. Hatch moved to suspend the rules and pass the senate bill providing for agricultural experiment stations, which after some discussion was agreed to. The committee on appropriations reported the deficiency appropriation bill, and it was referred to the committee of the whole, and the conference report upon the invalid-pension appropriation bill was agreed to.

The credentials of Mr. Regan as senator from Texas and of Mr. Bate as senator from Tennessee were presented to the senate and placed on file. Mr. Plumb, from the conference committee on the postoffice appropriation bill, reported a disagreement on the subsidy question, and moved that the senate insist and ask further conference. So ordered. Mr. Plum, from the conference committee on the house bill to restrict ownership of real estate in the territories to American citizens, made a report which was agreed to. Mr. Hoar, from the committee on the library, reported a bill appropriating $20,000 for the completion of the monument of Mary, the mother of Washington at Fredericksburg, Va. Passed. Mr. Jones, of Nevada, offered a resolution (which was adopted) calling on the secretary of state for a statement of the conditions on which the Anglo-American, the Direct, and the French Cable companies were allowed to land their cables on the American shores. Mr. Jones also presented the credentials of Mr. Stewart as senator from the state of Nevada. Mr. Dawes presented the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill. Agreed to. The senate bill to reimburse the depositors of the Freedman's Savings and Trust company was taken up, discussed, amended and passed.

The House labor-arbitration bill was passed by the senate to-day with an amendment. Mr. Hoar from the committee on privileges and elections, asked that that committee be permitted to report to the next session upon the power of the president to designate temporarily men to perform the duties of certain offices whose nominations to the same positions had previously been rejected by the Senate. Mr. Plumb reported favorably from the committee on public lands and asked immediate consideration of the Senate bill to increase the endowment of the Louisiana State university and Agricultural college. The House bill to provide for the adjustment of land grants heretofore made by congress and remaining unadjusted was passed. The senate bill to prohibit the mailing of newspapers and other periodicals containing lottery advertisements was passed.

While the journal of yesterday was being read Mr. Edmunds had three occasions of proving that he was still determined to insist on the regular and orderly transaction of business. First, Mr. Cameron moved to dispense with the reading of the journal, and then Mr. Hale asked leave to interrupt the reading in order to have the naval appropriation bill referred to the committee on appropriations, and again Mr. Sherman moved to dispense with the further reading of the journal, to all of which propositions Mr. Edmunds objected, and so the reading of the journal was proceeded with, occupying twenty minutes time. Mr. Hoar, from the committee on privileges and elections reported back the credentials of Senators Stockbridge, of Michigan, and Turpie, of Indiana, (together with the protest of the two houses of the Indiana legislature in the latter case) and moved that they be placed on file and the committee discharged from their further consideration. So ordered. The Senate passed fifty-seven private pension bills in twenty-five minutes, as also bills to convey to the city of Aurora, Illinois, a small island in Fox river; to authorize the bridging of the Missouri at Yankton; to annex a portion of Idaho to Washington territory; to give right of way through Indian Territory to the Chicago, Kansas and Nebraska road, and to forfeit the Ontonagon railroad grant.

Among the papers presented by the presiding officer was a communication from the secretary of war with copies of all dispatches from Gen. Miles referring to the surrender of Jeronimo, and of instructions and correspondence relating to the same. The house amendments to the senate bill authorizing a bridge across the Missouri river between Omaha and Council Bluffs were concurred in. Mr. Whithorne, from the committee on naval affairs, reported back the senate bill to create a naval reserve of auxiliary cruisers, officers, and men from the mercantile marine. Mr. McMillin reported a bill authorizing the city of Winona, Minn., to construct a bridge across a part of the Mississippi river and an island therein. Mr. Aldrich reported a resolution authorizing the committee on finance to continue during the recess the investigation into the undervaluation of imported merchandise. The resolution authorizing the committee on privileges and elections to continue during the recess the Texas investigation was adopted. Mr. Platt reported the senate bill to validate and cure defects in certain acts of the legislature of Washington territory.

Messages from the president were laid before the senate in reply to resolutions heretofore adopted; one as to terms on which cable companies had been permitted to land their cables on the American shore, and as to their contracts with each other and with telegraph companies; the second as to the service of Count Pulaski in the war of the revolution. The latter was accompanied by reports from the secretaries of state, treasury and war. A message from the House announcing non-concurrence in the Senate amendments to the naval appropriation bill was presented and a conference was ordered. The resolution offered by Mr. Cockrell for a select committee of five senators to examine into the business methods of the executive departments in Washington, the causes of delay in the transaction of public business, as to the necessity for additional buildings, etc. was taken up. Mr. Vest opposed the resolution as entirely unnecessary. After some discussion it was agreed to. The conference report on the house bill authorizing the employment of male messengers in the postal service was made and concurred in. The senate then proceeded to the consideration of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill, voting on the amendments recommended by the committee on appropriations as they were reached. As the Committee on Appropriation reported few amendments to the bill, and those of but little importance, there was no delay beyond that made necessary by the complete reading of the bill (114 printed pages), which was done very rapidly and at 1:30 o'clock the end was reached. The bill was presented to the Senate and passed.

Mr. Plumb presented the conference report on the bill for the relief of settlers and purchasers of public lands in Kansas and Nebraska. Agreed to. Also the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill—the Senate receding from the section for mail-steamer service to South America. It was agreed to. The deficiency bill being taken up, and after a number of amendments it was passed and the House notified. The House bill to authorize the sale of the United States barracks property in Newport Ky., and the purchase of a new site and the erection of buildings thereon, was also passed; bill authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at Winona, Minn. House bills authorizing the construction of railroad bridges were passed, as follows: Across the Mississippi river at Fort Madison or Keokuk, Iowa; across the Tennessee river at or near the foot of the Mussel Shoals canal; across the Missouri river at Pierre City, D. T.; across the Tombigbee river at or near Columbus, Miss., and other House bills of minor importance. Mr. Plumb reported an agreement on the District of Columbia Appropriation bill, and Mr. Dawes reported a disagreement on the fortification bill. The bill appropriating $30,000 for the expenses of Senate investigations ordered this session; House bill for the loan of government articles to the industrial exposition at Minneapolis, and House bill appropriating $100,000 for a public building at East Saginaw, Mich., were passed. Senators Sherman and Saulsbury were appointed to join a like committee on the part of the House to wait on the President and inform him that the two houses had completed their business and were ready to adjourn unless he had something further to submit to them.

HOUSE.

In the house Mr. Holman, of Indiana, asked unanimous consent that the reading of the journal be dispensed with, but Mr. Brady, of Virginia, interposed an objection. Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, asked unanimous consent to have the house non-concur in the senate amendments to the joint resolution for an investigation of the affairs of the Pacific railroads. Mr. Stahl, of Minnesota, objected. The conference report on the bill for the erection of a public building at Detroit, Mich., was agreed to. At its evening session the house proceeded to the consideration of resolutions expressive of regret at the demise of Representative Cole, of Maryland.

The Senate amendments to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill were non-concurred in and a conference ordered. The bill making appropriations for the payment of Mexican pensions was passed. Mr. Payson submitted the conference report on the bill restricting to American citizens the ownership of real estate in the territories, and it was agreed to. Mr. Willis presented the conference report on the river and harbor appropriation bill, which was read in extenso, consuming over an hour of time. The House passed the Mexican pension appropriation of $2,350,000 for the remainder of the fiscal year, and $1,100,000 for next year. The legislative and deficiency appropriation bills were passed under suspension of the rules. At the evening session bills were passed for bridging the Missouri at Omaha and Kansas City, and the Mississippi at Keokuk.

On motion of Mr. Crisp the rules were suspended and the senate amendments to the house joint resolution for the investigation of the accounts of the Pacific railroads were non-concurred in. On motion the senate amendments to the bill annexing a portion of Idaho to Washington territory were concurred in. The house then resumed consideration of the conference report on the fisheries-retaliation bill.

Mr. Haines, of New Hampshire, called up the vetoed Senate bill granting arrears of pension to Thomas S. Hopkins. The House refused to pass the bill over the veto. Mr. Tucker, submitted the conference report on the bill providing for the bringing of suits against the Government. The report was agreed to. Mr. Henderson, moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill to modify the internal revenue system of taxation.

Mr. Blount announced that the conference committee on the postoffice appropriation bill had reached an agreement by the recession of the Senate conferrees from the subsidy amendment. The report was agreed to, thus disposing of the bill finally. Mr. Springer raised the question of consideration, and the House proceeded to kill time until the legislative bill came from the Senate. This bill arrived, and it was immediately called up by Mr. Holman, who explained that the point of difference remaining between the two houses was the item for secretaries for senators. Mr. Holman moved that the House recede from its disagreement to the senatorial amendment. After considerable discussion Mr. Holman's motion was adopted. Mr. Miller presented the conference report on the bill amending sections 5,191 and 5,192 revised statutes, and it was agreed to.

Sir Michael Morris is the first Roman Catholic to be appointed to be Lord Chief Justice of Ireland since the reformation.

Miss Emma Thursby declined an offer of $10,000 a year to sing in St. Bartholomew's Church, New York.

MICHIGAN.

Condensed Reports of the Latest News from All Parts of the State.

Latest From Lansing.

SENATE.

The Senate took a recess from 10 last evening to ten this morning, thus extending Wednesday's legislative day, and received quite a number of bills, closing the record at 502 bills and 28 joint resolutions. The following bills were introduced. To provide for the safe heating and lighting of passenger cars; to make the admission fee to the Department of Literature, Science, and Art at the State University not less than $500 to non residents; to provide for brigade and regimental encampments of the State militia; to provide for building a State armory; to require a rebate upon the advanced price of fares paid conductors on railroads; to compel public notice of the formation of copartnerships. After much wrangling the bill to prohibit the sale of liquor within a mile of the Soldiers' Home; was passed.

The following bills passed the Senate: To divide the township of Breen, Menominee county, into two election districts; to authorize the incorporation of associations for improving the breeds of horses, and several minor acts which refer to incorporating villages.

The Senate proceedings to-day were devoid of public interest, most of the session being occupied in committee of the whole.

Bills passed permitting suits to be inaugurated against houses of ill fame, simply on information and belief; providing that chronic insane patients of the State may be kept in county hospitals, and that the county may receive from the State $3 per week for each such patient and clothing; to authorize the town of Marinette to join with the municipalities of Michigan, to construct a bridge over the Menominee River; making an appropriation aggregating $510,000, to maintain the State charitable reformatory and penal institutions for the years 1887-8, and for making improvements at the State dependent school at Sparta. The Assembly bill was concurred in applying the general election law of 1885 to municipal and judical elections in places of over 50,000 population.

HOUSE.

Up to the close of this time limit of fifty days the House had received 923 bills and 22 joint resolutions. The House passed but one bill of more than local interest, and that was to incorporate the Womens' Christian Temperance Union.

In the House bills were passed to restrict hydrophobia and glanders; to provide for a State live stock sanitary commission, and for a State veterinarian, and several local acts. The Committee on Judiciary reported back without recommendation the Senate joint resolution proposing that the State Senatorial term shall be extended to four years, but one half of the Senate will be elected every two years. The bill failed to pass.

The House passed bills to amend the act relative to partition fences; to amend an act establishing a recorder's court in Kalamazoo, each party now having six challenges in jury trials; to divide the township of Breen, Menominee County, into election districts; bill to promote the interests of the American trotting turf, and to incorporate the villages of St. Louis in Gratiot County and Grandville in Kent County.

Petitions from 1,700 citizens of the State were received praying for the prohibition of contract convict labor. The bill was tabled. Bills were killed authorizing the Red Wing and Trenton Transit Company to maintain a ferry across the Mississippi River at Red Wing, Minn.; requiring railway companies to heat passenger cars by steam; requiring Milwaukee policemen to give heavy bonds from which judgments from false arrests can be taken; requiring all candidates for election as Circuit Judges to first pass an examination before the Supreme Court, and for weekly payments of wages to employes by corporations. After a lively debate the resolution which prohibited legislators and members of courts of record from accepting railway passes was killed.

STATE ITEMS.

—Lansing will shortly have a rail road chapel.

—The prospecting well at Royal Oak will go down 3,000 feet.

—A German weekly paper will shortly be established at Lansing.

—A Maine man is about to open up a boot and shoe factory in Bay City.

—Jackson has five cigar factories, which turn out an average of 120,000 cigars per month.

—Nearly one-third of the $30,000 required to build a woolen mill at Saginaw City has been raised.

—A car-load of 160 sheep, whose average weight was 137½ pounds, was shipped from Jonesville recently.

—The Old Settlers' association of the Grand Traverse region held its annual meeting at Elk Rapids March 1.

—After April 1, Battle Creek college will conduct a special term for young ministers, licentiates, bible-readers, etc.

—The flow of water in the Big Rapids well is increasing, and now an average of 480,000 gallons per day is pumped.

—John Goheen, of Monroe, is serving a year's sentence at Jackson for forging his mother-in-law's name as surety to a note.

—The Muskegon water board has accepted the bid of a citizen of Grand Haven for supplying Muskegon with lake water at a cost of about $150,000.

—The male department of the northern asylum for the insane is already full, and notice must be served on the institution before a new patient is sent to it.

—A stick of timber was fished out of the bottom of the Saginaw river last week worth $75. It had been sunk nearly twenty years at Stone Island, near Bay City.

—Mrs. Amlan E. Stone, of Reese, sued two local saloon-keepers for selling her husband liquor, claiming $5,000 damages. The jury returned a verdict in her favor for $64.

—A recent decision of the supreme court declares the Maple river improvement act unconstitutional and the proceedings under the act irregular and void. This will probably end all efforts to improve that stream in Gratiot and Clinton Counties, where it is greatly needed.

—The Bardeen Paper Company of Kalamazoo has secured title deeds to an extensive water-power and site for a paper-mill plant at Otsego, Allegan County, and will proceed to build a large establishment at once. They will employ 150 hands and start with a paid-up capital of $125,000.

—A young woman from Toronto, Ont., whose name is suppressed, but who is evidently the daughter of wealthy and prominent parents of that city, committed suicide at the Battle Creek sanitarium the other night during the absence of her attendants. She was being treated for hypochondria.

—Mayor Milnes, of Coldwater, discovered a thief in the act of stealing a pound of tobacco in his store the other day, and instead of having him jailed, Mr. Milnes gave him a chance to escape prosecution by confessing the deed to the Salvation Army and paying the captain $5 for the privilege. The offer was gladly embraced.

—Of the two bills introduced in the Michigan Legislature providing for the appointment of a Mine Inspector the one in the Senate by Jay Hubbell is preferred by mining men at Ishpeming. It provides for the appointment of an inspector of mines by the Governor at a salary not to exceed $5,000 per annum and defines his duties.

—Mrs. David C. Williams, of Campbell, Ionia county, is nearly 70 years of age, and until recently had never ridden on the cars. She then started for Ionia, but owing to the high water the highway between Saranac and Ionia was impassable, and she took the cars at Saranac and enjoyed her first experience in riding on the rail.

—The will of Dr. Edmund Rogers, brother of Randolph Rogers, the sculptor, who died at Quincy a few days ago, was probated recently at Detroit. After bequeathing about $20,000 to relatives, he leaves the residue of his fortune to any six women whose husbands are drunkards. Rogers was a bachelor and his will is unique.

—Spectacle Reef Lighthouse pier, situated at the head of Lake Huron, eighteen miles from the nearest land, is said to have received bad usage last fall. The floors of the engine-house and other buildings on the pier were raised out of place by the water working through fissures in the foundation of the structure during heavy weather. It will cost the Government fully $20,000 to make the structure safe and substantial again.

—William Woolen, a carpenter living near Clio, died Feb. 17 from injuries received about a week previous. He was building a house for a man named Webster, and had it inclosed and slept in the second story at night. There was a hole cut in the floor for a stairway, but none had yet been built. One night he in some way, either by rolling or walking, fell through this hole to the floor below. His back was broken in three places, and he lingered in pain until his death.

—Wilkins Scott was married in Adrian a year ago to Miss Carrie Howard. Both are colored. Thursday a woman arrived in town who proved to be a first wife who lives with two children aged 7 and 11 at Dayton, O. The result of a prolonged and stormy interview was that Scott paid wife No. 1 $400 to go home and procure a divorce, which she at once set out to do. Scott deserted his wife a year and a half ago and has contributed nothing since to the support of his family in Ohio, although he received $5,500 back pension from the government soon after he left her, and now draws $50 per month. He is blind.

—Portions of the testimony taken by the committee which recently investigated the charges against the Soldiers Home at Grand Rapids have leaked out. It appears that the charges of cruelty, so frequently made were well founded, the most of the brutality having been practised in the hospital. Several of the inmates testified that the head nurse Dowd, was exceedingly cruel, and one night he held a dying soldier, named Moore, on his bed and forced him to take medicine. Dowd kneeling on his breast. Moore yelled with pain at the time but never spoke again and died the next morning. One inmate testified that cayenne pepper was put in a mustard plaster and that he was compelled to wear it. Dowd in many cases, it was stated, threw such men on their beds choked and otherwise abused them, and threatened to throw them out of the windows if they resisted. The testimony show that Commandant Wells and Clerk Long would absent themselves from the home for a week, leaving the attendants to run affairs. The committee has decided to censure the management.

—The operators of the Brazil block-coal district, which represents three-fourths of the capital invested in mining in Indiana, with one-half the miners, recently signed the yearly scale of prices, to go into effect May 1, as fixed at the second annual convention of the National Federated Association of Miners at Columbus, O. The agreement provides for an advance May 1 of five cents and November 1 of five cents more. The cost of mining Brazil block-coal is now fixed for the next year, but an advance in the price of the coal may be looked for. It was not known how the operators would accept the situation but their action now assures the success of the arbitration movement in which Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Illinois are equally interested. The yearly scale fixed for these states is as follows: Hocking, 60 cents; Pennsylvania, 69; Mount Olive, Ill., 56¼; Staunton, Ill., 56¼; Reynoldsville and Fairmount, 65; Indiana block, 80; Indiana bituminous, 65; Wilmington, Ill., 95; Streator, Ill., 80; Grape Creek, Ill., 75; La Salle, Ill., 89; Bloomington, Ill., 95; Springfield, Ill., 62½; Mattoon, Ill., 75; Winona, Ill., 90; Pana, Ill., 56¼; Lincoln, Ill., 62½; Peoria and Canton districts, 70; Springfield district, 90.

—A terrible accident occurred at Indianapolis by which Mrs. Jacob M. Bruner was burned to death. While filling the tank of a gasoline stove the fluid caught fire and exploded. Before help reached her she was so badly burned that death resulted after a few hours of intense suffering.

COUNTRY LIFE AND WORK.

LUTHER'S FAMOUS HYMN.

Mr. John S. Dwight contributes a version of Luther's famous hymn, which is remarkable for its preservation, in text largely of Saxon origin, of Luther's homely but vigorous phrases and rugged rhythms. Here it is:

"EIN, FESTE BURG."

A mighty stronghold is our God,
A right good shield and weapon;
In every strait He'll help us out,
Whatever now may happen.
The ancient bitter foe
Means our deadly wo;
Great might and deep guile
Are his dread arms the while;
On earth there's no one like him.

With our own might we nothing can,
Too fast the battle losing;
There fights for us the very Man,
The Man of God's own choosing.
Ask ye who is this?
Jesus Christ he is,
The Lord of Sabbaoth,
And there's no other God;
He'll hold the field forever.

And were the world of devils full,
All hungry to devour us,
Yet fearing naught, we'll stand the pull—
Nor shall they overpower us;
Fierce though this world's Prince
Froweeth, we'll not wince;
Nothing need we fear;
He's judged, his doom is clear,
One little word can fell him.

The Word, they'll have to let it stand—
No thanks for that they merit—
He still with us is close at hand
With all his gifts and spirit.
Take they away our life,
Goods, name, child and wife,
Yet, after all's done,
For them there's nothing won,
The Kingdom ours remaineth.
—Boston Transcript.

HOG CHOLERA.

Law says in his "Veterinary Adviser" that this disease is undoubtedly produced by faults in diet and management. A farmer in an infected section, with the diseases only half a mile away gives this method of preventing his herd of 105 hogs from contracting it, which proved successful. To begin with he laid a floor to feed upon and kept it clean; kept a trough of fresh and clean well water constantly by them, and gave them a warm place to sleep with good ventilation, taking care that the wind could not blow upon them, and bedded them with prairie or swamp hay, changing often. Too much bedding is worse than too little, as they will bury themselves under it and come out sweating and be likely to take cold.

"Once or twice a week I sprinkled their sleeping and feeding places thoroughly with copperas water, and put a pound or two of copperas into their drinking water.

I kept a mixture of salt, and wood ashes in a trough by them as much of the time as I could get wood-ashes. About once a week for two or three months I dissolved a box of concentrated lye in a half barrel of swill and gave them, also scattered slaked lime freely over their beds. I used 50 pounds of copperas, at a cost of 3½ cents per pound, and some crystalized carbolic acid. The latter is too expensive to use, and is not so good a disinfectant as copperas, which is also a tonic and valuable for that alone."

CELERY CULTURE.

Celery is planted in rows seven or eight feet a part, and one foot between the plants in the row. The old plan of setting the plants in trenches is not practised now; the plants are set on level land and need frequent hoeing and hand weeding until the final banking up, which is done about two or three weeks before it is wanted for use or market. Thus, if wanted for use in September, the weather being warm, the celery will blanch in ten days after the last banking. In October, when the weather is colder, it will take two or three weeks. Many gardeners prefer to start their celery under a hot-bed about April 1. For this purpose very little heat is required, but care must be taken to keep the bed moist, and the best way to do this is to spread over it a piece of old bagging (burlap), which must be removed as soon as the seed begins to sprout. The plants can be taken from this bed and set out in the field in May, when the soil is moist after a rain. If it is required to clear up a piece of lettuce or greens or other early crop in June, and then plant celery, the plants will need to be pricked out from the seed bed in May, into a plant bed at about three inches apart, where they can stand till June, or even July, before transplanting to the field. The more celery is transplanted, however, the more likely it is to go to seed, instead of growing a good stool.

MEDICINE FOR SPRING.

About this period of the year one is liable to pass through a period of what some call spring fever. The spring generally brings an altered condition of the blood. All the old medicines administered by your mothers and grandmothers to their children were called fourth by this fact. But the disagreeable doses so faithfully forced upon the juveniles were not always necessary. A course of oranges will prove as effective and certainly more palatable than the nauseous doses of our childhood. At this season of the year let children eat all the oranges they care for. If taken daily before breakfast so much the better. If the fruit is a little sour it will not be distasteful to little folks. They have a natural craving for something tart. A grateful dish may be made by peeling oranges, taking of every atom of white skin, and cutting them up into small pieces. Sweeten with sugar, and you have a dish that is at once tasty and healthful. A little grated cocoanut adds much to the appearance.

MILK FEVER IN COWS.

The cows most subject to this disease are the best and largest milkers; if quite fleshy, they are still more liable, and it occurs within three days after dropping their calf. Sometimes the fever appears without any apparent cause, and then again it is brought on by injudicious management. Many of the cases coming under our observation were caused by feeding fresh cut grass, warm slop mixed with bran or meal, drinking cold water or by becoming chilled. The symptoms are, refusing to eat, eyes becoming dull, when lying down showing no disposition to rise, getting up with difficulty, a heavy staggering gait, partial paralysis of the hind parts and refusing to notice her calf. In hundreds of cases without a single failure, my mode of treatment has been to give the cow nothing but good hay to eat, commencing one or two weeks before calving, then after calving, for one week give only warm water and dry hay. A day or two previous to dropping the calf give one pound of epsom salts and one large spoon heaping full of ginger; dissolve this in a pint of warm water, and turn down the cow by means of a long necked bottle; give nearly the same quantity again within twenty four hours after calving. This dose is for a medium sized cow weighing about 1,000 pounds; vary according as the cow varies in size. If the weather is cold blanket the cow for a few days. The salts and ginger may be omitted to medium milkers.

CURE FOR GARGET.

This ailment may result from some external injury, or from cold, especially at the time of calving. The udder becomes enlarged, hard, congested and painful; hard cakes are generally felt in the udder, and the teats become tense and painful. One or both sides may be affected, and in severe cases there may be lameness on the affected side. The teats become often partly impervious, the flow of milk decreases, and the milk becomes ropy, and, in cases with much inflammation, bloody. Hot fomentations should be applied at the earliest moment the disease is noticed. The udder and teats should be bathed in warm water. If there is very much swelling, it may be necessary to support the udder by applying a bandage with holes in it to fit the teats, and fastening over the hind-quarters. Poultices of bran or linseed meal may be put in this bag. The cow should be milked three times a day, and the udder well rubbed each time. Half a pound of salts, or some other active purge, should be given. If the glands remain hard after the fever has subsided, iodine ointment should be rubbed in.

GRAFTING.

Grafting is a very simple operation for any light person with mechanical ingenuity enough to whittle a cider tap that will fill a smooth round hole, or who can sharpen a jack-knife to a good edge. The tools needed are a fine saw, a strong knife and hammer for splitting the stock, a keen edged knife for sharping the scions, and some grafting wax for covering the cut surfaces to keep out air and water till the parts have had time to unite and heal over. For wax there is probably nothing better than that recently recommended in the New England Farmer, the formula being 4½ pounds white resin, one pound pure beeswax and one pint linseed oil, all to be melted together, and after cooling in cold water to be worked to a uniform consistency.

HORSE-RADISH.

Horse-radish should be planted as early in the season as possible, or just as soon as the ground can be properly prepared, and if large roots are desired, the soil cannot be made too rich and deep. In planting always use sets. These are the rootlets or branches of the main root, which are too small for table use. They are cut into pieces about four or five inches in length, and in such a manner that there will be no danger of setting the roots upside down. Sets planted upside down will never make good roots.

NOTES.

Cream pie; bake your pastry, take thick, sweet cream; beat to a stiff froth, sweeten and flavor, if desired; pour on the crust, cut thin slices of apple jelly and place over the cream in the pies. It is then ready for use.

Baked custard; boil one pint of cream and half a pint of milk with mace, cinnamon, and lemon-peel—a little of each—When cold, mix the yolks of three eggs, sweeten, and make your cups of paste nearly full. Bake them ten minutes.

Waffles; one quart of flour, one pint of cornmeal mush, two eggs, a tablespoonful of butter and a little salt. Make a thin batter with sweet milk. Seperate the eggs as for rice waffles; it makes them lighter.

Cabbage salad; one small head for one half a large head of cabbage chopped fine. Put one teacup of vinegar in a bowl and set it in a kettle of hot water, stir into this one tablespoonful of butter and sugar, two beaten eggs one tablespoonful of salt and a little mustard and cayenne pepper (enough to suit the taste). Stir all the while until it thickens a little and pour over the cabbage while hot.

A Conscientious Individual.

About twenty years ago there resided in this State a queer, eccentric genius by the name of Andrew Green, and an equally as eccentric lawyer by the name of Brown. Green had inherited about 50,000, and being duly impressed with the importance of the matter determined—like all men of wealth—to make his will. Accordingly he called in lawyer Brown for that purpose. The will was drawn and left in the possession of the lawyer. About six months after Green called on the lawyer and requested to see the will. It was handed to him, when he asked Brown to read it to him. His request was complied with, he giving strict attention while it was being read. After the reading was finished Green, with a solemn face turned to the lawyer and said:

"Brown, have I given my soul to God in that will?"

The lawyer, in looking it over, could not find that important provision, and replied to him that he had not.

"Then," said Green, "it ain't worth a."——

The will was torn up and Green indignantly left the office.—Bridgeport Standard.

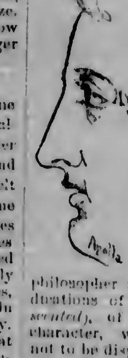
Genius Appreciated.

The Emperor Francis Joseph himself first broke through the traditional etiquet of the Court of Vienna. Once no lady was deemed presentable who had not a pedigree of at least thirteen noble generations. But one day a nobleman's wife who had been a brilliant actress, but whose grandparents were unknown, was named in a list of guests invited to a court reception. The horrified Chamberlain pointed it out to his Majesty as "doubtless an oversight." "No," said the Emperor, "let it stand. I can create a dozen Countesses any day, but such women as that are scarce."

ALL ABOUT NOSES.

DO YOU FOLLOW YOUR NOSE?

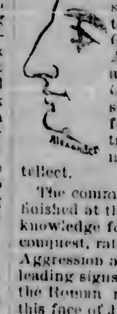
The Grecian Nose—The Roman Nose—The Aquiline Nose—The Pug Nose—The Nose the Organ of Inspiration.



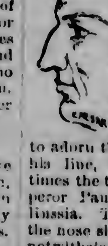
Chiseled and arched with many a line,
O door of fragrance all divine,
Folds of aristocratic birth,
Index of worthlessness, or worth,
Of these I sing in jerky prose,
O frontispiece. O human nose!

Indeed, that appears to be a good and proper thing upon the very face of it. The philosopher and the fool each knows that this is the obvious pointing of nature. The fool may only see in his nose a convenient thing to smell with; but the philosopher reads there the sure indications of sagacity (literally, keen scented), of judgment and force of character, with many other things not to be dispensed with in the mental furnishing of either civilized or savage. An inch on the end of a man's nose is a good deal, both as regards the dignity of expression in that appendage and the qualities of mind which it signifies. Roman, Aquiline, Grecian or Pug, we are all obliged to wear it, and so it may be well for us to inquire what this frontispiece of the face symbolizes, in general and in particular.

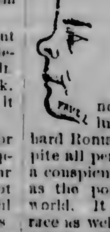
Alexander the Great was a Greek, but at the upper part of his nose we see the prominent sign of aggression, which marked the Roman nose and character. It was this extremely large faculty which led Alexander to depart from the established policy of Greece, and to carry on aggressive wars of foreign conquest, and to plant colonies and kingdoms in other countries. The lower end of his nose indicated the same artistic and literary tastes which marked the Greeks as a nation. In the Apollo, in Venus, Mercury, and other idealizations of Greek art and thought, we see that delicate and perfect chiseling of the nostrils which indicates refinement and symmetry of intellect.



The common Roman nose was less finished at the end; its possessor loved knowledge for the sake of power and conquest, rather than for its own sake. Aggression and Self Defense were the leading signs which gave character to the Roman nose. They are large in this face of Julius Cæsar, who carried the genius of Roman conquest up to its meridian splendor. Civilization has always had to push its way against a mass of obstacles. The Roman nose is a moral battering ram to beat down these walls of savagery and ignorance.

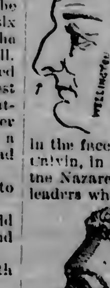


We might expect quickness, pertness, or a quick yielding to impressions, from such a nose as failed to adorn this face of a ruler who, with his line, have assumed in modern times the title of Cæsar. It is the Emperor Paul I, father of Nicholas of Russia. The excessive shortness of the nose shows small signs of intellect, notwithstanding the apparent expanse of the forehead. You will agree with another in thinking that

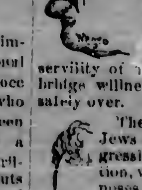


'Twould puzzle even O. S. Fowler
To put a head upon this peg-nosed growler,
That with its majesty would quite efface all
The stupidness of such an organ nasal.

No person with a very short nose ever made a profound impression in the world. The hard Roman nose, pushing its way despite all personal suffering, has played a conspicuous part in the moral as well as the political advancement of the world. It dominated the old Roman race as well as the modern aggressive Briton. It carried Washington on to triumph, it stood in the forefront of Lincoln's unyielding strength, as it had sustained the shocks of Waterloo in the face of the Iron Duke. Against him was pitted the Roman-nosed Napoleon, but in the septum of Wellington's nose the sign of synthesis, of intellectual combination and perseverance, was very large, and this caused him to hold out on that day, even when the apparent tide of war had turned against him, until Blucher came, and all was saved.



The face of John Wesley, a cousin of Wellington, shows the same aggressive character. It gave him moral force to batter down the conservative walls of the old Episcopacy, and plant Methodism up on the ground of personal experience. In all the great founders of religions, or of sects, we see the same aggressive nose. It stands boldly forth in the face of Zoroaster, in Mahomet, in Calvin, in the otherwise gentle face of the Nazarene, and in the hosts of other leaders who have done fierce battle for opinion. Nature never puts a great cause upon a saddle-backed nose and expects it will ride into power. It was not Victor Emmanuel, but rather the high-nosed Garibaldi, who achieved the independence of Italy.



A low bridged nose will do for the helplessness of childhood or the servility of the African, but such a bridge will never carry a great work safely over.

The aquiline nose of the Jews has large signs of Aggression, Defense and Protection, while the breadth of their noses indicates their money getting propensities. This form of the nose was common among the Assyrians, as shown by their sculptures.

The projection of the tip of the nose indicates observation, the questioning faculty, and belongs to the inquisitive mind of the child. He has everything to learn, and how can he learn except he asks questions.

That the downward length of the nose shows the development of the intellect is easily proved by a simple tool yet extremely interesting fact. Let three heads be drawn as in this engraving. A line drawn from the opening of the ear to the upper end of the nose, and another to its lower end will include an angle of 30 degrees. In the Sage the intellectual lobe of the brain extends forward. But the upright length of the nose, at 3, just fills up the angle. Further back of the nose of the hind, at 2, also fills the angle, but also shows a very much shorter intellectual lobe. That of the dog is shorter still. The nose of the hind and the dog project forward, but have less upright length. The facial angle of Camper, which was once extensively used, was of very little value as testing the amount of intellectual development.

Physically speaking, the nose is an organ of breathing and smelling, the legitimate channel through which the lungs receive their perpetual supply of air. This establishes a close relation between the lungs and the intellect. The instincts of men have recognized this relation, for everywhere men speak of the reception of knowledge as "inspiration," literally an inbreathing; the word "spirit" itself meaning that which breathes. This is true of many languages, back to the old Hebrew "ruach." Among all animals those with a poor supply of oxygen have also a poor developed and sluggish nervous system.

The heading of our article binds us to speak chiefly of the nose, but the reader must not suppose that the rest of the features do not play an important part in giving expression to the human face divine. A perfect face is an index to a perfect soul. Such a face helps us to realize that man is in the image of a perfect Creator. If the faculties had not a definite location in the face, then the face could have neither expression nor beauty. A look which indicated love at one moment might indicate hate the next. We know that the face is no such bundle of contradictions.—American Traveler and Tourist.

The Largest Farm in the World.

In the extreme southwest corner of Louisiana lies the largest producing farm in the world. It runs 100 miles north and south and — miles east and west, and is owned and operated by a syndicate of Northern capitalists. Their general manager, J. B. Watkins, gives an interesting account of this gigantic plantation, which throws the great Dalrymple farm in Dakota into the shade completely. The 1,500,000 acres of our tract, Mr. Watkins said, was purchased in 1883 from the State of Louisiana and from the United States Government. At that time it was a vast grazing land for the cattle of the few dealers of the neighborhood. When I took possession I found over 30,000 head of half-wild horses and cattle. My work was to divide the immense tract into convenient pastures, establishing stations or ranches every six miles. The fencing alone cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. The land I found to be best adapted to rice, sugar, corn and cotton. All our cultivating, ditching, etc., is done by steam power. We take a tract, say half a mile wide for instance, and place an engine on each side. The engines are portable, and operate a cable attached to four plows, and under this arrangement we are able to plow thirty acres a day with only the labor of three men. Our harrowing, planting and other cultivation is done in a like manner; in fact, there is not a single draught horse on the entire place. We have, of course, horses for the herders of cattle, of which we now have 16,000 head. The Southern Pacific Railroad runs for thirty six miles through our farm. We have three steamboats operating on the waters of our estate, upon which there are 300 miles of navigable waters. We have an ice-house, a bank, a shipyard and a rice mill.—St. Louis Republican.

The Girl in the Moon.

A monthly paper called the Glacier, which is made up of contributions from the pupils of the Thlinket Training Academy, at Fort Wrangel, Alaska, contains the following:

When I was a little girl living in the Hydah country the old folks used to frighten the little girls about the moon. They used to tell us that a little girl went after water at night. When she was coming home she stuck her tongue out at the moon, and that made the moon mad. It came down and took her up. She had her bucket in one hand and caught a bunch of grass with the other to keep her from going up; but the moon took her, with bucket and grass.

The large figure in the moon is the girl—grass in one hand, bucket in the other. They said that was what you can see in the moon. I used to want to stick my tongue out at the moon awfully, to see if it would come down and take me up; but I was afraid that it would come. I used to feel sorry for the little girl when I looked at the moon.

SUSIE YOUNG.

Track-Walkers in Cold Weather.

Somebody announces as a discovery that the greatest number of destructive railroad accidents occur in January and February. There is no mystery about this fact. Most railroad companies have in their employ individuals known as "track-walkers," whose business it is to look after broken rails and other impediments to the progress of trains. In mild weather it is no hardship for these functionaries to attend to their duties, but with the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero it is a different matter, and they naturally prefer to "lay off;" hence, perhaps, the variation in the accident rate.—Indianapolis Journal.

A GETTYSBURG INCIDENT.

New York Mail and Express: Col. Lewis R. Stegman, ex-Sheriff of Kings County, lectured in the Trinity Baptist Church, Brooklyn, last evening. His subject was entitled, "On the Right at Gettysburg." The Colonel told of the memorable battle in an exceedingly entertaining manner, and, upon motion of one of the audience, was given an enthusiastic expression of their thanks. At the conclusion of the lecture Gen. H. W. Slocum, who commanded on the right at Gettysburg accepted the invitation of the audience to speak to them of himself. He said:

About six years ago I took a trip to Europe in company with my wife. One evening, shortly after arriving at Brussels, I asked the landlord of our hotel if I could obtain a conveyance to to the battlefield of Waterloo. He smiled and said "Certainly, sir; there will be a four-horse coach leaving for the battlefield from every hotel in Brussels tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock; but if you desire to go you should engage your seats tonight." I did so; and when we arrived upon the field we found many others there.

An old man, some 70 or 75 years old who had served in the battle as a Sergeant under Wellington, was acting as guide to a party about the size of this audience (some 300 or 400). The battlefield is the study of the military authorities of the world. If you go up to West Point you will find the cadets there engaged in the study of the myriad phases and details of the historic battle. And what Waterloo was to Europe Gettysburg was to the United States. As Waterloo saved Europe from being overrun by Napoleon, so Gettysburg saved the Union from dismemberment—saved us from becoming an unhappy Nation. This is the first time since the close of the War that I have addressed an audience upon the subject of the War: and indeed I came here tonight to listen rather than to speak. When the War closed I determined that if I could not speak well of any one who had served with me in the lines I would not speak of him at all. [Applause.] And as for myself, I determined to leave the historian to relate the part that fell to me to perform. I have not written any letters about the War, nor do I intend to. I am not one of those who believe that the men who attain prominence in war are entitled to all the honors.

History, it is true, is two-thirds made up of the records of battles fought and the part that men have played in them. I have seen twenty-five statues of the Duke of Wellington, the victor at Waterloo, and never but one of the man who invented printing. I have never seen any of the man who invented the steam engine, and yet the benefits of his contribution to mankind are greater than those of all the Generals who ever lived. There is old Elias Howe, who was a hospital steward, engaged in the care of the wounded during the war; He invented the sewing-machine, and in that conferred a greater blessing upon humanity than any soldier that ever lived has succeeded in doing.

Col. Stegman has told you some interesting and singular facts about the memorable battle of Gettysburg. I have felt more and more every day as we grow farther away from that terrible conflict with the brave and valiant men of the South that the deep designs of Providence are apparent in the issues of the great battles. I well remember while riding with Meade along our lines the morning of July 2 that he pointed out a position that was pretty strongly and advantageously occupied by our troops and said:

"Now, General, if Lee could only be led to attack up here I feel certain I could whip him." Not many hours afterward that point was the scene of Pickett's memorable charge. I looked upon the disasters to Northern arms at the battles of Bull Run in the early part of the War as very deplorable events; but in the light of subsequent history I have come to the conclusion that it is better they were lost than won. Providence was in those battles for our good. Had they proved victories for us the War would have closed too soon. Great differences had to be settled, and were subsequently settled, that could never have been otherwise settled than by war. God closed the War at the proper time, and the permanent benefits to our united country are inestimably superior to all the costs, though terrible they sometimes seemed.

Col. Stegman has told you of a singular circumstance connected with the first day's battle—a circumstance which was always strange to me and which has seemed incomprehensible to others: the fact that the heavy firing of that first day's battle was not heard at headquarters. My headquarters during that day were only four miles from Gettysburg, and the first news I received of the battle was from an old countryman who was brought to my tent by a couple of my men who had found him burrying from the field on horseback.

I could hardly believe his story, but prepared at once to remove up to the support of Reynolds. Now it is remarkable that, although the noise of battle could not be heard where we were that day, it was heard nearly fifty miles away in the opposite direction. About midnight that night Gen. Meade and myself, with six gentlemen, met in a small room which was both kitchen and parlor—the living room of a small log cabin—to hold a council of war. An important question had to be decided: "Should we stay or go?" that was the question. Should we remain and fight it out there or withdraw to what seemed a more advantageous position? After much deliberation and debate the General determined to stay. The wisdom of that determination became apparent within the next twenty-four hours. Col. Stegman has rightly told you that the reserves in support of the right wing were taken away and sent to the support of the left wing. Only Greene's corps was left to protect our right line, close behind which lay our reserve artillery in the park. But Greene's men were not idle; they built in an incredibly short time a breast-work of logs and timbers almost breast high to a man and extending along their whole front. Then by their gallant resistance to the impetuous assaults of Early they held the lines until assistance arrived, and the Rebels were beaten back, defeated, and dismayed.

A Southern Story of Vicksburg.

"Little Dandy" the boys called him. He joined our company in Vicksburg just before the siege, and none of us felt enough interest in him to make any inquiries. His extreme youth (he was about 16) would have excited our sympathy under other circumstances, but the war-worn veterans in the trenches had no use for the curled darlings of the parlor, and Little Dandy's appearance was against him. The lad wore the gray uniform of a private, but it was of the very finest material—finer than anything worn by our Generals. His buttons had an unsoldierly glitter. He sported white handkerchiefs, carried a pocket mirror, and every morning he combed and curled his golden locks until they looked like a girl's tresses.

"Hello, Little Dandy!" yelled the soldiers, whenever the young fellow passed them. To this rough salutation he always responded with a bow and a smile, but his soft ways did not win favor. When we met in town we passed him by without notice, and in camp we let him alone. Little Dandy was proud after a fashion—too proud to notice the many slights heaped upon him. He went through the routine duties without complaint, but nothing could induce him to abandon his pocket mirror and his fancy toilets.

The siege was well under way and we were no better acquainted with Little Dandy than at first. He shared our meals of moldy corn bread and mule meat without a murmur, and it must be admitted that this raised him somewhat in our estimation. But we still had to learn what a true heart beat behind those glittering buttons. An angle of the enemy's works was dangerously close to our intrenchments and we had to keep our heads well sheltered. When we raised a hat on the muzzle of a musket it was invariably riddled with bullets. One morning we found our men being picked off by an unseen sharpshooter at the rate of five or six an hour. This astonished us, because we were all keeping under cover, and the men who were killed all occupied well-protected positions.

Where was the sharpshooter? This was the uppermost question in every mind. We were not long in satisfying ourselves on this point. Just outside of the angle of the Federal works stood a giant oak, whose leafy top afforded an admirable covert for an active rifleman. A vigilant scrutiny convinced us that the man who was doing such deadly work in our ranks was concealed in this tree. To reach it he must have made his way there during the night, and he would have to remain there all day. But we could not stand it even one day. His aim was so unerring that every time his rifle cracked a Confederate bit the dust. We tried a rattling discharge of musketry, but a moment later the report of the rifle rang out, and another of our comrades fell.

It was evident that, from our position, it was almost impossible to hit the Federal rifleman. If we succeeded in bringing him down it would be by some lucky random shot. Possibly a man outside the works would be able to draw a head on our wary foeman, but he would be under the guns of the enemy and there would be a thousand chances against him.

"I'll kill him or die!" cried a shrill voice.

"Good God! it's Little Dandy!" shouted a dozen men.

At the risk of our lives we peeped over our breastworks. Little Dandy had already made his way to the open space between the works and was edging around on the right of the tree. The Federals saw what he was up to and fired a broadside. When the smoke cleared away and they saw the boy with a flushed face and streaming hair aiming his gun at the top of the old oak there was a tremendous cheer. It rolled along both lines—the hoarse Federal shout mingling with the wild "Rebel yell."

Bang! A man in blue came tumbling and crashing through the branches of the tree and struck the ground with a dull thud. It was the sharpshooter. Another cheer rent the air, but this time it came from the Confederate alone. A sheet of flame blazed along the Federal works, but when the smoke lifted we saw Little Dandy coming full tilt in our direction with a smile on his face.

"Three cheers for Little Dandy!" leaped from hundreds of throats, as the boy vaulted over the breastworks, and we rushed down upon him to hug him, in our frenzy of admiration and joy. But Little Dandy sunk down upon a heap of loose dirt, and then we saw the crimson stains upon his breast.

"I kept my promise," he panted. And then as our Colonel took his hand, the little chap looked up into his face and said:

"I'm afraid I've made a poor soldier. Sometimes I've bothered you. I know. But I always wanted to help you. Please remember that I was not very strong, and—and I did the best I could."

His head fell over. Poor Little Dandy was dead!—Atlanta Constitution.

Anecdote of Macaulay.

Dramatic Times: Not long ago I was talking with an old gentleman who has for years been in the iron business as a commission merchant in a Western city, who, early in his career, went to England to make a study of iron manufacture in conjunction with a visit for pleasure.

"One day," he said, "I went to a London book store to find a certain work on metallurgy I could not find in America, and while there a pleasant old gentleman came in began looking around pretty much as I was doing. We came together presently, and soon were chatting pleasantly on books and other matters, and I told him who I was and what I was seeking. He told me he knew the work, and, though it was rare, thought he might find it, and at once began a search through the racks, shelves, and out-of-the-way corners, and finally came up smiling from a dark place with the book in his hands. I thanked him, and, taking the volume to the dealer, I ordered it laid aside, and at the same time ordered the late numbers of Macaulay's works, which were appearing in parts and some of which I had bought in America.

"I told my new friend that in my estimation Macaulay was the greatest English writer, and that I had read everything he had written, as far as I knew. He smiled pleasantly, and after a few moments' further conversation we parted, with the hope of meeting again. The next morning I left London for York, and when I had settled myself in the compartment assigned me I found my traveling companion to be the old gentleman I had met in the book store the day previously. I was glad to see him and told him I was bound for New York, and he said he was going there, too. This pleased me and I settled down for a good talk, for he was exceedingly entertaining and thoroughly the gentleman. We made no stops for some time, and when we did I noticed a large crowd at the station.

"'There must be some distinguished person aboard the train,' I said, 'and these people are here to see him.'

"'Possibly,' he answered, with a smile like the one he gave me the day before among the books, and we continued our talk. At the next station there was a larger crowd, and getting outside I asked what was going on, and some one told me Lord Macaulay was on the train. I went back to report to my friend.

"'Lord Macaulay is on the train,' I said; 'that's what brings the people out, and I'd give a good deal to see him myself.' He smiled again. 'I'm Lord Macaulay,' he said, with almost a schoolgirl blush, and I reached out with American enthusiasm and shook hands with him so heartily and earnestly that he laughed till tears ran down his cheeks.

"When we reached York he invited me to dine with him, and at the dinner he extended further invitation for me to visit his home and his family, and I did it, and to this day Macaulay is one of my brightest and pleasantest memories."

An Ancient Chestnut in a New Shell.

In the old mining days in California, when provisions were short in the Frazer River camp it was the custom of some of the case hardened old fellows to tell stories at meal time calculated to destroy the appetite of the more sensitive. A miner who had successfully played this game many a time paid a visit to San Francisco, and during his stay was invited to dinner by a clergyman. As soon as he was seated at the table the miner began to eat up everything within range in his usual vigorous style. His host, who would sooner have omitted dinner than grace before meat, endeavored to check his ill-timed voracity by remarking: "Please wait a moment, sir; we usually say something before we begin." His guest, with the memory of the Frazer River ante-prandial anecdotes fresh in his mind, answered: "O, you can say what you darn please, you can't turn my stomach." The preacher nearly fainted, and, although his guest afterward rose to high office in the State, could never be convinced that he was not an irreclaimable savage.—New York Tribune.

Bismarck and the Length of His Life.

Prince Bismarck's second speech is chiefly interesting because of his declaration that, although he expected to live three years longer, he expected to die before seven had passed. He gave this as one of the reasons why he refused to interfere with the septenate. Prince Bismarck is now 73. He anticipates death between 1890 and 1894. That is to say, he expects to live till he is 76 and to die before he is 80. It is not every one who calculates so closely as to the probable duration of his existence. It would be a very interesting subject to investigate how far the plans of statesmen are thus modified by their expectations of life. It used to be said that both "our old man in a hurry" and our "young man in a hurry," were impatient for the same cause. Mr. Gladstone's age precludes the possibility of many years of prolonged activity, and Lord Randolph's constitution is so impaired that medical authorities are said to have warned him not to expect more than five or six years of a career.

Judge Hoar's Funny Blunder.

Judge Hoar, one of the legal lights at the trial of the Andover professors is said to be an absent-minded man. He is also said to be a little harsh and abrupt at times. As the story goes, he listened intently to the argument of Prof. Dwight yesterday, and with the others went to lunch. His mind was full of creeds and heresies, and legal phrases as he proceeded slowly to the dining-room. His friends noticed that he was rather preoccupied, and watched him closely.

Close to the hat-rack is a large mirror. He paused for a moment, and waited for the other fellow in the mirror to pass, and the Judge shouted angrily, "Isn't there room enough for you to pass?"

His friends burst into laughter, and the Judge himself, soon realizing that he was the victim of a huge joke, joined in the sport.—Boston Record.

Jackson Could do no Wrong.

It was an anecdote of a pious Jacksonian deacon of our county in Virginia that a Whig laid a wager that he would justify Jackson even for murder. Overtaking the deacon on his way to church, he entered into conversation, and professed to be just from Washington.

"Well, and what's the news at Washington?" asked the deacon.

"Nothing—O, yes, there is; Gen Jackson killed a man yesterday."

"Killed a man!" cried the deacon.

"Yes, he was walking on Pennsylvania avenue, and told a man to get out of his way; the man didn't, and the President shot him."

The deacon meditated a few moments, then broke out, "Hurrah for the General! Why didn't the man get out of his way?"—Moncure D. Conway.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

Established, 1869.

CHARLEVOIX, MARCH 16, 1887.

WILLARD A. SMITH Editor.
ED F. PARMELEE Associate Editor.

Pittsburg Commercial: The wings of the Democracy are not flapping together with much energy, but its claws are in the money box, and its bill runs incessantly.

A San Francisco paper figures "the wholesale cost of an average drink of whiskey at one and three-tenths of a cent." At 10 cents per drink there seems to be a large margin of profit.

War is an expensive luxury. The best modern improved seige gun costs $97,000, and every time it is fired the ammunition costs $900. This is the estimate of the French authorities, and they ought to know.

The Charleston News and Courier has toned down a good deal lately. It now says that "both sides were right in the late war." The Detroit Tribune remarks: Thanks! Again, thanks! We are so glad that our side was right, too.

The majority of the Republican papers in this State oppose the prohibitory amendment for the reason that the present law is more likely to promote temperance. A large number of the newspapers take a neutral ground, while a few favor the amendment.

A repeating rifle, invented by a French officer, can be loaded with its seven cartridges in ten seconds and completely discharged in four, and it does not require to be removed from the shoulder until the magazine is exhausted. The science of killing quickly is rapidly reaching perfection.

Nothing better illustrates that it pays to advertise than the rush now to California. Two years ago the southern section of the state organized to advertise, and they managed it well. The northern section soon took their cue. To-day the hotels of Southern California will not accomodate the visitors, and San Francisco hotels registered last week over 5,000 guests.

Detroit Tribune: A Detroit evening paper struggles hard to make it appear that the Republican party of Michigan is "in a hole." Our esteemed cotemporary, however, is sadly mistaken. The Republicans are not in the hole; they are just standing around it, ready to "shoo" back the enemy whenever it tries to crawl out. Watch 'em and see how they do it.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: In fact about all the needful work of Congress has been done by Republicans. Much that ought to have been done has been left undone, as will always be the case where the majority exhibits "the highest incapacity for legislation," and adds to inborn incapacity an acquired distrust of the Executive. The Democratic party has neither enunciated a policy nor developed a leader.

New York Herald: The Prohibitionists have neither eyes nor ears. They are good men and conscientious, but they are ignorant of the laws of progress. If they had been present the morning of the first day of creation they would have protested against taking six days to accomplish the result. They would have passed a vote that the Lord must either make the world at once or not make it at all. They know nothing about the history of social progress, whose plain teaching is that, although you aim at what is perfect, you must go through a great many imperfect states to get at it.

The Hebrews are not Prohibitionists. They assert that Prohibition begins at the wrong end of the evil which its advocates profess a desire to reform, and that it can never for that reason be effective. They contend that temperance must be a matter of education, and this must begin at the cradle. On the attempt to achieve temperance by force, a Hebrew paper says: "High license or prohibition is the question of the day among the temperance reformers. But we Jews need concern ourselves but little about the matter, for a Jewish drunkard is one of the rarest sights on earth."

The New Orleans Picayune asserts that as a candidate for the next Presidency Grover Cleveland is as sure of the votes of the South as though they were actually cast and counted. The statement, however, is somewhat indefinite, if not misleading, for if the Southern votes were really cast or honestly counted, he couldn't be elected at all. It would be dangerous to his prospects if the south should forego its habit of not counting and declare the result as is done in Northern States. To have been categorically correct the Picayune should have said: "Grover Cleveland is as sure of the votes of the South as though they were cast and counted in the usual Southern manner."

Northern Michigan News.

Kalkaska is still wide awake on the railroad question.

The office of the Fife Lake Comet was destroyed by fire last week.

The G. R. & I. trains are to be provided with weather signals soon.

Representative Dougherty has introduced a bill in the Legislature authorizing a grant of swamp lands to Torch Lake, Antrim county.

Prof. Henry Gordon, well known in Charlevoix, having taught vocal music here several years ago, is expected to open a class at Petoskey soon.

Charles Hultz, of Torch Lake, has invented and patented a boiler indicator, and W. A. Osborne, of Elk Rapids, has been granted a patent for a whiffletree hook.

Ernst & Follett, of Williamsburg, have cut 5,300 railroad ties up to Feb. 26. The best day's work was 348 ties in nine hours' work. Forty ties have been cut in 40 minutes by the watch.

Petoskey Democrat: A citizen's meeting was held in Mitchell hall last Friday evening to discuss the propriety of supporting the prohibitory amendment. The meeting was well attended, and over $50 raised to be used in the campaign.

The bill to incorporate Kalkaska, which passed the house some time ago, and has since been hung up in the Senate, was passed by that body last week, and if nothing occurs to prevent or delay the matter, the village will soon receive its charter.

Joe St. Peter, of Cross Village, has his cut of pine at Sturgeon Bay all in, and his force of men are at work getting out ties. A. T. Burnett, of the same place, has a large quantity of ties on the beach, and is also putting in oak logs for the outside market.

Chase Eclipse: We have information from reliable sources that the prospects are first-class for the T. A. A. & N. R. R. being built to Big Rapids, thence to Chase, Luther and Frankfort. A better line cannot be traced on the map in Northern Michigan, and such a line would open up a fine tract of country, and could not but be a number one investment.

Harbor Springs Independent: Among the mail routes advertised in the pamphlet of Jan 21th, is a route from St. James to Cross Village, to be carried from Dec. 1st to March 31st. It would appear that our Beaver Island friends are to have winter mail service after all. The steamboat route to St. James, for which W. J. Clarke was the lowest bidder, is re-advertised, presumably with the hope of securing still lower bids.

Kalkaska Leader: Charlevoix and Bellaire—here's our [illegible]—Hoping for better acquaintance and closer relations—Shake.——Because little has been said about the D. C. & E. R. R. for the past week, is no sign the project is dead, or even slumbering. Just as soon as the depth of snow will permit the preliminary surveys will be made, and later, the actual line determined upon, and right of way secured. The management of affairs is in the hands of men who will push things when the time comes, so don't worry.

Boyne Citizen: The Register's office has added five new libers to its list. Their cost was $99. They are patent back, and full Russia binding. ——The ice is fast disappearing from Boyne river, and for this winter is likely to be the last.——David P. Webb, of Clarion, moved into George Beardsley's house on Park street last Tuesday.——Many people will regret to learn that S. W. Kramer intends soon to move his stock of merchandise to Bessemer, Ontonagon county, in the upper peninsula. J. R. Kramer will move his family to that place about the 21st of April, and will have charge of the store.

Harbor Springs has its eyes open to the fact that the bill introduced in the Legislature to incorporate Petoskey as a city, with several wards, means a "scheme to capture the county seat. Should this bill pass, as it is likely to, Harbor Springs will certainly be in a pickle." The Independent says: "In spite of the fact that the county seat question, like Banquo's ghost, will not down, Harbor Springs has heretofore made up in superior tactics for Petoskey's strength in numbers. We may as well face the fact, however, that in this last scheme they have so far been too much for us."

Mancelona Herald: Mrs. Catherine Kemp, mother of Charlie and Ed. Kemp, has been dangerously ill during the past week, but is now slowly recovering. A daughter from Toronto is now at her bedside. * * The debris of our burned factory has been all cleared away, and a large force of men is now employed in getting out timber and lumber for the new building. The new part is to be all under one roof and will be 140x155 feet in size. The roof is to be of iron, and the construction and arrangement of the various departments will be as convenient and complete as skill and experience can make them.

EDUCATIONAL.

All communications on educational topics should be addressed to Prof. R. M. Knox, Superintendent of the Charlevoix Schools.

Education and the Labor Problem.

Extracts from the address of Pres. L. R. Fiske, of Albion College, before the State Teachers' Association at Lansing, Dec. 30, 1886:

Workingmen tell us that in all the relations they sustain to capitalists they are oppressed. Capital and labor do not occupy the same plane; they are not equal factors of an industrial democracy. Personal rights and dignity go but a little way. Manhood is less than money.

Admitting this inequality, and that in it there is a considerable measure of wrong, the question very naturally would arise in an association of teachers as to the extent this unhappy state of affairs is due to ignorance. In other words, what can education do to remove just grounds of complaint, and lessen the conflict that has reached such alarming proportions.

It is by no means certain that they who have business capacity are all in the class of capitalists, and that they who do not possess business capacity are in the class of workingmen. It is doubtless true that there is a large percentage of workingmen who are endowed with real business talent which only needs a fair chance to make itself felt in the business world. The line separating capitalists and workingmen does not at the same time separate capacity from incapacity. That which will change the direction of this line, putting on the business side all who possess relative business talent will accomplish as much for man in his industrial relations as can be wrought out for him. Will education do this?

Mental culture, greater ease, precision, and power of action, of cognitive faculties, may rationally be supposed to enlarge business capacity. It is estimated that an ordinary district school education adds fifty per cent to the wage earning capabilities of a man; a high school education, one hundred per cent; and a college education two hundred per cent. As all the capital of the world is a product of man's mental energies, that which adds to their efficiency will be sure, to some extent, to increase this capital. Force never generated a single dollar of wealth. It is only as mind utilizes force, that capital springs into being. Hence, in general terms, the more of mind we put into the industries of the world the larger the amount of products that will accrue therefrom. Thus it seems to be true not only that education would secure an intellectual elevation of the laboring man, broadening his life, giving him more strength, making him a more intelligent citizen, a wiser legislator, and a safer guide, but that the mental power generated, would act favorably on the industrial arts, that better scholarship would give us more successful business men.

Can there not be something more in education than mere mental training? It is clearly evident that there is a value in arithmetic, book-keeping, geometry, mechanics, etc. While they are disciplinary in the employment they furnish the mind, they also open up channels into the domain of business. If all our laboring men were versed in such branches of learning as have a business side they would possess the capability of guiding the industries of the land instead of being, many of them mere human machines.

Education is not a panacea for the evils of the industrial world, but it can accomplish much. The money spent to promote intellectual culture by the state is not sunk, but it reappears in the increased capital of the world. Education will add to the capital of the world and improve the condition of the workingmen.

Correspondents should in all cases give their names in sending communications. We will not publish names without permission, but this is a rule of all journals, and we desire to adhere to it.

The military force of the nations of Europe, including army and navy, amounts to nearly 3,000,000 of men, and their national debts mostly occasioned by wars, is about $14,000,000,000. The support of these armies and interest on debts costs $1,400,000,000 annually. The total revenues are stated at $1,725,000,000 leaving only $325,000,000 for the civil service. Suggestive figures. Ex.

We have a short communication on the question, why girls generally exceed boys in their studies? which we hope to have room for next week.

Virginia has furnished seven presidents (birth place); Ohio, three; North Carolina, three; New York, two; Massachusetts, two, and New Hampshire, Vermont, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Kentucky each one. What are the names for each state?

Who, at night, can say "I have done my best in every task I have undertaken to-day."

WIT AND HUMOR.

"No man can serve two masters," unless he is a low-down politician and both masters have money.—New Orleans Picayune.

Why does the camel know more about base-ball than the dromedary? Because he is a hump higher. Take this with your dessert. Commercial Bulletin.

She—Isn't that papa coming? He—How provoking, I was just going to steal a kiss. She (ingenuously)—He's awfully nearsighted, Charley—awfully! —Tid-Bits.

It is a curious fact that fleas are hatched from eggs; curious because one would hardly think that a flea could sit still long enough to lay an egg.—Burlington Free Press.

It has been remarked that the youth who wears the tallest collar and carries the largest stick wears the smallest hat; but why it is nobody seems to know.—Philadelphia Call.

A phrenologist says that "fullness under the eye denotes language." When the fullness is caused by another man's fist it denotes very bad language, generally.—Norristown Herald.

She—"And you are really better, professor, since you came to live in Hampstead?" He—"O, yes, a different man altogether!" She—"How pleased all your friends will be!"—Texas Siftings.

"If a lady is beautiful, my son," said a latter-day Lord Chesterfield, "never fail to refer to her beauty." "What am I to do when the lady is plain?" "Just the same; stick to the beauty."—Boston Record.

George to Celeste—Your papa is not here, dearest? Celeste—No; he is behind time to-night. George—Then come to my arms. As long as he isn't behind me, I care not where he is.—Washington Critic.

A contemporary says: "We consumed much more pig-iron the first six months of this year than during the corresponding period of last year." Better move back to the old boarding-house.—New Haven News.

"Why, yes," said Blobson, speaking of a logical conclusion to Mrs. Popinjay, and rather allowing his earnestness to get the better of him, "it's perfectly plain to me—as plain as you are."—Burlington Free Press.

Citizen (to farmer)—How are things out your way, Mr. Hayseed? Mr. Hayseed (gloomily)—They couldn't be much wuss. My wife and three cows are down with pleuro-pneumonia. I refused a hundred dollars apiece for 'em only last week.—Life.

Chief of Police—"You want a place in the detective department?" Applicant—"Yes, sir. I am willing to undertake——" Chief of Police—"You can go. Our bureau is full of undertakers. I am looking for detectives who can overtake."—Philadelphia Call.

Constance (sentimentally, viewing ruins of an old mill)—There is always a touch of pathos to me, Clarence, in incompleteness; that crumbling wall, the broken wheel, a shattered life—— Clarence, gloomily (thinking of last night)—Or a bob-tail flush.—N. Y. Sun.

Two young women were gazing in a shop window. Said one, "Isn't it a love of a bonnet! I'm tempted to buy it, even if it is expensive." Said the other, "No, don't you do it; you are too excited now. You would be sure to regret it to-morrow morning."—N. Y. Sun.

At the office of a physician in the Rue Notre Dame. Patient—"Can you tell me when will I be safe to find the doctor alone?" Servant—"You would do well to come during his hours of consultation, monsieur, between 2 and 4. He is always alone then."—French Fun.

Featherstone—Didn't you have a good sort of time at the Vandershee's, Litewate? Litewate—Beastly, weally. Featherstone—That's vewy odd. Why, they say wine flowed like water all the evening. Litewate—Ya-as, that was it, you know—too much like watah.—Rambler.

"Maria, I wish you would keep still," said Brown, trying to write. "Your tongue is like 'Tennyson's Brook,' it goes on forever." "Hump!" answered Mrs. B., indignantly. "I suppose you think that's a joke." "Well, I meant it for a sort of a gag."—New York Sun.

Mrs. De Crashville (to her husband who is going to the city)—Don't forget the florist, dear—and Tiffany—and that little package at Arnold's, and—let's see, there was something else—O, run in on my lawyer, won't you, and see how the divorce proceedings are coming on?—Tid-Bits.

Landlord—Your rent has been due for six weeks. Tenant—I know it. Landlord—Can't you pay it to-day? Tenant—No. Landlord—Why not? Tenant—See here, I don't want to be bothered in this way. Landlord—But I want my rent. Tenant (indignantly)—Sooner than pay that rent I'll move. —Tid-Bits.

"George," she murmured fondly, "do you believe in supporting a monopoly?" "No, dear, I don't. I believe in helping a monopoly along just as little as I can. But why do you ask?" "O, I don't know, only I thought maybe if you didn't you would have turned down the gas." George turned.—New Haven News.

Minister (in grocery store)—I am pleased to see, Mr. Sugarsand, that motto on the wall, 'Honesty is the best policy.' It will pay you from a business point of view, to say nothing of anything else. Mr. Sugarsand (hopefully)—I hope so, sir, but I haven't tried it long enough yet to make a fair test of it.—N. Y. Sun.

Bagley—Ah, De Baggs! where art thou going with the hobby-horse? De Baggs—'Tis for little Jimmy, my youngest sprout. Bagley (sagely)—It's costly business to have children. De Baggs—(gloomily)—I should say so. Every time I start out to buy a 50-cent toy I meet somebody I know and then away goes a dollar or two for cigars and beer.—Philadelphia Call.

Smith—"Say, didn't you tell me that young Jones was a good bookkeeper?" Fogg—"Why, yes, I believe I did." Smith—"Well, he ain't; he can't tell an inventory from a flexible roller." Fogg—"All I know is, that I loaned him about half of my library and he has never returned them, so I supposed he was a good bookkeeper."—Detroit Free Press.

Doctor X. is a little hot tempered, and when he got into a dispute the other day with an acquaintance in a street-car and became very insolent the latter exclaimed: "Monsieur, you have insulted me, and you will receive my seconds. And you will not have the advantage you do with your patients, for I will not give you the choice of arms." —French Fun.

He is an unimportant man nowadays, says Mrs. Grundy, who has not his own private railway car.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Charlevoix, ss. In the matter of the Estate of Richard Coryon, [illegible]. Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of an order granted [illegible] William Coryon, [illegible] of the Estate of said Richard Coryon [illegible] 25th day of June, A. D. 1886, there will be sold at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the [illegible] in the county of Charlevoix, [illegible] State, on Saturday, the [illegible] day of April, 1887, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day [illegible] subject to all encumbrances by mortgage or otherwise existing at the time of [illegible] the following described real estate [illegible] Charlevoix and State of Michigan, known and described as [illegible] of section [illegible] Township Thirty-four [illegible] North, of Range Five [illegible] West.

Dated, Feb. [illegible] 1887.

WILLIAM COYNON,
as Guardian of Richard Coryon, Insane.

Charlevoix County Board of School Examiners.

Spring examinations will occur as follows: Boyne City, Friday, March 25th, 1887; East Jordan, Friday, April 29th, 1887. Examinations will commence at 8 a. m., and end at 6:30 p. m. Candidates for first or second grades can write only at the examination at Boyne City, and may write until 9 o'clock, p. m.

WM. HARRIS, Sec., Norwood.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. Crouter.

Pan Zaina Balm

"THE ARCH QUEEN OF FEMALE REMEDIES" the grandest [illegible] and simplest known remedy for all Female Troubles which womankind is heir—$1 per box of one month [illegible]. Reliable Lady Agents can make money for themselves and for the benefit of women by engaging in the sale of this remedy. For [illegible] and particulars, Address—

PAN-ZAINA MED. Co.,
Frankfort, Ind.

CROSS & SONS.,
Buy and Sell all kinds of
Farmers' Produce, Fruit, Flour, Fish, etc.
Charlevoix, - Mich.

DAN'L S. WAY,
Photographer.
In Bradbeer's Gallery.
Photographs of all sizes taken.
Old Pictures copied and enlarged.
CABINETS $3 A DOZ.

SILVER WARE.
I have just received a very fine stock of Silver Ware of the latest varieties and can sell them at lowest figures.
My Stock of
Watches, Clocks, Chains, Pins, Gold & Silver headed Canes etc. is complete.
If you want to select nice Presents, just call and see what I can give you for a small sum.
All classes of Repairing done quickly.
C. R. BELLINGER.

J. T. Kirkpatrick,
ARCHITECT AND CONTRACTOR,
—ON—
Chalevoix Summer Resorts.
I have the Plans of 10 Cottages of different designs that can be seen by parties wanting to build cottages.
I employ only first-class workmen, both
Carpenters and Painters.
Work intrusted to my care will have prompt attention.
J. T. KIRKPATRICK.

CHARLEVOIX
Manufacturing Co.
Charlevoix, Mich.,
Manufacturers of
Sash and Doors,
Blinds, Mouldings etc.
NEWELL
Posts, Banisters & Stair Rails
kept in stock.
Window & Door Frames made to order.
All Kinds of
Building Material
Kept constantly on hand.
PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS,
Furnished on application.
Cottages made a specialty also contracting and building.
Correspondence solicited.

Washburn & Ackert.
FOUNDREYMEN, MACHINISTS,
And Manufacturers of The
Charlevoix Plow.

CHARLEVOIX
Savings Bank.
Organized under the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.
Henry Bennett, Pres.; John Nicholls, Vice Pres.; F. A. Smith, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Henry Bennett, O. D. Wood,
John Nicholls, A. Buttars,
A. H. Upright, A. Fox,
F. A. Smith.
CAPITAL $25,000
SURPLUS 2,000
The individual Stockholders in all State banks are by law (Act 3174, Sec. 19 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Michigan) liable to double the amount of stock taken, making a guaranteed fund of $50,000 to depositors. Superior facilities for the transaction of every legitimate branch of Banking business extended to our customers on terms as favorable as are consistent with safety.
Drafts drawn direct on the leading commercial cities of the world in large or small amounts. Money to loan on approved paper. Exchange bought and sold. Certificates of deposit issued bearing interest. We respectfully solicit your patronage.
CORRESPONDENTS:
NATIONAL PARK BANK, New York.
COMMERCIAL NAT. BANK, Chicago.
NAT. CITY BANK, Grand Rapids.
DETROIT NAT. BANK, Detroit.

Bank of
Charlevoix,
W. P. BROWN, Cashier. W. A. BROWN, Asst. Cashier.
CAPITAL, $25,000
Perfect Security
Is assured to the depositors in this Bank, both by its capital and conservative management.
Its Officers
Never Speculate. Their business creed is: That to speculate with one's own money, is folly, that to do so with the money of others, is criminal.
Security in Banking
Is the question of first importance to both Bankers and Depositors; and to-day [illegible].
This Bank Invites
People generally to intrust their money to its keeping. [illegible]
This Bank Will
Borrow [illegible] to pay when desired, paying as large interest thereon as shall be [illegible] with safe use of the money.
Parties Seeking
Productive employment for money, and desiring to escape the expense and trouble of the management of [illegible] investments, will find attractive security in this Bank's
Investment Notes,
Now earning Five per cent. yearly interest. These notes afford investors much more perfect security than Savings Bank deposits.
We Solicit Your Patronage.

Fox & Miller
Offer a
Mammoth Stock
OF BOOTS, SHOES
and other
FOOT WEAR,
--AT--
LOWER PRICES
Than can be found elsewhere in the County.
We have just secured a
FIRST-CLASS
SHOEMAKER,
And will make Repairing a specialty.
We have the Goods and we are bound to sell them.
NOTHING SHODDY.
Fox & Miller.

J. A. HEATH,
FURNITURE
—AND—
JOBBING SHOP
Antrim Street,
CHARLEVOIX, MICH.
All classes of furniture made to order, furniture repaired, and shop work of all kind promptly attended to, and satisfaction guaranteed.
Manufacturer of BED SPRINGS.
Give me call.

RIFENBURG MILLING CO.
Charlevoix, Mich.
Manufacturers of and Wholesale and Retail Dealers
3 EXTRA GRADES OF
FLOUR
Feed, Corn Meal, Graham
We will do exchange work for farmers on short notice.

It Pays to Buy the
BEST BOATS!
The large number of boats I have built for resorters, are advertisements of what I have done and can do in boat building. Call and get references.
I will guarantee the best modelled easiest rowing and best sailing boats in Northern Michigan for the
LEAST MONEY!
All kinds of Oars, and Paddles made.
LEAVE ORDERS
with me for a boat for next summer's use. I am bound to please you.
Special facilities for storing boat liveries.
J. BEAUVAIS.

D. Sherwood & Co
We are now receiving our Fall and Winter Stock of BOOTS
AND SHOES,
which is the most complete in all respects ever brought here and embraces Lumbermen's Rubbers,
Wool Boots,
Shoe Pacs,
And Everything
Usually kept in a country shoe store.
We also have some big bargains in Women's and Misses Shoes for common wear.
Womens grain shoes for $1.25 Misses grain shoes for $1.00. This Shoe cannot be undersold by any of the dealers.
Also quite an assortment in fine Shoes to please all, having taken advantage of the market and purchased them cheap. We shall give our customers the advantage of the low figures.

A. J. McLEOD,
Having returned to the Charlevoix Meat Market, announces that he will sell at
Wholesale or Retail
All kinds of
FRESH MEATS,
SALT PORK,
SMOKED & SALTED
HAMS,
Dried and Smoked
BACON, DRIED BEEF,
Bologna, Head Cheese,
Sausage.
Highest Prices Paid FOR HIDES and PELTS.
Will kill hogs or cattle for other Markets or persons wishing that class of work at low rates.
A. J. McLEOD.

McCABE'S
MARKET
Is supplied with
All Kinds Of
MEATS
At Lowest Prices.
CASH PAID FOR FAT CATTLE, Hides, Sheep and Hogs.
Corner of State & Mason sts.,
JOHN McCABE.

1-3 OFF SALE!
At Miss Spaulding's
MILLINERY ROOMS,
I will sell my entire stock of goods except Yarns and Crewels at greatly reduced prices for cash only.
Any lady purchasing goods to the amount of $3.00 will receive a present of her choice of any untrimmed felt hat in the store.
Come early and secure a Bargain.
MISS L. SPAULDING.

NEW SHOP!
All kinds of
Blacksmithing,
At the
Shop in the Foundry Building.
Horseshoeing a specialty.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED
M. SCOTT.

Charlevoix Sentinel.

BUSINESS CARDS.

ATTORNEYS.

FRED W. MAYNE, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. MILO EATON, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

CRUICKSHANK & GRIER, Attorneys at Law, Collections, Charlevoix, Mich.

JOSEPH M. CLARK, Attorney at Law, Charlevoix, Mich.

PAILTHORP & GEORGE, Attorneys and Solicitors, Petoskey, Mich.

DART & CALL, Attorneys, Petoskey, Mich.

R. L. CORBETT, Attorney at law, Boyne City, Mich. (Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County.)

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

L. LEWIS, M. D., Physician and Surgeon. Office in Lewis Block, Charlevoix, Mich.

WM. M. PRESTON, M. D. Physician and Surgeon, 1 door west of Ingleside, Charlevoix, Mich.

J. A. VARLSTEIN, M. D., office at residence, Mason st. Charlevoix, M.

SOCIETIES.

G. A. R.—Baxter Post No. [illegible] meets second Monday in each month, at Odd Fellows hall.

MASONIC.—Charlevoix Lodge No. [illegible], F. & A. M., Tuesday on or before full moon. Hall over Post-office.

I. O. O. F.—[illegible] Lake Lodge No. [illegible] meets second and Fourth [illegible] every month, at Odd Fellows hall.

K. O. T. M.—Resort Tent No. [illegible] meets second Thursday every month, at Odd Fellows Hall.

I. O. G. T.—True Blues No. [illegible], meet Saturday on or before full moon in Odd Fellows Hall.

EMMET CHAPTER No. [illegible] R. A. M., meets at Petoskey on the first Monday of each month.

IVANHOE COMMANDERY No. [illegible], K. T., meets at [illegible] on the first Thursday of each month.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY meets every Tuesday evening at the [illegible], during the fall and winter months.

CHARLEVOIX IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION meets at Charlevoix Village Hall on the second Monday of each month, at 7:30 p. m.
President—Byron See.
First Vice-President—W. A. Smith.
Second Vice President—Robert Miller.
Recording Secretary—Chas. J. Strang.
Financial Secretary—R. Sullfeld.
Treasurer—Albert E. Mason.
Executive Committee—[illegible] Eaton, A. D. Cruickshank and E. F. Parmelee.
Corresponding Committee—H. [illegible] Iddings, W. A. Brown and C. [illegible].
Reception Committee—F. W. Mayne, L. D. Bartholomew, M. J. Stockman, B. Cooper, Geo. W. Crouter, R. W. Miller, S. H. See, W. [illegible] Newman, E. M. Clark, H. Beidan.
All persons wishing information regarding Charlevoix, the largest and most thriving town in the whole Pine Lake Region, will do well to address the corresponding committee. Unequaled opportunities for all classes of manufacturing.

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS.

FOUNTAIN CITY HOUSE.
RICHARD COOPER, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Every convenience for the traveling public, and head-quarters for Petoskey and Ellsworth stages.

BRIDGE STREET HOUSE.
R. A. Campbell, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
The most central location. Good Sample Room. Telephone connections. Only [illegible] feet to steamboat Landing.

NEWMAN HOUSE.
W. C. Newman, Prop'r.
Charlevoix, - - - Mich.
Fitted up with a view to the Comfort of the Traveling Public. Good Stabling furnished. Central Location.

PILE DRIVER.

ALLEN'S Steam Pile Driver. Contracts taken and all work solicited [illegible] between Little Traverse City and Mackinaw. L. A. Allen, Charlevoix, Mich.

MUNRO'S STEAM PILE DRIVER. Docks, Piers and Booms, [illegible] Contracts taken and docks work [illegible] any point between Sault St. Marie and Grand Haven. [illegible] promptly attended to. Address,
JOHN MUNROE, Jr., General Manager,
South Arm, Mich.

SURVEYORS.

J. R. and J. S. DIXON, Surveyors and Engineers, Charlevoix, Mich. (Deputy County Surveyors, Charlevoix county.)

DENTIST.

N. J. PERRY, Dentist. Office in Woods's Drug Store
Charlevoix, Mich.

Detroit, Mackinac & Marquette R. R.

"Mackinac Short Line."

Only direct line between the east and south and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Going West read down		Going East read up
[illegible]	Detroit	[illegible]	[illegible]
10 2 / 12 20	St. Ignace	[illegible]	[illegible]
9 5[illegible] / 9 40	Newberry	6 71	2 15
10 42	Seney	[illegible]	12 45
11 31	Reedsboro	[illegible]	[illegible]
12 [illegible]	Au Train	[illegible]	[illegible]
12 50pm	Marquette	2 00pm	7 00
1 55	Ishpeming	12 55
4 10	L'Anse	10 40
6 30	Houghton	8 20
[illegible]	Calumet	8 15

Connections made with M. C. Car Line, [illegible]

E. W. ALLEN, Gen. Pass Agt., Marquette.

Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad

In effect September 27, 1886.

(Trains run on Central Standard Time.)

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 6	No. 8	No. 4
Mackinaw City Lv	7 [illegible]	9 [illegible]
Petoskey	8 31	10 51
Boyne Falls	9 2[illegible]	11 41
Mancelona	10 12	12 30
Walton June	11 50	1 50
Cadillac Ar	12 40	2 50	5 15
Cadillac Lv	12 45	3 00	5 19
Le Roy	1 21	6 46	7 07
Reed City Ar	1 55	7 20	7 44
Reed City Lv	2 15	7 45	8 00
Big Rapids	2 46	[illegible] 11	8 55
Stanwood	3 05	8 30	9 05
Howard City	3 31	9 03	9 26
D G H & M Cross	4 10	10 15	10 35
Grand Rapids Ar	4 20	10 30	10 50
Grand Rapids Lv	7 15	5 15	11 15
Plainwell	8 31	6 44	12 12
Kalamazoo Ar	9 05	7 10	1 40
Kalamazoo Lv	9 10	7 15	[illegible]
Sturgis	10 27	8 53	2 00
Ft Wayne Ar	12 40	11 20	3 2[illegible]
Ft Wayne Lv	1 00	11 30	6 00
Richmond	4 30	3 18
Cincinnati Ar	7 30	7 25

GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Cincinnati, leave	7 35	7 20
Richmond	10 20	10 [illegible]
Fort Wayne Ar	1 00	1 15
Fort Wayne Lv	2 10	3 00
Sturgis	4 24	5 25
Kalamazoo Ar	5 35	6 [illegible]
Kalamazoo Lv	5 50	7 0[illegible]
Plainwell	6 16	7 48
Grand Rapids Ar	7 40	9 20
Grand Rapids Lv	11 [illegible]	1 55
D. G. H. & M Cross	11 35	[illegible]
Howard City	12 [illegible]	6 18
Stanwood	12 [illegible]	6 48
Big Rapids	1 13	7 09
Reed City Ar	2 [illegible]	7 55
Reed City Lv	2 35	8 [illegible]
Le Roy	3 08	8 33
Cadillac Ar	3 [illegible]	9 10
Cadillac Lv	3 55	10 00
Walton June	4 45	10 25
Mancelona	6 10	11 20
Boyne Falls	7 14	12 52
Petoskey	8 [illegible]	1 45
Mackinaw City Ar	9 30	2 55

C. L. LOCKWOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

LOADED FOR BEAR.

Farmer McCue's Experience with a Shotgun and with a Bear in Pennsylvania.

Joseph McCue of Sullivan County, Pa., is a little set in his opinions, but owns up like a man when he finds that he is wrong. The other day he was working in his turnip-patch, which is right across the road from his house. There are not many neighbors in the part of Sullivan County where Mr. McCue's farm is, which is the Beaverkill country, near the [illegible] County line. Mr. McCue had heard a quail whistling in his turnip-patch, and had taken his shotgun with him, thinking that maybe he might get the quail for his supper. As the farmer worked he was finally brought with his face toward the road, and he caught a glimpse of something passing along. Farmer McCue raised himself up. As he looked toward the road his eyes opened very wide. As they opened Mr. McCue exclaimed:

"By jee!"

What the farmer saw was a bear, and it was slouching deliberately along in the road past the house. There was nothing but bird-shot in Farmer McCue's gun, but he felt that he must get that bear. He seized the gun and fired both barrels at bruin. The bear stopped, looked in a deprecatory manner at the farmer, and then passed on. The farmer watched it until it disappeared in a bend of the road. Then he examined the hammers of his gun and blew in the barrels. Satisfied that the gun had gone off, he exclaimed:

"Missed him, by jee!"

Farmer McCue finished his work in the turnip-field and went to the house.

"If I had gone out loaded for bear," said he to his wife, "I couldn't have seen my way, the quails would have been so thick. But there I was laying for quail, and what do I flush but a bear as big as a yearling colt! If that bear bothers me to-morrow, though, I'll be sorry for him, and I'll load the old gun now. Mother, count me out thirty-seven buckshot for each barrel."

"You mean nine, Joseph," said Mrs. McCue.

"Thirty-seven, mother, for each barrel."

"Nine buckshot, Joseph, is a big load for any gun, and will kill an elephant!"

